"GOODBYE, SUCKERS, GOODBYE," THE LAST MESSAGE TO DUPES

A Missouri "Get-Rich-Quick" Concern Closes Its Offices.

Hundreds of Victims Will Lose Their Savings of Years.

Kansas City, April 12.—The American Mercantile association, alleged to be a "get rich quick concern" with offices in a downtown office building has been closed and this notice posted on the door:

"Good-bye, suckers, good-bye."

The whereabouts of the officers of the association is not known. The company's head office was at St. Joseph, Mo., and from there a notice had been sent out to its subscribers announcing the suspension as follows:

"The officers of the American Mercantile association takes this means to announce to you that the business of said corporation has been suspended and that it will be unable to complete or carry out its contract with you."

When this notice was received by the Kansas City subscribers, the majority of whom are laboring people, they flocked to the concern's offices. Many pitiable scenes were enacted.

The subscribers had agreed to pay $1 a week for eighty weeks on the promise that they were to receive $100 at the end of that period. Many working girls and laborers had been making payments for months. One woman had paid $7.50 a week for sixty-six weeks, and expected soon to realize $720.

The American Mercantile association began business in May, 1903 and its books, left behind by its officers, showed that it had many subscribers. The stationary gave the officers as M. Brueninger, president and treasurer; W. L. Stamper, secretary; L. H. Miles and N. M. Nordean, field managers. Brueninger is said to be in the saloon business at St. Joseph.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 12.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Henry Breuninger, president of the American Mercantile company, the "get rich quick" concern which collapsed here. L. H. Miles, secretary, and M. N. Nordean, field manager, have disappeared. Two thousand people here lose $30,000 by the failure.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT TO IGNORE GERMANY

It Will Pursue Its Stated Policy In Moroccan Affairs.

Paris, April 12.—Germany's efforts to secure an international conference on the Morocco question do not cause further apprehension here as the government is aware that practically all the powers having any political interests in Morocco would not participate. This applies to France, Great Britain, Spain, Italy and Russia and the other European powers having little or no interest in Morocco. Consequently Germany would be practically alone in favoring or participating in an international gathering. It is assumed that the neutral attitude of the United States will probably lead her to withhold participation if all the interested parties, except Germany, declined to take part in the proposed conference. The French authorities therefore do not attach further serious importance to the conference movement, being convinced that it is doomed in advance to failure.

Germany's plans concerning the suggested conference have not yet taken a definite form. The first reports which reached Paris indicated that Germany herself seeks to call a conference, but it now appears that Germany seeks to have the sultan of Morocco call a conference. Either plan is unacceptable to the authorities here, particularly the latter, as it would give the sultan another pretext to put off his reply, which France is now awaiting, relative to the adoption of reform measures. Moreover, the proposition to call an international conference is based on the theory of ignoring the French policy in Morocco under the Anglo-French agreement and turning over the question to a congress of the powers. Such an abandonment of French policy is not entertained in any quarter here.

Official dispatches received from Tangier this morning confirm reports that Count Von Tattenbach-Ashold, former German minister to Morocco, has called on members of the diplomatic corps and informed them that he has been appointed temporary charge d'affaires pending the arrival of the German minister, Dr. Rosen.

The official dispatches received here from Tangier do not confirm the report that Count Von Tattenbach-Ashold has special instructions ordering him to open negotiations directly with the sultan of Morocco. Renewed tension is expected if Germany undertakes to send a mission to Fez, as the offilals here say the effect of such a mission would be to seriously prejudice the success of the French negotiations, which are now reaching their final stage.

Tangier, Morocco, April 12.—It is officially confirmed that Count Von Tattenbach-Ashold, who provisionally is acting as charge d'affaires of the German legation here, will proceed to Fez at an early date to arrange a special German-Moroccan commercial treaty. American Consul General Philip has canceled his projected visit to Fez.

JOE CHAMBERLAIN ADVOCATES STRONGER ALLIANCE WITH JAPS

London, April 12.—Joseph Chamberlain, presiding at the annual meeting of the Liberal Unionist club held in London today, strongly supported the suggestion of an Anglo-Japanese defensive alliance. He referred to the present Anglo-Japanese alliance as one of the greatest diplomatic achievements of the last quarter of a century, and said the treaty had already justified itself by limiting the area of terrible conflict which was still going on. The Liberal Unionists, he added, would support Foreign Secretary Lansdowne in his determination to carry out the treaty in its spirit, as well as in its letter and he might say they would be very glad to follow Lord Lansdowne further if the foreign secretary thought the policy he had initiated could be extended. Mr. Chamberlain believed that any mutual defensive understanding between Japan and Great Britain would secure for an indefinite time peace in the Far East and give both Japan and Great Britain security in their possessions.

MOB KILLS SHERIFF IN HIS JAIL

Senatobia, Miss., April 12.—Sheriff J. M. Poag of Tate county was shot and killed today by a mob of masked men, who entered the jail for the purpose of liberating James Whit, a white prisoner, who is to be placed on trial Monday on a charge of murder. One of the invading party was wounded. The mob, which consisted of only six or eight men, gained an entrance to the jail before Sheriff Poag was aware of it. The sheriff's order that the men leave the jail was met with a refusal, whereupon the officer fired, wounding one man. The mob then fired on the sheriff, two bullets taking effect, one passing through the left lung. The masked men then left taking their wounded companion with them. Sheriff Poag died an hour later. The names of the members of the mob are not known. Whit remains in jail.

WOMEN PROVED TO BE EASY MARKS

Chicago, April 12.—Woman's vanity has proved a fertile field for George Levine, who, by flattering his victims with the belief that they were social leaders has swindled many women in Chicago recently. Levine pleaded guilty in Judge Tuthill's court to the charge of operating a confidence game and was sent to jail pending an investigation of his operations in Eastern cities.

"I have been sent to you because you are one of the leading society women of the city," Levine said to his victims, "and you have been selected to share in the distribution of prizes by my firm for advertising purposes."

He then produced a package of envelopes and declared each envelope contained money. The envelopes he sold at prices ranging from $1 to $15 each, with the stipulation that they should not be opened until he had been gone half an hour. The envelopes contained only blank paper.

GREAT SEA FIGHT IN PROGRESS NEAR THE ANAMBAS ISLANDS

THREE STRIKERS KILLED IN RIOT AT BURT MINE

Two Fell Dead In Their Tracks—Other Died Later.

Several More Severely Wounded and In Critical Condition.

Sheriff Bates and Deputies on Guard and All Quiet.

Hibbing, Minn., April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The miners' strike which started at the Hull and Rust mines yesterday morning and spread later to the Sellers mine, resulting in the closing down of all the Oliver Iron company properties, reached its climax last evening when a mob armed with rifles fired on the night crew on the Porter Bros.' stripping contract at the Burt mine, and in the return fire two of the strikers were killed and several were severely wounded. The killed were:

ELIAS HASKINEN.

JOHN ECKDAHL.

Both are Finlanders and were unmarried. The wounded men were carried off by the strikers and their names had not been learned. One died this morning, and several others are in a serious condition.

The day crew employed by Porter Bros. at the Burt mine were forced out by the strikers in the afternoon, and they returned to the village well satisfied with closing down all the work. Preparations were then made to protect the night crew from interference, and a large number of rifles were taken to the work.

When the night crew started in at 7 o'clock a large body of strikers appeared with rifles at the west end of the open pit and opened fire. The workmen seized rifles and returned the fire, putting the strikers to flight, after two were killed and several wounded. Some of the strikers returned later and fired upon the workmen, but when the fire was returned they departed, no one being injured.

Word was sent at once to Sheriff Bates, and he arrived here about 3 o'clock this morning with a force of sixty armed deputies, arriving in a special train over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern.

A crew of men started work this morning for Porter Bros. at the Burt mine, where the shooting occurred yesterday afternoon, under the protection of the sheriff and his deputies, and no violence had been offered up to noon, although there were a large number of the strikers in the vicinity.

Sheriff Bates is accompanied by Deputies Magie, Randall, Horgan, Gately, Patterson and Johnson of his regular official staff, in addition to the special force, Chief Deputy Pierce and Deputies Levy and Lerch remaining in Duluth to look after such work as may arise at the office during the sheriff's absence.

The men who first went on strike yesterday for an increase in wages of from $1.75 to $2 per day were doing common labor, similar to the section work for which the railroads are paying $1.50, and formed but a small percentage of the total force. The great majority of the miners are being paid from $2 to $2.50 per day.

Coroner Butchart will hold an inquest over the dead miners some time tomorrow. The miners met this afternoon to formulate their demands on the mine company to be presented later. Everything is quiet at present, and there is no further disturbance in sight.

SMITH AND WIFE TO PLEAD FRIDAY.

New York, April 12.—J. Morgan Smith and his wife who were brought here from Cincinnati yesterday to answer a charge of conspiracy with Nan Patterson to obtain money from Caesar Young, will not plead to the indictment until next Friday. They were arraigned in the court of general sessions today, but upon request of their attorney, the case was continued. They will remain in custody in the meantime, not being able to furnish bail in any amount according to the statement of their counsel in court.

PLATT IS IMPROVING.

Washington, Conn., April 12.—The report regarding the condition of Senator O. H. Platt has a more generally hopeful tone this morning than at any time within the last week. His physician says there has been a very decided improvement since Sunday, and that while he realizes that the danger is not yet over, he is exceedingly hopeful.

GRAIN WAREHOUSE BURNS.

New York, April 12.—Fire today destroyed the big grain warehouse of the Horace Ingersoll company at 640-644 West Forty-third street entailing a loss of $50,000.

BANKER ENDS LIFE.

Rochester, N. Y., April 12.—Arthur Lutchford, secretary and treasurer of the Mechanics' Savings bank of this city, committed suicide at his home today by shooting. The cause is said to have been ill health.

SWAP ADMIRALSHIPS.

Corfu, Greece, April 12.—The king of Greece, in return for Emperor William's courtesy in making him an admiral of the German navy, yesterday has appointed the emperor to be an admiral of the Greek navy.

RAILROAD MEASURES IN HOUSE AND SENATE; VETOES BY GOVERNOR

Chiropractic Bill Returned By Governor Without His Approval.

Smith's Bill to Increase the Salaries of Members Is Killed.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The railroad matters were foremost in both houses this morning, when the reports of the Eberhart rate committee were considered. There were two reports, a majority report by Senator Eberhart and minority report by Representative Washburn. The recommendations were the same in each, practically, but Washburn's report was a more elaborte treatise on railroad matters. The house adopted this report and indefinitely postponed the Eberhart report, while the senate adopted the Eberhart report. This difference between the two houses was increased by the fact that the senate had only two of the bills before the house, that giving the railroad and warehouse commission control of rates and classifications in the state, and that prohibiting rebates. Both of these were passed by the senate, also the joint resolution asking congress to increase the interstate commerce commission's power and to abolish private car lines, and that directing the railroad and warehouse commission to make a readjustment of the freight rates of the state to put them on the same basis as Iowa, which has lower rates.

Besides these matters, the house had the bill directing the railroad and warehouse commission to appear before the interstate commerce commission to prosecute cases, and the bill making orders of the commission effective at once, regardless of appeals to courts.

The house before adjournment passed all four railroad bills and the two resolutions.

There was no discussion in the senate, and but few negative votes. There was more discussion in the house, but no more negative votes.

• • •

Governor Johnson this morning vetoed two more bills. One was Skinner's bill emancipating Cook county from the jurisdiction of the Duluth municipal court, which he returned without approval because it is unconstitutional as it amends a special law, something the constitution prohibits.

• • •

The chiropractic bill, which passed both houses without serious opposition, was also vetoed and returned to the senate with a message setting forth the governor's reasons for his action. He said chiropractic is a discovery of recent origin and developed by men not learned in the science of healing disease. It has made no permanent benefits, and applications for membership in the board of examiners provided by the law have come in from insurance agents and others without medical training. Chiropractic should not be legalized, as that would lead some people to think the state approved of the practice and recommended it.

• • •

The senate killed the bill providing that constitutional amendments should be published once in every paper in the state instead of thrice in one paper in each county.

• • •

The bill raising the salaries of the railroad and warehouse commissioners from $3,000 to $3,600 passed the senate.

• • •

The Roberts bill providing for a constitutional amendment making the state librarian appointed by the supreme court instead of the governor, was re-considered, amended so as not to do away with the pardon board, and re-passed.

• • •

The rule requiring bills to lie forty-eight hours on the desks of members before being considered in committee of whole was suspended for the balance of the session by the house.

• • •

Smith's bill increasing the salaries of senators and representatives to $500 a year was killed this morning. The author moved that it be referred back to him, which means that he withdraws it, knowing that it would be voted down. A majority of members approved the bill, but were "afraid of the cars."

• • •

W. P. Roberts, chairman of the appropriations committee, announced this morning that he hoped the omnibus appropriation bill would be in by Friday, but he could not be sure.

• • •

Smith's bill proposing a constitutional amendment permitting special legislation in regard to cities was passed by the house.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

CONGREGATIONALISTS ACCEPT THE $100,000

Cannot Legally Return What They Have and Will Take Balance.

Boston, April 12.—A statement was made public today by the prudential committee of the American board of commissioners for missions which yesterday voted to accept $100,000 offered to the board by John D. Rockefeller. Two weeks ago the prudential committee adopted the report of a sub-committee recommending the acceptance of the money, but in view of the strong protest made by the Congregational clergy, final action was deferred until yesterday, when a supplementary report was made by the sub-committee. This report together with that of two weeks ago, was adopted.

The supplementary report, which was made public today, takes up the objections of the Protestants and asserts that they are not sufficient to prevent the board from accepting the money. One of the principal points raised in the report, is the claim of the committee that the American board cannot now legally return Mr. Rockefeller's money, because the decisions of the highest court are to the effect that trustees who have once accepted a gift and assumed certain obligations, have no power to return the gift and to absolve themselves from those obligations.

The committee holds that the action proposed by the protestants, namely, the return of the gift would have been wrong for it would express "disapprobation and condemnation of a man when he was doing an act of benevolence." The committee says:

"This would have been to confuse the issue and to act contrary to the Christian spirit. To prevent any man from doing good is a wrong way in which to condemn him for doing evil."

It is held that the return of the money would be the passing of judgment upon the character of the donor and the business methods he is alleged to have used and that this would be a wrong to the church of which he is a member.

The committee adds: "Any accusation against him could not, in Christian courtesy, be acted upon until the case had first been tried before the church which indorses him as a member in good and regular standing."

SCULPTOR RECOVERS HIS TEETH

New York, April 12.—Charles H. Niehaus, the sculptor, is recovering from an operation for the removal of two false teeth attached to a rubber plate which he had swallowed while laughing. The obstruction was found embedded in the oesophagus, far down behind the breast bone.

Sustained solely on artificial nourishment and constantly in pain, the sculptor suffered greatly before the operation was decided on. So greatly was he reduced in flesh that he could scarcely walk. When the plate slipped into his throat doctors had been hurridly called and, fearing the patient would choke to death, they devoted their efforts to forcing the obstruction downward as far as possible. When he was brought to this city last week the specialists turned to the X-ray and located the plate, which was of hard rubber. Nothing but the shadow of the upper rim showed above the breast bone.

The surgeons made a long incision, cut the oesophagus, carrying it away down to the breast bone. The rubber plate was as tightly jammed between the walls of the gullet as though hammered in, while the two sharp teeth were deeply embedded. It was, however, easily removed and Mr. Niehaus is now rapidly recovering.

FIVE DUTCH WARSHIPS WATCHING THE BATTLE

Report Comes From Island of Java But No Details Are Given.

News May Have Been Sent From the Dutch Ships By Wireless.

Amsterdam, April 12.—A fight is now in progress near the Anambas islands (east of the Malay peninsula) according to a telegram from Batavia, island of Java to the Handelsblad (newspaper.)

The dispatch adds that five Dutch warships are near the scene of battle. Details are lacking.

St. Petersburg, April 12, 4:38 p. m.—The admiralty has no information in regard to the alleged naval battle in progress off the Anambas islands as reported to a newspaper of Amsterdam, from Batavia and does not credit the possibility of a general naval battle yet. The officials concede, however, that the Japanese may have attempted a torpedo boat attack on a convoy during the night. It is pointed out that there is no cable connecting the Anambas islands and Batavia and that the first news of a fight should come from Singapore unless the Dutch warships are able to communicate with Batavia by wireless telegraphy.

London, April 12.—No confirmation has yet been received in London of the report from Batavia, Java, of a naval battle off the Anambas islands and as there is no cable connection with these islands, it is difficult to see how Batavia could have got such news before Singapore.

A dispatch to Lloyds from Singapore today practically confirms the Associated Press's first information regarding the composition of the Russian squadron which passed there April 8. Lloyds' agent says it was composed of seven battleships, two armored cruisers, five unarmored cruisers, three converted cruisers; seven torpedo boat destroyers; seventeen steamers and hospital ships and a tug.

ROJESTVENSKY'S FLEET

All Passed Singapore Going Into China Sea.

London, April 12.—The Associated Press is able to confirm absolutely the statement that the Russian battleships passed Singapore, going eastward, April 8, so that all of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet are accounted for. This definite news about the battleships was sent to Singapore by wireless telegraph from the China sea. It is presumed here that the battleships passed further out to sea than the rest of the squadron, hence the divergent reports regarding the number of ships.

TO PRESERVE NEUTRALITY.

French Warships Are Cruising Around Saigon.

Saigon, French Cochin China, April 12.—The French cruiser Descartes and five torpedo boats are cruising off Cape St. James, near here.

The French gunboats Acheron and Styx are about to leave Saigon for the purpose, it is said, of preserving the neutrality of French waters.

The Descartes, which is furnished with wireless telegraph apparatus, has received several dispatches in a foreign code, which are illegible.

A Chinese junk, which arrived here recently, reported that two Japanese vessels purchased supplies at Pulo Obi, at the southern extremity of Cochin China.

In case a battle occurs off the coast of Cochin China the only incidents anticipated by the French colony here are that the belligerents may send disabled ships to this port.

BATTLE ORGANIZATION

For Big Sea Fight Completed By Togo.

New York, April 12.—It is guardedly admitted in Tokio, according to the Express correspondent there, says an American dispatch from London, that Admiral Togo has completed his battle organization by dividing his fleet into three squadrons—flying, main and reserve.

The flying squadron, made up of his fastest cruisers, already is scouting the China sea and will open the fighting; the main squadron, made up of most of his battleships and armored cruisers, is to follow into action; the reserve squadron, comprising the remaining battleships and cruisers, will complete the attack, if necessary, and guard against any attack in the rear.

RUSSIAN CONVICTS

Are Armed to Defend Island of Sakhalin.

Tokio, April 12.—Reports received here from Manchuria indicate that the Russians continue concentrating their troops and strengthening the Changchun-Kirwin line. Gen. Madridoff's force continues in touch with the extreme Japanese left. Skirmishes are frequent and may possibly develop into an engagement.

It is reported that the Russians have armed the convicts of the island of Sakhalin, promising money and freedom to those fighting bravely. This, it is added, brings the garrison of Sakhalin up to a total of 3,000. It is doubted, however, that Russia will attempt to hold the island.

PRINCE OUKTOMSKY

Will Be Granted a Trial By Court-Martial.

St. Petersburg, April 12.—The demand of Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky for a court-martial has been granted. The court will consist of four admirals, Admiral Dikoff presiding.

Prince Ouktomsky succeeded Rear Admiral Withoeft in command of the Port Arthur fleet when the latter was killed in the naval battle of Aug. 10. It has been claimed that the prince did not carry out the orders previously issued by Admiral Withoeft not to put back to Port Arthur.

REFUSED CLEARANCE

Unless Coal Is Delivered Through British Consul.

Singapore, April 12—The German collier Hindoo, now at this port, loaded with 4,200 tons of Cardiff coal for the island of Tanjong Pandan, has been refused clearance papers for Saigon, unless her commander gives bonds to deliver her cargo through the British consul there. A guard has been placed on board the steamer.

The Straits Times today publishes a dispatch from Batavia, Java, confirming on good authority the statement that there are no Russian warships at Muntok, island of Banka.

ONE DEAD, SEVERAL INJURED IN A FIRE

Boarding House at Grand Rapids, Mich., Burns at an Early Hour.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 12.—One person is dead, one fatally injured, and five less seriously, as the result of a fire early today in a saloon and boarding house at the corner of Broadway and Elizabeth streets.

Dead:

MAY HERRICK, aged 8 years.

Injured: Mrs. Charles N. Herrick, the child's mother, fatally; Charles N. Herrick, the 2-year-old child of Mrs. Herrick; Thomas Norris, Ada Norris, Charles Anderson and Jack Ward.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Herrick, who aroused Thomas Norris, and then began struggling through the smoke and flames to reach the room where her children were asleep. Norris could not force his way through the fire from his room to the hall, and jumped from a second story window, breaking his arm when he struck the pavement. Ignoring the injury, he raised a ladder to the window and went to the rescue of Mrs. Herrick and her children. He brought the woman, who was badly burned, and her 2-year-old boy down the ladder, but meanwhile the fire spread so rapidly that Norris could not get into the room again to rescue 8-year-old May. Her burned body was found by the firemen, who had the fire under control in ten minutes after their arrival. While Norris was rescuing Mrs. Herrick and her child, Ada Norris, Jack Ward and Charles Anderson jumped to the ground from the second floor, and all of them sustained injuries, which, however, are not expected to prove serious. The monetary loss was only $1,000.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

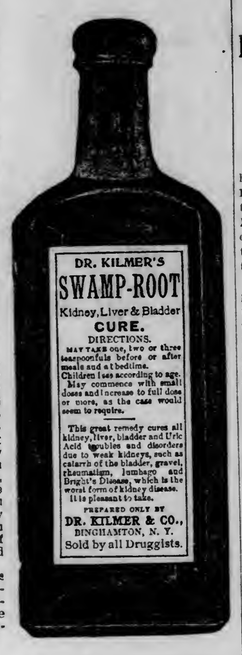
Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of The Herald May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.



I was out of health and run down generally; had no appetite, was dizzy and suffered with headache most of the time. I did not know that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, but somehow felt that they might be, and I began taking Swamp-Root. There is such a pleasant taste to Swamp-Root, and it goes right to the spot and drives disease out of the system. It has cured me, making me stronger and better in every way, and I cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers.

Gratefully yours,
MRS. A. L. WALKER, 331 East Linden St., Atlanta, Ga.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue much suffering and fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; make your head ache and back ache, cause indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, you get a sallow, yellow complexion, make you feel as though you had heart trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

The cure for these troubles is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

How to Find Out.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take from your urine on rising about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours. If on examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float about in it, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy for kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

(Swamp Root is pleasant to take.)

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EDITORIAL NOTE.—So successful is Swamp-Root in promptly curing even the most distressing cases of kidney, liver or bladder troubles that to prove its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. The value and success of Swamp-Root is so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in The Duluth Evening Herald. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

AFFECTS THE CHIPPEWAS

Supreme Court Decision Declaring Indian Land Owners Free.

Washington, April 12.—The decision rendered Monday by the United States supreme court has a very important bearing on the ceded Chippewa Indian lands in Minnesota.

Justice Brewer, in an elaborate opinion which is concurred in by the other justices, holds that where lands have been granted and allotted in severalty to Indians, the Indians become citizens of the United States, and are no longer wards of the nation.

But the direct bearing on the ceded reservations in Minnesota is in the case itself, which is exactly similar to one now pending before the United States court of appeals in Minnesota, having been sent up from a very recent decision of Judge Lochren, who held that the ceded Chippewa lands were still a reservation and that liquor could not be sold to Indians on the reservation.

The particular case is that of Frank Gorfio, who undertook to open a saloon at a new town called Ball Club Lake, on the former reservation. All of the Indians in that vicinity have been granted their allotments, and the heads of families have become voters and citizens.

Justice Brewer of the supreme court holds that when an Indian becomes a citizen it places him outside of police power of congress. He goes even further and holds that an Indian to whom an allotment has been made is released from federal supervision, no matter if his allotment is subject to a condition against alienation and incumbrances.

Recently Assistant Commissioner of Indian Affairs Larrabee rendered a long opinion, holding that the Indian ceded lands in Minnesota are still subject to federal control.

This claim is to be hotly contested by Northern Minnesota people. For two or three years the citizens who have taken up lands in the former reservation have been put to inconveniences. In the Richards townsite case, Maj. Scott, acting Indian agent, caused the arrest of several settlers on the ground that he still had control over lands that have long since passed from control of the Indian department. In view of this decision by the supreme court, a new phase will be injected into the question.

SUIT FOR $5,000,000

Brought Against the Parrot Mining Company.

Butte, Mont., April 12.—Nearly $5,000,000 is involved in a damage suit filed in the federal court by the Nipper Consolidated Copper company against the Parrot Silver and Gold Mining company. F. Augustus Heinze is the principal stockholder of the Nipper company.

The complaint alleges that ore has been illegally extracted from the Nipper workings for more than a year.

JAP POWER TOO GREAT

Administration Anxiously Watching Developments In Far East.

Chicago, April 12.—Walter Wellman, in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says:

President Roosevelt and the American government are carefully watching the development of Japanese power in the Far East. Since the president left Washington on his Western tour, and his recent efforts to make peace between Japan and Russia were made known, members of the diplomatic corps have been engaged in a most animated discussion as to the motives which led the president to take that action.

It was at first generally supposed Mr. Roosevelt had been actuated wholly by motives of humanity, that he was horrified at the slaughter in the Far East, and that he deemed it hopeless for Russia to continue offering such dread sacrifices on the altar of a stubborn pride. It now appears that while this was one of the reasons for the president's efforts to promote peace negotiations it was not the only one. The interest of the United States in the Far Eastern situation was a powerful factor.

The administration has not viewed with serenity the rise of Japan as the predominant power in the Orient, and it does not regard it for the best interests of the United States, either politically or commercially that the existing equilibrium should be violently disturbed. Under the leadership of Secretary Hay the administration opposed the Russian Eastern policy during the last few years because it was believed the domination of Russia over China threatened to place serious obstructions in the way of American trade in China and throughout Asia generally.

A fair equilibrium with no single power absolutely predominant seemed to the Washington government the best for all concerned, and best more particularly for the development of American trade in that region and the protection of American interests in th Pacific and its Western littoral.

The sympathies of the American people, as well as of nearly all the officials of the federal government have been notoriously with Japan up to the present time. But now a change is noticeable here at the national capital, at least. There is a growing feeling that Japan is acquiring altogether too much power, and the future of our commerce in the Far East and of our political relations to that region is a problem in which new and most potent factors are appearing.

The amazing success of Japan in her struggle with Russia promises ultimately to substitute Japan for Russia as the predominant Far Eastern power, and the administration regards one as disadvantageous to our interests as the other.

CHEATED DEATH.

Kidney trouble often ends fatally, but by choosing the right medicine, E. H. Wolfe, of Bear Grove, Iowa, cheated death. He says: "Two years ago I had Kidney Trouble, which caused me great pain, suffering and anxiety, but I took Electric Bitters, which effected a complete cure. I have also found them of great benefit in general debility and nerve trouble, and keep them constantly on hand, since, as I find they have no equal." All druggists guarantee them at 50c.

Ayer's Hair Vigor. To be sure, gray hair is better than no hair. But why have it gray, and thus tell everybody you are getting old? Keep it dark and rich; make it long and heavy. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

GUEST OF HONOR

Col. Graves Says Farewell to His Grand Army Comrades.

Paintings of Minnesota Regiments Will Adorn New Capitol.

Colonel C. H. Graves was the guest of honor of the Willis A. Gorman post No. 13 and Joshua B. Culver post No. 129 at the hall of the latter post in the old Masonic temple last evening. The proceedings were entirely informal and partook more of the nature of a camp-fire than of a reception.

Commander W. G. Ten Brook of Culver post made a short address of welcome to the colonel, which was followed by some remarks from Commander J. R. Randall, Past Commanders V. S. Wilkinson and D. W. Scott of Gorman post, and Past Commanders John H. La Vaque and C. T. Clement and R. S. Lerch and T. H. Presnell of Culver post.

Colonel Graves responded to the remarks of the other speakers.

Most of the speakers were old time residents of Duluth and their remarks consisted of reminiscences of past events in which the colonel was prominent. Mr. Clement, however, having been a resident of the city but fifteen years, claimed the privilege of representing "the tenderfoot" of Duluth, in congratulating Colonel Graves in his election to such an honored position as that of United States minister to the dual kingdom of Norway and Sweden.

In his response to the good wishes of his comrades, Colonel Graves stated that he had just returned from his last meeting with the state capitol commission, and that his last act was to introduce a resolution for the painting on the walls of the governor's reception room, pictures of the charge of the First Minnesota regiment at Gettysburg, of the Second Minnesota at Snodgrass hill in the battle of Missionary Ridge, and of other battle of Minnesota regiments at the battles of Vicksburg and Nashville. He said it gave him great pleasure to announce that the resolution had been adopted unanimously and that arrangements had been made with several of the best scenic artists in the world to paint the pictures.

Colonel Graves is a member of the Culver post, which is named after his old business partner, Colonel Joshua B. Culver, one of the first comers to Duluth, and its first mayor after it became a city.

W. H. NESBITT PASSES AWAY

Well Known Duluth Citizen Dies Suddenly of Apoplexy.

William H. Nesbitt, one of the old and well-known citizens of Duluth, died very suddenly yesterday afternoon of apoplexy at his home, 124 Tenth avenue east.

Mr. Nesbitt has been an invalid for two years past, having lost his right leg in a runaway accident. Yesterday his wife left him seated in an invalid chair, to go upstairs for a few moments. On her return she found him dying. He expired before a doctor could reach the house.

Mr. Nesbitt, who was 75 years of age, was a prominent Mason. He leaves four children besides his wife. One son, Henry, and two daughters, live in Duluth. Henry was formerly secretary to Mayor Hugo, and is now office manager for the Silberstein & Bondy company. The other son, George K., lives in Chicago.

The funeral will be held Thursday. It will be in charge of the Masons and interment will be made at Forest Hill.

LOGGERS ARRESTED.

Charged With Violation of Wisconsin Game Laws.

A. C. Ross and George W. Taylor, superintendent and foreman in a logging camp at Bear Lake, near Foxborough, Wis., have been arrested and taken to Superior a second time on the charge of offering venison for sale. The arrest was made by Deputy Game Warden Craig of Douglas county. Both men were in court about ten days ago and entered pleas of guilty to the charge of having venison in their possession, being fined $119.25 and $61.75 respectively. Ross and Taylor have retained M. H. McMahon of this city to make their legal fight. The game authorities of Wisconsin are making determined efforts to put a stop to the killing of deer out of season, and are paying special attention to those localities where it is rumored that venison is being furnished for logging camps.

Municipal Court Jurors.

The following persons have been summoned as jurors for the general term of municipal court, beginning April 18: William J. Suffel, William Frank, John Ryan, Thomas Martin, S. W. PARDON DENIED

To William Verrill of St. Louis County.

St. Paul, April 12.—Fred B. Davis, sentenced to the state reformatory at St. Cloud Dec. 2, 1901, for manslaughter committed at St. Peter, Nicollet county, was the only one of a long list of applicants to receive a gift of freedom at the hands of the state pardon board, which met in Governor Johnson's office.

There were thirty-four cases before the board. One case was continued, one was commuted to a shorter term, and many were taken under advisement, while quite a number were denied. Attorney General Young and Chief Justice Start, with the governor, comprise the board.

The application of William Verrill of St. Louis county, sentenced to life imprisonment for manslaughter, was denied. The case of James, Rove of St. Louis county was taken under advisement, and the case of Ed Finnell of Itasca county was continued.

MAYNARD IS LOSER.

Fails to Throw Two Men In One Hour.

Bemidji, Minn., April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Billy Maynard, who wrestled Johnson at Duluth, was defeated at the Star theater here last night. He agreed to throw P. M. Donovan, ex-champion middleweight of Minnesota, and Kid Fandin of Grand Forks in one hour. He threw Fandin in 27 minutes, but Donovan secured a double hammerlock on him in 11 minutes and forced him to the mat, winning the match.

BODY FOUND AFTER TWENTY-ONE YEARS.

West Granby, Conn., April 12.—Mystery surrounding the disappearance twenty-one years ago of Lewis Case, a farmer, has been cleared up by the identification of pieces of the clothing on a skeleton found by two boys at play. The bones were almost hidden from sight between two large rocks within the town limits. Some of the clothing which was still in a fair state of preservation, was positively identified by Mrs. Case as having belonged to her husband. Case was despondent when he disappeared and is thought to have taken poison.

GERMAN PRINCE DRIVES COACH INTO A WALL.

New York, April 12.—The German crown prince while tooting a four-in-hand has driven the coach into a wall by the roadside near Potsdam, cables the Herald's correspondent at Berlin.

The coach was completely wrecked, but, fortunately the prince escaped without injury.

THE WEAKEST LINK.

The strength of the strongest chain is measured by its weakest link.

Strengthen yours with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

You appreciate, no doubt, at their fullest, all the great blessings of health, success, and a long life, and no doubt you are working hard every day on the great chain which represents the accomplishment of your ambition in life.

But if the link of health be too weak to stand the strain, what matters all the rest?

Take this counsel, therefore, to heart, and insure your success by strengthening your one weak link, which is, without doubt, your digestion.

The way to strengthen a weak digestion is to eat plenty of good, strengthening food, for you can't build strength on mere air.

And, remember this is the important part of it—ensure the food's digestion and assimilation with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will build up, out of food, the most solid kind of strength, physical strength, nervous strength, vital strength, digestive strength.

They act as digesting undigested food, that the weak digestive organs can make no use of.

They also gently relieve inflammatory conditions, by their action on the tissues with which they come in contact, and by their purifying, antiseptic, chemical reaction on the poison-saturated blood of the unfortunate dyspeptic.

The action of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets on the blood is really one of its most important properties, since by so doing it shows its real therapeutic, curative value, and by getting into the innermost vitality, so to speak, being carried by the white blood corpuscles to every little corner and living part of the body, they are able to dispel every little disease symptom which has in any way been caused by the many poisons of dyspepsia.

The quick relief of the local stomach, liver, bowel, or kidney symptoms of indigestion, brought about by the direct action of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, upon the undigested or partially digested food, which has not gone into the proper channels for final assimilation.

They quickly relieve, in this way, the pain, discomfort, nausea, dizziness, full feeling, gas, wind and other disagreeable symptoms, caused by the irritant effect of these undigested food particles in the various parts of the digestive tract, and thus act the double role of:—

First—Relieving pain and discomfort; and

Second—Permanently curing the more deeply seated evidences of the disease.

By this perfect command over such a dangerous and painful disease as Dyspepsia, Stuart's have proved their right to the title—

"Man's best friend."

Try them.

Sold at all druggists. Price, 50 cents a box.

FORM BIG MERGER

Southern Pine Indicates Pool Interests to Fight Railroads.

Lumbermen Well Known Here Among Those Interested.

A gigantic merger of lumber interests has just been consummated in Mississippi and Louisiana, that has attracted the interest of the lumber fraternity all over the country, and which concerns directly some of the large lumber and logging interests which operated in this part of the country.

The combination is said to control fully three-fourths of the standing pine timber acreage of Mississippi, as well as an enormous acreage in Louisiana. Something like 1,500,000 acres of yellow pine lands in Mississippi are said to be embraced in the combination.

According to the reports the lumber and logging concerns operating in the Southern states mentioned have been, from their own point of view, forced into a merger for the protection of their interests against the railroad companies, with whom there has been a great deal of trouble over rates during the past few years, the railway lines being charged with increasing carrying rates and refusing to give any concessions.

The big merger has been formed to control all the standard guage logging roads which are networking the yellow pine district, and a comprehensive line of roads will be had through one of the richest pine belts of the South, enabling the lumber companies to deliver their tonnage either to the roads west of the Mississippi; to the Illinois Central, tapped at several points; to the Northeastern, or to the Gulf & Ship Island. There will also be an important Southern terminus, New Orleans.

By reason of this merger of interests it is claimed that more than 1,000,000 acres of pine timber will find its way into the markets of the world over the sindicate road.

Among the big companies reported to have holdings in the merger are Blodgett-Wright company, with 350,000 acres, a company whose officers are well known in this part of the country. C. H. Davis, its chairman, and E. P. Stone, its treasurer, were formerly connected with the Wright-Davis Logging company, which several years ago was one of the most prominent contracting firms in the Northwest. Associated with the company, also, is M. H. Kelley of this city.

Other companies said to have holdings are the Edward Hines Lumber company of Chicago, with 120,000 acres of pine timber: the Weyerhauser group with 60,000 acres; the Newman Lumber company with 350,000 acres; the Goodyear Syndicate with 350,000 acres held by the Great Southern Pine company; the Pearl River Lumber company with 100,000 acres; and the Enochs people with 80,000 acres.

Estimating the cut at a car an acre the railroad department of the vast concern has 1,500,000 cars of freight ready at hand. From the very start it is almost in a position to dictate rates, if need be to build its own road from Natchez to Cairo and do business with the lines north of the Ohio river.

F. H. Goodyear, at the head of the Godyear syndicate is said to be the promoter of this large scheme, which has almost unlimited capital back of it. Other capitalists said to be interested are Mr. Weyerhauser, director of the Northern Pacific road and a friend of the railway magnate J. J. Hill, also Mr. Gray of the firm Pack, Gray & Company, the giants of the white pine industry. It is also rumored that behind them all stands John D. Rockefeller.

It is considered probable that a similar effort will be made to merge the Louisianna timber interests as comprehensively as those in Mississippi appear to have been gotten under control.

Predictions are being made that the price of stumpage will go up to $5 per thousand, which means an average of $50 per acre. Some of the lands were bought by the syndicates for $30 per acre. The advance of the price of the manufactured product will logically follow and the development of the territory through which the lines will pass is also an important factor in the future of the South.

HIS CALL IS SUDDEN

Richard F. Marvin Passes Away After Few Hours' Illness.

Richard F. Marvin, assistant custodian of the federal building, who took sick yesterday morning, died in St. Luke's hospital yesterday afternoon of acute Bright's disease. He was 56 years of age, unmarried, and leaves a sister and three brothers, Mrs. Fred Lerch of Hibbing; L. A. Marvin, deputy county auditor; J. Walter Marvin of Duluth, and William Marvin, a farmer in the western part of the state.

Mr. Marvin came to Duluth with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Marvin, in 1861, after which he attended and was graduated from the high school in St. Paul. Then he entered a commercial college in Cincinnati, Ohio, and after graduating there returned to Duluth in the later '60s and occupied a number of positions here until 1870, when he was appointed postmaster to succeed Dr. Foster, editor of the Minnesotian. He was postmaster from 1870 to 1876, and then went to Cincinnati to work in the wholesale house of W. F. Thorne & Co., remaining there until 1881, when he returned to Duluth. At that time he formed a partnership in the real estate and insurance business with T. H. Hawkes, Jr., now in charge of the insurance department of William Prindle & Co. He remained in the insurance and real estate business until 1897, when he was appointed to the position he held up to the time of his death.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon from the home of L. A. Marvin, 123 West Third street, but as Mrs. L. A. Marvin will not reach home until this evening, no definite arrangements have been made.

DISPLEASED WITH DEPOT

Superior People Make Progress Toward Getting New One.

A mass meeting of representative citizens of Superior was held at the Commercial club rooms in that city last evening to discuss the matter of a new Union depot and other things of interest to the future welfare of Superior.

The discussion as to the Union depot developed the fact that while the Commercial club had conferred frequently with the Terminal company, no definite results had been reached. It was concluded advisable to address a memorial to the city council on the subject as that body is in closer touch with the railroad companies.

The citizens unhesitatingly roast the little old frame structure that has been maintained as a Union depot since the former structure burned down a year ago and insist that the maintenance of the present building is a hardship to the people and an injury to the city because of the bad impression it gives travelers and visitors.

E. T. Buxton, president of the Commercial bank of Superior, gave an interesting talk on advertising the city, during which he urged the Superior men to emulate Duluthians, in the following words:

"Talk like the citizens of Duluth. When anything questionable of their town is said, Duluthians argue it out. They have tact. They have the faculty of putting the big things of Duluth to the front until the other fellow begins to think that the town is perfect. In fact, Duluthians are always ready to talk—they are great talkers. At the same time Superior has as good, if not better advantages. Let us talk of the good things in Superior. Let us constantly puff the town. That's the way they do in Duluth. Don't let any man say anything about Superior or the Head of the Lakes.

"If I ever went crooked I'd go to Duluth. They'd stick to me because they stick to everything that savors of Duluth. At the same time deep down in their hearts our neighbors have a feeling for us—in fact, they're a little afraid of us. The sharp and clever Duluthian has analyzed our natural advantages. He knows wo have the natural advantages."

MANY SECRETS

Concerning Beef Trust Methods Found In Trunks.

Chicago, April 12.—An investigation by the federal grand jury which is inquiring into the working methods of the alleged beef trust of a much deper nature and of a wider scope, it is asserted is to result from the examination of the contents of the eight trunks taken from the safety vaults in the First National bank building. When these trunks were opened, it is said, that the secret transactions of the Aetna Trading company, a corporation, through which the secret business of the big packers was transacted, was revealed to the jurors and as a consequence many new witnesses will be subpoenaed. The trunks and contents have been impounded on an order by Judge Sanborn so that no one by legal process can obtain possession of them.

BAG COMPANY ELECTS.

New York, April 12.—At the annual meeting of stockholders of the Union Bag & Paper company, held in Jersey City, the old directors were re-elected with the exception of D. W. Hagee, who was succeeded by A. R. Rush. The annual statement was submitted for the period ending Jan. 31. It showed an increase in net profits of $93,909.

ARE YOU FAT?

Kellogg's Obesity Food Will Reduce Your Weight to Normal, Free You From Suffering and Turn Your Fat Into Muscle.

It Has Done This For Many Others Who Testify to Its Efficacy—Trial Package Free.

The Above Illustration Shows the Remarkable Effects of This Wonderful Obesity Food—What It Has Done for Others It Will Do for You.

Don't be fat. It is an abnormal and diseased condition of the body. Nutriment that should have built up bone and muscle for you has made fat instead.

Excess fat is attended by many dangers. The heart, stomach, liver and kidneys become seriously affected; breathing is made difficult and often, though seemingly well, the fat person is in grave danger.

Don't starve yourself. You will only become weakened and aggravate your condition without losing flesh.

There is a sure way and a safe way. Hundreds of reputable people testify to what Kellogg's Obesity Food has done for them. It has turned their fat into muscle. They submit their photographs as corroborative evidence. Can you doubt such proof?

Don't be fat. Write to me today and I will send you free, a trial package, postpaid, in plain wrapper.

Among the many instances of relief and cure through Kellogg's Obesity Food, the case of Mr. H. S. Myers, of Pennsville, Lafayette Co., Pa., may be mentioned. Mr. Myers has been greatly benefited and gratified with the result; he writes as follows:

"Dear Mr. Kellogg:—I want to thank you for your Obesity treatment and tell you that there is something truly remarkable and wonderful about it. I began losing in weight the first week and am now 70 pounds lighter than before taking and am still losing. The treatment is all and even more than you claim it to be.

I never felt better in my life than I do today. My health is better than for years, and although I am 48 years old, I feel as strong and active as at 18. I shall use my best endeavors to induce all afflicted as I was, to do as I have done and enjoy comfort and health. I will be glad to answer all letters of inquiry that come to me at any time."

Send your name and address—no money—today to F. J. Kellogg, 1484 Kellogg Bldg., Battle Creek, Mich., and receive the trial package in plain wrapper free by mail.

DISEASE IS RARE

Thomas Govette's Death Due to Inflammation of Spleen.

New Gun Club Will Erect Shooting House—Other News.

The funeral of Thomas Govette will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services will be held at the Westminster Presbyterian church, but will be conducted by Rev. F. G. Clark, pastor of the Asbury Methodist church. The Jewell-Adams quartet, the members of which were close friends of the deceased, will sing, and the funeral will be under the auspices of the Odd Fellows and Modern Woodmen of America. Both lodges, together with the Royal Neighbors, will attend the funeral in a body.

It has been published that Mr. Govette died of the effects of inflammatory rheumatism. This, according to Drs. Magie and Bagley, the attending physicians, is erroneous. Mr. Govette's trouble was a very rare one—inflammation of the spleen.

Dr. Magie says it is the first case of the kind that has ever been under his notice, and it is found but seldom. Intense sueffring accompanies it.

BUILD AT ONCE.

New Gun Club Will Erect Shooting House.

The new Rod and Gun club, which has chosen as a site for its shooting grounds a sandbar at the foot of Sixty-third avenue west and the bay front, will probably have its shooting house up before long. Work will begin on it Sunday by the members of the club, and will probably be finished that day. The house for the present will be only 12 by 30 feet, and then a small house for the trap will be put up.

As more members come into the club, plans will be made for a large club house, which is the ultimate object of the organization, and it is expected that a good deal of money for this purpose will be raised before long.

A black bird club trap has been ordered.

IN GOOD CONDITION.

St. James Court Finds Itself Well Fixed.

St. James court, No. 614, C. O. F., held its regular meeting last evening at Gilley's hall. There was a good attendance, and an interesting meeting was the result. The auditing committee of the court submitted its report of the financial condition of the local society, and showed the court to be in a prosperous position. The committee appointed at the last meeting to arrange for the attendance of the court at divine services reported, and the court will attend St. James church in a body the first Sunday after Easter.

Resolutions of sympathy on the death of William Doherty were passed, and a copy of the resolutions were sent to the family. Two sons of the deceased are members of St. James court.

Fire Destroys Barn.

A barn at Sixty-third avenue west and Redruth street was destroyed by fire last evening, and so were several barrels of cylinder oil which it contained. The barn was owned by John Markenson and the oil by Capt. Jacob W. Mann. The barn was old, and the fire had gotten such a start when the department arrived that nothing could be done to save it. It is thought that it was set on fire by sparks from grass fires close by.

Honor Mrs. Dibbell.

The state convention of Royal Neighbors held in St. Paul yesterday gave much honor to a West Duluth woman, Mrs. Carrie S. Dibbell. Mrs. Dibbell was elected state oracle and also alternate delegate from this state to the national convention of the order to be held in Topeka, Kans., on June 13. Her election as state oracle was unanimous.

Break Down at Mill.

The St. Louis mill started operations yesterday afternoon but after continuing for a time an accident to the machinery caused the mill to be shut down for repairs and it will not be started up again for several days. The Alger-Smith mill will likely not start until the end of this week or the first of next.

William Doherty's Funeral.

The funeral of William Doherty took place this morning from St. James Catholic church. The Longshoremen's union, under whose auspices the funeral was held, attended in a body and a large number of them were in line. They were headed by Flaaten's band, playing Chopin's funeral march. The attendance otherwise was large, many following the body to Calvary cemetery where it was interred.

Eruptions

Dry, moist, scaly tetter, all forms of eczema or salt rheum, pimples and other cutaneous eruptions proceed from humors, either inherited, or acquired through defective digestion and assimilation.

To treat these eruptions with drying medicines is dangerous.

The thing to do is to help the system discharge the humors, and strengthen it against their return.

SEEDING IS NOW GENERAL

Crop Reports Show This of Minnesota and North Dakota.

The publication of the climate and crop service bulletins for the grain raising season in the Northwest has begun. The North Dakota report indicates that seeding of wheat is in progress all over that state but hindered somewhat by cold nights. It says:

"The crop season of 1905 is opening very favorably. The month of March just passed was the warmest one of its name for the past founteen years; the temperature during the last half being unusually high, accompanied by generally clear skies, which took the frost out of the ground, and allowed considerable farm work to be done that is not usual so early in the spring.

"Considerable plowing and harrowing was done the latter part of March, and in the southern section of the state, some wheat was sown during this time, and some was also sown in the western part. The fore part of April brought hevy rains in the northeastern and eastern portions of the state, at times accompanied by light snow flurries, and light showers in the eastern central portion. The low lands in the Red river valley and adjacent country were made so wet by these rains that all work was suspeneded, except on very high land, and but little has been done there since. The ground is now reported to be drying rapidly, and if the present favorable weather continues, seeding will be in progress by the middle of the week.

"In the central, northern and eastern sections, wheat seeding is well under way, but as the ground freezes every night, but little can be done during the forenoon, so that seeding is restricted to the afternoon. The ground is in generally excellent condition, except in the northwestern and western portions, where rain is badly needed, both to start grain that has already been sown, and for wild grass that has not started in these sections, although it has started and is making vigorous growth in other sections.

"Some millet that has already been sown in the western part of the state, and some few oats in other sections, but as a rule, wheat has been the principal grain sown.

"On account of the favorable weather, much more than the usual amount of spring plowing has been done, and the ground is being more thoroughly prepared for crops than for some time past.

The condition existing in Minnesota is much the same as that in North Dakota. The report of the former state says:

"There were rains in nearly all parts of the state on April 1, 2 and 3, and a few scattering rains or snows on the morning of the 4th; since then there has been little precipitation. The minimum temperatures were about 32 deg. on the mornings of the 1st and 4th, and they were below 30 deg. on the mornings of the 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th and 10th. The winter's frost is generally well out of the ground, but the low temperatures in the middle and latter parts of the week froze the surface soil so that no field work was possible till toward noon. Wheat seeding has been begun on the higher lands of the northern third of the state; in central portions wheat seeding is farther advanced, and some oats are being seeded, while in the south, central and southwestern portions wheat seeding is nearing completion, and oat seeding is well advanced, and in some places a little barley has been seeded. Some of the early seeded wheat is coming up. Only the fall plowed land is being seeded up to this time. Much more attention than usual is being paid to the quality of the seed used. Early potato planting and gardening are begun. Winter rye, winter wheat and clover seem to be doing well."

New Walking Skirts, $5.75.

Made in 50-gore, full-pleated effect—new panamas and serges—stylish spring and summer shades.

New Tailored Suits, $19.50.

The greatest value ever produced at this popular price. An agreeable difference in the appearance of this pretty suit, when compared with the usual styles shown elsewhere even at a higher figure.

Nothing to compare with it in the city at $25.00—a special model, designed for the S. & B. Co., made in a choice of fine materials such as rich Panamas, fancy suitings, etc.—new, fancy blouse effect, made with cloth or shirred silk girdles, fancy collar and cuffs, trimmed with rich tailor trimming—the choicest popular price suit offered this season—$19.50.

NEW MILLINERY.

No exhibit in this section excels this splendid showing in beauty, richness of materials, and, most important of all, artistic merit. Tomorrow we place on sale a handsome collection of chic tailored and suit hats—black and colored, in many desirable shades—two prices—$3.50 and $4.50. Why not select one tomorrow?

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Miner Electrocuted at Twelfth Level of the Chapin Mine.

Iron Mountain—Liberato Dibiasi was electrocuted on the twelfth level of the Hamilton shaft of the Chapin mine at Iron Mountain. Dibiasi, as near as can be learned grasped a live wire, and died instantly from the shock. Upon seeing Dibiasi clinging to the wire, a fellow laborer grasped him in an attempt to pull him away. He also received the shock and was unable to loose himself. Then a third man grasped the second, with similar consequences. The men remained in the predicament for a time until some one with the necessary presence of mind cut the wire in two. The two man who attempted to release Dibiasi were quite badly burned and were removed to St. George's hospital. The dead man was aged 27.

Marquette—The United States life saving station at Marquette will open this season upon the arrival of the first boat. There are some minor changes in the personnel of the crew. Daniel Shelton of this city, who was recently reinstated in the service, and C. E. Whitman, who was transferred from Crist's Point, being new members. The full crew this year will be as follows: Capt. H. J. Cleary, J. A. Anderson, Daniel Shelton, John McGinchey, D. E. Whitman, L. Morrill, Edward Sommer, L. Swanson, J. Wagner.

Manistique—After having been held for ten days the remains of a woodsman killed by a falling limb at the McGinnis logging camp have been buried in potter's field at Manistique. Every effort was made to discover the identity of the man, but the quest was unsuccessful.

Powers—Henry Crook, a Powers (Menominee county) blacksmith, is dead as a result of a fall down a flight of stairs at the Commercial hotel at that place. He was 65 years of age and had lived at Powers for over thirty years. The fall down the stairs resulted in a hemorrhage of the brain that could not be stopped.

Gladstone—Now that the election is over at Gladstone, it is tthe reported determination of a number of citizens and officials in that city to begin proceedings against I. E. Shelley, the candidate of the law and order party for mayor at the last election. Mr. Shelley made a number of statements prior to the election that are claimed to be defamatory to the character of certain of the city officials. Mr. Shelley will now be called upon to prove these statements, or retract them and if he fails to do this it is the intention of those persons whose character his statements have affected to make him answer in court to the charge of libel.

BROKERS' CASE

For Contempt of Court Comes Up at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, April 12.—The hearing on the habeas corpus cases of John W. Ballman, the broker, who, on the advice of his attorney refused to produce his cash book and answer certain questions before the United States grand jury and was sentenced to jail for contempt of court, came up today before United States Circuit Judge Lurton.

Thomas F. Shay, the attorney, whose advice to Ballman led to the contempt charges, had not paid the fine of $250 for contempt of court, which was imposed on him yesterday by United States Judge Thompson up to the opening of court today. He was released from custody on his own recognizance for the present, but announced today that he would carry his case to the higher court to which he would apply for a writ of habeas corpus.

Accidents come with distressing frequency on the farm. Cuts, bruises, stings, sprains. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil relieves the pain instantly. Never safe without it.

REMNANTS

Of Champagne Bottle Go to Miss Schaller.

Washington, April 12.—Before she left Washington, Miss Rose Marie Schaller, sponsor of the battleship Minnesota, received word from the officers of the ship building company that the fragments of the champagne bottle, with which the ship was christened, will be sent to her in Minnesota.

The bottles was bound in a small mesh silk net and gaily decorated with ribbons. Most of the fragments of the bottle remained in the net, so Miss Schaller will have plenty of pieces to distribute as souvenirs among her friends.

DESPONDENT MINER

Blows Off the Top of His Head.

Livingston, Mont., April 12.—Despondent over his failure to strike it rich, his lead having pinched out, Henry Gillott, a lonely prospector, committed suicide in the mountains near Jardine, a small mining camp about thirty miles from here. He lived alone in a cabin, and not being seen for several days, a friend investigated. Unable to open the door, he peered through a window of the hovel and discovered Gillott stretched on the floor, the whole top of his head blown off. Near by lay a shotgun. Gillott evidently had sprung the trigger by means of a stick, placing his head against the muzzle of the weapon.

HAS HOUSES FOR CHILDREN

Apartment House Owner Favors Large Families As Tenants.

New York, April 12.—If President Roosevelt were in the knighting business, it is pretty safe guessing that about the first person to get into favor when the first gentleman of the land returns from the West would be John Monaghan of the Bronx.

Mr. Managhan is a man after the president's own heart. He has three apartment houses, and refuses to rent to tenants, who are without children. He is building two more houses for families with children, and he hopes to have eighteen apartment buildings where children will be at a premium.

This is what the remarkable landlord, who is also a clerk in the Second district court, says of his unusual course:

"It may be a queer thing for a landlord to invite families with children into his houses, but that's what I am doing. Why, I have seen so much suffering from this inhuman prohobition against children in apartments that I think it is time to act.

"I have five children myself. What would I do if the landlord chased my family from pillar to post as though we were infected creatures? I suppose other landlords will say I am eccentric. It isnt eccentricity; it is humanity.

"Since I have been at the court I have seen many pathetic instances of the apartment house crusade against children. Landlords take advantage of the five-days'-notice law and put families with children out into the street because some tenant complains.

"In one of my houses not long ago a very nice old lady had an apartment. She had raised a big family, too, but other people's children annoyed her. She complained to me and I had to tell her she would have to leave.

"I went down to my agent and told him that I had apartments for rent, but that no one without children would be allowed. He thought I had gone crazy at first, but inside of an hour I had a tenant.

"Families with children are good tenants from a business standpoint. They are not fussy and they are not always asking for improvements. Another thing, families with children stay a long time—they are not always moving.

"The question of rent has nothing to do with the children. I am not offering any premiums for big families or any of that funny business. This is a serious matter.

"I have given my agent instructions to rent apartments only to families with children. I don't care how many they have."

THE OLD GUIDE

Does Not Mind an Operation For Appendicitis.

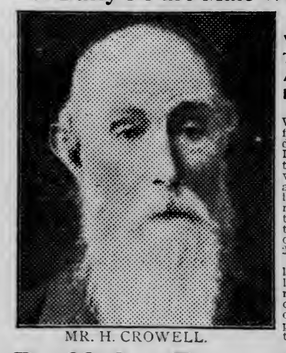
Johnstown, N. Y., April 12.—A most remarkable surgical operation was performed a few days ago on Pierre Lacomb, 92 years of age, an old French-Canadian Tupper lake guide.

Two of the sons of the old man took him to the Clayton hospital, suffering greatly with appedicitis, which necessitated an immediate operation. The doctors told the old man and his sons that the operation would doubtless prove fatal. Nevertheless, the old man saw a fighting chance for his life, and insisted upon an operation. At noon the operation was performed and the boys were making arrangements for the burial of the old man.

At 5 o'clock in the evening the old man sat up in bed, called for his trousers, took therefrom a plug of tobacco, cut from it a liberal slug and put it in his mouth. A few hours later a nurse brought the old man some broth. He called the doctors. Thinking to humor the old man, they ordered pork and beans which the old man asked for, and he ate heartily of them. The third day Lacomb decided to go home. The nurses protested. The doctors said, "Let him go." The old fellow went home, and Saturday five days from the time of the operation he was out of doors sawing wood.

Wife Aged 84 Is Saved From Collapse

Mrs. H. Crowell, on the Verge of Nervous Prostration, Was Saved From a General Breakdown and Is Kept Vigorous and Hearty by the Regular Use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.



MR. H. CROWELL.

"We Have Used Duffy's Malt Whiskey In Our Family for a Long Time," Mr. Crowell Writes, "and As An Aid to the Aged and Infirm It Is Unequalled."

"We have been using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in our family for a long time and find it a splendid tonic and stimulant for dyspepsia and all diseases of the stomach. It is especially beneficial in cases where the health is run down from disease, worry or overwork, and as an aid to the aged, and infirm it is unequalled. My wife has had occasion to use Duffy's more than myself, and as she is 84 years old, and is troubled with weak spells, it is the only thing that has saved her from physical collapse."—H. Crowell, Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 25, 1904.

Weak and sinking spells accompanied by nausea, inability to retain or assimilate food for the proper nourishment demanded by a normal, healthy body, are certain indication that the stomach is out of order and is unable to perform the important and indispensable work assigned to it by naturc.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

Is the one pure and perfect tonic-stimulant and invigorator for the absolute cure and prevention of dyspepsia, indigestion, nervous prostration, inactive or torpid liver, all disorders of the bowels and stomach, bronchitis, grip, pneumonia, consumption and all diseases of the throat and lungs. It is indorsed by ministers of the gospel and prescribed by doctors as the purest, most wholesome and nourishing tonic-stimulant for sick, run down and overworked men, and tired, nervous, delicate women.

It is a promoter of good health and longevity, and by its regular and judicious use thousands of men and women have been kept hale and hearty and enabled to reach the century mark in full enjoyment of their mental and physical powers.

The purity of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is guaranteed; it contains no fusel oil and is the only whiskey recognized by the Government as a medicine.

CAUTION.—Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the only absolutely pure malt whiskey, and when you seek to purchase a bottle be sure you get the genuine and refuse dangerous substitutes and imitations placed on the market by unscrupulous persons for profit only, and which are a menace and detriment to the health, doing vastly more harm than good. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and be certain the seal over the cork is unbroken.

Sold by all druggists and grocers, or direct, $1.00 a bottle. Medical booklet and advice free. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

PIKE BEGIN RUNNING

Deputy Game Warden Green Starts Work Collecting Spawn.

Authorities Will Exercise Vigilance to Prevent Illegal Fishing.

The St. Louis river is now free of ice to the bay at West Duluth and it is expected that the pike will begin running up the river to spawn within the next few days.

Deputy Game Warden Green of this city will leave today or tomorrow for Fond du Lac, where he expects to follow his customary practice of taking spawn in the interests of the state game and fish commission as well as to keep a lookout for violaters of the state game law.

The open season for pike dies not begin until May 25, a date that is still a long way off, almost too far to suit the local anglers and, judging from the experience of the game wardens in past years, there will be necessity for their presence along the river from now on until the pike season opens.

That the time while the pike are going up the river to spawn is the best fishing period is recognized by those who make a business of supplying the market as well as those who angle for their own pleasure and sport, and it is to prevent the wholesale destruction of the fish by the former class that Deputy Game Warden Green will patrol the river during the next several weeks. In past seasons some persons have used dynamite in the river with disastrous effect to the spawning fish when the game warden was absent at another point, and though every effort has been made to apprehend the miscreants who do their fishing in that manner, they have never been detected. This season double precautions are to be taken to protect the pike and promise is made that it will go hard with any person caught fishing out of season and whose conviction is secured. The river is to be frequently dragged for any nets that the market fisherman may attempt to put down and not only will the fishermen be prosecuted, if caught, but their nets will be confiscated and destroyed.

In the last two seasons, Deputy Game Warden Green, in running his gasoline launch up and down the river, with a drag hook out, has gathered in a number of nets, but the owners have been wise enough to keep silent and have not dared claim their property.

While the pike fishing season, which opens May 25 is not as favorable for making large catches as when the fish are running up to spawn, there is reason to believe that there will be plenty of good fishing all summer if the poachers, the dynamiters and the net fishermen can be kept out. The St. Louis River offers fine sport for the anglers during the summer season, as a rule, and public sentiment is strongly with the state game and fish authorities in checking any illegal fishing.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Married Couple Find a Burglar Under Their Bed.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—The unexpected sometimes happens, even to burglars. It was so with Evan Van Zant, who Monday night entered the house and crawled under the bed of Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas. Upon their retiring the bed springs were pressed so far down that the burglar was unable to move without moving the bed. A rooming house is conducted over the grocery store of L. M. Parker by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, and the report that Mr. Thomas frequently carried a good-sized sum probably led to Van Zant's effort to share it with him. About 10 o'clock Mrs. Thomas was awakened by a noise which she supposed to be that of their dog moving about under the bed. She aroused her husband, who took a whip and tried to drive the dog out. Seeing a man's foot, he got up, and, still talking about the dog, lighted a lamp, secured a six-shooter and then ordered the young man to come forth. He kept him in front of the revolver until the police was called. Van Zant came to Deadwood about a month ago from Toronto, Can. He is about 21 and well educated.

Sioux Falls—After having been in session since Tuesday, the United States grand jury completed its work and was discharged by Judge Carland. The final report of the jury showed that it had investigated forty cases. Thirty-four indictments were returned and six "no bills" were reported. A total of 171 witnesses were examined.

Mitchell—Civic improvement received a great impetus at a mass meeting held at the city hall, under the auspices of the Today club, which has maintained a civic department the past year. Addresses were delivered by Dr. Thomas Nicholson and Mayor Silsby, both of whom are enthusiastic for residential adornment. A city organization was formed and 300 charter members will start in the work this spring to follow out plans that will be defined by ward committees. At a later meeting of the charter members of the organization officers will be elected and chairmen of four wards appointed.

At the city council meeting an ordinance was introduced and placed on its first reading against spitting on sidewalks and in public places. The penalty is a fine ranging from $2 to $10.

Five tickets will be voted for at the city election April 18. One for aldermen, one for school board, one for $60,000 sewer bonds, one for the license question and a fifth for the initiative and referendum in the matter of street sprinkling. The last named proposition will be hotly contested, as there is some opposition to the city paying for sprinkling on Main and side streets. Certain citizens have petitioned for the referendum vote, which will be the first time that South Dakota's populistic law will be brought into use in this city.

Pierre—Superintendent Nash has cleared up the work of examining the papers sent to the office from the examinations of teachers held in the different counties of the state last month, and gives out the summaries. A total of 769 sets of papers, embracing 8,388 individual papers, were sent in and handled by the marking board. For first grade certificates 108 applications came in, forty-three being successful. Sixty-two were granted second grade certificates, and five failed to get any grade.

There were 632 applications for second grade certificates, on which 402 certificates were granted, and these, with the first grade applicants who were given second grade, make 464 second grade certificates granted or a total of 525 certificates of all classes granted out of the seven hundred sixty-nine applicants. This was 68 per cent of the total number, which is a different showing from the Minnesota examination of a few weeks ago, where 66 per cent failed to get through.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—The officials of the local government land office have handed down a decision in the contest case of Louis Lariviere against Seth L. Hartzell in favor of the former. Lariviere is 93, and Mr. Hartzell is serving a term in the penitentiary at Bismarck for the killing of Byron Stoddard near Langdon.

Mrs. Ida Quishenberg was granted a decree of divorce by Judge Fisk from Noah Quishenberg. The couple were married at Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 8, 1885, and have one daughter, now married. Mrs. Quishenberg says her husband deserted her at Sioux Falls, S. D., May 21, 1895, and she does not know his present place of residence. The husband made no appearance.

Jamestown—Much feeling has been displayed in La Moure and vicinity over the proposition for the removal of the county seat. Citizens of La Moure gave the county a courthouse, but it burned and there is now no suitable building. Many persons throughout the county are therefore in favor of removing the county seat. Enough funds have been available to build a suitable courthouse and jail.

The last legislature passed a bill which authorized a vote on the county seats in all counties in which there are no courthouses. A majority vote governs in the selection of a new seat. The law provides that the county commissioners on petition of the inhabitants of the county equal to one-third the votes cast for governor shall submit a proposition of removal to a special election, at the next general election. Citizens of Edgerley are greatly interested in the matter and a lively county seat fight may be expected in La Moure county.

WOMEN KNOCKS OUT BURGLAR

Blow to the Stomach Took Fight Out of Him.

Butte, Mont., April 12.—With a well-directed blow to the stomach Mrs. Harrington, proprietor of the St. Charles rooming house, prevented the escape of a burglar whom she discovered in her house early Monday evening.

After staggering the intruder with a body punch, the woman gamely held the door and kept the man a prisoner until the police arrived. The fellow is now in jail with a charge of robbery opposite his name on the register.

Shortly after 7 o'clock Monday evening Mrs. Harrington discovered a man in her room. The fellow had a valuable sealskin sacque and other wearing apparel belonging to her in his arms, and was about to leave the house. With rare presence of mind, Mrs. Harrington locked the door and asked a male boarder to go for the police. Meanwhile she stood guard to prevent an escape.

With a passkey the burglar unlocked a side door in the room and secreted himself in an adjoining apartment, locking the door behind him. Suspecting that the fellow was hiding within, Mrs. Harrington burst open the door. Seizing her by the arm the man attempted to force his way out. With her free arm the landlady dealt the intruder a blow in the solar plexus region that caused him to stagger. Before he had time to recover she closed the door and, holding tightly to the knob, kept him prisoner till the police arrived.

TAMS BIXBY

Like the Old Woman In the Shoe.

Muskoga, I. T., April 12.—The Dawes commission has just come to a realization of the enormity of the task of enrolling Indian babies. Four tribes were affected by the recent legislation, providing that all babies born to Indian citizens before March 1 should be enrolled and given allotments. One of the commissioners said yesterday that at least 10,000 allotments will be made to babies. This means that these infants will take up a great part of the surplus land of each of the nations and that there will not be enough in some to equalize the allotments already made.

SIOUX INDIANS

Must Accept Leupp's Offer or Receive Nothing.

Washintgon, April 12.—Indian Commissioner Leupp announced yesterday that he intended to carry out his original plan to pay each adult Sioux Indian living in the Ball Creek district, on Rosebud reservation, South Dakota, $25 as his share of the purchase price of the land which was ceded to the government last year. The money due women and children on the resvation is to be held in trust by the government.

The Indians have informed Mr. Leupp that unless full payment of $25 each is made to each man, woman and child they will refuse to accept the money. Mr. Leupp says, unless the Indians agree to his proposition, the money will be held in the treasury until they do.

RAILROAD NEWS

More Talk of Soo Extension West From Duluth.

Several Promotions In the Local Great Northern Office.

It is now regarded as a practical certainty that the Soo line will build an extension from Thief River Falls to Duluth, as has been strongly intimated for somo time past. Sometime ago a party of fifteen surveyors were seen working eastward from Thief River Falls, and the supposition is that they were in the employ of the Soo.

"The narrows," connecting the north and south ends of Red lake, were recently sounded by the same road, it is said, and it is believed that the building of a railroad bridge across the narrows is contemplated. The water at this point, while it measures three-quarters of a mile across, is very shallow, and is not more than four feet deep at any point, so that the construction of a bridge would be easily possible. It is also understood that men in the employ of the road have been looking over the country to the north of Northome, where the Soo would likely cross the Minnesota & International.

PROMOTIONS MADE.

D. M. Brier Now Traveling Freight Agent of G. N.

D. M. Brier, for same time past contracting freight agent for the Great Northern in Duluth, has been appointed traveling freight agent of the same road, to succeed W. J. Power, who has been promoted to general agent of the road in this city, as successor of C. D. Thompson, now general agent for the Great Westen in Duluth.

Mr. Brier's place as contracting freight agent will be filled by Frank Bass, former chief clerk, and John F. Fogarty will act as chief clerk henceforth.

LAKE TRAVEL

Sure to Be Unusually Heavy This Summer.

J. F. Marrow of St. Paul, general advertising agent of the Great Northern road, who is in the city today, says that all indications point to a heavy travel via the lakes this year.

"The summer tourist business on the lakes will probably be the best in the history of lake navigation," he said this morning, "and of course this means that Duluth will be benefited to a considerable extent. The Great Northern has not been pushing the sale of homeseekers' and colonist low rate tickets very strong this spring, and the demand for them is lighter than is ordinarily the case. Everyone appears to be waiting for the low rates which are to be in effect during the Portland exposition before going West. Later the travel over all lines leading Westward will be exceedingly heavy. Word from the East indicates that a very large number of people from there are planning on visiting the fair."

Mud Slides.

The Great Northern is preparing to send out a work train of twenty cars, manned by 200 section men and foremen, to cope with the mud slides which have occurred on the long Solway logging spur of the road during the spring.

The mud slides, occasioned by the spring rains and the clay cuts, have completely covered the rails from eight in places, and the work of shoveling out the track and getting the road in readiness for the annual summer haul of logs will require several days of hard work. Every section man between Crookston and Solway will be picked up by the special train.

Railroad Notes.

A line is being surveyed by the Northwestern road from Milwaukee to Peoria, Ill. From Dixon, by way of Nelson, the North-Western holds a line into Peoria which is used mainly for the movement of company fuel. It is said that eventually the line will be extended to St. Louis.

The first edition of the Northern Pacific booklet on the Lewis and Clark exposition has been exhausted, although the original supply of the work was larger by 5,000 than railroad advertising pamphlets usually are. An additional order of 20,000 copies has been given.

The surveyors for the Duluth, St. Cloud, Glencoe & Mankato line are pushing from Albert Lea toward Freeborn. When they are through, contracts for the right of way will be made. The right of way will be expensive, as the route is largely through a fine farming country.

Plans for the Milwaukee road's bridge at Chamberlain, S. D., provides for a span extending 1,200 feet to American island, a letter S track to the opposite side, and 1,200-foot bridge to the west side of the river. The cost will be about $100,000.

Railroad Personals.

A. L. Eidemiller of St. Paul, traveling passenger agent of the Burlington, is in the city today.

W. J. Bowes of Milwaukee, traveling passenger agent of the Illinois Central, is in Duluth today.

David Brown, Jr. of St. Paul, traveling passenger agent of the Grand Trunk system, is in town.

R. C. Haase of St. Paul, representing the Baltimore & Ohio, is in the city.

Those who enjoy pure comedy of the refined sort, with no dependence upon horseplay or vulgarity, received it in full measure in "The Earl of Pawtucket," presented at the Lyceum last evening by Lawrance D'Orsay and company, under the direction of Kirk La Shelle. It was one of the most delightful treats Duluth people have had in this theatrical season, and memory does not readily recall a more pleasing entertainment within a much longer period. The only thing in connection with the performance last evening that can be lamented is that Duluth people showed so little appreciation of the coming of an attraction of this merit, according it an audience of about half the size it deserved. The play came here with the prestige of a most remarkable series of metropolitan successes, and certainly could not have been unknown. It is difficult, indeed, to fathom why it should not have filled the house.

The play is by Augustus Thomas, one of the brightest of American dramatists, and shows the handiwork of a master of the art. It is simple, moves rather slowly and quietly, creates fun and laughter out of purely natural situations, without any forcing and sustains interest during every moment. Briefly the comedy presents an English lord, who, to escape service in an impeachment trial in parliament, comes to America incognito. He is moved to come here by the fact that he has fallen in love with a young woman, with whom he has been thrown in a remarkable series of incidents, but has never met formally, and she lives here. He takes the name of a friend, Montgomery Putnam. It so happens that the young woman is the divorced wife of the true Montgomery Putnam, and through this the Englishman falls into a series of most embarrassing and laughter-compelling situations. The fun is added to by the fact that the Englishman assumes to be an American, and thinks he is doing it capitally, when, as a matter of fact, he never succeeds for a moment in being anything but the most pronounced of Englishmen.

The scenes of the play are laid in the Waldorf Astoria in New York and three settings are shown, the palm room, a series of apartments, and the Turkish room. The first act is peculiar in that the scenes all take place in the cafe room, the people being seated at the tables and giving their orders, while the plot of the play develops and the action begins.

The press agent's history informed us before the coming of Lawrance D'Orsay in this play that Mr. Thomas was inspired to write it by the actual personality of Mr. D'Orsay. It struck Mr. Thomas that if Mr. D'Orsay could be placed upon the stage as the very Englishman that nature had made him, moving through the scenes as he moved through actual life, the hit would be instantaneous. Press agents' stories are not always made up of truth but this one seems to have been, and Mr. Thomas not only succeeded in giving Mr. D'Orsay a most happy role, but saw his own good judgment verified. Mr. D'Orsay is not asked to play a role in which he shall lose his own personality in that of the part, he is to be himself and himself he is most thoroughly. He is an Englishman of what is denominated the dragoon type—a "Twentieth Century Dundreary" some have been pleased to call him—a thorough gentleman, not by any means dull or stupid as the Englishman is often pictured on the stage, and yet not with that quick discernment and ready perception that distinguishes the American in comparison with his brother from across the water. One characteristic that is pictured capitally is that quality of the Englishman that is termed bulldog tenacity. He wants the American girl and there is no necessity for the advance as to "faint heart" in his case. Of course Mr. D'Orsay is a comedian naturally and appreciates keenly the clever points of the play, bringing them out with a fineness and excellence of judgment that show an excellent discrimination. Altogether it is a most delightful characterization and there is yet one more opportunity that they should not lose for those who missed it to see it, for the production will be repeated this evening.

The company is fine, being evenly balanced and amply capable in every part. Miss Jane Peyton gives Mr. D'Orsay excellent support in the part of the American woman, and plays it with charming grace. To specialize those that deserve mention would be to enumerate the cast and it is sufficient to say that in not a single character can one wish for improvement.

SAVAGE FIGHT

Between Real Estate Dealer and Barber.

Le Sueur, Minn., April 12.—A savage personal encounter occurred here yesterday between Edward Janzen, a wealthy real estate dealer, 61 years of age, and young Mr. Gritzmacher, an amateur barber, in the tonsorial parlors of "Deacon" Stueven, over a question of beer. Janzen clearly outclassed the younger man in weight, reach and force, but the barber was quick on his feet, shifty and tactful. Gritzmacher drew first blood.

Three heavy rounds were fought without any intermission, and then peace was unanimously declared by both sides. The barber was not hurt much, but he had a close shave. Janzen is a great admirer of Bismarck, whom he resembles in force and sterness of character, and claims to be a living refutation of the slanders of Osler on old age.

BIRD COLER IS WILLING

To Run For Mayor on Municipal Ownership Platform.

New York, April 12.—"It is true that I told Mayor-elect Dunne of Chicago, that I would be willing to take up the fight here in New York for municipal ownership of various utilities," said Bird S. Coler, when seen at his home in Brooklyn. "The way I came to say it, however, was in no sense putting myself forward at this early day as a candidate for mayor of New York City. There are plenty of others who might be chosen as candidate.

"What I did tell Dunne was this: That the issue of municipal ownership is so great that it cannot be kept down in New York. The Democratic party is pledged to it, and if the Democratic party doesn't live up to the pledge, why, as I told Dunne, we must fight the Democratic party—fight both the old parties if necessary—on this issue at the next election in New York."

"In what way do you mean the Democratic party is pledged to municipal ownership?" was asked.

"In the last municipal election the Democratic party stood out for municipal ownership, and McClellan was elected on that pledge. I have always stood for municipal ownership. I also told Dunne that I would be the first to subscribe for the Chicago notes and would form a syndicate to buy them as fast as the city issued them to raise money to carry out the municipal ownership plan.

"I am out of politics and have no desire to enter it again, but this issue is so important that I do not hesitate to say that I would consent to head the ticket on a straight-out municipal ownership platform."

AT CLOQUET.

Cloquet, Minn., April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Charles Edmondson visited friends in Thompson Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nice Wander and family have returned to Cloquet and will make it their permanent home.

FOR NEXT YEAR

Star Course Will Bring W. J. Bryan and Gov. La Follette.

Attractions For Next Season—Charles B. Landis to Close.

The Star lecture course of the season of 1904-05 will close this evening with a lecture at the First Methodist church by Congressman Charles B. Landis of Indiana on "The Mission of the Anglo-Saxon." Mr. Landis is one of the brightest orators of the house and a man who is always heard with attention. He comes from a close district in his state, but his popularity among his people and his fine talents have resulted in returning him regularly.

The attractions in next year's course were announced today and they include some of the strongest to be had through the lyceum bureaus of the country.

William Jennings Bryan has been secured for a lecture on the subject "The Prince of Peace."

Governor Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, one of the most talked of public men of the country will lecture on "Representative Government."

Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth, the great Salvation Army leader, will be heard, her subject being "Heart Story."

Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus of Chicago, who has been heard here a number of times, and is one of the popular favorites, will speak on "Gladstone."

Dr. Herbert L. Willett will lecture on "Legend and Life," an interpretation of the "Tannhaeuser" story.

Strickland W. Gillian will conclude the series of lectures. He is of the Baltimore American and president of the American Press Humorist, the man who originated the famous "off again, on again, gone again, Flannigan," saying.

For the musical attraction there will be a concert company with Miss Leonora Jackson, a young woman violinist, who has been astonishing Europe and America for the past three or four years; the prima donna soprano, Miss Sibyl Sammis; Charles E. Clarke, baritone, and Alexander MacFayden, pianist.

The eighth number will be a reading entitled "An Evening From American Fiction" by Mrs. Isabel Beecher.

ROCKEFELLER CAN BE TRIED

Baptists Must Expel Him If He Is Found Guilty.

New York, April 11.—If any member of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church formally calls attention to the fact that charges of extortion were made against John D. Rockefeller at the Boston conference of Congregational ministers the church must put Mr. Rockefeller on trial, and if the charges are found true it must expel him. The pastor of Mr. Rockefeller's church has no option in the matter. It is the Baptist law. On page 44 of the Baptist Church Manual is the following:

"The moral tone of the entire membership may be lowered by the bad example of one member.

"No opportunity should be afforded to one guilty of misdemeanors to shield himself behind some graver offender who remains in the church unrebuked.

"A further aim (of church discipline) is to save others in the church who may be tempted into sin or corrupted by the evil example of one already guilty."

It is the duty of the church, of its own motion, to put on trial any members who have been accused publicly of a misdeed of any character. The same obligation that rests upon the church as a whole rests upon each member of the church as an individual.

This being the case, exponents of the Baptist doctrine declare the members of the Fifth Avenue church will not be faithful to the church law if they do not institute proceedings against Mr. Rockefeller at once. Aside from this, it is the imperative duty of Mr. Rockefeller, according to law of the Baptist church, to demand an investigation.

No church is more rigorous in the scrutiny of the character of its members, or should be if the law of the church is adhered to, than the Baptist. The fact that charges against a member may be believed to be untrue does not excuse the church from pushing the investigation. Those persons who have made a study of church law, and have followed the Rockefeller case from the beginning of the $100,000 gift controversy, are wondering whether the members of the Fifth Avenue congregation will meet the issue boldly or dodge it.

No one who knows Mr. Rockefeller and his dislike for notoriety believes he will court an investigation. It is more to his liking to be silent and let time heal his troubles.

No case which has developed in the Baptist church in recent years is considered of more importance than this one. In the eyes of the church all members are equal. If the Rockefeller matter is not brought to an issue now there is certain to be a recrudescence of the trouble later. It will be argued by unswerving advocates of the canonical law that members of the Fifth Avenue church are stultifying themselves by ignoring the facts.

Each Baptist church practically is independent and is the judge of its own members, but in a case so important and interesting as that of the richest man in the world not only other churches, but also other denominations take upon themselves the right to counsel, suggest, or criticise.

SMITH AND WIFE ARRIVE IN NEW YORK.

New York, May 11.—J. Morgan Smith and his wife, who have been indicted, together with Nan Patterson on a charge of conspiring to obtain money from "Caesar" Young, the bookmaker, in connection with whose death the Patterson girl is also under indictment and is about to be tried the third time, arrived in this city last night. Smith and his wife were arrested in Cincinnati, where they abandoned their fight against extradition and started for New York in the custody of officers. To avoid the crowd of curious persons, assembled at the Grand Central station, the Smiths were taken from the train at the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station in Harlem and brought down town to police headquarters in a carriage.

J. R. Patterson, father of Nan Patterson and of Mrs. Smith, was at the Grand Central station.

OFFICERS CHOSEN

Annual Meeting of Boat Club Is Enthusiastic Gathering.

Coach Will Be Engaged and Outside Crews Met.

At an enthusiastic meeting of the members of the Duluth Boat club, held last evening in the sun parlor in the Spalding, the annual election of the officers of the club took place.

Four of last year's officers were re-elected, no change being made in the offices of president, secretary, vice-president and captain.

The officers chosen were as follows: President, Julius H. Barnes; senior vice-president, G. G. Barnum; junior vice-president, Capt. Alexander McDougall; secretary, W. L. McLennan; treasurer, I. S. Moore; captain, J. D. Mahoney; lieutenant, Anthony Puck; ensign, Guy Colquhoun; directors, W. S. Telford, A. W. Frick, George Spencer, and the president, secretary, treasurer and captain.

The secretary announced that eighty new members had been admitted to the club this season, making a total membership of 325.

The question of engaging the services of a coach was taken up and discussed. It was decided to employ a coach if a suitable man could be found for the place. Negotiations may be opened with O'Dea for his return to Duluth for two or three months this summer. The matter lies in the hands of the directors.

The club decided to hold races with outside clubs, and the secretary will communicate with Winnipeg, St. Paul and Minneapolis clubs to arrange for races to be held either in those cities or in Duluth.

The club has found the equipment of canoes inadequate for the needs of the increased membership, and ten new ones have been purchased. Two new doubles and two new fours have also been added to the racing equipment, and with the new eight, will give the club shells enough to accommodate all of the members who have any desire of taking up the racing game.

A cafe is to be added to the club building, for the accommodation of the members who do not care to come up town for their evening meal. It will also furnish baskets to picnic and sailing parties.

The treasurer's report showed a very satisfactory condition of the club's finances, and in spite of the greatly increased expenditures, the club should be able to pay off its usual payment on the mortgage this year, and come out at the end of the season with a small balance.

Capt. J. D. Mahoney filed his report of the work of the year, with the secretary. He reviewed the work of the past season, calling attention to the improvements that have been made in the equipment, and in the bathing beach which has been made by filling in about the boathouse.

In speaking of the increased membership, he spoke of the necessity which is already being felt, for more room, and stated in his report that next year it will probably be necessary to construct a building for the storage of the launches, sail-boats, and other apparatus, doubling the capacity of the boat floor.

"The future of the boat club is certainly bright," he said, "and it is safe to say that the season will be one of great activity.

"Let us enter into the sports with a feeling of good fellowship, let there be many contests of strength and skill, and let us hope that this club may never know a conflict."

The clubhouse will be opened on April 20, and after that time the oarsmen who are now training in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium will engage in outdoor work.

LAST HOPE VANISHED.

When leading physicians said that W. M. Smithart, of Pekin, Ia., had incurable consumption, his last hope vanished; but Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, kept him out of his grave. He says: "This great specific completely cured me, and saved my life. Since then, I have used it for over 10 years, and consider it a marvelous throat and lung cure." Strictly scientific cure for Coughs, Sore Throats or Colds; sure preventive of Pneumonia. Guaranteed, 50c and $1.00 bottles at all druggists. Trial bottle free.

QUEER REASONING

Of Montana Mother, Who Loses Three Sons.

Virginia City, Mont., April 11.—After lingering many days in a valiant fight for life, Stephen Cahill is dead at his ranch home in the Ruby valley. Death was caused by a dose of arsenic and corrosive sublimate, which he took in the belief that it was epsom salts.

An adverse fate seems to follow the Cahill family. Less than two years ago one brother died of pneumonia. Last year a second brother was killed in a runaway accident. While Stephen lay battling for his life, a fourth brother came near serious harm. Standing near a wagon, he fainted and fell against the moving wheel. Luckily he escaped with only a badly sprained neck.

The mother of the family lays all their sorrow to the fact that the three who died had their lives insured in turn. After the second boy was killed, she begged Stephen not to take out a policy, but he persisted, and to this she ascribes his untimely death.

VENERABLE PASTOR

To Celebrate Centenary By Farewell Sermon.

Burkesville, Ky., April 12.—Sunday, Sept. 17, is the date set by "Uncle Tice" Spear, the venerable minister of the Christian church of Peytonsburg, this county, on which he expects to preach the farewell sermon of his life. If he lives till that day he will be 100 years of age, and it has long been "Uncle Tice's" ambition to live to preach after he had become a centenarian. The indications are that his program will be carried out, for at the age of 99 years he is hale and hearty, bright and active of mind and walks a miles to church every Sunday morning.

LADIES

Here you are!

Now that our spring and Easter opening is an event of the past—it is our intention to keep the full of buyers from early in the mornings until closing time.

GLASS BLOCK STORE

Not for one or two days of the week, but for every day of the week and every week of the year.

For Thursday and Friday we will give the patrons of this house the opportunity of their lives.

Two weeks ago we bought from Arnold, Constable & Co., New York, their entire stock of short lengths of embracing all kinds of summer dress fabrics. It may be necessary for us to explain how these short lengths accumulate in a wholesale house. Large jobbing houses like Arnold, Constable & Co. do business with thousands of small dealers all over the United States that cannot buy full pieces. They take two or three dress lengths of medium priced goods and single dress patterns of the fine goods, thus leaving the jobber with a large accumulation of short lengths after the buying season is over in February and March. Those are the pieces we have bought, embracing upwards of 30,000 yards of the newest, most fashionable, up-to-date dress goods in the market.

The house of Arnold, Constable & Co. stands in New York as the Panton & White Co. stands in Duluth, and needs no recommendation from us in regard to the class or character of goods they sell, as nothing enters their establishment that is not of the highest character obtainable.

We bought the entire stock at one price and will offer the entire lot to our customers at one price, just as we bought them. We could pick out hundreds of pieces that we could sell as high as $2.50 per yard—but this store believes in dividing up the good bargains we get with our patrons so that we can count on their trade at all times, besides making new customers and new friends for this store.

The purchase embraces the following fabrics in all colors:

Crepe de Paris	Eolienne voiles	Mixed armures
Plain voiles	Silkdown	Scotch tweeds
Nub voiles	English coverts	Mohairs
Rice voiles	English granites	Mannish suitings
PRICE	PRICE	PRICE
75c	75c	75c

We have put a portion of the purchase in one of our show windows. See them!

Sale begins Thursday morning!

Thousands of yards worth up to $2.50 per yard—none worth less than $1.25. None will be sold or laid aside previous to 8 o'clock Thursday morning. Be on hand early. The wise ones will be here before the doors are open on the morning of the sale. "Enough said."

Read the morning News-Tribune for other Thursday bargains.

SETTLERS OR TREES?

The Minneapolis Journal describes the action of the legislature in passing a resolution asking congress to open the Cass Lake forest reserve to settlement as due to a trick worked by the "lumbermen who want free and unrestricted access tto the timber" and the land speculators. It says: "Nearly all the senators who voted for this resolution have since confessed that they did not know what it meant; and yet for some reason that body lacks the courage to rescind its action."

Why cannot the Journal and others who have been scheming for years to lock up a large section of Northern Minnesota from settlement and turn it into a game preserve, under the guise of a forest reserve, be honest and admit their real purpose? They can no longer fool the people on this question and they could not fool the legislature. The senators knew what the resolution meant when they voted to ask congress to repeal the iniquitous legislation creating a forest reserve. When the matter was fully discussed later, only three senators voted to reconsider the resolution.

Public sentiment in Northern Minnesota is opposed to the forest reserve and game preserve scheme. The Herald believes that one settler is worth more to the state than a thousand or more trees.

FAME AND FORTY.

Dr. Osler's statement that man's constructive period reaches its climax and begins to decline by the age of 40 years continues to be a subject of earnest discussion. One of the most striking criticisms of Dr. Osler's views is contained in the April Popular Science Monthly, wherein Prof. Edwin G. Dexter of the university of Illinois takes up the cudgels for the men who have passed 40 and seeks to prove by statistics that Dr. Osler is wrong in his assertion. Dr. Dexter arrives at his conclusions after a careful tabulation of the statistics derived from "Who's Who In America." He says that although the table has a bearing upon the minimum age at which a certain sort of public recognition is given to achievement, in its consideration two things must be borne in mind; first, that many of those who were, at the issue of the book, over 40 years of age, performed the service which gave them prominence before they had reached that age; and, second, that there must always be something of a lag in public recognition, and in all probability many who had already performed service of importance had not yet been promoted to the ranks of "Who's Who." The thing which must strike one most forcibly in any inspection of the table is the comparatively few men under 40 years of age. Of the 6,983 men, the median age is 54 years, while but 1,118, or less than one in six, were below the age of 40 years. Stated in other words, this means that out of a group of nearly 7,000 eminent men, but 16 per cent were within Dr. Osler's period of most "effective, moving, vitalizing work." The table itself is as follows:

Profession—	No. in Group.	Median Age of Group in Years.	Percentage Below 40 Years of Age

Although these facts cannot be taken as disproving Dr. Osler's contention, since, as has been said, a considerable number of the older men may have completed their important work at an early age, still it would seem to throw some serious doubts upon the truth of his generalization. "At least," says Prof. Dexter, "the figures show that in a group of arbitrarily limited extent, i. e., the size of 'Who's Who,' the young man in competition for a place is but a one to five 'shot.' But is is possible, through recourse to mathematics, to indicate approximately the age at which the service was rendered which secured admission to the book. To illustrate—of the entire number of 6,983 comprising our group, 86 were between the ages of 20 and 29 years, the entire number having become famous during that decade of life. The probable mortality of that number of persons for the decade, supposing them to be good 'risks,' would be six. We may then suppose that 80 would enter the next decade. But our figures show that 922 of our entire group were between the ages of 30 and 39 inclusive, leaving the number 842 as representing the number of new names admitted during the decade. Of the total number for this age period (922), the mortality tables lead us to suppose that 78 will die before its completion, giving us 844 as the number passing on to the next group—that for the age decade of 40-49 years. Again we get the probable number added during the decade by subtracting the number thus admitted from the previous group, from 1,620, the total number of persons of the age covered by the decade and find the total number added for services rendered during the decade to be 776. In the same way, by using the continually increasing mortality rate and applying it to the number left over from previous decade-groups, we find the number added between the years 50-59 to be 376; and the number added from 60-69 years, 51."

From which it would appear that Dr. Osler is incorrect in his general conclusions that man's constructive period begins to decline at 40 years of age. We have only to look around among our own acquaintances to find further proofs sustaining Prof. Dexer's statistics which form a graphic reply to Dr. Osler's assertion.

JOHN PAUL JONES.

Last week the St. Paul Pioneer Press published a dispatch from its editor, Joseph A. Wheelock, who has been visiting at Redlands, Cal., stating that he had learned there that John Paul Jones, the famous naval officer of the American Revolution, for whose bones Gen. Horace Porter, American ambassador at Paris, has been searching in the site of an old cemetery in the French metropolis, was buried in Dumfries, Scotland. Mr. Wheelock quoted as authority an old Scotch woman, Mrs. Preston, who states not only that the body of Jones has been taken from Paris to Dumfries, but that his grave had been marked by a stone on which was inscribed "John Paul Jones, the Black Pirate." The story told by Mrs. Preston was so circumstantial that it is not surprising Mr. Wheelock believed he had secured valuable information.

Advices from Scotland, however, deny that the story is correct. A cablegram to the New York Tribune from the Dumfries Standard says: "The report that John Paul Jones was buried in this city, near which he was born, is unfounded. He was buried in Paris, where he died." It is now in order for Mrs. Preston to more particularly describe the place in Scotland where she alleges she saw the grave bearing the inscription "John Paul Jones, the Black Pirate." Perhaps tthe lady is right, and Jones' body was taken from Paris for reinterment at Dumfries.

Jones was born in Kirkcudbrightshire, July 6, 1747. His name was originally John Paul, and "Jones" was added by him in 1773, in Virginia, where he was settling the estates of a brother who had died. At the outbreak of the Revolution he offered his services to the colonies. His capture of the British man-o'-war Serapis, in 1779, when he was in command of the Bon Homme Richard, a vessel furnished by the French government, was his most notable exploit, for which he was decorated in France and received a complimentary letter from Gen. Washington. The British, however, refused to regard him as anything but a pirate.

In 1788 Jones entered the Russian service with the rank of rear admiral and aided Russia in her war with the Turks, but jealousies and intrigues led to his resignation. In 1792 he was appointed United States consul at Algiers, but his commission had not reached him when he died from an attack of jaundice in Paris, July 18, 1792. He was honored with a public funeral by the national assembly.

Gen. Porter has been excavating by tunneling under the buildings covering the site of the Paris cemetery where the naval hero was buried in 1792, but the results have been fruitless so far and the work has been stopped because the funds at the ambassador's disposal have been exhausted.

ANNUAL WASTE ON ROADS.

The matter of country road building is receiving much attention of late. The American people are beginning to realize the great waste that is going on constantly in an effort to keep up improperly constructed highways.

Some figures were recently given in the American of Nashville, Tennessee, by J. B. Killebrew showing the cost of highways, that are full of meat. He shows that the road tax for the several counties of the state ranges from 5 to 16 cents per $100 of assessed value, or, to specify accurately, two counties have a 5 cent rate; four counties, an 8 cent rate; sixty-two counties, a 10 cent rate; nineteen counties, a 12 cent rate; two counties, a 14 cent rate; two counties, a 15 cent rate, and five counties, a 16 cent rate. The grand total of tax for these ninety-six counties is $364,762.92. The number of men subject to road tax is 217,511, who are employed from five to eight days each year. The total amount expended for labor on highways is $931,049.82—labor being commuted at 75 cents per diem. The total amount expended in money and labor is $1,295,813.14.

From these figures Col. Killebrew estimates that sufficient money is expended each year to pay the interest, at 4 per cent, on bonds to raise enough money to build from four to six macadam roads for each county seat to the outer boundaries of the county and have enough left to create a sinking fund to retire the bonds in thirty years. He recommends a general state law to permit counties to issue bonds for highway building without special legislative enactment.

It is evident that enough money is wasted each generation in "repairing" mud roads throughout the United States to pay for good macadam roads from one end of the country to the other. There is nothing the American people "play at" more than road building and there is no line of industrial effort in which they accomplish less for the money expended.

The trouble is that there are usually not funds enough available to build a road properly, with the result that about all the money expended in maintaining a roadway is so much wasted, as the work has to be done over and over again year after year, while the roads are usually in horrible condition spring and fall.

It would seem that the state of Minnesota could make no better use of its large state school fund than to lend it to counties and townships in this state for the purpose of road building, provided the roads are built in proper manner. The suggestion of Col. Killebrew is a good one and might be followed by every state with profit to the country. But if state funds are loaned in this manner for road building there should be a provision in the law that only the best roads shall be built; that macadam shall be used wherever possible, and that the roads must meet the requirements of certain specifications. There should also be a system of state inspection.

This might be a better and more satisfactory plan than for the state to undertake road construction itself.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

The souvenir gold dollars coined for the St. Louis exposition proved a failure because of the rapacity of the exposition management. It was originally planned to sell the 250,000 coins at $2 each, which would have netted the exposition a profit of $250,000. But the exposition decided to ask $3 each and only 35,000 were sold. Now the remainder are to be melted up.

Hotel Gossip.

"This country will see the biggest mining boom of the present year in the Black Hills district," said R. D. Vincent of Chicago, whose business calls him into all the principal mining sections of America in the course of a year, at the McKay. "Active mining operations have been carried on quite extensively out there for some time past, but you might say that they are still in their infancy.

"New strikes are of common occurrence, and a vast amount of big improvements are to be made on both old and new properties this season. Five new stamp mills are now in the course of construction, and eight or ten more are contemplated, with excellent chances of their being built in the very near future. In addition to this extensions are being made to a number of the old mills.

"There are now twenty-five or thirty good mines in that territory. Of course the Homestake is the largest. Last year it produced over $4,000,000 in gold and this year they expect the output will total $7,000,000. One advantage about the country through there is that quick results may be obtained from investments, giving the man with only a little capital a chance to get ahead. I know of one mine that has been put on a paying basis through an expenditure of only $60,000, where millions, I believe, are often necessary to develop one of the mines in the Michigan copper country, and three or fourr hundred thousand dollars for the average Western mine. I guess there is not much Duluth capital invested in the Black Hills. Most of the money comes from Minneapolis, Chicago, Des Moines and one or two other large cities.

"British Columbia is very rich in mining possibilities, and operations there have as yet been barely started. The new Grand Trunk road, proposed for Canada, will open up a fine territory and result in renewed activity in certain mining circles. There is no way of getting the ore out of some of the districts the way conditions are now.

"Operations all through the Western United States can hardly be said to be under full swing, for they will be extended from year to year for the next decade or two. Even down in the Michigan copper country this will be the case, for new strikes are not infrequent there. About one-half the paying mines in Northern Michigan were at one time deserted, and later taken up and put on a paying basis.

"Eastern capital stands ever ready to invest in Western mining enterprises, if the right kind of goods can be shown up, but they ask a controlling interest in the thing once it is started, not caring to trust to the management of comparatively unknown Westerners. Many a good property has suffered through bad management, and in the wrong hands what would otherwise be a richly paying proposition may turn out to be a losing one."

"Moneyed men of the North are only just beginning to recognize the fact that the South offers wonderful opportunities for the profitable investment of capital," said F. A. Silver of Greensboro, North Carolina, at the St. Louis. "Vast stretches of rich country through the South and Southeast have remained undeveloped all these years while the attention of the country has been turned toward the West.

"Within twelve hours ride of the city of Greensboro, there is a region as wild and undeveloped and just as rich in natural resources as any in the West, and it is strange, yet true, that Northerners are only now beginning to realize that for years they have been letting slip a golden opportunity. The Southerners lacked the energy and ambition to develop the country. People from up here are now getting in there and booming things. There are big land and timber companies with Northern men and Northern capital behind them being formed, and the railroads are awaking to the possibilities of the territory, and securing the services of hustling immigration agents from the North.

"Several prominent Duluth men are interested in my section of the Carolinas. In one county in the northeastern part of the state there are today 167,000 acres of productive land covered with a thick growth of yellow pine, which is of a much better quality than your Norway, and equal in many ways to white pine. It is in this tract that Duluth men are interested. The land, which will bear three and four vegetable and grain crops a year, is level as a floor, offering a fine opportunity for logging. Until two or three years ago I was myself a resident of the North. It will ever remain a puzzle to me how it happened that such opportunities as these have so long remained untaken."

"The elk are fast following in the footsteps of the buffalo, and unless more stringent laws are framed for their protection it will not be many years before they are practically exterminated in all districts of the United States except the Yellowstone Park, where they are protected for all time," said George J. Hibbard, a Seattle attorney, at the McKay.

"One fact that has to do with their rapid extermination is the great demand for elk teeth by members of the famous order. As there are only two teeth in any one animal which may be used by members of the Elks brotherhood, you can imagine that the supply is rather limited, and the price for single specimens high, making the killing of elk a profitable occupation for hunters, Indian and white man alike. In numerous instances the animals have been killed for their teeth alone, and the carcasses left in the woods to rot.

"The species is now the most numerous in the Olympic range of mountains, in Western Washington, a region which is almost inaccessible to the ordinary city hunter. What are known as the Roosevelt elk, very large animals, are to be found here in bands which sometimes number 150 or more. A veritable wilderness, very heavily timbered, extends for 125 miles, from the Straits of Juan de Fuca to Gray's Harbor, and offers an ideal stamping ground for these forest kings. The heaviest rainfall of the country is recorded here every year, and there are almost always drenching fogs floating about, so that forest fires are an unknown quantity, guaranteeing the elk a place of refuge until the lumbermen destroy their forest home."

CHICAGO'S WARMING.

Corporations Scourged.

Philadelphia Press: The Chicago corporations refused to bend, and they are broken. The majority for E. F. Dunne, the city franchise candidate, is one of many signs that the plain voter will grow tired of having his streets owned and run by corporations he does not control, which give him a poor service and reap large profits.

An Important Experiment.

New York Sun: Mr. Dunne is a lawyer. He knows the difficulties that he must meet and overcome. The experiment he is to manage is perhaps the most important yet undertaken by an American municipality. Its success or failure may have a great effect on the progress of state socialism throughout the country. For this reason it will be watched with intense interest from one coast to the other.

Driven to It.

Philadelphia Ledger: Many competent observers of the Chicago situation, who have foreseen that 50,000 or more Republicans would vote for Dunne, declare that Chicago, in spite of the fact that on three separate occasions besides the present election, the people by referendum have declared in favor of municipal ownership, is going into the business most reluctantly. Their verdict is "driven toward municipal ownership by intolerable fraud." The stealing of franchises by bribery in the councils and legislature, and the wretched service, due to the necessity for the payment of dividends on watered stock, have driven the people to the frame of mind where they are eager to make their servants who have been unfaithful in a few things masters of greater activities.

Overreaching Cleverness.

New York Evening Mail: The public service corporations of our cities have had another warning, possibly the last warning, added to those which in the last two years have sounded across the land like alarm bells rung at night. What they all may expect is intimated in the words of Mayor-elect Dunne as to the Chicago companies: "They have floated $117,000,000 in bonds and stocks upon tagnible property estimated at less than $30,000,000. We are not going to buy their stocks and bonds." With all their over-reaching cleverness, the Chicago traction companies find themselves in the plight of the man who sat on the end of the limb and sawed between himself and the trunk of the tree.

Tools for Different Uses.

Boston Transcript: It is Gen. Chaffee's conclusion that we should not try to make the bayonet at once a weapon of offense and an agricultural implement. In other words, we should keep our swords and our plowshares distinct.

Headquarters at the Ditch.

Philadelphia Press: President Shonts of the Panama canal commission starts out with the correct view as to its work. "The administration offices of the commission," he says, 'will be in Washington, but the headquarters will be moved to the Isthmus." That is the right place for headquarters and for the officers of the commission.

No Great Change.

Philadelphia Record: At the Presbyterian ministers' meeting, the talk was on the uplifting of the negro, and many interesting stories illustrating the traits of the race were told. The Rev. Dr. W. P. White told this one: "Sam was a free-and-easy negro employed at the University of South Carolina as a body servant to several clergymen who were professors there. Sam had a passion for taking things that did not belong to him and at last was summoned before the faculty for the theft of some trinkets.

"'Sam,' said one of the venerable gentlemen sadly, 'what do you suppose you'll do in hell, where you will go for stealing?'

"Sam reflected for a minute, and then answered solemnly: 'I dunno, but I expects I'll have to wait on de ministers, same as I do here.'"

AN AMERICAN GIRL.

Of all the charming things there are
To make this world a bright one
I choose—and I know I am not far
From picking out the right one—
A girl of seventeen or so,
American completely,
A figure trim from head to toe,
Gowned tastefully and neatly.

Look in her eyes—what wells of truth,
Of sympathy and kindness!
But not too long, unmarried youth,
Lest looking brings love's blindness.
An angel? Yes, and any one
Who knows gold is not copper
Can see that she is full of fun,
Provided it is proper.

I must confess, if Father Time
Would only let me stay so,
I'd stop at XXI. and I'm
Not half ashamed to say so;
I envy much the lucky man
The joy of his beginning
To love this fair American—
His wooing and his winning.

Oh, who can lose his faith in this,
Our best beloved nation?
Here is our hope; we cannot miss
Applause and approbation.
One dae not quite disparage one's Own country until others
Can show such prizes for their sons,
And such prospective mothers!

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

St. Paul Globe: The last of the men who carried Lincoln out of Ford's theater after the shooting is dying. Out of the gallant band of notable citizens there is scarcely any left now but the oldest inhabitant and the first Odd Fellow.

Winona Independent: Even the American board of foreign missions, supposed to be among God's elect, can't withstand the temptation to accept the proffer of $100,000 from John D. Rockefeller's illgotten hoard. It is in the same line of conduct as legislative bribe taking and puts the board of foreign missions on a level with Mrfi Rockefeller. If it enjoys the feeling, it is welcome to it.

Blue Earth County Enterprise: If President Roosevelt is handing out any medals on the race suicide issue he should certainly remember Eli Ruelle of Houghton, Mich. Mr. Ruelle recently thought that he would like to be highway commissioner of his town and he won out, his seventeen sons helping out their father's inspirations by peddling ballots at the polls.

Faribault Democrat: Peanut politics prevailed in both houses of the legislature, and the Horton bill, vesting the control of the new state capitol for the next two years in the board of capitol commissioners, was passed over the governor's veto. A smaller bit of partnership seldom exhibits itself.

Owatonna Chronicle: The present state legislature at this date bids fair to leave behind it a record of petty political maneuvering and backbiting with nothing of any importance accomplished. Well, if it fails to pass any positively bad legislation it will be entitled to some credit.

Dawson Sentinel: The Independent Press says the legislature is making a monkey of itself. Julius Schmahl, editor of the Redwood Gazette and chief clerk of the house forevermore, recently said it was one of the best we ever had. Take your choice.

Albert Lea Standard: A woman, declared to be dead by two physicians, is restored with salt by the third. The successful doctor might try his salt remedy on the anti-railroad pass bills that have been put to sleep in the legislature.

Sauk Center Herald: Cole Younger wants to come back to Minnesota; we can remember the time when he was trying to get out of Minnesota mighty hard.

Albert Lea Tribune: The indications now are that there will be no primary election legislation this session of the legislature and the old scramble can be indulged in next year. It is generally conceded the people of the state wanted some primary law reform and the legislature should have agreed upon some form of law to at least make a start toward the goal sought for.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A girl has to be mighty pretty to make a man forget the way she tries to reason.

After a man has tried every other way to lose his money he can always hire a lawyer.

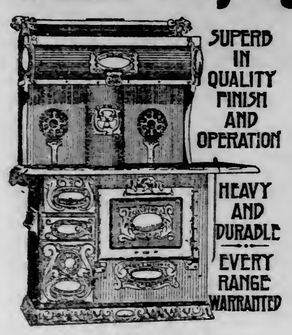
When Buying a Steel Range



SUPERB UNIVERSAL

Keep This In Mind!

If the BEST is not too good for you, then buy a "UNIVERSAL." There are just two kinds of steel ranges sold in this city—that is the "UNIVERSAL" (absolutely the best) and the other kind. And yet, this BEST kind costs no more than the other kind. We want you to investigate the "Bayha System" of selling stoves and ranges. We can not take back your old stove for the reason it will cost us as much to handle it as we could get for it, and besides—we do not sell second-hand stoves. But we will sell you a handsome stove or an elegant steel range outright for less money than you would have to pay the "trade back" stores in "boot" money, and then we will make you a present of your old stove absolutely free. Then, too, the customer that wants to buy outright and has no stove to trade back, does not have to pay the long price when buying at this store.

These are facts worth your investigation before you buy a stove or steel range. Universal Steel Ranges with high warming closets, from ..... $19.50 up

All stoves and ranges sold on $1.00 down and $1.00 per week payments for those that want to buy that way.

A most interesting program was presented yesterday afternoon at the last meeting for the year of the Ladies' Literature class. The meeting was held with Mrs. W. G. Hegardt of 1705 East First street, and the subject of the afternoon was "German Ballads and Lyrics." A short and interesting paper was presented by Mrs. Frank D. Adams on the development of the German ballad and a program of these songs, typical in their construction of this country was sung by Miss Mary Syer Bradshaw. The accompaniments were played by Mrs. J. A. Stephenson and the afternoon was a most charming one.

The annual meeting of the Lester Park Literary club was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. H. Norton. The election of officers took place and the following will serve the society for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. John Pinkerton; vice president, Mrs. W. J. Stevenson; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Dodge; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. B. Curtis, and chairman of the program committee, Mrs. J. M. Burbank.

The report of the committee on the next year's program was given and the club will devote its study time next year to American literature. The club will continue its meetings until the first Tuesday of May.

Last evening the club members and their husbands were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. James C. Wharton at a delightful informal evening.

DIVORCED PERSONS.

Interesting Statistics as to Their Number.

In the thirty-seven cities of the United States which in 1900 had populations exceeding 100,000 there were 8,017 more divorced women than divorced men, while Indianapolis, Ind., led the whole list in divorced women and came within one place of first in the number of divorced men, says an exchange.

Fifty-two divorced women in every 1,000 of its population is the unique record of the Indiana capital, followed at some distance by Kansas City, Mo., with its 40.9 grass widows in the 1,000, while Jersey City, N. J., trails in at the extreme foot of the list with only 3.8 divorced women on the same population basis.

St. Joseph, Mo., leads with a record breaking 34.5 grass widowers in the 1,000, and, as if this were not enough, it shows that more men than women are divorced and living there against all the ratios and traditions of the United States census bureau.

If a city of 100,000 population and more has to exceed 13.5 divorced women and 8.5 divorced men to each 1,000 inhabitants, it is outdoing itself. In the thirty-seven cities considered in this article there are totals of 18,908 grass widows and 10,891 grass widowers out of the population of 13,929,733 of all ages and conditions.

Looking over the tabulation of legal widowhood as shown by the census the reader is struck by the apparent inconsistency of the figures showing the divorced women and the numbers of divorced men. The proportion for the population total for the thirty-seven cities is 135 divorced women to 85 divorced men in every 10,000 people, a difference of more than one-third in favor of the men. At a glance one is disposed to remark that there should be a grass widower for every grass widow suggested by the census reports. But there are at least two good reasons for the condition.

Adandonment is the one chief cause of divorce in the United States. It is such a real cause that out of its reality it has come to be a sham cause as well until judges on the bench have uttered protest against the ease at which collusion between a husband and wife results in divorce. An absence of two years on the part of the husband is proved and the complaining wife gets her decree, says an exchange.

Then, too, most divorced men who are conniving parties to the divorce decree are quick to marry again, and with the marriage the necessity for contributing to the divorce statistics of his native land is gone glimmering. Not infrequently the man in arranging for divorce from the wife has the other wife singled out before the court decree can be written up. Under any circumstances it will be unchallenged that the divorced man has better opportunities in that line.

It is in this possibility of remarriage that the grass widower in Louisville, Ky., comes out into the limelight with a celerity not equaled anywhere when contrasted with the 33.4 women in every 1,000 population. By the time the official canvasser had counted the 33.4 women on the Louisville list and turned her attention to the grass widowers of the town all but 5.5 of them had remarried or disappeared somewhere.

There have been speculations as to whether or not the man who has gone through the divorce mills has not an added interest for a wide circle of femininity. Notwithstanding the position of many married women upon the question of equal suffrage and woman's rights, the sympathy of most women is distinctly with the grass widower in the divorce proceedings. Even if he has whipped the wife occasionally the opinion frequently is that she has deserved it. A widower of the sod variety under nearly all circumstances has a handicap when it comes to a new edition of love's young dream. With even a third edition of a court decree, without alimony, the widower of the grass variety suggests even piquancy to a fourth romance.

THE WISDOM OF PAP

By Susan Hearle Thomas.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"I don't care what pap says, I like him! Yes, I've mos' made up my mind that I am pretty near to loving him," the girl flashed. She stood at the door of the kitchen, looking angrily towards her mother, who, however, was in no ways discomposed by her daughter's wrath. The old lady was peacefully sewing, and she went on sewing as she answered:

"Oh, you air, air you? 'Twasn't so long since that you mos' had a fit 'cause your pap said he thought Joe Cartwright a nice man."

"Well, what's he turned round and shifted his views for?" The girl swung herself in a belligerent attitude. She had vacillating eyes, and a light, volatile air in her whole make-up, but, nevertheless, she was pretty, undeniably pretty.

"He hasn't got any right to!" she went on, passionately. "If Joe Cartwright was low-down, or bad, he might talk, but Joe isn't that. Joe hasn't got a mean bone in his entire body."

At this outburst the old lady rocked back and forth with a serenity of outward expression that told, as plainly as words, that she was inwardly smiling. She was shrunken and wrinkled, but anyone could see the likeness to her daughter; there was the same airy set to the head.

She paused in her sewing and looked at her turbulent child. "It seems as if you and your pap sees different," she smiled with divided indulgence.

"We do. I thould think we did." The girl threw out her hands in tragic gesture. "I tell you what, marm, I'm goin' to do just as I please in this matter. So there! I'm goin' to marry to suit myself. Pap don't have to live with my husband."

"Look here, Salome." The old lady put her sewing down for a moment, folding her hands in her lap. "Your pap ain't cros't you much in your life, and your pap's older than you."

"He's cros't me now, all right, and without reason." Salome stuck out her under lip. "and I'm not goin' to stand it. Comin' down, like he does, on Joe Cartwright!"

Back to her spectacles, the old lady seemed to twinkle. "And ain't your pap got a license fer his own tongue; can't he express his feelings?"

"Oh," cried Salome impatiently, "what's the use arguin' with you, you and he are in cahoots!" She came over to where her mother sat. "Joe's comin' here tonight," she said, with a challenging light in her face. "He's comin' for his answer, and I'm goin' to give it to him, you hear me, tonight."

At this announcement the old lady took up her sewing and sewed diligently. She appeared to be trying to hide some emotions.

"He is, is he?" she said after a while, stopping with her needle way up in the air, "and what air you goin' to tell him?" Then she ducked her head to hide the eagerness of her face.

"I don't know," answered pretty Salome sullenly. "It's my affair, my affair and Joe's, what I tell him." She turned away.

"But, Salome, don't be in a hurry; let's talk a little. You know marriage is a pretty serious business." The mother left her rocker, laying a detaining hand on her daughter's arm. "You take a man for 'better and worse,' that's what's read over you in church, but most in general the 'worse' is the biggest pile." Here Salome shook off the detaining hand, going towards the door, her mother following, anxiously, eagerly.

"Your pap says Joe Cartwright's stubborn, stubborner than a mule, he says. 'Joe may be steady, but he's pig-headed, thinks he knows it all,' that's what your pap says."

An angry flush mounted to the roots of the fair Salome's head.

"And I don't care what pap says!" she cried, with rigid determination in her eye and voice. "I'm goin 'to say yes, this very night, so there! I'll show pap I won't be crossed in this way." Salome threw the door wide like an angry tragedienne.

The lithe, nervous figure of the mother stood in front of the indignant daughter.

"You mean it, really gospel true?" peering through the glass at the flushed beauty.

"I do, and I'm going to stick to it, you see if I ain't." Salome's eyes shed defiance around her, until they encountered a something in the eyes of her mother. "Leastways I think I am," she said, suddenly relaxing. The expression in the old lady's face changed. "Salome," she said, in a thick sort of way, as if she had been frightened, "listen to your pap, listen to me, before it's too late, and for the land's sake, let Joe alone."

Salome drew a deep breath and stiffened all over. "I won't let him alone," sullen obstinacy showed in that lower jaw of hers. "You and pap don't know a decent man when you see one. I'll do my own pickin' and choosin'."

"For mercy's sake!" the old lady dropped both hands. "You sayin' that to me, who has lived in this world forty odd years afore you was ever born or thought of. But you're the last one," as if some explanation was demanded, "and last children is as a rule unmannerly."

"I wish I'd waited a little longer and never been born at all," cried this unmannerly child, with the petulance of one that was spoiled.

"And all on account of one man, Salome; I'd have more pride than to talk that way."

"You and pap are pestering the life out of me aboue the company I keep; I don't want you to look at this one and I don't want you to go with that one. I'm just sick and tired of it."

"Come, now, you quarreled with the others of your own free will; and in this instance we air only advisin'," with maternal indulgence.

"And I don't want advice, and I won't take it, and I will take Joe Cartwright; yes, I will take him. I've made up my mind now. I'll show you and pap how much good advice has been wasted. He's put you up to all this; I know pap, and I know you," with fierce significance. Salome swung herself out of the kitchen, pulling the door after her.

"Children may be from the Lord," sighed the mother, as she resumed her chair and her sewing, "but they surely air a responsibility." Yet, in spite of her realized responsibilities, she looked cheerful.

When Salome came down next morning her attitude seemed to anticipate antagonism. Her mother was peacefully eating oatmeal out of a large bowl, while her father sipped his too hot coffee out of his saucer.

"Well, daughter," said the old gentleman, who had a shrewd face and humorous eyes, "did you get much sleep last night? That young blatherskite kept you up pretty late."

Salome pulled her chair up noisily. "Theres' no use in callin' names," she said angrily, looking at her father with hot, indignant young eyes. "For all I see, Joe Cartwright ain't any more of a blatherskite than some others I could name."

"There's no call for you to be wasting so much energy over names I choose to be givin' people, fancy names," chuckled her father, with a wink in the direction of his wife. She, poor lady, was looking and feeling nervously curious.

Suddenly Salome straightened herself in her chair. Then she turned first to her father and then to her mother, while her vacillating eyes grew dark with the reflected determination of her mind. "I want you both to know I'm goin' to get mad whenever you get to calling him names, 'cause," she hesitated, growing suddenly beautifully bashful, then with a sort of gasp she concluded, "I've got a right to; I'm goin 'to marry him." She swallowed hard, and dropped her eyes.

"For the land's sake!" exclaimed the mother, letting her spoon fall on the floor, while she tried to keep her face as it should be. The father merely looked at his daughter and winked hard to keep something out of his eyes, some tell-tale emotion.

"You can both of you say all you want to; you've got to say it some time, and now's as good as any." Salome said, seemingly addressing her plate, and with no abatement of fire in her tone.

"It seems to me I've pretty well exhausted the subject. You've got my opinion, Salome, but you've used the right of private judgment." He gave a great sigh, or rather drew a long breath, which might have been interpreted as a sigh of relief rather than resignation. "But I suppose a wilful woman will always have her own way. Eh, mother?"

The old lady's mobile countenance showed a suffering suppression of feeling.

"Yes, let's hear from you, marm," Salome said fiercely.

The old lady caught her husband's eye and suddenly went, as it were, behind a mask. She took on a stern, unyielding expression of feature.

"I told you what I thought about the man yesterday," she said mechanically.

"And you mean to sit there and tell us, your parents, that you're in double-dead earnest, for once in your life," demanded her father, "and over this—fellow?" he concluded hastily. Her face told him she wouldn't have him called names.

Salome's mouth grew inflexibly straight; a steady light glowed in her eyes. "I'm in twice double-dead earnest," she said, bringing down her hand on the table, thereby making her cup dance and her coffee spill. "so, you see, 'tisn't a bit of use calling names any more; no, sir-ee, 'tisn't the least bit of use." Here she got up from the table. "I don't want any more breakfast, marm. I feel as if things would choke me this morning." There was a suspicious red showing round her eyes as she left the table.

"John, I must tell her; yes, I must!" The active figure came round the table to where her husband sat. "Let me," she pleaded; "she's cryin' now—" but Salome had disappeared.

"You'd just spoil the whole affair. You must let her alone. If she thought we approved of Joe she'd veer round in a second. No, mother, we've worked it so; we've got her the best young man in the county, just by working on her contrariness. Hush! Don't say one word 'til they are fastened tight! If she should suspicion us, she'd do like she did the others. Salome's skittish as a balky mule; you know that, 'cause she's the very spit of you. If I hadn't worked on your contrariness you wouldn't have been Mar. John Baker now."

"—won't say a word to Salome," Mrs. John Baker said meekly.

LOST TIP OF FINGER.

Clinton, Iowa, April 12.—John Aplin, proprietor of a billiard parlor, had an exciting encounter with an unidentified man at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, when he was waylaid on a dark street on the North side and fired upon three times. Two of the bullets took slight effect, one taking off the tip of his little finger and the other grazing his side. The third bullet flew wide of its mark and the young man escaped serious injury. The would-be murderer got away unrecognized.

ANOTHER SNAG AT THE SAULT

Power Company Mortgage Bondholders Threaten to Foreclose.

Philadelphia, April 12.—A new danger confronts the Lake Superior company. The owners of the $3,500,000 of first-mortgage bonds of the Michigan Power company have finally decided to foreclose and sell the property at auction unless the Lake Superior company shall accede to an equitable plan of financing the power concern. It seems probable that the May interest on the first-mortgage bonds will be defaulted, as the power company has not earned enough to pay the required amount.

The Michigan Power company built the big power canal at the Soo. The old Consolidated Lake Superior company took over the Michigan company, giving a first-mortgage bond to the amount of $3,500,000. There is a second mortgage for $2,400,000 and $500,000 of stock. The new Lake Superior company owns most of the second-mortgage bonds and all of the stock.

It has been discovered that the great power plant and the canal were not properly built in all respects. It has also been found that fully to equip the property an expenditure of $1,610,000 at the outside, and $800,000 at the least, is necessary.

The question arose: Who shall pay for these needed repairs? President Warren of the Lake Superior company proposed a plan, which was that a new first-mortgage bond of $5,000,000 be placed on the Michigan Power company and that the owners of the $3,500,000 of the present mortgage bonds exchange them for a like amount of the new ones. The balance of $1,500,000 could be used to finish the job.

But the old mortgage bondholders appointed a committee consisting of John Pitcairn, Thomas M. King and Charles H. Graham to investigate the whole matter. They reported, after making such an investigation, strongly against President Warren's plan.

Moreover, the committee of bondholders has notified President Warren not to attempt to carry out any other plan of financing the company at this time.

RUINING TREES

Park Board Aroused Over Destruction Caused By Wires.

Council to Take Action Regarding Placing of Poles.

The problem of saving Duluth's shade trees from destruction by the wires and poles of the telephone and telegraph companies, is now confronting the board of park commissioners, and an effort is being made to have the council take some decided step in the matter.

A few years ago there was no such difficulty encountered. The shade trees in the city were mostly young saplings, and the wires were stretched above them, not interferring with them in any way. Since then, however, the trees in some parts of the city have grown until their branches envelope the wires and the problem has become a pressing one. Unless some immediate action is taken many of the finest shade trees in the city will be ruined.

At the present time the board of public works issues permits for the erection of all poles within the city limits, and no telephone or telegraph poles can be placed in position without such a permit. About six months ago the council instructed the board to issue no permits without first referring the matter to them for consideration, and the location of the poles now has to pass the censorship of both the board of public works and the aldermen. At the last meeting of the council several permits were held up pending the investigation of the aldermen in the ward in which they were to be placed.

At the next meeting of the council some action will probably be taken which will regulate the placing of all poles and wires to be erected in the city in future.

MORE THE MERRIER

Biennial Convention of Foresters Will Meet In Duluth.

Dates Overlap the Monster Gathering of the Eagles.

Immediately preceding the big convention of the Eagles to be held here in June, the members of the Independent Order of Foresters in the northern part of the state, will make Duluth their Mecca, and the city will have 100 or more of them as guests for two days.

It will be the occasion of the biennial convention of all of the lodges of the order in Northern Minnesota. The district includes all of the towns and cities north of a line drawn through St. Cloud, and each lodge will send from two to five delegates to the convention.

There are about thirty-five courts north of this line, and the number of delegates should range from 100 to 150.

The dates of the convention are June 14 and 15, while the monster state convention of the Eagles will be held on June 15, 16 and 17. Both conventions will therefore be in session on June 15, and delegates to both will be in the city during the greater part of the week.

The Foresters are also planning to spend a considerable sum of money in the entertainment of their guests, and the program will probably include an entertainment and an excursion either up the river or down the lake.

In addition to the delegates from the state, the Superior court and the Duluth courts of the Foresters will turn out in a body to the convention and while it will be a small affair when compared numerically with the gathering of the Eagles, it would at any other time be considered a very respectable convention.

With two conventions in one week, Duluth should be able to give Denver, St. Louis, Kansas City and other convention cities, some points on how to handle such gatherings. For those four or five days at least delegates will about own the city.

SANTA FE TO BUILD $10,000,000 CUT-OFF.

Chicago, April 12.—The Record-Herald today says: Official announcement is made that the Santa Fe will begin to build within thirty days a $10,000,000 cut-off to the coast with a view of getting rid of the mountain grades which are now encountered in transcontinental travel.

The western end of the cut-off will be at Belan, N. M., twenty-seven miles south of Albuquerque, on the El Paso line, and the eastern end will be at Texico, 250 miles away, on the Pecos valley line of the Santa Fe.

The new road will cross the Sierra Nevada mountains at Abo Pass at an elevation of 6,491 feet, but at a maximum grade eastbound of 1¼ per cent, and westbound of six-tenths of 1 per cent.

MILLS ALMOST READY.

Annual Repairs at Ashland For Sawing Season.

Ashland, Wis., April 12.—All of the saw mills on Cheuamegon bay are undergoing their annual repairs for the coming season. The ice in the bay is honeycombed and the opening of navigation is only about a week away. The Barker & Stewart mill will start next week and the East End mill and Schroeder Lumber company's mills will begin as soon as a raft of logs can be towed from the north shore. All will run night and day the entire season and the owners say they will cut more lumber this season than last, as the season will open three weeks earlier. The logs for the Barker & Stewart mill will be brought from along the Peerless logging railroad and belong to the Edward Hines Lumber company. A large portion of the summer supply of logs is already in the bay, having been hauled this winter. The Schroeder Lumber company and the East End mill will receive most of their logs from the north shore of Lake Superior, although the Schroeders have timber at the mouth of Montreal river and on the Apostle islands.

The Bigelow mill at Washburn, owned by the Hines company, will begin sawing as soon as the ice is out of the bay. It will have two crews. This is the last season that the Bigelow mill will run unless Hines acquires more timber near Washburn.

The mill of the Lake Superior Lumber company has been running night and day all winter and will continue to do so except when annual repairs are made. The mill is sawing hardwood lumber.

The Ackley & Sprague Lumber company of Washburn has closed a deal for 10,000,000 feet of standing timber on Wilson island. The timber will be logged immediately and towed to Washburn for sawing.

WHEREABOUTS KNOWN.

State Will Have Dingler For Second Trial.

New Ulm, Minn., April 12.—Albert Pfaender of counsel for the state in the case against Dr. Koch, denies that Edgar Dingler, who testified that the "murder hammer," belonged at the home of Dr. Koch, has left for parts unknown. The attorney says that Dingler's whereabouts is known, and that he will be brought back when the state needs his evidence.

INDICTMENT SET ASIDE; JURY WAS ONE MAN SHORT

Des Moines, April 12.—Judge Byington today set aside an indictment returned by the Johnson county grand jury, charging Eric Kutzleben with train wrecking and first degree murder because the panel was incomplete. The body lacked one man, it being at the end of term and one juror was ill. Kutzleben confessed to wrecking the Rocky Mountain Rock Island flyer in which Engineer Hotchkisswas killed and several injured.

REVISED PLAT

Of East End Block Is Objected to By Council.

Houses Have Already Been Erected On the New Lots.

After having erected a number of houses on the revised plat of block 120, Portland division, the Howard Investment company is faced with the possibility that the council may refuse to confirm the revised plat.

The block in question lies between Fifth and Sixth streets and Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues east.

The company desires to open an avenue, forty feet wide, down the center of the block, to be known as Twelfth and a Half avenue. This will make the lots on eacsh side of it 30 by 75 and 30 by 85 feet, facing on the new avenue and on Twelfth and Thirteenth.

On this revised plat the company has erected a number of small houses, to be leased at moderate rentals.

The plat was filed with the council for approval a week ago, and last Monday evening Alderman Moore gave notice to the company that objection would be made to the plat, and asking a rpersentative to be in attendance at the meeting next Monday evening to give the company's side of the case.

The objection was made on the ground that it would destroy the symmetry of the blocks in that part of the city, and would tend to crowd the houses too closely together in the small lots, increasing the danger of unsanitary conditions, and establishing a precedent which might be followed by other real estate companies which own blocks of unimproved land in the outlying districts of the city. The opinion was expressed by both Alderman Moore and Alderman McEwen that lots in the residence districts of the city should not be made any smaller than they are at present.

While the refusal of the council to confirm the plat will not put the company to any actual expense in the way of moving houses already constructed, it will cause no little annoyance should it ever wish to dispose of the lots. If the council refuses to recognize the new plat, some of the houses will stand on parts of two or three lots instead of each one occupying a lot by itself, as would be the case with the new plat.

PEASANTS SEIZE LAND.

Russian Troops Have Been Sent to Orgieff.

St. Petersburg, April 12.—The peasantsat Orgieff, near Odessa, recently seized the land of some of the big estates and proceeded to divide it. Troops have been dispathed to the scene.

Near Byelestck, the peasants demanded that the landlords cease to use agricultural machinery, and as their attitude became threatening Cossacks were required to disperse them.

An additional force of Cossacks has been dispatched to Saratoff to quell the agrarian movement there.

DID NOT HEED WARNING.

Italian's House Blown Up By "Black Hand."

New York, April 12.—Because he had not heeded letters demanding money which bore the peculiar signature of the mysterious "Black Hand" society, a bomb was exploded under the house of Piero Caciozza, an Italian barber, in Brooklyn, today. The stoop of the house was wrecked, but Caciozza, his wife and their one child escaped injury.

EXPENSIVE FIGHTS.

Joseph Cunningham Pays $15 For Three Scraps.

Five dollars a scrap was the price paid by Joseph Cunningham for three brawls in which he indulged in a Bowery saloon.

According to the evidence given in municipal court this morning, Cunningham engaged in no less than three rough and tumble fights in forty-five minutes last evening. He was arrested on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, and after being given a hearing in the municipal court, was fined $15 and costs with the alternatage of spending twenty days in jail. He paid his fine.

Drink the Cause of More Crime In Our City.

Another horrible tragedy in our midst, causing much excitement and bitter feeling, goes down a long line of crime in this country resulting from excessive use of liquor. The liquor habit is universally recognized by physicians as a disease. It can be cured by Orrine.

This meritorious cure is the result of over ten years' scientific research by a Washington chemist. It has been tested by physicians who pronounce it wonderful. We have made arrangements with the laboratories of the Orrine Company, Inc., Washington, D. C., to furnish Orrine to people who are desirous of being freed from this horrible disease caused by the excessive use of whiskey, beer or other alcoholic stimulants. Orrine No. 1 (in powder form) can be given secretly in tea, coffee or food without the patient's knowledge. Orrine No. 2 (in pill form) is for those who desire to be free from the craving for alcoholic stimulants. We sell Orrine at $1 per package, and the company guarantees to cure the craving or refund every cent paid for it. We do not hesitate to recommend it to you. F. W. ROBERTS CASE BEING HEARD

Aldermen Hearing Story of Saloonkeeper Convicted of Gambling

The hearing of Charles Roberts, the saloonkeeper convicted of having run a poker game in his saloon, is being held this afternoon before the council committee on police and license, consisting of Aldermen Tessman, Chesney and Lyle.

At the request of Mayor Cullum the council, last Monday evening, ordered Roberts to appear before the committee and show cause why his license should not be revoked for the violation of the saloon ordinance, and the hearing is in progress this afternoon in the city council chahber.

Iron Mining Companies.

Articles of incorporation of three new mining companies were filed with the county register of deeds this morning, having an aggregate capitalization of $150,000. The incorporators of each company are T. F. Cole, J. B. Cotton and George D. Swift. Each company purports to do a general mining and smelting business and is capitalized at $50,000, divided into 500 shares. The period of the corporations is to be perpetual. The companies are the Monongahela Iron Mining company, the Lorain Iron Mining company and the Neville Iron Mining company.

To Rochester For Operation.

Louis Sletten, one of the prominent citizens of Ely, passed through Duluth today on his way to Rochester, Minn., to be operated on for what is feared to be cancer. R. Vall of Ely accompanied him to Rochester.

MORE CIVIL SERVICE

Examinations Scheduled For May at This Point.

The civil service commission has issued circulars announcing examinations at this point on May 1, 3, 4, 10 and 11. The examinations on May 1 are for the Panama service and this alone should be enough to arouse some curiosity, especially as it is among railroad men that this will apply most. The positions to be tried for are: Superintendent of track department, supervisor, track department, trackman, superintendent transportation department, and supervisor dumps department. The age limits stated for superintendents are between 25 and 50 years, for supervisors, between 21 and 45 years and for trackman the same. No educational test will be applied. The examinations will be on age, physical condition and experience.

On May 10 there will be held an examination as to age, physical condition and experience for the position of dairyman in the Indian service at Genoa, Neb., in which no educational qualification is required either. On May 10 and 11 the position of civil engineer student in the division of tests, bureau of chemistry, in the department of agriculture, will be tried for. The applicant must be 20 years of age or over.

On May 3 examinations for the positions of inspector of construction in the quartermaster's department at large in Boston, dynamo tender in a similar department in San Francisco, and topographic draftsman in Panama, will be held.

SECURES MORE RIGHT OF WAY

Two Deeds Aggregating $6,500 Filed By Railroad Company.

Two more deeds covering West end and Oneota property which will be used by the Lake Superior & Southeastern Railroad company for the new line into Duluth, were filed with the register of deeds this morning, the consideration aggregating $6,500.

One deed runs from Francis and Mary A. Gibbs of Chisago county, Minn., to the railroad company and covers lot 246, block 20, Duluth proper, Second division. The property comprises an unimproved lot on the lower side of Michigan street between Garfield and Fifteenth avenue west. The consideration was $3,500.

The other deed runs from Henry W. and Sarah C. Wheeler and covers a whole block on the upper side of St. Anthony street between Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth avenues west, for a consideration of $3,000. The property is described as lots, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16, block 17, Oneota. None of the lots have any improvements.

CHANGE OF VENUE

Granted to Johann Hoch, the Alleged Bigamist.

Chicago, April 12.—A change of venue was granted today to Johann Hoch, the bigamist and alleged "Bluebeard." When his case was called for trial the defense presented a petition alleging it to be impossible to secure a fair trial before either Judge Tuley or Judge Barnes. A request for a change of venue to Judge Kersten was granted. April 19 was set as the date for Hoch's trial.

ATTACK THE BRAKEMAN

Ugly Customers Make Trouble On Iron Range Train.

Passengers coming down on last night's Duluth & Iron Range train from the range report lively times this side of Two Harbors between two would-be deadheads and train crew. Two men tried to sneak a ride, but were caught at it by the brakeman. He chased them off and they caught on the train at another part. They kept dodging around this way for a time and finally the brakeman got a gun, which was not loaded, to use as a bluff. At this the men stated that they wanted to come to Duluth and would pay their fare. Accordingly the fare was collected of them and they settled themselves in the parlor car, scaring the ladies out.

Shortly afterwards the brakeman who had used the gun came through and one of the men jumped on him and for a few minutes there was a lively fight, but the combatants were separated by some passengers. Evidently fearing arrest, when the train slackened speed near Lakeside the two jumped off and disappeared. The train was in charge of Conductor Flannigan.

SSS THE GREATEST OF ALL TONICS

The ingredients that enter into S. S. S. and the method of combining and preparing them so that they build up and strengthen every part of the body, make it the greatest of all tonics. S. S. S. is nature's remedy—PURELY VEGETABLE—and while it is restoring the lost appetite, overcoming that tired, run-down feeling, and other ailments common to Spring, which warn us that it is necessary to take a tonic, it is purifying the blood of all poisons and waste matters so that it can supply to the system the strength and nourishment it needs to keep it in perfect condition during the depressing summer months that are to follow.

Spring is the season when most every one needs a tonic. It is nature's time for renewing and changing; and as everything puts on new life, the sap rises in vegetation, the earth thaws out from its winter freezes, and all respond to Spring's call to purge and purify themselves, there is a great change also takes place in our bodies. The blood endeavors to throw off the poisons and accumulations which have formed in the system, and been absorbed by it, from the inactive winter life, and calls upon every member to assist in the elimination. The system is often unequal to the struggle, the appetite grows fickle, the energies give way, the spirits are depressed, and a general run-down condition is the result.

Then the body must have assistance—it must be strengthened and aided by a tonic, and S. S. S. is the ideal one. Being made entirely from roots, herbs and barks, it does not disagreeably affect the system in any way as do most of the so-called tonics on the market, which contain Potash or some other harmful mineral ingredient to derange the stomach and digestion, unfavorably affect the bowels, or otherwise damage the health. S. S. S. tones up the stomach and digestion and assists in the assimilation of food; it rids the system of that always-tired, worn-out feeling, and imparts vigor and tone to every part of the body. It re-establishes the healthy circulation of the blood, stimulates the sluggish organs, and calms the unstrung nerves which make one feel that he is on the verge of prostration. S. S. S. gives an appetite and relish for food that nothing else does, and by its use we can find ourselves with as hearty, hungry an appetite in Spring as at any other season.

It acts more promptly and gives better and more lasting results than any other remedy, and is absolutely safe because of its vegetable purity. Dyspeptic, irritable, nervous, debilitated people will find S. S. S. is just the medicine that is needed for the purification of the blood, which, from its diseased or impure condition, is causing their trouble, as well as for toning up and helping the entire system. When you take your tonic this Spring do not experiment, but get the best—the tonic with forty years of success behind it, and the one endorsed by the best people all over the country—S. S. S., THE GREATEST OF ALL TONICS. It is necessary at this time, when the system is depleted and weakened at every point, that the right remedy be used—one that is especially adapted to the condition, and S. S. S. has proved itself to be this remedy for many years. If it is taken at the first sign of Spring the system will be so built up and strengthened that the disagreeable affections of the season will not be felt as warmer weather comes on.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, ATLANTA, GA.

AN EFFORT TO PULL THROUGH THE DAY.

I have used S. S. S. quite extensively and unhesitatingly recommend it as the best blood purifier and tonic made. I am a machinist by trade and at one time my system was so run down that by 10 o'clock every day I would be completely exhausted, and it was with the greatest effort that I could pull through the balance of the day. Since taking S. S. S., however, all this has disappeared. I am a strong, vigorous man, abundantly able to do my day's work, my appetite has been whetted up so that I can eat anything, my sleep is sweet and refreshing, and I know further that it has purified my blood and put it in good condition. I cannot speak too highly of your great remedy, S. S. S.
817 W. Broad St., Columbus, O. A. B. MONTGOMERY.

SHE FOUND IT THE BEST SPRING TONIC.

On two occasions I have used S. S. S. in the spring with fine results. I can heartily recommend it as a tonic and blood purifier. I was troubled with headache, indigestion and liver troubles, which all disappeared under the use of S. S. S. My appetite, which was poor, was greatly helped. I can eat anything I want now without fear of indigestion, and my blood has been thoroughly cleansed of all impurities and made rich and strong again. As a tonic and blood purifier it is all you claim for it.

ORDERS BY LEUPP

Forbidding the Indians to Sell Their Game and Fish.

Traders on the Indian Reservations Cannot Deal In Them.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is consternation among the traders on the Indian reservations who have been selling fish and game by virtue of traders' licenses, issued by the Indian department at Washington, by reason of the announcement from Washington that the new commissioner of Indian affairs, Mr. Leupp, has issued an order forbidding the purchase of venison, partridges and fish from the Indians, and also forbidding the reds to sell their game and fish. The superintendents of Indian schools are by the same order told to discontinue furnishing the inmates of the schools with venison and fish bought in this manner.

It has been the custom of the government for several years past to buy game and fish from the Indians and traders, under contract. This traffic has been in direct violation of the game and fish laws of the state, although in a measure sanctioned by the federal government, and more particularly by the Indian department. Sam F. Fullerton, executive agent of the state game and fish commission, has taken hold of the matter during the past three months, and has vigorously pushed his representations to the Indian department at Washington, showing the unfairness of the action of the Indian department in indirectly encouraging violations of the state laws.

Many of the traders have taken advantage to the full of these conditions and have bought game from the Indians on the reservations, often shipping it out of the state, and otherwise setting an unwholesome example to unprincipled pot hunters, who will never hesitate to shoot game out of season when they can find a ready market for their meat. The Indians have also been encouraged in killing game, for the reason that they have never been interfered with, so long as they confined themselves to their own reservations, and used the game for their own subsistence. However, spurred on by the fact that traders would buy all they had to sell, the reds have not confined their shooting to the reservations, but have hunted off their reserves, at any season of the year that they desired.

This condition was fully presented to Commissioner Leupp, and the latter, after having investigated the matter, issued his orders that no more game be bought by the Indian schools, that the reds cease selling, and that traders be forbidden to deal in game and fish.

THEATRICAL AGREEMENT

Of the Big Show Trust Is Read In Court.

New York, April 12.—During the continuance yesterday of the trial of the suit of David Belasco, a theatrical manager, against Joseph Brooks, in connection with the production of the "Auctioneer" and involving the control of the principal theaters of the country by a syndicate agreement was offered in evidence. Its reading was one of the striking features of a trial replete with striking incidents.

The parties to the agreement which became effective August 31, 1901, and runs for five years, are shown to be Al Hayman, Charles Forhman, Marx Klaw, and A. L. Erlanger, as parties of the first part, and Samuel F. Niedlinger and J. Fred Zimmerman, trading as Nixon & Zimmerman, parties of the second part.

The list of theaters, thirty-three in number, as under control of the parties to the agreement and which was to be supplemented by any theaters subsequently passing under control of any of the parties in the next five years was announced. The list names houses in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis, Chicago, Columbus, Dayton, Toledo, Indianapolis, Buffalo, Toronto, Omaha, Denver, San Francisco and New Orleans.

An agreement to pool all profits is set out in the fifth clause of the instrument and of the net profits it is stipulated Messrs. Hayman-Frohman, Klaw & Elranger shall receive 75 per cent and the firm of Nixon & Zimmerman 25 per cent from all the theaters enumerated. Nixon & Zimmerman in return are to turn over from 33 1-3 to 50 per cent of the net profits of theaters earned by them in Pittsburg and Baltimore. Klaw & Erlanger are given control of all bookings while Nixon & Zimmerman are designated as the holding representatives.

BOX CAR MURDERER IS FOUND GUILTY.

Elk River, Minn., April 12.—Murder in the first degree as charged in the indictment, was the verdict brought in by the jury last night against C. D. Crawford, the box car murderer, who killed Fred Lunglin here, Nov. 20, 1904. Crawford listened unmoved to the reading of the verdict by Clerk Dave and as soon as court adjourned he calmly lit a cigar and between several officers returned to his cell.

CONSTANT DECLINE

In Value of Gold Is Due to Rapid Production.

No Want of Confidence When People Have Plenty Money.

New York, April 12.—Financiers, brokers, capitalists and investors are now watching with amazement the vast increase in volume of all trade and the steady move upward of values. Noted writers are weekly and even daily giving to the press the twaddle of persons delighting to pose as masters of finance who give columns for publication as to the present prosperity which they neither forsaw nor expected.

It is amusing to read articles written by such people, telling of the wonderful effects of the increased money supply of the world, when one is aware that the very same people, ten years ago and since, were prating to the public that it was the solid basis of prosperity.

Many of these writers know nothing of the basic principles of finance. They accept the chatter of people who chance to be temporarily before the public, and write down as logical and profound words and opinions as crude, as obscure, as ridiculous as the opinions of Jack Bunsby.

I note in the columns of leading journals interviews with various men active in affairs telling of the good times the entire country is now enjoying, and I remember very distinctly published interviews with the same people during 1902 and 1903 in which they deplored the disasters that were sure to come upon the business of the country, and prophesied panic and ruin to agriculturists, manufacturers and investors alike.

These same men were of the safe, conservative and sane class who, in the years when our supply of money was cut off, went around proclaiming it was not lack of money, only "want of confidence." They wanted to run the country on confidence, and they posed as having plenty of cash when the truth was there was not enough cash in the country to buy gilt-edged stocks and bonds at 50 cents on the dollar. If there had been sufficient cash to do business on in 1893, 1894, 1895 and 1896, there would have been no "want of confidence."

Plenty of cash and want of confidence are never public property at the same time. Give the American citizen plenty of money and you will not find one of them in ten thousand who lacks confidence either in business or in himself.

The American citizen today, as a rule, has more money than he ever had, and he is going to have an ever-increasing supply for the years to come. So are the people in all other parts of the world. The amount of circulation per capita in the world is now greater than ever in the history of man, and it will steadily increase in per capita and it will steadily increase in area of distribution, which last fact is of the greatest imaginable importance. A narrow, deep stream of water in an arid country is of far less importance to the inhabitants of that country than would be the same volume or even lesser volume of water distributed throughout a greater area.

So at the present time the area of money distribution is much wider than ever before, and the stimulus of the added supply is creating, invigorating and strengthening trade in regions where business was unknown in a modern sense. We have this fully exemplified in 10,000 places within the borders of our own republic; yea, in 10,000 districts of our states and territories without taking in the islands of the South and of Asia. It is this general distribution of money that enables the individual to pay for the articles he needs or desires to buy, and it is this ability to pay for that gives the present business of the world the solid foundation of enduring granite. Desire and demand may be in full force, but if there is no ability to pay then indeed "want of confidence" is a fitting phrase for the situation.

Desire and demand will always exist; indeed, they are co-existent with humanity, and given cash to the individuals of any community, hamlet or nation, then business is sure to be maintained.

It matters not if the color of circulation be gray as the notes of the Southern Confederacy, green as the money of the United States, black and white as the bills of the Bank of England, white as the silver or yellow as the gold, wherever the law makes that circulation legal tender and the quantity of the circulation steadily improves. The laws of all the powerful governments make gold the standard of value, so that at this hour it may be truthfully said it is the universal standard of value.

Fortunately, most providently indeed, for the people of the world just when this universal use was given to gold and it was adopted as the standard by the nations, science, man and nature combined to furnish the quantity in such measures as had never been dreamed of by the most profound thinkers, the deepest philosophers or the most ardent inflationists in monetary affairs. God in His wisdom had not given the gold mines of the world to any set of rich men; He had reserved them for the poor.

Some persons really doubt if He ever gave even a lease of the coal mines, but as to the yellow metal from the earth's domain He destined to break the bonds, the shackles that Shylocks had fastened upon the nations and the people and when the chains were supposed to be strongest and riveted the tightest; when the bond was being read and the pounds of flesh being demanded from the peoples of the world, lo! Alaska opened up her golden stores; Australia displayed her yellow metal; the fountains of Africa poured forth the streams of relief and every gold field of the world helped to free the people.

The gold dollar of today will not buy as much as the gold dollar of 1893 or the gold dollar of 1900. It does not purchase as much human effort or human time as it did then. The gold dollar with the same number of grains and of standard fineness as it had in 1896 and has today will not buy as much in 1908 or in 1910 or in 1920 as it does today. It is the same dollar in quality, it is the same dollar in weight, it is the standard of value, it is yellow, but what has become of its intrinsic worth?

Where! oh where is that mysterious, invisible, all-pervading, all-powerful qualification of intrinsic value? The gold dollar today will not buy as much bread nor as much flour, nor as much land, nor as much labor nor even as great a part of stocks and securities as it did in 1900. Why is it?

We were told by these people who now boast about their knowledge of conditions that the value of gold never changed. Why, then, this transformation, and why this prosperity when gold is gradually losing its purchasing power? Expansion of volume of currency gave brisk times in the South while the Confederacy lasted. Expansion of volume of paper currency in the North gave good times as long as the expansion was kept up, and bad times came with the refunding operations which diminished the amount of the circulating medium. Brisk times were enjoyed and the country grew in prosperity while silver coinage was going on and again when notes were being issued upon purchases of silver bullion, for the coinage and issues were adding to the money circulation.

All these additions had their drawbacks. The money of the Confederacy was entirely local in its sphere, and was of no value elsewhere. The greenbacks of the North were only intended for use in the United States, but how splendidly they served their purpose our present national states demonstrates, and no party dare today propose the destruction of the remaining legal tender notes.

The Sherman silver purchase act was a political dodge to save President Harrison from signing or vetoing a silver coinage act; a temporary subterfuge for political schemes and cowards who did not have the courage to face a situation. Its additions to the currency were neutralized and finally overcome by shipments of gold out of the country, and its only additions to currency were in this country. It added not a dollar to the currency of any other country.

The increase of currency, the expansion of money circulation today is world-wide, and its effects upon the business of the world is felt in every portion of the universe. Never has there been a more complete demonstration of the correctness of certain principles and laws than is now being given by the financial and commercial world as to what was slurringly called "the Ohio idea."

The financial arguments of Washington McLean, George H. Pendleton, William Allen, George W. Morgan, Thomas Ewing and the Ohio school are being proved every day to be safe, sound and conclusive. "More money and less misery," said "Rise-Up" William, and his motto is accepted by enthusiastic millions of men who never heard his name. Expansion of money volume is here to stay. Expansion of prosperity will follow in its path. Additions to the amount of money are being made in every country of the world; additions in currencies that will circulate everywhere and be accepted everywhere. It is a reversal, a world-wide change of the system for diminishing the money supply which produced the disasters of 1873 and 1893. The man that hoards gold today is a financial lunatic, for nearly everything of value will increase in value in the future but gold. Monetary authorities well agreed in 1896 that the gold of the world amounted at that time to about $4,000,000,000. That represented the entire amount of gold saved by mankind for more than 6,000 years. That was the entire stock to do business on in the world. Since 1896, or in eight years time, fully 50 per cent has been added to that stock of gold, and during the next ten years the mines of the world will produce more new gold than all the world possessed in 1896. Money will produce business and business brings profit and prosperity when cash is plentiful.

SOVEREIGNTY OF THE COURTS

Will Be Preserved By President Castro at All Hazards.

Caracas, Vez., April 12.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—"President Castro will not withdraw the New York and Burmuda Asphalt company case from the Venezuelan courts and will not resubmit the Olcott case to arbitration if the whole American army and navy come to Venezuela."

This emphatic statement of Capt. Alejandro Ybarra, the Venezuelan secretary of foreign affairs, reflects the spirit of the reply which President Castro made to the recent proposal of the American state department for the arbitration of the Bermudez and Olcott cases.

It was generally rumored throughout Venezuela that the demand of the United States was little less than an ultimatum to Castro and the reply of the Venezuelan president was awaited with interest. Predictions of the intervention following the refusal of Castro to yield were freely made and there was much uneasiness when it was announced that the Venezuelan government had not only refused the demand to arbitrate the case, but had supplemented its refusal with a request that the United States declare whether it has any respect for the sovereignty of the courts of Venezuela.

Nearly two weeks have passed since Castro made his reply, and as no action has been taken by the United States and no further demands have been made, the last demand of the United States has gone the way of many previous requests for arbitration and the incident is practically closed so far as its discussion in Caracas is concerned.

The Olcott case, the arbitration of which the United States seeks to have reopened, is also known as the Orinoco Steamship company case, and was arbitrated by a mixed commission in 1903. Commissioners Bainbridge and Grisanti, representing the United States and Venezuela, respectively, disagreed, and the umpire, Henry Barge, decided the case, allowing the company $28,225 on a claim of $1,401,568. The grater part of this claim was based on damages allegd to have been suffred while the Orinoco Shipping and Trading company, an English corporation, owned the business, to which the Orinoco Steamship company subsequently succeded.

In the arbitration the point was raised that the English company could not transfer its claim to an American corporation and thus have it heard before an American tribunal. The umpire, Mr. Barge, refused to consider the claims which had arisen while the company was owned by British capital, and gave his decision merely on the claims of the corporation while under American ownership.

President Castro and his advisers claim that to reopen the case would be an insult to Holland, as Mr. Barge, who acted as the umpire, is a well known Dutch diplomat. They also hold that as Venzuela was denied the right to have the arbitration of the Belgian waterworks case ropened, none of the other cases settled under the Washington protocols shall be reconsidered.

It is emphatically denied in the reply of President Castro that there are any claims pending between the United States and Venezuela. He again reiterates that the New York and Bermudez company's case now in the Venezuelan courts is an ational and not an international one.

President Castro and the members of his cabinet take the ground that while the government stands for the general principle of arbitration, it will not have a case wrested from its courts to be carried before a board of arbitration.

The charge that Venezuela is not paying its obligations to creditor nations under the Washington protocols are denied by administration officials.

LIVE MAN

Was Put In the Undertaker's Wagon.

Kittanning, April 12.—A gruesome incident occurred here when six shoemakers went across the river for the purpose of having a good Sunday drunk. Clark E. Cochrane, while walking home, fell dead. Jim Sweeney, a companion, much intoxicated, fell over the body and lay still.

Word was telephoned to Kittanning for an undertaker's wagon and John Rohodes drove over. It was his opinion and that of those who gathered that Sweeney was really the dead man and he was loaded on the dead wagon. Rohodes did not discover the mistake until he reached his undertaker shop. He then went back to get the real dead man.

FARMER SHOOTS STATE SENATOR AND DEPUTY.

Cullman, Ala., April 12.—State Senator R. L. Hipp, an attorney, was shot and instantly killed and Deputy Sheriff Dunlap was fatally wounded by John W. Williams yesterday. The officer had gone to the Hipp place to oust Williams from a tract of land which he had lost in a lawsuit. When the men approached the house, Williams shot Hipp in the head, killing him instantly and shot Deputy Dunlap through the breast.

Williams remained in the house and said he would stay there until he died. A posse of fifty men have gone to the scene.

STEAMER'S CREW HAS PECULIAR DISEASE.

New York, April 12.—A peculiar malady of which extremely high temperature seems to be the only distinguishing feature has been called to the attention of the health authorities here upon the arrival of the British steamer Osceola from River Plata, Para and Barbados. Capt. McLean and three members of his crew were ill when the steamer arrived. All the sick men had exceedingly high temperatures, but the physicians were unable to determine the exact nature of the illness. When it was learned that one man had died and was buried at sea, another stricken with the peculiar illness had committed suicide by jumping overboard and two others had been sent to hospitals at Barbados, it was decided to hold the Osceola at quarantine.

GREAT COAL DEAL FINALLY CLOSED.

Pittsburg, April 12.—W. R. Woodford, vice president of the Pittsburg Coal company, announced last night that the "largest deal in the history of the coal industry" had been finally closed in New York yesterday. The contract is between the United States Steel corporation and the Pittsburg Coal company, whereby the latter agrees to furnish the Steel corporation with its entire supply of coal (with the exception of the small amount produced from the corporation's own mines) for the next twenty-five years. The Steel corporation agrees to make no further coal developments for itself during the life of the contract. The tonnage required for the execution of the contract will range between 6,000,000 and 8,000,000 of tons annually. The price will be based on the cost of mining as established by the annual wage scales. The contract becomes effective at once.

Perfect Woman

You may have the Beauty of Perfect Health

The perfect woman is the woman who has perfect health. Beauty is more than skin deep. Beauty is as deep as pure blood and a perfect digestion. Especially is female beauty dependent on the perfect health of the delicate female organism.

If you wish to have the beauty and attractiveness of perfect health, if you wish your eyes to sparkle, your complexion to resume its brilliancy, and your whole body to thrill with the glow of renewed vitality, take that famous woman's medicine,

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

If you have headaches, backache, organic pains, painful or irregular monthly periods, any womb or ovarian trouble, begin with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. It will save you needless suffering. It will restore your womanly beauty.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of a severe and protracted case of ulceration of the womb. I had twins, but lost one child. After their birth this trouble began, but your Compound restored me to perfect health. My little girl is now six years old, and I am a perfectly well woman, and as happy as a mother could desire to be. I give the entire credit to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MRS. S. R. BECKMAN, Cor. Murphy Ave. & Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga.

No woman, were she a Venus de Milo, could continue beautiful with a dragging down female complaint. Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write to her for advice. Many have benefited by it.

RASPBERRIES OF BIG SIZE

New England Woman Growing Them on Strange Plant.

Malden, Mass., April 11.—It was a fortunate day for Mrs. A. E. Monblo of this city when she decided several years ago to purchase some small shrubs to set out in her yard. By some strange chance she became possessed of a rare plant, which has only excited the wonder of horticulturists of this and many other states, but has yielded her a steady income ever since.

Mrs. Monblo named the fruit "Indian raspberry," because of the resemblance of the fruit, though of uncommon size, to the common raspberry in both flavor and appearance, and because a visitor told her that such berries had been found growing wild in India.

When the plant began to bear fruit, horticulturists persisted in calling it the Rubus rosaifolius, more commonly known as the strawberry-raspberry, but Mrs. Monblo has been busy ever since reforming and convincing people that this was an entirely different berry.

The Indian raspberry was introduced into England about 100 years ago from the Mauritius, having been brought there from the East Indies. Its native home in the Himalayan mountains, but it is found in the East Indies, China and Japan. The fruit has always had the reputation of being rather insipid, but it has been suggested that this fault could be eradicated by cultivation.

Whether Mrs. Monblo accidentally improved upon the original fruit she does not know, but she has succeeded in producing a fruit that is not only a beautiful table ornament, but is also delicious eating. The berries average larger than the largest of strawberries, some of them measuring two inches in diameter. They have the dark red coloring of the common raspberry, are produced singly on long stems instead of in clusters, and the minute seeds are few and well scattered on the outside. The plants flower and fruit continuously from the latter part of July until the frost sets in. The flowers are pure white and about two inches across.

Since she has begun the cultivation of the berries on a larger scale Mrs. Monblo has netted a comfortable sum of money through the sale of the berries and cuttings. She has received as high as $1 a pint for the fruit, and, as it requires only about twenty to fill a measure of that size, the price for each is greater than for oranges. Mrs. Monblo charges $8 a dozen for the plants and she has been receiving orders from all parts of the country in the last two years.

When Mrs. Monblo set out the shrubs she put them near a large ben yard. When tending the shrubs she noticed a strange plant putting up green shoots between two of the ornamental bushes and decided to allow it to live. That summer the strange plant began to bear fruit which was pleasant to the taste and extremely pretty to look at. Mrs. Monblo made inquiries as to the identity of the berry, but could not get much information.

She exhibited some of the fruit at a show in Boston and the horticulturists went wild over it. Since then there have been many visitors to the Monblo place. The original plant was carefully cut and the pieces quickly took root. Soon Mrs. Monblo had quite a patch of the plants. They require very little care. The stalks die down every fall and new shoots upon which the fruit is borne, spring up every year. At present Mrs. Monblo has half a lot, 100x50 feet, covered with the raspberry bushes, and she is very glad that the stranger was mixed in her order of shrubs.

LITTLE BUSINESS TALKS.

Even your regular customers will assume that if you do not advertise an article you do not have it.

There is a French axiom to the effect that "pleasing wares are half sold;" but, in this country, we amend it into: "Pleasing wares, well advertised, are nine-tenths sold."

England makes knights of her merchants nowadays; and she does well. For modern business requires nerve, audacity. For example, to advertise more than your business competitor, even though he could "buy you out" with his surplus capital, requires courage.

"In blindmen's land those who are blessed with one eye are kings;" and so in Sleepy town a small advertising appropriation might make your store a leader—but in this city you must "think in big figures" to be in the race at all.

BOATS PREFERRED

To Submarine Mines For Harbor Defense.

Newport, R. I., April 11.—Taking a lesson from Russia's unhappy experiences in the war, the third committee of the fortification board, of which Rear Admiral Charles D. Thomas is chairman, will report against the use of submarine mines as a defense for the harbors of the United States. The use of submarine boats as a substitute will be urged.

"The established fact that a number of the Russian warships were blown up by thir own submarine mines and the present practice of England in discarding submarine defenses to a great extent in harbors where there are wide channels to defend and where the tides are strong, and placing there submarine boats, has added to the sentiment in favor of replacing mines with boats."

MINISTER WITHDRAWS FROM PRESBYTERIANS.

Rochester, N. Y., April 11.—After nearly forty-five years' service in the Presbyterian ministry, much of which was passed in this city as pastor of the First Presbyterian church, the Rev. Dr. Nelson Millard today announced his withdrawal from the Presbyterian church.

Dr. Millard says: "Dissenting as I do from most of the Westminster confession of faith and finding many of my difficulties not removed by the explanatory statement recently adopted by the general assembly, I have come to the conclusion that I am in duty and honor bound to withdraw from the Presbyterian church. It is a step that I would gladly have avoided had I felt that I could do so conscientiously and honorably."

ACID THOUGHT HARMLESS

Explodes With Terrific Effect—Discovery By Dr. Friedberg.

New York, April 12.—It is believed by scientists that a high explosive of even greater strength than nitro-glycerine or nitro-chloride has been discovered by Dr. Ludwig H. Friedberg, of the chemistry department of the College of the City of New York.

The discovery is the result of an explosion which occurred while Dr. Freidberg was experimenting in the laboratory of the college with a substance called by chemists nitro-cinnamic acid, which is used in the manufacture of indigo and heretofore has been considered by the scientific world a most harmless liquid.

In the explosion Dr. Friedberg was injured by the particles of flying glass, some of which lodged in his face, and another wedged itself in the right arm, causing such a cut that it was necessary to take three stitches in the arm.

As only three grains of nitro-cinnamic acid was used in the experiment the fact that it gave such force to the flying glass shows the wonderful strength of the substance.

After Dr. Friedberg found he was not seriously hurt he set about studying the cause of the explosion, and is now positive he is on the track of a high explosive that may in time rival nitro-glycerine and nitro-chloride.

The importance of the discovery lies in the fact that the high explosives are rare and chemists have for a long time sought to find others besides those already discovered.

THEY WON HEARTS

Widespread Damage Done By a Nebraska Woman's Eyes.

Has Record of Three Marriages and Four Engagements.

Lincoln, Neb., April 12.—The case of Mrs. Scott Smedley of Denver, who was charged here with swindling Joseph Wells, a retired farmer, out of $16,000, is in some respects like that of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, although while the latter dealt in large sums of money, Mrs. Smedley borrowed human hearts.

Mrs. Smedley is tall, slender and 28. Her features are regular, but she is not pretty. Her voice is rather masculine in tone, but well modulated. Her chief weapon has been her eyes, which are seductive and convincing.

She was born in the small country town of Perry, Kan., and grew up there. Ten years ago she was married to Emory Willitts, a well-to-do farmer of Grantville, Kan. Her maiden name was Edith Simmons.

A child was born, and when it was 3 years old Mrs. Willitts told her husband that she wanted to attend college at Lindsborg and study music. Willitts good naturedly assented to the project.

A few months afterward, J. W. Bundy, a station agent at Eilis, attempted suicide. He left a note stating that unrequited love for Miss Edith Simmons had led him to kill himself. Mrs. Willitts had concealed from Bundy the fact that she was married. In fact, she had promised to marry him, but had slipped away just before the wedding.

At the same time, at Salina, she had enchained the affections of J. H. James, son of a New Mexico mine owner. She accepted his proposal of marriage and a date for their marriage was set. He spent money lavishly on her.

Someone hinted that she was a married woman. He demanded to know the truth. She sweetly told him that it was true that she was married, but that the tie was not binding, because her husband had a legal wife living when she married him.

She also told James that she had a fine home in Topeka, and that a fortune would come to her upon the settlement of her deceased father's estate. This was the first appearance of her stories of great wealth coming to her, which she retailed, with variations, to subsequent suitors.

While her love affair with James was still on she met and married a traveling man named Elliott at Manhattan. She told him that she was single and that her father was Maj. Sims, a wealthy Topeka banker.

Elliott threw caution to the winds, resigned his job, sent back his sample cases and took her before a preacher and married her. A reporter tried to interview him as he boarded a train on his bridal trip and was rebuffed. In return the reporter told him he had married a woman with a husband. Elliott investigated, found that the statement was true and left her two days later.

Mrs. Willitts then returned to her husband, who took her back. She remained at home, and then went to Waco, Tex., where she met Edgar W. Hooker, a young attorney of Center. She soon had him in her tolls, and he proposed marriage.

She professed love for him, but said that the marriage must be deferred till later.

She hinted vaguely at a large inheritance over which there were some complications of a distressing character.

She left Waco and came to Lincoln. Here she met, at the hotel table, a handsome young clerk named Scott Smedley. He was head of the cap department of a clothing store. Within a week she landed Smedley, and they were married.

She told Smedley that her husband was dead, but that he had left her a large amount of property at Portland, Or., in trust for their daughter, the income only being hers. Smedley believed her, but was later undeceived when he took a trip to Portland to find out why the income had stopped.

Joseph Wells, a pink cheeked elderly farmer who had by hard work and economy accumulated a fortune of about $25,000 in farm lands in Butler county, Neb., had come to Lincoln a short time before and invested part of his money in city property. One of his houses was occupied by the Smedleys.

The woman soon found him to be soft hearted, a widower of two years' standing, and the owner of money. She told him that she was very unhappy in her marital relations. Her husband did not treat her properly, and she was going to secure a divorce.

Wells made haste to offer himself as a substitute when the separation occurred. She admitted that he had touched her heart. She told him also that she was the owner of an orange grove plantation in Florida, and that she needed money to improve it.

She got $150 from him in October of last year. She kept borrowing additional sums on various pretexts until the sum reached $10,000. She went to Denver and said she was going into the clothing business.

On March 17 she came back to Lincoln and asked Wells for $6,000, saying that she had a chance to buy out her partner at a big bargain. Wells hurriedly put his town property on the market, sold it for $2,000 less than it had cost him, gave her a cashier's check for $6,000, went down to the bank with her, identified her and watched her stuff away the bills.

Some of the money had been given by Wells so that she might go away from Lincoln and get a divorce from Smedley. Later she wrote him that the divorce was coming all right, and that as soon as she was free she would marry him.

The old man sent her money whenever she asked it. With scrupulous care she insisted that each advance was but a loan and effected the final loan of $6,000 she told Wells that she was free to marry him and would return the following Sunday.

She did not come to Lincoln and Wells went to Denver to investigate. He found her still living with Smedley in a handsomer home. They had an automobile, a chauffeur and several servants. Mrs. Smedley was dressed expensively.

Wells took dinner with the couple, and the husband rather jollied him on the way the woman had led him on. When they asked him how much money he had left and he told them $3,600 it dawned upon him that he had been deceived. He returned to Lincoln and caused their arrest.

When the officers went to take the Smedleys into custody they found Mrs. Smedley in Colorado Springs. A few minutes after her arrest the young Texas lawyer, Hooker, called at the hotel. He said he had an appointment with her to marry her that day.

Her arrest he denounced as the result of a plot of her relatives to separate them. He declared that they had always opposed his marriage to her, so she had told him, because she was rich and he but a country lawyer.

When informed that she was married, he said he did not believe it. She had told him that through the provisions of an uncle's will she had been compelled to marry Smedley, her cousin, or forfeit her $100,000 share of the estate. She did not love Smedley, however, and had written him (Hooker) that she had secured the divorce and was then living with an uncle on her mother's side in Denver.

Hooker had actually visited her in Denver, it appears, and gone away with his eyes unopened. He said he had known her two years, and she had explained her comparative poverty, while an heiress, by saying that a cruel uncle in Louisville, Ky., was fighting for possession of the property.

After the arrival of the party in Lincoln in custody of the officers Wells called on her to effect a settlement. She asked for a private interview, and within a few minutes she had resumed her old sway over the old man.

He called his lawyer in, instructed him that he had decided to withdraw the complaint and accept an offer of settlement made by the woman. His lawyer demurred, but Wells, with his hand resting in the woman's, declared he was satisfied.

A little later Wells signed a $10,000 bond for the accused couple, and when they left that night for Denver again he accompanied them. He also signed an affidavit that no false pretense had been employed by the woman to secure the money from him, and when this was presented later in court, when the criminal case was called, a dismissal was entered. Wells got notes from both parties for his claim, and will seek to force collection on installments.

A complication in the case developed a little later, when it was found that a man named Emery Willits is a member of the Smedley household at Denver. This is the name of her first husband. Wells said he was introduced to Willitts, the latter being represented as a single man, younger brother of the woman's deceased husband.

Mrs. Smedley is always well gowned. She is an enthusiastic automobilist.

Eccentric Former Society Woman Flees From a Sanitarium.

Mrs. "Jack" Wilmerding Seeking Alimony From Her Husband.

New York, April 12.—Mrs. "Jack" Wilmerding, the great-granddaughter of Commodore Vanderbilt, escaped for a second time Sunday night from George W. Hill's private sanitarium in Harlem, where she had been under restraint for several months.

She said today she had left a "dummy" in her bed in the sanitarium and "when all was still fled through a window." Mrs. Wilmerding added that her fortune consisted of 20 cents at the moment. She visited two lawyers' offices today and then disappeared.

Even Mrs. Clara Bloodgood, long her friend, didn't know where Mrs. Wilmerding was last night.

Mrs. Wilmerding first called on Mark Alter in his office in West Tenth street. Alter was her counsel in August, 1902, when she appeared at the Jefferson Market police court and complained that John C. Wilmerding, her husband, had failed to contribute to her support, as had been agreed between them. Formerly well known in society, she married Wilmerding in 1891, and they lived together five years.

She told Alter that Sunday night she had rolled up some bedclothes and arranged the bundle in her bed so that it looked like the figure of a sleeping person. The "dummy" deceived the nurse, who, as usual, made the rounds of the sanitarium to see that the patients were abed and the lights out. Then, Mrs. Wilmerding said, she hid in a closet until all was still and escaped through a window.

Mrs. Wilmerding did not tell Alter where she had passed Sunday night. He said she asked him to take further steps to secure alimony from her husband. But he declined, for when she sought before to make a case against her husband he proved at he was keeping every agreement he had made with her. Alter urged Mrs. Wilmerding to visit the law office of Turner, Rolston & Horan. She went there, but she did not see any member of the firm, and after waiting a half hour she departed.

Mrs. Wilmerding is a handsome woman, about 36 years old. She was born Marie Allen, daughter of the late Vanderbilt Allen and granddaughter of the late Mrs. Daniel B. Allen, who was Commodore Vanderbilt's daughter. The most fashionable people in town attended her wedding at Grace church, but her married life, passed in Europe, New York, and Staten Island, proved unhappy.

In February, 1897, a commission was appointed to examine into Mrs. Wilmerding's mental condition, and before it much testimony was given touching upon her eccentricities and dissipations, when she and her father, Vanderbilt Allen, were at Capri, Italy. The commission declared her insane, and her uncles, Joan Wallace and Franklin Allen, were appointed a committee to take charge of her estate, then worth about $40,000.

Mrs. Wilmerding was sent to Bloomingdale asylum, where she remained more than a year. After a long legal fight she was set at liberty in December, 1898.

Her constant friend, Mrs. "Jack" Bloodgood, had become an actress and late in 1901 Mrs. Wilmerding appeared in "Under Southern Skies," produced by Miss Grace George at the Republic theater. The former society woman's eccentricities manifested themselves again. Some months ago she was committed to the Hill sanitarium, and after a few weeks she escaped and went to Philadelphia, but soon returned to New York. She found employment in several large stores, and remained a fortnight or so in each, but found the work too hard and voluntarily returned to the sanitarium.

SISTERS MEET.

Affecting Scene Between Nan Patterson and Mrs. Smith.

New Yrk, April 12.—There was an affecting scene when Nan Patterson and her sister met in the Tombs prison. When last they saw each other they occupied an apartment together in an uptown hotel. Today both were prisoners. Miss Patterson had gained the consent of the warden to see Mrs. Smith as soon as she was brought to the prison. They were left alone, standing with arms around each other's shoulders weeping bitterly. As the attorneys and several prison officials stood outside the room, J. Randolph Patterson, the aged father of the prisoners, joined the group. He pleaded with the warden not to separate the girls.

"If you can grant an old father's wish," said he, "keep the girls as near together as you can while they are incarcerated."

Warden Flynn said he would do all he could for him, and arranged to have the prisoners on the same tier in the women's prison.

DIED IN EACH OTHER'S ARMS

Roman Count and Sweetheart Preferred Suicide to Parting.

Rome, April 12.—Count August Bracci who belonged to one of the most aristocratic Roman families, has committed suicide, with his sweetheart, in very dramatic circumstances.

The count found himself in an extremely embarrassed financial condition and realized that the only way out of his difficulties was for him to contract a rich marriage.

To do so, however, meant that he would have to give up Carmelita Romolo, aged 25, whom he had loved since she was 17. Carmelita, who was remarkably pretty and passionately fond of the count, was greatly distressed at her lover's position, and told him she could never live to see him married to another woman.

She therefore announced her intention of committing suicide and thus set her lover free. The count then decided to die with her.

Carmelita wrote a letter, stating the facts, and the police found the pair lying dead, clasped in each other's arms. They were surrounded by flowers.

Four charcoal braziers were burning in the room, and the suffocating fumes were supplemented by the gas escaping from a burner, which the lovers had turned full on before lying down to die.

NEGOTIATIONS ABANDONED

Committee From Commercial Exchange Fails to Settle Strike.

Chicago, April 12.—Henry Levinberg, a brush manufacturer, was hauled from the seat of a wagon and beaten by a mob after having delivered a load of goods today to Montgomery Ward & Co., whose teamsters and garment workers are on strike.

Levinberg was overtaken by a crowd of strike sympathizers at Market and Adams streets. Their first move was to cut the traces and set his team adrift. His wagon was overturned and wrecked. He was rescued by the police.

A novel expedient was resorted to by strike sympathizers to delay traffic today. At Clinton and Washington streets several teamsters tied the wheels of their wagons together with chains. It took nearly twenty minutes to break the resulting street blockade obstructing Montgomery Ward & Co.'s freight. The police were forced to draw their clubs and threaten many teamsters.

Negotiations for a settlement were abandoned today by a committee of the Commercial exchange, an organization of wholesale grocers, with Graeme Stewart as chairman, who have been holding conferences with a committee of the Federation of Labor. Today's conference was without result, the labor men remaining firm in a demand for arbitration of the strike of the garment workers before the sympathic strike of teamsters is ended.

THE ANTI-PASS BILL IS KILLED BY HOUSE

Amendment Making It Effective at Once Was Death Blow.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU

St. Paul, April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The anti-pass bill is dead. The house cheerfully and unfeelingly killed it yesterday afternoon.

It never was what experts would have called a good insurance risk. The most active life insurance agent would have shuddered even in its sturdiest days at asking the company about selling it a policy.

Not because it is not a nice, moral and wholesome bill. Not at all. Why not? Because the members love their passes, and because they did not like the bill, and had murderous intentions toward it all the time.

Its short career of three months was full of trouble and affliction. Curiously enough, in spite of the above-mentioned statement about what kind of an insurance risk it would make, it survived one death and was resurrected again.

It is believed to have but two lives, however, and both of these have been spent.

One of the leading factors in the death scene was an innocent amendment, proposed by Manley L. Fosseen of Minneapolis and adopted by the house. In fact, the author said last night it was the ax that did the business, and furthermore he intimated that its purpose in life was the death of the bill. It provided that instead of becoming effective Dec. 1, 1905, as the bill provided originally, it should become effective at once. That would mean that if the senate and house both passed the bill and the governor signed it, the members could not use their passes to go home with. After a session spent on $5 per day, with expenses averaging more than that, this was not to be thought of.

The death of the bill was, therefore, not unexpected. Its author, A. K. Ware of Northfield, made a heroic fight for the bill, and came as near making it a law as anybody could, probably.

When the Fosseen amendment was adopted yesterday, he told the members they need not be afraid of it and let it keep them from voting for the bill, because the railroads would not take away passes they had already given, nor would they be required to do it by the bill, even with the amendment.

Marcus Lauritsen of Lincoln county, in explaining his negative vote on the bill, said that the fact that the W. A. Nolan reciprocal demurrage bill had passed with only a few negative votes showed there was nothing in the idea that the possession of passes affected the votes of members.

"If you vote for this bill you admit that you are weak and likely to be influenced by a trifling bribe," he concluded. The Gus Erickson of Yellow Medicine county, the author of the bucketshop bill, got up to say that he voted "no" and he did not have to explain his vote, either.

Mr. Ware made a final talk for his bill, showing that R. C. Dunn, late candidate for governor on the Republican ticket, has said in his speeches that he would have such a bill passed. Governor Johnson in his message also spoke in favor of the bill, and did not carry a pass in his pocket. Governor Folk of Missouri, too, was an anti-pass man.

He was interrupted after he had talked but a short time in explaining his bill by cries of "vote!"

The bill fell short of getting the necessary sixty votes, the roll call showing 42 for and 42 against the bill, as follows:

For the bill—Adams, Bjorge, Carlson, Cole, Dalen, De Laittre, Dorsey, Fosseen, Fraser, J. A. Gates, Hammergren, Harden, Haskell, Hetland, Hillo, Hinds, Hogue, Hugo, Jacobson, Jefferson, Lahdeen, Larson, Mannix, Mork, Morse, Murray, W. I. Nolan, O'Laughlin, Ramsland, Rockne, Rowe, Saari, Smith, Stone, Teigen, Thundale, Ware, Washburn, Wohlhuter, Wyman, Clague.

Against the bill—Armstrong, Bardwell, Bouck, Dowling, Ekman, Erickson, Flower, Handlan, Jullar, J. B. Kelly, M. Kelly, Klein, Lauritsen, Lemon, Lennon, J. T. Lewis, McColl, Mark, Meyer, Miller, Morley, Nelson, W. A. Nolan, Oleson, Ottarness, Palmer, Peihler, Perley, O. E. Peterson, S. D. Peterson, Putnam, Rosenthal, Selb, Simons, Skinner, Stock, Thayer, Timberlake, Wells, Wichman, Wood, Zelch.

The house passed a new game and fish code yesterday afternoon by a vote of 67 to 10, but it is probably labor lost, because the senate will never pass it. The game and fish code has been thoroughly discussed during the consideration of the revised code, and a game law has been agreed upon.

The principal effect of the Wohlhuter bill, passed by the house, is to cut down the maximum number of birds, fish or animals that hunters may take. Only fifteen birds a day may be killed, and only twenty-five fish. Only two deer instead of three may be killed in a season. The license provisions are carried in the bill, $1 for a resident of the state, and $10 for a non-resident for hunting small game, and $25 for large game.

* * *

The house passed the Adams bill making the Minnesota Society for the Prevention of Cruelty the State Bureau of Child and Animal Protection. The bill was killed once, reconsidered, and now passed.

* * *

The house killed two other bills yesterday afternoon. One was the Stock bill, to increase the requirements upon registered pharmacists. It provided that from 1909 on, no pharmacists could be registered unless they had been to some school that teaches drugs for two years, and had two years' practical experience and who can pass examinations.

The bill was asked for by the Minnesota Pharmaceutical association, but it was helped to its end by members of that association, who appeared in droves to lobby against it. The vote was 44 for and 42 against.

* * *

The other bill killed was one by S. D. Peterson of New Ulm, on his favorite subject, the telegraph companies. It provided that no company could print on the back of its telegraph forms a contract limiting the amount of damages to be recovered because of any act of the company in sending the message. It was pointed out that the bill would have no more effect than the printed forms, which is absolutely nothing at all. The bill got 57 votes, three less than enough, and there were 24 votes against it.

* * *

The senate yesterday passed Carl L. Wallace's bill providing for state weighing and inspection of hay and straw at Duluth, Minneapolis, St. Paul and South St. Paul.

* * *

Both houses yesterday afternoon agreed upon the Roberts bill submitting tax amendments to the constitution to popular vote, as amended in conference committee. The house voted for it unanimously, 81 to 0, and the senate repassed it 42 to 6. Senators Hawkins, Laybourn, Coller, Dunn, Morgan and Schütz voted against it.

This is as important a piece of legislation as the session has produced or is likely to bring forth. It embraces what is known as the "wide-open" amendments, and will permit many forms of taxation now precluded by the constitution.

* * *

The senate has killed the Peterson bill exempting congressmen from the operation of the primary election law.

* * *

The Cole bill designed to put state lands in the hands of settlers instead of speculators passed the house yesterday afternoon, 66 to 13. It limits individual purchases to 320 acres, and requires that purchasers must make certain improvements or live upon the land, or it cannot be deeded to them.

LEFT ALL TO SWEETHEART

Romance of Eccentric Woman Disclosed By Her Will.

New York, April 12.—That the flame of a youthful love was carried by Mrs. Phoebe Berrian to her grave, at the ripe old age of three score and ten, was attested, to the consternation of her direct heirs-at-law, when her will was filed for probate in the surrogate's court in the old town hall of Flushing, L. I.

Mrs. Phoebe Berrian long outlived her husband, and for years residents of Locust street, Flushing, where she lived, regarded her as an eccentric woman, whose likes and dislikes were hard to get at. She lived so cheaply that no one ever gave her credit for owning a fortune. Her relatives were no more intimate with her than were her neighbors, except long ago, when a sister and a nephew, the sister's son, were much in her company.

With the filing of the will, a month after her death, the surprising fact that she had left an estate of $15,000 was revealed. But the most surprising thing was the uncovering of the romance which neighbors had suspected, but which their curiosity had never been able to bring to the light.

The partner of the romance is Elmer A. Holden, a business man of Franklin, N. Y. As the expectant heirs listened they heard that they were cut off without a cent, and save for two bequests of $100 each, the entire estate of $15,000 is to go to Holden, the old flame of the youth of Mrs. Berrian. The two $100 bequests are to the sister and the nephew of years gone by, who are long since dead, and the $200 will go to their heirs.

The direct heirs of Mrs. Berrian consist of three brothers, two sisters, two neices and a nephew. They announce their determination to try to break the romantic will.

Mrs. Berrian passed her youth in Franklin, and it was not till the will was read that the discomfited heirs discovered that Elmer A. Holden, a solid business man of the town, is the hero of a tender romance nursed by the eccentric old woman all of these years.

MANY VILLAGES DESTROYED.

Antananarivo, Madagascar, April 12.—Fuller reports of the damage by the cyclone early in April show it to have been greater than first reported. Numerous villages were destroyed by floods, over a hundred natives were drowned, roads were cut, the railroads were greatly damaged and crops were destroyed. Many bodies floated down the rivers to the sea.

DARROW, SPECIAL ATTORNEY.

Chicago, April 12.—Mayor Dunne today appointed Clarence S. Darrow to have charge of all the traction litigation of the city. Mr. Darrow represented the mine workers in the hearings before the commissioners named by President Roosevelt to settle the great strike in the anthracite coal fields.

CIVIL SERVICE BILL KILLED.

Springfield, Ill., April 12.—The Burke-Lindly civil service bill, applying civil service to Cook county and the sanitary district of Chicago, was defeated on third reading in the lower house of the Illinois legislature today. The vote stood 61 ayes to 68 nays.

Congressman C. B. Landis Talks of Railroad Legislation Matters.

People Not In Sympathy With Action of Senate.

"I find that the people are not in hearty sympathy with the action of the United States senate in its manifest determination to stave off action on railroad legislation matters," said Congressman Charles B. Landis of Indiana today. Mr. Landis, who will speak in the Star Lecture course at the First Methodist church this evening, arrived in the city from St. Paul on the afternoon train, and registered at the Spalding.

"The people have made up their minds that they want and are in need of railroad rate legislation and they are going to have it," continued the congressman from Indiana. "There is no question on this point. It is to be hoped that the railroads will not be crippled by any such legislation, and yet the abuses complained of against the small shippers and different communities and localities, with the granting of rebates to the larger interests, must be done away with.

"I feel that the whole proposition could be met and solved if the railroads, by their representatives, were better acquainted with the great questions involved. If these representatives, carrying with them their technical knowledge, would meet with the senators and representatives in a spirit of fairness and assist rather than retard their work much more could be accomplished to the advantage of all concerned. I do not think the people are antagonistic to the railroads. I do not believe there are any men of intelligence who are not willing to concede that in the upbuilding and development of the country they have performed a great work.

"But the people have come forward and submitted evidence which not only justifies, but makes it obligatory upon congress to enact such legislation as will protect not only the shippers but the railroads themselves against extortion, blackmailing and general unfairness. I should think that the railroad people would welcome conservative legislation that would protect them against being held up and forced by great trusts and combinations into concessions such as the country generally knows to have been granted.

"We must recognize one thing, and that is that some sort of legislation looking toward a correction of these inequalities and abuses is going to be enacted into laws, and the best possible results are to be obtained by proceeding on this theory. The parties interested should get together and agree upon something which is fair and right. It is recognized that some of the best brain and genius in the republic has for years been active along the line of railroad rate making. It is a science in itself and there are few people who believe that entire authority along this line should be turned over to novices. Such a radical step will never be taken, unless practically forced on congress by the railroads assuming an attitude that will compel the lawmakers to do the best they can toward meeting the present well-grounded complaints without the patriotic assistance of the men better qualified than anyone else to suggest a way to relieve the situation. In my judgment, in all its bearings, this is the greatest question that has been before the American people in a quarter of a century, and it should be approached in the broadest spirit of enlightened citizenship and broad statesmanship."

F. L. DEVER WRITES.

Is Sojourning at Sunmont Tent City.

J. L. Owen, chief clerk at the office of Major Charles L. Potter, United States engineer of this district, has received a letter from Assistant United States Engineer F. L. Dever, who is in the Southwest for his health, stating that the latter is now spending some time at Sunmount Tent City, the famous health resort about five miles from Sante Fe, N. M., and about 300 feet higher above the level of the sea than the city.

Mr. Dever says his health has very much improved since his sojourn in New Mexico and he has not yet formed any definite plans as to his future. The tent city, he says is a pet hobby of the mayor of Sante Fe and, besides its patients, it is patronized largely through the summer season by the citizens of Sante Fe who wish to get away from the heat and dust of the city.

While at Sante Fe Mr. Dever attended a meeting of Montezuma lodge, No. 1, A. F. & A. M., and was treated with a marked degree of cordiality. The lodge is the oldest Masonic lodge west of the Mississippi river.

While in New Mexico Mr. Dever has met several former Duluthians, including Edward Ehle, who was a few years ago in the shoe business here.

LAWYER WAS BRUSQUE

To Court and Is Now In Guatemala Jail.

Washington, April 12.—Inquiry at the state department into the report which reached San Francisco by one of the Southern steamers to the effect that a man named Gardener is being illegally imprisoned in Guatemala City develops the fact that the person is really an American lawyer named Joseph F. Darling and that he actually has been in confinement for about a month. He is accused of contempt of court and such information as has reached the department goes to show that he was brusque in addressing the court and moreover that he has made some pretty strong statements to Mr. Merry, the American minister there. However, the state department to which complaint had been made of Darling's imprisonment, referred the matter to Mr. Merry with instructions to use his good offices to secure an amelioration of the man's conditions.

SEARCHING FOR TRUNK.

Police Would Like to Find Missing Seventh.

Chicago, April 12.—Secret service operatives are said to be making an effort to find a mysterious trunk alleged to be missing and wanted in connection with the federal grand jury investigation of the packing industry. Six other trunks of a numbered series have been seized, but federal officials fear that unless the seventh is recovered valuable information may be lost.

In connection with the search for the missing receptacle, government officers are seeking officials of the Aetna Trading company, who, is is said, may be able to tell the jury the meaning of every item contained in the books and papers found in the trunks. The information sought is in relation to alleged plans practiced to raise the price of sausage casings. When the officials of the company learned that an investigation would be made, their offices were closed.

Henry G. Godfrey, said to have been secretary and treasurer, was traced by secret service men from Chicago to Toronto, Canada, where all trace of him was lost. He is said to have been traveling in possession of twenty trunks.

CHAPPELLE RELIEVED

Havana, April 12.—According to news received here Mgr. Chappelle, the archbishop of New Orleans, has been definitely relieved from the office of apostolic delegate in Cuba. It seems that since Mgr. Chappelle was in Rome last winter it had been decided at the Vatican that he should abandon the delegation of the Antilles, but once in America, he wrote to the holy see asking that this measure be postponed. The Vatican, however, wished to put an end to the troubles arising from the accusations of a personal character against the archbishop, has now confirmed its decision. So Mgr. Chappelle will not return to Cuba and according to what has been learned here from Rome, it appears that he will be very likely substituted by a prelate of the Curia, that is now employed at the Vatican.

BULGE IN WHEAT

Sharp Advance Early But Part of It Is Lost Later.

Northwestern Receipts Decline and Much Is Being Shipped.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 12.—Wheat had a sharp advance in the first half of the session today, but after that profit-taking caused a setback, though the closing was still at an advance. The weather conditions are not all that could be desired, especially in the Northwest. Liverpool was ½@⅝d higher. H. V. Jones of the Commercial West takes issue with the government report, estimating a yield of 400,000,000 bus. Northwestern receipts are falling off and the large shipments from Minneapolis are beginning to attract attention. Today, for instance, Minneapolis had 116 cars in and shipped out 92.

The opinion was quite strong that the big long interest in May wheat moved the market up as a demonstration, but if this was true, there seemed to be no strong effort to hold it.

The Duluth market closed 1¾c higher for May, Chicago ⅞c higher, Minneapolis 1⅝@1½c higher and New York 1¾c higher. Duluth July advanced 1c, Minneapolis ⅝c, Chicago a shade and New York 1½c.

The London market closed unchanged, Paris ¾c higher, Berlin and Antwerp unchanged and Budapest ⅝c lower.

Duluth found a little better Eastern demand and some wheat was sold to go East.

Car receipts at Duluth were 5, against 9 last year, and at Minneapolis 116, against 67 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 121, against 72 last year. Chicago received 22, against 5 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 262,198 bus., last year 245,385 bus. Shipments 386,652 bus., last year 247,523 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d higher. May corn in the Chicago market closed ¾c higher. May oats closed ⅛c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 745,800 bus., last year 328,960 bus. Shipments 488,348 bus., last year 300,021 bus.

In the Duluth market the trading in wheat was a little more active today but still not heavy. The July option opened 1½c higher at $1.01, sold up to $1.02 at 10:10, fell back to $1.01¾ at 11:50 and advanced again to $1.02¾, from that point it fell off again and closed at $1.01⅛, a gain of 1c over yesterday. The May option sold 2¼c up to $1.04¾ and closed at $1.04, a gain of 1¾c.

Cash trading was very light. Wheat continued on the basis of 1c under May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was fairly active. Trading was liveliest in the October option which opened unchanged at $1.22½, sold up to $1.24½ and closed at $1.24, a gain of 1½c. The May option sold ¾c up to $1.38¾ and closed at $1.38.

Oats advanced ¼c.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Cold Weather In Northwest Creates Bullish Sentiment.

Chicago, April 12.—Higher cables and cold weather in the Northwest created bullish sentiment in the wheat pit today. The May option was extremely erratic, selling up over 2c above last night's close and then declining again. The expected arrival in Chicago of the accredited leader of the Wall street clique that is said to hold a big line of May wheat was given as the reason for the flurry. May opened ⅝c to 1¼c higher at $1.15¼ to $1.15⅝, and quickly advanced to $1.16⅝. A decline to $1.15 followed almost immediately. July opened unchanged to a shade higher at 87¼c to 87¼@⅜c. After selling up to 87⅝c, the price settled back to 87⅜@⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 143 cars, against 168 cars last week and 74 cars a year ago.

During the last half of the session, the May delivery showed more steadiness. The more distant futures developed additional strength as the session advanced. A report from Kansas City claiming the wheat crop of Nebraska is being damaged by Hessian fly was partly responsible for the upturn. After advancing to 87¼@88c, July reacted again on profit-taking. The close, however, was firm with July up a shade at 87¼@⅜c. May closed at $1.15½, a net gain of ⅞c.

Higher prices at Liverpool offset the effect of increased receipts, causing a steady tone in the corn market. Trading was very quiet. July opened a shade higher at 48¼c, sold up to 48¼@⅜c and then eased off to 48¼c. Local receipts were 232 cars, with 66 of contract grade.

An estimate of small receipts for tomorrow had a strengthening effect later in the day. The market closed firm with July up a shade at 48¾c.

Smaller receipts constituted the principal influence affecting the oats market. As a result of the continued small movement sentiment in the pit was a trifle bullish. July opened unchanged at 29⅞c and advanced to 30@¼c. Local receipts were 30 cars.

Provisions were firm in consequence of an advance in the price of live hogs. July pork and lard were each up a shade, at $13.10 and $7.45 respectively. Ribs were up 2½c at $7.37½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.15½; July, 87¼@⅜c; September, 82¾c. Corn—April, 48¼c; May, 48⅝c; July, 48¾c; September, 48¼c. Oats—May, 30¾@¼c; July, 30c; September, 29c. Pork—May, $12.85; July, $13.07½@13.10. Lard—April, $7.20; May, $7.27½; July, $7.45; September, $7.57½@7.60. Ribs—May, $7.10@7.12½; July, $7.35@7.37½; September $7.52½@7.55. Rye—April, 78½c; May, 77½c; July, 77½c; September, $7.53¼@7.55. Rye—April, 78½c; May, 77½c; September, 60c. Flax—Cash Northwestern, $1.38; Southwestern, $1.24; May and April, $1.24. Timothy—April, $2.85; September, $2.15. Clover—April, $14.75. Barley—Cash, 40@49c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.15½@1.17; No. 3 red, $1.02@1.15½; No. 2 hard, $1.13½@1.16½; No. 3 hard, 98@1.15½; No. 1 northern, $1.15½@1.17½; No. 2 northern, $1.06@1.15½; No. 3 spring, $1.06@1.15. Oats—No. 2, 30½@¾c; No. 3, 30¾c. Corn—No. 2, 49½@50c; No. 3, 48¾@49c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat—Wheat was quite strong during the forenoon, but the advance was lost on profit-taking towards the close. The early influences were the clear, cool weather through the West and the absence of moisture which are beginning to attract attention. In the Northwest the complaint is made of unfavorable seeding conditions and dry weather is reported in Manitoba. Colder weather is indicated for tomorrow with temperatures unseasonably low in the Northwest. H. V. Jones takes a fling at the government report. After dissecting it, and pointing out features not in accordance with his own observations and after making comparisons with previous years, in which the April condition was high, he concludes that 400,000,000 bus. is a fair outlook. No. 1 northern in Minneapolis is bringing 5 cents over the May and is reported scarce at that. Advices covering 250 country elevators in the Northwest show an average of 1,000 bus. per station. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 55 cars.

Corn—Conditions affecting the cash situation were the strengthening factors in corn. Estimated receipts for tomorrow are but 92 cars, one-third of which are Nebraska corn. The dry weather in the West is causing comment. Unless moisture is more plentiful early crop prospects will not be promising.

• • •

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—While trade was somewhat limited, prices maintained a steady tone. The market seemed to indicate profit-taking on the advance and short selling on favorable weather. The opening showed but little change, but through the early part of the session the market advanced slowly but steadily, subsequently reacting, with the closing for the deferred future unchanged. All things considered, the market did not act badly, and seems to suggest less confidence on the part of the bears.

Corn—Trade in this market shows but very little increase, but strength is well maintained. Undoubtedly the small receipts estimated for tomorrow contributed something to the strength of today's session. This market seems to us to act well, and as if it would advance some more on very little encouragement.

Oats—Unless the cash department of this market improves we feel the load will become very burdensome to holders, especially in the May. It needs something startling to put new life into it and get it out of its present rut.

Provisions—Speculative market ruled steady, notwithstanding very light trade. The principal feature in today's session was some realizing on the advance, which forced prices back to yesterday's close. The tendency of this market seems unchanged.

• • •

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat—Quite a different kind of a market in wheat today. In Kansas some fields in the big velvet belt are turning yellow, while in Nebraska in the country south of the Platte the chrysalis of the Hessian fly has been well preserved and is now passing in great numbers. Millers generally are in a very bullish position and are preparing to accept delivery of a good part of the wheat in store at Minenapolis on May 1st. Sentiment is noticeably changed and best operators are working on the long side. Wheat realized on today should be replaced now and averaged on declines and if lines are held there is every reason to think that the same will eventually show splendid profits.

CEREMONY IS INTERESTING

Anniversary of Accident at Catacombs Celebrated Near Rome.

Rome, April 12.—An interesting ceremony took place today in the Basilica of St. Agnes, two miles outside of Rome. The building stands over the catacombs, where among others the body of St. Agnes is buried. While Pius IX, April 12, 1855, was receiving there the college of the propaganda, the floor gave way and all present were precipitated into the catacombs, twenty feet below. Fortunately nobody was injured, this being by some persons considered a miracle. The only survivors of the accident are the Rev. Dr. Richard L. Burtsell of Rondout, N. Y., and Archbishop Rubian, the resident representative of the Armenians in Rome. This morning they were both warmly greeted by the assemblage at the Basilica. The latter was decorated with flowers and draperies.

Dr. Bartsell celebrated high mass and Bishop Rubian intoned the Te Deum and bestowed the benediction on the members of the college of the propaganda. A number of American students were present.

IT BREAKS ITS OWN LAW

Government Accepts Rebates, Ignoring Statute Against Practice.

Chicago, April 12.—A Washington special to the Record-Herald says: While President Roosevelt is doing all he can to stop the payment of rebates by railroads, his cabinet is violating the law by accepting rebates. Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock, with an eye to economy, backed by an opinion of the law officer of his department, has, on behalf of the geological survey, made arrangements with a number of railroads tapping the arid and semi-arid regions of the West to grant special rates upon shipments made by contractors engaged upon irrigation work.

There has been no secret about the matter. The granting of rebates has been widely advertised, and the contractors in making their prices are governed by the assurance that their freight charges will be a certain percentage below the regular published rates.

The government is the gainer. Whatever is saved by the rebates is deducted from the amount the irrigation work would otherwise cost. It develops, however, that the comptroller of the currency, who has supervision over the accounts, holds the opinion that the secretary of the interior and the officials of the geological survey have violated the law prohibiting the acceptance of rebates.

The government has a right under the law to special rates, but the comptroller is unable to construe the contractor's shipments as government shipments. He says:

"If I may be permitted to express an opinion as to the legality of such transactions when considered in relation to sections 2 and 22 of the interstate commerce acts of Feb. 4, 1887 and 1889, I would say that it is extremely doubtful if either can be maintained. By what authority the government can contract with a railroad that a contractor's plant shall receive a rebate in freights not applicable to other shippers is beyond my comprehension.

"If this right exists it might as well extend to flour, hay and other commodities, and the vehicles used by a contractor in making delivery to the government. But granting such right exists, when covered by contract, and such rebate taken into consideration when the contract is made, by what stretch of authority the government can step in where the contract between it and the contractor has been entered into and the amount to be paid for the work or for the work and the materials is fixed and liquidated, and receive or take from the price because of a railroad rebate, is beyond my comprehension.

"The government, above all others, should not be a party to a violation of either the letter or the spirit of the interstate commerce act as regards the question of rebates. I should not engage in questionable transactions in order that a saving of a few dollars may be had, especially when this saving results in the tearing down of a law which experience proves very difficult, if not absolutely impossible, to enforce."

The interior department replied to this letter, insisting on the legality of the proposed arrangement, and stating that the rebates in question probably would amount to $1,000,000 in the next seven years. In the course of his response to this letter the comptroller says that the amount of these rebates being large is a cogent reason why the government should make no mistake by being a party or a beneficiary of the violation of the law prohibiting the giving of discriminating rebates.

Criminal proceedings against the secretary of the interior and the other officials is out of the question, but the incident is causing much comment just at this time, when the president is working so hard to secure railroad reforms.

The "under-current of life in Duluth" may be read "between the lines" of the want ads.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Is Led By Heavy Buying In United States Steel.

Market Nervous Early But Prices Went Up With Rush.

New York, April 12. — There was a sprinkling of losses in the opening dealings today, but the majority of stocks was higher. The movement was generally sluggish and the trading dull, but New York, Ontario & Western rose 1⅛. Locomotive preferred a point, and Canadian Pacific ⅜, while New York Air Brake broke 4¼ on one sale.

Some of the wavering characteristics which distinguished yesterday's market existed today, but the movement was much circumscribed. Illinois Central felt the realizing on its sensational rise of yesterday and the grangers and metal stocks swung both ways on a narrow range. Considerable Kanas & Texas preferred was bought at an advance of 2 points, and the common gained 1. Illinois Central recovered its point loss. Union Pacific, Smelting, Locomotive, Cotton Oil, Biscuit and Allis-Chalmers preferred advanced 1. Chicago, Great Western preferred "A," Toledo Railways and Toledo, St. Louis & Western 1⅝, the preferred 2 and Locomotive preferred 2¼. The market was dull and hesitating at 11 o'clock.

The market became more active and made wider movements, but the tone continued feverish. There was a sharp break which carried prices generally below last night, but was followed by a brisk rally. New York Central receded 1⅝, Illinois Central 1½, and People's Gas 2. Other declines were Minneapolis, St. Paul, Soo 1⅝, the preferred 2¾, Westinghouse Electric 2, Colorado Fuel 2¼, and Tennessee Coal, Sugar, Realty, Chicago Union Traction, Hocking Valley, Delaware & Hudson and Chicago & Alton preferred 1 to 1½. The market was unsettled at the rally. Bonds were heavy at noon.

The undertone of the market improved on a renewal of the usual manipulation in Smelting and other metal stocks. Railroads did not benefit much and trading in them was restricted to a few leaders. Smelting was run up 4 points, the preferred 2 and Copper, Lead and Federal Mining preferred 1 to 1¼. Tennessee Coal more than recovered its forenoon break, and New York Central got back to above 137. Colorado Mining dropped 6¼ and General Electric and New York, Chicago & St. Louis and second preferred 1 to 1½.

Copper crossed 56, and moderate buying of other leaders ensued, but the effect was slight outside of a few stocks. Locomotive was in steady demand and stiffened 2 points, but the other railroad equipment stocks were dull. Rubber Goods preferred ran off 1¾, General Electric 2½ and Westinghouse Electric 3. Chicago Union Traction preferred gained 1.

The sustained demand for Union Pacific at an advance of 1⅜, and a jump of 1¾ in United States Steel preferred gave better tone to the market and helped to repair the previous losses. Smelting gained 5 in all. Pefer ed Smelting rallied 2¼, and New York Air Brake 2½. Locomotive rose 3¼, Chicago Union Traction preferred 2½, Tennessee Coal 2⅛, and Baltimore & Ohio, Atlantic Coast Line, Republic Steel preferred, the United States Reduction stocks and North American 1. The close was active and strong.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Market closed very strong, all departments taking part in the general upward movement. At the opening and for some little time thereafter the market seemed to hesitate and was clearly under pressure. Heavy buying in Steel and Union Pacific and Copper and the equipment shares led by American Locomotive led the advance. There seems to be good demand for high class securities.

Charles G. Gates & Co. to B. E. Baker: Thomas W. Lawson is out with an advertisement this morning on Coppers in which he advises the public to "Get ready to catch the pieces," intimating that another sharp break in Amalgamated is close at hand. Insiders continue to express very bullish opinions on the stock and supporting orders will undoubtedly be placed in it to prevent any break. It is intimated that the stock will be held strong until the dividend meeting next week.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 12.—The cotton market opened quiet and steady at an advance of 1@2 points in response to steady cables and talk of wet weather. There was very little demand, however, and with some reports claiming freer offerings of spots, there was selling enough to send the market back to about last night's prices around which level it ruled quiet and featureless.

Cotton, spot closed dull; middling uplands, 8.65; middling gulf, 8.30. Sales, 41 bales. Futures closed steady: April, 7.41; May, 7.55; June, 7.47; July, 7.50; August, 7.52; September, 7.58; October, 7.56; November, 7.66; December, 7.70; January, 7.75.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, April 12.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $136,054,-149; gold, $71,400,962; silver, $25,275 056.

CREATES A SENSATION

Demands of Russian Attorneys and Professors For Constitution.

St. Petersburg, April 12.—The radical position taken by the Pan-Russian congress of attorneys which has been meeting here in its denunciation of the bureaucracy and its demand for a constitution and the similar stand taken at a meeting of college professors have created a great sensation. All the efforts of the government to prevent the meetings being held by prohibiting the delegates from assembling in public were unavailing. The newspapers were then forbidden to mention the meeting and for disobedience in referring to the attorney's meeting this morning's issue of the Son of the Fatherland was confiscated. The Russ also boldly defies the authorities by printing the resolutions adopted by the professors. The actions of these influential bodies served to emphasize the growing outcry against the Bouligan commission which is proceeding with its work without any representatives of the people, thus furnishing the Liberals with justification for the charge that the execution of the reforms outlined in the imperial rescript is completely in the hands of the bureaucracy against which all classes of society are fighting.

The bishop of Nizhni Novgorod has written a letter advising the boycott of the Moscow Gazette which he says is stirring up war between the ignorant and the intelligent classes.

The commission which has been dealing with the newspaper censorship under the presidency of Privy Councillor Kobeko has decided to abolish the censorship of special telegrams to daily newspapers.

THE REMOVAL OF HOOKER

From New York Supreme Bench Demanded By Attorney.

Albany, N. Y., April 12.—The removal of Justice Warren B. Hooker from the supreme court bench of the state of New York by a concurrent resolution of the senate and assembly was the conclusion drawn from the evidence given before the assembly judiciary committee and presented to the committee in an argument today by Former Deputy Attorney General Henry B. Coman, counsel for the committee of inquiry. Mr. Coman read his conclusions of fact, embracing six different postoffice appointments. In each of these cases Mr. Coman declared that the conduct of Justice Hooker was immoral and tended to submit the administration of justice by Judge Hooker on the bench to contempt and disgrace. John B. Stanchfield, counsel for Justice Hooker, announced at the opening of the investigation today that no testimony would be submitted in behalf of the justice.

STEAMER IS MISSING.

London, April 12.—The British steamer Freshfield, Captain Lawson, from Pensacola, Jan. 29, via Norfolk, Feb. 7, for Hamburg and Rotterdam, has been poster at Lloyd's as missing.

ICE IS NOT MOVING

Cold Weather Renders It Stationary at the Sault.

Needs Thirty-Six to Forty-Eight Hours Warm Weather.

Mackinaw City, Mich., April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—No change in ice.

Sault Ste. Marie, April 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ice condition is stationary, owing to cold weather; will require thirty-six to forty-eight hours warm weather to open.

A telegram from the Sault received at noon today by the Western Union reports that there is no change in the situation at that vital point of navigation. The two steamers blocked by the ice at Whitefish Point on this side of the Sault have made no progress. They are the Sultana and the J. T. Hutchinson. And the seven steamers tied up by ice at Detour on the other side of the Sault are in relatively the same position and have not been able to make headway. They are blocked off Sweet's Point.

• • •

No boats are leaving here for lower lake ports at present and it is hardly likely that any more will leave until more encouraging news comes from the Sault. The only boats which have left the Duluth-Superior harbors in two days have been those which have gone to Two Harbors to load ore.

• • •

It is quite likely that when the steamer J. H. Reed will have taken her full cargo of oats on board she will have smashed the oats carrying record to smithereens. She began loading at the elevator of Nye, Jenks & Co., but is finishing up at elevator H. At last reports she had on board almost 400,000 bushels of oats and it is practically assured that her total load will be between 445,000 and 450,000 bushels when she finishes. The best previous oats record was 422,000 bushels.

• • •

When the steamer Bon Ami tried to get into Port Wing last week she could not get within half a mile of the town. But she will tackle the job on Friday again and it is believed will get into the dock and open navigation at that port.

On Sunday the steamer Easton of the Booth line will be put on the north shore run and on Monday the Mono will be put on the south shore run. The schedules have not yet been made up and it is not known definitely how the "triangle" route will be operated.

• • •

Capt. C. H. Weeks and wife have returned from their winter's stay in Detroit and will spend the summer in Duluth, the captain as usual occupying his time looking after the lumber hookers. The captain predicts that the movement of lumber by lake will be just about the same as that of last year. The lake rate this year will be $2.25, which is 20 cents cheaper than the rate last season. The rate was lowered this year to prevent cutting and there was less likelihood of cutting below $2.25 than $2.50. The lumber carriers are all ready to move as soon as navigation is opened and a big year is expected. About 80 per cent of the lumber boats on the lakes are association boats. Capt. Weeks predicts a big year in all branches of marine business.

MORE STEAMERS START.

Cleveland, April 12.—The steamers Centurion and Angeline left for Lake Superior last night and a number of steel trust boats sailed from Lake Erie ports. There is not the rush to get boats out that there was Monday and owners, as a rule, are waiting for reports from vessels that are fast in the ice before starting their ships.

WORKING THROUGH ICE.

Mackinaw City, April 12.—The Utica, Mary H. Boyce and one other large steamer are slowly working their way through the heavy ice field in the straits and last night had reached a point five miles east of here. The ice is still unbroken westward to Waugoshance and freezing weather is making it firmer.

IN SOLID ICE.

Grand Marais, Mich., April 12.—Solid ice surrounds the steamers Sultana and Hutchinson, which are blocked at Whitefish Point, and they are unable to move. Both boats lie side by side. Nine ice fields are reported as extending from Outer island nearly to Whitefish Point, and boats are advised to keep to the north shore to secure a free passage.

INJURED BY ICE.

Cleveland, April 12.—The big steel steamers, the George B. Leonard and Monroe C. Smith, came to grief as the result of their struggle through the great ice field which covers lower Lake Erie. When twenty-five miles west of Long Point, Monday evening, the Leonard struck hard, opening up the seams in her bow, and was leaking badly when she reached port last night. Temporary repairs will be made and the steamer will proceed. The Smith of the same fleet, which left Buffalo soon after the Leonard, had the same experience, but went on to Detroit for repairs.

RENEW ALL LISTS

Candidates For Every City Department Will Be Examined.

Vacancies Now Exist In Three of the Departments.

New eligible lists for every city department under the civil service rules will be established at an examination which will be held by the board of civil service examiners on April 27.

Under the rules of the civil service commission all eligible lists of candidates seeking city appointments are exhausted by limitation after one year has expired from the date of the last examination and before any new appointments can be made another examination has to be held.

There is now one vacancy in the office of the city comptroller, one in the office of the city clerk, and several in the fire department. The eligible lists for all other departments with the exception of the police department are also exhausted by limitation, and examination of candidates for them will also be held at this time.

The vacancy in the comptroller's office is caused by the resignation of Thomas Owens, one of the bookkeepers, and the resignation of Reuben Johnson from the city clerk's office, will leave a vacancy there. Mr. Johnson will assume his duties as secretary of the civil service commission and of the board of health on May 1.

Seven applications have already been received for the position in the comptroller's office, and five for the position in the city clerk's office. The appointments will be made from the three candidates taking the highest standing in the examinations.

There are also several vacancies in the fire department and substitutes are now being used to fill one or two regular positions. The eligible list is also exhausted and it is the desire of the board to secure a number of names on this list, as several resignations are generally received each spring.

There are no vacancies in the library, or any of the other city offices at present, but those taking the examination will have the first chance at any vacancy which occurs during the next year.

The police department is the only one with an eligible list at the present time, but candidates for this may also be examined on April 27, and they will have an equal show with those already on the list, for the first vacancies which occur.

Applications are received by the secretary of the civil service board, in the city hall.

Watches at Low Prices.

ANNUAL LEVY CAN BE MADE

Injunctional Proceedings to Stop Virginia Library Building Fails.

Patrick A. Coffey and other dissatisfied citizens of Virginia, who have sought to prevent the erection of the new $10,000 Carnegie library on the site selected by the city authorities of Virginia, have been defeated in the injunctional proceedings instituted in district court.

Judge Dibell, this noon, filed his order with the clerk of district court, directing that the order to show cause shall be discharged and that the restraining order therein shall be vacated. The effect of this order will be that the city council can go ahead and make its levy of $1,000 annually for the maintenance of the library, and the library board will have a free hand.

It has been generally understood that the opposition arose to the library proposition from taxpayers who wanted the building located in O'Rourke's addition instead of a site at Chestnut street and Lake boulevard, which had been donated and accepted. The technical fight in the courts was over the authority of the council to make the levy on the city's valuation. Mayor M. L. Fay and the members of the city council were made respondents in the injunctional proceedings and these urged, through their attorneys, that the Carnegie offer was likely to be withdrawn unless some action was taken in the building matter very shortly.

The city officials of Virginia were represented by Otto Poirier, the city attorney, and Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell of Duluth.

Mr. Coffey was represented by John Martin of Virginia and H. B. Fryberger of this city. Mr. Coffey is president of the city council at Virginia.

A RACE WAR IS POSSIBLE

As Result of Assault on Woman at Coffeyville, Kas.

Coffeyville, Kas., April 12.—A race war has narrowly been averted here as the result of the assault by a negro upon Mrs. John Griffith, white, the wife of a machinist, and serious trouble is still likely. Negroes of the worst class have been ordered to leave town before night. In anticipation of a clash between the two races, the mayor today issued a proclamation ordering that all citizens disarm and at the same time many special officers were sworn in. Since the negro's attack on Mrs. Griffith, the negroes have been arming to prevent the lynching of any innocent negro, and seemed likely, and early today an attempt to disarm a number of blacks resulted in a dozen revolvers being levelled at Chief of Police Smith's head. Other negroes rushed to the scene when a body of whites stopped them with leveled rifles. The leader among the negroes was choked into insensibility and the others were subdued, trouble being averted for the time at least. Many arrests were made. The negro who assaulted Mrs. Griffith is still at large.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

David Braham, Composer of Many Popular Songs, Dead.

New York, April 12.—David Braham, the well known composer and orchestra leader, is dead at his home here from kidney trouble, after an illness of several months. He was born 67 years ago in England and came to America as a violinist at the age of sixteen. Braham composed the music of some of the most popular songs ever known in America. Many of his songs, introduced by Harrigan and Hart sprang into popularity over night. They numbered more than 200 and included "The Little Widow Dunn," "Maggie Murphy's Home," "Dad's Dinner Pail," "The Mulligan Guards," "Paddy Duffy's Cart," and the like.

Baltimore, April 12.—Gen. J. F. Grant grand secretary of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of Oddfellows in the United States, died today at the Union Protestant infirmary, where he was operated on about four weeks ago for a serious affection.

Chicago, April 12.—George C. Walker, formerly prominent member of the Chicago board of trade, is dead at his home in this city. Death was due to heart disease.

THE HONOR PUPILS

Names of Twelve Members of Senior Holding Highest Averages.

Nine Are Young Women and But Three Young Men.

This afternoon the names of the honor pupils of the senior class of the high school were announced by Principal Smith.

In the order of their respective standings they are: Lillie Olessen, Elizabeth Morris, Isabelle McLean, Lester Seyler, Johanna Strate, Helen Mooney, Nina Johnson, Stanley Strand, Claudia Cox, Laura Schiller, Edith Seekina and Clarence Evans.

The honor pupils are those that have maintained the highest standings in the class during the first three and one-half years of their high school course, and to secure a place on the list is a great honor and credit to the student.

In former years it has been the custom for the first five on the honor roll to give the program on commencement night, each of them preparing an essay to be delivered on that occasion. But that has been changed this year. Every student in the graduating class must write an essay or oration, and of these the best five will be selected for delivery, the judges taking into consideration the oratorical ability of the writer as well as the literary worth of the paper.

The average standing of the class this year is very high, the first fourteen of the students having averages of 90 per cent or better.

It will be noticed that the list is made up of nine young women and three young men, and that in the first five there is but one of the latter, he standing fourth. In recent years this seems to have become the rule, more young women bing represented than young men. Last year they stood in precisely the same order, the young man coming fourth and the remainder being young women.

HUNT PLEADS GUILTY

Chicago, April 12.—W. H. Hunt, former president of the defunct Pan American bank here, today changed his plea of "not guilty," to "guilty." Hunt is under indictment for embezzlement. After the change of plea had been allowed Judge Kersten granted a motion for indefinite continuance made by Hunt's counsel. The change of plea places the case in the hands of the court and by avoiding a jury trial, Hunt is left free to follow an expressed desire to visit New York and other Eastern cities in the hope of securing money to pay depositors of the defunct bank.

THE FITTING OF CORSETS

Miss Conklin, the Expert, Gives Demonstrations at Freimuth's.

"Are they really fitting corsets on living models as they advertise in The Herald?" queried one of a bevy of women of the elevator man at Freimuth's.

"Yes, mam, corset department, second floor, at 3 o'clock. Guess it's nearly that time now," was the reply.

And the news of this novel event must have spread fast, for long before 3 o'clock every chair in the section of the third floor, which had been screened off to exclude prying eyes, was filled, and more had to be brought in.

Just then the lecturer ascended the platform and, after a few remarks, said:

"Now the slight figure has been the most neglected of all, and I will show you just how it should be corsetted."

First, a corset that would bring out the best lines of her figure was fitted.

Next, the figure was built out, not accentuating the extreme lines, as is often done, but by a moderate use of pads and kindred accessories, the best effects were produced.

A lady with a medium figure was next fitted, and women were urged to take certain exercise to keep down over development of flesh. They were shown how to produce the new round waist and high bust effect. And then followed an illustration of how the stout figure should be fitted.

As to her work, Miss Conklin said: "I have been at the work for years. It has a great fascination for me; it keps me interested day in and day out."

I am constantly visiting new cities, seeing new faces and new sights. Last week I was in St. Paul, next week I will be in Milwaukee, then probably a big jump to the far West, so you see my life is far from monotonous. Besides, I like my work. I have met so many charming women here in Duluth, that I have quite fallen in love with the city. Freimuth's is certainly a magnificent store, and I hope that I may come here again next year.

"I will give similar talks and demonstrations every day this week, but after Saturday I must leave for other fields."

REVISED CODE PASSED BY BOTH HOUSE AND SENATE AND GOES TO GOVERNOR

Provision That It Shall Become Effective March 1, 1906.

Tame Fight In Senate Over Reciprocal Demurrage Bill.

No More Mineral Leases or Renewal of Present Leases.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The revised code went through both houses again today, with the conference committee's amendments, with something of a protest against this hasty action in the house, but none in the senate. The conference committee reported first to the senate and presented its amendments. The report and amendments were both adopted unanimously, and then the code was re-passed as amended, 54 to 3. It went at once to the house, where W. B. Anderson moved the adoption of the report. Mr. Wells wanted to know if the house was going to have a chance to consider the amendments. Mr. Anderson replied that he proposed to follow it up by moving that the bill be re-passed.

Fosseen, Washburn and Armstrong protested against railroading the bill through without due consideration, and threatened to vote against it if such chances were taken.

Mr. Anderson said the house would have to put such confidence in its judiciary committee, as it was necessary that the code be passed today without amendment, because otherwise it could never be enrolled before the close of the session. He explained that the code would become effective March 1, 1906, and that provision had been made that it should not invalidate any of this winter's legislation.

His motion was adopted and the house approved the report and adopted the amendments. The vote was then taken, and the code was re-passed, 111 to 2, McColl and Washburn voted no.

* * *

The fight over the report of the railroad committee in the senate on the Nolan reciprocal demurrage bill was a very pale and tame affair alongside of what had been expected. There was a minority report and the opposing members of the committee were ruled out of order on motions they made designed to give the original Nolan bill consideration by the senate.

When the report amending the bill as described elsewhere came in, Chairman Hawkins moved that the report be adopted.

A. B. Cole moved that the committee's amended bill and the old bill be placed on general orders and considered together.

Senator Hawkins said that could not be done, because when the old bill was amended it departed this life.

The chair sustained him. The amendments were adopted. The bill was ordered printed and placed in the files. It can hardly be passed by the senate in the time left without suspension of the rules.

Senahtor Thompson tried to move that the original Nolan bill be printed and placed on general orders, but this was ruled out. The only way to get the Nolan bill back will be to amend the committee's substitute bill when it is reached on general orders, which will be about Saturday—possibly.

* * *

The house refused to stand for a steering committee, and laid W. I. Nolan's resolution providing for one on the table.

* * *

Lennon has a resolution in asking the state fair management not to hire outside hands. Stone put one in replying to it, protesting against legislators eating food made outside of the state, and both resolutions were tabled.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

A RUSSIAN PEASANT EMULATES JAPANESE.

St. Petersburg, April 13.—A peculiar case of a peasant, who committed suicide in Japanese fashion, is reported from Yamyshora, near Tsarskoe-Selo. The peasant referred to became a great admirer of the valiancy of the Japanese. He informed his family that he was tired of life, and that he proposed to imitate their method of suicide, and eventually carried out his intentions.

LADY CURZON INVITES INJURED TO HOSPITALS.

Simla, April 13.—Lady Curzon, wife of the viceroy, has invited all the Europeans and Indians injured during the recent earthquakes who are able to be moved to come to the Walker and Ripon hospitals at Simla as her guests. The invitation was sent through the lieutenant governor of the Punjab with an intimation that the American vicerene will gladly defray the expenses.

PREMIER AD INTERIM.

Stockholm, April 13.—Councillor of State Ramstedt has been appointed premier ad interim in place of Former Premier Bostrom, who resigned April 8.

MARCH TO CHISHOLM BY STRIKING MINERS

Endeavor to Persuade Chisholm Men There to Join In Strike.

All Quiet at Hibbing at Present But Work Entirely Suspended.

Hibbing, Minn., April 13.—(Special to The Herald.—Three hundred of the striking miners started at 11 o'clock this morning for Chisholm, where they will endeavor to persuade the men working at the mines there to go out. None carried arms and they appeared peaceable, and no trouble is anticipated when they reach Chisholm.

All was quiet here during the night, and there has been no disturbance so far today. All the mines are closed down, even the stripping work at Porter Bros.'s contract being suspended. The 200 laborers employed by the latter quit work at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after telling J. P. Porter that they were afraid to work while the miners continued to make threats. They were afraid of being fired upon, and said they would return to work when the danger had passed.

The strikers held a meeting yesterday and appointed a committee, headed by Elias Stark, to confer with Pentecost Mitchell, general superintendent of the Oliver Iron Mining company's properties in the Hibbing district. They laid their demands before Mr. Mitchell, asking 72 cents a car for contract miners, an increase of 10 cents a car over the present rate, and $2 a day for laborers, an increase of 25 cents, which they claimed was the rate two years ago. Capt. Mitchell refused to grant the demands, pointing out that the average wages for a day of ten hours in the underground and open-pit mines, working at 62 cents a car, is $2.60, from 8 to 10 per cent higher than two years ago, when 70 cents a car was paid. He told the men the wage limit had been reached and that rather than meet the demand the mines would be closed down. The committee then withdrew and reported the result to a meeting of the men, when it was voted to continue the strike for two weeks.

Another meeting of the strikers is to be held tonight when an organizer of the Western Federation of Miners will be here and organize the men. He organized a branch at Eveleth Sunday night.

Deputy Coroner Butchart will hold an inquest this afternoon on the two men who were shot at the Burt mine, Tuesday night. Only two were killed, the report of a third having died being erroneous. The correct names of the killed are Jacob Korpela and Leander Koski. Victor Aho is in the Rood hospital with a bullet wound through his thigh. Assistant County Attorney Crosby is here to attend the inquest and an earnest effort will be made to fix the responsibility for the shooting.

PRISON LABOR FIGHT IN THE HOUSE ENDED

Agreement By Which the Harvester Trust Can Be Attacked.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The threatened fight on the prison labor issue in the house has been averted. The Vollmer bill repealing the law limiting the number of prisoners to be employed, which was the basis of the trouble, will be discarded, and the governor will be asked to procure the introduction of a new bill satisfactory to the labor interests.

The matter grows out of the desire on the part of the farmers of the state to get a little more of the same sort of benefits they are getting out of the binding twine factory at the state prison at Stillwater. They are getting cheap twine, and the state is making money furnishing it.

Now it is proposed to attack the harvester trust by making rakes, mowers and binders at the state prison, if the board of control thinks it advisable.

One bill was passed by the house authorizing and empowering the board of control of state institutions to establish and maintain a plant for the manufacture of these implements at Stillwater, and to set aside half the net earnings of the other factories for this purpose.

On the statute books, however, stands a law procured by the labor interests, designed to curb the competition of convict labor. It provides that no more prisoners can engage in any industry than enough to amount to 10 per cent of the total number engaged in that industry in the state. It happens that there is not a single workman engaged in Minnesota in this business, the harvester trust doing its manufacturing elsewhere. Under the law, therefore, not a single prisoner could be used in making harvesting machinery. The Vollmer bill repealed this law outright, and it was bitterly opposed by friends of organized labor on the floor of the house.

Yesterday afternoon an agreement was reached by which a bill will be introduced simply excepting harvesting ma-

OFFICERS CLAIM THEY HAVE NO CLEW TO GANNON MURDERER

Beaudette, Minn., April 13.—At the inquest on the body of Mayor Matt Gannon, the jury brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree by party or parties unknown. Nearly a score of witnesses were examined, but the entire evidence produced was against Gannon's character. Gannon's dying statement directly implicating several of the mob was read, but the presiding magistrate swore positively that the statements were false almost in their entirety, he having been a witness to the several affrays. The Spooner people came quietly, according to the evidence, to secure the release of two Swedes whom they heard were fined and imprisoned for having entered a house on the Spooner township without the authority of Gannon, thouh sanctioned by the Spooner residents. On their arrival in Beaudette they found the prisoners had been released, but had been assaulted by Gannon. They located Gannon and though they were not armed, Gannon twirled a gun in their face in defiance all day. Sheriff Bailey and Sheriff Bell, who have been working on the case, claim that the evidence leaves them without a clew.

"JEFFERSONIAN SIMPLICITY" ABANDONED BY OLD COLLEGE

Charlottesville, Va., April 13.—Dr. Edward Anderson Alderman will be installed president of the University of Virginia today. Unusual interest attaches to the event as marking the first change in the governmental policy of the institution established by Thomas Jefferson, eighty years ago, and to which that famous statesman enthusiastically devoted the latter period of his life. Jeffersonian simplicity of government for the institution did not contemplate a president. Jefferson wrote into its charter that government should be administered by a board of regents, a chairman for which should be annually elected from among the professors. Along these lines the University of Virginia grew to its place as a potent factor among the higher institutions of learning of the South. The recent development of te university has rendered its efficient administration impracticable under the old methods, and the change is made to meet the larger demands.

Dr. Alderman is a native of Wilmington, N. C. He has devoted his life to educational work and was at the head of the university of his state when he left to take the same place in the Tulane, La., university, which institution he left for his new post of duty.

The program embraces addresses by the leading educators of the nation and by the governor of the state. Many persons are here to witness the ceremonies.

ADMIRAL ROJESTVENSKY LOOKING FOR TOGO'S FLEET

JAPAN PROMISED TO DECLARE WAR BEFORE BEGINNING TO FIGHT

Official Correspondence With United States Made Public.

Hostilities Commenced Before Announcement Was Made.

Washington, April 13.—Official correspondence made public at the state department today discloses the fact that the Japanese government in announcing to the American minister at Tokio, on Feb. 6 of last year the breaking of diplomatic relations with Russia, assured him that hostilities would not begin until after a declaration had been made. The correspondence comprises so much of the diplomatic exchanges between Washington and Tokio, as the department think it expedient to publish and among the first is the following official paraphrase of a cablegram from Minister Griscom dated American legation, Tokio, Feb. 6, 1904:

"Mr. Griscom reports that the minister for foreign affairs stated that a declaration of war will not be made until after the withdrawal of their legation, which will probably take two or three days, and hostilities will not begin until after the declaration of war. In an interview the minister for foreign affairs went over the whole course of negotiations, directed special attention to the extreme patience and moderation of the attitude of Japan, and stated that after having asked the Russian government five times to expedite a reply and having waited three weeks without result no alternative remained but to act."

On the following day the correspondence shows that Minister Griscom reported that the departure of the Russian minister would take place on Feb. 12. On Feb. 11 subsequent to the receipt of the news of the torpedo attack upon the Russian fleet at Port Arthur of Feb. 9, Minister Griscom sent a brief telegram to the department of which this is the official paraphrase:

"Mr. Griscom reports that the declaration of war was issued on the 10th inst."

No other correspondence shedding light on the incident is contained in the notes published.

Of interest is a note of Secretary Hay dated May 5 last to the Japanese minister at Washington, calling his attention to the circulation in the American navy of a note from the consulate general of Japan at New York, addressed "The Japanese serving in the United States navy," soliciting subscriptions to Japanese bonds, contributions to the relief fund for Japanese soldiers and sailors, and in aid of the Red Cross society of Japan. While admitting the right of Japanese in this country to subscribe or contribute to the objects mentioned, the secretary says in his note to Mr. Takahara:

"Yet it is undesirable that such contributions should be sought through the naval official channels of this government," and he therefrom, "brings the matter to your attention with the request that you will inform the consular officers of Japan in the United States of the attitude of this government in the matter."

The Japanese minister gave the necessary instructions to the Japanese consul general at New York.

The correspondence includes a copy of a note from the Japanese minister at Washington calling the attention of this government to the presence of the Russian ship Lena at San Francisco, and saying that the "Imperial government expects that appropriate measures regarding the matter will be taken by the United States government, without delay."

Several days later another note reached the state department from the Japanese minister expressing the desire of his government that the officers and crew of the Lena be detained in the territory of the United States until the end of hostilities.

The acting secretary of state, Mr. Adee promptly replied acknowledging the note and adding:

"In reply I have the honor to state that the president, exercising his prerogative in carrying out the neutrality proclaimed by him, had already, before the receipt of your communication, taken the appropriate steps to detain the officers and crew of the Lena in this country until peace shall have been concluded, unless if the meantime the belligerents shall have concurred in proposing to him other arrangements in this regard."

PRICES OF ALL KINDS OF MEAT ARE RAISED IN NEW YORK CITY

New York, April 13.—Prices of all kinds of meat have begun to rise in New York because of a reported increased cost to dealers of about two cents a pound. This advance in dressed beef by the packers means a corresponding increase of from 4 to 6 cents per pound at retail on the average grade of sirloin steak, porterhouse steak and prime ribs of roast beef.

Retail dealers say they received notice of the first advance ten days ago but postponed an advance to their customers. However, on receiving notice of a further rise next week it was found necessary to make a change in retail prices.

Meetings of the Retail Butchers and Meat Dealers Protective association will be held in all the boroughs, to take action. The Brooklyn branch of the association already has met, and discussed the situation. Several speakers bitterly denounced the packers who were alleged to be taking concerted action. It was declared that, while the advance of wholesale prices was attributed to falling off in supplies of cattle at the Chicago stockyards, no such falling off had taken place and that the raising of prices was entirely justified.

Cleveland, April 13.—The retail price of beef was advanced by all butchers today 2 cents a pound, while the wholesale price went up all the way from $1 to $1.50 per 100 pounds. The higher prices are said to be due to the scarcity of good cattle. Big dealers say prices will probably fall when grass-fed cattle begin to come on the market.

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY AT ST. PAUL

St. Paul, April 13.—Between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning, William Williams, 38 years old, a steamfitter, entered the flat of Frederick S. Keller, No. 1 Reid court, and after some parleying, shot John Keller, 16 years old, as he lay in bed, and then turned his revolver on the boy's mother. The boy died today at the city hospital. Mrs. Keller is resting easy, but her recovery is doubtful. Williams, who did the shooting, is under arrest, having given himself up. He told the police he had a liking for the boy, and went to the Keller flat, in Reid Court, last night, for the purpose of getting the lad to go away with him. Mrs. Keller ordered him out of the house, and the next thing he knew he was standing in the room with a revolver in his hands. He did not remember shooting anyone. The police believe Williams to be an insane degenerate.

"HUNKY" DAVIES AWARDED $975

Minneapolis, April 13.—"Hunky" Davies, the university of Minnesota football player, was awarded $975 in his suit against the Illinois Central Railway company for assault by a special officer of that company in Chicago after the Northwestern game last year.

Attorney Armstrong, for the railroad company, after the verdict had been read, moved for the setting aside of the verdict on the grounds that it was not warranted by the evidence, that it was contrary to law, errors of law having occurred during the trial, which were excepted to by the plaintiff's attorney, and that the damages were excessive.

SHOW GIRL NOT ALLOWED TO PLEAD

New York, April 13.—Nan Patterson was brought into the court of general sessions by her own consent to plead to a charge of conspiracy to get money from Caesar Young, the bookmaker. She is accused of having conspired with J. Morgan Smith and his wife, Miss Patterson's sister, to extort money from the dead bookmaker.

She was not allowed to plead to the charge, however, as Assistant District Attorney Rand asked Judge Foster that she be not arraigned, holding that it was unnecessary. Miss Patterson's counsel requested permission to examine the minutes of the grand jury which indicted her. This was opposed by Mr. Rand, who asked for a delay of one day in order that Miss Patterson might be arraigned in company with J. Morgan Smith and Mrs. Smith tomorrow. Although Miss Patterson's counsel vigorously objected to the delay, the court ordered that her plea to the charge be put over until Friday.

She will be placed on trial again next Monday on the charge of having murdered Young.

SYMPATHY OF FRANCE

Asked For Venezuelan Government By Her Fiscal Agent.

Paris, April 13.—Gen. Velutini, the Venezuelan fiscal agent, in the course of an interview published today appeals to the public opinion of France in behalf of the course adopted by President Castro. He says the French Cable company seeks to substitute force through government intervention for the usual proceedure of the Venezuelan courts and asserts that Venezuela's action against various foreign companies is due to their not fulfilling their engagements and lending support to the revolutionists.

"What would France say," Gen. Velutini asked, "if she detected foreign accomplices of the plotters against the security of the state?"

The general maintains that France should take a sympathic view of Venezuela's resisting the encroachments of foreign corporations.

GERMAN COLLIER SAILS.

Singapore, April 13.—The German collier Hindoo (at this port loaded with 4,200 tons of Cardiff coal for the island of Tanjong Pandan, between Borneo and Sumatra, and which was refused clearance papers for Saigon unless her commander gave bonds to deliver her cargo through the British consul there) was released today, her captain agreeing to deliver his cargo through the British consul at Saigon.

RUSSIANS SIGHTED

In the Main Trade Routes of the China Sea.

The Russians Are Evidently Not Bound For Saigon.

Nothing Is Known of the Location of Jap Fleet.

London, April 13.—British navalmen comment on the lack of secrecy regarding Admiral Rojestvensky's movements since his arrival in far eastern waters. The fact that he is keeping to the main trade routes although knowing his squadron would constantly be sighted and reported by passing vessels they consider clearly shows that the Russian admiral is keenly anxious to meet Admiral Togo and fight it out to a finish.

St. Petersburg, April 13, 5:59 p. m.—The news of the northward movement of Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet and his evident intention to accept battle whenever Admiral Togo chooses to offer it, has for the present stilled all activities in the direction of peace and the foreign dispatches with the most intense interest.

The admiralty volunteers no information regarding Rojestvensky's plans, whether his immediate destination is or not Cape Padaran (on the east coast of Cochin China) but in naval circles the impression prevails that the fleet will continue northward to the straits of Formosa, where, if Admiral Togo does not elect to give battle, or is defeated, Admiral Rojestvensky may seize a temporary base in Japanese territory and if it is considered advisable he could there await the arrival of Admiral Nebogatoff's division. It is rumored that there is a force or riflemen on board the Russian transports which could be landed for the purpose of cooperating with marines in the same fashion that the United States established a base at Guantanamo, Cuba, in 1898. Other naval men think that Vladivostok is the only base the Russian admiral has in view.

There is an embargo on the news from Vladivostok concerning the Russian cruisers Rossia, Gromoboi and Bogtyr and it is supposed, though the admiralty does not confirm the supposition, that they have put to sea to effect a diversion and prevent mine laying.

Considerable irritation is manifested in naval circles at the activity of British ships in Chinese waters, which are reported to be steaming from Hong Kong to Singapore, and their action is attributed to a desire to keep in touch with the Russian fleet and report its movements to the world at large and to Great Britain's ally in particular, as happened in the case of the British armored cruiser Sutlej, which arrived at Singapore, Straits Settlements, yesterday and reported having passed the Russian Second Pacific squadron at daylight, April 11, steaming north.

Singapore, April 13.—The Russian fleet was in Lat. 8 deg. north Lon. 108 deg. 55 minutes east at noon April 11. The Peninsular & Oriental steamer Nubia, which has arrived here, reports having passed no less than forty-two vessels there. They were steering north-northeast at a speed of eight or ten knots.

The position of the fleet was then about 300 miles northeastward of the Natuna islands (which lie between the Malay peninsula and west coast of Borneo,) and more than 200 miles southeast of Cape St. Jacques. This course indicates that the fleet was not going to Saigon, French Cochin, China.

RUSSIANS REINFORCED.

Are Now Prepared to Renew the Battle.

Paris, April 13.—Captain Rodleo telegraphs to the Matin that he has been the guest of Gen. Kaulbars, commander of the scond Manchurian army, at the Russian front. The captain's observations showed that the Russian army had been re-enforced and is prepared to renew the battle. The troops maneuver daily in battle formation.

The Japanese cavalry advance guard, the dispatch adds, is barely ten miles away and frequent cavalry skirmishes take place. The prisoners captured have sabre cuts on their heads, showing hand to hand skirmishes.

BOMBARD MACHANTSY.

St. Petersburg, April 13.—A dispatch from Gunshu pass dated yesterday says the Russian advance detachment on the Mandaring road pushed forward April 11 and bombarded Machantsy at midday. The Japanese infantry and cavalry hurriedly vacated the place leaving their dinners, maps, etc.

COAL FOR THE RUSSIANS.

Paris, April 13.—Herr Bekel who is charged with the duty of gathering together supplies of coal for the Russian second Pacific fleet has, according to a statement made to the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Matin, 70,000 tons at Saigon and 50,000 tons at Shanghai which he expects the Russian fleet to take on board.

CLEAN THE CITY

Annual Spring Work Will Be Commenced Next Week.

Citizens Are Urged to Co-Operate With Health Department.

Next Monday morning, weather permitting, Duluth's spring house cleaning will be commenced.

Several extra inspectors will be employed for a few weeks by the health department, and every cellar in the city of Duluth will be inspected, and if any piles of ashes or old rubbish are found they will be ordered removed.

Back yards must be redeemed from the desolation of the tin can and the garbage pile, and vacant lots will be cleared of the piles of rubbish which have accumulated during the winter.

The assistance of the citizens is asked by the health department in the work. The frost is now well out of the ground, and there is no excuse for allowing the ashes and rubbish to lie any longer. Such piles become not only unsightly, but unsanitary, as the warm weather approaches, and the health department is anxious that during the coming week as many of these piles as possible be cleaned up.

"The work is not going to take as much time this year as it did last season," said Health Commissioner Murray. "There is not nearly as large an accumulation of rubbish and ashes as there was a year ago. It has been kept cleaned up better during the winter, and we should be able to finish the spring work in a much shorter time this year than we did last season. We were at work for nearly two months last year. If we have good weather this spring we should be able to finish up in two or three weeks.

"The cellar inspection will be a close one. I believe that is one of the most important duties of the health department. The dark, damp cellars, with their piles of dirt, are worse breeding grounds for germs than any other nuisance with which the department has to contend, and as long as I am health commissioner they are going to be inspected at least once a year.

"I would like to see every householder in the city name some day next week as his house-cleaning day, and get busy with a rake and shovel."

SEWER GAS CAUSES EXPLOSION AT ST. LOUIS.

St. Louis, April 13.—Sewer gas that had accumulated in the conduit of the Union Electric Light and Power company, along Jefferson avenue, Cass avenue and Garrison avenue, was ignited by some molten metal, accidentally dropped into the conduit by workmen today, and the explosion resulting damaged the streets for two miles, broke windows in dwellings and burned four workmen about their faces and hands.

CATARRHAL NERVOUSNESS.

Thousands of Women Suffer From Nervousness Due to Catarrh.

Mrs. Von Stienau's Recovery by Pe-ru-na the Talk of Her Friends.

Backache and Headache Disappeared, After Taking Six Bottles of Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. E. Von Stienau, 332 5th street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"I feel it my duty to write and tell you how much good Peruna has done me. I have been a sufferer for years with female trouble, causing backache and at times terrible headaches.

"I had also complications from indigestion and heart trouble, so that I often had to lie down.

"A friend advised me to try Peruna. I had little faith in any medicine, as I had tried so much without getting any relief, but to please her I gave it a trial.

"After three days use I felt so much better that I decided to continue its use and by the time I had taken six bottles, I was in perfect health, and had no more headaches. In fact, my health is now all that I could wish.

"Peruna is certainly an estimable medicine and well worthy of praise."

INDIGESTION soon leads to functional disturbances of the heart.

If this is allowed to continue any length of time, the spinal cord becomes irritated and anemic.

This gives rise to backache, headache and a most aggravated form of nervousness.

Indigestion was the beginning of it---a slight catarrhal derangement of the stomach.

The mucous membranes of the stomach become inflamed, congested, and the digestive juices are changed.

This creates gas, which causes dilatation of the stomach, eructations of gas, palpitation of the heart, and suffocating feelings.

A frugal diet should be adopted and a course of Peruna should be taken.

This will remove the catarrh. Then the indigestion will disappear.

The fluttering and palpitation of the heart will also be corrected.

The spinal cord will regain its usual tone and vitality, when the nervousness, backache and headache will be things of the past.

Such cures remain permanent because they are rational.

PRIVATE BANKER PURSUES ROBBERS IN HIS AUTOMOBILE

Cherubusco, Ind., April 13.—Six unknown robbers early today robbed the private bank of Oscar Gandy & Company of $8,540. Mrs. Gandy, wife of the banker, was shot in the neck by one of the two guards stationed outside while the safe was being blown up with nitroglycerine. She will recover.

The Gandy home is near the bank and Mrs. Gandy was one of the first to make an appearance outside the house. Two robbers on guard armed with Winchesters, warned every one to stay away and fired a number of shots to frighten away the citizens who had been aroused and prevent their interference with the work going on inside by the other men. All the windows in the bank were broken by the explosion. The robbers overlooked $2,000 on the floor of the vault.

A horse and buggy stolen from Hemmicks barn, was hitched outside the bank. The men jumped into the buggy, the guards still firing at random. They drove at a gallop toward Huntertown. Mr. Gandy and several other citizens started in the Gandy automobile in pursuit. All surrounding towns have been notified and posses have started from several towns. The bank is transacting business as usual.

PIKE SEASON OPENS MAY 1

Date Sometimes Confused With Wisconsin Later Opening.

Owing to a mistake that has been made on some of the advertising matter put out by dealers in sporting goods, purporting to give a digest of the Minnesota and Wisconsin state game laws, there has been some confusion caused as to the real date of opening of the pike fishing season. Through misapprehension caused by one of such cards, The Herald yesterday stated that in Minnesota the open season for pike was from May 25 to March 1 following.

According to the statutes, however, the open season is from May 1 to March 1 in Minnesota, and from May 25 to March 1 in Wisconsin.

This means that Minnehota fishermen may fish for pike in the streams of this state beginning May 1 next, but they must wait until May 25 before fishing for pike in Wisconsin waters.

The fact that there is such a wide difference in time, almost a month, in the dates of the open season for pike in the two states has often caused confusion among the fishermen.

The opening of the season in this state May 1, will be duly appreciated by fishermen in this vicinity, for the fish begin running up the river to spawn early in April and the fishing is usually at its best in May.

RED CLIFF LUMBER CO.

ASKS REDUCTION.

L. E. Lum Claims Personal Property Taxes Too High.

L. E. Lum has filed in district court his answer in the matter of the proceedings instituted to collect the personal property taxes for 1904 and delinquent March 1, 1905. Mr. Lum alleges that he was arbitrarily raised $80 in his taxes for moneys in banks. He claims that he has not the property mentioned or entitled to be included under that item. He further alleges that the city board of equalizaton arbitrarily and without notice raised the amount he returned to the assessor in the sum of $2,417 for credits other than that of banks. Mr. Lum asks the amount of his personal property subject to taxes for 1904 be reduced by $2,497, and that his taxes be proportionately cut down.

ALL NOW IN READINESS

Banquet to Be Given In Honor of Col. Graves Friday.

Arrangements are now practically completed for the banquet to be given at the Commercial club tomorrow evening in honor of Col. C. H. Graves by Duluth Scandinavians. It is expected that the attendance will be very large, and probably it will be found necessary to lay plates for at least 200 persons. That is the number planned upon.

Among the prominent outside speakers to respond to toasts will be Senators Moses E. Clapp and Knute Nelson. Aside from these there will be several local men who will speak. Dr. J. J. Eklund will act as toastmaster. Col. Graves will leave early next week for Washington, and from there will proceed to Sweden and Norway, where he will represent the United States as minister.

JEALOUS WOMAN KILLS HER RIVAL.

Cripple Creek, Colo., April 13.—Mrs. S. W. Vidler, the wife of a newspaper man shot and killed Mrs. H. C. Douglass of Colorado Springs in the National hotel at Cripple Creek today. Jealousy is supposed to be the cause of the crime.

SENATOR IS REINDICTED

Five Counts Returned Against Burton For Accepting Fees.

St. Louis, April 13.—United States Senator J. R. Burton of Kansas was reindicted by the federal grand jury today on the charge of accepting fees to the amount of $2,500 from the Rialto Grain company of St. Louis, in whose behalf, it is alleged, he acted as an attorney before the postoffice department at Washington.

The new indictment contains five counts. The first three specify that Senator Burton made an agreement to accept $2,500 to look after the interests of the St. Louis concern. Count No. 4, charges that he received a $2,500 fee and No. 5, an additional fee of $500.

Recently the United States supreme court reversed the case of Senator Burton who was convicted of unlawfully accepting fees from the Rialto company on the ground that the money he received was not paid according to the evidence in St. Louis and hence was without the jurisdiction of the St. Louis federal court.

The new charges contained in the indictment set forth that Senator Burton received $3,000 and made the agreements referred to in counts 1, 2 and 3, while in St. Louis. District Attorney Dyer said today that the retrial of Senator Burton would take place some time in May.

CONGRATULATE MAYOR DUNNE

Bryan and Johnson Call on New Executive of Chicago.

Chicago, April 13.—William Jennings Bryan and Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland called together today upon the newly elected mayor of Chicago, Hon. Edward F. Dunne.

"We want to shake hands with the Western conqueror," said Col. Bryan.

"And I want to return the greeting to the idol of his party," responded Mayor Dunne, who then stretched his hand to grasp that of the municipal-ownership mayor of Cleveland. Then followed a half-hour's discussion of Chicago's problem.

"The municipal ownership election in Chicago means more than any man can tell," declared Bryan, smiling broadly. "I am here, like my friend, Tom Johnson, to participate in tonight's Jefferson banquet, but I am here for more than that—to greet the greatest mayor of the West. Mayor Dunne has taken the lead over all other mayors, all lord mayors in the world. He has seized a golden opportunity to become the foremost man in the nation, and the people will rejoice in every inch of success he wins, for his victory in this struggle is a victory for the people."

APPEALS TO THE EMPEROR

To Allow Him to Serve With the Russian Army.

St. Petersburg, April 13.—The case of Nicholas Savine, who is charged with a long record of adroit swindles in various parts of Europe and who was recently arrested at Bremen and brought to Russia to stand trial, is attracting attention here. Savine, who is also well known in the United States, tells a romantic story of his adventures and alleged persecutions and has appealed to Emperor Nicholas as recompense for the services of his ancestors and himself to Russia to free his name from the cloud hanging over him and permit him to rejoin the army of which he once was an officer, and serve against the Japanese in Manchuria. Savine, who claims he was naturalized an American citizen in Chicago, April 28, 1898, is holding in abeyance an appeal to the American ambassador until he learns whether the emperor will allow him to serve under his double eagle even as a private.

PECULIAR INJURY

Causes the Death of a New York Man.

New York, April 13.—William Garrison is dead at his home in Camden, N. J., from a peculiar injury received while playing ball.

Last Saturday Garrison made a swing at a pitched ball. He missed, and his momentum was so great that he spun around three times.

Apparently, Garrison felt no ill effects until several days later, when he was taken ill and the physicians found that one of the main blood vessels of the stomach had been ruptured. Nothing could be done then to save his life.

WANTED THERE ALSO.

St. Paul and Minneapolis Police Looking For Allen.

Word has been received by the Duluth police department this morning, that Charles H. Allen, who is now awaiting the action of the grand jury on a forgery charge, is wanted in the Twin Cities for the same offense.

The chiefs of both the St. Paul and Minneapolis departments wrote to Chief Troyer notifying him that if Allen were not held here, to send him to the Twin Cities, where either the St. Paul or the Minneapolis police claimed to have a case against him.

Selling Indians Liquor.

Matt. Heinanen was brought in from Carlton yesterday by Deputy United States Marshal G. J. Mallory charged with selling liquor to Indians of the Fond du Lac reservation on Feb. 20. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner Pressnell this afternoon at 2 o'clock but his attorney being out of town, the case was adjourned until tomorrow afternoon at the same time. William Coffey and Frank Laundry, the two Indians to whom it is alleged the prisoner sold the liquor, were present.

MAN KILLED IN SALOON BRAWL

A Tragedy Results From Disorderly Conduct In New York.

New York, April 13.—One man was killed and two received severe injuries early today in a saloon brawl at 51 West Thirty-first street. The dead: ROY JOYCE, bartender.

Wounded: John Doyle, one of the proprietors; — Weston, a waiter.

A party of eight men and one woman, seated at a table, became disorderly and were refused service by order of the owner. They refused to leave and a waiter removed the table. One of the men drew a knife and began cutting right and left. Joyce received injuries which quickly proved mortal. There were seventy-five persons in the place and the battle caused considerable excitement. Many of the participants had fled before the police arrived.

Stop Belching.

First Bottle Free.

The annoying habit of belching and those humiliating rumblings in the stomach are not the most serious things accompanying constipation. Kidney complaints, lung affections, heart troubles or any other functional weakness which results from constipation is worse. Don't take pills or castor oil, they will make you worse.

Mull's Grape Tonic cures constipation, not by physicing you, because it won't do that, but by strengthening the digestive organs, enabling them to get all the nutrition out of the food and to carry the refuse from the bowels in the proper manner, instead of into the blood, which causes disease. It's the no cure, no pay treatment. The kind that is pleasant to take and a sure cure.

We want to give a bottle of Mull's Grape Tonic to you if you have never used it.

Send your name and druggist's name to Mull's Grape Tonic Co., 207 3rd Ave., Rock Island, Ill., and receive an order on your druggist for a free bottle. It is given you without any promise on your part to buy. Send today.

The $1.00 bottle contains nearly three times the 50c size. Sold at drug stores.

CAUTION—Do not accept Mull's Grape Tonic from your druggist unless it has a date and number stamped with indelible ink on the label.

TWO INJURED IN TRAIN COLLISION.

Vicksburg, Miss., April 13.—Only two persons were injured in the derailment early today of a north bound passenger train on the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley railroad near Hardee station. The injured are: James D. Courney, express messenger and Adelaide Smith, negress.

The ditching of the train was caused by the opening of a switch leading to a spur track. The train was running forty-eight miles an hour at the time. The engine and tender plunged into a ditch and the baggage car passed over them. Both engineer and fireman escaped.

AMBITIOUS AGENT GETS INTO TROUBLE.

Washington, April 13.—Richard T. Greener, who has just been replaced as American commercial agent at Vladivostok, figured in an incident at Vladivostok some months ago which caused embarrassment to the Washington government and induced Secretary Hay to send a note officially expressing the regret of this government to Japan. Without asking leave of the American amabassador at St. Petersburg, or any one else, Mr. Greener turned over the Japanese consular office at Vladivostok in his charge to the Russian port admiral, who removed the furniture and used the building for the Red Cross.

Japan later gave her consent to the use of the building for Red Cross purposes.

THE TRUE TEST.

Tried In Duluth, It Has Stood the Test.

The hardest test is the test of time, and Doan's Kidney Pills have stood it well in Duluth. Kidney sufferers can hardly ask for stronger proof than the following:

W. W. Scott, operator on the St. Paul & Duluth railway, and living at 126 Sixty-sixth avenue west, Duluth, Minn., says: "I have already recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. I told in the statement made in 1898 how I suffered with dull, aching pains through the loins and kidneys. From the constant sitting position required in my work my back became so lame and sore that I could scarcely straighten. The kidney secretions were irregular and annoying. At times severe headaches would strike me, and I was feeling worse than ever, when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice. I began using them, and as I have stated in my previous testimonial, they so thoroughly regulated the kidneys, removed the backaches, head aches, pains and weakness that I have felt like a different man. I have never had a return of any of these symptoms, and have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills again and again."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

COMES UP AGAIN

Discussion of Theater License Brings Up Old Question.

Should Council Take Any Part In Administrative Affairs?

With the discussion on the renewal of the Parlor theater license, the members of the council are confronted by the old question as to whether the council is purely a legislative body or whether it should take some share in the administration.

The aldermen who favor the renewal of the license claim that it does not make any difference to them whether liquor is sold in the theater or not, that it is none of the council's business to look after the enforcement of the law, and that if the proprietor of the theater sells liquor in the theater, it is the duty of the police department to put a stop to it, and have the proprietor arrested for a violation of the ordinance governing the operation of theaters.

At the time the license for the saloon beneath the theater was renewed, the aldermen who favored it stated that the question of selling liquor in the theater would be discussed when the theater license came up for renewal. The claim is now made that it is not the duty of the council to take cognizance of these matters, but that it is up to the police department to attend to the enforcement of the law.

The members of the council who oppose the renewal claim that they cannot afford to close their eyes to what they assert is common knowledge in the city, and that where any alleged infractions of the law come to the notice of the council it is the duty of the council to take cognizance of them and do all in its power to prevent them. They maintain that to grant a license to the Parlor theater would be to countenance an open violation of the law and call attention to the fact that before a license would be granted to the Metropolitan theater the management was compelled to close up a door that led from the theater to a saloon adjoining.

The license for the theater expires about the middle of this month. The theater was recently closed down for about two months while extensive repairs were made. Since it was reopened it has been running under its old license.

Both the saloon and the theater are operated in the name of M. J. Dahlstein, and the ground on which the opposition to the license is based, is the alleged fact that liquor is taken from the saloon and sold in the theater.

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND

Discussed at Length at an Evening Session of Commons.

London, April 13.—Home rule for Ireland was the subject of discussion at last night's session of the house of commons. It came up on the motion of an Irish Unionist member, framed with the purpose of drawing out Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman (Liberal) and with the expectation that the opposition would evade the issue, as the government has the fiscal question. For the last few weeks the ministerial benches have ben empty on private members' night, but last night the government was well represented. Premier Balfour was greeted with ironical opposition cheers when he entered the house.

It was the first time this session that an Irish Unionist had secured a chance to introduce a home rule motion. The opposition declined to dodge the issue and to indicate the government's recent attitude towrd private motions on the fiscal question, and when Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman rose to speak, the opposition shouted in union, "he did not run away."

Mr. Tuff (Conservative) called the attention of the house to speeches by certain members of the opposition on the question of home rule for Ireland, and moved that "in view of conflicting statements by various leaders on the subject of home rule, the house deems it is expedient for the member for Stirlingburg (Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman) "to explicitly declare whether or not it is his intention to recommend to the electors of the United Kingdom the policy of establishing a parliament in Ireland."

Mr. Tuff quoted from speeches by Lord Rosebery, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Mr. Redmond, Earl Grey and others on different occasions as showing the widely divergent opinion of the opposition on the question of home rule.

Sir Walter Plummer (Conservative) seconded the motion. He said it was important for the country to know which side of the fence the opposition proposed to fill.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman spoke at some length. He sarcastically and caustically touched the sore spots of the government and congratulated Mr. Balfour on his presence in the house when an abstract motion was up involving "a question which would not come before this parliament." The speaker declined to give a direct reply to the motion. He said it was not necessary to relate the record of the Liberal party, which for twenty years had labored unceasingly to secure good government for Ireland. He said the principle underlying these efforts was that self-government should be granted. He would endeavor to bring this to a successful issue, but in what way and by what plan it was preposterous to ask him to say. He believed the main purpose of the motion was to afford the Unionists an opportunity to dispose themselves with some evidence of unity.

John Redmond, who followed, declared that Ireland demanded home rule, not as a favor but as a right. If there were the smallest reasonable chance of success, he would not hesitate to advise his countrymen to end the present situation by an armed revolt; but they desired to terminate the ancient quarrel on terms satisfactory and honorable to both nations. He thanked Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman for his declaration, but said the radical party would find this question an urgent and insistant one, which would knock loudly at the door of the next parliament.

Premier Balfour spoke briefly, alluding ironically to the dissensions of the opposition leaders on the Irish policy and declaring that if the Liberals secured a large majority at the next elections, Irishmen might whistle but if they emerged with a small majority they would certainly cry in heaven's name for justice to Ireland.

HE MEANS SCOTT'S

Your doctor says you must take cod liver oil. Probably he means Scott's Emulsion because you cannot take the clear oil; no one can take the clear oil who needs cod liver oil. The doctor understands that and doubtless means Scott's Emulsion of cod liver oil which everybody can take because it is emulsified and prepared so that it can be very easily digested by the most sensitive stomach. Most everybody likes it.

NOVEL PLEA TO VOTERS

Made By Candidate For Justice of Peace.

Bellport, N. Y., April 13.—William F. Gardiner, nominee for justice of the peace in the town of Brook Haven, in an open letter has made an unique offer to the people in his township. It is to give up keeping bar if the good people of the town will elect him. Following is the letter, which was published in a local paper:

"For twenty years I have dealt in real estate in this village. Part of that time I have also kept a saloon here and that branch of my business has been a thorn in the side of the church people of Bellport.

"These good people now offer me a chance to change my occupation. I have been nominated for justice of the peace on the Republican ticket. This is my opportunity and yours, for if I am elected I shall do away entirely with my bar business. In fact, the penal code forbids a liquor dealer to serve as a justice. I have a letter from the pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church here, aproving of my decision. He writes: 'If you desire to give up your present business I wish you godspeed.'

"When the votes are canvassed I shall know to a certainty which road my temperance friends of the township of Brook Haven would have me follow."

Temperance people do not know just how to regard the letter. Some say his letter is practically a threat.

THINK HE IS BURGLAR.

Boys Hold Meter Man Prisoner Two Hours.

Appleton, Wis., April 13.—For two hours the 10-year-old sons of Charles W. Mory, superintendent of the Wisconsin Malt and Grain company, and George Hewitt kept an employe of the Fox River Valley Electric and Gas company in the basement of the Hewitt home.

The man went into the basement to read the meter and the boys drew on their imagination enough to think he was a burglar. At least, they afterwards said they thought he was.

Armed with a 22-caliber rifle and an air rifle, they opened fire on him through the door. The man found shelter behind a barrel which was filled with material through which the small bullet could not penetrate, where he was obliged to remain for two hours. At the end of that time the boys' amunition had been exhausted and they made a hasty retreat.

The gas man took the whole matter as a huge joke and did not lodge a complaint against the lads.

ILLEGAL PENSIONERS MUST REFUND MONEY.

Washington, April 13—Commissioner of Pensions Warner has discovered that in addition to granting pensions under the "old age" order to members of a Pennsylvania regiment, the pension bureau has allowed about 100 claims on applications made prior to April 1, 1904, the date on which the order went into effect. The amounts are trivial in all cases, but the commissioner will require that they be refunded. He says that in this matter the grant was due to an error in the construction of the law.

The commissioner has not received explanations from all the examiners involved in the Pennsylvania regiment, and therefore is not prepared to announce his decision. Those heard from admit the error, but plead mitigating circumstances.

MINNESOTA MAN

Wins An Important Railroad Counsel Appointment.

Chicago, April 13.—An example of the man who "makes" himself was shown yesterday when William S. Kies, city trial attorney, was appointed to the position of general attorney of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. Mr. Kies is only 27 years old, and his life story is one of struggle and self-reliance. He will take the place left vacant by A. W. Pulver. The position came to him as a reason of his phenomenal success in defending personal injury cases brought against the city.

Mr. Kies was born on a farm at Mapleton, Minn. When 14 years old he was left an orphan. He secured employment in clerical and advertising positions to fill in the time when he was not in school. For two years he taught school in Grafton, Wis. He entered the University of Wisconsin in 1896 and soon became known as one of the brightest students of the school. He completed the four-year literary course in three years, being graduated with the class of 1899. Without pausing he attacked the three-year course in the university law school, completing it in two years.

Mr. Kies came to Chicago four years ago. For a short time he engaged in law practice for himself. Then he entered the legal department of the Chicago City Railway company. Two years ago Mr. Kies entered the office of City Attorney Smulski and speedily became his utmost valuable aide. Mr. Kies won nine-tenths of the cases which he defended for the city.

Mr. Kies has been active in politics in Chicago. He made more than thirty speeches for the Republican ticket in the past campaign.

Tea Is Beneficial.

The notion that tea is injurious to people of weak nerves is altogether a false idea, as has been proven by the eminent scientist Joathan Hutchinson. Tea is in reality a nerve nutrient and is extremely beneficial to those of weak nerves. Especially is this so when you use tea direct from the gardens, packed in sealed packets such as "Salada" Ceylon and India tea, which received the highest award and gold medal at the St. Louis exposition.

NEED MORE STOCK

Scarcity of Beef and High Prices Open Possibilities.

Farmers In This District Putting In Young Stock.

The present Michigan street quotations from 8 to 8½ cents per pound for steers and pork loins quoted at from 11 to 11½ cents per pound, are claimed to be good reasons why stock raising should be entered into a greater extent this coming year than ever before by the farmers living in the agricultural districts tributary to Duluth. Beef and pork are high at the present time, because they are scarce and shipments of the dressed product which have been coming to Duluth lately have been quite light. So scarce is beef that even the grade used in camps has reached a fancy figure. The same conditions have occurred many times during the past season and will, it is claimed, occur as frequently during the coming year. Claim has been made time and again by the farm land interests that no finer grazing lands exist in the country than are found in the Northwest, particularly Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, and intending settlers as well as those already on the ground have been urged to pay especial attention to the stock raising feature of the possibilities of this country. With plenty of grass during the late spring, summer and, well into the fall, for immediate feed and to lay up for winter fodder in the way of hay, it has been claimed that the opportunities offered for making a success of the stock raising business have been numerous. That there has been a general timidity to attempt the weathering over the winter of stock in this latitude has been demonstrated by the fact that after cold weather sets in stock is hard to find in the country about Duluth. There are, of course, stock farms where blooded stock is being bred and wintered, but these do not figure much for market purposes. It is the market stock that the packers are out for when beef becomes scarce and it is at those certain periods that the farmers would have beef on the hoof to sell.

Reports from several of the new outlying agricultural districts in this county indicate that more attention is to be paid to this phase of the production question this year, than previously. In one district particularly, where one of the local railroads has been selling considerable new land to settlers coming in here from other states, a great many head of young stock are being shipped in to fatten for the market. Some of the new river bottom lands, it is said, as fast as they are cleared up, offer the finest sort of grazing grounds and cattle are being turned on them as soon as the brush and other undergrowth is cleared off. One local railroad official who is largely interested in the agricultural and stock raising possibilities of the land has, within the past 10 or 12 months, put something like $15,000 into a farm that he is clearing up and which is to be made a model stock farm.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Friday and Saturday, Raymond Hitchcock in "The Yankee Consul."

DONNA TROY COMPANY.

Last evening at the Metropolitan the Donna Troy company presented "A Russian Spy," and it was one of the favorites of the company's engagement. The plot deals with the present war in the Far East. Miss Troy as the Japanese girl and Carl Beckert as the young American carried the honors.

The play will be repeated this evening.

POOR PATRONAGE.

The patronage accorded "The Earl of Pawtucket" by Duluth could not but be discouraging to the manager of the theater which played it. Admittedly one of the best attractions in the country today it played to wretched business in Duluth. There was a fair house Tuesday evening, a corporal's guard yesterday afternoon and a small house last evening. And some people who will be heard asking before long, "Why don't we have some good things in Duluth."

"THE YANKEE CONSUL."

Raymond Hitchcock and a brilliant supporting company, including Flora Zabelle, Eva Davenport, Rose Botti, Sallie McNeil, Joseph M. Ratliff, Alfred Parr, William Danforth and J. E. Hazzard and a large and well trained chorus, in Henry W. Savage's elaborate production of that most tuneful of comic operas "The Yankee Consul," will be the attraction at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday. "The Yankee Consul," has but recently closed an engagement of nineteen weeks at the Broadway theater, New York, and the company and production intact as seen there is now on tour.

LITTLE BUSINESS TALKS.

If all mothers trained their daughters to read the store ads. in The Herald as regularly as they practice their music, fewer young men would shy at matrimony.

Once in a while something is advertised in The Herald which you have long wanted, but have been unable to find. Today may be one of the "once in a whiles."

To the man who is going to buy a suit of clothes there is nothing in the Herald of such personal importance as the clothing ads.

To find the exact kind of dress-fabric you have wanted, and to receive a little change from the bill which you had set aside to buy it with, should compensate you for a very careful reading of the store-ads. tonight.

About the only women, in these days, who do not read store-ads. are those who cannot read at all.

The woman who studies the store-ads in The Herald carefully may pay herself a fee for every shopping trip she makes out of the money she is able to save.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Sioux Falls Chinaman to Vigorously Fight Deportation.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The trial of cases at the present term of United States court has commenced, the petit jury having reported. Joe Kirby of this city, attorney for Lee Sing, a Chinaman who has resided in Sioux Falls for several years, and who recently was ordered deported as the result of a hearing before United States Commissioner Conway of this city, gave notice of an appeal to the United States court. Mr. Kirby asked that a time be fixed for a hearing on the appeal, and requested that a jury be required to decide as to the citizenship of his client, who alleges that he was born in the United States in 1885. Judge Carland fixed on Saturday as the time for the calling of the case.

Elk Point—The new city government was installed Monday night and the annual reports accepted. The city begins the new financial year with $485 in the treasury. Some $55 of registered interest-bearing warrants were paid last year.

The committee of aldermen appointed to examine the condition of the gas plant reported that in two years the receipts have been nearly $1,200 less than the disbursements. Gas has cost $2.28 a thousand and has been sold to individuals for $1.50. The committee estimates that during the year the city lost $1,040 through leakage, and that without this, gas could be manufactured for less than $1 a thousand. The entire length of the mains must be recovered to prevent further waste. The committee also reported the utter failure of all attempts to get the company that installed the plant three years ago to put it in proper shape.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—When citizens of Fargo vote on Tuesday for the election of three members of the board of education, the indications are that it will be the most exciting school board contest in the history of the city. The lack of interest in the recent aldermanic contest will be more than overcome by the fight for the places on the board.

There are several elements that tend to make the affair an interesting one. The fact that all three of the retiring members are candidates for re-election creates opposition. Mrs. Darrow is one of the candidates for re-election, and her fight injects the issue of selecting women members. The recent failure to re-elect certain teachers, presumably on the recommendation of Supt. Logi, has also brought down the wrath of the friends of the dismissed teachers on the dominating members of the board.

Plans for the new Y. M. C. A. building have been ordered prepared by the latter part of the month, when Secretary Allen hopes to have the remainder of the $55,000 raised for the new structure.

Devils Lake—The annual state convention of Royal Neighbors of America opened here. More than 100 women from all parts of the state are present.

Grand Forks—The population of Grand Forks is growing rapidly and the prices of lots are higher than in any other city in the state, which is but another evidence of the prosperity that is reflected in the remarkable showing made by the wholesale houses of the city.

The large increase in the number of immigrants from European countries so early in the year is an indication that the Northwest will be settled largely this year by foreigners who will at once proceed to become naturalized and begin the work of building homes.

LINCOLN LETTER BRINGS $110.

New York, April 13.—One of the highest prices ever brought by an autograph letter of Abraham Lincoln has just been recorded at an auction sale here. The relic brought $110.—It was dedicated to a soldier who had deserted the colors and begged for reinstatement.

The System Lives On Good, Rich Blood

People Who Lack the Proper Quantity and Quality of Blood Fall Victims to Every Disease That's Prevalent.

DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE PILLS.

The blood is the medium through which every tissue, every organ is supplied with the material it feeds upon and rebuilds itself with. Take away that nourishment by letting the blood run down in quantity and quality and you take away the power of an organ or tissue to resupply waste or rebuild itself. In other words, the system starves; color, appetite, steadiness, energy, vigor, vitality—all are lost and a condition of mental and physical prostration sets in. This condition Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills positively cure by their power to manufacture good, rich, nutritious, oxygen carrying blood, a blood that carries to every organ the very material it lives and thrives upon.

Mr. George Horkins, of Westinghouse Avenue, Wilmerding, Pa., says:

"I began to use Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills in Pittsburg. I was at the time badly run down, weak—nervous—could not eat—cold all the time, as my blood was thin, and did not sleep well. The medicine put me in splendid shape rapidly and, easily, giving me steady nerves—a fine appetite—restful sleep—a general feeling of energy and vigor and good rich blood that showed in the way my color came back. The medicine is certainly a good one and I am only too glad to say so." 50 cents a box, at dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Company, Buffalo, N. Y. Portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on every package.

MAKES BIG SHOWING

Bell Telephone System Has Immense Increase of Subscribers.

Many Independently Organized Telephone Lines Have Been Absorbed.

The annual report of President F. P. Fish of the American Telephone & Telegraph company, just issued, shows that the number of subscribers to the Bell system is practically 100 per cent greater than three years ago. In almost every part of the country each subscriber is now able to talk to twice as many telephones, and through these to a proportionately larger number of people, so that the value of the service to the user constantly increases, and its cost to the subscriber in relation to its value is reduced.

The report says that from the point of view of the companies, and from that of the public the establishment of rates for service which will give an adequate return, and at the same time make rates suitable for the varying requirements of subscribers, alike fair to large and small users, is most important. No two localities have the same investment per station, nor is the cost of operating the same, but as communities increase in size conditions arise which largely increase the cost. Standard rates are reduced from time to time whenever conditions justify, and a constantly increasing proportion of the telephones installed is furnished at the lower scale of rates adapted to the needs of smaller users. It seems well established that the larger and more densely populated a community is the higher must be the rates for the kind of service required in such a community.

In the largest cities, with extensive and costly underground construction, heavy real estate investment, complicated central office equipment, expensive out of all proportion to the number of subscribers, and many other conditions, involving heavy expenses not found in smaller communities, there is a demand for engineering skill of the highest order, and courage to incur the greater expense necessary to give the amount and character of service required.

The number of telephone companies originally organized to operate independently of the Bell companies which have decided it is to their interest to become part of the Bell system is steadily increasing. This is significant as showing the growing appreciation of the value of the Bell service and the contracts under which these arrangements are made clearly for mutual advantage, as well as for the advantage of the community served.

By the bulletin on telephones issued by the census bureau there were on December 31, 1902, 84,021 telephones classified as independent which were a portion of the Bell system, and this number has grown so that on December 31, 1904, there were 167,213 stations of this class. The number of exchange stations in the Bell system at the close of the year was 1,799,633, an increase during the year of 274,466. In addition to these there were telephones used for private line purposes and sublicense stations, so that the total number of telephones of the Bell system on December 31, 1904, was 2,003,213. The total mileage of wire of the companies was 4,671,038, of which 712,147 miles were added during the year. The daily average of toll connections was 301,000 and of exchange connections 11,149,000, or a total number of telephone connections during the year of about 3,687,000,000. The expenditure for construction of all the Bell companies during the year was $33,436,700, and in the last five years the expenditure on the Bell telephone plants has reached the sum of $168,766,400.

LAST REPORT ABOUT ICE

Government Regards Navigation as Practically Resumed on Lakes.

The weekly report sent out from the weather bureau at Detroit announces that the one just issued will be the last for the season, that the ice has nearly disappeared and general navigation has been resumed. The report goes on to say about the ice conditions up to Tuesday, on which day it was issued:

"The report from the regular and display stations of the weather bureau indicate that the ice has decreased rapidly in all the lakes, but the cold weather of the latter part of the week has held the ice firm in St. Mary's river and at the Straits. In Superior the ice has practcally disappeared from the western end except in Chaquamegon bay; some broken fields are reported off Keweenaw point and some off Marquette; from there to Whitefish bay there are no fields. The ice in Whitefish bay is honeycombing and breaking up; the passage of the steamers on Monday will greatly assist in opening up the channel. In St. Mary's river the ice is still firm in Mud lake, but a passage will prooably be forced Wednesday or Thursday by the steamers now in the river. In Green bay the ice is seventeen inches thick over the northern portion and is disappearing rapidly over the southern portion. No ice is reported from Michigan except from Harbor Springs northward to the Straits. In the Straits the ice field is unbroken from Waugoshance to Mackinaw and broken up east of there to Cheboygan; the first of the fleet is now opening the channel from Huron to Michigan. No ice is reported in Huron except small fields off the islands. In Erie the field is confined to the extreme eastern portion, from Erie to Buffalo; the field is broken up, and vessels can easily force a passage; the first of the fleet leaving on Saturday had but little difficulty. In Ontario the ice fields are confined to the eastern portion, to the east of Oswago. There is much less ice at this time than at the same period last season.

"This will be the last regular ice report for this season, as general navigation has opened; the display of storm warnings on all the lakes will be resumed on April 15. Special reports from Mackinaw and Sault Ste. Marie will continue until the channels are free."

The usual details concerning Lake Superior are:

Washburn: Ice honeycombed and broken up.

Houghton: Portage lake averages one inch; considerable rotten ice opposite Oskar and in Big Portage, although a boat can probably break through; floes of ice outside breakwater at ship canal; at entry four inches of rotten ice extends out four miles; Eagle harbor, floating masses of honeycombed ice moving out.

Presque Isle: Bay and harbor free of ice; ice fields visible on the 8th, moving with the wind; no trouble for steamers to work through the ice fields; no ice along south shore of lake.

Grand Marais, Mich.: Harbor pretty clear of ice; remaining ice soft; extensive ice fields to the east, but none to the west.

Deer Pork: No ice visible except small amount along the shore.

Whitefish Point: Ice in bay solid and unbroken; two steamers fast in ice, one of them one-half mile north of light.

Sault Ste. Marie: The Hutchinson and another steamer in the ice at Whitefish bay, bound down; ice in river and Mud lake going rapidly; steamers will be able to force passage by Wednesday.

Sault Ste. Marie, 11th: Ice badly candled, but will require thirty-six hours of warm weather to use it up enough to allow boats through.

FAILED TO MAKE GOOD

Reed Smoot Did Not Keep Promise to Senate Committee.

New York, April 13.—Senator Reed Smoot has failed to make good his pledge to the senate committee on privileges and elections this spring, when his case was under investigation, by challenging the polygamistic character of the apostolic quorum of the Mormon church.

This information was contained in a telegram received by Mrs. Darwin R. James, president of the International Council of Women for Christian and Patriotic service, from Frank J. Cannon, editor of the Salt Lake Tribune.

Senator Smoot told the senate committee, which was investigating him, that in last October's conference of the Mormon church he had challenged the apostolic quorum and that President Smith, of the Mormon church, had promised him a complete investigation.

Mr. Cannon's telegram to Mrs. James says:

"According to Reed Smoot's testimony before the senatorial committee at Washinton, he had last October challenegd the polygamistic character of the apostolic quorum. The investigation was promised by President Smith. The present conference ends without Smoot's appearance. No reference to investigation. Instead, all monogamistic apparance swept away and polygamistic character established by unanimous vote of church and minor ecclesiastics for polygamous hierarchy.

"Smoot's challenge and investigation were mere pretense. Smoot gulded entirely by Smith."

Senator Smoot's case has not been finally acted upon, either by the senate committee or the senate itself. The committee on privileges and elections is about equally divided on Senator Smoot's case, with a possibility that a majority may be against him.

BABE SMOTHERED

By Mastiff Pup Lying on Its Face.

Butte, Mont., April 13.—While lying asleep in the arms of its mother, the 3-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. John Finnegan, was smothered to death Tuesday morning by a mastiff puppy, the child's constant companion. In his efforts to be near the babe, the dog chawled upon the bed while the mother slept, and lay directly over the little one's face.

The mastiff's action did not awaken the mother and when Mr. Finnegan returned from work after 5 o'clock the puppy was still occupying this position. The father threw the dog aside and picked up his child only to find that the little one was dead.

It was some time before the parents could realize the calamity. In vain the mother kissed the child and tried to awaken her. The mother is almost heartbroken over the tragic affair.

Shortly after the dog disappeared and did not return until night, when it came whining and seeming to realize that he was responsible for the child's death.

Race For Supremacy.

It is interesting to watch the race for supremacy among Minneapolis-St. Paul-Chicago trains. First place is securely held by the Pioneer Limited and the second place by the Fast Mail. Both trains are entirely owned by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. There are three other fast trains via this line from the Twin Cities to Chicago every day, and there is no extra fare to ride on them. Address W. B. AGREEMENT INOPERATIVE

Shipping Combine Fails to Carry Out Agreement With Cunard Line.

Liverpool, April 13.—At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Cunard line here today, Lord Inverclyde, chairman of the company, announced that the shipping combine had intimated its inability to carry out one of the most important clauses of the settlement recently arrived at, and consequently all tentative arrangements between the Cunard line an dthe continental lines and the combine were inoperative. Lord Inverclyde was unable to say if the present rates would be maintained. He considered that the policy the Cunard line followed in the past was the only possible one, and believed taht the Atlantic shipping combine was aimed directly against the Cunard line.

Beyond the loss of revenue caused by the rate war, Lord Inverclyde stated that he did not regret a single step taken. There was at present no agreement between the Cunard line and the combine. The only effect of the agreements was that passenger rates were restored to their old level.

CAPSIZED IN RAPIDS.

Two Men Almost Doomed at International Falls.

International Falls, Minn., April 13.—Immigrant Inspector A. W. Swenson and Herbert McIntosh, while rowing Tuesday afternoon, came near losing their lives in attempting to pass through the rapids at the foot of Rainy lake, about two and a half miles east of town. The rapids are very dangerous, and several lives are lost every year by persons attempting passage in canoes or rowboats. Even the Indians, who are perfectly at home in their birch-barks, often hesitate attempting to go through.

Messrs. Swenson and McIntosh passed the lower rapids in safety by means of the canoe channel, but when about half way through the upper rapids their boat was caught in a whirlpool and capsized. McIntosh rose to the surface first, but for some moments was unable to see any signs of his companion, who was caught underneath the overturned boat. Swenson finally extricated himself, and although both men are excellent swimmers it was with great difficulty that they managed to reach the shore.

JAP-A-LAC

WEARS LIKE IRON.

WHAT JAP-A-LAC WILL DO—

We are trying to show in this present advertisement exactly what JAP-A-LAC will do, and to point out to you a few of the many uses to which it can be put.

It will rejuvenate floors, weather-beaten front doors, chairs, old carriages, metal work, radiators, porch furniture, oil cloth, refrigerators, chandeliers, andirons or anything and everything that needs freshening, and you will never believe until you try it, just how complete the rejuvenation is.

Most of the JAP-A-LAC that is used is used by women. An intelligent child 10 years old will have no trouble with it, and will take pleasure and gain knowledge in using it.

The old table, or chair, or desk, or bookcase that you think is fit only for kindling because the varnish is scuffed or because the color is not to your liking, can be brought back practically to its original new value with 25 cents worth of JAP-A-LAC.

A simple description of JAP-A-LAC is, that it is a stain and a varnish combined, and its uses exist from the cellar to the attic of every house in America.

The colors of JAP-A-LAC are twelve.

The price, ½ pint, 25c; 1 pint, 40c; 1 quart, 75c; ½ gallon, $1.35; 1 gallon, $2.50.

MASSAGE

"With Large Fist" Urged For "Pretty" Pastor.

Wilmington, Del., April 13.—"The kind of massage that fellow needs is to have one meet him on a dark night and make him look pretty with a big closed fist," declared the Rev. Robert A. Elwood, at a meeting in the Grand Opera house here.

Mr. Elwood was referring to a young minister of Wilmington who, he told the audience, was complimented on his personal appearance by several members of his congregation. The result, he said, was that the young man has been going twice a week to a "female masseur" to have improvements made in his looks.

That certain local ministers pay too much attention to their looks and not enough to their duties, was asserted by the minister.

UNUSUAL CHARGE

Made Against Two Officials of Iowa County.

Marshalltown, Ia., April 13.—S. Meekin, a justice of the peace, and George Mable, a constable at St. Anthony, Marshall county, have been arrested charged with oppression in office. Frank Buchan claims that under cover of their office and by threatening him with arrest they got him to sign an affidavit that he voted illegally at the recent election. There was a bitter fight between factions and the result was a tie vote. The affidavit was secured in an alleged attempt to change the result.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE GRAND TRUNK.

London, April 13.—The stockholders of the Grand Trunk railroad of Canada, at their semi-annual meeting today, adopted the report of the directors after a brief speech by the chairman, Sir Charles Rivers Wilson. The statements made were devoid of general interest, except the announcement that the construction of the Lake Superior branch will commence in June and the building of the Prairie branch in July. Sir Charles congratulated stockholders of the financial association of the Rothschilds with the Grand Trunk railroad in connection with the flotation of the recent Grand Trunk-Pacific bonds.

ADELE RITCHIE

Rebukes Talkative Party In a Theater Box.

New York, April 13.—Adele Ritchie had to speak to some people in a box Tuesday night at the "Florodora" Broadway theater to ask them to be quiet. In the party were six women and six men. They had been talking and laughing all through the first act. At the end of the act Miss Ritchie sings "Tact." She was encored, and when she appeared for her encore she sang these improvised lines:

Tact, tact, take it for a fact,
You will surely know some people by the way they act;
From the lower box they show
Their ignorance, you know;
O, they could do a lot of talking
If they only had some tact.

The house applauded loudly and vigorously. The box party was quieter after the song, but in the second act began to talk again. Miss Ritchie at last walked over to the box and said in an undertone:

"I have sent the price of your box to the business manager, and if you do not stop interrupting this performance I will ask you to leave the theater."

The twelve were quiet after Miss Ritchie's rebuke.

San Francisco, Los Angeles and Return $57.90.

April 10th to 14th inclusive, the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets to above points and return for $57.90, good for 90 days, with liberal stop-overs in each direction. Tickets via diverse routes, one way via Portland, returning another, $70.40. For tickets and full information, call at City office, 332 West Superior street.

Announcement:

To My Friends and Patrons—

I wish to announce that I have opened "Shoe Parlors" and will carry a very fine line of Men's, Women's and Children's "Smart Shoes for Good Dressers" in Parlors 10, 11 and 12 over Gidding's. I shall make a specialty of good fitting. My sister, Miss Blodgett, is with me, and all who have had her fit them, know she understands what they should wear.

I have "PRINCE," the best shiner in the city, in charge of my Shine Parlors—5c a shine, or 22 shines for $1.00. He uses only Whittemore Polishes; give him a trial.

My Repair Shop is another feature of the business. Nothing but hand work and the best materials used. Call me on old 'phone 1451 and I will send for your work and deliver it to you. No need of carrying bundles. We are here to serve you—let us do it.

Yours, to please,
FRANK BLODGETT.

OFFICERS SHOOT

Bi-Weekly Target Practice Commenced By Police Department.

Captain Resche Again Heads List With Perfect Score.

Equipped with special police guns of a uniform type, the members of the Duluth police department recommenced their biweekly revolver target practice this morning.

The target is the figure of a man painted on a steel plate, placed at a distance of 100 feet from the marksman. Each officer fires ten shots at the target, and the score depends on the part of the target hit. If the figure is sit above the waist it counts five, and if below the waist, four. If the bullet strikes the target outside the figure and above the waist line, it counts three, and if below the waist line two.

Capt. Resche again headed the list of the officers who shot up to 3 o'clock this afternoon. Chief Troyer, Detective Schulte and several other good marksmen had not taken their turn at 3 o'clock. The men shoot only when they are leaving their beats or just before they go out. The target is placed on the lake shore just east of the police station.

The following are the scores which were made up to 3 o'clock this afternoon:

Capt. Resche, 50; Officer Stahl, 48; Officer Barber, 46; Officer Steele, 44; Officer Geer, 44; Officer Holstrom, 44; Officer Johnson, 42; Officer Webber, 41; Officer Blair, 41; Sergt. Gillan, 38; Secretary Lahti, 35; Sergt. Fritz, 34; Detective Irving, 33; Officer A. Schulte, 33; Detective Terry, 31; Officer Bartlett, 31; Officer Ling, 27; Officer Wanvick, 27; Sergt. Thompson, 26; Officer McDonald, 25; Officer Smollett, 22; Officer Drennan, 22; Lieut. Drennan, 18; Officer Stewart, 9; Officer Gleacon, 7.

INVESTIGATION TRIP.

Aldermen and Board Go to Park Point.

A joint committee, composed of the members of the board of public works, Aldermen Moore, Chesney and Tessman of the council committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks, and Aldermen Trevillion and Lyle of the Fourth ward, will go to Park Point this afternoon to look over the dispute with the street railway company in regard to the moving of the sidewalk, which now lies in the center of the street, where the Interstate Traction company desires to extend its line.

The delegation will report to the council Monday evening.

TWO INDICTMENTS

Returned By Jury Investigating Meat Packers.

Chicago, April 13.—Two indictments were returned today by the special federal grand jury which is investigating business methods of the meat packing companies. Bench warrants were issued for the men indicted. Judge Humphrey, before the returns were made, instructed the government officials to keep the names of the indicted men secret until the men had been arrested. The judge also ordered that no intimation be given concerning the identity of those indicted, or the nature of the charges.

Transfers to Railway Company

A warranty deed covering a lot below Michigan street between Garfield and Fifteenth avenues west, running from the Howard Investment company to the Lake Superior & Southeastern Railroad company, was filed with the county register of deeds yesterday. The consideration is $7,500. The property is described as lot 252, block 20, Duluth Proper, Second division. The property is occupied by a small building on Railroad street.

Located At Kansas City.

According to the Northwestern Miller of this week, L. R. Hurd, formerly of Duluth, is to make his home at Kansas City, Mo., and manage a new mill of 2,000 barrels capacity, to be erected there by the Standard Milling company of New York.

Work on the erection of the mill is to begin at once and a site has already been secured. In addition to the mill proper, an elevator, with a capacity of 250,000 barrels, is to be built.

BODY FOUND IN BATH TUB

Mrs. Grace Loomis Ends Her Life In Chicago.

Chicago, April 13.—The body of Mrs. Grace Loomis, who claimed to be the wife of Charles Loomis, said by her to be a millionaire, was found in a half-filled bath tub in a fashionable boarding house in Michigan avenue today.

The body was fully dressed and lay face down in the tub. Frequent threats made by Mrs. Loomis that she intended to kill herself leave no doubt that the case is one of suicide. Domestic troubles is thought to have been the cause.

ORIGINAL PLANS

Of the President Will Be Carried Out.

Frederick, Okla., April 13.—President Roosevelt will end his hunt this afternoon according to his original plans. He and the foreign members of his party will arrive here between 6 and 7 o'clock this evening. The party includes Dr. A. Lambert, Gen. S. M. B. Young, Col. Cecil A. Lyons, Hon. Sloan Simpson, Lieut G. P. Fortesque, Capt. S. B. Burnett, W. T. Wagoner, Tom Burnett, C. M. Hugh, Capt. Bill McDonald and J. R. Aernathy.

After meeting a number of citizens he will make an address.

Dennis Flynn and Congressman John S. Stephens of Texas, old-time friends of the president, are here. The start for Colorado is scheduled for 8:25 o'clock tonight.

BOER GENERAL

Sentenced to Prison For Passing Forged Checks.

Chicago, April 13.—A man, who said he was former Boer General W. J. DeJough, was today sentenced to a year in the Bridewell by Judge Barnes in the criminal court. The prisoner was arraigned under the name of Harry Marshall to answer to a charge of passing worthless checks. When Assistant States Attorney Holt said that the man was not Marshall but was De Jough, a hero of the Boer war, a personal friend of the late Boer president, Paul Kruger, and related to some of the wealthiest and most prominent families of the South African republic, the prisoner admitted that what Attorney Holt had said was true. The prisoner then pleadguilty to the charge of passing worthless checks.

COUNTY SEAT FIGHT

In Red Lake County Is Becoming Warm.

Crookston, April 13.—An alternative writ of injunction was issued here yesterday by Judge Watts restraining the county auditor of Red Lake county from filing the petition asking for the removal of the county seat from Red Lake Falls to Thief River Falls. The hearing was set for April 22.

Supporters of Thief River Falls have 2,000 names, 700 more than the 60 per cent of the voters of the county registered at the last election, as required by law. Thief River Falls has worked tooth and nail to secure signatures. Red Lake Falls made the rounds with its petition in remonstrance. This also has been liberally signed, and requests the maintenance o the county seat at that place.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

Every Word of This Statement Is Based on the Strong Foundation of the Truth.

Weight and authority are attached to every statement made in the advertising of Beecham's Pills. They cure Billiousness, Heartburn, Waterbrash, Indigestion, Weight or Fullness in the Stomach, Bitter Taste in the Mouth, Offensive Breath, Sick Headache, Dizziness, Nausea, Constipation and Female Ailments. A sale of 6,000,000 boxes yearly proves how well they cure these complaints. The very name of Beecham's Pills seems to carry with it an atmosphere of good health, and the testimony of those who have been cured by the use of this peerless remedy would fill a volume, the like of which the world has never seen.

CHEERFULNESS UNDER AFFLICTION.

A cripple for twenty-eight years, so that she has been unable to walk in that time; totally blind for five years and almost entirely deaf, Mrs. Ellen Crosby of Grafton, N. D., at the age of 90, is still cheerful, uncomplaining, and does all the work she is able to do considering her infirmities.

It seems almost miraculous that she has lived so long, bearing all these afflictions, and her longevity must certainly be due in great measure to her cheerful disposition.

What are the trials of most individuals compared to the afflictions this woman has borne? And yet how few there are who can remain cheerful and agreeable even under the most trivial aggravations.

Sometimes it seems that some people must be born with different natures from others, when there is so much difference in the manner in which they bear personal trials. How often have we seen the husband who repeatedly comes home to supper long after the proper hour, become little better than a raving maniac when he arrives at the proper hour and finds his meal a few minutes late. Then, have you noticed the young lady whose mother toils incessantly and deprives herself that her daughter may be stylishly clothed, turn upon her parent with reproaches and the harshest censure because something about her raiment may not be exactly to her liking?

One might go on citing instance after instance where people with really no cause to complain create mountains out of molehills and make life miserable for all who come in contact with them, while others like "Auntie Crosby," who suffer every day of their lives, are cheerful and hopeful and create sunshine and happiness wherever they may be.

If you are the complaining, fault-finding kind, why not make a mental resolve to go no further in that direction, and live up to that resolve? Life is too short to fill the lives of those about us with misery and unhappiness all because of our own selfishness and ill nature. One can only secure real happiness in this life by endeavoring to make others happy.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

President Roosevelt has for years been conspicuous as an advocate of civil service reform and he has been a persistent foe of the spoilsmen. Since his elevation to the presidency he has kept his record clear on this question. Before leaving Washington on his trip to the Southwest, he made another extension of the civil service rules, by which nearly everything has been classified, and it is stated that the rules are now being so rigidly enforced that it is almost impossible for a politician to find a government job for a constituent at Washington or elsewhere.

In recent years the fourth-class postoffices have formed the bulk of the patronage distributed to congressmen, but it now appears that the postmaster general has put into force a system of practical service which takes about 70,000 fourth-class postmasters out of the patronage list. About 375 places were cut off this list recently by clasifying the cashiers in the big postoffices, and no future appointments will be made to these places except after passing the civil service examination.

It is also stated that recently the president took action with regard to the employment of laborers in the government departments. This, it seems, has been one of the biggest loopholes for getting around the law, but it no longer exists and in doing away with it the government will be relieved of many incompetents who through it found their way into the public service after having failed to pass a civil service examination. According to a member of the commission the civil service rules were never so strictly enforced as they are at present, the example set by the president being followed by his cabinet officers all down the line, so that the spoilsmen are finding that "shaking the plum tree" is not as easy as it once was.

RIGHT TO TRIAL BY JURY.

Last Monday the United States supreme court handed down a decison, declaring unconstitutional that part of the code of Alaska providing for a jury of only six in criminal trials, and the Springfield Republican thinks that it deserves to be studied minutely by constitutional lawyers who are interested in the constitutional status of the Philippine islands, because the decision may be altogether antagonistic to the more extreme assumptions upon which the Philippine government and legal code were framed.

The supreme court decides that in Alaska the sixth amendment is in force, ex proprio vigore, and that consequently a man tried there for a misdemeanor is entitled to the common law jury of twelve men. Now Alaska is neither a state in the Union, nor even an organized territory. It does not have a delegate in the national house of representatives. In the modern imperialist sense, Alaska is merely territory appurtenant to the United States, and the constitution reaches it only in so far as congress extends its provisions over it. It is certain that in accordance with this theory congress attempted to apply to Alaska a code that ran counter to the sixth amendment. In the Philippines the right to trial by jury does not exist, because, as it is claimed, the sixth amendment does not reach there, having never been extended to those islands by congress. The question now arises whether, under this Alaskan decision, the right to trial by jury can any longer be kept out of the Philippine islands.

As the Republican points out, the United States supreme court, by this latest decision, seems to have added to the confusion that already existed concerning the constitutional status of our distant territorial possessions. It will be observed that Justice Brown, who made possible the imperialist victory in the historic five to four decision in the "insular cases," now dissents from the majority in the Alaskan case. It was pointed out, when the decision in the "insular cases" was given, that the reasoning of the various majority judges was so diverse that no one could be sure how the court would divide in the future on questions involving other clauses of the constitution. The decision in the Alaska case adds to the uncertainty.

HIGHER OPERATING COST.

The preliminary report of the interstate commerce commission giving the earnings of practically all the railroads of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, shows some very important changes in the cost of conducting the railroad business. The figures for the 1904 fiscal year show the results of the operation of 209,000 miles, as against 205,313 miles for the preceding year. The totals for 1904 are as follows: Gross earnings, $1,966,633,821; operating expenses, $1,332,382,948; income from operation, $634,250,873. The gross earnings for 1903 were $1,900,846,907, or an increase for the year 1904 of about $66,000,000. Operating expenses were $1,332,383,948 in 1904 as against $1,257,538,852 in 1903. The ratio of operating expenses thus increased from 66.16 per cent in 1903, to 67.75 per cent in 1904.

This increase in the cost of operating the railroads of the United States is of particular interest at this time. It resulted in a decrease of the revenue available for interest charges and dividends of something over $6,000,000, the net earnings in 1904 being $634,250,873, as against $640,644,138 in 1903. In other words, while the railroads sold over $66,000,000 more transportation than in the preceding year, the actual returns, as regards the owners of railroads, diminished $6,000,000. The figures of the interstate commerce commission demonstrate on their face therefore that the public received cheaper transportation, and the relative proportions of profit to the railroads materially diminished.

These figures have been cited by some of the railroad publicity bureaus as an argument against government rate regulation, evidently proceeding on the theory that those who want rates regulated think they should be reduced. But rate regulation does not necessarily mean rate reduction. The demand for rate regulation by the government is the result of unequal and discriminating rates. What the people want is that all persons shall be treated alike in regard to rates and that one locality shall not be given undue favors at the expense of another.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

There is competition that is beneficial to all, and then there is competition that is ruinous to all, but a few. The latter is the kind of competition that is practiced by the trusts.

Politics makes strange bed-fellows, as is again shown by the reported combine of Senator Platt and Ex-Governor Black to take away the control of the New York machine from Ex-Governor Odell. In 1898 Platt defeated Black for renomination as governor by running Roosevelt against him. He is said to have offered Black the United States senatorship if the latter would abandon his hopeless effort and make it unanimous for Roosevelt. Black refused, and Depew was made the senator. When Depew came up for re-election this year Platt stood by him, while Black was supported by Odell. Depew won, but, it was claimed by Black's friends, through Odell's rank treachery. Consequently the Black faction are now willing to become allies of "Tom" Platt.

The earliest spring in the history of the Klondike gold district is reported. The winter has been one of the warmest since the settlement of the country, and a great deal of work has already been done. Speculation is rife as to the probable yield from the Klondike field this winter, on account of so many miners having left and gone to the new Tanana field in Alaska. The Klondike, of course, is in Yukon territory, under British rule, which seems conceded to be much more efficient in maintaining law and order and in the conduct of the land office than is the rule of the United States in the Alaskan fields.

Between dodging the charge of voting for the mileage grab and explaining why he cannot procure jobs from the United States with which to pay his political debts, says the Washington Post, the congressman's lot is not a happy one. And next winter it is proposed by certain senators to make a fresh onslaught, also, on the garden seed appropriation. If this succeeds, the ordinary congressman may be reduced to the extremity of securing his election on his merits.

Hotel Gossip.

"I can remember the time when Minnesota farmers hauled their wheat 100 miles by wagon to market it," said A. T. Moss of St. Paul at the McKay. Mr. Moss is an old resident of the state. He came here in 1857, several years later than his brother, who was the first territorial and the first state's attorney of Minnesota.

"Even the early settlers had great faith in the agricultural possibilities of the state," he continued, "but few looked for any such remarkable development as has taken place within a half century. As one looks back a score of years or more he cannot but express surprise at the wonderful things in the way of progress that have happened during his life time. The change that has taken place in Minnesota since I first came here is truly marvelous. Then almost all travel had to be done by stage or on foot, or else by boat. The principal travel in those days was by boat on the different rivers, but numerous stage lines were in operation where the rivers did not reach.

"No one realized at that time the immense value of the timber resources of Minnesota, and only an occasional one ventured the opinion that the forests would be used to advantage within a life time. These few were quickly laughed to scorn. The great stretch of territory was such a veritable wilderness, and there was so much vacant land on all sides of us, that it was indeed hard to believe that we would live to see any such development as has been witnessed since then."

"The Isle of Pines has both a good and a bad side," said O. F. Wissler of Minneapolis at the St. Louis. "But the good side is so very pronounced that the disagreeable features sink into insignificance. I own a tract of land on the island and am very glad I do. It is a wonderful country.

"Among the most disagreeable of the disagreeable features are the insects. These insects, several of them, at least, are very peculiar in their tastes. One of them, for example, will be content to make his meal from no part of the human anatomy aside from the bottom of the foot. A person cannot feel him when he is dining, despite the fact that he bores in under the skin for a considerable distance, and looks like a long silver once he is imbedded there. But later on he begins to make his presence known. The only way to get him out is by the jackknife route.

"Another little creature delights in feasting on the tops of your ears, and will bite you in no other place. After he gets through with you a lump as large as a hazel nut not infrequently appears. There are numerous others of the troublesome insect tribe which are not so particular, and which will light on any part of the body that happens to be exposed. A sort of a sand flea is also very troublesome.

"The birds, the flowers and the fruits on the island are of greater variety and beauty than any other place I have ever seen. The land there produces thirty-four different kinds of fruits, which are now growing wild. Heaven only knows how many varieties of birds and flowers there are. The most prominent of the birds are the parrots. There are different kinds of these, but the green sort, like we often see in cages in this country, predominate. They go in large flocks, like our pigeons, and the racket their rasping voices make in the wild state is something fearful to listen to. They are continually screeching and scolding at each other and everything in general. They are a vicious bird and have no respect for the property rights of smaller winged creatures. Their favorite trick is to drive the woodpecker from his nest, throw out the eggs and appropriate the place to their own uses."

A resident of Ely who is now stopping at one of the local hotels tells something new in the way of a marriage license story, and swears by his honor as a loyal resident of the range town that it is true, and that it happened only a few days ago, but makes the urgent request that his name be withheld from appearing in connection with the tale, for reasons unknown, to others than himself.

Peter Schaffer, deputy clerk of court at Ely, was visited recently by a young man who announced it as being his intention to enter into the holy bonds of wedlock. He asked for a marriage license. He was somewhat surprised when he learned that the simple-looking bit of paper would cost him $2, but, after an ineffectual attempt to secure a reduction in price, finally handed over the money and departed with the license.

Two or three days later the telephone bell rang in Mr. Schaffer's office.

"Hello," said the obliging deputy clerk.

"Mr. Schaffer?" came the answering voice.

"Yes, Schaffer is talking."

"This is Mr. ——. Say, we have decided that we don't need that marriage license I got there the other day. Will it be all right if I bring it back and get the money I paid for it?"

When he learned that it wouldn't be all right, the man at the other end of the line grumbled at what he called the county's queer way of doing business.

John M. Graham, a well-known local traveling man, found himself in a secure trap in the new hotel at Brainerd one day last week, and it was with a good deal of difficulty on the part of the hotel management that he was extricated.

Mr. Graham had heard the new hostelry spoken of well, and determined to give it a try. After the usual preliminaries he entered the room assigned him. This was all right until he started to go out again. Then he found that he could not open the door, which he had carelessly slammed. The door stuck fast, and try as he would he could not open it. Finally he attracted the attention of the hotel help, but neither they nor the manager could open the door. The contractor who built the building was next summoned, but he met with no better success. The matter ended by the irate traveling man, who is rather portly as to form, piling chairs and tables up before the door and crawling out through the transom, so it is said.

America's Growing Navy.

Philadelphia Press: The United States in 1904 launched a heavier tonnage in warships than any other country in the world. Its launches aggregated 175,450 tons, distributed between fourteen vessels. England launched thirty-one vessels with a displacement of 125,700 tons. Our own heavy tonnage was due to the fact that seven of our vessels were battleships of over 15,000 tons and three cruisers of 13,000 tons each. It is progress of this sort in our navy which gives the United States the commanding position which it possesses, and on the approach of peace in the East, a position which it is using in order to protect the interests of the world, insure tranquility in the future and preserve China from spoliation.

DOROTHY IN LENT.

Dorthy's lids droop shyly,
Sealing her eyes secure,
Dorothy's lips twitch slyly,
Trying to look demure.
Dorothy's gown is quiet,
Gray with the violet blent,
Dorothy's strict on diet—
Dorothy's keeping Lent!

Dorothy looks her sweetest
Clad in a sackcloth rare,
Fashioned, with art complete,
From (flimsiest camel's) hair.
A cigarette gleams and flashes
'Neath Dorothy's fingers bent;
She never forgets the ashes—
Dorothy's keeping Lent!

Theater, dance and dinner
Dorothy shuns of late,
Only with Jack, the sinner!
Lunches on tete-a-tete;
An oyster, a soup, a pheasant,
A salad, a sweet—content,
With a frugal meal, though pleasant,
Dorothy's keeping Lent!

Often she "bridges" idle
Hours when employments lack;
Oftener walks the bridal
Path in the park with Jack.
Never is Jack far distant
From his fair penitent,
So—with a male assistant—
Dorothy's keeping Lent!

Where the Lie Came In.

Among the stories that Frederick Warde tells, is one relating the efforts of a frank spoken preacher at a funeral to point a moral. After the reading of a portion of Scripture the sermon began, in which attention was called to the ungodly lives of the people in general, and the deceased in particular, with the startling conclusion: "And I have no doubt that the late Mr. W—— is now gnashing his teeth in hell!" This was too much for one of the intimates of the departed, and he strode from the church in high dudgeon. Later, someone asked what he thought of the remarks as to his friend. "Dr. S—— has told a d—— lie," said he, "for I know for a certainty that the old man hasn't had a tooth in his head for over twenty years!"

Andy Hates Tobacco.

Andrew Carnegie's pet aversion is tobacco. At his New York residence one evening recently he gave a dinner, and, as usual, was a genial host. After the coffee Mr. Carnegie confessed his dislike of smoke in such a way that plainly indicated he would be pleased if any of his guests availed themselves of the opportunity to retire to the billiard room. Two of the guests, hungry for a smoke, ignored the inference. Scarcely had the butler passed the spirit lamp when little Andrew appeared in the billiard room door and informed them that a reading was in progress in the drawing room; perhaps they would prefer to leave their cigars to hear it. The two never moved an eyelash. Within a few minutes the host sent the butler twice to remind the smokers of the reading. In desperation they deserted Lady Nicotine, and now Mr. Carnegie will have a hard time getting them to another dinner.

Blue Eyes.

Like violets pale i' the spring o' the year
Came my love's sad eyes to my youth;
Wan and dim with many a tear,
But the sweeter for that in sooth;
Wet and dim,
Tender and true,
Violet eyes
Of the sweetest blue.

Like pansies dark i' the June o' the year
Grow my love's glad eyes to my prime;
Rich with the purple splendor clear
Of their thoughtful bliss sublime:
Deep and dark,
Solemn and true,
Pansy eyes
Of the noblest blue.

Food Fads Come and Go.

Boston Transcript: The "no-breakfast" fad has lived about as long as the average health fad, and while it is not dead yet it may be said to be passing. Arguments that those who never adopted the notion used are circulated by those who adopted, but are tiring of it, chief of which is that the system requires some nourishment after the long, all-night fast. But the "doing without" habit seems to be firmly fixed upon those who give much thought to the effect of diet, and so luncheon is getting to be a thing of the past with them. By slow degrees this came about, the meal usually being cut to its smallest proportion before being neglected altogether. Probably this wrinkle will endure for a time and then the going without dinner cult will arise, after which, perhaps, these seekers after health will come back into the ranks with the great majority and live by the "three square" rule upon which our ancestors flourished.

GENIAL JABS.

Washington Star: "I wonder how Mr. Smuggs acquired his reputation for uprightness and candor?"

"Very easily," answered Miss Cayenne. "By never telling a falsehood when there was the slightest danger of being caught."

New York Sun: Lucullus had just given his famous dinner.

"And it didn't come out of the insurance company, either," he boasted.

Herein we may see that the uncanny ancients had still much to learn.

Philadelphia Ledger: "He's forever making slurring remarks about Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago—"

"Yes, he wants to give the impression that he's a New Yorker."

Chicago Tribune: "I don't understand you, Mr. Harris," said the young woman boarder. "You say I'm a record breaker. In what way?"

"In the way of breaking records," said the boarder with the graphophone. "Didn't you hear something crack when you sat down in that rocking chair just now?"

Detroit Tribune: Freddy—Say, old chap, how do you manage to kiss a girl when the chaperon is right close by?

Teddy—Why, by kissing the chaperon first.

Chicago Tribune: Miss Justin—Do tell me! What is the newest thing in swell gowns?

Miss Tartun—Why, dear, you are.

Philadelphia Press: "You don't agree then that seeing is believing."

"Not much! I see some people every day that I never could believe."

Washington Star: "I suppose you have said some things you were sorry for in your public career."

"I have," answered Senator Sorghum. "I once said 'yes' to $50,000 when I might just as well have had $100,000."

New York Sun: Hannibal was crossing the Alps.

"Yes," he boasted, "I know Italy lies beyond 'em. A sweet girl graduate told me so."

Armed with this information, he marched valiantly forward.

Chicago Tribune: Swiftly whizzed and wheezed the automobile down the boulevard.

"What is that little pocket for?" asked the young woman, as a leather projection on the back of the seat in front of her caught her eye.

"That's where we carry the—er—automobile," answered the young man.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Minneapolis Tribune: The Minnesota board of pardons continues to make the excellent record of reason and firmness that characterized it under the last state administration. Here as in other states the wisdom of dividing the power of clemency formerly exercised by the governor among a board is continually justified by experience. Further, it is easier to lodge in a board containing some criminal experts the rather complicated powers of suspension and modification of sentence approved by modern criminal science.

St. Paul Globe: The attempt to make J. Pierpont Morgan an issue in the Chicago campaign might have been inspired by a desire on the part of Mr. Rockefeller to give some other philantropist a chance to stand in the spot light.

Crookston Times: The passage of the Perley bill will give general satisfaction all around. The educational institutions have secured the emancipation desired and the board of control has gained a longer lease of life. The governor's signature is all that is necessary for the bill to become a law and he will sign it. The board's authority over the educational institutions will be limited to the purchase of fuel, placing of insurance and superintendence of the construction of new buildings. This will leave the board of directors of state normal schools and the board of regents of the State university free to act with final authority in the educational control of those institutions, without hindrance or friction. A fight that has been in progress ever since the board of control was created has come to an end.

Dawson Sentinel: It is an unfortunate thing for the Republican party of Minnesota that there was a sufficient number of small potato politicians in the legislature to pass the Horton bill over Governor Johnson's veto. How our representatives are going to explain their votes on this matter is a mystery; but they will probably try to tell us a whole lot of stuff about the building not being completed, etc. That will hardly wash down, however. The intent of the measure is simply to take away from Governor Johnson a few minor appointments which he did not care for. The Republicans in the legislature have done one thing that they did not intend. They have made John A. Johnson the most popular man in the state of Minnesota, and furthermore, have made him the next governor if he chooses to be a candidate.

Ortonville Herald-Star: The legislature passed the rattlesnake bill and killed the anti-cigarette bill. Gol darn it, the rattler and nasty kid can make a cigarette. Great statesmanship.

Buffalo Journal: The primary election laws will probably not be amended so as to avoid the contested delegation scheme wich resulted in a Democratic governor for Minnesota.

Ortonville Herald-Star: All this discussion about possible Republican candidates for governor two years hence is premature. We are all too mad to be fair or decent about it now.

PRECEPTS RUN TO EARTH.

He never took a day of rest,
He couldn't afford it;
He never had his trousers pressed,
He couldn't afford it.
He never went away, sans fee,
To visit distant lands, to see
How fair a place this world might be,
He couldn't afford it.

He never went to see a play,
He couldn't afford it.
His love for art he put away,
He couldn't afford it.
He died and left his heirs a lot,
But no tall shaft proclaims the spot
In which he lies—his children thought
They couldn't afford it.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: There is mighty little poetry in raising a family of ten.

A man is so unreasonable he would rather pay doctors' bills than milliners' bills.

Twins are like having pneumonia when you expected to go to a baseball game.

The devil could get a very big salary if he would come up and live in New York.

You can generally tell when a girl has been kissed before by the way she pretends she hasn't.

Graft of the Tobacco Trust.

Portland Oregonian: The profits of the Tobacco trust last year were $22,228,182, and the institution is credited with a surplus of nearly $30,000,000. Now that "trust-busting" has become a favorite pastime, it might be a good plan to put the Tobacco trust on the rack. Tobacco is not a necessities of life, but it is one of the necessities of life, but it is one of the necessities of life, but it is one of the necessities so universally used that the consumers perhaps should not be held and robbed by the exorbitant demands of the trust. This is another of the tariff-fed infant industries which already does something more than sit up and take notice. By hammering down the price of the raw material and increasing that of the manufactured article, the Tobacco trust has an unbeatable system for working "both ends against the middle."

For Coughs, Colds, Throat and Lung affections, Piso's Cure is most effective.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Nine Men Are Elected to Fill Seventeen Offices.

Newberry—In the election in the newly created township of Grand Island, Alger county, last week nine men were elected to fill seventeen offices. A total of fourteen votes were polled, the maximum number, principally all of them being cast by the employes of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, owner of Grand Island, Lake Superior, which it has made one of the most noted game preserves in the country.

The new township embraces Grand Island and a comparatively small acreage on the mainland. It was created recently by the legislature on the petition of the Cleveland Cliffs company, which owns practically all of the territory it comprises, for which reason there was no opposition to giving it full control of affairs. A. O. Jopling was chosen supervisor and school trustee; H. N. Ormsbee, clerk and justice of the peace; A. A. Powell, treasurer, school inspector and constable; C. C. Powell, member of board of review and justice; A. E. Powell, member board of review; Timothy Dee, justice and school trustee; J. Parker, justice, and J. A. Mitchell, constable. The township is the smallest in the state, and has the fewest number of inhabitants.

Calumet—Sawmills are starting up on the season's cut at nearly all the upper peninsula manufacturing points. The input of logs was large, perhaps not so much pine being cut as in former years, but running more heavily to hardwoods, hemlock, cedar and other timber.

Norway—The various logging concerns which operated in that territory the past winter banked but 75,450,000 feet of logs, 27,640,000 feet of pulpwood and 5,442,000 ties, posts and poles on the Menominee river and its tributaries. This is the smallest amount of timber that will be driven down the stream since the organization of the Menominee River Boom company many years ago, and illustrates Upper Michigan's waning influence in the lumbering industry. A few years ago there were two companies operating on the Menominee, and each cut more than 75,000,000 feet of pine annually. Last year the boom company's estimate of the amount of timber to be driven was 116,000,000 feet of pine and 35,000,000 feet of cedar and pulpwood.

Hancock—Work in the old Franklin and Franklin Junior mines of the Franklin Mining company was resumed. Underground employes who have been on a strike for three weeks returned under the old terms.

St. Ignace—The Muskegon Paper company is building a mill plant at Delf, in the Carp river district, for the purpose of preparing pulpwood for shipment to its manufactory at Muskegon.

Ironwood—This city has an ordinance providing a fine of $50 for the use of profane language or indecent language. The officers are enforcing it, and lately have made several arrests.

THE RUSSIAN PARLIAMENT

Details of Its Character Not Yet Decided Upon.

St. Petersburg, April 13.—The report that Former Minister of the Interior Prince Svitapolk-Mirsky will return to public life as president of the rescript commission although not officially confirmed, creates much satisfaction as his sympathy with the principle of popular representation is well known.

Numberless stories are being printed abroad giving details of the character, composition and date of convocation of the coming parliament. The Associated Press can state that they are premature. Countless plans have been submitted, the favorite one being a parliament composed from two sources, an upper house of 120 members, half of them to be nominated by the emperor and half to be elected by the nobility, and a lower house of 625 members elected by various classes in all parts of Russia, including the non-Russian provinces. But the commission has not decided even in principle the nature or composition of the parliamentary body. It is the delay which has destroyed popular confidence in the sincerity of the government, and which led the attorneys' congress to undertake an active, united propaganda by all the liberal professions in behalf of constitutionalism.

The press has won a very considerable victory in the decision of the press commission to remove the censorship from foreign press telegrams. The regulations, however, will not go into effect until the revision of the press laws is complete.

Needles, Oil, Repairs

SINGER STORE,
14 West Superior Street,
Duluth, Minn.

Manager Charles A. Marshall of the Lyceum theater is nothing if not optimistic. In the past two years he has brought to Duluth a number of the foremost musical attractions of the country, and has permitted the musicians of the city to enjoy some of the finest in music, but he is not able to point to any material enlargement of his bank account in consequence, but rather can show a deficit. The Paderewski concert was an exception possibly, but it was not a money-maker, not drawing anything like what it has in the cities of the country generally.

Discouraging as this record is, however, Mr. Mashall will make one more effort to arouse the musical enthusiasm of Duluthians and will give them a May festival the like of which they have never had. It will be easily the greatest musical occasion Duluth has ever known.

The offering will be the famous Pittsburg orchestra, directed by Emil Paur, and Madame Johanna Gadski, the great prima donna, than whom the world has no greater.

Emil Paur has directed some of the greatest orchestras of the world. For five years he was conductor of the Boston Symphony. Following that he succeeded the late Anton Seidl as director of the New York Philoharmonic society and later conducted in a number of the leading orchestras of Europe. He was secured for the Pittsburg organization some time ago. Since the death of Theodore Thomas and the agitation of the securing of a new leader for that organization, Mr. Paur's name has been urged by a large number.

Madame Gadski is one of the great singers of the world. She was brought to this country from Berlin in 1894 by Walter Damrosch and later joined the Grau Opera company, then going to the Conreid company, but severing her relations later because of business difference. Since then she has been appearing in concert.

To get this attraction Manager Marshall has had to obligate himself heavily and may find it expensive, but is willing to make one more effort to arouse the music-loving public to enthusiasm.

The date for the concert has not been fixed, but it will be about May 20.

Membership Banquet.

The banquet that is the reward to the contestants in the membership contests of the Young Women's Christian association took place last evening, and was the second affair of the sort in the history of the association. The guests were Miss Augusta Ehling, captain of the winning team, which was composed of Misses Tangen, Drew, Schultz, Leopold and Shearer, the new members secured by them, the members of the committee of the association, and the president of the association and those members who had worked in the contest. The tables were laid in the reception and dining rooms of the association, and simple decorations of jonquils and ferns were used.

After the dinner, which was served at 6:30 o'clock, an hour was given to a number of informal and entertaining toasts. Mrs. William Asher, chairman of the membership committee, presided as toastmistress, and introduced Miss Ella Roe, president of the association, who extended the welcome to the new members, those who had been reinstated, and generously promoted all the lieutenants who worked in the contest to generals.

Miss Ehling responded to the next toast, and thanked her co-workers for their enthusiastic support, and extended to them the credit for the victory. She was followed by Miss Marie Cameron and Miss Mabel Dean, the captains of the less successful teams, and Miss Tangen, one of Miss Ehling's workers, and Dr. Mary McCoy. Miss Emma Kotz, who was also one of the committee who did not secure the largest number of new members, made a particularly happy little speech. She said:

"In my search for new members, one of the remarks with which I met most often was like unto that given to Paul of old, 'I will hear thee again in this matter.' And last Friday evening, at 7 o'clock, we many of us regretted that those we had importuned to become members were still only 'almost persuaded.' However, our experiences were not without benefit. We all know now how to avoid becoming members of societies or organizations into which we may be asked, hereafter, for reasons and excuses which we have heard during the last month will last us our lives."

The last speaker of the evening was the secretary of the association, Mrs. Wesley Feetham, and in a short talk she thanked the members for the efforts they had made, and for the splendid spirit which has prevailed during the contest, the ultimate good of the association being the ideal which the contestants held before them and not merely the securing of the most members. The affair was a most successful one throughout, and great satisfaction is expressed at the outcome of the second annual contest.

Of Social Interest.

Mrs. William H. Salter was hostess yesterday afternoon at a most charming little reception in honor of Miss Julia Salter whose wedding will take place next week. From 4 to 5 about thirty of the young society women were the guests of Mrs. Salter. Receiving with the hostess and guests of honor was Miss Catherine Macfarlane and assisting about the rooms were Mrs. E. H. Eddy and Mrs. A. R. Macfarlane. The dining room was beautiful in dainty decorations of pink flowers and softly shaded lights and white tulle. Mrs. C. C. Salter presided in this room and was assisted by Miss Ann Macfarlane and Miss Julia Hunter.

JOHN GIVEN'S NOTE

By J. C. Plummer.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Mrs. Given stared at Mr. Craig, the lawyer.

"I'll take every cent I have in the world," she said, "I'll have to sell my house to pay this here note."

"You admit this is your husband's signature," retorted the lawyer, "and he must have owed the money or he wouldn't have given the note. If it had been paid it would not have been in the possession of Capt. Downing and there's no indorsement of any money having been paid on it. In common justice the note must be paid."

Mrs. Given picked up the note and spelled it over.

"On demand I promise to pay to Robert Downing, five hundred dollars. (Signed) John Given."

"I'm sure," she said, "that if John had owed this here note he'd 'a' told me of it."

"There's the note, ma'am," said the lawyer, drily, "I'm afraid you'll find it difficult to prove its payment."

Mr. Craig took his departure with an ominous shake of his head and Mrs. Given looked gloomily out of the window at the grey clouds that hovered over the town.

Captains Downing and Given had been close friends. They had worked their way from before the mast to skippers, and then to being vessel owners in a small way. Capt. Downing, who had never married, had accumulated the more money, for John Given was free handed and when he died left only the house he lived in to his widow.

Mrs. Given had met conditions bravely. She had formerly been a dressmaker and now took up her calling. Her son was a sailor and her daughter, Julia, had obtained a position in a millinery store. With Mrs. Bond as boarder, the aggregate income was enough to afford moderate comfort, but with house rent to pay and no boarder, prospects were gloomy. It was evident that the house would not bring more than enough to pay the note, if that much.

The brig which Capt. Downing commanded had been encountered at sea, and abandoned in a sinking condition. The crew had probably taken to the boats and as nothing had been heard of them for the space of five months they were given up as lost.

Capt. Downing left no will, and his very comfortable property went to his sister, Miss Janet. The note of Capt. Given had been found in the table drawer in which Capt. Downing kept his papers. As the two mariners had many joint transactions it seemed entirely plausible that the note had not been paid and that John Given had not been mindful of it when he died. Capt. Downing had kept his business affairs in the crudest manner and there was no record of any transactions between him and Capt. Given.

Miss Janet Downing was a lady of 50, astute and pious. She was a devoted church woman and extremely economical. Her neighbors denominated this trait, stinginess. With a full knowledge of Miss Janet's characteristics, Mrs. Given called on her, with a vague hope that something might come of her visit.

"I'm sure that John would have told me about that note if he had owed it," said Mrs. Given, tearfully.

"But, Sister Given," replied Miss Janet, "if he had paid it Brother Robert would have given him back his note. Mr. Craig says that is the way such matters are done."

"If you will have the money," said Mrs. Given, "can't you take it in dribs and drabs, so I won't have to sell my house. You can't need the money. You've a-plenty."

"But I do need it, Sister Given," replied Miss Janet. "I'm going to give it to the missionary found. Since I heard Brother Baggs preach so grand about them poor darkened sinners in the South Sea islands, I have been anxious to help the cause. I heard you say at the church when Brother Baggs had finished his sermon that you'd like to give him a hundred dollars for the heathen, Sister Given."

Apparently Mrs. Given's enthusiasm over Brother Bagg's sermon had cooled, for she made no reply.

"It will be a glorification to us both," continued Miss Janet, "to know that this here money is being put to such a use and I'm sure you will feel as glad as I do that we have it to use that away."

"Them there heathen," remarked Mrs. Given, slowly, "have no house rent to pay and no coal to buy."

"They have souls to save," put in Miss Janet.

"Then you must have the money?"

"We will donate it," suggested Miss Janet.

"To think," said Mrs. Given, as she recounted her interview to her daughter and the boarder, Mrs. Bond, "that that rambler rose bush 'll be out this spring better than ever. It 'll cover the back porch and the house won't be ours."

"Hi'm a member of the church of Hengland," said Mrs. Bond, viciously, "and a good Christian, but I 'opes them there 'eathen 'll buy new hidols with that money Miss Downing gives 'em."

Accordingly, a bill was put in the window, offering the house for sale, and Mrs. Given, with a heavy heart began to look around for cheap lodgings.

One day, when the first snow of winter was falling, Mrs. Riggs, wife of the ship chandler, came rushing into Mrs. Given's kitchen.

"He's saved!" she gasped. "Capt. Downing and his mate are saved; picked up by a ship and carried to some outlandish place. He's in New York and will be home tonight."

"Thank God," ejaculated Mrs. Given, "Capt. Bob 'll give me some time to pay that there note."

As the suspense was unbearable, Mrs. Given hastened around to Capt. Downing's house early the next day.

Miss Janet, Mr. Craig and the Captain were in the room. Mrs. Given, without even congratulating the captain on his rescue, put in her petition.

"Jack Given didn't owe any note," replied Capt. Bob, "he paid it long ago."

"Then," said Mr. Craig, "what was it doing in your table drawer?"

"There's where it belonged," retorted Capt. Bob. "I never used any of them notes and when Jack borrowed the money he had some new fangled idee about giving this here note. I took the note and when I tells Jack to keep it so he could tell he owed it, and when Jack pays it he tells me to keep it so I could tell he had paid it. That's all business."

"Hum," coughed Mr. Craig.

"And the poor heathen," whispered Miss Janet.

HE SINGS A SONG OF CHEER

Congressman C. B. Landis Preaches of Cheerfulness and Optimism.

Congressman Charles B. Landis of Indiana spoke to the smallest audience the Star lecture course had during the year. The subject upon which he was announced to speak was "The Mission of the Anglo-Saxon," but when he faced the audience he changed it and delivered a sermon upon cheerfulness and an appeal for optimism. He preached the greatness of America and the opportunity it offers and ridiculed the oft heard saying that the young man of today does not have the chance that the one of a generation ago had. That saying has been repeated for generations and generations he says. He spoke of the rise of William McKinley from a modest home and humble beginning to be the foremost man of his time, not alone in this nation, but in the affairs of the world and said that William McKinley confided to him shortly before his death that when he came back from the war to settle down and start out in the world he was told that there was little opportunity then for a young man to make anything of himself.

Mr. Landis named the members of McKinley's cabinet and told of the origin of each and every one beginning life in the most humble way.

It is the poor young men from the humbler walks of life that are winning the laurels in business and industry, he said, because it is they that develop their brains and that are capable of taking charge of great things. Opportunities were never so numerous nor so large as now. Brains were never in greater demand and he declared that both men and women have openings before them such as they never had before and such as no other country can afford.

He scored the pessimist and declared that the world is growing better. Though much is heard of greed and graft, there is not half the corruption in public life today that there once was. During eight years of service in the house he had seen but two men appear on the floor under the influence of liquor and yet had been informed by old attaches that thirty or forty years ago it was a common sight to see congressmen reeling about the corridors. Within two years the sale of liquor has for the first time been driven out from the national capitol. There never was a time when people demanded as they do now that the men they elect to office shall be of clean morals.

Mr. Landis is a pleasing speaker, with a fine flow of language, and a good nature that beams from his countenance. He looks as though he practices what he preaches and that nothing but optimism could exude from his personality.

AMERICANS INVITED

To Attend International Congress at Mons, Belgium.

Washington, April 13.—Through the Belgian minister at Washington, Baron Moncheur, the Belgian government has formally invited this government to send an official delegation to participate in an international congress at Mons, Belgium, beginning Sept. 25 next, at which the following topics will be discussed:

"Commercial and technical education, science of statistics, political economy, custom tariffs, navigation, colonization, diplomatic and consular service, and in general means of promoting commerce and civilization."

The invitation to the government has been supplemented by a circular note sent to the Universities and colleges of America and to all institutions and persons interested in the study of economics to attend the congress, and informing them that the Belgian legation at Washington is prepared to furnish them with full particulars.

King Leopold is taking a keen interest in the congress and probably will attend the inaugural sitting and deliver the opening speech. Five cabinet ministers and the speakers of the Belgian senate and house have been appointd honorary presidents.

The state department now has the official invitation under consideration.

FORCED TO RETURN

To His Native Country From Land of the Mikado.

Swam Shark-Infested Bay to Join the Jap Army.

Lexington, Ky., April 13.—Because he was an American and wanted to join the Japanese army in the Russo-Japanese war A. M. Strong of St. Louis, Mo., a newspaper man, magazine writer and illustrator, was deported from Japan and forced to return to his native country. He is in Lexington again, after an absence of fifteen years, and is working for the Southern railway company, in the same capacity that he was employed by this company twenty years ago. Strong is a typical American "soldier of fortune," and has served under half a dozen flags. He has traveled east and west, north and south, until, perhaps, there is no sea he has not sailed nor shore upon which he has not set his foot. The cost of it all has been nothing, the profit in dollars and cents the same.

Strong was in England's main corps at the bombardment of Alexandria in 1881; went up the Nile with Wolseley to Khartoum in 1886, and was with Du Bousler's "Chassiuers de Africe" in Madagascar. He was railroading in Brazil when De Milo tried to overthrow the government in 1892, and resigned his position as conductor to accept a captain's commission. He saw the Spanish-American war as the correspondent of a New York daily. He went to Africa on a house transport and served under Kitchener in the Boer war. Of his latest trip to Japan, whence he has just returned, Mr. Strong says:

"When the latest and greatest war of modern times broke out I was in St. Louis on an evening daily. The dispatches from the East set me on fire. I went to the coast, but there was nothing doing at Frisco. I heard that the Japs were shipping supplies out of Vancouver, so I again hit the trail and a few days later arrived at the British Columbia port. There was no mistake this time, for there were four Japanese transports in the harbor. One, the Nisnwa, loaded with rice and foodstuffs, was waiting a deck load of mules to complete her cargo. I went on board, and after a long and earnest talk with her commander was shipped to care for the expatriated Missourians, the mules.

"After forty-three days we anchored under the hills at Nagasaki. A day later the ship was towed in and the reloading and my troubles commenced. I had no passport—I never carry one—and the Japs wouldn't let me land without one. I tried in every way for over a week to dodge and bribe the guards, but it was no use, and when the Nishwa was towed back to the anchorage, ready to sail the next morning, I was still on board.

"That night as I stood on the deck watching the lights in the distant city an empty box floated by, going toward the shore as if it carried a sail. It gave me an idea, and an hour or two later, with my camera and my clothes in a tub, I punished the horse deck, I was swimming for the shore. I wouldn't chance that trip again for all the wealth of Japan, even including the new war loan, for I learned the next day that there are more sharks in Nagasaki bay than any place in the China sea. When I awoke the next forenoon the Nishwa was gone; then I went down into the city to look for a recruiting office, determined to enlist if I couldn't stay there under any other circumstances.

"I found the office in charge of a little brown major, with whom I had been quite chummy during the early summer at the St. Louis World's Fair. When my turn came, and I presented myself for enrollment the wheels of the business stopped. The major recognized me, and then showed me marked consideration. He said I had broken into the "Island empire" without the consent of the mikado, and he would have to arrest me and hold me until I could be deported. Eventually the major was sent back to his regiment, which was in Manchuria, and his successor promptly sent me home. The reason assigned for refusing my service was that Japan would not enlist foreigners, and there are none in her great army today. If victory perches on the banners of the mikado Japan will reap all the glory. If they go down to defeat they go alone."

"BACK TO THE PEOPLE," DEMOCRATIC BATTLE CRY.

New York, April 13.—Congressman Henry T. Rainey of Illinois has been the chief speaker at a Jefferson dinner given here by the Harlem Democratic club. He declared the new battle cry of the Democratic party to be "Back to the people," and applied it to the regulation of all public utilities. In this condition he said:

"If it is found impossible to regulate and control these public utilities—so that they are the servants, not the masters of the people—Chicago has pointed out the way. Rather than submit to railroad ownership of the instruments of government, the people will demand and will have government ownership of railroads."

AN ENORMOUS OUTPUT OF IRON

Two Million Tons Were Consumed In Month of March.

New York, April 13.—Consumption of 2,000,000 tons of pig iron in March is shown by the monthly statistics of the Iron Age. The output of anthracite pig iron during March was 1,930,000 tons. To this must be added about 34,000 tons of charcoal iron. Taking into account a reduction in the stocks of merchant furnaces, the extraordinary total of 2,000,000 tons is reached.

The enormous output, as contrasted with former months, was due largely to the record breaking in some of the great districts, like Pittsburg with its 510,000 tons, the Shenango valley with 155,000 tons and the Illinois-Northwest group with its 253,000 tons. While such records may not be at once repeated, the furnaces usually work best in April, May and June and the handling of raw materials is not impeded.

The heavy production indicates a possibility that importations of foreign iron and steel on a large scale, which has been rather threatening of late may be avoided.

KILLED STEPFATHER.

Awful Tragedy On Ranch Near Malta Mont.

Malta, Mont., April 13.—Because William Sitz, his stepfather, had chastised him for some fault earlier in the day, William Armington, a 12-year-old boy, secured a gun and while Sitz was at work is alleged to have deliberately murdered him.

The shooting occurred at Sitz's ranch about eight miles from here Tuesday afternoon. Sitz was a well-known rancher and had resided in this community for years. Young Armington was arrested, but is not allowed to make any statement regarding the affair.

The affair has created a sensation, as the boy has heretofore borne a splendid reputation. Owing to the distance from town and the lack of communication, it is impossible to learn all details of the shooting, except that Sitz died shortly afterward and Mrs. Sitz is heartbroken over the act of her son in killing her husband.

The cause of the shooting is supposed to have been a quarrel between the boy and the stepfather. The boy's mother put him out of the house to prevent further trouble. When she came out of the house the boy returned and, securing a rifle, shot at Sitz as he was at the gate. Sitz ran around the barn and down to the river, and as he came up the boy shot him again and he fell to the ground. The boy then fired a third time, which caused instant death.

RAILROAD NEWS

The Details of the Car Service Association Business.

Santa Fe Has Decided to Build $10,000,000 Cut-Off.

The detailed report showing the amount of business transacted in the territory of the Lake Superior Car Service association during the month of March has been compiled by Chairman James Kelly.

The total number of cars handled during the month was 20,373, as compared with 24,069 during March, 1904. The falling off is due largely to the light shipments of coal and grain. In February, 25,576 cars were handled in this territory.

The number of cars, and the names of the roads handling them, are given as follows:

Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, Duluth, 864; Superior, 1,674. Northern Pacific, Duluth and stations in Minnesota, 7,495; Superior and stations in Wisconsin, 3,046. Great Northern, Duluth and stations in Minnesota, 3,075; Superior and stations in Wisconsin, 3,046. Duluth & Iron Range, Duluth, 476. Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, Duluth, 252; Superior, 351. Terminal & Transfer company, Superior, 94.

The commodities handled and the number of cars required to transfer them are given in the following statement:

Hay and straw, 745; flour, feed and bran, 480; corn and oats, 881; general groceries and merchandise, 342; sugar, syrup and salt, 335; fruit and vegetables, 145; meat and live stock, 27; beer, 153; oil, 131; furniture, 75; lumber and forest products, 5,084; wood, 188; brick, tile and sewer pipe, 267; stone and sand, 171; cement, lime and clay, 257; wagons and wagon stuff, 12; iron, iron pipe and machinery, 1,814; empty barrels and barrel stock, 93; ice, 8; lumbermen's outfits, 20; paper, 87; copper, 165; total, 11,970. Wheat, flax and barley, 1,251; coal and coke, 7,152.

The trackage and car rental amounted to $1,104.50.

EXPENSIVE WORK.

Santa Fe Will Build Cut-Off to Coast.

According to the Chicago Record-Herald official announcement is made that the Santa Fe has decided to build a $10,000,000 cut-off to the coast, with a view of getting rid of the mountain grades which are now encountered in the transcontinental travel. The Record-Herald says:

"Orders have been given for the purchase of all the material necessary and work will be begun within thirty days. The work will be pushed to completion rapidly, and the new transcontinental low grade line will be ready for opening within a year of fifteen months.

"The western end of the cut-off will be at Belen N. M., twenty-seven miles south of Albuquerque, on the El Paso line, and the eastern end will be at Texico, 250 miles away, on the Pecos Valley lines of the Santa Fe.

"The new road will cross the Sierra Nevada mountains at Abo Pass at an elevation of 6,491 feet, but at a maximum grade east-bound of 1¼ per cent, and west-bound of .6 of 1 per cent. The line will cross the Santa Fe Central near Willard and the El Paso & Northwestern at Llano, N. M."

WHAT CAR LOAD IS.

Circular Explaining Increased Capacity of Cars.

According to a circular just issued by W. W. Broughton, freight traffic manager of the Great Northern road, "the carrying capacity of freight cars has been increased to such an extent, during the last few years, that the quantity of freight in a 'carload' no longer represents the same relation to the carrying capacity of the car. Formerly most freight cars of the Great Northern's equipment had a capacity of 40,000 pounds; today our cars range in capacity from 60,000 to 80,000 pounds. Yet orders for carloads of nearly all commodities are still based on a tonnage of 30,000 to 40,000 pounds.

"From an economic standpoint, it is essential to this line that its cars be loaded as near to the carrying capacity as is consistent with trade conditions and the nature of the freight."

Fishing Rates.

The Great Northern has announced that its special summer fishing rates will go into effect tomorrow, April 14, and continue until Oct. 28. During this period tickets over the Great Northern to fishing resorts along the line through Northern Minnesota may be obtained at the price of one fare for the round trip. They will be sold Friday and Saturday of each week, good returning the following Monday. Last year the rates were very popular with local enthusiasts. The other roads centering in Duluth will put special rates in effect in the near future.

Is Promoted.

F. A. Tate, who has been acting as assistant ticket agent in the local Northern Pacific city office, left last evening for Minneapolis, where he has been appointed as assistant ticket agent in the Northern Pacific office. He is succeeded in Duluth by E. A. Thayer, who has been employed in the Superior union depot.

SALARY CUT IN TWO.

Receiver Must Shuffle Along on $250 a Month.

Helena, Mont., April 13.—Judge Hunt in United States court has made an order reducing the salary of Receiver Harris of the Snohomish and Tramway mines from $500 to $250 a month. The mines are in litigation between Heinz and the Amalgamated, and Harris has been in cahrge five years. He recently petitioned to have his bond reduced, which was done, when Heinze petitioned the court to reduce his compensation as well. This was done yesterday. It was shown that Harris had only about $10,000 in his possession and that the salary was excessive for the responsibilities of the position.

TO FOLLOW DULUTH

Virginia Cities Will Erect Two Aerial Ferry Bridges.

Will Connect Cities of Norfolk, Berkeley and Portsmouth.

The three cities of Norfolk, Berkeley and Portsmouth, which are grouped together at the mouth of the Elizabeth river in Virginia, will construct two aerial ferry bridges, copied exactly after the pattern of the Duluth bridge, and constructed under the supervision of T. F. McGilvray, Duluth's city engineer.

A company known as the Norfolk Viaduct company has been organized in Norfolk, by a number of prominent bankers and street railway magnates, for the purpose of constructing the two bridges which will be used as toll bridges, and are expected to earn a substantial dividend for the company. The men who are backing the scheme also control the street railway and the bridges will be used by the company to put into service a line of interurban cars between the three cities.

The two bridges are to be built over the north and east branches of the Elizabeth river. The north branch separates Norfolk from Berkeley, and the east branch separates Berkeley from Portsmouth.

The bridge over the north branch will have a span of 460 feet and will be an almost exact duplicate of the Duluth bridge, with the exception that it will be of slightly heavier construction, as the loads to be carried will be greater and a larger car will be used.

The bridge over the east branch will have a span of 500 feet, and will cost almost double what the Duluth bridge cost. It was at first planned to have a third supporting tower built in the center of the span, which would greatly reduce the cost, but the war department objected to placing any obstruction in the river, and this plan had to be abandoned.

Altogether about $350,000 will be expended on the project, and the plan has aroused no little interest among the people in the three cities. It was a complete surprise to them, as the news was not given out to the Norfolk papers until the end of last week. It was announced with extra editions and yellow headlines, and it is the chief topic of discussion there at the present time.

The plans are being drawn up by C. A. P. Turner, the architect of the Duluth bridge, and T. F. McGilvray has been appointed as the general engineer of the new company. The actual construction work is not likely to be commenced for several months yet, so that it will not interfere with Mr. McGilvray's work as city engineer for the coming summer at least.

The new bridges will be within sight of the historic scene of the naval battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac, and but a few miles from Old Point Comfort.

Still Coming In Crowds.

In the early part of January several thousand immigrants from Russia landed in New York, and it is expected many thousands more will soon arrive. They desire to escape military service and the general tyranny of that country. If you want to escape the tortures inflicted on you by a rebellious stomach, inactive liver or weak kidneys, resort to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters at once. It has given freedom to thousands during its fifty years' experience and will be just as effective in your case. One bottle will be sufficient to prove its wonderful merit and that's why we urge you, for your health's sake, to get it today. It positively cures spring fever, colds, grippe, poor appetite, dyspepsia, indigestion, billiousness, costiveness or malaria, fever and ague. Don't accept a substitute.

METHODIST CONFERENCE

Of Crookston District Held at Park Rapids.

Park Rapids, Minn., April 13.—(Special to The Herald.—The seventh session of the Crookston district conference of the Methodist Episcopal church of the Northern Minnesota conference is in session here, and about thirty clergymen are present from the various churches in the Northwest. The conference was opened by a song service, led by Ray C. Abams, Park Rapids, and the conference sermon was preached by B. F. Kock of Hewitt. Rev. Dr. Doods of Crookston, presided. Rev. C. W. B. Ellis, conference evangelist, had charge of the love feast at which a large number of preachers and laymen were present. The holy communion was celebrated in the morning.

Revs. W. L. Singer, Cass Lake, and G. E. Satterlee of Crookston, discussed the practical methods of winning men. A lively discussion arose on this subject on the advisability of going into questionable places to talk with men on gospel matters. The question of receiving money from saloonkeepers was keenly debated and the sentiment was against that mode of receiving money. One preacher said he would take money from any source as long as it was used legitimately for good purposes. The sentiment of the conference was against this. There were loud cries of protest when one clergyman said he would receive money from John D. Rockefeller, because he could do much good with it in building churches where they did not exist.

The afternoon services were well attended. A paper by Rev. Robert Burnip of Breckenridge, was read and Rev. J. G. Morrison of Fergus Falls discussed "The Best Methods of Conducting Sunday Evening Service." Rev. B. Collins, of Donaldson, discussed "What Can be Done to Reach the Rural Communities." A very interesting discussion arose over the subject, presented by Revs. G. E. Tindall of Warren, and C. H. Flesher of Thief River Falls: "What Social Features Can be Recommended to be Wholesome and Uplifting."

The evening song service was conducted by Revs. L. A. Dodge of Hawley, and Edwin Deacon of Fosston, preached the sermon.

GETS HIGH HONOR

J. P. Weir Elected Lay Delegate to Presbyterian Assembly.

Rev. Peter Knudsen of New Duluth Is Ministerial Delegate.

J. P. Weir of West Duluth, who with Rev. W. J. Lowrie, was a delegate from the Westminster Presbyterian church to the presbytery meeting at Cloquet, has been given one of the highest honors in the gift of the presbytery. Mr. Weir has been elected lay delegate from the Duluth presbytery to the general assembly of the Presbyterian hurch of America to be held at Winona Lake, Ind., on May 18.

The ministerial delegate is Rev. Peter Knudsen of New Duluth. Mr. Weir's election as delegate was unanimous, but Mr. Knudsen had some opposition, winning by a vote of 15 to 13 over Rev. Mr. Marsh of Virginia.

The alternates elected were: Ministerial, Rev. Mr. Marsh of Virginia; lay, Samuel A. Blair of Lakeside, the Sabbath school missionary for this presbytery.

Nothing of local import came up before the presbytery, but the election of Mr. Weir, coming as it did, is considered a very pronounced mark of the high esteem in which he is held.

MR. GOVETTE'S FUNERAL

Held From the Presbyterian Church.

The funeral of Thomas Govette took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Westminster Presbyterian church, where Rev. F. G. Clark of the Asbury Methodist church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hoag, conducted the services. The Odd Fellows also held services at the church and performed their ritual for the burial of the dead. The Odd Fellows, Royal Neighbors and Modern Woodmen of America attended the funeral in a body. A large number of friends attended and the church was crowded.

Mrs. Govette's brother, Mr. Meadow of Eveleth, Mr. Govette's cousin, Mr. Govette of Tower, and others from outside of the city were present.

May Leave Here.

Mrs. Jack Schuler and Miss Dermedy will leave in a few days for St. Paul. Later they will go to Portland, Or., to attend the Lewis & Clark exposition, which will open there soon. It it not unlikely that later in the year Mr. Schuler will go to the coast to reside and enter business there. The Shulers are beraking up housekeeping at West Duluth, and for the present will store their furniture. Mr. Schuler will have rooms in the Commercial club building.

Has Narrow Escape.

Florence Forsberg, a 14-year-old girl employed at the Union Match factory, came nearly meeting a horrible end yesterday afternoon. Her hair in some way caught in a revolving pulley and she was whirled around and a portion of her scalp badly torn. Quite a tuft of hair was dragged from the scalp. Between the wounds she received and the shock she was prostrated. Dr. D. Graham was called and is now attending her. He had to take several stitches in her scalp.

Married at West Duluth.

The marriage of Miss Bessie Scanlon of West Duluth and Edward Van Rosmalen of Green Bay, Wis., took place last evening at the home of Mrs. L. J. Gibson, 103 Fifty-first avenue west. Miss Jennie Penhale was maid of honor, and Joseph Connelly was best man. Rev. Roderick J. Mooney performed the ceremony. Following the marriage a reception was held and a supper served. About fifty friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Van Rosmalen will keep house at 218 West Fourth street.

ENOCH ARDEN CASE

Occurs In Connecticut With Material Variations.

Essex, Conn., April 13.—This town has an Enoch Arden case with material variations. Charles Hyatt, who left there twelve years ago and was supposed to be dead, has returned to find his wife married again and the children increased four. After waiting six years for her husband to return, Mrs. Hyatt married George Rand. Four children were born to them. The family were eating supper Saturday evening when the supposed dead man walked in upon them. Rand immediately vacated the premises and with the two oldest of his children left town. Hyatt, who, so far as known, has refused to tell of his whereabouts during the past twelve years, is again the head of the household. Hyatt is a baker. Mrs. Hyatt-Rand-Hyatt is a member of the Congregational church.

Birthday Celebrated.

Members of Flaaten's Third Regiment band last night assisted George Huse, trombone player of the organization, in the celebration of his thirty-ninth birthday. After the performance at the Lyceum the band men repaired to their rooms on Fourth street, where John Gonska, one of the organizations' original patrons, had prepared an excellent spread in honor of the occasion.

Covers were laid for sixteen people and Mr. Huse's surprise when he was ushered into the room could not have been more complete. After the repast had been dispatchd toasts were offered to the "Guest of Honor," "Our Host," "Director Flaaten" and "The Third Regiment band." During the smoker which followed early reminiscences were recalled and plans for the future discussed.

Mr. Huse has been a member of the organization for ten years and his associates tendered sincere wishes for many happy returns of the day.

FREDERICK A. STOCK

To Be Leader of Theodore Thomas Orchestra.

Chicago, April 13.—By the action of the trustees of the Chicago orchestra, the name of Theodore Thomas orchestra was adopted instead of that by which the organization has been konwn for years. Frederick A. Stock, the understudy of the great leader, was made director for the ensuing year.

It was thought by some than an effort should be made to secure the services of some of the foreign orchestra leaders, and the names of Felix Mottl of Munich and Felix Weingartner of Berlin were submitted. After short discussion, however, it was thought that the orchestra would be as well handled under the leadership of the man who had studied and worked under the eyes of Mr. Thomas for ten years, and Mr. Stocks was chosen unanimously.

HER MIND WEAK

Mrs. Oscar Lomoe of Itasca Attempts to Take Life.

Tries to Kill Children and Herself—Her Condition Precarious.

In a moment of apparent mental derangement, caused by lack of sleep, Mrs. Oscar Lomoe of Itasca, a suburb of Superior, attempted yesterday afternoon to take the lives of her two little children and then kill herself by slashing their throats with a razor.

Mr. Lomoe, who is cashier and dock agent for the Omaha road at Itasca, was away from home at the time. Mrs. Lomoe, having been left sick in bed, in the care of a nurse. The nurse is said to have left the room for a moment, when she heard one of the children, a 6-year-old boy, cry for help, that his mother was killing him. Hastening back the nurse found the children, one of them an infant daughter, with cuts in the throat, while the mother lay unconscious across the bed with a long gash in her own throat.

The children are said to have excellent chances for recovery, but Mrs Lomoe is in a precarious condition.

She is highly thought of among her neighbors, where she has lived for several years. Recently her delicate condition has preyed upon her mind until she has insomnia, and it is believed that she has been temporarily crazed.

The company is capitalized at $50 000.

FIVE WERE ELECTED

Names of the New Directors of the Commercial Club.

Favorable Reports at Annual Meeting of Organization.

At the annual meeting of the Commercial club, held last evening, Secretary H. V. Eva announced the result of the election of directors, which occurred yesterday, as follows:

J. W. Kreitter, superintendent of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, 163 votes; W. E. Magner, of the D. G. Cutler company, 158 votes; J. I. Thomas, agent of the Northern Pacific railway company, 158 votes; George H. Crosby, realty dealer, 156 votes; A. B. Bleach of Duluth-Superior Milling company, 151 votes.

Of the ten candidates running the above five were declared elected. They will serve for a term of two years each. The five holding over from last year are C. W. Elston, E. M. Ferguson, G. L. Douglas, Jr.; Frank Crassweller and George C. Stone. The retiring directors are W. A. McGonagle, Julius H. Barnes, G. A. Eaton, F. W. Heimlick and C. R. Rust None of these were candidates for re-election

The directors will hold a meeting within the next few days and elect officers for the ensuing year.

By the annual report of the secretary, as read at the annual meeting, it was shown that the club was now in a better condition every way than it has been at any time in the past.

President W. A. McGonagle gave an interesting general talk relative to affairs of the organization, but announced that, owing to his continued absence from the city during the past two weeks, he had not as yet been able to prepare his annual report, which will be submitted later.

Mr. Eva's report showed the club to have 903 members who are paid up in their dues and in good standing. The names of more than 100 members who are behind in their dues, and who have been stricken from the list, were not included in the count. The secretary deplored the fact that, out of the large membership, the club was not more liberally patronized as a social center, and asked those who were present to exert their influence in getting their friends to spend more of their spare time about the club rooms.

The club's assets were placed at $13,-935.62, of which amount about $9,800 is in furniture. The balance is principally in cash items. The organization is in fine condition.

"We have stopped all leaks and corrected mistakes," said Mr. Eva.

"The club has made marked progress during the past year," said President McGonagle. "Never in the past has it been in as sound a condition in all departments and in all respects as it is tonight. The organization is to be complimented on its management, as the several departments particularly as regards the office of secretary. Mr. Eva is thoroughly competent and worthy. I am pleased to be able to testify as to his ability. I hope that we shall be able to retain his services. The position is a hard one to fill, but no one who has paid attention to the work while it has been in charge of Mr. Eva can find room for complaint."

The president also congratulated the club on the character and ability of the men chosen as directors, saying that a better selection could not well have been made. He thanked the members for the honor they had conferred upon him by twice electing him president, and remarked that it was with a feeling of deep appreciation for kindnesses shown that he laid down the gavel. He said that in relinquishing the reins of office he in nowise withdrew his services from the body, but simply retired to the rear rank as a private where his counsel and personal services would always be wholly theirs, as in the past. He said that while in office he had worked to prevent discord, and to keep the organization from being used for the advancement of private interests. The club now stands well with all the local interests, business, social and religious.

"There has been an attempt made to keep the club's billiard rooms open on Sunday, in defiance of the wishes of the religious and social elements. I stand most positively opposed to any such move. To succeed the club must be respectable, and it cannot remain respectable with the billiard rooms remaining open to the members on the Sabbath."

C. L. Twohy said that since its inception the club has been a grand success, particularly since President McGonagle and Secretary Eva were placed in office. He moved that a vote of thanks be extended these officers for their efficient services. The motion was enthusiastically carried. Mr. McGonagle and Mr. Eva both returned expressions of appreciation for this tribute.

It was voted to drop the "trade-mark" now used by the club, "Duluth, the gem city of the Northwest," and to return to the old one, "Duluth, the Zenith City." Sentiment in favor of the change was unanimous.

KIRBY THOMAS HAS RESIGNED

Gives Up Postmastership at Superior For Newspaper Business.

Postmaster Kirby Thomas of Superior, Wis., has tendered his resignation to Congressman John J. Jenkins, of Chippewa Falls, to take effect June 1 next.

Mr. Thomas states that he desires to be relieved of his governmental office for business reasons, and that he expects to go back into the newspaper business. He would have two and a half years longer to serve to complete his term.

Previous to his appointment as postmaster, Mr. Thomas was manager of the Superior Telegram, having been engaged in the newspaper business many years.

O. K. Anderson, a prominent Republican of Superior and who was county clerk from 1892 to 1896, is being pushed forward to succeed Mr. Thomas, in fact, petitions have been quietly circulating for some time getting the signatures of prominent citizens recommending the appointment of Mr. Anderson. These petitions are now in Congressman Jenkin's hands.

INFRINGE ON PATENT.

Board of Education Sued By Portland Company.

The board of education and its president Charles L. Codding are the defendants in a suit filed in United States district court yesterday by the Paul Steam System company of Portland, Me. The plaintiff alleges that the local board of education has infringed one of its patent rights in connection with a steam radiator appliance. This appliance is a vacuum pipe to be attached to the air valve of radiators, extending to the basement where it is attached to a syphon. Through this device the pounding noise caused by steam entering a radiator in which steam has been condensed into water, is prevented.

This device is claimed by the plaintiff company to be a patent and that it has the sole right of this patent's manufacture. The board of education is sued for the profits accruing from its manufacture of the device and also an injunction against further infringement is asked. The device is said to have been generally used in the local schools.

Claims Husband Was Lazy.

Mary Matson Klemal of Biwabik, alleging non-support, laziness and habitual drunkenness, has begun an action in district court for an absolute decree of divorce from Ernest A. Klemal. She also asks for custody of her infant child and for alimony. The complaint shows that the couple were married at Biwabik last November and have been living with Klemal's parents. Mrs. Klemal claims that during pendency of the case she cannot live with her husband's people, but will be compelled to earn her own living by working in boarding houses.

NERVOUS AND DESPONDENT

Mrs. R. T. Brockette, a Prominent New York Society Lady Tells S. F. Boyce What Rexall Mucu-Tone Did for Her.

Mrs. R. T. Brockette, well known in foreign, as well as American society circles, writes Mr. S. F. Boyce that Rexall Mucu-Tone has overcome her prejudices against patent medicines.

"I have received so much benefit from the use of your Mucu-Tone that I feel I ought not to hesitate in an acknowledgment of my debt to you. In 1900 I went abroad for my health, spending three years in France, Switzerland, Italy, Holland and England. I was quite weak, and the slightest effort brought on a fit of trembling, so that I had to travel very leisurely. I took the opportunity to consult several good physicians in Paris and London, but the benefit I received from their treatment was but slight and temporary. Returning to New York last fall, I found myself still an invalid.

"My appetite failed, I could not sleep, I had severe headaches and the result of any little shopping trip was always complete prostration. The doctors thought me suffering from nervous debility and malnutrition.

"A short time ago a friend recommended your Rexall Mucu-Tone to me very highly. I had never thought of using a 'patent medicine,' having a natural prejudice against them. But I was so weak and sick and my friend's belief in the medicine so strong that I bought my first bottle of Mucu-Tone then and there.

"Since then I have bought four other bottles and am practically a well woman. I eat heartily, sleep soundly, and am no longer nervous and pale, but a hearty, active woman. If my case was as the doctors said, one of nervous debility and malnutrition, then I am sure you have in Mucu-Tone a wonderful remedy for this condition. Everyone notices the change in me and compliments me on my good health.

"Grateful for your helpful and healing medicine, I remain, etc., Mrs. R. T. Brockette, 215 West 116th St., New York City.

"There are many Duluth people afflicted jut as Mrs. Brockette was, who, if they would only overcome their prejudices aginst patent medicines, could be cured in a few weeks time," says Mr. Boyce. "We have any number of prominent people tell what Rexall Mucu-Tone has done for them, but when we suggest their giving us a statement to that effect, they always say no, they wouldn't want anyone to know that they had used a patent medicine. That's why you constantly hear that only poor people use patent medicines, but it is a mistake. We have as many customers among the society people for Rexall Mucu-Tone as we do the working class, and we keep them all through the merits of the preparation. We have that confidence in it that we willingly guarantee a fifty cent trial bottle will produce beneficial results or we will refund the purchase price to any customer."

THE RICE TRADE

Rice Cultivation Now Important Industry of United States.

Exports of Rice Slightly In Excess of Importation.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 13.—(Special to the Herald.)—"The Rice Industry of the United States" is discussed by E. Seymour Bell, British commercial agent at Chicago, in a report to the British foreign office, a copy of which has just been received by the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics. The report is of especial importance in view of the fact that the United States, in 1904, became a rice exporting, instead of a rice importing nation, increasing her exports 50 per cent and decreasing her imports 20 per cent, as compared with the transactions of the preceding year. In the calendar year 1904 the importationsof rice into the United States amounted to 137,000,000 pounds, as against 178,000,000 in 1903, a decrease of 41,000,000; while the exports of rice (including the shipments to Hawaii and Porto Rico were 138,000,000, as against 92,000,000 in 1903. In 1903 the purchases of foreign-grown rice by the United States exceeded its sales of that staple abroad by 86,000,000 pounds, whereas in 1904 the sales abroad slightly exceeded the importations of rice.

In view of these developments, the following abridgment of Mr. Bell's report will be of interest:

Rice cultivation in the United States has become an important industry. During the fiscal year 1899 the production was 250,280,221 pounds, the land under rice cultivation was 342,218 acres. This year it is calculated that the yield will be about 470,000,000 pounds, the land planted with rice being 643,400 acres. Notwithstanding this large increase it is still insufficient to meet the home demand.

Before 1860 the rice production in the United States was practically limited to the alluvial lands of the Carolinas, Georgia, Florida and Louisiana. When labor conditions were altered, after the Civil War the production in the Eastern states decreased considerably. When machinery was adapted to rice production, and it was discovered that the prairie lands of Southwestern Louisiana and Southern Texas, with their impervious subsoils, would dry before the rice harvest sufficiently to support machinery, there was a revolution in the rice industry.

Fifteen years ago there was scarcely a barrel of commercial rice produced in what is now known as the prairie rice section of Texas, which extends 400 miles along the Gulf coast, and contains some of the most fertile lands on this continent. These lands were then valued at 25 cents to $1.50 per acre. Today improved lands are worth on an average $12.50 per acre. Within the territory there are about thirty rice mills, with a daily capacity of over 20,000 barrels of rice.

By 1898 the canal and the deep-well system of irrigation had been satisfactorily tested, and the rice industry was rapidly extending along safe lines. At this date it was found that too large a percentage of the machine-handled rice was liable to breakage in milling. The attention of the United States department of agriculture was called to this fact, and measures were immediately taken to remedy the defect and to overcome the difficulty by the introduction of new varieties. The department's work resulted in the introduction of a variety from Japan, known as Kiushu, which has given very satisfactory results.

The Kiushu variety is known for its short, thick kernels and thin hull. It takes on but little polish, and the percentage of bran is small.

Japanese growers consider the following points important for the successful growing of rice:

1. The seed should be pure bred, of even quality and size of grain.

2. Any light or imperfect grains should be removed. This is done in Japan by soaking the seed rice in water several days till it is about ready to sprout, when it is thrown into salt water of 1.3 specific gravity and allowed to remain two minutes, being gently stirred meanwhile. The light grains will float, the others are removed, washed in cold water and planted. When a seed drill is to be used the damp seed is first dried by being rolled in the ashes of rice straw.

3. Even sprouting of the grains is very essential to even ripening of the crop. This is accompanied by previously soaking the seed as above stated.

The seed is sown in March and April. A later crop is sometimes sown in June. For this the white seed is used on account of early maturity.

In a report issued by the census bureau, June 23, 1902, and covering eighty establishments, it is shown that since 1880 the number of rice mills in the United States increased 264 per cent, capital 363 per cent, and value of products 178 per cent. This report noted that the increase in Louisiana and Texas was very marked, their production having advanced from 75,-753,856 pounds in 1890 to 179,919,203 pounds in 1900. The statistics indicated that the industry is being transferred from the South Atlantic states to Texas and Louisiana, and later reliable statistics have pointed out a continued change in this respect.

The effect of successful irrigation on the prairie lands was a rise in value of such lands. In 1888 these lands could be obtained at from $1 to $2.50 per acre, according to their facility for cultivation. Some of these same lands are now held at an average price of $30, and a few choice locations bring as much as $50 per acre.

Before the civil war the planter realized 4 or 5 per cent on his investment in the rice business, valuing his slaves employed at from $500 to $800 per head and reckoning them as part of his investment. The planter now realizes from 6 to 10 per cent on the investment.

The following is a comparison of the value of rice lands with wheat lands in various states:

AVERAGE VALUE PER ACRE.

Rice, coast country	$20.00
Wheat:
Indiana	3.71
Illinois	8.32
Iowa	9.20
Kansas	9.73
Missouri	7.88

The following figures on the expense and profits of a 1,000-acre rice farm may be taken as accurate:

Estimated cost of land, improvements and equipment	$32,500
Cost per year for operating farm after improved	13,650
900 acres of rice yielding 45 bushels of 45 pounds each, rough rice, per acre, sold at 85 cents per bushel	32,425
Net income after deducting annual expenses	20,775

Dividing up the investment among six farmers, each would pay $5,416 and would own 166 2-3 acres of land, 1-6 of machinery, canals, fences and levees, 1 house, stable and well, 4 mules, and 1 set of implements. The share of each farmer in the gross earnings would be $5,737 and his share of annual expenses $2,275, leaving the net profit $3,462.

Mr. Bell's report also contains much valuable information as to the selection of land and seed, irrigation, methods of cultivation, flooding, weeding, harvesting, thrashing, polishing, by-products and other technical subjects of importance to those directly interested in the rice industry.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The steamer Ping Suey, which arrived at Victoria Wednesday from Liverpool via the Orient, was chased by a Russian converted steamer formerly a German passenger vessel, after leaving Port Said. The Russian vessel failed to overhaul her.

S. Meekin, a justice of the peace, and George Mayble, a constable at St. Anthony, Marshall county, Iowa, have been arrested charged with oppression in office. Frank Buchan claims that under cover of their office, and by threatening him with arrest, they got him to sign an affidavit that he voted illegally at the recent election.

With certificates of deposit in a Des Moines bank for $7,000 and bills worth $125 wadded together in the lining of his coat, William H. Talmohlen of Des Moines was killed while picking up kindling, presumably for a living, in the railroad yards there. He was dressed in rags and had for months been a frequent visitor in the yards, where he picked up coal and wood, which he either sold or burned.

The Ohio Republican state central committee has decided to hold the state convention at Columbus on May 25 and 26. W. H. Taft, secretary of war, will be temporary chairman of the convention.

The Parrott mine, Butte, Mont., was closed Wednesday as the result of the restraining order issued by Judge Hunt in the case of the Nipper Consolidated against the Parrott company.

Edward Kent, who has been on trial at Stevens Point, Wis., for fatally stabbing his son Walter in a family quarrel, has been acquitted. The alleged crime occurred on Aug. 15, 1904, at the home of the Kents in Belmont. The defense was justifiable homicide.

The Hippodrome, New York's new and largest place of amusement, was opened to the public Wednesday night under the management of Thompson and Dundy, and every one of the 5,000 seats was taken, some of them having been bought at auction at high premiums, and wherever there was standing space it was filled.

Following newspaper charges of fraudulent transactions by certain members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange of Philadelphia, four members of the board of governors have resigned, two members of the exchange were expelled, another resigned and one was suspended.

Train No. 23 between St. Louis and Cleveland, one of the fastest trains on the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, was wrecked Wednesday night and several persons were more or less seriously hurt.

The duke and duchess of Manchester, accompanied by Eugene Zimmerman, arrived in New York Wednesday from Cincinnati. It is stated the duke, after a trip abroad to settle up affairs on his Irish estate, will return to this country to engage in the railroad business. Mr. Zimmerman, his father-in-law, is president of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railway.

Charles E. Shiveley, supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, has received from R. L. C. White of Nashville, Tenn., supreme keeper of records and seals, the official count of the members of the order. The report shows that the total membership is 822,385, a net gain during the last year of 27,583.

Woman's Nightmare

No woman's happiness can be complete without children; it is her nature to love and want them as much so as it is to love the beautiful and pure. The critical ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so fraught with dread, pain, suffering and danger, that the very thought of it fills her with apprehension and horror. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend so prepares the system for the coming event that it is safely passed without any danger. This great and wonderful remedy is always applied externally, and has carried thousands of women through the trying crisis without suffering.

VISITS THE POPE

Ambassador Meyer Has Audience Prior to Leaving Rome.

Such an Event Has Not Occurred For Thirty Years.

Rome, April 13.—The audience granted by Pius X to Mr. Meyer, the departing American ambassador to the Italian government, marks a new and important departure in the relations between the Vatican officials and those of the kindom of Italy. Since 1870, when the Italian troops took possession of Rome and deprived the holy see of the last vestige of temperal power, both the then pontiff, Pius IX, and his successor, the late Leo XIII, kept a well-defined line of separation in all official relations with the state. No matter how cordial at times have been the personal dealings between the Vatican and quirinal, no official connected with the Italian government was ever allowed to enter the Vatican, save as a private individual, and never admitted to a private audience with the pope. This applied to all government officials, to officers of the army any navy, and especially to the representatives of foreign powers accredited to the quirinal. Because of this the Catholic nations of the world have kept, until recently, two representatives at the court of Italy. A foreign envoy accredited to the Italian government had not been received by the pope in special audience for thirty years until last week in the case of the American ambassador.

Soon after his election Pius X began to break through the conventions of the past regarding the relations of the Vatican with the Italian government, and several Italian officers, deputies and senators were admitted to audiences. Much comment was excited at the time, because the occurrences were unusual. But so many Italian officials have been received at the Vatican of late that the prelates have come to look upon the change of etiquette as a matter of course. The climax was reached last month, when the duke of Genoa and his family, members of the house of Savoy, were received by the pope. Notwithstanding these events, it had not been thought that the pope would go so far as to receive a representative of a foreign government accredited to the court of Italy, and whose intimate relations with the royal family have been chronicled in the newspapers. Now every one is wondering what will happen next.

It is known that the Italian government is just now exercising much pressure at the Vatican to bring about a visit to Rome by King Alphonso of Spain, with due courtesies paid to the pope, of course. Members of the Spanish government are rather indifferent in the matter and will abide entirely by the pope's decision. But for the Italian officials a visit from a Catholic sovereign to Rome would be considered a long step toward the extinction of the differences between the Vatican and the quirinal. Plus X has not decided the matter as yet, and the few cardinals he has consulted about the matter have rather discouraged any attempt at innovation.

The debate now going on in the French chamber over the bill separating church and state and abolishing the concordat seems to cause little apprehension at present among Vatican officials. It is known that sixty-three deputies are to speak on the measure and that thus far but nine have spoken, so that at this rate it is not believed the bill has a chance to pass before the general elections. There are also about 140 amendments to be considered, and French officials are themselves not sanguine of the passage of the bill before next spring. In that case the general elections, to be held in March, will be a sort of referendum on the part of the French people and will show whether or not a majority of the population favors the abolition of the concordat. In the meantime the pope and the Vatican prelates are keeping very silent on the matter, and hardly a word can be quoted as showing that they are aware that so important a measure to the church is under consideration. The fact that the Socialists have presented a bill of their own, entirely at variance with the government's bill, makes officials here even more convinced that it will be very difficult to obtain a safe majority for the bill now under consideration.

Pius X. has made some important changes in the orders of knighthood of the church. The ancient order of the Knights of Sylvester, called also the order of the Golden Spur, has been divided into two separate organizations. nOe will be called the order of the Golden Militia and will consist of but 100 knights from all parts of the world, to be chosen from among those Catholics who have become prominent in literature and art. The other section will still be called the Knights of St. Sylvester and will comprise the usual three degrees of knighthood. The foremost order of the church will still be the order of Christ, but it has been modified so as to contain but one class of knights. Similar changes are soon expected in the order of Pius and in that of St. Gregory, and a papal decree is soon expected on the matter.

Mgr. Coccolo, director of the anti-slavery society here, left on Monday for a trip to the United States, and before his departure had long conferences with the pope and Cardinal Merry del Val. It is said that he has been charged with a special mission, probably as apostolic visitor to look into matters regarding the church in America. Everything regarding his appointment and his mission is being naturally kept a profound secret at the Vatican.

Mgr. Folchi, who was dismissed from the administration of Peter's pence by the late pope, after the holy see had sustained the loss of large sums through bad investments, is to be reinstated by Pius X. and will be given some important office in the curia. This action on the part of the pope is looked upon by the prelate's friends as a full vindication and as confirming the opinion already expressed in Vatican circles that he was not responsible for the bad investments, but had simply carried out orders of those higher in authority.

Last week the pope had a new and magnificent organ, especially made by a German builder, installed in his private chapel in the Vatican. Perosi, the composer, played the instrument in the pope's presence and the latter, himself quite a musician, expressed his entire satisfaction. This is a departure in Vatican church music, as the papal choir has not been allowed to sing with organ accompaniment heretofore, and the introduction of the instrument is likely to revolutionize the methods of singing in the papal chapel.

IS A CHEAP GRAFTER

London Bobby Bribed By Bookmaker For $5 a Week.

His Reports to Headquarters Discredited Complaints Made.

London, April 13.—When stories of police bribery have been published here, the newspapers have derived much satisfaction from drawing comparisons between the incorruptible British "bobby" and the venal American "cop." But faith in the superior virtue of the home article has been rudely shaken by the disclosures made at the trial just concluded of a suit for slander brought by ex-Inspector McCarthy against one David Curtis, a bookmaker. The evidence showed that it is no uncommon thing for gamblers here to be blackmailed by the police, but it was also made plain that "protection" costs much less than it does on the other side of the Atlantic. The English police official, when he is dishonest, is a much cheaper man than his American guardian of the law which, from the point of view of the corruptor, is a distinct advantage.

McCarthy had been twenty-two years on the force, gaining promotion step by step until he became head of the detective department of the F division. That is one of the most envied positions on the force because of the opportunities it offers for "tips" for looking after weddings and other swell functions, and other gratuities that are not classed as legitimate.

McCarthy had held his billet for less than a year when he was summarily dismissed from the service on a variety of charges, the principal one being that he had taken bribes from gamblers and bookmakers. It was found that no convictions could be obtained against gambling clubs in his bailiwick, though complaints were constantly coming in. Also the street betting men seemed unusually expert in escaping detection. McCarthy's reports to headquarters invariably discredited the complaints received and denied that there was any ground for organizing a raid or instituting a prosecution. Scotland Yard began to suspect that the inspector was acting in collusion with the offenders against the law. Suspicion became certainty when, without McCarthy's knowledge, another officer was employed and a raid resulted in all the evidence necessary for conviction.

The inspector had been playing the game in the fashion too familiar in America and feathering his own nest. But the steps he took to vindicate his character showed that he was by no means a clever rascal. He brought suit for slander against Curtis, who had lodged information against him. The jury acquitted the bookmaker. And now the public is asking, How many McCarthys still remain on the force? Gambling houses flourish in London and bookmakers abound. The inference is plain.

On the witness stand McCarthy acknowledged that bribery was a common thing in every police division, but with a great show of virtuous indignation he swore that he had himself never taken a farthing. According to Curtis' testimony, McCarthy's price for protection averaged a "quid" ($5) a week. Fancy an American inspector of police condescending to shut his eyes and close his ears for such a paltry sum as that! A plain roundsman would scorn to be swerved from the path of official rectitude by such a petty bribe. In the course of three months Curtis shelled out to McCarthy $50. Then McCarthy threw out strong hints of an intention to raise his price. He intimated also that an occasional champagne supper would assist in soothing his conscience. But the worst of it was he failed to "make good." Some of Curtis' confederates were arrested. Then Curtis told a couple of McCarthy's sergeants what the "old man" had got out of him. Apparently McCarthy had failed to "whack up" with them, which was another mistake. Anyhow, they carried the story to headquarters and McCarthy's downfall followed. The other McCarthys are down on him for not taking his medicine like a man instead of causing a public scandal, which makes it exceedingly risky business for them to take "quids" from bookmakers and gamblers.

PRISON LABOR FIGHT IN THE HOUSE ENDED

chinery from the provisions of the convict labor law, so that the limitations will stand as to other articles.

The amendments to the W. A. Nolan reciprocal demurrage bill, reported to the senate yesterday morning by Senator E. B. Hawkins for the railroad committee, make practically a new bill out of it, and indeed its author would never notice it as a product of his own if he should meet it in its amended form.

The old bill carried out the principle of reciprocal demurrage, permitting shippers and receivers of freight to collect demurrage charges for delay in getting cars or handling them, just as the roads now do for delay in unloading cars.

The new bill carries no such provisions. It simply requires that railroads shall deliver cars "within a reasonable time," take them away when loaded "within a reasonable time," transport them "within a reasonable time" and at a reasonable speed, deliver them to the consignee "within a reasonable time," etc.

It provides that if the roads cannot furnish all of the cars demanded of them, they must distribute the cars they have available equally, so as to see that each shipper gets one car. The balance, if any, are to be divided among the shippers in proportion to the amount of business they do with the road.

Demurrage charges must be fixed and filed with the railroad and warehouse commission, though the bill does not, like the house railroad committee's substitute bill, provide that the commission can levy demurrage charges upon the railroads. The charges must also be posted in all stations.

When demurrage charges are unreasonable, and when railroads discriminate in furnishing cars, the commission is to have a hearing and upon investigation is to prescribe rules governing this matter.

All orders of the commission are to be effective in twenty days from the time of issuance.

The senate has passed the Buck bill taking the Faribault schools for the deaf, dumb and blind away from the board of control and returning them to the original board for management. The passage of the bill was in consideration of Senator Buck's refraining from trying to amend the university and normal school bill.

The friends of the bill hope to pass it through the house, but there is no such deal on there, and it will have to go through, if it does go through, on its merits. The point made in favor of it is that although the Faribault schools are designed especially for unfortunates who have been deprived of sight, hearing or speech, they ar just as much educational institutions as the normal schools and the university.

The house committee on public health yesterday aproved for passage the Swanson pure whiskey bill. It provides that the amount of fusel oil cannot exceed 3-10 of 1 per cent, and that there must be at least 50 per cent of ethyl alcohol.

* * *

The house yesterday afternoon passed the Zelich bill, to do away with justice courts in St. Paul and Minneapolis. It applies to cities over 50,000, but by an amendment adopted yesterday on motion of P. E. Dowling, Duluth is left out, and the justice court at West Duluth will still continue.

W. T. Lemon of St. Paul was very anxious to pass the bill and cut out the St. Paul justice courts. But it happened that there was a justice court in West Duluth, in the district represented by P. E. Dowling and John Starr, and the information of these members was that the people wanted the court continued. They threatened to fight, but finally the bill was amended so as not to apply to cities having only one justice court, which left Duluth out.

* * *

The house passed M. D. Flower's bill permitting cities having more than 50,000 people to dispose of unused lands acquired for public purposes.

* * *

P. E. Dowling's bill providing for a second assistant county attorney in St. Louis county passed the house.

* * *

The house passed the Wyman bill providing that the issue of contributory negligence in a personal injury case shall be wholly a matter for the jury to consider, also that contributory negligence shall not be presumed to have been the basis of a verdict unless the jury shall say so in its verdict.

* * *

H. R. Skinner's bill requiring probate courts to give notices of their proceedings to interested parties passed the house yesterday.

* * *

Capt. R. T. Lewis, though he was not present, was another member of the St. Louis county delegation to get a bill through yesterday. His bill making municipal judges in cities under 5,000 and villages between 2,000 and 3,000 swear to their accounts was adopted.

* * *

The house passed the Lynch bill prohibiting the use of small type and marginal clauses in contracts.

* * *

"I wonder if the Republicans will hold a caucus on the chiropractic bill and try to pass that over the governor's veto?" somewhat sarcastically remarked a house member yesterday afternoon.

* * *

The house passed the Adams' bill amending the law defining a legal newspaper by requiring that such persons must file a list of at least 240 subscribers with the county auditor before they are legal publications.

* * *

The house passed the Rowe bill proposing an amendment to the constitution permitting farmers and gardeners to peddle their products anywhere, regardless of local peddling license regulations.

* * *

R. J. Wells of Breckenridge yesterday afternoon tried to secure a reconsideration of the vote by which the house passed the Eberhart committee bill making it unlawful for roads to give rebates or patrons to receive them. He made the point against it that as both sides of a rebate deal were equally guilty, neither would tell and there would be and could be no evidence against either. The house would not reconsider, but voted his motion down, 26 for and 31 against. "Well," remarked Mr. Wells, as he sank back into his seat, "this is a railroad bill, so I suppose it is entirely proper to railroad it through the house."

* * *

W. I. Nolan of Minneapolis introduced a bill providing that all corporations in the state must pay their employes at least twice each month. The bill is offered at the request of railroad men, for whom the monthly pay day does not come often enough. It is pretty late to get it through, but if it does not pass it will have plenty of company in the grave, for there are many much older bills that will die without being voted upon.

* * *

Attorney General Young yesterday afternoon gave the house his opinion on the Fraser "barb wire" telephone bill that it is constitutional. The bill puts telephone companies under the railroad and warehouse commission, declares them common carriers, and requires them to give connections to other systems.

* * *

The house yesterday afternoon voted to meet at 9:30 this morning instead of 10, the usual hour, and the change will probably be continued.

The usual restlessness that precedes the close made its appearance yesterday, when the members began throwing papers, pamphlets and anything else light and handy at each other during the session. It is getting more difficult daily to keep enough members in their seats to pass bills.

THE HARBOR AT SAN JUAN

Should Be Improved By Congress, Says J. Adam Bede.

New York, April 13.—The government transport Sumner arrived in port yesterday after a month's trip to Porto Rico and West Indian ports, with the river and harbor congresional committee. Of the fifteen members of the committee, only one, J. Adam Bede, congressman from Minnesota, returned to New York today. Thirteen of the members disembarked at New Orleans and one at Norfolk.

Congressman Bede, in speaking of the trip, said:

"The committee is in favor of widening and deepening the harbor at San Juan and making it a rendezvous for a number of war vessels. At the present time only two or three can be accommodated at a time. It is an excellent situation.

"All the harbor needs is a little dredging. The committee will recommend to congress that it be improved so as to accommodate the whole of the South Atlantic fleet. It is not the idea of the committee to make San Jpan a naval base, but we ought to have it big enough for a rendezvous, as for any maneuvers, and so that our ships can run in in case of any of those sudden hurricanes down there.

"We visited the harbor of Ponce also and recomended that it be improved and widened. All the members of the committee are unanimous in the opinion that the work ought to be done right away."

MRS. CARRIE DIBBEL

Of Duluth Honored By the Royal Neighbors.

Minneapolis, April 13.—Mrs. Carrie S. Dibbel of Duluth was elected state oracle of the Royal Neighbors of America at a meeting of the state camp held in Minneapolis. The other officers are: Mrs. Maud Mingers of Rush City, vice oracle; Mrs. Frances M. Robinson of St. Paul, receiver-recorder, and Mrs. Lilian Schwartz of Luverne, past state oracle.

The delegates to the head camp, which will meet at Topeka, Kan., in June, are as follows from the Eighth district: Mrs. Mary McNellis, Sandstone; alternate, Mrs. Carrie Dibbell, Duluth.

The next meeting of the state camp will be held two years hence in St. Paul.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

DIETZ THREATENS DEATH

To Any One Who Dares Cross His Dead Line.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., April 13.—Log driving on Thornapple river, below Cameron dam, began yesterday. John Dietz, who has held Cameron dam and 2,000,000 feet of logs, above Cameron dam for a year, asserts that he will not obey a federal court injunction ordering him to cease interference, and warns drivers not to proceed above the dam. Attempts will be made in a few days, it is said, to move the logs under protection of federal marshals. Dietz announces that he will use a rifle should drivers cross the dead line he has established.

HAS SHARP BULGE

Long Interest Showing Its Hand In the Wheat Market.

Buying of Contract Wheat In Minneapolis For Chicago Shipment.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 13.—That the long interest in the wheat market is at last showing its hand is the firm conviction of all in the trade. There was a sharp bulge today and the trade could find nothing in legitimate conditions to warrant it. Further than this there was heavy buying of contract wheat in the Minneapolis market for shipment to Chicago and the close there showed No. 1 northern at 4c and 5c higher than the May option price. Rumor had it that Armour interests had been quietly buying in Minneapolis for a few days and that the fact became known to the long clique with the result that its representatives were in the Minneapolis market this morning for all of the contract wheat to be had.

The May option advanced 2½c in Duluth, 2¾c in Minneapolis, 1¼c in Chicago, and 2½c in New York. July gained 1⅞c in Duluth, the same in Minneapolis ⅞-1c in Chicago and 1¼-1⅜c in New York.

The Liverpool market closed ¼d lower to ¼d higher, Paris unchanged to ¾d lower, Budapest 1¾c lower and Antwerp and Berlin unchanged.

St. Louis was sending out some crop damage reports, claiming trouble in Kansas, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Texas.

Primary receipts of wheat were 338,908 bus., last year 242,138 bus. Shipments 213,810 bus., last year 219,655 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 88,892 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged. May corn in the Chicago market closed ¼-⅜c higher. May oats closed ½c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 322,021 bus., last year 315,110 bus. Shipments 588,745 bus., last year 221,791 bus. Clearances were 67,528 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was quiet. The May option opened ⅝c higher at $1.04⅛, sold up to $1.06⅝, fell back to $1.05½ and rallied to $1.06⅝, closing there, an advance of 2½c. The July option opened ½c higher at $1.03⅜ at 10:46, and fell back to $1.03¼ at 11:50. It advanced to $1.03⅝ at 12:55 and closed at $1.03⅝, a gain of 1⅞c.

Cash wheat was very dull. The basis of sales continued to be 1c under May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet. The May option opened ⅛c lower at $1.37¾, sold up to $1.38½ and closed at $1.38¾. July opened unchanged at $1.24, sold at $1.25 and closed at $1.24¾.

Oats advanced ¼c.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Buying By Commission Houses Gives Wheat Firmness.

Chicago, April 13.—Buying of the July delivery by commission houses and shorts created a firm tone in the wheat market here today. Fear of possible damage to the fall sown crop was the principal factor in the situation. The volume of business was small, trading in May being practically at a standstill. July opened ⅛@⅛c higher at 87½c and advanced to 87¾c. May opened unchanged at $1.15½ and sold up to $1.16. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 223 cars against 239 cars last week and 137 cars a year ago.

The market increased in strength as the session advanced. The demand for July was of excellent character. Many reports were received telling of damage to the fall sown crop, these advices furnishing the main incentive to buying. July steadily advanced to 88¾c. May sold up to $1.17½, but quickly reacted again. The market closed strong, with July up ⅞@1c at 88¼c. May was up 1¼c at $1.16¾.

Continued smaller receipts had a bullish effect on the corn market. Shorts were moderate buyers. July opened unchanged to ⅛c up at 48⅛c to 48¾c and advanced to 48⅝c. Local receipts were 32 cars with 9 of contract grade.

The market closed almost at the highest point of the day. July advanced to 48⅝c and closed at 48½@48¾c, a net gain of ⅛@⅜c.

Influenced by the strength of other grains, the oats market had a firm undertone. Light receipts helped to sustain bullish sentiment. July opened unchanged to a shade higher at 30c to 30@30⅛c and sold up to 30¼c. Local receipts were 42 cars.

In the price of live hogs, a steady tone prevailed in the provisions market. Shorts were fair buyers of lard. July pork was off a shade at $13.07½. Lard was unchanged at $7.45. Ribs were up a shade at $7.37½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.16¾; July, 88¼c; Sept., 83c. Corn—April, 48⅛c; May, 48⅞@48⅝c; July, 48½@48¾c; Sept., 48½@48¾c. Oats—May, 30½c; July, 30¾c; Sept., 29¾c. Pork—May, $12.92½; July, $13.17½. Lard—April, $7.35@7.37½; May, $7.35; July, $7.52½; Sept., $7.65. Ribs—May, $7.35; July, $7.40; Sept., $7.57½. Rye—April, 78½c; May, 77¼@78c; Sept., 66c. Flax—cash, northwestern, $1.38; southwestern, $1.24; April and May, $1.24. Timothy—April, $2.85; Sept. $3.20. Clover—April, $14.75. Barley—cash, 40@43c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

B. E. Baker's Chicago Grain Letter: Wheat—Shorts in the far deliveries were restless and investment purchases are on a growing scale. The more friendly sentiment results from the fact that bearish news has lost its force, and insufficient moisture, with cold temperatures in the ground for the increasing volume of complaints which are not confined alone to the winter wheat territory. The Northwest expresses dissatisfaction with the seeding situation, and there is a section of Manitoba causing our friends across the line some anxiety. The situation is not at a critical point, but the trade is well aware of the deficiency in moisture this winter, and of the need of more than normally good conditions this spring. The forecast indicates showers west of the Mississippi river, with snow in the Northwest. Elsewhere clear and cool conditions are expected. The May delivery was strong here and at outside markets. The advance was particulary noticeable at Minneapolis where 1 northern was reported in good demand at from 1c to 6c over the May.

Corn—The characteristics of this market noted all week were the features today. On a moderate trade the tone was very firm and offerings were not heavy at any time. The secretary of Nebraska Millers' association estimates 30 per cent of crop in farmers' hands. This is in line with the state assessor's report. Thee figures seem reasonable in view of the unprecedented movement from that state in the low rates of freight. The value of hogs and cattle relative to corn are detracting attention, the difference makes the feeding of corn a far more profitable transaction than shipping to this market. Forty-two loads were reported taken for export at the seaboard. Estimated for tomorrow 99 cars.

* * *

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Our market today showed an active and strong tendency throughout the day. There was active covering of shorts and helped by continued complaints from the West and Southwest, to the lack of moisture and weather being less favorable. The former leaders in the bull movement continue to talk friendly on wheat and while they have been free buyers, so far the market has not made much headway on the bull side. This can be accounted for largely by continued good weather and excellent condition of the crop and again on the theory that past successes on the bear side have made this element confident of their position. The market acts strong. It shows a short interest somewhat less confident and inclined to cover short lines on moderate set-backs. Market will continue a good trading affair with a possible upward tendency, while present weather conditions last.

Corn—A significant feature of the trade is the small amount of corn offered on the advance. Receipts are by no means heavy. Trade showed some broadening out with a prominent cash house a liberal buyer. Cash houses report but small acceptances of bids sent out each night. All things considered, this market sets well and seems as if it would so some better.

Oats—Trade at no time was active, yet prices were well maintained. We feel, however, in view of the slow cash situation and large stocks, that the bulls will have some difficulty in maintaining present or higher prices.

* * *

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat opened unchanged to ⅛c higher, and under buying by shorts developed into considerable of a bull market. Northwestern advices are to the effect that low temperatures there are continually interfering with seeding, and grain sown during the past ten days has not started to germinate. The bulls take advantage of this and say it is the result of using poor seed. All things considered, the market acts decidedly favorable to continued strength. The bears are without new arguments, are less confident and have considered less in wheat already sold. The market promises to be extremely active, with wide price changes, and as all natural conditions are in sympathy with a rising market, we would follow that side from this on, making purchases on fair reactions and holding for substantial increase in prices.

* * *

Minneapolis: Temperatures through the Northwest were a little higher this morning and there was no trace of moisture except at Winnipeg, where two inches of snow was reported. Conditions are favorable and seeding going along slowly, yet satisfactorily. Unless interrupted by rain, a good part of the seeding will be done by the middle of next week, except in the Red River Valley, where the heavy soil holds the moisture longer and makes that section always a little later than the rest of the country.

The long-looked-for falling off in the receipts seems to have commenced, but as a large line of wheat from Duluth is coming here, expectations that the daily figures will fall below last year's are likely to be disappointed. It must also be remembered that last year at this time the receipts were running very small and were until late in the fall.

* * *

Chicago Inter-Ocean: There were 90,000 bushels of contract grades of corn shipped out of public elevators yesterday. Bears in corn were asserting that the shipments were being made to help along the deal in May corn. The prices that were claimed aa having been paid on some of the export corn yesterday indicated that there might be a specially good demand for choice corn abroad.

NATIVES ARE PUNISHED

For Putting to Death Crew of American Ship.

Washington, April 13.—Botel Tobago savages in Formosa, caused the death of eight members of the crew of the American ship, Benjamin Sowall, and treated other members of the crew in a cruel manner when that ship was wrecked in Formosan waters some time ago. The story is told in official correspondence published at the state department today.

When the Japanese government's attention was called to the incident, it replied that the government of Formosa would "efficiently and strictly censure the savages and will warn them not to repeat such misconduct in the future."

Mr. Loomis, the acting secretary of state, promptly directed the American minister at Tokio to say to the Japanese government "that something more impressive than censure may suggest itself to the mind of this government."

The Japanese government accordingly adopted punitive measures, but found great difficulty in executing them intelligently because they could not make the natives understand for what they were being punished.

This government then suggested that several of the native chiefs known to have been engaged in the incident be imprisoned until some of the Formosan officials could master their dialect and make them understand why they were being punished.

LOTTERY IN CANAL ZONE

Causes Conflict Which Is Taken to Supreme Court.

Washington, April 13.—A case which may involve a conflict between the laws of the United States and those of the Republic of Panama in the canal zone has been filed in the supreme court of the United States. The case is that of Oil Nifou, a Chinaman, who was placed under arrest last October by the zone authorities on the charge of selling tickets of the Panama Lottery company and subsequently sent to prison by the zone circuit court. He has brought the case to the supreme court in a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, based on the ground that the lottery company was in existence before the treaty between the United States and Panama went into effect and that the prosecution is an interference with vested rights. The department of justice has intervened in the case to the extent of asking permission to file a brief in the case which was today granted by the court. The request was presented by Solicitor General Hoyt, who said that the case has a very important bearing on the relations of the United States to the canal zone.

ADVANCED AND RETIRED.

Washington, April 13.—Lieut.-Col. Charles W. Hobbs of the artillery corps and Major John L. Bullis of the pay department, have been appointed brigadier generals in the army and retired.

IRREGULAR CLOSE

To the Stock Market But Prices Show an Advance.

Steel and Railway Equipment Shares Were Again Active.

New York, April 13.—Opening prices of stocks today moved upwards all around on a fairly large volume of business. Tennessee Coal was the leader with a gain of 2¼. Smelting rose 1, Brooklyn Transit 1¼ and New York Central, Kansas & Texas preferred, Locomotive preferred and Lead about a point.

Sharp changes occurred between 10 and 11 o'clock in a few stocks representing the results of the profit-taking of the opening advance and the aggressive efforts to force chosen stocks upwards. As a consequence the list showed a good deal of feverishness and St. Paul, New York Central, Union Pacific and Copper reacted below the previous close. Illinois Central, Ontario & Western, Delaware & Hudson, and General Electric lost a point. Large blocks of Reading were bid for and it went through all offerings until it crossed 97. Smelting encountered heavy realizing orders at frequent stages of its advance, but it eventually got within ⅛ of 123. The buoyancy of this stock did not have much effect in stemming the sales of Locomotive, Lead and United States Steel preferred. Pressed Steel Car, Republic Steel preferred, Sloss-Sheffield Steel, Erie second preferred, Norfolk & Western and Terminal preferred moved up 1.

Reading was pushed up 2⅜ and Smelting to within a shade of 124, but the list dragged and became dull when Smelting reacted over a point. Locomotive, Lead and Brooklyn Transit lost their gains and Westinghouse Electric fell a point. North American advanced 2⅜, Pennsylvania Rapid Transit 2½, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 2 and Lackawanna, Erie second preferred, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic preferred, Car preferred, the United States Reduction stocks, Realty and Twin City Rapid Transit 1 to 1½. Bonds were steady at noon.

Moderate selling of representative railroad stocks offset to a large extent the stimulating effects of the rise in Smelting and United States Steel preferred. After 2 points participating in the general upward movement, Steel stocks have again been active and also the railway equipment shares. A better tone was imparted to the railroad group by the strength in Union Pacific and Northern Securities. Aside from an increase by the banks in the United States treasury operations, nothing developed in the day's news to cause an increase in the better feeling so evident in today's session. Financial writers are laying more stress upon the healthy financial conditions and great prosperity throughout the country.

Dow-Jones to Pringle, Fitch & Rankin: There was heavy trading in Union Pacific from the outside. One of the stories is that it has been heavy accumulation of the stock for the Morgan interest and that the opposition to the advance comes from the Harriman party, who are said to have sold the stock heavily and are reported borrowers of it in the loan crowd. Traders hesitated about opening the market in People's Gas without a lead in the Brady following. The passage of an act in the legislature to give the Chicago municipality power to make its own gas and electricity, which is threatened in the first reading of such a bill at Springfield, accounts for some of the recent weakness in the stock.

C. G. Gates & Co. to B. E. Baker: Union Pacific continues to be the center of interest and many believe the movement in it is being held back in order to facilitate accumulation. The old story of Morgan buying and Harriman selling is again doing duty. The stock has been acting well around the present and the general belief is that the next move will be to a higher level.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The good buying of Amalgamated Copper continues and rumors are that the stock will sell at par in the Boston market. Parrott was weaker on account of the shutdown at the mine and Centennial was heavily liquidated by one house which bought the stock considerably higher up. Copper Range was very dull and showed practically no change. Nothing new was done with the Utah properties and the stocks were comparatively dull most of the day, but United States Mining closed strong and in good demand.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 13.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 3 points under a continuation of the selling noted late yesterday, which was encouraged this morning by some disappointing cables, further reports of a small reduction in acreage, if any, and fairly favorable weather. Declining to a net loss of about 3@4 points, the market attracted buying orders from Wall street and New Orleans and rallied to about last night's finals after which it was quiet and about steady.

Cotton afutures closed quiet and steady; April, 7.39; May, 7.53; June, 7.46; July, 7.49; August, 7.52; September, 7.56; October, 7.62; November, 7.64; December, 7.69; January, 7.73.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, April 13.—Close: Money on call firm, 3@3½ per cent; closing bid, 3; offered at 3; time loans, steady, 60 days, 3½ per cent; 90 days, and 6 months, 3½@3¾ per cent; prime mercantile paper, 3¾@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange heavy with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.86.10 @15 for demand and at $4.84.30@35 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.85 and $4.87; commercial bills, $4.84¼. Bar silver, 56⅞c; Mexican dollars, 44c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, irregular.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, April 13.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $136,966,675; gold, $70,018,685; silver, $24,740,067.

CONCERTED MOVEMENT

Planned to Handle Goods In Spite of Chicago Strikers.

Chicago, April 13.—Notwithstanding a continuance of the strike of teamsters and garment makers Montgomery Ward & Co. today started out more wagons than on any previous day since the teamsters for the firm quit work. The police guards with the wagons were still heavy, but not so numerous as on previous days. Eighteen loaded trucks were sent out simultaneously from the firm's headquarters to the various railroad freight houses. One more effort to reach a settlement between employers and employes, was in progress today, three representatives of the Chicago Employers' association having arranged to meet a committee of eleven labor leaders at the Great Northern hotel. The conference was arranged at the request of President Cornelius N. Shea of the Teamsters' union.

While the peace conference was in session, scenes of disorder prevailed in the streets. A caravan of three wagons bound for the Northwestern frieght house was stopped at the Kinzie street bridge. Heavy planks had been placed across the structure at right angles and laced into the trusses in such a manner that the planks could not be removed except by sawing.

While this was being done a wagon broke down near the bridge, evidently by a prearranged plan. A wheel came off and the harness broke. Around this wagon a large blockade formed requiring half an hour to disentangle.

The meeting resulted in no advancement toward peace. The union men declared they were ready to end the trouble if Ward & Company would reinstate the nineteen garment workers who struck. The employers' association, however, held that the garment workers trouble had nothing to do with this controversy and insisted that the teamsters must carry out contracts with members of the association. Montgomery Ward & Co. took the stand that the places of the nineteen garment workers who went on strike have been filled and that the strikers cannot be reinstated.

A concerted movement to deliver goods to the house of Montgomery Ward & Co. was planned for this afternoon. It was arranged that 100 wagons belonging to members of the Employers' association should move in a cavalcade to the proscribed house in defiance of the striking drivers and their sympathizers.

HARGIS TRIAL RESUMED.

Lexington, Ky., April 13.—The trial of Judge James Hargis, charged with the murer of James Cockrill in Jackson, two years ago, was resumed today after an adjournment since Tuesday, in order to summon a special venire of 500 jurors. Work of empanelling the jury began and may consume several days.

TUGS CAN OPEN IT

Sault Ice In Rotten Condition, Vesselmen Are Told.

Twenty Upbound and Five Downbound Boats Are Blocked.

Telegrams received by local vesselmen from the Sault today state that the ice is in such condition that the river can be opened up by tugs if that expense will be met by the vessel owners. Whether or not this will be done has not yet been decided. Dispatches go to show that the ice is in pretty rotten condition, but about a foot thick yet.

A telegram received from the Harvey Marine bureau at the Sault today by the North American says:

"Twenty up-bound boats are at Detour; and five down-bound boats are still at Shelidrake. The river is open up to Iroquois, but above there the ice is about a foot thick, mostly in a candled condition."

* * *

The tugs in the harbor today have been busy taking the Steel company's boats to the Missabe ore docks. Most of them are loading and will likely go out tonight or tomorrow morning.

* * *

The steamer James H. Reed has finished her record load of oats and left last night for Buffalo. She carried 446,000 bushels of oats, which is away past the old record.

The Augustus B. Wolvin left Two Harbors this morning down-bound with ore, but how much has not been learned.

TO TAKE COAL FOR DULUTH.

Toledo, April 13.—The first arrival of the season was the steamer M. A. Hanna, which will take on a cargo of coal for Duluth.

TAKE NO CHANCES.

Cleveland, April 13.—Captains of steamers which have sailed for Lake Superior have been instructed not to imperil their boats in breaking a channel through the ice in the Soo passage, but to wait at Detour until the steamers now in the ice have forced a way through. Manager Root of the tug trust fleet at the Soo, wired that the ice in Mud lake is very heavy and several days of warm weather are needed before a channel can be opened. The steamer Admiral was the only boat to leave port yesterday. The big trust tug General, will leave for the Soo today. The steamer Leonard, which was damaged in the ice near Long Point, is still making repairs. The boat is drawing too much water to enter the harbor and the work is being done at the breakwater.

ROBERTS CRAZY?

Actions of the Welsh Revivalist Those of a Lunatic.

Evans Roberts' Erratic Actions Are Alienating His Supporters.

London, April 13.—The followers of Evan Roberts, the Welsh revivalist, are concerned at the strange change that has come over his disposition since his week of retirement and silence. He is no longer the exuberant young man who made the buildings in which he spoke ring with laughter. His nights and days of prayer and introspection have aged him greatly and changed his brightness into something approaching asceticism, and his addresses are now marked by strange outbursts of feverish excitement.

One of the most extraordinary incidents of his mission occurred last week at Elsenanerch, in Carmarthenshire, which place he suddenly and unexpectedly decided to visit after resting for a period at him home at Loughor. At the commencement of the service he accused a youth in the gallery of mockery, and then broke down in agonized sobbing. Three boys thereupon rose and "confessed," but the missioner declared that the mocker was not one of the three. Later another strange incident occurred.

"The missioner's soul," to quote an observer, "seemed steeped in agony, because, he said, a man in the chapel was denying the divine inspiration of the Bible. Nobody rose to confess, and after an interval of the greatest tension Mr. Roberts leaped up, saying, 'God has revealed the name and the age of the man. He is aged 25. Oh, Lord, forgive.' A few minutes later the evangelist smiled joyfully, for he said, the man had changed his views, and there was no need for him to confess publicly. Mr. Roberts, after speaking briefly against the sin of skepticism, startled his hearers by declaring that there was a man present who had committed sacrilege. This created a painful sensation, which was brought to an end by the missioner saying that the man must make threefold restitution and confess to his church. Later he threw out a challenge to one who, he said, doubted the revelation of God in the Scripture. If the Scriptures were false, then might be (the missioner) be removed; if true, then might the doubter suffer removal. Nothing of a miraculous nature happened, but the evangelist, who by this time had worked himself up into a state of great excitement, concluded a memorable service by predicting terrible times which the people would understand a month hence. The Rev. Tudor Jones, Unitarian minister at Swensea, discussing the nature of Mr. Roberts' recent utterances, in an interview said:

"I cannot find that these fits of Mr. Evan Roberts have taught him many of the virtues found in the Gospel. I think that the supernatural pretensions which the past few weeks have revealed will do more harm to religion than any good the revival may ave done."

* * *

Vivid word pictures of life in the coal mines were given in the house of commons last week by members who have themselves wielded picks and pushed trolleys. They were asking parliament to fix an eight-hour day for pit boys under 18 years of age. Mr. Thomas Richards, who represents the late Sir William Harcourt's old constituency, supplied an impressionistic account of a boy's day in a Welsh colliery. He depicted him leaving his cottage home in the darkness of a winter's morning; he showed him brushing away with his cap the snow from the seat of the open railway truck that was to carry him to the pit brow, and then, one of, perhaps, a thousand other boys and men, walking, bent almost double, through the dark, noisome "roads," to the place of his labor.

"There the poor lad reclines on his side, hour after hour, every stroke of his pick releasing a breath of noxious gas, every passing pony raising a cloud of brittle, stinging dust." It was Mr. Richards' maiden speech. The house listened to him with wrapt, silent interest. There was no glamor of eloquence or fine phraseology to titillate the ear. Mr. Rchards had a story to tell, founded on actual experience, and he told it with a blunt directness and in homespun words that took the house captive.

"You are doing well," once cried an enthusiastic member, as Mr. Richards faltered in the grip of nervousness which he quietly asked the house to excuse. It was with a feeling akin to relief that the house seized an opportunity to laugh at a story related by the miners' member. On one occasion he occupied a seat in the strangers' gallery when a Unionist member described the collier's life as "rather enviable." Mr. Richards asked a miner who accompanied him what he thought of that description and the attitude of the house.

"It was the most profane silence I ever listened to," was the reply. Much was made by all the miners' representatives of physical deterioration caused by working underground. Unfortunately for the strength of their case, the members who themselves thus worked in their early days are acknowledged to possess the sturdiest frames in the chamber. Indeed, the Hon. T. H. Cochrane, representing the home office, quoted statistics showing that the health of miners was above the average in other arduous occupations. The bill providing for an eight-hour day in the case of pit boys was read a second time.

The duke of Marlborough is becoming very popular as a presiding officer over public meetings, and has acted in that capacity on no less than ten occasions during the past fortnight. The duchess rarely accompanies her husband on these occasions. In fact, she is not going out very much just now. The duke made rather a new departure in presiding over a meeting of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, when the work of the emigration branch of the society was under consideration. Among those present were Lord Aberdeen, Lord Brassey, the bishop of Mashonaland, Sir T. Powell Buxton, the bishop of Bangor, David Howard, Rev. J. Bridger and Sir E. Noel Walker. The methods of the society in their work of spiritual ministration to emigrants are three. Ocean liners are visited at the ports of departure; chaplains are provided during the voyage, and the society has chaplains at the ports of arrival and at the leading towns in the colonies and elsewhere. The society also has a "ladies' emigration committee," which specially concerns itself with providing matrons for, and otherwise endeavoring to further the safety and comfort of women and girls. During the year 1903-04 at Liverpool and Southampton alone over 600 liners were visited before sailing, and similar work was done at Londonderry, Glasgow, Greenock, Plymouth and other ports. In the same year 119 liners took S. P. C. K. chaplains for the whole voyage, and the society had 200 honorary chaplains at the principal ports and towns abroad willing to receive and welcome emigrants. The duke of Marlborough, in opening the proceedings, said that in 1902 and 1903 28,000 individuals left Great Britain for South Africa, and the numbers that emigrated to Canada were 15,000 in 1902, 46,000 in 1903 and over 50,000 in 1904. On behalf of the colonial office, he said they recognized the good work that this society had done in the past, and as far as it lay in their power they were anxious to give it every aid and support. After Lord Aberdeen had addressed the meeting, the bishop of Mashonaland said he would not only like to see a conference on the special care of emigrants, but a conference on the education of intending emigrants. Lord Brassey and Sir T. Powell Buxton also spoke in support of the movement. The bishop of Stepney said that, if it were worth while to send out emigrants, it was necessary to send them out with as much equipment of moral force as they could command.

EXTENDING THE Y. M. C. A.

First Representative Sent to Filipino Scouts and Constabulary.

New York, April 12.—The Y. M. C. As. of North America take a new field of operations today. The international committee army and navy department has just sent out the first representative to the Filipino scouts and constabulary, Mr. A. B. De Roos. He speaks Spanish and several other languages, and was with the scouts and constabulary at the World's Fair in St. Louis. The "little brown men" were constant visitors at the Y. M. C. A. tent at the fair, and were always in evidence at the receptions, entertainments and addresses arranged for them by Mr. De Roos, and so much did these men appreciate the association that an observer offered to bear the expense of sending him to the Philippines to inaugurate the association movement among them.

There are over 7,000 native soldiers in the constabulary and 5,000 scouts. Eleven companies are Maccabeebees, thirteen are Ilicanos, four are Tagalogs, sixteen are Visayans, and among them are a few Moros and two companies of Bicols and four companies of Cagayans, who come from the extreme north of Luzon. In the constabulary the Tagalogs and the Ilicanos predominate. In the scouts many of the best young men of the tribes are enlisted and are working for a commission, and in the constabulary a number are working for advancement. Many speak English, some Spanish, but the tribal languages predominate. All are eager to learn English. Eighty per cent of the 300 officers of the constabulary are American.

Mr. De Roos will go immediately to the points where the scouts and constabulary are stationed, with supplies of printed matter, magazines and papers, musicboxes, talking-machines and other equipment. He will carry several hundred records containing everything from the popular songs to the "Star-Spangled Banner" and the best hymns of the American people. The secretaries now with the American troops in the islands have found that the Filipinos are a music-loving people, and crowds of them always gather when the graphophones are started. The music-boxes play a prominent part in army association programs, from entertainment to religious service. One of the secretaries at a concert, at which the Moro chiefs wer entertained, asked a chief why the Moros did not make a talking-machine. He answered, "Moro no got." The secretary pointed to the brass horn and said, "Moro got this." The chief replied, "Yes." Then he pointed to the wood and said, "Moro got this," and again the chief replied in the affirmative; then he tapped his forehead and said, "Moro got this." The chief grinned and said, "No got."

Mr. De Roos carries a letter of introduction from the secretary of war to Governor Wright. Adjt. Guthrie will facilitate the organization of the association with the native forces.

The Colored Race.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I would like to say a few words in behalf of the colored race. I have had various opportunities for studying the race, and I have never seen such a respectable and industrious class of colored people as are right here in Duluth.

And yet how do we treat them? We go to church and give freely with our right hand to foreign missions, while with our left we slap the colored man.

And why? Because his skin is black. Can he help that? The same God that created you and me, created the despised colored man. We are not consistent with our likes and dislikes. For instance, an almond-eyed Celestial, dressed like an American, minus pigtail, goes into a restaurant, he sits down at the table, orders what he wants, gets it, and pays for it, and nothing is said about his race or color. A lumberjack fresh from the woods will be able to do the same. And many others will be given the same privilege.

But let a respectable colored man walk in and sit down, and all eyes are turned in his direction. He is called "nigger," and told he is not wanted, sand is put on his plate so that he cannot eat the food. Is it because his money is not clean? No. He is unfortunate enough to possess a colored skin. And when that is said all is said.

I do not mean to advocate the intermarriage of the two races. That was never intended. There are very few colored people that have any respect for white people that will marry one of their color. But I do say, "Honor to whom honor is due," and may I add, "Respect to whom respect is due." It seems to me it would help matters considerably, if some enterprising colored man would start a restaurant exclusively for colored people. There, at least, they could eat their meals in peace, and not run the risk of being insulted.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

New York, April 13.—Col. Nicholas Pike, a naturalist, author of a "Life of George Washington" and many scientific works, is dead from paralysis. He was 87 years old. For many years he served as consul on the Island of Mauritius and later was consul general to Portugal. He was a relative of Capt. Pike for whom Pike's peak was named.

New York, April 13.—Thomas Butler, born in Queenstown, Ireland, in 1800, is dead at his home here. He came to America when 12 years old and for eighty years was identified with wharves and shipping at Canal street. It is said Butler attended church every morning for sixty years, and so regular were his habits that he was known in the neighborhood as "Old Clock." He used tobacco all his life, but had abstained from liquor since 1841. Of his seven children only two survive.

OCEAN STEAMSHIPS.

FERN NOT COMING

If Appropriation Is Cut Training Ship Cannot Be Had.

Naval Reserves Greatly Disappointed Over Treatment.

It is understood that the prospects of the Duluth Naval reserve for getting the training ship Fern are far from being bright as they were a few weeks ago. From the present outlook it is considered as very doubtful if the two local division of the reserves will get the boat, at least for the next two years.

The situation has arisen over the treatment that is likely to be accorded the naval reserve appropriation which is included in the omnibus appropriation bill in the hands of a sub-committee of the Minnesota house of representatives, and which is to be reported back to the house tomorrow.

As in the omnibus bill, an appropriation of $8,500 was provided for the use of the Duluth Naval reserve, but some of the officers of the reserve who have just returned from St. Paul report that there is a disposition in the committee to cut the appropriation down, possibly one-half.

If this is done, it is declared on good authority that the Fern will not be brought to Duluth this year. The ship has already been assigned by the government for the use of the local divisions of the naval reserve for training purposes, providing the state would make a sufficient appropriation to cover the expense of putting in new boilers and the cost of a general overhauling before the boat was started on its trip to Duluth by way of the Atlantic coast and down the St. Lawrence river and Great Lakes.

This expense, it has been figured, will use up a greater part of the appropriation of $8,500 asked from the state. The originators of the request for the appropriation figured very closely in the matter, with the thought that the closer the appropriation asked for was to the actual expense that would be incurred, the surer it would be of being granted. To reduce the amount asked for means that the plans already made will be upset completely, and the local naval reserves will be doomed to disappointment in the matter of the trip after the Fern and bringing her to Duluth.

Even if the Fern were brought here there would be some expense entailed right along in the way of coal, and repairs for machinery, so that a reduction of the appropriation would shut off any fund for maintenance and the boat would have to be given up.

The officers and members of the Duluth naval reserve are greatly discouraged over the outlook, especially as they were practically assured that the appropriation would be made in the amount asked for, and that the plans for getting the Fern would be realized shortly. It had even been planned to send a large detachment of the reserves to Norfolk in the latter part of July or August, to get the boat and spend a month in the cruise to Duluth.

It is now feared that the training scheme proposition will have to be shelved for the next two years.

Huge Boulder Falls Between W. L. Smith and His Horse.

Rock Was Loosened From Cliff By Action of Frost.

Crashing down between his horse and the dashboard on his wagon, a huge boulder came within two or three feet of crushing the skull of W. L. Smith as he drove past the point of rocks at Thirteenth avenue west this morning.

Mr. Smith, who is the agent for a sewing machine company, was driving along the car tracks past the point of rocks this morning, in the light wagon used in delivering machines. The first intimation he had of any danger was the crash caused by the boulder, which fell between him and the horse, grazing the crossbar of the shafts.

The rock was fully a foot in diameter and with the velocity it had attained by falling from the high bluff, it would have crushed Mr. Smith's skull like an eggshell had it struck him.

Mr. Smith was naturally unnerved by his narrow escape from sudden death.

"I couldn't realize what had happened," said Mr. Smith. "I didn't hear anything until the rock struck the axle under the wagon, in glancing from the crossbar. Some men across the street saw the rock fall, however, and they expected to see it strike me fairly on the head. It passed less than three feet in front of me, and as the horse was trotting you can realize how narrow an escape I had."

The danger of just such an accident has been called attention to in the columns of The Herald at least twice during the last year. The rocky bluff is seamed with large cracks, and the action of the frost loosens large sections of the rock. People living in the vicinity have frequently seen small pieces come tumbling down the cliff, and they are constantly fearing to see a large boulder come falling down the hill at a time when a street car is passing along the street below.

The Courthouse Bill.

The Herald received the following telegram from Representative Lewis this afternoon:

Returned to St. Paul last night and received many telegrams regarding the courthouse bill. It is now No. 19 on general orders. The bill is sure to pass the house and has already passed the senate. R. T. LEWIS.

MINERS GOING BACK TO WORK AND FEELING IS MUCH IMPROVED

Part of the Forces Return to Work at Hibbing and Chisholm.

General Resumption of Operations Expected Early Next Week.

Hibbing, Minn., April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The labor trouble at the mines now seems to be subsiding. The general disposition of the better class of the men is to go back to work, and this will probably be the result within a few days.

The 300 strikers who marched to Chisholm yesterday induced the men at the Clark, Leonard, Glen, Monroe-Tener, Chisholm and Pillsbury mines, numbering between 800 and 900, to quit work, fearing violence at the hands of the strikers. It is understood they are satisfied with their pay and hours of work, and this impression was confirmed when a number of them returned to work this morning.

There is also a small force at work at the Burt mine here today, and four shovels were working. The strikers held a meeting this morning and decided to send committees to the mines where work is proceeding to induce the men to quit again. They may succeed, but the strike is evidently on its last legs, and the first of next week will probably see all the mines and stripping contracts in full operation again.

Deputy Coroner Butchart held an inquest yesterday afternoon on the bodies of the two Finnish miners, Jacob Korpela and Leander Koski, who were killed in the riot on Tuesday night. The jury was composed of William H. Day, James Butchard, John Peterson, Bryan O'Rcurke, Axel Sandberg and Michael Sommers. C. E. Ames represented the state. Alexander Marshall and John R. Heino appeared for the strikers and Martin Hughes looked after the interests of the stripping contractors, Porter Bros. Twelve witnesses were examined, and it was established that the first shots came from the strikers' ranks, though several of the Finnish and Italian miners testified that the opening fire came from the works, where Porter Bros.' employes were behind the rocks. The jury returned a verdict that the two men came to their deaths by bullets fired by unknown persons while participating in a riot.

MUCH BLOODSHED IS FEARED IN RUSSIA

Workmen Preparing For an Armed Demonstration on May Day.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—Developments all point to a crisis in the present agitation among the workmen of the cities and the peasants in the country on May day, and appeals are pouring in from all quarters of Russia for military protection. The St. Petersburg workmen are preparing a great demonstration. Arms and bombs in large quantities have been smuggled in and bloodshed on a large scale is feared. Wealthy persons, who ordinarily go to villas on the islands of the Neva, or to neighboring country places, this year are going abroad. The government has taken few special measures to meet the situation, evidently relying on the troops and police to guard the capital. The latter are extremely active. All the prominent agitators are being arrested, or have already been sent back to the villages from which they originally came. The prisons are filled to overflowing.

There have been fresh disputes between the workmen and the managers of the Putiloff, Baltic and Nevsky works, and between thee mployes and the management of the government cartridge factory. At the latter place the men refuse to continue to donate any portion of their pay to assist in the support of families of soldiers at the front, claiming that the money is used to prosecute the war, to which they are opposed.

The news received from the interior is alarming, especially from the Baltic provinces, where the entire population is in a state of intense excitement. The cities are being flooded with revolutionary proclamations, calling on the people to rise on May day. The criminal classes are taking advantage of the situation to pillage and plunder, while in the country the landlords are powerless to cope with the peasants, and demand the stationing of troops at every station.

From Dunaburg, government of Vitebsk, come reports that the Jews are in a state of panic over the circulation of a proclamation similar to those which preceded the outbreaks at Kishineff and Gome. At Ekaterinoslav three revolutionists, who were surrounded by police, fought their way to liberty, killing several of the latter.

A dispatch from Kars says that the employes of the Trans-Caucasian railroad are on strike, and that 100 miles of the tracks have been damaged.

PRESIDENT MAY BE COMPELLED TO DELAY HUNT FOR GRIZZLIES

Heavy and Continuous Snow Storms Have Rendered the Hunting Grounds Almost Impassable For Man or Beast For the Present.

New Castle, Col., April 14.—With the snow two feet deep in every direction from the camp and from three to five feet deep in the hills, with the snow storm still continuing, it is possible that President Roosevelt will be compelled to delay his hunt here or content himself with smaller game than the grizzlies he has planned to kill. For a week now the snow has fallen day after day. Not twenty-four hours have passed without its storming. All that prevents the roads and trails from being absolutely impassable is the warm weather that has intervened and to a great extent melted the snow.

P. B. Wells, a Meeker county hunter, who is one of the party, has just arrived here. It took him nearly five hours to make the twenty miles ride from Camp Roosevelt and his horse was worn to exhaustion when he reached here.

"The weather is at least three weeks behind the normal," he said. "There has been an unusual amount of snow this winter, but not in ten years have I seen the conditions so bad as this season."

According to Wells, the camp is now in perfect shape. It has been practically decided to track the game with dogs and to follow with horses. This is considered one of the most dangerous sports and the bad condition of the ground makes it doubly dangerous now. A full grown grizzly can easily race away from a horse, and the dogs can almost equal the speed.

Hunters here point out that to hunt from horses at all, a dead gallop must be kept up all of the time to close in with the quarry, and that this speed must be maintained over gullies, through gulches, around rocks, over broken logs, through thickets and brush and up and down mountain sides, and they pessimistically have doubts of its success.

Now that the reception to President Roosevelt is assured, the women of New Castle have decided to do their share. As soon as the president alights from the train a committee from the Women's Reading club will surround him and will escort him to the club rooms, where on behalf of the women of Garfield county, he will be presented with a horsehair bridle for the use of Miss Alice Roosevelt. The bridle itself is a work of art, which took over a year to complete. All of the straps, including reins, are made of pure white horse hair and the buckles are of solid silver.

Colorado Springs, April 14.—Upon the return of President Roosevelt to this city from his hunting trip about the middle of May he will be waited upon by the members of the Pike's Peak Press club of this city and presented with one of the club's handsome gold badges as a souvenir of his visit. At the monthly meeting of the club the president was elected an honorary member and the badge voted to him. The badge will be made out of pure Cripple Creek gold.

It is also planned to take the president to the summit of Pike's Peak on the cog road and an extra effort will be made to have the road open by the time he returns.

WILL NOT TRY GORKY.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—On account of the condition of his health and the fact that the evidence against Maxim Gorky is not stronger than that against hundreds of others, who have not been arrested in connection with the disturbances at St. Petersburg, Jan. 22, it is understood that the government has abandoned its intention of bringing him to trial.

RUSSIAN HOSPITAL SHIP HAVING MANY WOUNDED ENTERS SAIGON

DULUTH GETS ALL IT ASKED OF LEGISLATURE

Forty Thousand For Women's Dormitory at Normal School.

Naval Militia Is Given $8,500 Annually, Beginning Next July.

May Be Used In Bringing the Fern to Duluth.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 14.—The omnibus appropriation bills, the general bill and that distributing the road and bridge fund, came into both houses today. The general bill, which carries appropriations amounting to $4,200,000, was made a special order for this morning. Duluth is fortunate and gets all that it asked. There is $40,000 for a women's dormitory at the Duluth normal school, available this year, and the naval militia gets just what it asked, $8,500 annually, beginning with the fiscal year ending in July 1906. The bill provides, that this may be used in bringing the Fern to Duluth from Newport News.

A minor measure is $253 for T. H. Martin of Duluth, who paid timber trespass damages to the state on timber that he owned himself, and who seeks to get it back.

Among the principal items are $50,000 for a livestock amphitheater at the state fair; $75,000 for a new building at the state soldiers' home and $350,000 for new buildings at the state university. The total is larger than the total carried by the omnibus bill of two years ago, but the members of the committee stated that this is because two years ago some matters were cared for by special tax levies. None are made this year, but the items are covered by straight appropriations. Considering this change, the increase is only about $100,000 above that of 1903.

G. H. Wyman of Anoka and others protested against hasty consideration of the bill, complaining that the committees had not given out anything of what was being done and that the house would not take it all for granted.

• • •

The senate refused to pass the Lund bill abolishing private banks, this morning. First an amendment was offered providing that the bill should not apply to banks that have been operating more than a year. This was lost, 24 to 40. Then, on final passage, there were 34 for and 25 against the bill, and as it needed 42 votes it was lost. Laybourn voted for the bill and Hawkins and Pugh opposed it.

• • •

Senator Cole tried to get the mangled remains of the W. A. Nolan reciprocal demurrage bill made a special order for 11 o'clock tomorrow, but Senator Hawkins opposed it, and the motion failed to carry, 28 for and 29 against.

• • •

The senate committee approved S. D. Peterson's bill limiting telegraph charges to 25 cents for ten words.

• • •

The senate has killed W. I. Nolan's bill providing the lash as a punishment for wife beating.

• • •

The omnibus road and bridge bill came into the house and was passed under suspension of the rules. It carries about $70,000, and an attempt is made to divide up the money according to the needs of the different counties. St. Louis county gets $1,400, to be used on the Virginia and International road; Lake county gets $800 for general use; Cook county gets $500; Aitkin county gets $1,100; Carlton county $800; Itasca $1,500; Pine, $1,000.

• • •

Representative Thompson tried to get the house to advance the Buck bill, taking the Faribault defective schools away from the board of control, asking a suspension of the rules that the bill might go on the calendar.

It met with decided opposition, and so did Anderson's motion to make the bill a special order for 10 o'clock tomorrow. There were 54 and 41 against, but the speaker ruled that 80 votes were necessary, so it was lost. Later, on motion to make the omnibus appropriation bill a special order, he refused to rule that way, though it happened that later it developed that there were 81 votes for the motion.

• • •

The house had a merry interval with J. G. Lennon and his resolution asking the State Fair association not to hire an outside band. Lennon made a burningly eloquent talk and the house applauded him facetiously. On his motion to adopt the resolution, there were 50 for and 45 against. Frazer said that it was necessary to get 60 votes, but the speaker ruled that the motion was carried. Later somebody showed him his mistake and he ruled that it was lost, not having 60 votes.

• • •

J. T. Mannix offered a joint resolution asking the governor to appoint a commission of three to look into the divorce question and co-operate with other states toward uniform divorce laws.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

TO BLIND AND ESCAPE.

Plot of Prisoners Against Pine County Sheriff.

Stillwater, Minn., April 14.—When Edward Smith, a prisoner, was about to be taken to Pine county by Sheriff Hawley he was searched at the suggestion of a fellow prisoner and a quantity of pepper which he had planned to throw in the sheriff's eyes, taken from him. He had been saving the condiment for weeks as a means of escaping. He and Clarence Dickinson were indicted for raising checks and both were returned to Pine county yesterday for trial.

DOCTOR FOUND GUILTY.

Osceola, Iowa, April 14.—Dr. Crofford of the Lamoni sanitarium was today found guilty of the murder of Maude Stone, a young girl who died in Crofford's hospital after a criminal operation four years ago. Crofford was tried and convicted once before and sentenced to thirteen years for second-degree murder.

ALLEY MURDER BILL IS KILLED BY SENATE

Would Have Left the Punishment to the Jury's Decision.

Capt. Lewis Refutes the Slander on Secretary Frank A. Day.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate yesterday afternoon refused to pass the Alley bill relating to the punishment for murder, because it did not wish to make murder more popular than it already it.

The bill provided that nobody should be hanged for murder in the first degree unless the trial jury distinctly said so in its verdict. Even then, if the court thought the facts warranted, it could decide that the accused should suffer life imprisonment instead of being hanged.

A still more curious feature of the bill was that it provided that murder in the second degree, now punished by nothing less than life imprisonment, could be punished by any imprisonment from ten years up to life.

G. W. W. Harden of Mower county made the only talk on the bill, but succeeded in killing it, the bill falling fifteen votes short of the necessary 60, with 45 for and 44 against. Mr. Harden said that it would result in no hangings for murder, for if it was left to the jury there would never be a murder so atrocious that the jurors would agree on hanging. He pointed out that in 1868 a law was passed something similar to this, by which the jury was to determine if murder should be punished by hanging, and there was not a hanging in many years. Finally the Youngers escaped death through the law, and it was repealed and the present law substituted.

The bill was supported by the friends of the bill abolishing capital punishment, because it was felt that it would have the same effect.

• • •

The house yesterday afternoon passed the Stone senate bill providing for negotiable railroad mileage books and tickets, 84 to 16. It carries some amendments which the senate will no doubt adopt, and the bill will probably become a law. The principal amendment was one providing

TWO NEGRO MURDERERS END THEIR LIVES ON THE GALLOWS

Paterson, N. J., April 14.—Arthur Laster and Joseph Miller, two negro murderers, died on the gallows in the county jail here today. It had been expected that Laster, who made a desperate attempt to escape from the jail last Sunday night, but he went to the gallows without resistance. Neither execution was marked by an unusual incident. Laster was the first to go to the scaffold. The cap and rope were quickly put in place, the drop was sprung and twelve minutes later the physicians pronounced the murderer dead. Twenty minutes later Miller had gone to his death from the same scaffold.

Laster fatally shot Max Woolenburg, last June, while attempting to escape after being detected in the act of robbing Woolenburg's store in this city.

Last Sunday night after the death watch had been placed before the condemned man's cell, Laster made a sensational attempt to escape. Securing permission to leave his cell for a moment, he savagely attacked the guards, secured the revolver of one of them and shot both of the officers. Then he attempted to gain possession of the keys which would open the iron doors between him and freedom. The guards fought back desperately, however, despite their wounds and finally succeeded in getting a door between themselves and the prisoner. A few minutes later, with the aid of reinforcements Laster was overpowered and returned to his cell.

Miller was convicted of the murder of Mrs. Celina Stewart, a colored resident of Midvale on the night of Sept. 20, last. He entered the woman's house and after an attempted assault, cut his victim almost to pieces with a razor.

ITALIAN MAGISTRATE MAKES J. PIERPONT MORGAN ANGRY

Rome, April 14.—Before J. P. Morgan, who arrived here yesterday from Naples, left Taormini, an examining maistrate from Taormini boarded his yacht, the Corsair, to take Mr. Morgan's testimony concerning the person who sold him the famous cope stolen from the cathedral of Ascoli, and subsequently returned to Ascoli by Mr. Morgan. The latter was indignant at being troubled about the matter, after having returned the cope without even asking for the reimbursement of the money he had paid for it. He said he did not remember anything connected with the purchase of the cope, but when asked to sign a statement to that effect, Mr. Morgan refused, saying he would not sign anything in a language he did not understand.

The government has been informed of the incident and is most displeased at its occurrence. It was due to the fact that the courts of justice in Italy are independent of the government, and the examining magistrate at Taormini acted on a request received from the court at Ascoli and not at the request of the government. The authorities of Ascoli are still trying to ascertain how the cope was stolen and in so doing requested the legal authorities at Taormini to take the testimony of Mr. Morgan.

A DOZEN NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH

New York, April 14.—A dozen men who were at work in a tunnel, underneath the Hudson river, between Jersey City and New York, had a narrow escape from being drowned today when the walls of the tunnel caved in and the hole was flooded. The tunnel is intended for use of trolley cars to connect the two cities. A shaft forty-five feet deep has been sunk in Jersey City, and from the foot of it a tunnel has been extended a short distance under the river bed. The men crowded a narrow ladder which leads up the side of the shaft so badly, and the water gained on them so fast that some of them started to climb a hoisting chain suspended in the center of the shaft. One of the men fell from the center of the chain, and would have knocked some of the others from the ladder had he not been caught by one of them as he dropped. Before the last of the men left the tunnel the water at the foot of the shaft was four feet deep.

MRS. CHADWICK'S BAIL INCREASED

Cleveland, April 14.—Mrs. Chadwick when arraigned in the United States district court today pleaded not guilty to the new indictment recently returned against her by the grand jury, charging her with aiding and abetting Cashier A. B. Spear of the Oberlin bank in making false entries in the bank's books and in making untrue statements to the controller of the currency. Spear was also arraigned today and pleaded not guilty to the joint indictment. The court increased Mrs. Chadwick's bail from $20,000 to $27,000. Of the $7,000 added, $5,000 was to cover the new indictment while $1,000 was named on each of two of the old indictments.

MOUNTAIN THREATENS

Startling Occurrences In Vicinity of Mount Shasta.

San Francisco, April 14.—The Examiner today says that Mount Shasta threatens to become active again. Some startling occurrences are reported at Sissons, a town in the vicinity of the mountain. The ground has opened at several points and mud is ejected. The railroad embankment across a big canon has sunk forty feet, and the streets of the little mountain town are filling up with muddy stuff, full of oil.

BATTLE MAY HAVE OCCURRED AT SEA

Admiralty Inclined to Think Wounded Are Only Sick Sailors.

Several Severe Skirmishes Reported Between Troops on Land.

Manila, April 14.—Rear Admiral Train, in command of the American fleet in Asiatic waters, received a telegram at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Saigon, the capital and principal port of French Cochin China, reporting the arrival there of the Russian hospital ship Orel, at 8 o'clock on the morning of April 13. The Orel had many wounded men on board.

A dispatch received on Thursday by the Chicago Daily News from its correspondent from Saigon said:

"Rojestvensky's hospital ship arrived here Wednesday night to take on board provisions, coal and medicines. It will leave Thursday at midday to rejoin the main squadron." No mention was made of wounded men aboard this ship.

St. Petersburg, April 14, 5:15 p. m.—The admiralty's advices from Saigon do not mention any wounded men being on board the hospital ship Orel, which arrived there yesterday. She probably has sick sailors on board.

It is understood that the Orel will leave at once and rejoin the Russian fleet which, it is said, may be standing off somewhere up the coast awaiting the hospital ship.

MAIN FORCE

Of Russians Said to Have Reached Kirin.

Tokio, April 14.—It is reported that the main force of the Russians, which retired in the direction of Hsingking, has reached Kirin. The rear guard, which is estimated at 12,000 men, continues in the vicinity of Harlung Cheng, closely in touch with the Japanese vanguard. The main force, which retired from Kai Yuan, over the Kirin road, is reported at Kirin with a rear guard of 8,000 men at Itsuchow, Haksiu and at Sulipao keeping in touch with the Japanese forces.

Chang Cheng is evidently the rallying point for the Chantu and Fakumen forces. Although a force, estimated at 13,000, has been detailed to occupy Fenchua, and 3,000 to hold Paimencheng, the latter force seems assigned to check and retard the Japanese advance.

NOTHING FROM ADMIRAL.

Russian Admiralty Fails to Hear From Rojestvensky.

St. Petersburg, April 14, 4:23 p. m.—The admiralty has not received any dispatches recently from Vice Admiral Rojestvensky.

The officials say that all talk of the emergence of any of the interned Russian war vessels to join Rojestvensky's fleet is pure nonsense.

Much satisfaction and admiration are expressed in naval circles at the bold, direct manner in which Rojestvensky is carrying out the objects of his voyage.

The attitude of indifference in certain quarters as to the outcome of the naval battle is arousing criticism and Prince Outomsky in his new paper, The Dawn, today takes society to task for its unpatriotic, careless attitude.

VLADIVOSTOK

Being Heavily Fortified to Withstand a Siege.

Tokio, April 14.—It is reported here that the Russians are continually reinforcing the garrison at Vladivostok and that the work of strengthening the fortress is progressing constantly. It is said that the plans of the Russians contemplate a garrison numbering 100,000 men with 500 guns. Many additional batteries, redoubts, barriers and pits are in course of construction and enormous store of ammunition are being accumulated. The Russians, it is said, hope to so equip the fortress that it will be capable of withstanding a siege.

RUSSIANS SPECULATE

On Reason For Publication of Jap Correspondence.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—Dispatches from Washington showing that Japan officially notified the United States when the rupture with Russia occurred that no act of hostility would take place till after a formal declaration of war had been made, whereas hostilities broke out Feb. 8 and the declaration of war was not formally made until Feb. 10, attract much attention here. Although the dispatches arrived too late for newspaper comment this morning there is considerable speculation as to the cause of the publication of the statement at this time. It is regarded as a friendly manifestation towards Russia on the part of the United States, Russia having always contended that the statement of M. Kurino, former Japanese minister at St. Petersburg, to Foreign Minister Lamsdorff when he presented the note severing diplomatic relations, in which he expressed hope that the rupture was only temporary, gave Russia no reason to anticipate an attack without warning in the shape of a declaration of war.

RUSSIANS DEFEATED

In an Encounter With Japs Advancing Eastward.

Tokio, April 14, 3 p. m.—The following official announcement was made today:

"Our force advancing eastward via the Fushun and Hailung road encountered and defeated the enemy on the morning of the 12th at Erhhoulu seven miles east of Yingpan. The enemy's strength was one regiment of infantry, six squadrons of cavalry and four guns. Our force then occupied Tsangshih about nineteen miles east of Yingpan. The enemy in retreating toward Hailung fought at every step.

"The enemy on the Kirin road has gradually retreated since the 11th, a portion of this force still remaining to bar the passage of the Yushu river.

"No change has occurred in the Changtu or Fahkmen districts except occasional cavalry skirmishes."

MYSTERY OF THE TACOMA

Explained In Letter From Her Chief Engineer.

Seattle, April 14.—In a letter written to a friend in this city, Otto Daniels, chief engineer of the Northwestern Steamship company's steamer Tacoma, which was captured by Japanese cruisers while trying to run the blockade to Vladivostok, dispels the mystery which has surrounded the history of that craft since leaving this port on Jan. 6.

Daniels states that the officers of the steamer knew that they were bound for the Siberian port, and that their cargo was contraband. He says that some of the officers were only prevailed upon to make the voyage by the promises of the Russian agent aboard the steamer. The crew did not know their destination until the steamer reached Dutch harbor. When they found it out they threatened to desert the ship, and a mutiny was only averted by the diplomacy of the Russian agent, who promised them a small fortune if the attempt was successful.

The writer states, after the Tacoma was caught in the ice she was in momentary danger of being crushed by the terrible pressure exerted by the floes as they drifted about with the current. The men were forced to burn the deck house and other parts of the steamer's upper structure to keep warm, and were obliged to subsist for a part of the time on the beef intended for the Russians.

Daniels says that after being captured the entire crew were treated with the utmost kindness by the Japanese, who were in possession of the names and position of every member almost from the moment of the steamer's leaving this port.

RUSSIANS RAID RAILROAD.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—Russian troops have successfully raided the railroad in the direction of Kaiyuan, twenty miles north of Tie pass. The dispatch from Gen. Linevitch, dated April 13, to Emperor Nicholas, says:

"Our cavalry, April 9, destroyed the railroad and wires near Yakutsu, and between Kaiyuan and Changtuan, April 10, the cavalry cut the line near Kaiyuan."

INDIAN AGENT IS EXONERATED.

Arkansas City, Kas., April 14.—W. L. Miller and special Indian agent, has finished a special investigation at the Kaw Indian agency. He was sent from Washington to investigate the complaints filed against the agent, Mr. Watson, by some members of the tribe. The special agent found that Watson had followed the rules of the department, and that the Indians' complaint was not a just one.

TRACES OF RADIUM FOUND.

Kansas City, April 14.—Traces of radium have been found ten miles east of the business center of Kansas City, according to reports just made by Prof. R. B. Moore, instructor of chemistry and Prof. Herman Schlundt, instructor of physical chemistry in the university of Missouri, following an investigation.

GRANDAUGHTER FOR MORGAN.

DUNNE AND BRYAN

Advocate Public Ownership at Jefferson Club Banquet In Chicago.

Judge Parker Speaks to the Democratic Club In New York.

Chicago, April 14.—Subjects of national significance to the Democratic party were discussed by the foremost orators of the party at the Jefferson club banquet held at the Sherman house last night in commemoration of the birthday of Thomas Jefferson. The dinner, however, in a measure resolved itself into a jollification over Mayor Edward F. Dunne.

The toastmaster of the evening was Howard S. Taylor, prosecuting attorney.

William Jennings Bryan said in part:

"A Jeffersonian doctrine which is being misinterpreted today is his protest against paternalism. He favored the encouragement of individual effort and opposed the undertaking by the government of work which the individual could do better. His words have been invoked against what is described as public ownership. In applying any mans' language to conditions arising after his death, it is necessary to know, not only what he said, but the reasons for what he said. Nothing is more unfair than to employ words in such a way as to defeat the reasons which lie back of the words. Jefferson's aim was to protect the rights of the individual and to give him the maximum of stimulus. A private monopoly, such as public ownership is intended to prevent, does not enlarge the sphere of the individual or inspire him to high endeavor. The actual effect of a private monopoly is just the reverse, and wherever the prinoiple of private monopoly centers, the government must operate the monopoly, or violate all of the principles taught by Jefferson.

"For instance, in the city of Chicago has been won the most notable victory achieved thus far in the United States for the cause of municipal ownership, and Judge Dunne, who led the Democratic forces to victory on this platform, was one of the organizers of the Jefferson club, under whose auspices this banquet is given. Can anyone be so ignorant of the aims, arguments and principles of Jefferson as to quote him in support of a corporation which monopolizes the highways of this great city? Can anyone believe that he would subordinate his objections to monopoly in order to defend the right of a few monopolists to reap an enormous profit from the use of streets made valuable, not by the capitalists, but by the people of Chicago?

"I am glad that in the city of Chicago the Democratic platform was broad enough to include not only the public ownership of the street car lines, but the public ownership of lighting plants and telephone systems—the Chicago water system, I believe, has for many years been owned by the city. The natural results of private monopoly are, first, extortion as to the price of the product; second, oppression as to the labor employed in production; third, deterioration in the quality of the product; the fourth, the corruption of the power which attempts to regulate monopoly in the interest of the public.

"The third Jeffersonian doctrine that is now being misinterpreted and misapplied is his argument against long-time debts. He took the position that the earth belongs in succession to each generation, and that a preceding generation had no right to mortgage the earth beyond its occupancy of it. If his doctrine had been adopted it would be much easier to deal with the problems of today, but it is manifestly unfair to permit railroads and municipal corporations to mortgage the public for generations, and then to quote Jefferson against the issue of bonds when a city attempts to rid itself of private monopoly.

"It is better for a city to issue bonds at a low rate of interest and for actual improvements than for a city to permit private corporations to issue bonds, based not upon investment, but upon the power of monopoly to extort an income from succeeding generations.

"And although his contemporaries showered upon him the highest honors that man could have, he left the world his debtor beyond our power to calculate. No words or figures can measure the value of the gift that he bestowed upon the race. Wherever men contend for human rights his words strengthen and encourage, wherever patriots devote themselves to the investigation of problems of government, his researches and his expositions illumine and direct. Every great forward movement bears the impress of his thought, his words, his work. He stands before the world as the growing figure in the sphere of politics. Warriors have won fame upon the battlefield and have rearranged with their swords the maps of nations, but history affirms with Carlisle that 'thought, a stronger than artillery parks,' at last rules the world and that 'back of thought is love.'

"Jefferson's love for mankind was his controlling passion, and it extended to generations unborn. As we celebrate his memory on the anniversary of his birth, we say as those could say who lived when he did 'We love him because he first loved us.'"

Mayor Dunne spoke to the toast "Two Elections and Their Lesson." He said in part:

"The Democratic party won in the spring election because its platform plainly, clearly and truthfully declared for principles which were uppermost in the minds of the people. It lost last fall, because its platform was a compromise and because the people believed that it dealt in platitudes rather than principles.

"The results of these two elections should teach the lesson to the men who stand by the councils of Democracy that evasion, insincerity and retrogression should have no place in the platforms of the Democratic party. The party must take and hold to advanced positions. It must keep pace with the march of events. It must declare against monopoly in any and every guise. In general opposition to all forms, against special privileges in the blow struck in Chicago will be followed by blows of like character throughout the United States. It will also be followed in my humble judgment, if the Democratic party is wise and prudent and incorporates in its next platform a ringing declaration in favor of government ownership of interstate railroads, telegraphs and express companies, and another in favor of the abolition of the protective tariff. I have no doubt that it will win.

"If the protective tariff be abolished and the government takes possession of the means of transportation of conveyance, of freight, express packages and information every dangerous trust in America will die a natural death in five years."

Thomas L. Johnson was the next speaker. Mr. Johnson also spoke on municipal ownership from a traction expert's view.

Among others who spoke during the evening were J. Hamilton Lewis and Clarence Darrow. Mr. Lewis spoke on "A Constitution to Fit the Institutions."

New York, April 14.—Seven hundred Democrats attended the Jefferson day banquet of the Democratic club of New York at the Waldorf-Astoria last night. There were many present of national reputation and chief among these was former Chief Justice Alton B. Parker, nominee for president last November.

Mr. Parker was the first speaker and he was enthusiastically received. The speech was on the future of the Democratic party. Mr. Parker said in part:

"The lesson to be learned is that, whether as Americans or as partisans, we must struggle out of the treacherous bogs of policy and get back to the solid ground of principle. In doing this, the first and most important step is recognition of a fact inherent in our society, fixed in our laws and institutions, and the consistent policy of the Democratic party from the earliest days. This is, that honest thrift, the natural fruit of industry, must be encouraged and promoted.

"It ought to be clear by this that if we endorse, or accept, or even fail to oppose, any policy which shall directly or remotely suggest even the possibility of confiscation, or which by any agitation so much as threatens the measure of values, we shall arouse the suspicions and invite the opposition of our people, whether their accumulations are invested in farms, town houses, mines, deposits in savings banks, insurance policies, or in our varied industries wherever found.

"If there is to remain an effective Democratic party, and God grant there shall, it must in the future, as in the past, draw its membership from these representatives of work and thrift. Insofar as there is, under the operation of our laws, unfairness and inequality, and insofar as abuses have grown up, their existence shows that favoritism has become seated and the remedy should be at once applied. But we must repair all leaks in the roof without endangering the structure of our society."

OUTLOOK IS MUCH BETTER

Duluth Naval Reserve May Get Its Full Appropriation.

According to a report received by Lieutenant Commander Guy A. Eaton of the Naval reserve, from St. Paul last evening, the prospect of the Duluth Naval reserve getting the full appropriation of $8,500 asked for is far better than was supposed yesterday. Mr. Eaton was informed that the sub-committee to whom the omnibus appropriation bill was referred had reported back favorably on the full appropriation for the reserve.

If the report of the committee is followed, however, it is claimed that the appropriation will not begin until August 1 of this year, so the local naval reserve will be cut out of a part of the appropriation for this year.

Lieutenant Commander Eaton says that even if the reserves cannot have the qhqearlfis yvbxgkujv bg mb mbmm m other boats that they have in view.

SERIOUS CHARGES

Brought Against Officials of Beltrami County.

St. Paul, April 14.—Public Examiner P. M. Kerst, in a report to Governor Johnson, asks the appointment of a commission to bring about the immediate suspension from office of County Attorney H. Fern they will probably get some of the Sibley and W. Wright of Beltrami county. The report charges that for the past three or four years there has been general and willful neglect of duty and conspiracy to defraud the county on the part of the officers named. The office of the sheriff, county physician and county auditor, the report says, should also be investigated.

The report, which is careully drawn, states that "one of the most glaring irregularities is in the disregard, abuse and perversion of the law in the handling of crime, apparently no effort having been made to promptly and effectively prosecute perpetrators of crime or to bring them to justice."

The public examiner then details at great length specific instances wherein he alleges the county has been defrauded through the payment of illegal bills, and in other ways, and charges that this is a result of a conspiracy among the officers named.

BY-PRODUCTS PAPER CO. WANTS TO DISSOLVE.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 14.—Counsel for the By-Products Paper company of Niagara Falls, secured an order ofr mJustice Childs in the supreme court yesterday requiring creditors of the concern and all other interested in the company to show cause on July 12 next why the company should not be dissolved. At the same time an order was granted naming Edmonds P. Bryant, secretary and treasurer of the company, temporary receiver, his bond being fixed at $50,000. Counsel when asked for the reason of the efforts to dissolve the company, said:

"Couldn't make a success of the thing, that's all. The company was organized three years ago, with a capital of $2,000,000, taking over another company, and was experimenting in a process for making the finest kind of paper from what to all intents and purpose was refuse of the company's capital stock $1,000,000 was issued and is outstanding.

The men behind the concern are said to be prominent capitalists of New York and Europe.

IMPROVE SHAPES

Public Men In Washington Taking Weight-Reducing Exercise.

Physical Culture Expert at Work—Has Many Pupils.

Washington, April 14.—Public men in Washington are getting tired of their shapes. There have been no dress-makers' conventions here nor have there been parliaments of gentlemen's tailors, but just the same there seems to be a concerted movement among men in public life to adopt the "straight front," if possible, and get rid of the present "curved lines of beauty" that have come with advancing years.

It's not the young dude fellow in public life either, not the fellow who turns his trousers up at the bottom on sunshiny days or has them made with "cuffs" on the bottom so they will stay turned up all the time, and who wears a cane morning and afternoon, with which he taps his protruding teeth. Not by any means. It's such men as the president of the United States and the members of his cabinet who are leaders in this shape-changing propaganda.

Each of the men has his own method, but all have the same objective. Now, just what prompts the president of the United States is not altogether clear, except it be, perhaps, that when he goes over from the White House, in which he lives, to the executive offices, where he works, he finds his mind less active and that his great easy chair behind his desk is more comfortable and that the springy, just-out-of-his-teens walk has lost some of its springiness, and that his tailor has insisted that to make his trousers fit he must add two or three inches to the waistband has had something to do with it.

Far be it from a humble correspondent to suggest such a thing, but a member of the cabinet the other day had the temerity to say that in his opinion the president of the United States must weigh now as much as 225 pounds. But the member of the cabinet himself weighs more than that, so it might be jealousy that prompted the suggestion, although made in apparent sincerety. Why, the president himself was so shocked at a suggestion a year or two ago that he weighed over 200 that he had his secretary deny it to the newspapers. But in the last year he has made no such denial. It's doubtful if he could—this last at the risk of being held for lese majeste.

Even if the president is changing shape and is acquiring avoirdupois, no one can say that he has lost any of his old-time spirit of activity. Then, too, the president is not a fadist when it comes to physical activity. He has been a devotee of physical perfection and activity ever since he had the wind knocked out of him when a young fellow in New York city by a man half his size. He never got a chance to get even with the man who did it until both of them were in college years later, but that's still another story and quite apart from what is trying to be told now.

The president tries to work himself down to "condition" by playing tennis and by riding horseback. Once in awhile he takes a walk that makes the secret service men follow in his wake at a dog trot. That's all right, for he is going to give one of these self-same body-guards a job down in West Virginia as United States marshal that will pay him twice the money he gets as secret service agent.

The president plays tennis on the court just outside his executive offices every afternoon. His companions at the game are his oldest son, Mr. Garfield, the chief of the bureau of corporations and the young naval or army officers who are associated with the White House in the capacity of aids, which makes them ever available as social arbiters in season and as friends in and out of season.

It's worth seeing to note the president at his game. He wears an old pair of trousers, a soft white shirt, open in front, and if he happens to think about it a necktie. Sometimes he has a hat of the rough rider type, and sometimes it's like the necktie, he forgets to bring it out with him. The tennis court is exactly in front of the windows of Mr. Loeb's office, and any of the callers there who get close enough to the windows may look out and see the president at play. Last summer it became generally known that the president played every afternoon, and it became the fashion for tourists to "happen along" about that time and watch from the windows and balconies of the state, war and navy building opposite. But this was soon stopped.

When the president goes horseback riding he quietly gets in a surrey or open carriage at the White House, wrapped in a long military cape, concealing his khaki riding suit, and is driven at a smart clip out to the center of the residence section, usually about Dupon Circle. He is followed thus far by two bicyble policemen, and by prearrangement he finds his horse there. nA experienced cavalryman from over at Fort Meyer is constantly stationed at the stables of the president, and he usually waits with the president's horse and follows him at a reasonable distance. The president chafes under this constant surveillance, but has given way to the insistence of his family, his secretary and the public men who are his friends. He is no common form of daily exercise. When he rides he rides at a gallop as soon as he warms his horse up. When he plays tennis he plays on the jump, with a strenuousness that keeps the younger men on their mettle.

With this example before them it is not strange that members of the president's cabinet are now given to the reduction of their flesh and the increase of their physical activity through constant and daily exercise. Just the other day, when the president was leaving the White House for his Southwestern trip, one of his horses fell down and soon a crowd gathered. It took considerable time and half a dozen policemen in addition to the president, and the driver and the footman and Secretary Loeb and the president's physician, to get the horse back on his feet and continue on the way to thes tation. When the crowd had gathered about the carriage there was a sudden clattering of hoofs, and up came a rider in a gray, smart riding suit with tan leggings and the latest sort of riding whip and the shiniest of spurs and stirrups and finest of saddles. He pushed his way through the group that surrounded the president's carriage, leading his prancing bay behind him, put his arm affectionately on the arm of the president and exclaimed: "Well, I'm glad you are not hurt. Can't they get that horse up?" It was Mr. Moody, the attorney general. He keeps bachelor hall in one of the finest residences on K street—the street on which half a dozen rich United States senators and two members of the cabinet live. He can be seen riding out almost every day, usually frequenting the fashionable avenues and streets and not given to cross-country riding as is the president.

That same day another little man, with a white, flowing beard and nervous, quick ways of impatience about him, pushed towards the president eagerly. He did not get close enough to greet him familiarly, as had Mr. Moody, because he was seized by a secret service officer and would have been unceremoniously pushed aside had it not been that the president noticed him and, with his own hands released him and pulled up beside him, exclaiming, "Why, my dear Gen. Wheeler; I didn't know you were in town. Come ride down to the railway station with me. I would like to talk to you." It was Gen. Joe Wheeler, the famous Confederate cavalry leader, and later a general of the war with Spain, beside whom the president fought. He, too, is an advocate of outdoor exercise, and every time he stays in Washington long enough he has a good long horseback ride. The general does not weigh much more than 125 pounds, so it is doubtful if he is seeking to change his shape by the riding, but rather more than probable that he likes the outdoor air and the feeling of keen enjoyment that comes to the accomplished horseman on a good mount.

William H. Taft, the secretary of war, is another of the cabinet men who rides horseback, and who does it as a health-insuring and flesh-removing exercise. Now, the secretary, as has been noted, weighs something in excess of 300 pounds, and he cuts anything but a brilliant figure on top of a horse big enough to carry him. No one knows this better than the secretary, and when the small boys along the roadside inquire, with fine sarcasm, "Mister, why don't you get off and carry that horse?" he laughs good-naturedly and does not permit even a shadow of annoyance to pass over his big, kind face.

But not every man has the time or inclination to take to tennis or to horseback riding, and it's true that this latter exercise is much more expensive than one might think who has not had to give up a $5 note for two hours on a national capital riding horse.

To meet just such a contingency there has come to Washington in the past year a gentleman with muscles as big as ship hawsers and an accent, when he does not forget it in his excitement or anger, that would mark him as a native of France. He took one of the finest apartments in the Rochambeau apartment house, which, by the way, is but a few blocks from the White House, a few blocks from the homes of the representatives in Washington of foreign sovereigns and right near the best and swellest male clubs. He let it be known that he was in the business of producing physical activity for the inactive at so much per produce. He has a system which is different from those printed in the physical culture columns of the weekly and monthly magazines and the Sunday supplements of the daily press, but only in that he has a way of giving personal supervision to those who apply to him for his "treatments." He is thrifty, this devotee and scholar of muscles. While he firmly and surely believes, or says he does, every one of those who come to him with the statement that a full course of lessons is to be taken, he insists that he has long made it a custom to collect in advance for the first ten lessons, and then he collects It usually insures him the return of a pupil, in spite of sore muscles and aching back.

He strips his pupil and then has him forget his dignity and avoirdupois and get down on the floor and do all sorts of things that he has not done for years. It would be telling on the physical culture professor to say just what he makes the men do, but it would be amusing to know just what the constitutents of three dignified senators who are his pupils would think if they found them stripped to a breech clout, lying on the floor and trying to kick the professor's hand ten times in as many seconds while he holds it tantalizing just out of their reach. Or picture a man whose brains have marked him as a man among 80,000,000 with his feet fastened in toe straps along the baseboard of this fashionable apartment, puffing like a porpoise while he tries to rise to a sitting position from the fat of his back, here he has been placed, and not remove his hands from the place they were put, clasped behind his head, by the professor. The first lesson makes the best of them stiff. Why, it even made Mr. Loeb, secretary to the president, and Col. Clarence Edwards, head of the bureau of insular affairs—but there, I came near telling who are devotees of the newest style of physical culture in my effort to pick out some thin men who have gone through the rigors of the professor's reuirements and admit it winded them. When the lesson of half an hour is all over an attendant gives you a fine rub down and massage, and when the open air is reached again a man has a knee action and a tendency to hit only the high places that makes him believe that he has indeed found the elixir of life.

BRUTAL PRIZE FIGHT.

Minneapolis, April 13.—A brutal prize fight was pulled off in the roadhouse at Keegans Lake, several miles outside of Minneapolis, between Claude Baker of Minneapolis, and "Kid" Clark, an Eastern lightweight of New York. Clark was terribly beaten and after six rounds of vicious fighting he went out, the decision being given to Baker. The boys fought for a side bet of $200. The bout was a private affair, but forty sports witnessed it. Clark was heavily backed.

KICKING HARD

Property Owners Protesting Against Dusty Condition of Streets.

Early Arrival of Spring Caught City Authorities Unprepared.

Daily and almost hourly kicks are being registered with the board of public works from indignant citizens, because the streets of the city are not being sprinkled, and while the property owners are getting "red-headed" over the dust, the members of the board are becoming grey over the kicks.

The members of the board claim they are not to blame for the delay, but that the fault, if there is any, lies with the council. Probably the chief offender is the weather man, who was responsible for it all by sending spring before the city authorities were prepared for it.

However, the fact remains that until May 1 the board will be unable to have the streets sprinkled, however dusty they become, unless some special provision is made by the council for a temporary arrangement.

The sprinkling districts into which the city was divided by the board have not yet been confirmed by the council, and until this is done, and the sprinkling ordered the board cannot advertise for bids for the sprinkling of the different districts.

The council will doubtless take this action Monday night. The board will then have to advertise for ten days before bids can be opened, and at the end of that time the contracts can be let and the work commenced at once. About May 1, therefore, the sprinkling will be commenced.

Meanwhile the board has been compelled to take special action on Superior street, where the dust made it almost impossible for the merchants to do business. This street is being sprinkled by carts hired by the day, and the men are paid out of the public works fund. The residents of other streets in the city, seeing this example, are visiting the office of the board by dozens and scores, and asking for the immediate commencement of the sprinkling. But if the board should expend money from the fund for this purpose it would seriously cripple the other work.

If the conditions continue to grow worse, the council may authorize the board to expend a limited amount of money for sprinkling some of the streets until the contracts can be let in the regular manner.

Some of the worst places are along the hillside, in the central part of the city, and along West Michigan street, near the point of rocks.

Cloquet Tie & Post Company Protests Against Its Taxes.

Claiming that May 1, 1904, it only had personal property in the city of Duluth in the value of not more than $1,260, the Cloquet Tie and Post company has interposed an answer to the proceedings instituted by St. Louis county to collect the personal property taxes of 1904 delinquent April 1, 1905.

The company claims it is in the mercantile and manufacturing business at Cloquet, Carlton county, Minn., and was there for a long time prior to May 1, 1904. It claims that on the date mentioned it had property not to exceed $1,200 in value here in Duluth, but that it was assessed principally on property that was brought here long after May 1 and on which a tax had been paid in another assessment district of this state.

DECISIONS BY SUPREME COURT

Judge Kelly Upheld In Appeal By Receiver Countryman.

St. Paul, April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state supreme court today decided the case of the state ex rel Marcellus L. Countryman, receiver of the East Side syndicate, relator vs. William L. Kelly, judge of the district court respondent, in favor of Judge Kelly. The appeal was based on alleged improper service in a "case."

A district court decision is upheld in a Polk county case, S. K. Sorenson vs. O. N. Torvestad. This was an action involving the possession of certain crops. It was begun in a justice court and the justice certified it to the district court, without taking testimony. The district court refused to assume jurisdiction.

Another Polk county case, that of C. A. Buis vs. Great Northern, is sustained in an opinion written by Chief Justice Start. Buis obtained a justice court verdict against the company for $68.75, and the defendant appealed. In appealing it did not state the grounds for so doing, and this is held to be a fatal flaw, and the lower decision to this effect is confirmed.

A Blue Earth county district court decission is upheld in the case of state of Minnesota vs. A. E. Porter. In this case the village council of Mapleton decided to construct sewers on certain streets without a vote being taken on it. The work was done and the property holders appealed against the assessment and were upheld. The supreme court holds that the council clearly exceeded its powers.

A percurian decision was in the case of W. E. Howe vs. Arne Nelson. The lower court verdict was affirmed. The question involved was that of liens on a homestead property. The district court held that the liens had not been legally established as the homesteader was continuously in possession of the property, which as a homestead was exempt from liens of any kind.

THE COAL TRADE

Buying Demand For Bituminous Coal Quiet at Present.

In the Anthracite Trade There Is a Fair Demand.

Chicago, April 14.—The Black Diamond, official organ of the coal industry, reviewing the Western coal trade, tomorrow will say:

At this season of the year, with mild weather prevailing, not much is to be expected of the bituminous trade in the West, and in this respect the leading coal interests find no reason to complain. Buying demand, however, is very quiet, and it is only under pressure that coal is being placed in stock piles, the limits of the market at present being confined almost wholly to the demand for steam use. Some little coal may be going into stock piles in the larger cities, where it can be purchased under favorable circumstances with a long time permitted in which to meet the obligation incurred, instead of the accustomed thirty days, but generally some inducement is held out when coal is bought for storage.

In the anthracite trade there is a fair demand for this season of the year, and most of the shipping companies are forwarding all the coal which comes to them in filling current orders. Now and then a jobber who ships private coal is found who has a larger supply than he can place conveniently, but even this is the exception rather than the rule, and, therefore, it does not constitute an important feature of the prevailing market conditions.

One feature of the Western bituminous trade which has developed during the week has been in connection with the lake trade. The first boats left the Lake Erie loading ports for upper lake points the middle of the week, and will probably reach their destination the latter part of the week or the early part of the next week. There is a large tonnage waiting at the loading ports which will be forwarded as speedily as possible from this time forward, and the lake trade will probably divert a considerable amount of coal to dock points that heretofore has been moving all-rail to Chicago and other all-rail markets. To divert this coal at this time ought to relieve all-rail markets to a very large extent of surplus shipments, although, doubtless, there will be sufficient supplies in both branches of the trade for all of the immediate requirements.

The price of coal at dock points f. o. b. cars for shipment inland has not yet been designated by the leading interests, although it is probable that on the standard grades it will be some lower than it was a year ago. It was thought that these prices might be decided upon at a meeting this week, but at the time of going to press they had not been named. Until they are designated, which undoubtedly will be within a few days, the dock interests can not do very much business in bituminous coal, although buying, except for steam purposes, is not generally heavy during the month of April. There are some indications that when the new prices are named they may be from fifteen to twenty-five cents lower per ton than they were last year, and in some instances it has been predicted there may be even a greater discrepancy.

In Western contract business buyers continue to be extremely backward and are purchasing some supplies in the open market to tide them over until they sign their yearly obligations. The presence of a large tonnage of Western spot coal at Chicago and other leading markets continues to hold back contract business, and until this is out of the way and spot prices strengthen more than at present, buyers will be backward in placing contracts, although they can obtain greater concessions and better prices, in all probability, now than they will be able to secure later on.

In the Western anthracite trade the largest volume of business continues to be confined to points east of Chicago. In Michigan, Ohio and Indiana the retail trade is buying freely and is taking in as much or more coal than it did a year ago. West of Chicago, in the all-rail trade, it is reported that the volume of business continues to be rather quiet, although it is anticipated that from now forward such buyers as carry a fairly large stock of anthracite will be more actively in the market. Now and then some of the shipping companies complain of irregularities in connection with the time allowed in the matter of credits, but if such irregularities occur there is no proof of the fact, and doubtless many times they can be attributed to the desire on the part of consumers to secure preference at the hands of the shipping agents using this as a means of obtaining such favors. There is some private coal offered in the Chicago market, but in general there are no more factors engaged in this branch of the business than there were a year ago.

In the movement of anthracite from the mines most of the shipping companies report that good time is being made by the transportation lines. One shipping agent expressed it that coal was coming through on "dressed beef" time, signifying that it was meeting with unusually rapid dispatch.

The lake season will practically commence the latter part of the week, when it is expected the straits of Mackinac will be open. A number of boats are said to have cleared from Buffalo the early part of the week in order to reach the straits as soon as navigation was open and secure the first passage through. One large shipping company had several boats waiting there on Wednesday and others were on the way. There is considerable rivalry among the shipping companies to receive the first cargo both at Chicago and Duluth, and for this reason the boats were at the straits before the latter actually were open. It is possible a cargo of coal may arrive in Chicago on Sunday, and it is not expected that the first boat will be in later than Monday or Tuesday.

ON CUYUNA RANGE

Large Quantities of Ore Said to Have Been Found.

Contract Made For Shipping Ore Within Three Years.

Brainerd, Minn., April 14.—There is still a great deal of activity on the Cuyuna iron range in this county and of late some developments have been made along lines which would indicate that there is sure to be a large quantity of ore in paying quantities and that this range will be one of the most important in Minnesota in a short time.

Cole & McDonald, the Duluth contractors, have been the most active in the work of prospecting in this vicinity and Mr. Cole, who was seen only yesterday, stated the first indications, which were eminently satisfactory, were no better than what is being found at points which have been drilled later. There is a new drill just started about two miles south of Loerch and Cole & McDonald will start another one in a few days near Klondyke. There is a heavy indication that ore will be found in large quantities here, at least mining experts are very sanguine regarding the matter and miners and capitalists, who a short time ago, knew nothing of this new undeveloped region are now turning their attention here and are giving the matter serious thought.

One of the most important moves that has been made in some time was the lease or contract entered into a few days ago between Rock & Jamieson and a big Calumet, Mich., concern. The terms of the lease specified that this company would pay Rock & Jamieson from date 15 cents per ton royalty on a minimum of 5,000 tons, the said firm of Rock & Jamieson agreeing to commence the shipment of ore within three years.

Some excitement was created yesterday when it was reported that work had actually commenced; that a big shaft was being sunk.

There is one thing sure that the farmers in this county have realized very bountifully from the sale of land in consequence of the finds that have been made. There is hardly a strip of land between here and Deerwood but that has been sought after, and many instances are known where farmers who owned considerable land have been made independently rich.

It is creating a boom of considerable magnitude in the land business and this cannot but help Brainerd. It is said that Mr. McDonald of the firm of Cole & McDonald, has been looking for a first-class house in this city and that he expects to move here to reside with his family.

THE JEWISH STANDARD

Condemns Gossip as to Stokes-Pastor Match.

New York, April 14.—In an editorial the Jewish Standard disapproves the publicity given to the announcement of the engagement of J. Graham Phelps Stokes and Miss Rose Pastor, a Hebrew. The article says in part: "That they have determined to be married is a matter between themselves, their God and their conscience, but attendant upon this affair are circumstances which may serve as a warning to Jewish parents. The notoriety which the young woman in the case has achieved is nauseating in the extreme and likely to turn the heads of Jewish girls. The union of the two persons should be a matter of absolute privacy, concerning only their nearest relatives and friends. The world at large does not care one iota whether their souls blend, or whether he is imbued with a Jewish spirit and she with a Christian spirit. We do not believe in intermarriage, and Jewish young men and women should be warned against matrimonial alliances with those outside the faith."

Half the ills that man is heir to come from indigestion. Burdock Blood Bitters strengthens; and tones the stomach makes indigestion impossible.

WOMAN FAD IS IN PERIL

Premiums as Lure to Shoppers Likely to Go.

Chicago, April 14. — Premiums—that tempting will-o'-the-wisp that adds an intoxiating delight to shopping for the average woman—are threatened with elimination as a factor in trade, and the joys which go with the purchasing of household necessities are hanging on the rugged edge.

The first blow to be struck came from the hands of the National Association of Retail Grocers, and was aimed at the nation's breakfast foods, but other articles are not to escape. The dreadful purpose is to bring about a condition whereby the housewife, when she decides to buy a package of "shriveled rye," will be robbed of the delight of speculating on whether the package will contain a Chadwick note or a garden hoe.

In other words, the American women are face to face with a cold proposition of being compelled to buy an article on its merits and uninfluenced by any of the allurements of prize-winning, and when that time arrives the custom of buying these foods in bunches, to complete a desired number of coupons, will have become a weird legend.

"Retail grocers all over the country have given expression to the demand that premiums should be abandoned," said John A. Green of Cleveland, president of the grocers' association. "We believe that all such schemes lead to short weight and poorer quality of goods. You can't get something for nothing."

An agreement was reached that the cerial companies should take official action within sixty days and notify the grocers' association.

"The sentiment of the meeting today," said C. C. Goldren of the American Cereal company, "was in favor of abandoning premiums. It will mean little to the consumer, because the manufacturer of cereals allows about so much for advertising, and the money will be spent for other kinds of advertising.

The cereal men say that the premium plan is forcing them to go into a mail order business, which they do not want to do, and the grocers complain that it practically makes them the agents for all sorts of goods. It is estimated that the value of the premiums is 10 per cent of the value of the cereal.

"We are not antagonistic to the plan," said W. L. Gregson of the Great Western Cereal company, "but we are here to manufacture goods in the way that the public wants them. There are many who want the premium system, and there are contracts which cover a long term of years."

The postal department is a factor in the situation in that it has sent warnings to some of the firms, making the charge that some of the coupon and premium schemes have approached the lottery principle.

CHILD IS BURNED

Mother, Mrs. Hill, Burned While Extinguishing the Fire.

The little 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hill, who live at 4013 Halifax street, was badly burned last night about 9 o'clock and neither she nor anybody else seems to know how it happened. All the mother knows is that the child had been out playing and suddenly entered the diningroom screaming with pain and fright. Her mother ran to her to see what was the matter and found the child's clothes in flames. The mother managed to extinguish the fire, but not before she, herself, was burned painfully.

Both were attended by Dr. D. Graham of West Duluth, who found that the little girl was quite dangerously burned about the body, the face and the head. The skin is peeling off the child's face clear back behind the ears and her whole face and head are blistered. It is not believed that she inhaled any of the fire, however, and it is not thought that there will be fatal results.

The child is resting quite well today, considering the extent of her injuries and the doctor has strong hopes of her getting around all right.

Mrs. Hill was burned about the hands principally, painfully, but not seriously.

THOUSAND AT FUNERAL.

Many Follow Thomas Govette's Body to Grave.

A great tribute was paid the memory of Thomas Govette by the exceedingly large funeral which followed his body to the grave yesterday afternoon. It is said in West Duluth that the funeral yesterday was the largest that part of the city has ever seen. It is estimated that about 900 or 1,000 people attended the services at the Westminster Presbyterian church. As a further tribute to the memory of Mr. Govette, the schools were closed at West Duluth, he having been long employed at the Longfellow school as engineer and being a great friend of the school children.

The floral tributes were many and splendid. The Odd Fellows, the Woodmen, the Royal Neighbors and the Dynamite club, of which Mr. Govette was a member, sent emblematical displays, handsomely gotten up. The school children sent a magnificent bunch of American beauty roses and the school teachers of West Duluth contributed largely to the floral display. Private offerings were multitudinous. The school children of that end of the city went in a body to view the remains previous to the funeral and there were many touching scenes as the little ones gazed for the last time on the face of their old friend.

At the Westminster church, Rev. F. G. Clark of the Methodist church conducted the religious services and preached the funeral sermon. Rev. Arthur J. Hoag had charge o fthe Odd Fellows' part of the services and conducted the ritual. The Jewell-Adams quartette and a choir furnished the music. The interment was in Oneota cemetery under the auspices of the Odd Fellows and members of this order were present from Duluth, Superior and other parts of the county. In the funeral procession were the Odd Fellows, Modern Woodmen of America and Royal Neighbors, in each of which Mr. Govette was a charter member. He also was a member of the Independent Order of Foresters of Hancock, Mich. The Third Relment band was also in attendance.

Thomas Govette was born in 1855 in England, coming to this country twenty-six years ago, and living in Hancock, Mich., until sixteen years ago, when he came to West Duluth as chief engineer of the car works. For the last ten years he has been engineer of the Longfellow school. His mother still lives in England. Among the relatives present at the funeral were Mrs. Nettle and James Nettle of Tower, William Nettle of Eveleth, Josiah Govette of Hibbing, and Mrs. Williams of Hibbing.

KISS TOO LONG

And the Man Almost Lost the Boat.

New York, April 14.—L. McIntyre of Buffalo and his sweetheart had a long, lingering kiss, almost the length of the front door good-bye of two schoolgirls, on the pier of the White Star liner when the Oceanic sailed. While they were lingering and longing the cabin gangplank was hoisted. The crowd cried "break away," but Mac did not seem to hear nor care. His sweetheart woke him up and called his attention to the gangplank. He gave her another lingering one, positively the last, and ran up the gangplank.

Up in the air the end had been unshipped and the chasm was too wide for McIntyre to leap. Then the young woman came to his rescue by concentrating her radiance on the pier superintendent so that he could not resist, and the longshoreman ran the gangplank out a bit just as the liner was moving from the pier. The young man jumped and was caught by two sailors in the gangway.

He waved to the blushing young woman a kiss that could not stick, and the crowd on the pier and the ship cheered. It is said that McIntyre and the young woman are to be married on May 1 and he suddenly was called away to London.

SAVAGES AND BRUTES.

Primitive Man Felt Close Relationship With Animals.

For the primitive savage, animals are mysterious problematic beings, possessed of a wide knowledge of the things of nature. They know much more than they are ready to tell us, writes Prince Krapatkin of Russia in the Nineteenth Century. In some way or another, by the aid of senses much more refined than ours, and by telling to each other all that they notice in their rambles and flights, they knew everything for miles round. And if a man has been "just" toward them, they will warn each other; but they will take no heed of him if he has not been straightforward in his actions. Snakes and birds (the owl is a leader of the snakes), mammals and insects, lizards and fishes—all understand each other, and continually communicate their observations to one another.

Inside this vast brotherhood there are, of course, the still closer brotherhoods of beings "of one blood." The monkeys, the bears, the wolves, the elephants and the rhinoceroses, most ruminants, the hares and most of the rodents, the crocodiles, and so on, perfectly know their own kin, and they will not tolerate any one of their relatives to be slaughtered by man without taking, in one way or another, honest revenge. This conception must have had an extremely remote origin.

Even now, when a savage is hunting he is bound to respect certain rules of propriety toward the animals, and he must perform certain expiatory ceremonies after his hunt. Most of these ceremonies are rigorously enacted, even nowadays in the savage clans, especially as regards those species considered the allies of man.

It is well known that two men belonging to two different clans or tribes can become brothers by mixing the blood of the two, obtained from small incisions made for that purpose. But it was also quite habitual for man to enter into brotherhood with some animal. The tales continually mention it. An animal asks a hunter to spare it, and if the hunter accedes to the demand the two become brothers. And then the monkey, the bear, the doe, the bird, the crocodile, or the bee—any one of the sociable animals—will take all possible care of the man brother in the critical circumstances of his life, sending his or her animal brothers of different tribes to warn him or help him out of a difficulty. And if the warning comes too late, or is misunderstood, and he loses his life, they all will try to bring him back to life, and if they fail they will take due revenge, just as if the man had been one of their own kin.

When I journeyed in Siberia I was often struck, without understanding it, with the care which my Tungus or Mongol guide would take not to uselessly kill any animal. The fact is that every life is respected by a savage, or rather it was before he came in contact with Europeans. If he kills an animal, it is for food or for clothing; but he does not destroy life, as the whites do, for the mere excitement of the slaughter.

True, the red Indians have done that with the buffaloes; but it was only after they had been for a long time in contact with the whites and had got from them the rifle and the quick firing revolver. Of course, there are rascals among the animals—the hyena, for instance, or the shrewmouse, or the man-eating tiger; but these do not count; they are outlaws. As to the great animal world as a whole, savage children are taught to respect it and see in it an extension of their own kin.

NITROGEN'S LOVE OF FREEDOM.

When left alone to its natural functions nitrogen pursues a perfectly course; but when man succeeds in capturing it and combining it with other elements it becomes a dire potentiality for evil, as is obvious in the recent events of the war in the far East and in the crime committed last week in the streets of Moscow. The love of freedom, so to speak, characteristic of nitrogen is terribly examplified in the explosion of the bomb in which it is imprisoned and bound to other elements, says the Lancet. On the slightest provocation—a spark, a shock, a fuse—the nitrogen suddenly expands from seemingly nothing, as regards the space which it occupies, into infinity. This is, in reality, what happens when dynamite, lyddite or other unstable nitro-compounds explode when hurled in shells in warfare and in bombs in desperate attacks on human lives. Nitrogen, against its natural disposition, is locked up in an uncongenial space in these compounds, from which it is set free by very simple means in an enormously expanded gaseous state with deadly effect, returning, in fact, to its normal peaceful mission once more. It is the analogue of the sword and the ploughshare; in the nitro-explosive, nitrogen is the modern engine of warfare and crime; in the free state in the atmosphere it ministers directly to the quiet and peaceful needs of plant and human life.

INSULT OF CASTRO

South American Diplomats Taunt the Officials In Washington.

President Cannot Punish Venezuela Without Consent of Congress.

Chicago, April 14.—Walter Wellman, in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says South American diplomats at this capital are in great glee over what they term the clever manner in which President Castro of Venezuela has called the bluff of the United States.

"You Yankees are very smart, very smart. You understand the great American game of po-kair, and you think no one else knows how to play it. You made the—what you call it—ah, yes, the bluff, at Castro, and Castro, a very smart man, he call it. It is very amusing."

It was a South American diplomatist who said this to an American. The South American smiled with insolence, but apparently he was charmingly polite. The American wanted to slap his face, but considered it wise not to. "There will be a show-down with your dear smart friend Mr. Castro, before long," was all the American said.

The administration knows what the Venezuelans and other South Americans are saying, and is intensely annoyed, and what adds to the annoyance is the knowledge that the sneer of the South Americans covers a half truth, and proverbially half truths hurt more than downright lies. The administration did not bluff Castro in the sense that it bullied him or engaged in a policy of wanton aggression, but it is true that it was never believed in Washington that Castro would play out the game to a finish.

It was thought that when he saw when the United States really meant business and did not intend forever to be insulted and flaunted by this midget among the nations, a satisfactory settlement would soon be reached. But Castro is a gentleman with a fine sense of humor, and without the least sense of responsibility. It rather amuses him to stir up the United States. He has a tremendous amount of vanity and intolerable conceit. He really believes that if it came to a show of force he could hold his own.

The administration is puzzled to know what to do next. It has been suggested that a "pacific blockade" might bring Castro to his senses. A "pacific blockade" would be enforced by the president sending warships to Venezuelan ports and bottling them up so that there could be neither imports nor exports. If the ports were closed up it would make things uncomfortable for Castro.

The administration officials admit that a demonstration merely will have no effect. The time for that has gone by. Castro is not to be frightened, and only forcible measures will produce results. If the president had his own way, it is well known, he would not hesitate about employing those methods. He would send a man like Gen. Bell or Gen. Funston to Venezuela with 10,000 men, supported by the Caribbean squadron, and make Castro come off his high horse. The president would regard the sending of an expedition to Venzuela as an excellent thing in more ways than one. In the first place, it would show Castro and other rulers like him that the United States is not to be insulted with impunity, which would have a salutory effect. In the second place, it would keep the army and navy from becoming rusty and be worth in actual experience all the money it cost.

But, of course, the president will do nothing of the kind. That would be war, and he cannot make war without the sanction of congress. That he considers it necessary to do something is known, but how he can do it with his hands tied no one has yet been wise enough to discover. Nothing will be done, however, until the president returns to Washington toward the latter end of May, and in the meantime the situation may have cleared or the way out of the blind alley may have been discovered by the president or some of his advisers.

TRAIN HELD FOR A BABY

Midget Was In Incubator When Heating Apparatus Broke.

Muscatine, Iowa, April 14.—The baby weighed just two pounds and eleven ounces, and was in an incubator. When the lamp under the incubator broke the baby's father, who was carrying the tiny girl in this way to a Chicago institution, where it could be better cared for, set up a shout for help that brought to his assistance all the passengers in the Rock Island passenger train on which he was going East. But what could they do?

The heath was fast escaping, nd the baby could not live if the temperature fell many degrees. There were several women on the train, and they hurried to offer advice and help; but nobody could furnish an alcohol lamp, and the distracted father would not hear to taking the infant out of the incubator. It was past midnight, and the baby's chances of getting to Chicago alive seemed utterly worthless.

A big, broad-shouldered young man elbowed his way through the group of helpless men and women at the end of the car where the man and the incubator were. He learned the trouble.

"We've got to do something, and do it mighty quick," he said. "I guess I can get the train held at Muscatine, the next station, till we can find a lamp. I'll try."

He was William Laventure, an assistant passenger agent of the road. He conferred with the conductor, and it was arranged that when the train reached this city it should be held until a new lamp could be found. It was found necessary to hurry about to several places before such a thing could be had in the middle of the night; but the train was only twenty minutes late when it pulled out. The lamp had been secured, the baby's funny little prison was warmed up again, and the father was happy. A telegram from Chicago, a few hours later reported that the baby reached there in safety.

THINKS HE IS A MURDERER

Extraordinary Case of Dell Balderson, an Iowa Man.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 14.—In the trial of Dell Balderson for the murder of Thomas Callahan last July a psycholegical problem most novel will be presented to a Polk county jury. Balderson has made admissions that tend to show he is the murderer, but his attorneys say he has made them under suggestion and has frequently lied, to the extent almost of convicting himself. The most remarkable part of the case is that Balderson twelve years ago in Ringgold county, Iowa, confessed to a crime similar to that committed here. He was tried by a jury which found him not guilty despite his absolute confession and insistence that he was the murderer.

The circumstances of the Ringgold county and Callahan murders were almost identical. An aged man named Taylor in Ringgold county, near Shannon City, was called to his door in the dead of night and slugged. He was robbed of $2,000. Detectives worked on the case for ten days and Balderson helped them. He described the circumstances of the murder so minutely upon one occasion that suspicion was directed against him, and he was arrested. He confessed, detailing the crime, and came near being lynched by a mob. It was afterwards shown conclusively that Balderson lied. He was so worked up over the case that he believed he had committed the crime.

Tom Callahan was a cobbler living in South Des Moines. He was murdered last July and $600 cash taken from his dwelling. The murderer climbed into a back window and slashed Callahan's throat. He also slugged Callahan with a blunt instrument. Baiderson, who lived next door to Callahan, was at work upon the case almost immediately. He discovered an iron poker which had been washed in oil the morning after the murder. This was turned over to the police, who found that the poker belonged to Balderson. The police arrested an Italian named Pigneri, in whose apartments, which adjoined Callahan's, was found a bloody razor. Pigneri is under bonds and is still accused by the police.

County Attorney Miller, however, asserts that Balderson made such damaging admissions about the time the murder was committed, and detailed the crime so completely that it was impossible to believe he could have secured such information unless he actually committed the crime. Against the protest of police officers, Balderson was arrested and indicted by the grand jury.

"It is simply terrible," said Chief Harlin of the detective force. "The man is absolutely innocent. He can be proved innocent. His imagination has gotten him into all this trouble and now he must fight a murder charge which could not have been fastened upon him but for his talkativeness."

"No, Balderson is not insane," says Mr. Jordan for the defense. "He simply craves notoriety. Why, here two years ago he actually told to a Burlington detective that he had helped hold up a train in Missouri. He had read the newspapers and formed a correct idea of how the crime was committed. His confession implicated several well-known crooks. Detectives investigated his story and found to a certainty that Balderson was not within 300 miles of the place where the robbery had been committed.

"We will simply undertake to show that the man is a freak of nature," said Mr. Jordan. "He broods over crimes until he thinks he has committed them.

CAUSED SUDDEN DEATH.

Tight Lacing and Hearty Eating Proved Fatal.

St. Louis, Mo., April 14.—Tight lacing and hearty eating caused the sudden death last night of Mrs. Violet O'Connor, wife of John O'Connor, a traveling salesman. While hastening from her hotel to the residence of a friend, Mrs. O'Connor fell unconsciouns to the street and died soon afterward. The compression of her waist and rapid walking forced a large quantity of blood to her brain causing cerebral hemorrhage, said the physician who attended her.

SCHOOL FOR AUCTIONEERS.

Institution Aims to Supply Growing Demand.

The only school for auctioneers in the world is conducted at Davenport, Iowa, by some men who have been sucessful as auctioneers, and who believe that auctioneering is a fine art and therefore should receive the attention of educators, says the New York Sun.

The scientific breeding of horses and cattle and the yearly sales of fine live stock have caused a great demand for auctioneers, and the school tries to supply this demand. A thoroughly competent man is indispensable to breeders when holding public sales of stock.

Good stock will not sell for top prices on its own merits, the auctioneer declares. It is the auctioneer who makes the sale. Top-notchers among auctioneers get $150 a day for their services, because they have the art of jollying the buyers into competing to the limit of their purses.

A sight novel to those who live outside of the great cattle belt is one of these fine stock sales. A half dozen auctioneers are employed. Each one of them is thoroughly familiar with the pedigree of every animal offered. They move about in the sales ring, calling for bids upon certain animals, crying out their merits and buttonholing intending buyers.

Live stock sales are increasing in both old and new territory, and there is plenty of business for all properly qualified auctioneers likely to be turned out by any college. Auctioneers are born, not made, say the managers of the Iowa school, but the addition of a technical training to the equipment of the born auctioneer is of value.

In the auctioneers' college oratory is put forward as one of the strong features. A proper control of the voice is declared to be essential and voice culture is insisted upon. There are also a professor in livestock selling, one in merchandise sales, another in general farm sales, and one who teaches pedigrees. Grammar is also taught.

"Any man of ordinary attainments," says Colonel F. M. Woods, the dean of the business in America, "may become a successful auctioneer. It can't be done in a day or a year. The crucial time is during the big head period, which few auctioneers escape. If a man gets too good for the business then he drops out a failure.

"My ideal for an auctioneer would be a man with a good education, a good voice, a good command of language, fine physique, logical, witty, quick of perception, polite, a good mixer, a good judge of values and honest by instinct. That would be a pretty hard program, but I have seen men succeed in the business who did not possess a single one of these attainments except honesty.

"The old idea of the auctioneer is going out. A man must dress neatly, keep his hands and face clean and, his boots blacked and wear clean linen.

"If I were asked to suggest the best study for a young auctioneer I would say it is English grammar. It is getting to be as necessary for the really good auctioneer to know the difference between an adjective and an adverb and to keep his tenses from mixing as it is for a lawyer or other public speaker. All people dislike to hear anybody murder the Queen's English, and the auctioneer who does it is not likely to get a second invitation to make a sale.

"No calling or profession pays better than this, and there is none where men are so scarce. I know of a dozen auctioneers who command from $20,000 to $25,000 a year, and there are hundreds who make twice as much as a United States senator.

"I don't believe in the idea that auctioneers are born, not made. My experience controverts this. I heard a fellow talk at a sale one day, and practiced selling things the next day when walking behind a plow.

"When I left my farm the auctioneer charged me $5 for the day's work. I thought that was too much, and while he was at dinner I started in to sell myself. I was a new broom, and got better prices than the professional. Neighbors came in and asked me to sell for them, and thus I was launched.

"Everything nowadays is getting to be sold by auction. I believe that in ten years all the cattle in the great markets, all of the fat cattle, will be sold by auction every morning. It is that way in the older countries, and it is getting more so here every year."

THE FIRST ASTOR AND THE POET.

John Jacob Aster and his son rigidly attended to business in the same office—a little one-story building in Prince street, just east of Broadway, writes Burton J. Hendrick in McClure's. Their constant companion there was Fitz-Greene Halleck—Marco Bozzaris Halleck. Halleck became a clerk for Astor in 1832 and worked seventeen years. The employment, he himself said, was not "profitable but permanent." Astor warned him when he began not to talk to anyone about his wealth. The two men became great friends. Halleck spent months with his patron at his country seat and became one of the trustees of the Astor library. The poet frequently rallied the old man on his wealth. "Why, Mr. Astor," he would say, "if I had $200 a year and was sure of it, I would be content." The great land owner took him at his word, and in his will, much to the amusement of bohemian New York, left Halleck an annuity of $200.

THE SMALLEST DICTIONARY.

The university of California has received what it thinks is the smallest dictionary in the world, says the Chicago Journal. The book is a French-English dictionary, 1⅛ inches long by ¾ of an inch wide. It was printed first in large type and then reduced to its present size by photographic methods. Each page contains about 110 words, the book containing 630 pages.

ODD FELLOWS TO GO.

Will Attend Sunday Third Regiment Band Concert.

In recognition of the honor bestowed upon T. W. Hugo, grand master-elect of Minnesota, by the dedication of Gustave Flaaten's new march, "The Grand Master's March," all lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in the city will attend the Third Regiment band concert at the Lyceum next Sunday evening, when the composition will be played upon special request. The march, which is a snappy, catchy movement, is one of the best of local writings offered during the present season.

Members of the local organization have presented many new compositions to Flaaten patrons this season. Will Emery's "Third Regiment Band March," Fremling's "Hiking Third," "Blue Label" and "Band of Honor." Emery's "Evening Herald." Snarl's "Minnesota Naval Reserve" and Thomas' duet for the clarinet, "Simnen and Minren," have been pleasing features and added largely to the enjoyment of the patrons.

Several other special numbers will be included in next Sunday evening's concert. The last concert of the season will be given Easter night, when the entire program will be made up of sacred music.

PLANT HAS HYSTERICS.

According to an expert in the Botanic gardens at Washington, recent experiments there tend to confirm the theory that plants are possessed of nerves, and that some species are irritable and nervous to a marked degree, says the Philadelphia Record.

The genus mimosa comprises about 200 species, and most of these exhibit peculiarly irritable natures if touched or handled in the wrong way. The mimosa pudica, the botanical name for the most sensitive of all plants, is so highly organized that it is kept in a state of neurasthenia most of the time. A puff of wind, the tramping of heavy feet near it, or the rude touch of the hand will cause this plant literally to go into nervous hysterics. It appears that the exciting noise or commotion strikes the nerves of the plant and causes it to close up or droop its leaves. Hundreds of sensitive plants have been diagnosed in the Botanic Gardens, and the observers of the plants have traced the nerve centers to their foundation.

In certain of the plants the ends of the nerves have been located. Thus, if mimosa pudica is touched with ever so fine a point at the case of a pinna or along its axis, the most remote pair of leaves will shiver and begin to close. Finally, when all the leaves have closed, the pinna which has been touched will droop. The shock has been so great that the whole nervous system has been temporarily disarranged. However, like all nervous, irritable people, there is a point beyond which fright reacts and a control of the system begins to manifest itself. If the sensitive plant is shaken for some time it recovers from its attack of neurasthenia and some of the leaves will begin to open again.

Finally, it is said that the most sensitive part of the plant is at the base of the secondary leaf stalks, where an immense number of nervous corpuscles or delicate tissues are located.

BACK ACHE? IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS!

Miss Mabel Brown, of Montgomery, Ala., Says Her Life Was Despaired of By Physicians and Parents, But She Was Saved By

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

Diseased or weak kidneys cause more trouble and complications than any other sickness. If the kidneys become diseased and are unable to do their work properly, the liver becomes affected, then the bladder, the urinary organs, the blood and the stomach. The blood becomes impoverished, the urine becomes muddy, and will have a brick-dust sediment if it stands for 24 hours; the liver becomes torpid and pains in the back are almost constant as the system becomes pregnated with the disease; the stomach is rendered unable to digest the food properly. The result is a general breakdown.

CURES

This state of affairs could be avoided if every one was careful to test urine as soon as they felt the first backache.

If any trace of kidney disease shows itself, get a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure; it will purify and strengthen the kidneys, kill the disease germs, prevent the serious complications that are bound to arise and restore perfect health.

Made Her a Well Woman.

"For some years past I have been troubled with Bright's disease, and I have been a great sufferer. I had all the complications that usually attend kidney trouble, and my people felt that it was only a question of time before the end would come. The local doctors could do nothing for me, and I had no relief at all after two years doctoring until I began to take Warner's Safe Cure. The first bottle helped me, I continued to use it, taking six bottles in all. Your medicine did what my doctors failed to do—it cured me. I am in better health than I have enjoyed for years."—Miss Mabel Brown, Montgomery, Ala.

KIDNEY DISEASE

Thousands, both men and women, have kidney disease and do not know it. It is hereditary. If any of your family in this or past generations have been troubled with kidney disease of any form you cannot be too careful.

You should make a test of your kidneys at once and satisfy yourself as to their condition. Bright's disease, diabetes, rheumatism, rheumatic gout, inflammation of the bladder and urinary organs are caused by kidney disease neglected.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE is purely vegetable and contains no harmful drugs. It does not constipate, it is a most valuable and effective tonic, it is a stimulant to digestion and awakens the torpid liver, putting the patient into the very best receptive state for the work of the restorer of the kidneys. It prepares the tissues, soothes inflammation and irritation, stimulates the enfeebled organs and heals at the same time. It builds up the body, gives it strength, and restores the energy that is or has been wasting under the baneful suffering of kidney disease. Warner's Safe Pills taken with Warner's Safe Cure move the bowels gently and aid a speedy cure.

Warner's Safe Cure is now put up in two regular sizes and sold by all druggists, or direct, 50 cents and $1 a bottle.

Refuse substitutes. There is none "just as good" as Warner's Safe Cure. It has cured all forms of kidney disease for thirty years. It is prescribed by doctors and used in leading hospitals as the only absolute cure for diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood.

SEARCHING INQUIRY

Into Affairs of Equitable Life Assurance Company Begun.

Charges Made By Lawson and Beardsley to Be Probed.

New York, April 14.—That the impending investigation of the Equitable Life Assurance society by the committee appointed by the directors will be most searching is evident in the request made by Henry C. Frick, chairman of the committee, who demands, from President Alexander, a complete record of all transactions of the society, its alleged relations with other corporations, a full list of its employes, including all officers, and a statement of the salaries and emoluments received by each.

Prominent among the charges regarding which Mr. Frick desires information are those made by Thomas W. Lawson and John S. Bearsley. These writers have alleged that the Equitable society, with two other great insurance companies, has used the money of its policyholders in reckless speculation on Wall street, through the many trust companies with which it is alleged to be related.

Among the points on which Mr. Alexander is requested to furnish data are the society's holdings or interest in the Mercantile Trust company of New York, the Equitable Trust company of New York, the Mercantile Safe Deposit company of New York, or in any other trust, title or safe deposit company, bank or banking company; the society's leases of its building in this city; its loans to any of its employes, officers, directors or trustees, together with a statement showing who authorized the loan; a statement of all dealings by which any broker sold for or to the society any stocks, bonds, securities or other property, including all the "so-called underwritings by the society;" a statement as to whether any one connected with the society received compensation or benefit from such stock transactions or underwriting; a statement whether any officer, director, trustee or employe has received any money or other thing of value because of his relation with the society; a list of the society's contracts with its leading agents here and abroad with a compilation to show the practical result to the society from each agency; a statement showing each agency; a statement showing each item going to make up the total of $7,900,285 mentioned in the report of Dec. 31, 1904, for commissions, advertising, postage and exchange, and how and why each was spent, also each item of a total of $7,179,318 in the same report for "all other disbursements" and how and why each was spent; a statement showing in detail the losses, if any, to the society, since Jan. 1, 1900, on any property of any kind purchased by it, giving the names of the persons who sold the same to the society; a record of any transaction by which any officer, director, trustee or employe of the society has irregularly or improperly received money or other valuable thing for the society outside of, and not part of his regular salary; and also a monthly statement from Jan. 1, 1900, showing the cash balances of the society; and where the same were, and are deposited, and the terms of each deposit.

In a request for a copy of the society's pay roll, Mr. Alexander is asked to give the name of each person in receipt of salary or compensation of any kind from the society and to state the duties performed by each person so paid.

He is also asked to set forth any increase in salary to an employe; to give the name of any employe, director, trustee or stockholder who has any business relation with any other corporation, the compensation, direct or indirect, he receives in such manner, and the name of the Equitable society's officer who authorized the same.

Information is also asked as to who of thee mployes are related by blood or marriage to any director or officer of the society. If any such persons are employed in services outside of the offices and ordinary departments and agencies of the society, Mr. Alexander is requested to give their names and state who so employed them.

Mr. Frick writes that the foregoing requests are intended to, and the committee thinks, do cover all the charges and countercharges made against any officer, director, trustee or employe of the society, but he adds:

"If any one has any knowledge of any other act or thing done, or permitted to be done, by any officer, director, trustee or employe of the society inconsistent with the best interests of the society, or unfair towards any officer, director, trustee or employe thereof, the committee will take up and investigate any such matter on being informed of the same by you or any other officer, director, trustee employe, or stockholder or policyholder.

Mr. Alexander is requested specifically to give information principally since Jan. 1, 1900, but the committee will go back of that date, if he or any other officer knows of anything requiring investigation. In conclusion of his letter to Mr. Alexander, Mr. Frick said:

"We intend to investigate the entire management of the society. The information we receive will be thoroughly analyzed and tested, and in addition we also intend to make separate and independent examinations of our own and by our own experts.

"Our work will be thoroughly done, and any officer or employe of the society can now best serve it by helping us to make the most complete examination possible of its affairs."

RAILWAYS OF THE FUTURE.

Some day the railway companies may run their own motor omnibuses on the present permanent way of their suburban lines, with the rails removed tnd the track laid with wood pavements, says a writer in The Car. I believe many of us will live to see in the next twenty years some such plan come into operation. There will in that case be no rails to maintain, no signal posts or signalmen.

PROGRAM OF PIUS

Pope Writes Book on Future Work of the Church.

Pamphlet Will Cause Uneasiness Among Several Roman Prelates.

New York, April 14.—A Rome cable to the World says: Pius X. has just published a book, which contains only seventy-six pages, but is a complete and detailed statement of the program he has set before himself as pope for the reform of the church and for "the restoration of all things in Christ," the first expression he made of his intentions as soon as he was elected to the highest dignity of the church. The Giornale di Roma, a Catholic paper recently founded to replace the discontinued Voce della Verita, was the first to announce the publication, and limited its declarations to the fact that that pamphlet was the work of an anonymous author, but could safely be assumed to have been inspired by the pope himself. Subsequent developments proved that the work had come from the pen of Pius X., who found leisure enough amid his numerous occupations to put down day by day what in his opinion needed reforming in the church, of which he is the spiritual head, and then set forth his opinions in the interesting publication, which is written in Italian.

The first lines of the work are addressed to the bishops of the world, who are exhorted "to take extreme care that the clergy be educated in sanctity of life, and that the seminaries set apart for the education of priests shall equally impart thorough learning and virtue." The first encyclical issued under Pius X.'s pontificate is then cited as a document, recommending extreme vigilance to the bishops in regard to newly ordained priests, who need to be especially trained in the labors they are to undertake.

Special mention is made in the pamphlet of the reforms recently introduced regarding church music; of the appointment of apostolic visitors not only for Italy but for all dioceses from which complaints should be received, "even if thousands of miles from Rome;" of the new regulations adopted in the case of all ecclesiastics who come to Rome in order to complete their studies; of the decree recently issued compelling all priests appointed to a bishopric to pass a severe examination in the laws of the church; of the codification of all the canon laws, which has already proceeded under the pope's personal direction, "a work which alone would form an everlasting monument to the pontiff who had the courage of initiating the reform."

Incidentally the pamphlet points out that the work of reform begun by Pius X. is not to stop at the mentioned reforms, but is to go much further. The fact that the congregation of holy indulgencies and relics was recently suppressed by the pope and incorporated with the congregation of rites gives an opportunity to the author of the pamphlet to hint that other Roman congregations are to be soon abolished in order to obtain a more expeditious dealing of church business, besides innumerable other advantages, particularly from a financial standpoint."

The local sensation of the publication, however, is to be found in that portion in which the author deals with the contingent fees of the numerous employees of the Roman curia, "which it is intended to abolish entirely;" of the multiplicity of offices and benefices held by some prelates, which it is desired to divide among several persons; of the right of the clergy employed in the congregations to act as ecclesiastical lawyers for a determined fee; of the necessity of employing fewer laymen for the work of the Roman congregations, in the face of the fact that so many priests are living in Rome without any employment or income but that which comes to them through the exercise of their sacred ministry; in regard to all these matters it is clearly stated in the pamphlet that Pius X. has considered well all the questions involved, and will soon find a solution by the issuance of special decrees.

A certain portion of the pamphlet will cause much uneasiness among several Roman prelates, and it is that which deals on the useless existence of so many orders of prelates in the church and the necessity which will soon be found to abolish some of them entirely. While it is admitted that honors are necessary in the church in order that they be conferred upon deserving ecclesiastics, it is hinted that the many colleges of prelates at present in existence are numerically in excess of their usefulness, and that some of them will soon have to be suppressed.

The latter part of the pamphlet is given up to words of advice to the church in general regarding the selection of worthy persons for the episcopal dignity; the sacred visits to be made by all bishops in their dioceses; the synods to be held every year in every cathedral town, and the special duties of nuncios and apostolic delegates. The reasons are also detailed that caused the suppressions of the Ecclesiastical Academy of Nobles, principal among which is that the diplomatic offices of the church are not to be monopolized by persons whose birth happens to have been of a higher degree than that of ordinary persons. At the same time rules are laid down for the observance of all personages in the diplomatic service of the church, for the conflict of all ecclesiastics, for the administration and preservation of the churches, and regarding the use of images and symbols in the church. The demise of preachers are also detailed at length, and they are practically a repetition of the words addressed by the pope just before the beginning of Lent to all the priests and religious engaged to preach Lenten sermons in the churches of Rome.

The various soladities, congfraternities and lay societies existing in the church are also mentioned as needing some kind of reform, and this is promised as soon as the Apostolic visitors sent throughout the world shall have reported to regarding them to the pope.

A special chapter of the pamphlet is given up to the reforms needed in the laws regulating funeral services in the church. The customs prevailing in Rome are particularly pointed out as constituting a system of heavy tariffs, in some cases quite absurd, which compel the parish priests to conduct a kind of trade, to the great detriment of their priestly dignity and causing innumerable complaints. It is clearly stated that the existing tariff for funerals must be either entirely abolished or modified so as to meet with the exigencies of the times and the dignity of the priesthood.

The concluding words of the pamphlet are worthy of reproduction: "In the meantime it is to be hoped that every one as far as he is concerned will promptly answer the appeal now made by the head of the church. To fully develop the salutary work he has begun it is absolutely necessary to have the earnest co-operation of the Episcopate and clergy. The matters submitted do not allow of doubts, disagreements or discussion. His holiness desires that all shall have a part in the restoration of all things in Christ, and especially in the re-establishing of Christ in the social world. Any one who is endowed with faith and who is with the pope and for the pope cannot refuse to do his share of the work. The pope will try to do his best for the church, and although striving to imitate Him who was meek and humble of heart, under an apparent meekness and modesty will show firmness of will. He will be inexorable when the interests of the church are at stake, and is determined to openly oppose any one who shall attempt to invade or usurp the rights of the church, of which he is the spiritual head. If he has been able to show some instances of this in the short time that has passed since his election he can promise to give more vivid examples of his meaning in the near future."

The impression caused here by the anonymous publication is something enormous, as there is no doubt that even Cardinal del Val had little to do with the publication excepting under the direction and, it is said, the personal direction of the pope. The general opinion is that Pius X. has now ended the period of his pontificate he had set aside for the study of the needs of the church, and that his policy henceforth will be marked by extreme activity in the reformation of church abuses and in the adoption of those reforms which he has judged best adapted to enhance in the church the spirit of Christianity, which has some times been overlooked through too close a consideration of human interests and advantages.

There is much discussion over the fact that the pope did not embody his sentiments in a regular encyclical letter, but preferred to announce his intentions through the publication of a book. Prelatees, however, who are well posted in church matters affirm that the many subjects discussed in the pamphlet could not well find place within the narrow limits of an encyclical letter, which is generally given up to the discussion of one subject only.

A translation of the work into several languages is now under way, so that the Catholics all over the world may know what are the intentions of the pope regarding the welfare of the church and be prepared for the reforms he intends to adopt in the near future.

THE WEAKEST LINK.

The strength of the strongest chain is measured by its weakest link.

Strengthen yours with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

You appreciate, no doubt, at their fullest, all the great blessings of health, success, and a long life, and no doubt you are working hard every day on the great chain which represents the accomplishment of your ambition in life.

But if the link of health be too weak to stand the strain, what matters all the rest?

Take this counsel, therefore, to heart, and insure your success by strengthening your one weak link, which is, without doubt, your digestion.

The way to strengthen a weak digestion is to eat plenty of good, strengthening food, for you can't build strength on mere air.

And, remember this is the important part of it—ensure the food's digestion and assimilation with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will build up, out of food, the most solid kind of strength, physical strength, nervous strength, vital strength, digestive strength.

They act as digesting undigested food, that the weak digestive organs can make no use of.

They also gently relieve inflammatory conditions, by their action on the tissues with which they come in contact, and by their purifying, antiseptic, chemical reaction on the poison-saturated blood of the unfortunate dyspeptic.

The action of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets on the blood is really one of its most important properties, since by so doing it shows its real therapeutic, curative value, and by getting into the innermost vitality, so to speak, being carried by the white blood corpuscles to every little corner and living part of the body, they are able to dispel every little disease symptom which has in any way been caused by the many poisons of dyspepsia.

The quick relief of the local stomach, liver, bowel, or kidney symptoms of indigestion, brought about by the direct action of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, upon the undigested or partially digested food, which has not gone into the proper channels for final assimilation.

They quickly relieve, in this way, the pain, discomfort, nausea, dizziness, full feeling, gas, wind and other disagreeable symptoms, caused by the irritant effect of these undigested food particles in the various parts of the digestive tract, and thus act the double role of:—

First—Relieving pain and discomfort; and

Second—Permanently curing the more deeply seated evidences of the disease.

By this perfect command over such a dangerous and painful disease as Dyspepsia, Stuart's have proved their right to the title—

"Man's best friend."

Try them.

THE SLANG OF THE RASCALS

How a "Tyburn Blossom" Talks to an "Upright."

London, April 14.—Some one has said that slang words are skeleton keys with which to unlock unaccustomed doors. One of slang's greatest fascinations is its mystery. Barrere defines it as "a conventional tongue with many dialects, unintelligible to outsiders." The thief fully understands that "language is given to man to conceal his thoughts." The righteous who use slang are proud that only those equally learned can undertsand them.

To the philologist a knowledge of slang is a rich mine. A dictionary of slang just published places in his hand the gold-seeker's pick. As is natural, money—the root of all evil, the incentive to most rascality—has a bewildering variety of names. Here are a few for money in general; some of them have crossed the Atlantic:

"The actual," "the blunt," "doliander seeds," "dirt," "flimsy," "gilt," "hard," "iron," "John Davis," "King's pictures," "lurries," "mosa," "nonsense," "oil of angels," "pieces," "rowdy," "spondulicks," "tin," "wad."

The slang for the specific sums of money is vastly interesting. There is only one term for £1,000,000 ($5,000,000); it is "marigold," and it must be that the most successful thief uses it only in his "dreams of avarice." One hundred thousand pounds sterling ($500,000) is a "plum" indeed; £1,000 ($5,000) is a "cow"—(oh, to be such a cowherd!)—£500 ($2,500) is a "monkey;" £25 ($125) is a "spony," of course; £10 ($50) a "double finnup," or a "long-tailed finnup;" £5 ($25) being a simple "finnup;" the word undoubtedly is the Yiddish for the German "fuent."

Naturally, descending to smaller sums, the variety of names grows larger.

A sovereign has been rechristened a "glistener," a "goldfinch," a "mousetrap," a "new hat," a "quid," a "remedy," a "stranger" and a "thick 'un." Ten shillings is known in some cirles as a "half-bean" and a "smelt." A five-shilling piece was once known as a "coach-wheel," and is still sometimes called a "cart-wheel." The names for a shilling include "blow," "bob," "northeaster" (from the letters N. E. on New England coins of Charles I), "Manchester sovereign," and "pig."

A sixpence, now called in slang little else than a "tanner," has been a "tester," a "tizzy," a "lord-of-the manor," a "bender" and a "cripple." The origin of some of these words can be seen or guessed. Thus a sovereign was called a "skin," because it was good filling for a skin or purse. A shilling was known as a "breaky-leg," and the origin becomes plain when breaky-leg is found to have meant strong drink.

To forge a bank note is to "sham Abraham," not because the industrious and sober Abraham always has good money, but because Abraham Newland was a celebrated cashier of the Bank of England. Also, naturally, thieves and swindlers have innumerable synonyms for their callings. Many of them are singular and instructive.

An "tmuzer" is a thief who throws snuff or red pepper in his victim's eyes before robbing him.

An "anabaptist" is a scoundrel caught in the act and ducked in a horse-pond. On the contrary, a "swimmer" is a rogue who escapes punishment by a magistrate by offering to join the navy.

A "Billy Buzman" is a pocket-handkerchief stealer. A "blue-pigeon-flyer" strips lead from roofs. A "cork" is a bankrupt. A "purple dormedary" is not quite so obviously a bungling thief as a "finger-smith" is a pickpocket. A "groaner" operates at funerals. A curious word for highwayman is "high toper," or "high-toby." Toby meant the road. A "toby-oncern" was a highway robbery. "Toby" was used exclusively of robbery on horseback, though a footpad is sometimes called a "Lowtobyman."

A "Tyburn-blossom" is picturesque and prophetic—a promising young thief who will ripen into fruit borne by the deadly nevergreen, the gallows. A leader of thieves, a thorough-paced thief, is, impudently, an "upright man." Other varieties of scondrels are "filters," "elgs," "Newgate birds," "parlor-pimpers," "queer-shovers" and "crader-merchants."

But while "cross coves" seek safety and concealment in slang, they all know their inevitable end. In their own lingo they sing:

Suppose you screeve? Or go cheap-jack?
Or fake the broads? Or fig a nag?
Or thimble-rig? Or keep a yack?
Or pitch a snide? Or smash a rag?
Suppose you duff? Or nose and lag?
Or get the straight, and land your pot?
How do you melt the multy swag?
Booze and the blowens cop the lot.

* * * * * *

It's up the spout and Charley Wag
With wipes and tickens and what not,
Until the squeezer nips your scrag,
Booze and the blowens cop the lot.

It is a good moral—if the word is proper here. "Booze and the blowens" (drink and women) empty their pokets, drive them to crime in all its varieties until at last—the law.

ATHLETICS IN THE ARMY.

A soldier who is not in fine condition is not of much value in the rice paddies and mountain jungles of Filipina. A recognition of this fact induced the general in command in the Visayan islands to introduce a new system which removes athletics from optional work and places it as one of the most important of company duties. The instruction was turned over to captains, and a period quite equal to that allotted to rifle practice was set aside during which athletics were the main features and other military duties incidental. It was even provided that any injury received should be reported as incurred in line of duty, writes Gen. W. H. Carter in Harper's Weekly.

The companies were given several months in which to pursue a course of training. A list of military and athletic events for a department meet was announced and the four companies of each battalion were tried out, and the winning company designated to compete in a regimental meet. The three companies representing the three battalions of each regiment then engaged in a competition to determine which company should represent the regiment. The successful companies were then brought together in a battle royal at the department athletic meet, which took place at the new "sheiter" post on Guimaros island, opposite the city of Iloilo.

The individual events were quite up to the standard, while the military team events excited admiration and won the highest encomiums. The high and low wall scaling were marvellous performances.

The delivery of ammunition to the firing-line with pack mules, over a half-mile course, including the saddling and packing of the mules, in less than seven minutes, establishes records which it will be difficult to beat.

"Don't chew just l-o-v-e newsboys," asked the gushy girl, who was standin on the corner, "they are so sweet and dirty and dear, and so independent and manly and everything, I simply love to watch them. You don't look so awfully agreeable, though," she added to her companion, who was looking grimly at a transaction just being accomplished by one of the aforementioned adorable newsboys.

"I'm not looking agreeable," said her companion, "because I'm not feeling agreeable. They're dirty and sweet all right enough and most of them have large soft lustrous eyes, too, that seem to be a part of their stock in trade, but as far as independence goes—Poof! They haven't enough to draw their own breath if they could palm off the job on some one else and every single day they sell papers they are getting worse. It makes me so mad to buy a paper on the street. I could almost do without one when I really want it. Those manly and independent newsboys of yours go around with a drooping mouth, appealing voice, soft sad eyes and a bundle of papers under one arm and 2 cents in the other hand. You proffer a nickel for a paper and are told while 'a fair, speechless message' is sent with those eyes, that he hasn't 3 cents. The first time the trick is worked you say 'That's all right, sonny,' leaving the whole of your nickel in his grimy hand, the second time you take the 2 cents and the third time, if you have the courage of your convictions, you may start at the young mendicant something like this. 'Now see here, young man, this is about the twentieth time that I have been literally held up by such geniuses as you for twice the regular price of my paper and I am so ashamed of you and your methods of conducting business that I have a notion of going to a news stand. If you're going to be a business man, for goodness' sake be one. Call your papers without that whine in your voice and get just what they're worth and don't resort to such a contemptible little trick to get 1 cent. Gimme my paper and the right change QUICK,' which he has been ready to do for the past several minutes.

"You leave with the paper under your arm and something of the feeling of having robbed the widow and orphan and yet having done your whole duty. If I had my way I'd make it a serious misdemeanor for the person who allowed himself to be swindled by one of these small beggars, for it is developing in them traits of character that will make them perfectly abominable men. If only everybody that they would try that trick on for one evening would insist upon the right change, which every last one of them has in the pockets of his jeans, the reform would almost be accomplished. But they don't and the horrid little cheats will keep on whining and sliding unfairly through life. And it's a shame, too. And yet what a nice lot of cash they must have about 12 o'clock each night."

CECELIANS REORGANIZE.

Mrs. Stocker Revives Former Musical Society.

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker, the Cecilian society, a musical club, which was originally organized in Duluth in 1887, was reorganized and Mrs. Stocker was chosen president. The other officers elected were: Vice president, Mrs. K. A. Ostergren; secretary, Mrs. John F. Segog; corresponding secretary, Mrs. James McAuliffe; treasurer, Miss Isabel Pearson; librarian, Miss Grayce Frances Turner.

The club will meet once each month at the home of members and the membership is limited to thirty. The meetings will be devoted to musical study.

Preceding the business meeting the following program was given: Mrs. Segog sang "Lullaby" by Becker and Liszt's eighth rhapsodie was played by Miss Julia Hunter. Two dainty songs, "An Irish Love Song," by Lang and Nevin's 'A Life Lesson" was sung by Mrs. James McAuliffe and "Norwegian Dances" by Creig was played by Mrs. Stocker and Miss Clara Stocker and Miss Turner sang "Per un two bacio" by Vannini.

The next meeting of the society will be held the second Monday of May with Mrs. Mark Baldwin.

Of Social Interest.

The 500 club of Duluth Heights will be entertained tomorrow evening by Mrs. George Armstrong.

The Saturday club will meet tomorrow afternoon at the club room of the library. Mrs. Emogene Lectra will be the leader and the following program will be given:

Spain's history from the time of Isabella II, 1833, to the present time.

1. Spanish marriages.
   Carlist uprisings. Spain becomes a constitutional monarchy in 1876.
2. Terms of the constitution.
3. Republica.
   Alfonso XI.
   Alfonso XII.
   Regincy of Christina.
   Spanish-American war. Present constitution of Spain.

A reception was held at the church parlors of the First Methodist church this afternoon in honor of Mrs. S. C. Smith, who will leave May 1 for Minneapolis, where she will live. An informal program was given, Miss Shesgren giving a reading and Miss Sjosclius sang during the afternoon, which was a most delightful one.

WOMEN AS DRAMATISTS.

Henrietta Crosman Fails to Find One.

Will the day ever come when women equally with men are writing the skilful and successful plays of the world? If it does, nobody will more heartily rejoice than Henrietta Crosman, whose ambition it is to produce a really great play by a woman dramatist. Miss Crosman is essentially a woman's woman. She believes that everything man has done, woman under similar conditions could have done as well, if not better—except write plays. This exception has been forced upon her. It came reluctantly and with deep regret. It is born of reading scores of plays written by women, in the hope of finding one in all the number that would be worthy of production. Miss Crosman has ever been a champion of her sex. She is not advanced, as the term goes, for she believes that a woman's place is home, when she can stay there and does not have to battle with the world; but she holds that in intellectual pursuits woman's brain can keep pace with man's.

For a long time Miss Crosman cherished a plan to produce a great play by a woman. She believed she would discover one, and so of all the manuscripts submitted to her, she gave first choice of reading to those written by women. She was on the look-out for a discovery. She is still looking, and sadly confesses that the woman dramatist is yet to be developed. Miss Crosman's deductions from an analysis of many plays submitted by women, and which she has read carefully, are interesting, and may serve as a guide to some aspiring member of the sex. Women writers, Miss Crosman points out, lack the main essentials for play writing. First, they seem to fail in dramatic force. They want power in conceiving scenes and in describing them when they get them. Again, they fail in crispness and pungency. They do not seem to understand how to employ directness in verbal expression or action. All womans' plays have a tendency to talkativeness. One aspect Miss Crosman has discovered in reading plays by woman is the sex's failure to understand human nature. Miss Crosman says women do not know character. They make their heroes little less than God-like, endowing them with every possible virtue and grace, while their villains are of the deepest dye, without one redeeming trait. Such persons are unreal, and do not ring true. In fact, Miss Crosman says that artificiality is a marked failing in womens' attempts at play-writing.

But the contest between men and women is not wholly one-sided. Women show superiority along certain lines, though not the essential ones. Miss Crosman avers that women writers are more deft in bright sayings than are men, and that when it comes to giving true polish and breeding to stage characters, and depicting the usages of polite society, women are far and away ahead of men. Miss Crosman's comments are based on a careful study of plays for several years, and include the work of professional writers as well as of amateurs, of both sexes. Women novelists and magazine writers and journalists show the lack of understanding for stage requirements fully as plainly as do novices, Miss Crosman says, a defect due in a measure, perhaps, to a lack of conception as to how effects are produced in a play, and the difference between drama and a novel.

ON BATH TUBS.

Marvelous One In Senator Clark's Home.

Many people have laughed immoderately at the joke which went the rounds of the press a few months ago recounting the experiences in New York of a woman from a rural community, who was temporarily sojourning in a handsome hotel. The private bath adjoining her bedroom was so attractive that, after writing a glowing description home of its beauties, she added: "It looks so tempting I can hardly wait for Saturday night to come."

The old-style bathroom was anything but attractive, and a bath in an ugly tin tub placed in a bare and inartistic environment was, indeed, a duty and not a pleasure. Nowadays, in a fine, modern house, the bathrooms are among the most dainty and lovely apartments in the residence, and if there is not one entire bath for each member of the household and guest, each individual has the possession of a large fraction thereof, says an exchange.

Not only are the expensively fitted up baths so beautiful, where the thing is of onyx or marble and the fixtures are so exquisite, but even the less costly rooms are made very charming and inviting. A sanitary papering which stimulates tiling, and whose cost is by no means heavy, for a mural covering can be secured, and the porclain tubs come in less expensive varieteles.

From the accounts given of the luxurious baths of the ancient Romans in their palmy days, it would seem that the acme of the luxurious had been reached, but, after all, it appears that the twentieth century multi-millionaire has excelled his competitor, distant from the standpoint of space and time.

The New York Press gives the following account of what is to be the most luxurious bath in the world, which makes in comparison the milk bath of one famous beauty and the hose petalled tubbing of another sink into insignificance:

"When that massive pile of ugliness in Fifth avenue is finished and Senator Clark takes up his residence there, his young wife will have the most luxurious bathroom in the world. It will excel in its appointments the most sumptuous baths of the early Romans, and besides it the bath of the modern Oriental—which is a good deal more of a fable than a fact—will pale into insignificance. Onyx, alabaster and the finest marble ever quarried showers and needles and plunges, and the water will be filtered and will be as pure and clear as crystal. But the one novelty Mrs. Clark will possess, which even Caesar did not enjoy, will be an ingenious arrangement of tiny faucets, from which rare perfumes may be drawn and the water impregnated with their sensuous odors. She may bathe in softened water which exhales the scent of the geranium, or the violet, or attar of roses. The idea is a new one and is the invention of a Pittsburg genius who got carte blanche to design the most luxurious and artistic bathroom in the United States."

FOR THE SAKE OF MILDRED

By H. S. Canfield, Jr.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Harry Daggett sat gazing with unseeing eyes, at the closely figured pages before him; his mind had trailed off into memories. He was thinking of Mildred Arnold as he had first seen her, her brown eyes, half-laughing, half-serious, peeping from 'neath the great, flimsy garden hat. She had flashed him a smile that had set his heart to wildly beating and blushing for his self-conscious awkwardness, he had stumbled past.

He saw her often after that, and they were introduced. One evening she playfully tossed him a rose as he passed the gate. With one stride he reached her, seized her hands and pressing them to his heart held them there, while he poured out his hopes, ambitions and his love. She did not encourage him, neither did she discourage him, and he left her, alternately hoping and fearing.

It was only a short time after this that Jack Stayton came home from college; Jack was handsome, fascinating, worldly. Harry was none of these. It was at a ball that Mildred and Stayton met; Harry was present at the meeting and went home with a heavy heart. The wedding was announced within a year.

Obviously the union was a happy one, and, generous to a fault, Harry harbored no ill feelings; he sincerely rejoiced in Mildred's happiness. But the old love was smothered—not dead, and he would have given the best of his years of his life had Mildred never set eyes on Stayton's handsome face.

They were working side by side now, he and Jack, rivals in work, as they had been in love. What was deficient in Daggett's appearance was more than made up for in his ability, and he stood well up in the line of promotion.

Mrs. Stayton came often to the bank and she and Jack lunched together or walked home in the cool of the evening. But the visits had become less frequent of late, and Daggett, when he chanced to meet her, noticed that the fair brow was drawn, and that the lips, and not the eyes smiled when she spoke. Had he taken serious notice of Stayton he would have noted the change there also, and read the whole story in the marks of dissipation and reckless living.

With a sigh he pulled himself together and brought his mind back to his work. His pencil ran rapidly across and down each page as he critically and surely scanned each item. Suddenly the pencil hesitated and then hovered over the red figures of a balance. He had detected an error almost by intuition and it took but a moment for the clear brain to verify it.

Half fearing, he scrutinized entry after entry, and found error after error. Overwhelmingly the truth burst upon him; the books had been tampered with and unmistakably the figures were Stayton's. He buried his face in his hands.

"Poor Mildred! Poor child!" he cried to himself.

When he looked up his eyes met those of Jack seated at a nearby desk, but the mask had been torn from the handsome face and Daggett saw only the weak chin, the blue encircled eyes and the lines about the mouth; to him it was the face of a criminal—a thief. He could see that the man was pale and nervous and that only by the greatest self repression he kept his mind on his work.

On first impulse, Harry would have gone to his superiors and exposed all, he was young, he had made himself a strong candidate for promotion; it would be discovered sooner or later at any rate, as the falsification was a very clumsy attempt, to say the least. Yet, dearer to him than his ambition was his love for Mildred—give up her husband he could not.

He passed a sleepless night and morning found him at the bank before the doors were open. His face was pale and drawn, but his step was firm and steady. During a lull in the busy day, he quietly slipped from his desk and walked to the president's office. Just as he stepped inside, Mildred Stayton, coming from the street, crossed to her husband's window, and reaching through the grating, tapped him lightly on the shoulder. He had been watching Harry with a terrible fear tugging at his heart; as he saw him calmly disappear behind the ground glass door, the wild desire to flee seized him, and he had to fight himself to remain in his place. As his wife touched him, he uttered a sharp cry and turned like a flash, his face twitching. "Jack, dear, you're ill!" cried Mildred.

With a weak attempt to laugh, Stayton tried to pass it over.

"It's the heat," he faltered.

It was done and all over in a few minutes. A quiet consultation, a short talk over the telephone, and two men entered the lobby and walked straight to the president's office. They came out almost immediately and between them walked Daggett. His step was firm and he walked neither to the right nor to the left; it was so quiet and still that the footsteps of the men sounded to the echo.

As he saw Stayton standing with Mildred, the color swept to his face and for an instant only, his step faltered. He was suffering almost supreme martyrdom and for a moment the thought angered him.

She had turned away her head, and was looking into her husband's face. The worried pucker between her brows had vanished, and from her eyes shone all the trust and confidence in a good woman's heart. Harry saw, and understanding, smiled straight into Stayton's face.

The formality of a trial must be gone through with; Daggett asked for a speedy one and it was granted him. An embezzler usually gives the law a run for its money, and self-confessed criminals are rare, so the trail attracted attention. Daggett attempted no defense; on recommendation for leniency by the bank officials, he was sentenced to five years.

Leaving the court room, he saw Mildred and her husband in the corridor. Fighting hard against it he felt the blood tingling in his face, and he pretended not to see them as he passed. Mildred divined his shame and caught one of his loosely hanging hands in both hers.

"Harry, don't ruin your life to shield another!" she cried, with a sob in her voice. "Tell them that you did not do it! Boy, I know you did not do it!"

For a moment he feared that she suspected the truth, but there was nothing but solicitude in her eyes. Her confidence warmed his heart as nothing else had done and he smiled into the pleading, upturned face.

"I did," he said, his voice trembling, and unclasping her hands, he was gone.

He had suffered a year of the living death, when they found Stayton in a cheap hotel one morning, a revolver clutched in his hand; there was one chamber empty; he had looked in vain for drink strong enough to kill the pangs of conscience. A closely written sheet of paper fluttered from the table to the floor, as they opened the door.

Daggett had suffered, but—well, a woman's first love is not always her best.

A TERRIBLE PENANCE.

Perhaps the most terrible penance suffered for religious reasons anywhere in the world is that of the monks of Nyende-kyl-buk, as described by Perceval Landon in "The Opening of Thibet." These monks live in the ordinary manner during the novitiate; then they go into cells for a period of six months; then, after an interval, for three years and ninety-three days; later, for life.

And such a cell! "Almost on a level with the ground," says Mr. Landon, "there was an opening closed with a flat stone from behind. In front of this window was a ledge eighteen inches in width, with two basins beside it, one at each end. The abbot was attended by an acolyte who, by his master's orders, tapped three times sharply on the stone slab; we stood in the little courtyard in the sun, and watched that wicket with open apprehension. I think, on the whole, it was the most uncanny thing I saw in all Thibet. After half a minute's pause the stone moved, or tried to move, but it came to rest again. Then very slowly and uncertainly it was pushed back and a black chasm was revealed. There was again a pause of thirty seconds, during which imagination ran riot, but I do not think that any other thing could have been as intensely pathetic as that we actually saw.

"A hand, muffled in a tightly wound piece of dirty cloth, for all the world like a stump of an arm, was painfully thrust up, and very weakly it felt along the slab. After a fruitless fumbling the hand slowly quivered back again into the darkness. A few moments later there was again an ineffectual effort, and then the stone slab moved noiselessly across the opening.

"Once a day water and an unleavened cake of flour is placed for the prisoner upon that slab, the signal is given and he may take it in. His diversion is over for the day, and in the darkness of his cell, where night and day, moon, sunshine and the dawn are all alike, he—poor soul!—had thought that another day of his long penance was over."

SEARCHLIGHT FOR MT. HOOD

People of Portland Want One Placed on Top.

The people of Portland, Ore., get a great deal of pleasure from the presence of the towering Mount Hood, which seems to stand at their very doors, says the Chicago Chronicle. As a matter of fact, it is forty-six miles away, but as one views a mountain of this size, a matter of forty-six miles seems like a mere trifle.

The top of this volcanic pile is 11,225 feet above the level of the sea, and there is now a project to place a gigantic searchlight on the top of the mountain as a sort of landmark. If the project carries, the light will be filled with an 80-inch projector and will be located on the very crest of the mountain. It is thought that the ray from this lamp will be seen as far away as 100 miles, and that it will be possible to throw its rays against the neighboring peaks of Ranier, Adams and St. Helens.

To place the searchlight on this mountain requires quite a bit of engineering skill and labor, which will cost $30,000.

A short tower of wood and iron, the upper part of the searchlight and the base for apparatus and operators will be built on the summit. The transmission line has to be built down the north side of the mountain to Cooper's Spur, and from there to a point in the neighborhood of Cloud Cap inn, where a temporary generating plant will be installed.

The construction of the tower and the delivery of the necessary material and apparatus are the difficult parts of the construction work. This will be overcome by the use of a steel hoisting cable and sleds, and all of the material can be delivered on the summit by this means, as the side of the mountain toward Cloud Cap inn is favorable to this mode of transportation. The sleds will be run over the trail used yearly by the mountain climbers. Parts of the transmission line will have to be carried over glaciers, and special construction will be necessary for this work. Iron poles painted white, so as not to absorb any heat, will be placed in the ice to carry the cables.

A flat surface on the summit of the mountain has been selected as the site for the tower. Here the debris will have to be cleared away and the engineers will have to blast for solid foundations. The tower will be erected on iron posts sunk in the ice, and will be composed of wood, iron and steel. In order to protect the operators from the severe cold of the mountain at night, the transformers and motors will be arranged so that they can be controlled from the operating room. After the sun goes down everything on Hood freezes solid.

In addition to the searchlight effect from the summit, the establishment of the apparatus affords means for a general illumination of the mountain by arc lights. One hundred arc lights will be distributed on the side of the mountain facing Portland. Besides the use of the searchlight and arc lights, red fire will be used in great quantities, and several times each evening the mountain will have the appearance of a Vesuvius.

The placing of the tower on Mount Hood may be the beginning of the movement for the establishment of an astronomical observatory on this majestic peak of the Cascade range.

HINTS TO LETTER-WRITERS.

The pleasure gained from writing a letter is doubled by receiving a prompt and complete answer, says the Chicago Journal.

A friend writes and asks for the address of some one. The friend is polite enough to say answer at your convenience, but she wants it right away or she wouldn't have written for it, and when "your convenience" means a fortnight, she can perhaps just as well go without the information she is seeking.

To answer a letter and not answer the questions it contains is nothing less than rudeness. Answer the questions first, visit later.

To write of some inclosure and then to seal and send the letter without the inclosure is excused only by sending it in another envelope by the next mail.

Lack of material is the cause of many broken promises and many unanswered letters. It costs little to keep on hand a box of stationery, a box of pen points and a bottle of ink. Stamped envelopes are almost a necessity as a means of guarding against stamplessness.

Many times a woman would answer a letter if she had a pen at hand.

Many times she would write to a friend if she had an envelope.

Many letters are laid away and remain forever unseen because at the right moment there was no two-cent stamp.

DEATH COMES TO MRS. LOMOE

Superior Woman Succumbs to Self Inflicted Wounds.

Mrs. Oscar Lomoe, who attempted to kill her two small children and then take her own life, at their home in Itasca, a suburb of Superior, Wis., died yesterday noon. The two children are expected to recover.

The tragedy was one that cast a gloom over the whole community where Mrs. Lomoe resided, and where she was well known and highly respected. The attempt at the lives of her children and herself was made during a temporary fit of insanity, the woman using a razor with which she slashed their throats, the cut at her own throat being deeper and severing the jugular vein. She never regained consciousness after the act.

The funeral of Mrs. Lomoe will be held from the family residence Sunday afternoon.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The Venezuelan case is a closed incident so far as Secretary Taft is concerned, unless President Roosevelt decides to take it up while he is away on his vacation. This is not thought probable.

First Lieut. Henry Clay Evans, Jr., son of the former consul general at London, has been placed on the retired list of the army on account of disability. Lieut. Evans was appointed second lieutenant Third artillery in July, 1898, and reached the grade of first lieutenant in May, 1901.

The proposed constitutional amendment authorizing a state bond issue of $50,000,000 for building good roads under the state aid law, passed the New York assembly Thursday. Having passed the legislature last year, the proposition now will be submitted to popular vote at the November election.

The steamer Doric sailed Thursday from San Francisco for the Orient with 200 passengers and 4,500 tons of freight, much of which is for Japan. Her first stop will be at Midway island, where she will seek news of the naval operations of the Japanese and Russians.

Secretary Taft has selected Brig. Gen. Thomas H. Barry, commanding the department of the Gulf at Atlanta, Ga.; Col. John Van R. Hoss of the medical department at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and Capt. Sidney A. Colman, Twenty-second infantry of the general staff, stationed in Washington, for duty with the Russian army in Manchuria. Capt. Cloman will act as aide to Gen. Barry.

Father Schell, a Catholic priest, who has been carrying on an investigation into alleged abuses of the Indians in the Winneboga Indian agency in Nebraska, was seriously assaulted by a Dakota City saloonkeeper Thursday.

The ice bridge at Cape Rouge, near Quebec, which annually delays the opening of navigation upon the St. Lawrence, gave way Thursday. Navigation will be opened to Montreal in two or three days.

The extensive planing mills of the Telford Lumber company at Prince Albert, N. W. T., were destroyed by fire Thursday night. Loss, $100,000.

COLORED BOYS DISARM GUARD AND GET AWAY.

Pittsburg, April 14.—Charles Jackson and Albert Pander, colored, aged 16 and 17 respectively, attacked John White, a guard at the Morganza reformatory, with an ax yesterday, dangerously wounding him. They then disarmed the guard and made their escape from the institution. The two fugitives encountered James Hendricks on his farm and held him up for money. Hendricks broke away and ran for his home, followed by bullets from the revolver the boys had taken from Guard White. The shots went wild. A crowd of armed men quickly gathered and rounded up the young desperadoes, compelling them to take refuge in a boxcar, where they surrendered to county detectives.

CONDITIONS TO MARRIAGE

In Indiana Are Ability to Support Family and Health.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 14.—The "closed season" for issuing marriage licenses in Indiana will not be as long as thitcatened when a few days ago it was discovered that it would be necessary for the state board of health to prepare a form for licenses and forward it to the county clerks after the acts of the recent legislature are promulgated.

There will be one hour, however, in which no licenses can be granted, and it will probably be the only period in the history of the state when no permits will be issued.

The state board has prepared a form and is now sending it to the county clerks. The days the acts are promulgated the state board will hold a meeting, approve the circular and telegraph the county clerks to that effect.

There will be two separate forms for licenses, one for women and the other for men. Twenty-seven questions will be asked. The forms are alike except that the man is compelled to swear that he can support a family. This is something new in Indiana. Otherwise the questions are designed to get a statement of the whole moral, civil and physical history of the applicants.

In the form prepared the questions are whether or not either of the contracting parties has been an inmate of a county poor farm or home for indigent women, whether either party is an imbecile, feeble minded, idiotic or insane, or under guardianship of a person of unsound mind, and whether or not either of the contracting parties is afflicted with epilepsy, tuberculosis or any other contagious or transmissable disease.

CONSIDERS $10,000 SMALL

That Was Erlanger's Personal Profits From "The Auctioneer."

New York, April 14.—In the suit of David Belasco to establish the existence of a contract with Klaw & Erlanger, the theatrical managers, through the agency of a third party Abraham Erlanger of that firm was chief witness yesterday.

Mr. Erlanger was asked what chance a manager had to book an attraction in the theaters controlled by the theatrical syndicate to which he replied that the chance was good for a good attraction. For a poor attraction, he could not say what the chances would be.

Mr. Erlanger said the syndicate controlled between sixty-five and one hundred theaters.

Mr. Erlanger said the syndicate's share of the profits from "The Auctioneer" amounted to $30,000.

"My share was not much," he added.

"You got one-third of that sum, didn't you?" asked counsel for Belasco.

"Yes," the witness replied.

"Don't you call $10,000 much money?"

"No, not much."

Mr. Erlanger then testified that he booked the stars outside the syndicate free of charge. These were the Lyric, New York, the Garrick, Chicago, and the Majestic, Boston.

He afterwards admitted, however, that Nixon & Zimmerman had an interest in a play with S. S. and Lee Shubert, who control the Lyric and Garrick theaters mentioned.

Mr. Erlanger was cross-examined at some length and there were a number of lively tiles between counsel.

"Did you not get $6,000 and $7,000 from James K. Hackett for booking him in one of his plays?" was asked.

"No, not for the booking. We were practically his managers," replied Mr. Erlanger.

"Well, who really was his manager?"

"He was his own manager."

"Yet, you managed him?"

"Yes."

Mr. Erlanger said the syndicate got 25 per cent from the profits of the "Chinese Honeymoon," but nothing from "Florodora."

The witness denied that he had ever been "cruel or harsh" to Mr. Belasco.

PARENTS SUE CHILDREN.

Heirs to Bruins' Estate Want Will Changed.

Fond du Lac, Wis., April 14.—A case in which children are arrayed against their parents in an effort to break the will of the late Andrew Bruins is on trial in county court here.

Bruins left an estate, valued at $80,000, which included a 600-acre farm, all to two sons, Henry and Andrew, Jr.; three daughters, Mrs. H. Lemminus, Mrs. Hermina Lemminus and Mrs. Ella Byers, to be held by them in trust for their children, now minors.

The parents did not like the provisions, and being unable to agree with their offspring, began suit.

Attorney P. H. Martin was appointed guardian to look after the interests of the children. Seven lawyers are engaged in the trial.

BODY OF ST. PAUL MAN FOUND AT FOOT OF CLIFF.

St. Paul, April 14.—The lifeless body of a man, believed to be Jack Bradley of Midway, was found at the base of a 75-foot cliff one the edge of the Minnesota river, about 100 feet below the mouth of Minnehaha creek, late yesterday by two little girls, who were wandering along the river bank searching for flowers. The clothing on the body was torn to shreds, showing that the victim had fallen along the jagged cliff from the top of the bluff, where, it is believed, he had swallowed a quantity of laudanum. It is believed that after taking the poison Bradley threw himself over the cliff. He was a man of about 40 years, and little is known of his antecedents.

JOE JEFFERSON ILL.

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 14.—Joseph Jefferson, the actor, is ill at his home here. He returned a few days ago from a fishing trip on Hobe sound, slightly ill. His condition was such that it was thought advisable to call in another physician. Dr. Worley of St. Augustine was sent for and visited him yesterday. It is believed that Mr. Jefferson's condition is not such as would cause alarm, except for his age.

Race For Supremacy.

It is interesting to watch the race for supremacy among Minneapolis-St. Paul-Chicago trains. First place is securely held by the Pioneer Limited and the second place by the Fast Mail. Both trains are entirely owned by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. There are three other fast trains via this line from the Twin Cities to Chicago every day, and there is no extra fare to ride on them. Address W. B. Dixon, northwestern passenger agent, St. Paul, for further particulars, lowest rates, etc.

WALL STREET IS TRYING To Estimate How Much Money Russell Sage Has.

New York, April 14.—Wall street men are asking each other "How much is Russell Sage worth?"

The answers to the question varied greatly. The few who have some acquaintance with the veteran's financial affairs fixed his fortune at $25,000,000; many "guessed" that he has piled up $100,000,000. All agreed that Russell Sage can, at shorter notice, lay his hand on more ready cash than any man in this country, bar John D. Rockefeller.

"No man in America has been more secretive nor more reticent in business than Sage. He has never had a partner in the street; he has worked there single handed and with both hands, save for the aid of clerks and other subordinates. He has never practiced the modern high finance; it is doubtful if he knows much about it. He has made money breed money.

"His fortune is the fruit of the profoundest prudence, the extremest thrift. He has been fortunate in his investments because he has always made sure of their value before investing. He has never taken a risk when he lent money, and he has done little but lend money for the last ten years. Always, especially in panicky times he has received high rates of interest.

"Yet I am certain as any man can be that when Mr. Sage's estate is settled up, and his securities are realized on, there will not be more than $25,000,000."

So said a banker who knows as much as many of Mr. Sage's affairs.

"Mr. Sage has been arranging to retire from business for two years or more," he continued. "He yielded then to the importunities of Mrs. Sage and of Mr. Munn, his physician, to pass the winter of his life away from Wall street. When Mr. Sage came here from Troy, after serving two terms in congress from Rensselaer county, he had enough money to start a brokerage business. He made a specialty of 'puts' and 'calls,' and so successful was he that I know of one year in which he did a business of $25,000,000 and came out $10,000,000 ahead.

"But that does not mean that he made a fabulous fortune. A man who took the chances he did in 'puts' and 'calls' stood to lose almost as much as he made. It was not until about ten eyars ago that Mr. Sage gave himself up to money lending entirely. He took nothing but gilt-edge securities, and though he rarely lost, his fortune did not grow with leaps and bounds.

"I have heard him say lately he is worth scarcely $20,000,000. He has been exacting in money matters, but Mrs. Sage has given away great sums of money—of course, with his approval."

WEST END.

NIGHT MEN OFF

Mining Strike Lays Off Crew On Missabe Docks.

Continuance of Strike May Cause Tie-Up Down Here.

The strike at the mines on the Missabe range has caused a partial tie-up of the work at the Missabe ore docks here and if the strike continues much longer may cause a tie-up of considerable proportions. For the present the night crew has been laid off as it is feared that because of the strike, and should the indications for its continuance prove correct, there will not be enough work to keep many men busy for long. Of course there are a good many cars loading on the range and being sent down to the docks but if much violence crops out along the line on which it has been started, loading of cars will be as difficult as mining the ore.

The work on the new ore docks is progressing favorably, the required timber coming along better than formerly. Barnett & Record, the contractors on the work will not be through for a month or six weeks yet, however, but are reducing their force. Nine men left yesterday for Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where they are building elevators. Other men will be sent away from time to time but the work here is not finished yet by any means.

BUILD A BAKERY.

Schell & Bjorlin to Have New Business Home.

Schell & Bjorlin, the Garfield avenue bakers, will begin at once to build a brick store building on Superior street between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth avenues west. This firm, which has been doing business on Garfield avenue for several years, just recently sold its property on Garfield to the Lake Superior & Southeastern railroad company for $9,000, the deed of which sale was filled yesterday.

The firm had four months in which to find another location for its business. It chose a site on Superior street, between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth avenues west on which to build and purchased the 100 feet there for $3,100. Then the same railroad company came along and offered them $5,100 for this new site and Schell & Bjorlin were up a stump, so to speak, and were looking anxiously for a home. The railroad was to run between Superior and Michigan streets beginning at Twenty-fourth avenue west and would cut off the greater part of the firm's property there.

It is believed that some agreement has been reached between the road and Schell & Bjorlin or the latter would not go ahead and build under the circumstances. Nothing can be learned about it, however.

MINSTREL SAMARITANS.

Beta Council Entertainment In May.

On May 21 Beta council of Modern Samaritans will give a minstrel show at Columbia hall. Elaborate costumes are promised and the chorus will consist of twenty-five male voices. The executive staff of the "Beta Minstrel company" consists of the following: Business managers, R. Johnson and J. Hultquist; stage manager, J. Miller; property manager, C. Peterson; treasurer, O. A. Andersen; tickets, D. Shesgren; advertising managers, G. Hultquist and A. Otterson; electricians, I. Lundgren and M. Blewett. The opening chorus will consist of the following up-to-date selections: "Along the Mobile Shore," "Coax Me," "The Good Old Ways and the Dear Old Days," "Merry Comrades," "I'll Shake Up This Mean Old Town," "Jones Said I'd Be One," "What Are You Going to do in the Winter?" "Be Good, Be Good, Katie," "The Italian Organ Grinder," waltz song from "Faust," and "The U. S. Volunteer."

The rest of the big first part will be as follows:

"Don't You Never Take No Ten-Cent Drink On Me" .. ..
Joe Miller.

"If I But Knew" .. ..
Iver Lundgren"

"Dat's the Way to Spell Chicken" .. .. ..

RAILROAD NEWS

J. J. Hill Will Have Direct Line Between Duluth and Denver.

Very Large Bond Issue By the Union Pacific Road.

A direct railroad line from Duluth to Denver is said to be promised by James J. Hill for the near future. The shorter route will result from the building of a cutoff between O'Neil, Neb., on the Wilmar and Sioux Falls division of the Great Northern, and Thedford, on the Burlington. This will give almost an air line between the Head of the Lakes and Denver and the Twin Cities and Denver. The Minneapolis Journal says:

"'Mr. Hill will soon have a direct road to Denver, and when the road is built it will be the shortest route by far between those points.' This statement by a Great Northern official, who is well informed is an intimation of the plan to connect the Burlington and Great Northern roads in Nebraska. He said further:

"'Mr. Hill will accomplish this by building a cutoff between O'Neil, Neb., on the Wilmar & Sioux Falls division of the Great Northern, and Thedford, of a near by point on the Burlington road. By doing this it will give almost a direct route between Minneapolis and Denver, and also between Duluth and Superior and Denver.

"'The proposed line between the two Nebraska cities will be only about seventy or eighty miles in length, but by its construction railroad facilities between the northern portion of the Mississippi river valley and Denver and the surrounding territory will be increased beyond computation.

"'It is not known just how soon the line between O'Neil and Thedford will be constructed, but it is expected that it will be built as soon as a survey and preliminary work can be done.'

"The route from Minneapolis to Denver by the Great Northern line would be through Willmar, Manley and Sioux City to O'Neil. After the connection with Thedford on the Burlington & Missouri river road is made, the rest is easy sailing. Connection will be made at Alliance with the north and south line leading direct to Denver, crossing the Gurnsey and Cheyenne extensions.

"At Alliance connection is made with the Black Hills line of the Burlington, leading to Deadwood, Billings and Cody.

"Other extensions of the Great Northern announced are: A twenty-mile addition to the Thief River Falls division; a twenty-two-mile addition to the Lakota-Edmore, N. D., extension, and an addition of several miles on the Granville-Mohall extension, in North Dakota.

"The addition to the Thief River Falls extension will run from Greenbush, Minn., northward to within twelve miles of the Canadian boundary line. The addition to the Lakota-Edmore extension will be made in Cavalier county, N. D., and the addition to the Granville-Mohall line will be made near Sherwood, N. D."

Going In Early.

Great Northern officials say that settlers and immigrants from the South and East are going into the Dakotas fully a month earlier than in previous years, although the weather so far this spring has been cooler than is ordinarily the case. The soil is being plowed and sown for an early crop, and officialy advise those who contemplate entering the Dakotas this year to go now and be ready to compete with those who have already gone. Quite a number of immigrants are passing through Duluth on their way west every day.

Railroad Notes.

A boitless rail joint has been invented by H. C. Hope, superintendent of the Omaha road telegraph. It will be adjustable to different rails and may be put on the joint of the rail from beneath.

The Northern Pacific has announced a rate of one and one-third from Minnesota points to Duluth, April 26. The occasion is the Knights Templar conclave.

The Great Western is opening bids for half a million tons of coal.

BOND ISSUE.

Union Pacific Will Make a Very Big One.

New York, April 14.—The New York American today says "bonds aggregating $750,000,000, the greatest railroad issue ever made, must be marketed by the Union Pacific to consummate its merger with the New York Central system and the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, according to details of the underwriting made public yesterday for the first time.

"The total mileage of the system will be 36,244. The plan of consolidation is all underwritten and the promoters are merely waiting for a favorable time to announce consummation of the scheme.

"There is to be an issue of 15 per cent of stock made by each of the roads to be absorbed. That issued by the Chicago & Northwestern is to go as an extra dividend to the stockholders. That issued by the New York Central will be sold to stockholders at 125; producing $28,125,000 cash with which to make improvements already planned on the system.

"The total stock of both roads is then to be purchased by Union Pacific with bonds. The Central stock will be taken at 200 in a 4 per cent bond, and the Chicago & Northwestern at 300 with a 3½ per cent bond. All of these bonds have been underwritten and enough stock of both systems is pledged to vote for the plan to carry it through."

TREATIES APPROVED.

The Hague, April 14.—The second chamber of the states general today approved the arbitration treaties between the Netherlands and Denmark, France and Great Britain.

Homeseekers' Excursions

To points in Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba, the Northern Pacific railway will sell Homeseekers' tickets at one fare, plus $2.00, every Tuesday during March, April, May and June.

On first and third Tuesdays, same months, will sell similar tickets to all points in West and Southwest. For further information as to rates and tickets, call at City Ticket office, 332 Superior street.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

King Goes Back to Prison on Sentence For Arson.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The closing chapter in a sensational frontier episode is the imprisonment of Earl L. King of Lyman county in the penitentiary to serve four years for arson in the third degree. King, who is the son of prominent residents of Charles Mix county, was implicated in the burning of some buildings belonging to E. L. Senn, editor of the Iona Settler. The incendiarism was due to the aggressive fight waged by the editor against the cattle "rustlers" who for years operated in parts of Lyman county. King had been at liberty some time on a writ of error, but the state supreme court sustained the lower court and he was returned to the penitentiary to serve his time.

Elk Point—E. G. Vincent, a government civil engineer, has been making surveys of the depredations of the Missouri river upon the rich agricultural lands three miles southwest. The river has made serious inroads at a new point since the government riprap was put in three years ago, and some of the original work has been seriously damaged, threatening that which remains. A dozen dykes will have to be built at the point of new attack, requiring an expenditure of about $15,000.

Rev. Jerome Campbell of Weston, Neb., has accepted a call to the First Baptist church of this city and the church at Burbank. The former pastor, Rev. J. M. Hupp, goes to Cherokee, Iowa.

Watertown—Arnold Reichert, chief of the fire department, has submitted his annual report showing a total of fourteen alarms in the city the past year, two of which were false. The report is remarkable, inasmuch as the total damage by fire in a city of 6,000 was but $1,000. Out of twelve fires, four were caused by boys with matches and four by gasolene stoves. The small damage is due in a large measure to the efficient service of the department.

Summit—Fire broke out in the saloon owned by R. V. Stevens and for a time the whole town was threatened. Luckily there was very little wind and the fire was checked after destroying two saloons, owned by R. V. Stevens, Asberg & Lee, and a general store operated by Robert Whitwood. Very little insurance was carried, except by Stevens, who had $1,500.

Evarts—Settlers are passing through Evarts for Butte county in expectation of the passage of the Martin bill next winter when they will be able to obtain section homesteads. In a letter to Colonel T. G. Orr of this place Congressman Martin says the bill will pass next winter. Homesteaders going in this spring will have a better opportunity to locate and be ready when the bill passes to secure three more quarters.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Thomas Campbell has sold 480 acres near the university, known the the school section, to Daniel Perkins for $24,000—$50 an acre.

Mr. Campbell is by no mean retiring from farming, as he still owns 920 acres, and will occupy his time in caring for that.

The case of Delia Odegaard vs. Patrick Bryne is on trial in district court before Judge Watts. The complainant asks that a deed given in 1889 be set aside. The deed involved a house and lot in East Grand Forks. Mrs. Odegaard claims that title was given to Patrick Byrne after the defendant had represented that he desired to marry her and she had given her consent. She alleges that Byrne represented to her that as they were going to be married, it would be wise to give him a deed for the property so that creditors could not attach it. After securing the house and lot in question, and other goods belonging to the plaintiff, Byrne left for Ontario, where he since has married.

The Stage

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—"The Yankee Consul," also tomorrow afternoon and evening.
METROPOLITAN—Donna Troy company in "The James Boys in Missouri;" matinee tomorrow.

"THE YANKEE CONSUL."

This evening at the Lyceum the Henry W. Savage musical comedy "The Yankee Consul," with Raymond Hitchcock in the lead, will open its engagement of two nights and a matinee at the Lyceum. The production was given at Superior last evening and a large number of Duluth people were there, the audience being the largest Superior has seen in a long time. The performance made a great hit and Duluth people who were over claim Hitchcock is the best comedian seen in musical comedy here in many months. They also speak highly of the work of Sally McNeil, the Duluth young woman who is in the cast, and say she will make a hit here.

DONNA TROY COMPANY.

Last evening the Donna Troy company again produced "A Russian Spy" and it pleased the audience very well. This evening "The James Boys in Missouri" will be the bill.

LANDED IN FRANCE.

The Police Hear From "Judge" Franklin Stone.

Philadelphia, April 14.—Frank C. Marrin, alias "Judge" Franklin Stone, whom police agents have been seeking in connection with the affairs of the collapsed Storey Cotton company, is reported to have landed at Havre, France, March 23, from the steamship Touraine, having sailed from New York on the same day the concern went into the hands of a receiver. He was accompanied by his wife and two sons. Thomas H. Quinlan, secretary and treasurer of the Storey company, also is said to have been in the party.

STRIKE MAY SPREAD.

President of Carpenters' Union Threatens National Strike.

New York, April 14.—If the board of governors of the local Building Employers' association fails to end the lockout of the carpenters, which has been on for some months, National President Huber of the brotherhood, who is now in New York, threatens to order a national strike of the brotherhood men on all the contracts of members of the Employers' association in other cities.

William Schardt of the national executive committee of the brotherhood has started for Chicago to await instructions from Huber.

The trouble is now between the new union and the Master Carpenters' union. There is a radical and conservative element in the latter, the former being in favor of standing by the new union in refusing the national charter offered by the brotherhood, and the latter of bringing pressure on the union to accept the charter. Further efforts are now being made to end the trouble here, so that its spread may be prevented.

SAD EXPERIENCE

Of a Deserted Wife With Five Children.

Brainerd, Minn., April 14.—Through the disloyalty of once a devoted husband Mrs. George Franklin, of Pillager, is forced to submit to the trying ordeal of having her five little children torn from her arms to be sent to the state training school.

Sheriff Hardy passed through the city yesterday en route from Pillager to Walker where the children will be taken before the proper authorities and sent to the state training school.

There is a sad story connected with this case. About a year ago George Franklin is said to have skipped out with a young girl by the name of Miss Richmond and they are said to have gone to Oregon. Wednesday this young girl returned to Pillager with a baby on her arms, but Franklin is still thought to be in Oregon. Mrs. Franklin was driven to desperation, finally decided that she would have to turn the children over to the authorities.

BROTHERS REUNITED

After Being Separated Over Thirty Years.

Brainerd, Minn., April 14.—There was a rather interesting meeting at the N. P. depot at noon yesterday of two brothers who had been separated from each other for thirty-three years. Sam Gerrard, a well known farmer living not far from Brainerd, and Theophile Gerrard, of Albany, N. Y., were the men.

They were reared in Canada and are of French descent. Theopile Gerrard left home thirty-three years ago and located near Albany, New York, and nine years later Sam came to this country and located on a farm in this county.

Since Theophile left his home he had not seen his brother Sam until yesterday and their meeting was therefore rather pathetic as well as interesting.

Both have since reared large families and age has brought whitened locks, but notwithstanding this they recognized each other at the depot the minute their eyes met. The brother from New York will spend some time here visiting. Sam is 66 and Theophile 56 years of age.

THE BASEBALL SEASON OPENS

National and American League Clubs Play First Games.

New York, April 14.—The baseball season was opened in this city today. Four teams, all from the National league, representing respectively New York and Boston, and Brooklyn and Philadelphia, met at the polo grounds in Manhattan and at Washington park in Brooklyn. The weather was almost ideal and large crowds attended both games.

St. Louis, April 14.—The baseball season opened here today with the first game between the National league clubs of Chicago and St. Louis. The players of both teams were in fine condition. The weather was cool and the grounds were damp, but interest was not lacking.

Philadelphia, April 14.—The baseball championship season opened in this city today when the local American league team crossed bats with the champion Boston nine. The weather is a trifle cool for spectators.

Cleveland, April 14.—The baseball game scheduled for today between Cleveland and Detroit American league clubs to open the season in this city was postponed on account of a heavy snow storm.

Cincinnati, April 14.—The Pittsburg and Cincinnati clubs were scheduled to open the National league championship season here today. The usual parade was dispensed with, band music and an introductory speech by Mayor Fleischmann being all that was arranged in the way of preliminaries.

CORBETT'S FIRST LESSON.

How It Led Him to Continue Boxing.

Jim Corbett tells a story which shows how he received his first notion of becoming a fighter, says the New York Sun. Corbett was 17 when he made up his mind that he would try his hand at the boxing game. According to the Californian, he had not the remotest idea of pursuing the profession for a livelihood, but took it up as an athletic diversion.

"I was a big, powerful fellow even then," said Corbett to the Sun reporter the other night. "I used to be able to play a good game of baseball at the time, and in this way I butted into the Olympic club, although I was far from being eligible. This club was the real thing, and its members went in for boxing almost exclusively. When I joined the club I determined to take boxing lessons, and I was recommended to Walter Watson, an Englishman and the club's instructor.

"I remember, Watson sized me up pretty critically when I entered the gymnasium. I took a seat in a corner of the room and watched Watson instruct two of the members. I noticed that both pupils seemed afraid to strike out, and I determined that when I got the gloves on I would go at it quite differently. I stripped and was ready for Watson. He asked me whether I had done much boxing, and I admitted that I had had the gloves on a couple of times, which was not true, for up to that day I had never done any kind of sparring.

"'Show me what you can do,' he commanded, rather authoritatively, you really want me to hit you as hard as you can. That's the only way to learn, you know.'

"I was skeptical and made out that I did not understand him correctly. 'Do you really want me to hit you as hard as I can?' I asked. He said 'yes,' but added 'if you can.' Now, Watson had the reputation of being a clever fellow, and few men his weight and age could locate him. Well, we went at it and I tore into him at a fast clip. I swung and jabbed and I uppercut and did everything I knew how. I put all the force at my command behind my punches, and in a brief while he was forced to cry quits.

"When it was all over he turned to me and inquired:

"'Say, young fellow, is there any Irish in your blood?'

"He was puffing and a bit angry. I answered that my parents were Irish and that I was proud of the fact.

"'Well, all I can say, young fellow,' he returned, 'is that in about three months from now you'll lick anything in the club. Let me tell you, you are a natural born fighter, and some day you'll be the heavyweight champion of the world.' Somehow Watson's words stirred me on, and I decided to continue boxing for a while. At the end of the three months I was quite seasoned. Under Watson's methods I won the middleweight and heavyweight amateur championships of California. I had the gloves on with Watson several times after those three months were up, and I had no trouble in holding my own and outpointing him. I could never reconcile myself to Watson's methods of instruion. He knew nothing of short arm jabs, hooks and other things that belong to the modern school. I studied the game on all sides and I always had an idea that I could hit a man and get away without a return blow. I practiced foot work, learned to get in and out, sidestep and duck in a manner contrary to the old established rules. I practiced the hook the most, because while in close it worked very well and invariably earned for me the decision.

"After my amateur days I went in for fighting for all it was worth, and you know the rest. Watson was a grand fellow, but he never would admit that a pupil could whip his instructor. But I made him cry quits just the same. He often remarked that he was glad that I did so on the first occasion of our meeting.

"'I think that had I given you a sound trouncing the day you came to me for your first lesson,' he told me, 'you would never have come back for more, and California would not have had the credit of producing a man to whip the mighty John L. Sullivan. There's nothing that takes the heart out of an ambitious boxer more than to get thrashed the first time he starts out.'

"I never admitted it downright to him that such might have been the case, but have often thought since that had I not done as well as I did at the time I might never have formed the idea of becoming a pugilist."

BEATING OF DEAD HEARTS.

Hearts of cold-blooded animals will beat for a comparatively long time after death or removal from the body (if kept cold and moist), because of powerful internal collections of nerves, known as ganglia, whose automatic impulses cause the regular contractions of the muscle, says St. Nicholas for April. Similar ganglia exist in man and other warm-blooded animals, but their action is less prolonged. Scientists have ascertained that a turtle's heart will beat after removal if put on a piece of glass, kept cool and moist and covered with a beli-jar. I believe it has been known to beat thirty-six or even forty-eight hours; twelve or fourteen hours is a common record.

THE AUSTRIAN SOCIETY.

While the Austrian government does not encourage emigration, it is part of its policy to render aid to emigrants from Austria-Hungary upon their arrival in this country. The closing of the Austro-Hungarian Home here about a year ago caused the government to send over Dr. F. Kaltenbrunn to see what steps had best be taken. On his recommendation the Austrian Society, an organization designed to aid and care for Austro-Hungarian immigrants, has established offices at No. 31-33 Broadway.

With the permission of the department of immigration the society will station an agent on Ellis Island, whose duty it will be to communicate with Austrian immigrants upon arrival. If necessary, agents of the society will accompany them to destination in New York and the vicinity and direct them to the homes awaiting them or boarding houses kept by responsible owners.

The Austrian Society will receive immigrants' money on deposit, and will aid such as should be delayed here pending assistance from distant relatives by supplying them with means to continue their journey. The most important service the society will render newcomers will be in finding satisfactory employment for them outside the larger cities, which are already over-crowded with immigrants. In this work the society looks for the active support of people of the different races of Autria-Hungary already settled in the United States.

Accidents come with distressing frequency on the farm. Cuts, bruises, stings, sprains. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil relieves the pain instantly. Never safe without it.

JUSTICE IS SCORED

Scathing Arraignment of Hooker By Bar Association Counsel.

In Executive Inquiry of Judge Hooker's Post-office Offenses.

Albany, N. Y., April 14.—Justice Warren B. Hooker, whose relations with postal affairs at Dunkirk and Fredonia, are the subject of an executive inquiry was scathingly arraigned by Frank B. Stevens, one of the counsels of the bar associations which are assisting in the investigation. Mr. Stevens who began his summing up yesterday completed his discussion of the constitutional phases of the case, arguing that the legislature had power to remove a justice for alleged acts of unfitness committeed before the judicial function was assumed. "I shall assume," continued Mr. Stevens, "that any man who will resort to the lowest vices of a ward politician is morally unfit to judge over his fellow man. I shall assume that any man who will defraud the United States government, who is capable of low deceit, conniving, robbing the government of the United States, who will instruct the youth of the nation in crime and fraud and commit acts which must be suppressed from public view, is morally unfit to sit on the bench."

Mr. Stevens cited the case of Frank P. Ball, who was appointed to a position at the Fredonia post office and drew salary amounting to upwards of $2,500 from the government without performing any service. "No man will stand up and justify this case," said the counsel. "If the Fredonia office had been broken open by a burglar at night, the loss to the government would be the same. In this case it was a breach of trust."

Taking up the cases of Maurice Hooker, the judge's nephew and the other persons appointed to the Fredonia postoffice at the request, it is alleged, of Hooker, Mr. Stevens asked:

"Can there be anything more shocking or more deplorable than six people on the payrolls of a postoffice, none of them performing any service?

"You find the postoffice at Fredonia debauched. You find the government defrauded. You find the youth of Fredonia instructed in crime by Maurice Hooker was taught upon the entrance of his life to participate in a friend. What do the teachers and pupils at the state normal school see? They see the nephew of a supreme court justice, by illegal means, by wrong means, by means which will not bear the light, get the government funds in his pocket. What is the use of the state maintaining normal schools, when they become nothing less than a school of thieves?"

DIES FROM RARE DISEASE

Harvey Olson Dies From Ailment Which Puzzles Doctors.

Harvey Olson, the 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Olson of 2920 West Third street, died this morning of a very rare disease, known as Addison's disease.

Dr. Orekson who treated the patient, says that it is the first case of the kind that has ever come under his notice, and some other physicians in the city who were questioned, stated that they had known of but one or two cases in their experience.

The disease is an inflammation of the mysterious little gland over the kidneys, the function of which is not known to the medical profession. The symptoms are an aenemic weakening of the entire system and the appearance of dark brown spots on the skin, which finally becomes completely discolored, turning almost black. The disease is not contagious, but no cure is known for it.

CONSPIRACY INDICTMENT

Againt Nan Patterson Dismissed at Request of State.

New York, April 14.—The indictment for conspiracy against Nan Patterson which charged her with conniving with J. Morgan Smith, and Mrs. Smith wrongfully to obtain money from Caesar Young, has been dismissed.

The indictment was dismissed at the request of Assistant District Attorney Rand who told the court that a mistake had been made in drawing up the indictment against Miss Nan Patterson and that it tended to prejudice her position in the capital case. In asking for the dismissal of the indictments against her, he reserved right to resubmit. Miss Patterson was then remanded back to the Tombs prison. The effect of the action will be to prevent her counsel from getting at the grand jury minutes which might have aided in her defense. Counsel for the Smiths demurred to the indictment against the Smiths declaring that the facts alleged did not constitute a crime.

WIFE TELLS HOW SHE KILLED HER HUSBAND.

Reading, Pa., April 14.—The application for a new trial by Samuel Greason, under sentence of death for the murder of John Edwards was heard in court today. Greason was convicted over three years ago on the testimony of Mrs. Kate Edwards, wife of the dead man. She testified that Greason assisted her to kill her husband. Both were convicted and senteneed to be hanged. Today the woman went on the stand and cooly told how she alone beat out her husband's brains and that she and her daughter then threw the body into a well. The court will decide the matter in a few days.

FUZZY WUZZY REBELS.

How a Man With Gun Exposed Fake Wild Man.

Mme. Morelli, the pretty little Frenchwoman who makes a half score of leopards, panthers and jaguars do things which nature never intended them to do, had finished her act and driven the snarling creatures through the narrow runway to their separate cages, fastening each one, as she thought, securely, says a writer in Outing. Two French clowns were filling in the time and making the audience of Coney Island pleasure seekers laugh by their antics with a performing dog, while the stage hands were bringing in the properties for the next trained animal act, when the proprietor came from behind the scenes and strolled, apparently unconcerned, to the back of the arena, where he could command a clear view of the performance, the audience and the cages. He said a few words to each of the trainers and keepers whom he passed, and the stranger, who knew the clock-like regularity with which each one of them went through his allotted duties, noticed an unwonted haste and suppressed excitement among them.

As he joined the proprietor the sound of hammering, mingled with the noise of the blatant brass band and the cries of the ballyhoo spielers for the other Dreamland attractions, which came in through the open windows, and he saw that Stevenson, the mild-eyed quiet man who is always on hand to rescue imperiled trainers and keepers when their own nerves, or unexpected revolt on the part of the animals, leads to a fight, was rapidly nailing boards over the ventilating spaces above the cages. Mme. Morelli, whip and training rod in hand, hurried from her dressing room to the runaway, and every keeper and trainer seemed to be loitering in the space between the leopard's den and the audience.

He looked at the proprietor inquiringly, but the little trickle of blood which ran down his cheek from under his cap answered the question he would have asked, an animal was loose and the proprietor had encountered it in his rounds. A crash of weird music from the band drowned the sound of a cracking whip and sharp commands which came from the runaway, and announced the appearance of Brandu, the snake charmer, in the exhibition cage, and the audience watched him play with a cobra, all unconscious that Franz, the jaguar, which a few minutes before had desisted from his attempt to tear the fair shoulders of Morelli only after a dozen blank cartridges had been fired in his face, was a gentleman-at-large in Dreamland. The proprietor gave a sigh of relief as the jaguar backed into his cage from the runaway snarling and striking at the little woman who forced him backward with the whip until she was able to slam the door and make him once more a prisoner. When she passed them on her way back to the dressing room her dress was torn, and her eyes were flashing from the excitement of the encounter and anger at the carelessness of the carpenter who had left a board loose at the top of the den.

"Of course, that might have been a serious thing for the jaguar and for my pocketbook," said the proprietor as three scratches in his head were being plastered up. "I couldn't afford to take any chances of an accident, and he would have been shot if he had attempted to come through a ventilator into the arena, but a trained animal like that is worth a goodish bit of money. He let me know he was loose by giving me this love pat when I was walking through the runway, and as Morelli is the only one who can do anything with him I sent for her. She can whip considerably more than her own weight in wild cats, and there was not the slightest danger to the audience, but not many men would have relished her task of going into the passage with the beast, loose on top of the cages." He negatived the press agent's suggestion to make a scare-head story of the escape for the papers, and suggested that they should go up and hear Mme. Morelli's account of it. She was sitting on the edge of her bed, mending a rip which the jaguar's sharp claws had made in her gown, and she shrugged her shoulders when the stranger inquired if she had been hurt.

"It was nothing," she said laughing. "He jumped at me from the top of a cage when I came in, but I beat him off and whipped him back into his cage. It was only the close quarters which made it bad, for I am used to fighting them." She was interrupted by a yapping and caterwauling in the doorway, and sprang on the bed, her face white with terror, as a small terrier and the menagerie cat rolled into the room in a clawing, biting mix-up. The terrier was raising a litter of puppies in the next room, and the cat had transformed the space back of Morelli's bed into a feline nursery, and a meeting of the two anxious mothers in the hall had led to trouble. Mme. Morelli always goes through her performance in an evening dress, and she stood on the bed, her long train gathered closely about her, trembling like a leaf, when the proprietor finally separated the combatants and restored peace.

"You wouldn't think that a woman who had just come from a fight with a 200-pound paguar, which could easily tear her to pieces, would be scared at a scrap between a toy terrier and a mongrel cat," said the proprietor, laughing, as he led the way to the cafe table. "But she makes a specialty of the larger species." This matter of specialties seems to run through every branch of the show business," said the press agent as they took their seats at the table. "I ran a dime museum in St. Louis a few years ago—in those days there was lots of money in it—and the freaks would never stand for any change in their billing. We used to have a fresh lot sent on by our New York agent every two weeks, and one Monday morning when I went down to look over the new arrivals I knew that he had been up against the demon Rum when he engaged such a tough-looking bunch. The alleged fat woman looked as if she was wasting away with consumption, and the bearded lady had a way of absentmindedly humming the popular airs in a bass voice which gave the whole snap away. There was one likely looking girl, and when I asked her what she was billed to be she was the web-footed lady and showed me her feet, which had little pieces of skin growing between the toes.

"I knew that wasn't good enough, so I told her she was mistaken; that she was a Circassian beauty, and I gave her a wig and the fixings and put her on the platform. But say, would you believe it? She was so mad and embarrassed by the change in her stunt that when the lecturer was calling attention to her blonde beauty she would blush until she looked like an Indian Princess, and every time she turned his back she would take off her shoes and wiggle her toes at the audience to show what she really was.

"It was up to us to get some real attraction to tide over the time until our agent should get sober and send us another bunch of freaks, so Merritt, who was my partner, and myself hunted up a big buck nigger and made a deal with him to go on as a 'Wild Man.' We ripped up a hair mattress and glued the contents onto him, and wired a couple of big tusks to his teeth, and with an iron collar around his neck and a log chain around his waist he was as good an imitation as was ever faked. We put him in a big cage which we had used the week before for a mangy old lion; one of the five hundred or so "Wallace the Untamables" which were touring the country, and Merritt taught him to howl like a steam calliope.

"We called him 'Fuzzy Wuzzy, the Terrible Man-Eating Cannibal,' which was a waste of words, but Merritt had language to burn. He had got hold of a phony $600-bill, and when he was giving his spiel about how Fuzzy Wuzzy was captured upon a desert island, where he was found chewing a human leg, and how he couldn't eat anything but raw meat, and was always trying to get at his keeper for desert, he would wave his phony 500 spot over his head and give it to 'em good.

"'Five hundred dollars, ladies and gents, I will give to any man who will remain for the short space of two minutes in the cage with Fuzzy Wuzzy! Five hundred dollars to any man who is brave enough to run the risk of letting this terrible man-eating cannibal get his hinder limbs about him, for then all would be lost and Fuzzy Wuzzy would fasten his terrible fangs in his victim's throat and suck his ber-lud.'

"Well, it was a good spiel, all right, all right, and when Merritt struck that part one of the supers would prod up old Fuzzy, who would rattle his chains and howl for fair, and the audience would get cold chills down their backs. We were playing to the S. R. O., and giving so many shows a day that Merritt pretty nearly lost his voice, and Fuzzy had been prodded so much that he had to take his meals standing up. We ran 'em through pretty fast, and one afternoon Merritt was just going to give the 'All out' signal, which cleared the exhibition hall for the next performance, when up steps a big, husky black roustabout from the levee and commences to strip off his coat.

"'Jes' a minit, bass,' says he. 'Ah reckon ah needs dat five hundred in mah bizness,' and Merritt looks at him in astonishment.

"'My deluded colored brother,' says he 'do you appreciate the fact that you are going to a certain and horrible death? If this terrible Fuzzy Wuzzy gets his hinder limbs about you he will suck your ber-lud.'

"'Ah doan reckon he'll git me, an' ah suttenly needs de money,' answers the coon, and continues to strip, and Merritt sizes him up and sees the finish of Fuzzy Wuzzy, who was shaking the bars and trying to get away from the super who was prodding him; but everybody thought he was trying to get at the coon to make a meal of him, and some of the women folks were getting hysterical. One of the boys had put me wise, and I broke through the crowd and called a halt in the proceedings.

"'Ladies and gentlemen,' says I. 'I didn't believe that a man existed who was foolhardy enough to be tempted to certain death by the lure of a paltry $500. But although this man is so reckless of his own life, I must insist that he get a permit from the mayor, relieving us of all responsibility, before we allow him to be torn limb from limb. Return tomorrow at 2 o'clock, and if this man's courage still keeps up, you will see before your shuddering eyes an encounter which will make the historical gladiatorial combats of ancient Rome pale into insignificance.' I could sling a few language myself those days, and the mayor was a friend of mine—or I thought he was—so I figured we could catch the suckers for an admission and then call it off, because he would refuse a permit.

"But he was onto the game, and he was one of those blame fools who thought of ancient Rome pals into insignificance.' with a big red seal on it which looks like a doctor's diploma, which says that Thomas Jefferson is allowed to go in and win our $500, and the next day the coon shows up smiling and ready, and I knew we had to make good somehow. I passed the word to Merritt to delay the game and make a last grand effort to throw a scare into the coon, and he put up a spiel to beat the band.

"'This terrible Fuzzy Wuzzy has none of the attributes of a human being,' says he. 'He lives upon raw meat and would prefer human flesh if he could get it. Observe the expression of ghoulish glee in his eyes as he regards the foolhardy man who will soon furnish him such a meal as he formerly enjoyed in his native jungle. He sleeps at night suspended from the top bars of his cage by his clow-like hands and feet, which will soon be tearing the flesh of this man who stands before you now, a picture of perfect health and strength. He speaks no intelligible language, but he utters howls and yells, which will be more terrible than ever before when he is sucking the warm heart's be-lud of the figure which you see before you for the last time in human shape.' Just then the super gives Fuzzy a prod and he howls like Balaam's he had a sense of humor, so he gives him not fenzed a bit.

"'It's a sad sight,' continues Merritt, 'to see a fine man in the prime of life, like our colored brother here, crushed into an unrecognizable mass by the terrible hinder limbs of this man-eating cannibal and then torn to shreds by his horrible fangs. The management of this highly moral and intellectual show will provide a funeral for the remains, if there are any, and now, ladies and gents, I call upon you to witness that we are not responsible for the terrible end which awaits this reckless man.'

"I had taken the precaution to button up the box office 'take' in my inside pocket, and while Merritt was making a bluff at looking for the key to the cage door I looked around to see that there was a free exit, for the coon was standing there swelling out his chest and grinning as if he had the $500 already in his jeans, and I knew he couldn't be bluffed out. Just then a typical antebellum Missourian, one of the kind that has to be shown, steps up in front. He was tanked up until his safety valve would have blown off if it hadn't been wired down, but he was pretty steady on his pins when he held onto the railing in front of the cage.

"'Professah,' says he, 'did I understand yo' all correctly to say that this yeah object in the cage has none of the attributes of the human race?'

"'Correct!' says Merritt, glad of an excuse to delay things. 'He is lower than the beasts of the field.

"'Well, he suttenly ain't much to look at,' says the Southerner, looking him over carefully. 'He won't eat like folks—he can't talk—an' he sleeps like a bat. I dunno why such a pusillanimous critter should cumber the yearth,' and with that he puts his hand to his hip and pulls out a forty-five from under the tails of his coat. Fuzzy takes one look at it, and it didn't need any prodding to make him holler, and he tries to tear off the false tusks.

"'Foh Gawd's sake, mistah, doan shoot!' he yens. 'Dat white mahn's been tellin' a passel ob lies about me until ah's suttain suah someting orter be done fer to git me. Ah can eat an' talk like any one, an' mos' ebery one knows me about yeah when ah ain't got dese yeah contriptions on.'

"'Shut up, you blame fool!' says Merritt. 'He won't shoot you.'

"'Mebbe he knows dat, mebbe you knows dat; but how does I know dat?' yells Fuzzy. 'Dat gun suttenly looks big to me.'

"About this time the other coon got wise and saw the five hundred vanishing, and the last I saw of Merritt he was trying to break a half-Nelson that the coon had got on him and dodge the rest of the crowd at the same time. I left St. Louis on a freight that night, wearing a few lumps where some stray bricks bats landed, and the next time I saw Merritt was in Chicago, and he was on crutches and had his head covered with plaster.'

"No thunderbolt dropped from the blue dome over the Dreamland tower, and the proprietor, with a childlike and bland smile on his face, motioned to the waiter to refill the glasses.

BIG THICKET OF TEXAS.

Where Bears and Other Wild Beasts Live Secure.

The Big Thicket of Texas, into which the Texas hosts of President Roosevelt are arranging to take their guest on a bear hunt during his coming visit to the Lone Star state, is the queerest streak of country in the way of thicket to be found anywhere in the Union. Although it lies in one of the most thickly settled parts of the state, it has no population save bears, wildcats, wolves and other wild beasts and odd-winged and creeping creatures, says the Buffalo Express.

The Big Thicket is from five to fifteen miles wide and seventy miles long. It extends from the Sabine river, the boundary being Texas and Louisiana, twelve miles north of Orange, to the Trinity river region, almost due west. It lies between the vast long-leaf pine belt of Texas and the loblolly or short-leaf pine region.

With the exception of scattered dwarfed pines, red oaks, gums and other varieties of trees which have succeeded in getting root room in the density of the thicket's prevailing undergrowth, and some of which have come to a size sufficient for a bear to climb, there is no timber in the big thicket. The black haw is found in its depths, and the wild peach and the wild plum are among the growths that provide sustenance to the sweets-loving bear.

The growth that gives distinctive character to the Big Thicket, and aided by wild grapevines, the rattan vine, the scrambling briars and other growths makes the fastness almost inaccessible to man, is a variety of oak that stands as thick almost as cane in a break and grows but little larger. Matted and woven among the close-standing ranks of these bamboo-like oaks are the vines and briars. The bottom of the thicket is soft and in the rainy season is covered in many places deep with water.

Hunters or others who venture into the thicket far enough to be beyond the hearing of companions on the outside do so at the risk of being lost. Native guides familiar with the intricacies of the great swamp build camps frequently far in the depths, generally on the shores of small lakes that abound there.

The only way the bear can be hunted successfully in the Big Thicket, plentiful as the game is, is with dogs trained to the chase. The dogs can make their way through the dense growths of the thicket with more facility than the lumbering bear can, and they soon bring bruin to bay.

The hunters know from the character of the barking of their dogs when that situation is come. They squeeze and cut their way to the spot where the bear has made his stand, sometimes with his back against a tree, sometimes in the tree. If against the tree, it is more than likely the hunters will find a dog or two lying dead among the briars, victims of the bear's rage. A rifle bullet usually ends the hunt.

Upon miles and miles of the Big Thicket's area no man has ever set foot. Ten feet in from either edge of the thicket a person is as completely lost to view as if the earth had opened and engulfed him.

During the Civil war the Big Thicket was the refuge of many deserters from the Confederate army. These were usually men who dwelt in the vicinity of the thicket. To capture them in their retreats was impossible, except by following those who carried food to them.

There were instances of deserters remaining hidden thus in the Big Thicket until the end of the war and many feuds resulted from the resentment deserters felt toward provost marshals or their assistants for their persistent efforts to hunt them down. Some of these animosities were kept up for years after the war, and families of both the men who were hunted and of the men who hunted them lost more than one innocent member before vengeance seemed to be satisfied.

One instance is cited of a man who was a conspicuous citizen of the locality where he lived, but who chose to shut himself up in the fastness of the Big Thicket rather than answer the call of his government and undergo the dangers and hardships of the camp and field. He was two years in hiding.

The provost marshal of the district was persistent in his efforts to capture this particular deserter and bring him to punishment, but without success. The war was no sooner over than the deserter came from his retreat in the thicket and at once set out to hunt down the man who had so long sought to do him harm. The quest found the man, with the result that, after escaping all the dangers of a soldier's life and enduring for years the hardships and anxieties of a fugitive in the depths of the Big Thicket, he was shot dead a few hours after he was free to come and go as he pleased.

There are many small bodies of water in the innermost depths of the Big Thicket, where that curious big bird, the water turkey, otherwise known as the snake bird, which swims and dives like a duck, although not web-footed, and has a long sinuous neck which, when it is swimming, gives it the appearance of a snake, abounds and rears its young.

At the eastern extremity of the thicket one of these lakes has connection with Sabine river in time of high water, and many years ago this connection must have been a navigable channel, for in that lake the rotten hulls of two schooners, one of which must have been a boat of seventy-five tons and the other one of forty tons, lie half imbedded in the soft bottom.

Just where these schooners were moored in that lake is not known, and their mission there can only be surmised. They were there seventy-five years ago, then in a state of good preservation.

It is supposed they came up the Sabine river from the Gulf of Mexico, with cargoes of negroes, obtained from some slave ship on the gulf or somewhere along the Atlantic coast. Texas was then part of Mexico, and the supposition is that the negroes were taken over into Louisiana, and sold there into slavery, the Sabine river being a safe channel for the carrying on of that traffic. Why the schooners were abandoned at their moorings in the lake is, of course, part of the mystery.

From the skeleton of one of them hangs a portion of a chain almost eaten up by rust. On the shore near by some other rusty links lie against the trunk of a tree. They are a continuation of the chain that moored the schooner to the tree when it was abandoned, the part of it that went around the tree now being at a foot or more beneath the surface of the trunk, the growth of many years having long ago covered it from sight.

The bears of the Big Thicket are said to be large and of a disposition calculated to stand little trifling. Jim Simpson, an Orange county bear-hunter, killed ten bears in one county's part of the thicket during the last year.

The wildcats that hold forth in the great waste are bigger than those in the open woods or prairie, according to native authority, and are inclined to be ugly and aggressive. Oliver Clark of Orange county killed the biggest ever known to have been brought from the swamp's depths.

The cat attacked him after he had thrown a lighted pine knot at it while it was stealing upon him at his camp in the thicket. Clark supposed the falling brand would frighten the beast away. Instead of doing that, it seemed to arouse the wildcat's fury and it leaped upon the hunter. It sank its fangs deep into Clark's left arm.

As it was gnashing away furiously at the arm, Clark drew his knife from his belt, and, thrusting it beneath his arm, plunged the blade into the cat's vitals and won the fight. It broke up his camp, though, for his arm was chewed nearly in two and he could not use it for a long time.

In the waters of the swamp fish of many varieties abound. During the summer the alligator, the moccasin snake, the rattler and other cheerful representatives of reptile and insect life disport themselves there. Taking it all in all, the Big Thicket is unique as a game cover and preserve for wild things.

MAN'S ABSURD CLOTHES.

I like to feel clean, and my great idea of clothes is that they should be clean and comfortable, as far as such a thing is possible in London. This, of course, excludes starch, writes George Bernard Shaw in "The World of Dress." I couldn't wear a thing which after having been made clean and sweet, is then filled with nasty white mud, ironed into a hard paste, and made altogether disgusting. To put such a garment on my person, wear it, move in it, perspire in it—horrible!

The shiny white tubes on the wrist, the shiny black cylinder on the head, the shiny white front to the shirt, the shiny black boot, the rain-pipe trouser leg, the japanned-zinc sleeve—that is your fashionably dressed man, looking like a cold blackleaded stove with asbestos fuel. The great tragedy of the average man's life is that nature refuses to conform to the cylindrical ideal, and when the marks of his knees and elbows begin to appear in his cylinders he is filled with shame.

RUSSIAN ROYALTY.

From Sergeant's "Catherine the Great": Catherine's husband, the Holstein-r, was a hibulous boor streaked with insanity; Catherine herself was a clever, coarse, jovial virago, absolutely lacking in moral sense; and from their wretched son Paul down to the present generation their descendants have partaken of their qualities in various blends. Such qualities, from no personal fault of their own, prevent the Holstein-Romanoffs from being either successful autocrats or good constitutional princes.

ASSESSMENT WAS ILLEGAL

C. A. Britts Need Not Pay For Cost of Sewer.

Judge Cant has filed with the clerk of district court his amended findings in the appeal case of Charles A. Britts against the assessment levied for paving, and for a sewer on Superior street.

The court holds that the assessment for the sewer is illegal for the reason that the improvement was not petitioned for when the request was made by the property owners for the pavement. The net result of the decision is that the court rules out the arbitrary 10 per cent assessment levied by the board of public works, the cost of the sewer and holds that the appellant pay for the actual expenses of the engineer in making the estimate, and the cost of the pavement. The amount assessed Mr. Britts for the sewer and which the court rules out as illegal is $116.88.

THE SENATOR WILL BE HERE

Moses E. Clapp Principal Speaker at Col. Graves Banquet.

Senator Moses E. Clapp will arrive in the city on the evening St. Paul train in response to an invitation to be present at the banquet to be given at the Commercial club this evening in honor of Col. C. H. Graves. He will be the principal speaker of the evening.

Among the local men who will respond to toasts will be J. B. Cotton, John Jenswold, Jr., Prof. K. A. Ostergren, J. J. Moe, William Lanegren and John Brandt. Dr. J. J. Eklund will act as toastmaster.

Music will be furnished by Flaaten's orchestra. The club diningroom has been artistically decorated for the occasion. Provision will be made for 200 diners at the tables. It is expected that the banquet will prove to be one of the most elaborate and memorable ones of the year for Duluth.

NO INFORMATION

Obtainable on Union Pacific Recapitulation Scheme.

New York, April 14.—It was impossible today to obtain either authoritative confirmation or denial of the report that the Union Pacific company is to take over the New York Central and the Chicago & Northwestern roads and that a recapitulation scheme involving the issue of bonds to the extent of $790,000,000 is to be carried. No official of either the Union Pacific or the New York Central would discuss the matter and banking houses allied with the two roads also were very reserved. Union Pacific stock was a leader in the market fluctuations, but its activity was said to be due to strength of Northern Securities stock rather than to the New York Central rumors.

The rise in the Northern Securities stock was caused by reports that the Northern Securities company would benefit by an increased issue of Great Northern. This was said today to be incorrect. Instead it was said that the plan is to give Great Northern stockholders, the Northern Securities being the principal stockholder in that company, a bonus in the shape of new stock in a corporation which will own and develop the Great Northern's properties. This plan it was figured out would give each share of Great Northern $100 in stock in the new company and would give each share one Northern Securities stock $29.86 in the new company's shares. Union Pacific through its holding of Northern Securities stock would receive a large block of the new shares under the plan if carried out.

GERMANY'S POLICY

In Morocco Made Known By Her Representatives.

Berlin, April 14.—Count Von Tattenbach-Ashold (who has been appointed temporary charge d'affaires of Germany in Morocco) has given the correspondent of the Iokal Anzeiger at Fez (where the count is arranging for a special German Moroccan treaty) a declaration of Germany's policy towards Morocco.

"It is not only Germany's right," the count says, "but also her immediate and undeniable duty to protect and develop her interests. While she energetically demands for the powers signatories at the conference held at Madrid in 1880 a frank recognition of the open door policy, Germany insists on the preservation of the sultan's sovereignty and the independence of Morocco, especially because both are mentioned vaguely in the Franco-British agreement and therefore permits legitimate doubt on this matter."

PAUL JONES' BODY FOUND

Long Search of Ambassador Porter Finally Ends With Success.

Paris, April 14.—The remarkable search which Ambassador Porter has conducted for the body of Paul Jones has been crowned with success by the discovery of the body and its identification today by the highest French medical experts as unquestionably that of the famous American admiral who founded the American navy. Ambassador Porter cabled to Washington tonight announcing the successful results of his long and difficult search. The body is in a good state of preservation, considering that interment took place over 100 years ago. The circumstances leading to the final discovery of the body are particularly interesting. Gen. Porter has conducted the search for the last five years, and when congress recently took no action, on the president's recommendation, for the expenses incident to the search, the ambassador continued the extensive labors at his own expense. A large force of workmen has been engaged night and day tunneling and cross-tunneling the old St. Louis cemetery. This constituted a huge operation, embracing nearly a block covered with buildings and requiring a system of subterranean mining.

THE OUTLOOK MORE HOPEFUL

For the Settlement of the Teamsters' Strike In Chicago.

Chicago, April 14.—A more hopeful outlook for the settlement of the Montgomery Ward teamsters and garment workers' strike developed today. Labor leaders and an attorney representing the Employing Tailors' association held a conference with Mayor Dunne, and as a result it was stated that Montgomery Ward & Co. were willing to take back the striking garment workers. The point upon which settlement would hinge was the basis upon which the garment workers would be taken back. President Cornelius P. Shap of the Teamsters' union, President Dold of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and President F. H. Rickett of the garment workers, represented the strikers in the conference. Attorney J. Isaacs spoke for the Employing Tailors' association. After the conference which was preliminary, Attorney Isaacs left to confer with the employers previous to returning again to the mayor.

"We are hopeful that the strike will end," said President Shay.

"Mr. Isaacs told Mayor Dunne that Montgomery Ward & Co. would take back the garment workers. Is that satisfactory to you?" he was asked.

"Well, they have not said how they would take them back and at what time. We will not again resume negotiations."

"I have hoped that a settlement will be reached in the strike. But beyond that I have nothing to say," declared Mayor Dunne after the conference.

"I will wait until the later conference today before I speak upon what decision has been reached in regard to the strike," said the mayor.

CITY BRIEFS

Lawyers' briefs. North Land Printery.

Mrs. Ella Green, giving St. Louis county as her place of residence, has instituted an action in district court for a divorce from Sanford J. Green on the grounds of desertion. She claims they were married at Rochester, Minn., Oct. 5, 1872, and that the desertion occurred in January, 1899. Mrs. Green gives her age as 54, and that of her husband as 57 years.

Deputy Sheriff Johnson returned to Duluth, from Hibbing, last evening, with fifteen of the special deputies that were sworn in by Sheriff Bates when he received a call to the seat of trouble at the mining locations, a few days ago. Sheriff Bates with his regular deputies, and enough special deputies to comprise a force of about fifty men, are still guarding the property of Porter Bros. at Hibbing.

The suit of the city against Mrs. Margaret Burns, as action involving a tax assessment, has been appealed from the verdict in district court to the state supreme court, by Mrs. Burns. Notice of the intention to appeal was filed yesterday by R. S. Powell, attorney for the appellant, and the customary bond required to perfect an appeal was waived by the city, represented by City Attorney Bert Fesler.

George Gamache has begun an action in district court against Rose Brazeau, to secure judgment for $845 alleged to be due in payment for cutting timber and furnishing camp supplies. Gamache claims that he fulfilled April 1, the terms of a contract made between himself and J. L. Brazeau, whom he then believed was personally interested in the transaction.

Nels Johnson has sued James Lindberg in district court to recover judgment for $333.96 with interest from April 26, 1899, on an alleged promissory note made in April, 1896, for the sum of $403 and to run one year at 5 per cent interest.

The annual dinner of the Minnesota society of New York city will be given April 27 in the Astor gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria in New York. Prominent speakers will be provided and a very happy occasion is looked for. Frank F. McIver, formerly of Duluth, is chairman of the banquet committee.

F. W. Paine, who resides near Tenth avenue east, between Superior street and London road, is breaking ground for an addition to his residence. He will also make some alterations, the whole costing in the neighborhood of $3,000.

Articles of incorporation of the Embarrass River Land and Investment company have been filed with the register of deeds by Jens Johnson, Knut B. Birkeland, Anders Sundheim of Minneapolis, and John Falkner of St. Paul. The company is capitalized at $50,000 and is to continue in business for twenty-five years. Its offices are at Minneapolis.

Rev. John C. Farles, pastor of Glen Avon Presbyterian church, will give a lecture on "China" this evening at the church. He will illustrate his talk with stereopticon views taken by himself in that country. He will appear in the costume of a Chinese gentleman. The lecture is free to all.

The production of "Damon and Pythias," which was given in Duluth a short time ago at the Lyceum, will be given at Hibbing, April 26 or 27, the exact date to be fixed later, for the benefit of the K. of P. lodge of that place.

County Auditor Halden received by express this morning a wolf pelt from Tower. The pelt was not accompanied by the certificate of the owner, which will probably come in a later mail. With warm weather coming on the auditor will not hold any of the pelts awaiting the arrival of the certificates, but will express them back to the owner as soon as the ears are punched.

SEASON IS OPEN

Great National Game Once More Resumes Its Sway.

Championship Races In Two Major Baseball Leagues Begin.

Once more the great national game is in full swing.

After two or three weeks' preliminary training the teams in the two big leagues are ready for the championship season, and today the war, the Standard Oil battle and the tariff will have to take care of themselves, while baseball resumes its hold on the average citizen.

The first games in the National league are played today, New York, Brooklyn, Cincinnati and St. Louis being the lucky cities. The American league will open its season tomorrow, when Chicago, Cleveland, Washington and Philadelphia will have an opportunity to see professional baseball once more.

It will be two or three weeks yet before the Duluth fans will see their first game, but that will not prevent them taking a keen interest in the big league races which are just commencing.

All the teams start on an equal basis. Last year's champions may become a bunch of "has beens" during the winter months, and some aggregation of youngsters may have been made ready to snatch the laurels. It is this feature of the game which makes the first few weeks of the season so interesting. Then is when the teams show the results of the long winter's work and planning on the part of the managers, and it is then that the "phenoms" are sprung, and either make good or sink out of sight.

All the last year stars are back in the game again this year, and such idols as Matthewson, McGinnity, Chesboro, Young, Dineen, Lajole, Wagner, Keeler, La Chance, Delhanty, and a host of others will once more assume their positions in the public eye.

The following is the list of the opening games in each league:

NATIONAL.

Boston at New York.
Philadelphia at Brooklyn.
Pittsburg at Cincinnati.
Chicago at St. Louis.

AMERICAN.

St. Louis at Chicago.
Detroit at Cleveland.
New York at Washington.
Boston at Philadelphia.

$32.90 to California.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway will sell tickets from St. Paul to San Francisco, Los Angeles, and many other points in California, March 1 to May 15, 1905, at the low rate of $32.90. This rate applies via Kansas City, and tickets will be good in Pullman tourist sleeper for Los Angeles that leaves St. Paul every Tuesday at 8:30 a. m., and runs through via C. M. & St. P. R'y and Santa Fe system—the Sunshine Route. Write W. B. Nixon, Northwestern Passenger Agent, St. Paul, for further particulars.

OCEAN STEAMSHIPS.

New York, April 14.—The steamer La Savole, from Havre, reported by wireless telegraph as having passed Nantucket shoals at 9:10 a. m. The La Savole will probably reach her dock at about 8 a. m. Saturday.

Arrived: Perugia, Naples.

DR. LUMMIS DEAD.

Appleton, Wis., April 14.—Dr. Henry Lummis, the oldest professor of the Lawrence university faculty, is dead at the age of 80 years. He had been ill with asthma for several months. Dr. Lummis was born in Port Elizabeth, N. J. In the spring of 1886 he was called to the chair of Greek language and literature at Lawrence university.

TO TAKE GRIEVANCE UNDER ADVISEMENT.

Boston, April 14.—William D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Street Railway Employes' union, returned to the international headquarters at Detroit today, after a conference in this city with state leaders of the Street Car Men's unions relative to a street railway strike in Wisconsin. The railroad in Wisconsin, with which the union has a dispute, is owned by Boston interests, and Mahon was also in conference with representatives of the railroad owners. It was said that the owners would take the grievances under advisement.

Transferred to St. Vincent.

William Fisher, deputy collector and inspector of the port of Duluth, has been transferred to the St. Paul district and has been appointed deputy collector and inspector at St. Vincent, Minn. He will leave for his new post tonight. Mr. Fisher, who is a brother of Postmaster Fisher, has been deputy collector of customs here since October, 1901, and is well known in the city.

SLY LITTLE "TOOTS."

Little "Toots," whose distressing experience with the "cylinders" was recently told in the Brooklyn Eagle Quills, has been heard from again. It may be remembered that "Toots," whose age may be half-past five or a quarter to six, had just moved with her parents from a house where she had a yard to play in, into an apartment in a row where there were numerous bay windows. She was sent out on an errand and got lost, explaining that she couldn't tell the house, as they all had "cylinders."

Now, "Toots" is usually a very good little girl, and her behavior in general is beyond reproach, but occasionally she forgets. One day her mamma was out and she was left in charge of her grandpa, who, in her hands, is like unto a roll of putty. Indeed, she does as she pleases when alone with him, and he comes pretty near doing as she pleases. On this occasion she had a little girl friend in to visit with her, and the two played merry mischief with everything in the flat, breaking a number of pretty ornaments and throwing the place into wild disorder. To cap the climax they filled the bathtub with water and held a regatta, using hair brushes, etc., for boats and dollies for crews. One of the dollies fell overboard and "Toots," in an attempted rescue, went in after her. Her grandpa fished her out and got dry clothing on her, after which she became most demure and well behaved. As the time for her mamma's return approached she got a bit nervous and diplomatically began "jollying" the old man. Finally, she sprung her little trap.

"Grandpa," she said, "would you tell mamma that I had been a very good little girl?"

"Now, how could I tell her that?" replied grandpa, "when you have been such a very naughty little girl?"

"That was not my question at all," said Miss "Toots." "I didn't ask you how could you; I asked you would you."

"Toots" is her mamma's steady chum, and though young, she is the best of company. Nearly every week her mamma takes her to a matinee. "Toots" likes vaudeville best, and is particularly pleased with rough and tumble song and dance acts. One day last week she was at a theater and when a well known negro comedian—the real article—appeared to do his turn, she was all attention. He twisted his mouth into all sorts of grotesque shapes and wound up with an acrobatic dance, turning several flipflaps. Coming down to the foolights, he asked earnestly, and "Toots" thought the question was directed to her:

"Is mah face red?"

"No, it's black," said "Toots," just as earnestly, and in entire innocence.

Of course the audience roared and the comedian joined in the laughter.

"I guess you all is right," he said.

A LESSON IN CURRANTS.

A private letter quoted in the Journal of Commerce states that the Greek government will repeal the currant law of 1896—another example of bounty legislation that has utterly failed of its purpose.

Currants are the chief export by which Greece pays interest upon its public and private debt held abroad. When currants are low it is hard times for everybody. Hence the law was framed that the government should buy every year a portion of the production, from 10 per cent of a scanty crop to 20 per cent of a heavy one, and use it up in wine-making or other purposes. It was hoped that prices might thus be kept up.

And they were for a time, with the natural result. Everybody plunged on currants, and production grew out of all proportion. This year the crop is an enormous one. The law was amended so that 35 per cent of it might be retained "just this once," but even this did not scare foreign buyers into paying the prices demanded. The government "Currant Bank" had only a few agencies, unable to handle promptly the greatly increased bulk of currants, delays were intolerable, and sellers had to pay 8 to 12 per cent to get cash for the two months' bills with which they were paid. As a result currants soon began selling well below the government's guarantee price of 13 drachmai per 1,000 pounds. The government has used up all the money borrowed for the purpose and has lost heavily upon its purchases.

BRITISH TRADE.

Sales in 1904 of all kinds of goods, $1,463,000,000; purchases, $2,683,203,673. The difference alone is over a billion dollars; this represents the interest on British investments abroad and the profits of the carrying trade.

Great Britain builds more ocean-going ships (1,405,000 tons in 1904) than all the rest of the world (1,075,000 tons).

Great Britain's output of ships declined only 2 per cent last year, that of the rest of the world 15 per cent.

The iron and steel product amounts annually to $800,000,000 a year.

Wool is dear, cotton cheap for 1905.

Britain's 1904 sources of wheat showed a great shifting from 1903. From the United States imports fell in one year from 45,000,000 bushels to 12,000,000. Argentina, Russia and British India gained about what we lost.

KNIFE CARRYING IN CUBA.

A party writing to the Post this morning mentions the knife-carrying habit so much in vogue in Cuba, and asks that we continue our campaign against it, says the Havana Post. We will continue the campaign against this vice until the proper notice has been taken of it, though this be years from now. All of the lower classes, with hardly an exception, carry murderous knives. If they cannot afford to buy a knife from a store, they find a piece of steel and sharpen it into a deadly weapon and carry it wrapped in a piece of paper about their clothes ready to use on the slightest occasion. The result of this is many murders, which would not occur under other circumstances. If the police were instructed to keep on the watch for knife carriers it would be but a very short time until the habit would become unpopular.

DANGERS OF CAR DUST.

The popular interest displayed in the subject of car sanitation and car ventilation by the boards of health of the larger cities has evoked some criticism of the railroad companies for not giving more attention to a matter of such vital interest to their passengers. The laboratory of the Marine hospital service has been investigating this subject for some time, says the Medical News. Dr. Walter Wyman, sugreon general of the Marine hospital service, says: "Just how much danger there is of contagion through vitiated air in the ordinary day coach now in use, or in the Pullman sleeping and palace cars, has not yet been refinitely determined, and the matter is still being investigated. Information collected points to the state of Texas as having been the pioneer in this movement, due doubtless to its excellent railroad commission. It is held that there is much danger to the passengers of contracting contagious diseases from the fine dust arising from the carpets and upholstery while the cars are in motion, and which imperfect ventilation compels the passengers to inhale."

MAY CATCH TROUT

Anglers Now at Liberty to Enjoy Their Favorite Sport.

Northern Minnesota Offers Unequalled Attractions to the Sportsman.

Once more the season has dawned for the angler and the lover of the woods and the streams.

Commencing tomorrow the sportsman is at liberty to cast for the speckled beauties in the icy streams in Lake and Cook counties, or in whatever other part of the state his fancy may lead him.

The brook trout season opens tomorrow, and it is lawful to catch them at any time until Sept. 1.

Duluth is within reach of some of the best trout fishing country on the continent. In Lake and Cook counties are found scores of good trout streams, considered to be among the best in the state. The Knife river and the Big and Little Stewart rivers with their many branches are favorite resorts, and in fact almost any of the streams along the north shore of the lake are natural resorts for brook trout. The Brule river, in Wisconsin, is also one of the old favorites.

The trout is the favorite fish of the angler. It possesses all of the gamey spirit of the bass, but it fights more scientifically than the bass. Early in the season is the time selected by the experienced sportsmen. Then there are no flies in the woods. The sun has not yet become warm enough to be uncomfortable, and the trout are ready to rise to almost any fly. It is for this reason that there is always an exodus of fishermen early in the season, and this year will be no exception to the rule. Tomorrow will probably see half a hundred Duluth fishermen leaving for the trout streams along the north shore, if only for a short trip to last until Monday morning.

The trout is the only food fish that can be taken at the present time. The season for bass and other fish which inhabit the streams and lakes in this part of the state will not open until May 30, and will last until the following March.

The Wisconsin season is the same for trout, but opens five days earlier for bass, muscalonge and pike.

DIVERSION OF RIVERS

Of International Character to Be Considered By Commission.

Washington, April 14.—The president has appointed a special commission to deal with the important questions which have arisen relative to the diversion and interference with the course of international rivers. This commission consists of Judge Penfield, solicitor for the state department; Special Assistant General M. C. Burith and Prof. F. H. Newell of the geological survey and has just had its first meeting.

All of the questions before the commission have formed the subject of extensive correspondence between the state department and the Dominion of Canada, as reported by Great Britain on the north. On the north the Milk river projects in Montana have alarmed the Canadians. Arising in the United States, this river flows into Canada and back again into Montana. The Canadians have been making large use of the waters on their side which has led to a project by the people of Montana to cut out the entire bend in the river on the Canadian side by a canal, the effect of which would be to completely deprive the Canadians of water.

The commission will have to deal with some entirely new questions of international law relative to riparian rights.

SCOTTISH COMMISSION

Recommends Division of Free Church Property.

London, April 14.—The report of the royal commission appointed to inquire into the Scottish churches dispute, recommends that the Free church should hand over to the United Free church all the property it cannot adequately administer. As it is admitted that the former can only utilize a small proportion of the churches and manses and money handed over by the recent decision of the courts, the recommendation, if accepted by the government, will mean the restoration of a large part of the property to the United Free church. Legislation will be necessary to give effect to the recommendation.

McAlpine Files Answer.

In the personal injury action of Ralph W. Fuller against John McAlpine of this city, which has been started in district court, Mr. McAlpine has filed his answer to the complaint. In it he admits that Fuller was injured on or about Feb. 10, 1905, while in his, McAlpine's employ, but claims he has no knowledge or inforamiton that would lead him to believe that Fuller was as severely injured or caused so much pain as the complaint alleges. Mr. McAlpine also denies that he was negligent in any way as charged and he asks that the action be dismissed and that Fuller stand the costs and disbursements.

MANAGER IS MISSING

Absence of A. Qually Involved In Suit Recently Brought.

Charging A. Qually, former manager, with concealing the books of account, and with getting out of the country with the intent to defraud his creditors, August Ekman of the firm of August Ekman & Co., has filed an answer to the recovery action brought against the concern by Noyes Bros. & Cutler.

Mr. Ekman admits that the goods mentioned in the complaint were purchased, but denies that they were to cost more than $1,221.10. He also denies any agreement made to pay Noyes Bros. & Cutler the sum of $1,581.52, for which the latter firm is suing.

Mr. Ekman alleges that before Qually left the house he concealed a portion of the records and account books and he, Ekman claims information and belief that the claim has been paid in full.

Noyes Bros. & Cutler will refuse the answer and have filed notice of a motion at special term of court, tomorrow, to have the same stricken out on the ground that it is a sham and frivolous, and that the firm take judgment for want of an answer.

H. B. Fryberger appears for Ekman and Reynolds & McClearn for Noyes Bros. & Cutler.

Accompanying the notice of motion in regard to the answer are the affidavits of salesmen who sold the goods to Ekman & Co. and who claim that it is their belief that the answer is merely given to dodge the responsibility of the alleged debt.

PRESIDENT'S TRAIN ON TIME.

Pueblo, Colo., April 14.—The special train bearing President Roosevelt and party passed Texline at 8:20 this morning on schedule time. The train was met at Emery Gap by Governor McDonald and party, who will accompany them to Colorado Springs. Arrangements have been completed for a big reception.

HANGED FOR MURDER.

Columbia, S. C., April 14.—Marion Parr, a young cotton mill operative who killed Clarence Shealy, a mill boy, was hanged here today. The execution of Parr was the first hanging of a white man in South Carolina in eleven years.

Everybody Goes to Gidding's for their Clothes

If only to see what the new styles are—for it is conceded by every well-dressed woman in Duluth or in this vicinity that "Gidding's" are the only correct and authentic styles! Not only are the styles better, newer and tastier, but their values are incomparable!

Tomorrow, Saturday, is a splendid day to test them. Shop around—look at the various offerings—then go to Gidding's and COMPARE! Compare styles! Compare fit! Compare workmanship—and then compare values. If you do you'll not wonder why everybody goes to Gidding's for their clothes. These are instances of our value-giving:

RUSSIAN DRESSES, mohair and serge, $5.00—pleated back and front, patent leather belt. Sizes 12 and 14—$6.75.

GIRLS' "PETER THOMPSON" DRESSES, $8.75—Emblem and band on sleeve, collar and shield trimmed with braid, red silk tie; of fine quality unfinished serge. Navy and brown. Sizes 12 and 14—$10.00.

EXTRA FINE "THOMPSON" AND "REGULATION" DRESSES, $12.50—for girls to 18. Of highest grade men's serge, full box pleated skirt, emblem on sleeve, white shield; embroidered at front; braided in white; red silk tie to match.

BARNARD-ETON and IRVING DRESSES FOR GIRLS, $15.00—Richly tailored, handsomely made throughout. The cloths are "mannish" serges, worsteds—in gray, tan, etc.—shepherd checks and novelty mixtures. Nothing like them can be seen in any other Duluth house.

HANDSOME "VASSAR" REEFERS for girls—tan, navy and brown—$5.75. Of fine quality cloth, lined throughout, emblem on sleeve. Match them if you can for less than $7.50.

BEAUTIFUL VASSAR COATS for bigger girls, 12 to 18—of English mixtures, coverts and plain cloths, $9.75. Tailored only such as Vassar coats can be tailored; fit beautifully. The new sleeve, the new lapels—has a beautiful hang.

Other high-class girls' Vassar and other novelty coats of imported materials—$12.50 to $22.50.

SPECIAL VALUES IN CHILDREN'S REEFERS TOMORROW—plain colors and mixtures—at $3.50.

AND SEVEN-EIGHTHS LENGTH COATS AT $5.50.

ANOTHER SHIPMENT OF OUR FAMOUS FRENCH MODEL COVERT COATS HAS JUST ARRIVED—they sell on sight—$15—and buyers tell us that in point of value they equal anything shown in Duluth at $25.00. Of fine light tan double and twist covert; collarless and inlaid with velvet at the neck. Strapped and tailored front and back; lined with Duchesse satin. It is cut on the famous French dip model and needs very little, if any, alterations to the average figure. Eighty of them, in the various styles, will be ready tomorrow at $15.00. All sizes for misses, 14, 16 and 18. For women, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42.

WE HAVE JUST RECEIVED AND WILL PLACE ON SALE TOMORROW (Saturday) ALSO—A SHIPMENT OF HIGH-CLASS TAN COVERT JACKETS AND BLACK BROADCLOTH JACKETS, with full tailored straps at front and back—made of fine double and twist covert cloth, collarless style, new sleeve—lined with a guaranteed satin. (We know of no coat with the style or snap of this one that would sell for less than $20.00—and more likely $22.50 or $25.00.) We will have them on sale tomorrow at $15.00. Black—or tan covert.

ALSO FORM-FITTING, CORSET-FITTING, "NATTY" JACKETS of tan covert cloth. Strapped and tailored back and front, collarless effect, satin lined: plain tailored or trimmed effects. Satin lined throughout. Value $16.50—at $12.50.

ALSO SEVERAL BROKEN LINES OF COVERT COATS—high-class, exclusive novelties that were $29.50 and $32.50 at $25.

And some that were $24.50 at $19.50.

FROM MONTE CARLO.

A Few Tales of Love, Misery and Money.

There is no place on earth where so many hundreds of thousands of people gather in the course of a year with the sole object of making money without earning it as at Monte Carlo. Little wonder, then, that most of the anecdotes which cluster round the gamblers' paradise on the tideless sea are more or less connected with the central idea of filthy lucre. In the old days when a Genoese noble owned Monaco, the plateau on which the Casino now stands was called, colloquially, "The Plain of the Robbers." Pirate vessels used to sally out thence and levy toll on all ships which ventured too close to the shore. The spot is still a plain of robbers. Moreover, it is still the passer-by who is robbed, and not the inhabitant. Nevertheless, it is invariably the passer-by who fondly imagines that he is going to come off best, and quit M. Blanc's territory richer than he entered it. Few have succeeded in this laudable resolve. "Mr. White," though deceased some time since, is as cute as ever. The proverb applies just as truly in the year of grace 1905 as it did when Mr. White was fired out of Hamburg and placidly reintrenched himself by the Mediterranean more firmly than ever: "Black loses, red loses; it is white which always gains."

The Casino, sharp as it is, has not always come off best in its endless duel with the smartest and most unscrupulous brains in Europe. M. Blanc's successors have learned various lessons by paying for them, more or less heavily. If they are unassailable today it is because their weak points have all been discovered and exploited by rogues in the past. Such a trifling detail, for instance, as the lighting of the gaming rooms tells its story.

Some years ago a gang of thieves contrived to get at the gas meter, and at a prearranged moment the light was turned off. For a few minutes the scene—or absence of scene—was indescribable. With one accord everyone grabbed the loose money on the tables, and in the confusion an immense proportion of it disappeared into the pockets of persons whose reputation might have been supposed to be blameless. Gas as an illuminant is no longer employed in M. Blanc's costly pleasure house. Electric light has taken its place. But inasmuch as the switches might conceivably be tampered with, enormous oil lamps, each with half a dozen separate burners, are suspended over every roulette table and trente-et-quarante board. To extinguish every lamp in the apartments simultaneously would be impassible. Like most of the Monte Carlo swindles, this one, once performed, can never be repeated.

Another fact the administration has learned by bitter experience is that money—hard coin and notes—is a better medium for playing than chips. When M. Blanc first inaugurated the Monte Carlo rooms he made it a rule that chips representing certain sums should be used at the tables for the sake of ease in reckoning. The player had to buy these chips at a bureau when he entered, and could redeem them when he departed. But, in practice, he did not always redeem them, for if he proposed to return next day it was hardly worth while. In this manner the chips gradually filtered into circulation outside the Casino, and were eventually accepted by shopkeepers throughout Monaco as readily as cash. After a few years M. Blanc decided to recall all his chips, of which there were now many thousands of dollars' worth in circulation.

The result of his announcement was startling. Twenty or thirty times the number of chips which had been issued were returned. M. Blanc was given some food for thought upon the subject of the astuteness of his friends, the humble Monegasques. He was a philosopher, however, and could afford to buy his knowledge. He smiled sadly and honored every one of the chips at its face value. But chips have never been used again and never will be.

The famous "roll" joke also dates from M. Blanc's day, and for obvious reasons will never occur again. It was customary at that time to do up twenty $10 gold pieces in a roll of paper, sealed at the end. Each roll, as it was called, was thus worth $200, and, as it was sealed with the administration's seal, it was taken to represent that stake, if placed on the table. An ingenious American perceived that here lay a flaw in the gaming system of which he might take advantage.

Appearing one day at the tables, he staked a roll on one of the even chances. He lost. Immediately he bought back his roll from the dealer, explaining that he had an inspiration that this particular roll would eventually bring him luck. As aberrations of this kind are not uncommon in any gambling resort, no particular notice was taken, and the roll was passed back to him in exchange for two $100 bills. He staked the roll again, and this time luck was in his favor and he won. The dealer promptly pushed over $200.

"But surely you pay whatever is staked?" protested the American. "I have staked the maximum—$2,000." And to prove his word he torc off the paper cover of the roll, revealing within a brass tube stuffed with bills. At first sight it would seem that such a flagrant piece of sheer impudence as this would never pass muster, and for some time there was much discussion over it.

But the scamp knew his man. The fetich that whatever is placed on the table (up to the maximum) must be accepted as a stake is so strong at Monte Carlo that the umpire actually ruled in the player's favor, and he received his $2,000. Rolls still obtain, it is true, but they must now be torn open slightly when put down on the cloth.

Jaggers, the Yorkshireman, who spent months studying the Monte Carlo roulette wheels with the aim of discovering whether they worked absolutely evenly, discovered that one of the wheels had a bias in favor of certain numbers. Starting with a large capital and several assistants, he staked accordingly, and is said to have cleared a net profit of $400,000 in a comparatively short period. The officials, dismayed at his success, made careful investigations, and finding his secret had the faulty wheel changed to a different table every day. Unaware of this Jaggers and his men continued to play on their old system and immediately dropped almost the whole of their winnings. Jaggers stopped in time, and, perceived how he had been outwitted, once again sat patiently to work to compile the results of games at every table, and from them discovered at which table his favorite wheel was placed every day. Starting afresh, he once more made immense gains.

The Casino officials now removed Jagger's wheel altogether, and the Yorkshireman, like the careful Englishman he was, finding his luck departing from him, had the sense to go home and enjoy the fruits of his time and trouble. Now it is quite impossible for anything of the sort to happen. It may here be mentioned that the wheels are not merely changed from table to table every twenty-four hours nowadays, but the small metal divisions between the holes are interchangeable also, so that the chance of irregularity or bias in a wheel is reduced to a minimum.

There is another story of Monte Carlo which the writer believes is not generally known, or if it is will bear retelling.

A certain well-known English sportsman is the hero of a smaller, but not less amusing Monte Carlo comedy. So far from having broken the bank, the bank had temporarily broken him, and in despair he wired home to a friend for a loan. Two days leter a letter arrived, and on tearing it open the first thing which fell out was a $20 bill.

Rejoicing at his friend's generosity our sportsman, without reading the inclosed letter, took the money to Ciro's, the famous restauranter's, and exchanged it. Immediately afterward he repaired to the Casino, and quickly succeeded, with his new-found capital in making a large haul at trente-et-quarante.

At last he left the tables with his pockets full of his winnings, and his first care was to celebrate the occasion with a bottle of Ciro's champagne. Ciro met him at the door of his establishment with a face the color of paper and an agonized flood of reproaches. The bill was the kind used on the stage. The friend, himself bankrupt, had sorrowfully jested at his would-be borrower's expense. However, Ciro got his money back, of course, and supposing that the whole affair was merely another of the pranks of the "mad Englishmen," he apologized for his doubts and agreed to taste the champagne. Had the course of luck ran different the adventure might have ended less amicably.

ENGLISH FIRESIDES.

Before the Reform Act of 1832 its electors based their title to vote at all on the fact that they possessed a fireside as a real going concern, says the London Spectator.

Without linking up the domestic fire with political rights, the English in their quiet way have always given the hearth a place close to their affections. In the last two centuries it was carried to a point at which effort and result almost parted company, as far as proportion is concerned, so elaborate was the equipment of the hearth.

As a rule, the big logs on the hearth, which was of brick or stone, in a bed of hot white ashes. Neither by day nor by night did the fire go out, and often it was placed in the middle of the room in an octagonal fence of iron or stone.

This is not our idea of a comfortable fireside. Nor can it be supposed for a moment that it was comfortable. Also it had not a "side"—its ill-regulated heat and smoke drifted in any direction in which the draught took it.

But the equipment of the hearth, which was also the cooking place, scarcely altered for hundreds of years, until King Coal came and banished it all, or changed it greatly for the worse, in many old farm-houses, in some cottages and in some manor houses the old kitchen fireside remains almost unaltered. In the last the big old kitchen has sometimes been converted into the servants' hall, where the equipment still remains, while a modern "working kitchen" has been added. From up the chimney hung an iron "rachet," toothed, and from this hung the big black pot. The fire was of wood, but often it rested on a low platform of iron bars, through which the ashes dropped.

Lord Tollemache's lamented death will remind many that the open fire in the great hall at Helmingham must have been burning oak logs for some three centuries. In Sussex, where the vast woods took the place that coal does now in industry, the first iron fire-backs and fire-dogs were made. It is about all that the iron-workers of that country did produce in the way of manufactured iron till they took to making cannon.

Now there is a complete change and return to very early patterns in nearly all new houses. The flat brick or stone hearth, the natural log fire, the dogs, and even the bellows, all are reintroduced, with a certain intentional roughness in the hall and dwelling-room and rather more finish in the reception-room.

MEXICO'S FINANCIAL RECORD.

The City of Mexico has been doing business for about 380 years, says Modern Mexico. There is probably no capital in the civilized world that during the same period has been the center of more wars of conquest, or revolution, and yet, through all the troublesome days of these centuries, this city has maintained its financial reputation free from blemish. Kings have come and gone, viceroy has succeeded viceroy, emperors have flourished for a brief regime, and rival factions have striven for the presidency, loans have been forced by one general government, to be repudiated by the next, bonds were issued during the French occupancy that the republic would not assume, but during all the strife the ancient capital of the Aztecs cherished its financial integrity as its choicest jewel, and today rejoices in the record that not onece in all its long history has a debt been repudiated.

SALOON ON ISLAND

Brings Up the Vexed Question of the State Boundaries.

Little Strip of Sand Causes Authorities Much Worry.

Because the little strip of sand bar in the St. Louis river opposite Fond du Lac may lie either in Wisconsin or in Minnesota, M. H. Johnson, a saloonkeeper has been able to defy the authorities and is now operating a saloon there, much to the disguest of the people of Fond du Lac.

At the request of the citizens of Fond du Lac, Chief Troyer investigated the case, hoping to be able to arrest Johnson for running a saloon within the city limits without a license, but after looking over all the plats and maps he can find, he has decided that the Duluth police department has no jurisdiction over the case.

Johnson claims the island he occupies lies in Wisconsin and he has a license to run a saloon from the town of South Range in Wisconsin, and also a government license.

Johnson formerly ran a saloon on the big island which was part of the Peterson estate. Pressure was brought to bear, however, and the estate forced him to leave. He went to another small island adjoining it, which like the big island, as in Wisconsin territory. The Peterson estate laid claim to this island through riparian rights, and establishing the claim drove Johnson away once more. Now he has established himself on a little sandbar which has but recently been formed in the river. The island has been formed since the last government maps were made, and there is a serious doubt as to whether it lies in Wisconsin or Minnesota territory. Some of the residents of Fond du Lac claim it is in Minnesota territory, but the chief of police and Assistant City Attorney McKeon have thoroughly investigated the case, and they are both satisfied that it is in Wisconsin, and that they would be unable to convict Johnson if he were arrested. It might also leave the city open to damages for false arrest.

There is another way in which he can be reached, however, and the police will probably take that method. Johnson is a squatter on government land, as the island is government property, and it may be possible to reach him through the United States commissioner.

The location of the saloon immediately opposite Fond du Lac is a source of serious annoyance to the people of that village. They claim it encourages the disorderly element to seek the pleasant little summer resort on Sundays and holidays.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Michigan Mine Strikers Must Work or Leave the Property.

Calumet—All the trammers were paid off by the Wolverine Mining company Wednesday. Accompanying the pay checks was a notice from Superintendent Smith, that unless they reported for duty at once they would be compelled to leave the property. Many strikers occupy the company's houses and trouble may result if an attempt is made to eject them. The miners reported for duty Wednesday, as for several days past, but did not go underground owing to the threats of the trammers. Superintendent Parnall refuses to abolish the contract system under any circumstances.

Menominee—The Menominee river, near the twin cities, is the highest it has been in nine years. Some of the farms close to the river are under water and some damage may be done by the water and the ice.

A monster bullfrog, caught in the marshes at Little Suamico, Wis., has been given to the new Spies museum at Menominee. The frog measures fifteen inches from the top of its head to the tip of its toes.

Escanaba—While cleaning clothes with gasoline, a domestic set fire to the home of M. K. Bissel, at 401 Michigan avenue, at Escanaba, and narrowly escaped being seriously burned. The fire was confined to the rear of the dwelling.

The section men on the Northwestern railway have received a raise in wages to $1.40 per day to date from April 1. The men are greatly pleased at the action of the company, as no demand for an increase had been made by them.

Ironwood—In Ironwood they have an ordinance providing a fine of $50 for using profane or indecent language within the city limits. The officers are enforcing the law and a number of arrests for violations have been made recently, mostly of boys.

Gladstone—Navigation at Gladstone will open this week. The busiest season in years is expected by Soo Line officials. There are 1,500,000 bushels of grain, mostly oats, in the elevator and yards, and the flour shed is full. From the lower lake ports, there is much freight to come up.

Delf—The Muskegon Paper company is building a mill plant at Delf, on the Carp river, in Mackinac county, for the purpose of preparing pulpwood for shipment to its manufactory at Muskegon. The company has been logging on the Carp for the past five years. It has large timber limits west of Ozark and Kenneth, and probably from three to four million feet of hemlock logs already banked in Carp river.

Sault Ste. Marie—After being confined to the Delta county jail for over four weeks, Oscar Westermark, who became insane while employed in a lumber camp near Rapid river, has been turned over to Edward G. Jones, immigration agent at Sault Ste. Marie. The man will be taken to Boston, where he will be turned over to the steamship officials, who will be forced to return him to his home in Sweden. During the weeks that Westermark was confined at the jail he was raving constantly and proved a great care.

WILLIAMS ARRAIGNED

For Murder of John Keller—Case Continued to April 24.

St. Paul, April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Williams was arraigned in police court for the murder of John Keller this morning, accompanied by James Cormican. Reading of the complaint was waived, and Williams asked for a preliminary hearing, H. O. Hanft of the county attorney's office, said that the grand jury would probably take up the case at once, and asked for a continuance of ten days, which was granted. Williams will be brought to court again, April 24.

Mrs. Keller, who was shot by Williams Wednesday night at the time her son John was fatally wounded, is reported to be resting easily at the city hospital. Her condition is favorable and gives the physicians hopes of her ultimate recovery.

St. Paul, Minn., April 14.—William Williams, 28 years old, who shot and killed John Keller, 16 years old, and wounded his mother, Mrs. John Keller, was arrested in 1900 for shooting an Italian at Hibbing, Minn. The Italian was shot in the arm and recovered, while Williams was sent to the state reformatory where he spent a year and a half.

Williams is pronounced as a degenerate by two St. Paul alienists and not insane. Sexual perversion is given as the cause of the crime. The shooting followed Mrs. Keller's refusal to let the boy go with Williams.

BABE WAKES FAMILY

And Saves Four Persons From Being Asphyxiated.

Bemidji, Minn., April 14.—The inmates of the J. F. Essler residence on Minnesota avenue were yesterday morning saved from death by asphyxiation by the restlessness of the 4-months'-old baby girl of Mr. and Mrs. Essler. The baby was sleeping with her parents and about 6 o'clock aroused Mr. and Mrs. Essler, who awoke to find their sleeping apartment, as well as the entire house, full of coal gas. As a result, Mrs. Essler and Miss Anna Jacobson, who rooms at the residence, are in bed, and the other inmates of the house, Mr. Essler and Miss Bessie Debvig, a servant, are quite ill. The child escaped the fumes of the gas, probably due to its being covered up under the bed clothing.

A self-feeding coal stove in the front room of the building caused the gas.

CONTRACTS AWARDED

Alex Sang and W. H. Kiltin Will Lay Duluth Sidewalks.

At a meeting of the board of public works held this morning, the contracts for the tile and plank sidewalks to be constructed during the year were let.

W. H. Kiltin secured the contract for the plank sidewalks on a basis of $21.50 per thousand for the district west of Twelfth avenue west, and $22 per thousand for the remainder of the city.

The contract for the tile and cement sidewalks went to Alexander Sang, who bid 17 cents per square foot for the work.

LAKESIDERS WILL MEET

Club Is Revised After An Interval of Three Months.

For the purpose of talking over certain improvements that are desired in the street railway service, the improvement of London road, and the abolishment of unsightly advertising signs, the Lakeside club will hold its regular spring meeting tomorrow evening in the Lester Park M. E. church, on Fifty-fourth avenue east and Grand avenue.

It is several months since the last meeting of the club was held, but it has been called together again for tomorrow evening to discuss certain questions on which concerted action of the Lakeside people is desired.

Previous to the business meeting there will be a program of music and speeches, and the ladies are given a special invitation to attend.

SENTENCE IS SUSPENDED

Mrs. Nation and Followers Found Guilty of Destroying Property.

Wichita, Kas., April 14.—In the district court today Carrie Nation, Myra Mcenry and Mrs. Lucy Wilhoit were found guilty of destroying property and sentenced by Judge Wilson. Mrs. Nation was fined $250 and given four months in jail; Mrs. Mcenry two months and a fine of $150 and Mrs. Wilhoit twenty-five days in jail and a fine of $150. Sentence was suspended pending good behavior. The offense was committed Sept. 10 last, when the women broke the windows of a wholesale liquor house. The women voluntarily surrendered some time ago.

THE DIVIDEND WILL BE SMALL

Coe Commission Company Owes $326,628, With Assets, $75,312.

Minneapolis, April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first definite figures as to the failure of the Coe Commission company, G. H. Hammond's bucket shop concern, were made public today in the bankruptcy schedules filed in the federal court by the attorney of the company. They show total liabilities of $326,628, and total assets of $75,312. The latter are considered likely to shrink, however, and after the expenses of administration are paid the dividend to the creditors will be small. The largest item in the list of liabilities is $289,288, due to traders. The creditors will meet in about ten days to elect a trustee.

MAY REMOVE CENSORSHIP.

St. Petersburg, April 14.—The press commission has recommended the removal of the censorship from cartoons and the debates of zemstvos and other legal organizations.

FRIENDS OF HARGIS GET ON JURY

Lexington, Ky., April 14.—The contention among attorneys in the Hargis case over the retention on the jury of R. W. Bacon, who made the sensational statement late yesterday, that he had apprised the attorneys for the defense that he was a friend of Hargis and also sent the name to them of another man, who was also friendly to Hargis was resumed today and resulted in heated debates which frequently called for interference by the court. As the state had exhausted the challenges the defense insisted on Bacon remaining on the panel, holding that the defense should be made to abide by its own mistakes. The court took the lawyers into a room and secretly discussed the matter, declaring that he would announce his decision at the end of the conference, as to Bacon's retention on the jury.

ACCIDENT ON PRESIDENT'S YACHT

Norfolk, Va., April 14.—The Morgan line setamer El Cid passed in the Virginia capes today towing the president's yacht Sylph, aboard of which an explosion is reported to have occurred and two men are said to have been scalded.

The El Cid towed the Sylph into Hampton Roads, and Admiral Harrington, commanding the Norfolk navy yards, ordered a naval tug to proceed at once to tow the yacht to Norfolk. The Sylph was, at the time of the accident, on her way to her regular station at Washington, from Florida, where she recently had aboard Mrs. Roosevelt and her children. Mrs. Roosevelt and party, however, left the Sylph at Jacksonville and proceeded to Washington some days ago. The Sylph, upon sighting the El Cid at sea, gave signals of distress, and the Morgan liner immediately came to her aid and towed her into the harbor.

GAME FIGHT

For Life By a Man 95 Years Old.

New York, April 14.—At 95 years old, Nicholas Ruhlman of Brooklyn made a gallant fight to live. He directed a midnight race to a hospital and underwent a radical surgical operation under the electric lights. He was recovering from it when he succumbed to heart disease. Ruhlman became ill on Saturday at midnight and his physician told him he should prepare for the end.

"Can't anything cure it?" asked Ruhlmon.

"A most radical operation, which would kill a younger man," replied the physician, "and it will have to be done at once."

"How soon must you operate?"

"In an hour," replied the doctor, "or you'll be a dead man."

"I'm ready."

He rallied, but Wednesday his heart failed.

PLAYS MARTYR IN VIRGINIA

Teddy, Jr., Saves Several Girls From School Faculty's Wrath.

Roanoke, Va., April 13.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., has been practicing chivalry in the Old Dominion, while his distinguished father has been chasing wolves and other four-footed denizens of the Southwest. To secure the pardon of Stonewall Jackson Institute girls caught in a campus flirtation with him and his chums and sentenced by their principal to imprisonment in their rooms for a week, the son of the president of the United States humiliated himself by standing in a corner with his face to the walls, while a dancing party, composed of young folk, was in progress.

"Teddy, Jr," has been visiting at a colonial home in Abingdon, and went for a stroll Sunday with his companions, sons of Douglas Robinson of New York, and Dan Triggs, Jr., of Abingdon, respectively. A bevy of pretty girls from the institute also were enjoying the spring sunshine, and the two parties just happened to meet far out on the campus.

The girls really were frightened, for there was no chaperon at hand, and one of the direct offenses in the calendar of Stonewall Jackson Institute is to talk to young men under such circumstances. Young Trigg knew the girls and introduced his companions, and the prying eyes of a horrid member of the faculty peeping from an institute window took it all in.

What under military law would have been called a drumhead court-martial was convened at the institute as soon as the girls who had been talking to the son of the president of the United States returned from their stroll.

"Really, we were awfully frightened, Miss Hunt," said one of the girls to the principal, "and we asked them please to pass on or they would get us into trouble."

But another culprit, with downcast eyes, who had been poking the toe of her slipper into the carpet, finally mustered up courage enough to plead guilty to having had some fun.

Then sentence was passed. The next night Miss Kate Hunt, the principal, attended the party given by young "Teddy's" hostess, and inquired of the latter what punishment ought to be meted out to the scamps who had flirted with her girls.

"We were to blame," said "Teddy," "and if you'll release the girls I'll take any punishment you say."

And when Miss Hunt agreed to the proposition the three boys took their sentence and stood in a corner for thirty minutes.

CORDIAL INVITATION
ADDRESSED TO WORKING GIRLS

Miss Barrows Tells How Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Helps Working Girls

Girls who work are particularly susceptible to female disorders, especially those who are obliged to stand on their feet from morning until night in stores or factories.

Day in and day out the girl toils, and she is often the bread-winner of the family. Whether she is sick or well, whether it rains or shines, she must get to her place of employment, perform the duties exacted of her—smile and be agreeable.

Among this class the symptoms of female diseases are early manifest by weak and aching backs, pain in the lower limbs and lower part of the stomach. In consequence of frequent wetting of the feet, monthly periods become painful and irregular, and frequently there are faint and dizzy spells, with loss of appetite, until life is a burden. All of these symptoms point to a derangement of the female organism which can be easily and promptly cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Abby F. Barrows, Nelsonville, Athens Co., Ohio, tells what this great medicine did for her. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I feel it my duty to tell you the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier have done for me. Before I took them I was very nervous, had dull headaches, pains in back, and monthlies were irregular, I had been to several doctors, and they did me no good.

"Your medicine has made me well and strong. I can do most any kind of work without complaint, and my periods are all right.

"I am in better health than I ever was, and I know it is all due to your remedies. I recommend your advice and medicine to all who suffer."

It is to such girls that Mrs. Pinkham holds out a helping hand and extends a cordial invitation to correspond with her. Her long record of success in treating woman's ills makes her letters of advice of untold value to every ailing working girl, and from her wide experience and skill she quickly points the way to health. Her advice is free, and all letters are held by her in the strictest confidence. Address, Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

RUSH FOR ALASKA

Crowds of Men and Women Already Gather at Seattle.

Promising Stories of Rich Gold Deposits at Tanana.

Seattle, April 14.—Attracted by the strange fascination for Arctic adventure known as "the lure of the North," crowds of men and women have already begun to gather at Seattle, to prepare for the annual summer rush to Alaska. While it is still nearly two months before the ice will be out of the Bering sea so as to permit of ocean navigation, the drifting crowds of adventurers who become annually afflicted with "Alaskaitis" are already assembling in Seattle, collecting their "outfits" for the summer's work of mining, trading, prospecting or other adventure, and casting about for steamship reservations for themselves and their impediments.

Fashions in Alaska stampedes are as changeable as fashions in summer bonnets, varying from season to season with the reports of recent discoveries, the development of transportation lines and the contagion of adventure in fields new and unexplored. First, it was the Klondike stampede, over the snow-bound White pass, with its almost superhuman trials and difficulties; then it was the Copper River country, where, in the summer of 1898, hundreds of prospectors faced starvation and suffered the miseries of hunger, isolation and scurvy; then it was the Nome country, where the poorest prospector might find a small fortune in the placers on the open beach; then it was, in turn, the Kouguk country, Solomon river, Candle creek and the bleak and desolate coats of Siberia. This season all attention is turned toward the Tanana country, from which come tales of innumerable of the wonderful riches of placer gold discoveries. Some of these are on or near the coast, some are on streams which are navigable and can be reached by small boats, while others are well toward the interior, to be reached only over lonely trails, so a trip to each, with an outfit for a season's work or adventure, requires its special preparation and equipment.

The Tanana is not a new discovery among the gold fields of Alaska, but the recent developments in several directions combine to show that it presents a large field of low grade placer deposits, with occasional rich streaks of gold which offer alluring temptations to the old prospector as well as to the "get-rich-quick" novice. So alluring are these stories that many of the more adventurous of the tribe of "mushers," too impatient to wait for the season of water navigation, have already set out for the district via the overland trails, though such a trip involves a land journey of 430 miles if the traveler goes by way of Valdez, or of 1,100 if he goes by way of White Horse and Dawson, the latter route possessing the advantage of being over a broken road for nearly half the distance.

But the more patient ones, knowing that little prospecting or mining can be done until June or July, prefer to await the departure of ocean steamships for St. Michaels, whence they can go by river steamboats up the Yukon and Tanana rivers to Fairbanks, the metropolis of the district. That this travel and that to the older and more thoroughly exploited gold fields of the Seward peninsula will be enormous is evidenced by the fact that already the sailing dates have been announed of twelve large ocean-going steamships, each with a capacity for carrying from 110 to 700 passengers and from 500 to 5,000 tons of cargo. This is but the beginning of the fleet, since the earliest vessels to sail will not leave Seattle much before June 1, and steamship companies are combing the brokers' offices of the coast for additional vessels to be placed in this service for the summer. In order that they may join in skimming the cream of this very profitable traffic. The voyage from Seattle to Nome or St. Michaels requires but from nine to twelve days or from twenty to twenty-eight days for the round trip, but the fare is $75 and $100 for the single trip, an dthe uniform rate on freight cargo $15 a ton, or three times as great as that between Seattle and Manila.

In shipping parlance this fleet of vessels is known as the "Nome fleet." It is made up of some of the finest ocean-going steamships on the coast, but in seasons when the rush is large and cargo traffic heavy a number of poorer craft are pressed into the trade to carry the overflow business which cannot be accommodated by the regulare Nome liners. By the time all of the sailings have been announced the fleet will consist of from twenty-five to thirty steam sailing vessels, some of which will make four or five round trips during the season of open navigation, which extends from June 1 to Oct. 15.

The sailings which have already been announced and the capacity of each vessel in passenger and cargo are as follows: Steamship Ohio, Frank Waterhouse & Co., 700 passengers, 2,500 tons, June 5; steamship Oregon, White Star Steamship company, 500 passengers, 1,300 tons, June 1; steamship Senator, Pacific Coast Steamship company, 456 passengers, 1,000 tons, June 1; steamship Garonne, 600 passengers, 1,500 tons, June 3; steamship Tacoma, Northwestern Steamship company, 475 passengers, 2,500 tons, June 6; steamship Valencia, Pacific Coast Steamship company, 275 passengers, 1,000 tons, June 3; steamship Olympia, Northwestern Steamship company, 450 passengers, 3,000 tons, June 1; steamship Tampico, Globe Navigation company, freight only, 3,000 tons, June 1; steamship Lyra, Frank Waterhouse & Co., freight only, 5,000 tons, June 10; steamship Victoria, Northwestern Steamship company, 600 passengers, 3,500 tons, June 4; steamship Corwin, L. H. Gray & Co., 110 passengers and 300 tons, May 15; steamship Eureka, Globe Navigation company, freight only, 3,000 tons, June 1.

This is not by any means the entire Nome fleet, and other sailings will be announced from time to time between now and May 15, or later in case the travel and business developed renders the addition of more vessels necessary. The Northern Commercial company, which operates heavily in the Nome country, has secured contracts from the government to carry mail to Nome on ten trips from Seattle, and as many more from San Francisco, but its sailings have not been announced. The Alaska Commercial company, also heavily interested, both in the Nome country and in the country tributary to the Yukon and Tanana rivers, is in the market for a steamship to replace the St. Paul, which it has operated for several seasons, but which it sold a few months ago. It may place its steamship Portland on the Nome run, and the Alaska Pacific Navigation company will in all probability add its steamship Jeanie, a well-known Nome liner of preceding seasons.

As noted in the foregoing list the first sailing will be the steamship Corwin, on May 15. The experience of seasons gone by has demonstrated that the ice seldom gets out of the Bering sea before June 10, and that steamships trying to navigate that body of water earlier than that date risk becoming icebound and drifting helplessly for days, even weeks, before being released. The Jeanie and the Portland were one season locked in the ice for nearly thirty days. The steamship Ohio, two years ago, drifted helplessly for several days a prisoner among great floes of ice. But the owners of the Corwin are venturesome, and their daring in seeking to crowd their way through the floes ahead of the rest of the fleet has enabled them to be the first to reach Nome in 1903, and again in 1904. They hope to win this distinction again in 1905.

From St. Michaels, near the mouth of the Yukon river, passengers and cargo for the Tanana country are carried in river steamboats up the Yukon and Tanana rivers, and steamboating on the Yukon and its tributaries during the summer season of open navigation is beginning to resemble that on the Mississippi river in its palmiest days. The largest fleet of boats on the Yukon and its tributaries are those of the Northern Commercial company, the North American Transportation and Trading company and the White Pass and Yukon route. The Yukon river alone is navigable for a distance of 2,000 miles from its mouth, while a number of its more important tributaries add several hundred miles of routes for light draft steam vessels.

The mission of the passengers which these boats carry is to mine or to search for gold, or to supply, equip, accommodate or entertain those who are engaged in those occupations. There is a sprinkling of missionaries, hunters, explorers and officials and agents of the government, but the great magnet of Alaska is her gold deposits and it is in response to the attractions of that great magnet that these thousands of people rush into the district each spring, only to return again at the end of the mining and prospecting season. Statistics compiled in Seattle show that from 5,000 to 10,000 passengers are carried from this city to Alaska each summer, and that nearly as many return again at the close of the season to spend the winter in "the states," many of them bringing with them "fat pokes" of gold to reward them for their unusual efforts, and to attract other hundreds to follow them another summer into the frozen land of golden treasure. The annual output of gold in Alaska now exceeds $8,000,000, and two-thirds of this comes from the Seward peniusula which can only be reached during the short summer season, except by a 1,500-mile journey by dog team over the winter trail. For several years the Nome region has held first place among the gold-producing districts, but it is now freely predicted that the Tanana will rival it during the coming summer and surpass it another year. The gradual decline of the gold production of the Klondike on the Canadian side from a production of $25,000,000 a year to less than $10,000,000 last year has caused many former Klondikers to turn their attention to the American gold fields, or to strike out into the unexplored portions of Alaska in search of new placer finds to work and conquer.

DRUNKEN CHILDREN

In the Schools, Says a Superintendent.

Wilmington, Del., April 13.—"I can prove every word I said in reference to children coming into school when intoxicated, but publication at this time would defeat the object of the inquiry which I have started," declared Superintendent of Public Schools George W. Twitmeyer.

The superintendent added that he had heard of more than one case of the kind. He declared that if these children received liquor from their parents, the board should know it, and if they received liquor from someone else their parents should know it. Until this investigation is completed, however, he will say nothing.

Made in the Golden Sunlight

It is conceded by the highest authorities that the soda cracker contains the life-giving elements of wheat in the best proportions.

This being so, then Uneeda Biscuit must at once take first place as the food of the world—a soda cracker, but such a soda cracker! Made by exact science in sunny bakeries so light, bright and clean, that they are a revelation. The flour is tested; the purity of the water is absolutely assured; the very air is filtered,—why even the temperature and moisture of the atmosphere is accurately regulated. The sponge is kneaded by polished paddles, not by hand. Indeed, Uneeda Biscuit are only touched once, and then by a pretty girl, from the time the flour leaves the bag until the beautiful package is placed on your table.

You ask why all this work, all this care in the making of a soda cracker? Because the soda cracker is the best of all food and Uneeda Biscuit is the most wonderful of all soda crackers. And with all of it the price is only 5¢ a package.

ANASTASIE IS GAY

Again Angers Kaiser By Neglecting to Call on Him.

Gossip Has Made Free With Her Royal Highness.

New York, April 14.—A cable to the World from Cannes says: Fresh trouble has arisen between the kaiser and the Grand Duchess Anastasie of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, mother of his son's fiancee, the Grand Duchess Cecile. The kaiser expected Princess Anastasie to pay him the compliment of meeting him at Naples, as he couldn't call at the French Riviera port, but the grand duchess excused herself on the ground that her health demanded rest and quiet.

She sent a special messenger to Naples with a letter for the kaiser, explaining her plans for the wedding on June 4, with a list of the special guests she desires to invite, including several French swells. This, her friends say, is all she has done by way of wedding preparations, though her son, the present reigning grand duke, was sent here recently by the kaiser to complete the arrangements. It is believed that Princess Anastasie will get out of attending the ceremony if at all possible.

The grand duchess is in an institution at Cannes. She is the personification in the flesh of the wayward grand duchess of Offenbach's famous opera-bouffe. She knows nothing of the conventions, or at least cares nothing for them. She makes no concealment of her contempt for the kaiser, and openly deplores the fate of her daughter marrying into such a family. Any development is possible in connection with this proposed match, and knowing the Grand Duchess Anastasie as they do, no development would cause any surprise to the people of Cannes.

This lady's history is a curious one. She is the only daughter of the Grand Duke Michael of Russia, son of the Czar Nicholas I., and great uncle of the present emperor. She was born in 1860, married in 1879 to the prince who afterward became grand duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, under the name of Frederick-Francis III. They had three children, the present Grand Duke Frederick-Francis IV, and two daughters, the Duchess Alexandrine, married in 1898 to Prince Christian of Denmark, heir presumptive to the throne of that kingdom, and the Duchess Cecile, born in 1886, who is now engaged to the German crown prince.

The grand duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin died here under tragic and suspicious circumstances in April, 1897. The official version given out was that in an excess of fever he got out of bed in the middle of the night, took a walk in the garden, and fell from a high wall into the road, receiving injuries that caused immediate death.

The unofficial version ascribed his end to a different cause.

Since his death the Grand Duchess Anastasia has lived at the same villa—the Villa Wenden; and gossip, not to say scandal, has not for one instant ceased to surround her name.

She is a tall, slight, classically-featured woman, who would be almost faultlessly beautiful were it not for the somewhat hard expression of her pale blue eyes.

She plays tennis well and is fond of competing in local tournaments under the name of "Madame Wenden." She is not as keen on golf as her brother, the Grand Duke Michael, and his wife, the Countess Torby, but she is often seen at the golf club.

Since the tragic death of her husband the name of the grand duchess has been coupled with those of a succession of "chamberlains."

People say that the kaiser thanks his stars it was the daughter his volatile heir fell in love with, for the Grand Duchess Anastasie is still amazingly younglooking, handsomer than either of her daughters, and might easily be mistaken for their sister. She is, moreover, brilliant and fascinating as only a Russian can be; while her frank, unaffected manner and irresponsible gayety give her a charm which many people have found irresistible.

Her Romanoff relatives say she inherits much of her eccentricity from her great ancestress Catherine II. She was the spoiled pet of the Grand Duke Michael—the richest of all the grand dukes—and was married when only 19 to the slow-going Grand Duke of Micklenburg-Schwerin. The grand duchess is, in fact, a kind of Royal Madame Sans Gene, not caring what she does or where she does it. Strange stories are told of the still stranger company that is kept at the Villa Wendon.

Anastasie has no caste prejudices, and persons without either birth or distinction of any kind are said to be admitted there on terms of incredible intimacy. Her brother is the Grand Duke Michael—whose morganatic marriage with the beautiful Countess Torby so enraged the late czar—and his sister's tendencies are said to be more than morganatic. An inveterate gambler, she plays bacarat half the night to the accompaniment of innumerable cigarettes. Maternal duties sit lightly on her shoulders, and her daughters have been allowed to run wild over Europe in the charge of more or less reliable chaperons.

Not long ago two young Americans spent a delightful day up the Rigi in the company of Grand Duchess Cecile and a pleasant English governess. They took snapshot photographs of each other, and it was only on their return to Lucerne in the evening that the travelers learned the identity of their companions.

It will be seen that between the arrogant self-esteem and domineering disposition of the kaiser, the cynical, happy-go-lucky, devil-may-care tendencies of the Grand Duchess Anastasie, and the impetuous, volatile temperament of the crown prince, there is material for an imperial drama of uncommon interest.

The kaiser, for instance, must have learned through the agency of some kind friends here, that on the very day that the Grand Duchess Anastasie declined to undertake the journey to Florence, because her state of health would not permit, she was playing in a golf tournament. How could he fail to have been made aware that she goes three or four times a week to play baccarat at the private Cercle at Monte Carlo, motoring home here in the small hours of the morning with a strange assortment of companions.

The empress of Germany is credited with declaring that if Anastasie attends the wedding, she will remain away. But this threat, it seems, does not in any way dismay the grand duchess, who regards the whole wedding business an an intolerable bore.

CHERRY SISTERS

Searching For Voice of Their Dead Sister.

Des Moines, April 13.—A search for the voice of the dead is the novel undertaking of Addie and Effie Cherry, who, with another sister, gained notoriety from ocean to ocean by their barnstorming concerts. These girls and their sister Jessie toured the United States giving entertainments which fullfilled the term only in their ridiculous efforts to sing and arguments with the audience about the showers of vegetables hurled at them. They now have a new goal.

Though the very mention of the trio must bring a smile to those who heard them, yet there is a touch of pathos in the search of the dead. Jessie died two years ago at the Cherry home near Marion, Iowa. Her voice was one which caused uproars of laughter because of its coarseness and lack of training. Yet it was sweet to her sisters. And these two sisters, who made the famous tour, are searching for a phonograph record of her singing.

They have heard that at many places records were made. Recently they heard that a man in Portsmouth, Ohio, had a record and tried to buy it. He placed an exceptionally large price upon it, thinking they would be enticed to pay, but they refused his offer.

PORTS CLOSED TO HER.

Being Carried Back and Forth on Ship.

Bellingham, Wash., April 14.—Because of rigid enforcement of the immigration laws Margaret Warrington, aged sixty-five years, widow of a British army officer, poor and friendless, is being carried back and forth on the steamship City of Pueblo, which plies between San Francisco and Victoria.

One month ago she boarded the ship at Victoria, but on arriving at San Francisco she was a pauper. The captain of the vessel carried her back to Victoria, and the British authorities at that port would not allow her to disembark when they learned that she was afflicted with a tumor. In his dilemma the captain again took her to San Francisco, but the officers again refused to allow her to get off in that city.

"Under the lae laws passed by congress the old woman now must remain in the custody of the captain of the vessel until a decision is rendered either by the United States government as to her right to land in this country or the British officers to do likewise. Meanwhile the owens of the vessel must take care of her at their own expense on board of the steamer.

While the steamer was in port the woman asked the captain if her case had been settled, and being answered in the negative, said: "Well, captain, I will settle this case myself; I'll jump overboard and drown myself. I can land in the water surely. There is no use for a person like me to live, anyway."

The captain dissuaded her from carrying her threat into execution, but her mind is in such a condition that he fears she will jump overboard unless strict watch is kept over her.

She came originally from New Zealand, and is supposed to have had $700 with her on reaching Victoria, but the money has disappeared in an unaccountable manner.

VIRGINIA ENFORCES LAWS.

Five Legal Executions In Two Months.

Richmond, Va., April 14.—The supreme court has refused to grant a new trial to Charles R. Fishburne, a wealthy young banker of Roanoke, who was convicted of fatally stabbing Dr. Frederick Lefew and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

Administration of the laws in Virginia has undergone a wonderful change. There has not been a lynching in the state for two years. There have been five legal executions in two months.

Of the five hangings, two were of white men. J. Samuel McCue, ex-mayor of Charlottesville, died on the scaffold Feb. 10, after spending a fortune in lawyers and appealing twice to the supreme court. His crime was the murder of his wife which he confessed at the last moment.

James Likous, a white man, convicted of the murder of his wife and child at East Radford Christmas eve, was hanged March 17. He died protesting his innocence. On the same day Robert Bowles, a negro, who shot and killed John Ruff, a white brakeman, was hanged at Covington.

The day before—March 16—two negroes were hanged in Richmond. Peter Dancey's crime was the killing of a negro woman. Edward Austin, the other negro hanged on the same scaffold at the same time, was convicted of criminal assault on a young girl of his own race.

BLOOD POISON: MAN'S GREATEST ENEMY

The disease that has done more than any other to wreck, ruin and humiliate life, is Contagious Blood Poison. Sorrow, shame and suffering go hand in hand with this great enemy, and man has always hated and fought it as he has no other disease. It is the most powerful of all poisons; no matter how pure the blood may be, when its virus enters, the entire circulation becomes poisoned and its chain of horrible symptoms begin to show. Usually the first sign is a small sore or ulcer, not at all alarming in appearance, but the blood is being saturated with the deadly poison, and soon the mouth and throat begin to ulcerate, the hair and eyebrows drop out, a red eruption breaks out on the body, copper-colored splotches and sores make their appearance and the poison even works down into the bones and attacks the nerves. Not only is the disease hereditary, being transmitted from parent to child, in the form of scrofula, weak eyes, soft bones, weak, puny constitutions, etc., but is also so highly contagious that many a life has been ruined by a friendly hand shake, or from using the toilet articles of one infected with the poison. To cure this blighting, deadly curse the blood must be purified, and nothing will do it so quickly and surely as S. S. S. It goes down to the very bottom of the trouble, drives out every particle of the poison and makes the blood clean and strong. It does not hide or cover up anything, but from the first begins to expel the poison and build up and strengthen the system. S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable. We offer a reward of $1,000 for proof that it contains a particle of mineral of any kind. Book on the disease, with instructions for home treatment, and any advice desired, without charge.

SUES WIFE HE THOUGHT DEAD

New York, April 14—Charles Russell, chief engineer of the Trinity Church, in East Houston street, and Miss Elizabeth Badan, daughter of the engineer of the Astor estate, were married in this city Oct. 11, 1896. They had two children, Mildred, who is 6 years old, and Leona, who is 8.

In June, 1901, the couple separated, and Mrs. Russell took her children back to the home of her parents, in East Seventh street. Russell went to live in Prince street.

A few months ago Mr. Russell happened to meet his father-in-law, Mr. Badan.

"Hello, pop," said the son-in-law, "how is Lizzie?"

"Lizzie is dead," said Badan. "Yes, she is buried."

Such was the conversation, as reported by Russell to his lawyer, Former Assistant District Attorney James E. Brande of Witte & Brande of No. 346 Broadway.

Mr. Russell began to shed tears when his father-in-law made the announcement of his wife's death. But Russell suddenly noticed that Badan was wearing a button on which was photographed a picture of Mrs. Russell and a strange man. Russell managed to get possession of this button and took it home.

A few days after that Russell, while at work in the church, was surprised when told that a policeman wanted to see him.

"You are Charles Russell?" asked the bluecoat.

"I am," replied Russell.

"I have a warrant for your arrest," said the policeman. "You are charged with abandonment by your wife."

"My wife?" repeated Mr. Russell. "Why, man, she is dead and buried."

"I guess not," said the policeman, "because she swore to this warrant." Russell was taken to police court.

Mrs. Russell was in court, and Russell did not know what to make of it.

"Your honor," said Mr. Brande, who appeared for Mr. Russell, "my client is not guilty of this charge."

Mrs. Russell took the stand and said her husband had abandoned her.

Mr. Brande showed the button with the photograph of Mrs. Russell and the unknown man. "How did you come to have this picture taken?" asked Mr. Brande.

"That is the picture of myself and a boarder in my father's house," explained Mrs. Russell.

"Are you in the habit of having your picture taken with your head resting against that of a boarder?" inquired Mr. Brande.

Judge Breen dismissed the case and husband and wife left the court.

Now Mr. Russell has brought action for divorce against Mrs. Russell, for whom he had gone into mourning. In his complaint Russell names Henry Valse, the man in the picture, as corespondent. The trial will take place in the supreme court.

CERTAINLY HOODOOED.

Miner Hurt Six Times Within Six Months.

Wilkesbarre, April 14.—For the sixth time within six months Frank McLean of Scranton is laid up by an accident. Six months ago he had his right arm broken by a runaway car and was laid up for six weeks. Two days after he returned to work his hand was crushed between the bumpers of two cars.

When he again resumed work he was given a mule to drive. It was not long before the mule kicked him in the side and he was again laid up in bed. Not content with kicking him, the same mule, when McLean again went to work, ran away. McLean was caught in the harness and dragged some distance over the rails, his whole body being cut and bruised.

Convinced that he was hoodooed, but plucky nevertheless, he went into the mine again, but instead of being hurt in the mine he slipped on the ice while going to work and sprained his ankle.

Recovering from this last week, he went back to work, and on last Wednesday was caught between two cars and so severely crushed that he had to be taken home in an ambulance.

NO TONGUE CAN TELL

How I Suffered with Itching and Bleeding Eczema

UNTIL CURED BY CUTICURA

"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with a terribly painful, itching, and bleeding eczema, my body and face being covered with sores. Never in my life did I experience such awful suffering, and I longed for death, which I felt was near. I had tried doctors and medicines without success, but my mother insisted that I try Cuticura. I felt better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap and one application of Cuticura Ointment, and was soon entirely well. (signed) Mrs. A. Etson, Bellevue, Mich."

ITALIAN GIRLS

Convoyed By Mme. Rosa to Husbands In San Francisco.

Makes Yearly Trips and Returns With Marriageable Bevies.

Chicago, April 14.—In the Canal street railroad station, Mme. Rosa, a little Italian woman, fussed and scolded in her effort to keep together a chattering two-score of young Italian girls. They are en route from Italy to San Francisco, on their way to fortune and marriage. Mme. Rosa is a matrimonial bureau all in herself.

Bright silk handkerchiefs tying down their dark curly hair; short, bright skirts, ankle high; their dark Italian faces sparkling with happiness and hopes of all good things in America, the girls examined the other travelers as frankly, laughing and pointing and commenting in rapid Italian as the other travelers examined them.

"They my cousins, alla cousins," Mme. Rosa explained, turning to discharge a rapid fire of Italian at three girls who had left the group to peep into the ticket seller's cage. "They lika see everything," she laughed. "We goin 'bye and bye in wagon, see alla Chicago. I goin' buy them all hats alla samn like yours, only plenta flowers—red, pretty."

The girls evidently asked for a translation of the conversation, which Mme. Rosa accorded.

"I Americano," she said, with swelling pride. "I Union Pacific Rail."

She untied the knots of a 'kerchief, teeth assisting nimble fingers, unwrapped more 'kerchiefs, and exhibited twenty tickets, protected by little medals of all the saints. "I buy alla lotta mon," she said. "Myself, I not cost nodding. I Union Pacific Rail," by which it was inferred that she had a pass over that road.

Nine years ago Mme. Rosa first came to America. She worked in a California fruit canning factory during the season, from May to October. She made from $2 to $3 a day, living as Italians do on bread and wine, and saved some $500. In the autumn, like most Italians, she was homesick for Naples, where she was born and played as a bare-legged child in the streets along the water. She went home full of wonderful tales of America, the great new country.

An Italian girl who does not marry by the time she is twenty is a family disgrace. But how can they marry when so many of the young men come to America?

"I taka you America; I pay alla expense; I getta you work by my boss in San Francisco," she told the girls, and their parents. The girls were ready to sail on the next ship.

"You maka mon, you paya me back. A little more, too," she stipulated. She had a priest draw up an agreement between herself and each girl.

Six came the first spring. The "boss" at the canning factory was only too glad to get them to work. Mme. Rosa rented two rooms and set up housekeeping. She picked out husbands for the girls. But no marriages till the season was over. She chaperoned the girls like a dragon and collected a bonus from each husband when the time came. There was a little bonus from the "boss," too.

With it all, and her own wages, Mme. Rosa did well, and gave them her blessing and went back to Naples to return each year with a new flock. Last autumn she stopped off at Omaha. In the Italian colony she had heard of Mr. Wantland, the Union Pacific land agent She wanted a pass. "I make America much rich country," she told him.

Mr. Wantland is used to demands for passes, but a little old Italian peasant woman in her red 'kerchief was the first of her kind to ask. Mme. Rosa does not know just how it was fixed up, but she is proudly sure she has a "Union Pacific Rail" card, and that there is no other road and no one else but Mr. Wantland worth considering.

Mme. Rosa has a day on her schedule to show Chicago to the girls, and an express wagon to take them about in and buy the new hats. There is a stop at Omaha and time for visiting the girls who have come before and their husbands and babies. By the time the first canning factory opens its doors Mme. Rosa will be settled at house keeping and ready with her girls to go to work. Her hours will be gay when work is over. There will be picnics when the cannery is slack for fruit. In November there will be a big wedding with crowds filling the quaint old church of St. Francis and twenty new homes set up of Americanos in San Francisco's Little Italy.

HOSPITAL PATIENT

Charmed By Young Girl's Skill As Cook.

St. Louis, April 14.—In adjoining cots at St. Mary's hospital were A. S. Crabb, an engineer on the Illinois Central railroad, who lives in Evansville, Ind., and J. T. Rudefil of No. 1803 Bond avenue, East St. Louis, who received daily visits from Miss Rudefil, his grandchild.

Miss Rudefil, who was a favorite of her grandparent, always brought fruits and good things which she had prepared with her own hands for the sick relative.

Mr. Rudefil soon formed the acquaintance of the new patient, and when his granddaughter came with her basket of sweets, introduced her to Crabb, and had him share the contents of the basket.

Miss Rurefil and the engineer became good friends, and he grew not only fond of her cooking, but also fond of her, and she became so fond of him that she said "yes" to his proposal.

Nothing was said at the Rudefil home about the engineer, as evidenced by the increase in the supply which Miss Rudefil placed in her basket daily.

When the grandfather was well and the engineer had returned to his cab, both grandfather and pretty nurse kept the secret well, and not until recently, when Mr. Crabb came to East St. Louis to ask for the hand of the girl who had won his heart, did the remainder of the family know of the romance.

Miss Rudefil's father, J. T. W. Rudefil, is president of the East St. Louis school board.

RIVER'S OVERFLOW

Brought Thousands of Carp to Farmer's Door.

Pekin, Ill., April 14.—Near Havana in this state, is a farm on which Riley Smith has been a renter for several years. The Illinois River overflows on the Smith place annually, and when the ice went out this season the water came up as usual. Smith noticed a disturbance in the waters, and found that thousands of carp were flopping around beneath the surface.

He went to Havana and got some seines and a man to help him take out the fish. The first haul netted thousands of pounds of carp. For three weeks the farmer seined, and when the water went down he had cleared enough to buy the farm outright.

The fish were sold to the dealers at Havana, who ship hundreds of thousands of pounds of them every year.

CEASES TO EXIST

Whole Village In Maine Suddenly Goes Out of Existance.

Community Migrates In Preference to Working For Trust.

Norway, Me., April 14.—Hastings, the most unique settlement in Maine, if not in the United States, has suddenly ceased to exist, and where more than 1,000 persons lived a week ago not one is to be found now. The church, schoolhouse and public store, all built with money contributed by the men who worked in the lumber camps and mills in the settlement, are deserted, and the shutters have been drawn in the houses which a few days ago were comfortable homes for the workingman and his family. The Wood Pulp trust is responsible for it all.

The territory on which Hastings was situated was granted to Richard Batchelder by the state of Massachusetts more than a hundred years ago. About forty years later four families moved there from Fryeburg and cleared a spot in the valley of about 100 acres. A few years later they abandoned the place and G. A. Hastings and D. R. Hastings of Fryberg, became the purchasers.

In 1891 they sold this village site and twenty acres of land to the Wild River Lumber company of Island Pond, Vt. This company purchased at the same time 40,000 acres of timber land in Bean's purchase, just across the New Hampshire line, and which gave them the largest timber tract in the world owned by one company. They put in a big steam mill, store, most of the houses, the electric system, sewers and public water systems, the cost of which was contributed to by the inhabitants, who were regarded as equal owners of the town with the mill proprietors.

They cut their timber at Bean's Purchase and hauled it by rail to their steam mill at Hastings, where it was cut up and shipped on a single track railroad to the main line of the Grand Trunk road, thirteen miles away. Since the first stick of timber was cut the inhabitants of Hastings paid no taxes of any sort, and the visit of the tax collector in his official capacity was an experience they never knew.

It was the most cosmopolitan of villages, and had representatives of many nationalities within its borders. When the employes of the mill received their pay one could find conversing in a group Russians, Poles, Swedes, Germans, Austrians, Danes, French, Irish, Armenians, Turks and English. The houses of the village had a foreign aspect, those on Main street being about 30x40 feet, as square as immense dry goods boxes, painted Venetian red, without outside shutters, each with six rooms and each a counterpart of the other. All the houses were surrounded by huge piles of lumber, and the larger buildings were bound to the earth by huge chains as a safeguard against mountain gales or the spring freshets.

Despite the fact that more than 1,000 persons lived in the village and nearly every nationality was represented, there is no record of an arrest being made for crimes. There have never been a policeman or constable living in the village. The place never had a pauper and had never considered it necessary to make any public provision for the support of the poor.

Hastings was the only town in the United States which did not have a carriage road, the only means of access to the town being over the railroad tracks which skirted precipitously near the edges of the mountain side. On every other side of the village, except where the railroad tracks are laid, the mountain is so steep that even a pedestrian could only climb it with difficulty.

Maine's wild game is primarily responsible for the passing of Hastings. Two years ago a party of sportsmen from New York headed by the late Dr. H. M. Wells, went to Hastings to fish the trout streams. In the party was an official of a large paper manufacturing corporation who was surprised at the great amount of timber standing near Hastings which could be converted into wood pulp. Negotiations for the tract of land were at once commenced, but were consummated only a few days ago.

When the deal had finally been made and the purchasers had informed some of the workmen of the change in ownership, the latter at once held a meeting. A committee was appointed to wait upon the new owners and to inform them that none of the old workmen at Hastings cared to work for the new concern. Then the woodchoppers and their families packed up their household goods, locked their front doors and were hauled on lumber carts to the railroad station at Gilead, where they boarded trains for different parts of the country. None of those who went away would work for a trust, they said.

FED BY PIPE LINE.

Nourished Through Silver Tube in Abdominal Walls.

Baltimore, April 14.—Instead of starving to death, the life of Ivan Perry, colored, 22 years old, will be prolonged. He is a patient in the Franklin Square hospital, and a silver tube has been inserted through the abdominal walls into his stomach. It was through this tube that the first nourishment in five days passed into his stomach after he revived from the effects of the anesthetic.

Perry is suffering from aesophageal stricture, and the walls of the throat have so contracted that the passage from the mouth to the stomach is entirely closed, permitting not even nourishment in a liquid form to pass.

The incision was made in the abdomen, to the left of the median line. Through this opening a silver tube, about four inches long and probably a half inch in diameter, was inserted. The tube protrudes outside of the man's body—the outer end being enlarged similar to a funnel. Through this tube the patient will receive all nourishment, which will be given in liquid form.

Perry has suffered no inconvenience in his speech, and can masticate any kind of food placed before him with great relish, but he has no power to swallow.

The operation was performed by Dr. Joseph H. Branham, surgeon at the institution, and is the first of the kind ever performed at the Franklin Square hospital.

MRS. ROGERS MUST HANG

Believed Governor Bell Will Not Stay Execution June 2.

Montpelier, Vt., April 14.—That Mrs. Mary Rogers, reprieved in February, will be hanged on June 2, is the belief in legal circles.

Governor Bell, who is a Civil war veteran and a sturdy descendant of Revolutionary stock, is engaged in sugar-making on his farm in Walden. The governor is a believer in the maxim, "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth."

To a correspondent Governor Bell talked freely concerning his sugar camp. Wednesday he made 650 pounds of maple sugar. "I did it nearly all myself," explained Vermont's chief executive, with almost boyish pride.

"I don't care to discuss Mrs. Rogers," said Governor Bell. "I outlined my position at the time of the reprieve and have not since undergone any change of opinion."

In reprieving Mrs. Rogers, Governor Bell said that the stay was solely to enable her counsel to bring the case before the May term of the supreme court, and the decision of the court would be final so far as the executive was concerned.

"I do not believe that the people of Vermont desire that Mary Rogers be granted a reprieve," said Governor Bell in February, a few days before the time set for the hanging. "I am greatly surprised that the sheriffs of Windsor county came before me with the petition. Their mission is to execute laws, and their action is unprecedented and entirely out of place."

Mrs. William J. Blickensderfer of Stamford, Conn., who has promised to raise money to defray the cost of the proceedings before the supreme court next month, was active when Mrs. Rogers' case was before the legislature, and it is the general impression that her influence was potent in causing a postponement of the execution in February.

"I never in my life met Mrs. Blickensderfer," said Governor Bell.

"Would you have given her a hearing?"

"Certainly," replied the governor; "but, as I said before, I'm not discussing Mrs. Rogers. Come out and see my milking stool. It's the finest ever made. It has an inlaid seat of 240 pieces, and is good enough for any governor."

HARVARD STUDENT WON

Many Prizes and Found Time For Recreation.

Cambridge, Mass., April 14.—The rewards of study in a great university are admirably illustrated at Harvard in Eugene Arthur Hecker of St. Louis, Mo., who, during his four years of undergraduate life, received a total of $1,480 in prizes and scholarships.

Hecker is the type of student who succeeds in his scholastic attainments without sacrificing any part of that college life from which close application to books is commonly supposed to exclude its followers.

The fact that he takes regular exercise and thus keeps in perfect health is the common explanation given by them for his wonderful expenditure of energy along every line.

ASTOR MARCH TO BILLIONS.

The Astor properties now increase as never before. Land values in the last five years have jumped 50 to 100 per cent. The city's population grows at the rate og 100,000 a year, writes Burton J. Hendrick in McClure's Magazine.

In many sections New York has been largely reconstructed; new headquarters of retail trade and business have developed; public improvements initiated since the tunnels, bridges, subways, railroad terminals—aggregate in cost not far from $300,000,000. There has been a general movement of corporations toward New York; practically all the newly organized combinations, for example, have located here.

When John Jacob died, in 1890, his estate, inherited by William Warldorf, was estimated at $150,000,000. If it were worth than then, it is worth $300,000,000 now. The estate of William Astor, who died in 1892, inherited by the present John Jacob, was generally placed at about $65,000,000. If that were an accurate figure, it must now aggregate at least $100,000,000.

The combined Astor fortune thus increases with accelerated momentum. In fifteen or twenty years, at the present rate of progress, it will have reached the billion mark. And then it will go on even faster, until the ordinary mind is appalled at the portentious figures.

We have seen that the $2,000,000 invested by John Jacob has multiplied at least 200 times in 100 years. (It has reached, at a conservative. estimate, $450,000,000.) If the same rate be maintained for another century, the Astor fortune will attain the unimaginable total of eighty billions.

We stand aghast at such a posibility; but not more so than would have John Jacob's contemporaries had they foreseen the present reality. In 1830 John Jacob Astor was the only man in New York who was worth a million dollars.

BOYCE'S DRUG STORE

It Is Now Public Property!

A recent development in the medicine business is here made public. Dr. Pierce announces that the women taking his "Favorite Prescription" are going to know just what is contained in it. His "Favorite Prescription" for weak women is not a patent medicine. It is an efficient remedy scientifically extracted from the roots of medicinal plants which cure the diseases and weaknesses of women. At first Dr. Pierce used it entirely in his private practice, in which he made a specialty of the diseases peculiar to women. It was so uniformly successful, that afterwards he decided to put it up in a form easily obtained at every drug store. Hereafter every bottle of "Favorite Prescription" going out from the World's Dispensary laboratory, at Buffalo, N. Y., will have the ingredients in plain English on every bottle.

NOT A PARTICLE OF ALCOHOL

or harmful drugs is contained in this famous prescription. All women who are afflicted with diseases and weaknesses peculiar to their sex, can with perfect safety take this medicine, and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred they will be entirely cured of their afflictions. For more than one-third of a century Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has enjoyed a high reputation for the chronic ailments incident to womanhood.

THE PROOF:

From long experience Dr. Pierce acquired the knowledge of how to combine the following ingredients in just the right proportion in his "Favorite Prescription" for diseases of woman.

CHEMISTS TESTING PLANTS.

This medicine contains the non-alcoholic extracts of the following native plants:

Lady's Slipper (Cypripedium Pubescens).
Black Cohosh (Cimicifuga Racemosa).
Unicorn root (Chamælirium Luteum).
Blue Cohosh (Caulophyllum Thalictroides).
Golden Seal (Hydrastis Canadensis.)

℞

THE REASON:

To meet the many outrageous and wholly baseless attacks of some scoffers, Dr. Pierce has decided to make public the ingredients of this medicine, which is the best tonic for debilitated and nervous women.

San Francisco, Los Angeles and Return $57.90.

A SENSELESS WASTE.

Representative Saari has secured an appropriation of $1,400 from the state for construction of the proposed road northward from Virginia to the international boundary line. If the road is properly built that will build about a mile and a half northward from the Virginia city limits. If the amount is spread out over any greater distance it will be just about that amount of money wasted.

If the State of Minnesota seriously intends to assist in the building of roads in Northern Minnesota it ought to go at the matter in a different way from this. A little dab here and another little dab there will accomplish practically nothing, although the aggregate amount of the appropriations may amount to considerable.

A road northward from Virginia will amount practically to nothing unless it is put through for a distance of twenty-five miles in order to tap the agricultural district of the Little Fork valley, where there is a considerable settlement of farmers. To construct such a road properly would cost at least $1,000 per mile.

By right the state ought to build such trunk roads as this. It would do more to induce settlement than the same amount of money expended in any other manner. But because every member of the legislature wants a share of the "pork" for his own district, the available funds are divided up in such small amounts that little real good is accomplished anywhere.

It would seem that some plan could be devised to put an end to this farce. Either the state should go at road building in proper manner or go out of the business altogether. Under present laws the road fund is practically wasted.

An attempt is now being made in the legislature to raise the annual levy for the building of roads and if this is done provision should also be made for proper and economical expenditure.

THE HARVESTER TRUST.

The manufacture of harvesting machinery at the Minnesota state prison is proposed as a means of releasing the farmers of this state from the exactions of the harvester trust. The legislature has authorized the state board of control to inaugurate this industry, the success of the binding twine plant having led to the belief that prison labor can be profitably employed in manufacturing harvesting machinery to be sold at a small advance on cost to the farmers of Minnesota.

The harvester trust is one of the worst combines which prey upon the people. In the April Cosmopolitan, there is an article by Arthur Henry Lewis which gives the history of this marauder of agriculture. The round production of the American farms, in figures, is each year $4,000,000,000. It is three times the gross earnings of all the railroads. It is fourfold the output of all the mines—gold, silver, iron, copper, coal. It is six times the whole capital of all the national banks. To produce that annual crop, the aggregate value of which is $4,000,000,000, the farmer spends yearly $100,000,000 for tools, implements, and machinery, and it was for the conquest of those $100,000,000, and to turn them to its own profitable favor, that the harvester trust was conceived. It is not too much to say that, now, in the third year of its existence, the harvester trust, from those $100,000,000, pockets a yearly profit of over $40,000,000, 80 per cent of which may be counted as merest rapine, attained by methods that would shame a footpad, and are wholly criminal in the eye of law. The harvester trust now controls over nine-tenths of the farm implement trade, and by methods of extortion, constriction, and law-breaking, so dominates the market situation as to compel what opposition is struggling against it to do business at a loss.

Mr. Lewis shows that, at the very dawn of its existence, the $120,000,000 harvester trust turned to railroads and freight rates with the purpose of a rebate. It bought two railways for itself and went into the railroad business. It purchased the Illinois Northern railroad outright, and secured the whip-hand of control in the West Pullman Railroad company. It also so arranged that, whether a car used for the shipment of its wares were to run finally over the Alton, the Santa Fe, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania, or any other railroad, in leaving its central depots of farm-tool supplies, it must first run a mile or two over one of those railroads it controlled. By this sagacious practice, the harvester trust need never traffic with any railroad for a rebate; its own railroad would be able to make the deal. It is worth, in the railroad market, from two to three dollars a car for the Illinois Northern railroad to shunt in and out a car, designed for the reception of a shipment of harvester-trust wares. The Illinois Northern compels the other railways to pay $12 for that service, or from nine to ten dollars more than it is worth.

Having arranged with the railroad for a $9 rebate per car, the harvester trust began establishing agencies. Having the upper hand in mere trade volume, the Harvester company took its pick of the would-be agents of the country. Likewise its trade superiority enabled it to put the following "exclusion clause" into its contracts with agents: "Said agent especially agrees not to accept the agency for or be interested in the sale of any grain-binder, header, corn-binder, husker and shredder, reaper, mower, stacker, sweep-rake, hay-rake, hay-tedder other than those manufactured by the International Harvester company."

Attention is also directed by Mr. Lewis to the fact that the harvester trust—hatched to bleed the farmer for $40,000,000 of profit every year—with its railroads and steamboats and its ropewalks in Manila, has invaded Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, and South America with its products. There it is selling them at a wholesome per cent below what is demanded of the American agriculturist. From this alien trade alone, the harvester trust cleans up a rotund yearly treasure of $21,000,000. The export value of American farm tools and machinery increased, during the year just closed, over $4,000,000 beyond the figure of the year before; and it is safe to submit, since that export was disposed of at prices widely under the prices asked for the same articles in America, that the harvester trust enjoys a fringe of profit from its home trade that in much of its illicit extravagance might better be sheared away.

If the state can, by using the convict labor at Stillwater, relieve the farmers of Minnesota from this marauding trust, it will accomplish a splendid service, and if other agricultural states follow Minnesota's example, the power of the trust will be broken.

BUCKET SHOPS AND GAMBLING.

If the people of this country have not had sufficient experience in dealing with bucket shops to convince them that it is similar to playing with fire, the answer of A. J. Cummings in a suit brought against him in Fargo ought to be sufficient to at least cause a little reflection on the subject.

Wiliam Rickter of Great Falls, Mont., brought suit against Cummings to recover $1,270 which he claimed to have deposited with the latter and charged that Cummings had appropriated it to his own use.

In his answer to the suit Cummings sets up, in substance, that if he ever had any dealings with the plaintiff it was simply to wager with him on the future price of grain or stocks; that consequently it was a gambling debt he owed him and consequently plaintiff is not entitled to recover anything under the law.

So it will be seen from this that when the bucket shop proprietor is forced into a corner he admits that he is simply a cominon gambler who held the stakes, both his own and his opponent's. If this defense is upheld by the courts then the man who bets his money in a bucket shop takes exactly the same chances he would in a game of cards if he permitted his opponent to hold the stakes. His only chance of recovery lies in the honor of the other man.

An opponent of anti-pass legislation estimates that public officials of Minnesota receive $100,000 worth of railroad passes each year. While there would be less traveling by officials if no passes were issued, even if it did cost the state $100,000 per year to supply its officials with transportation it would be a paying investment for the people if regular passenger rates were reduced to correspond.

Hotel Gossip.

"The mail order business has grown to immense proportions during the past few years," said F. J. Nelson of Chicago at the McKay, "and its effects may plainly be seen on the work of the average traveling man. His tasks are made harder because of it, owing to the fact that a great number of people depend largely upon such establishments for nearly everything they buy, and this has a tendency to injure the business of the retailer and, indirectly, the wholesaler.

"The commercial traveler who is affected to the greatest extent by the mail order business, perhaps, is the one who deals most directly with the people themselves. I handle a line of sewing machines, and time and time again have run up against this proposition. In hundreds of homes through the country, particularly in the West and Central West, the catalogues from such firms as Montgomery Ward & Co., and Sears Roebuck, are classed with the family Bible. They are about as big as the family Bible, and you find the two lying side by side on the center table in many a home. Under conditions such as these you quote a man a price on anything under the sun and the first thing he will do will be to grab up the mammoth catalogue, run his finger down the index pages, and then turn to where the article is advertised. If the price quoted there is lower than yours, he smiles triumphantly and wants to know why you don't come down to a reasonable figure, and if you dont come down, he refuses to buy in nine cases out of ten. The chances are that the article shown in the mail order books is of a cheaper sort than you are showing, and therefore it is frequently impossible for you to meet this mail competition. The thing looks all right on paper, but when it is delivered the defects are more than likely there.

"Of course the small order houses get their strongest trade from the smaller towns and more sparsely settled communities, but even in cities the size of Duluth you will find their patrons. It may be to the advantage of the farmer in certain sections to thus make his purchases by mail, but it is pretty apt to be a losing proposition for a city man. It is safe to say that no standard article can be sold in Chicago and shipped to Duluth cheaper than the general public can buy the article here, without the bother of a mail order. In fact, except in a very few instances, the price on the order from the outside house will be higher than if it were purchased locally."

"I wish there was some way to impress upon the mind of the ordinary poor man of the Middle West the fact that he is better off at home than he would be on the Pacific coast," said O. S. Schneider of Seattle at the Lenox. "It is hard to make the people back here realize the fact that the Western labor market is flooded, but this is literally true. Men without capital have been flocking in there for years past, with the expectation of finding profitable employment almost immediately upon their arrival in the coast towns, but the big majority of them have met with disappointment.

"It is unreasonable to suppose that jobs will be ready for all the people dumped in there by the railroads. Not a train enters Seattle from the East that does not contain several score, or several hundred, men who have no other object in going West than to seek work when they arrive at their destination. A great many have only a few dollars left when they get there, and if they do not soon find work, their only alternative is to walk the streets and trust to fortune for their food. A lot of them are often more anxious to get home again than they were to go West, and every day charitable societies are flooded with applications for half-rate tickets East. Some of these societies have special arrangements with the roads to furnish such fares to the poor devils who can't pay more. The Portland fair this year is only making the situation in this respect all the worse, for it has proved to be a great attraction for labor, and the supply at Portland greatly exceeds the demand.

"But for the man with a little capital, enough to keep him going a few weeks or months until he sees an opening, the West is a good place to go. There is no denying that opportunities are there for getting ahead in the world if a man can only live till he strikes one of them. That whole country is growing rapidly, and will continue to grow rapidly for some time to come, but this does not necessarily mean that the wealth of every man out there is growing with the country. My advice to the poor man looking toward the West is to go slow, or he will probably find reasons to regret that he didn't."

Confessions of an Ex-Hangman.

London Chronicle: Berry, the ex-hangman, who has come under the influence of the revival now in progress in England, has described his conversion. He had been a bad man, he said, for thirty years, but his household was now a heaven upon earth. In his time he had seen wickedness in all its stages, but he was not now bothered by his Satanic majesty.

For twenty years he had been unable to shed a tear and had not known what sympathy was. When he left his home at Heckmondwike and joined the then Bradford police force he became wicked because he had to do as the other police did or he would have been sacked. He went the way the wind blew him.

His sins had now left him and he was ready to die without any fear.

Poet's License.

Popular dramatists and poets can do what they like in Paris. During the Syvetom excitement, M. Francois Coppee behaved somewhat obstreperously, insulting the authorities, and shouting that he was ready to sacrifice his liberty and even his life for his cause. A hand was then laid on his shoulder, and turning, he faced M. Lepine, the prefect of police, who said:

"Monsieur Coppee, have no fear whatsoever. Shout whatever you like, and smash windows if the fancy takes you. You can even, if you like, attack the police. My men have strict orders from me never to arrest you, no matter what you may say or do."

THE CURATE'S EXPERIENCE

The New Yorker: "Shall I, or shall I not?"

Thus soliloquized the Rev. Theodosius Simpleson, curate of St. Philip's.

The source of these clerical doubts was a delicately perfumed letter, written on beautiful pink note-paper in a lady's hand. This is how it ran:

A young lady in sore distress of mind earnestly begs Mr. Theodosius Simpleson to do her the great favor of calling upon her on Wednesday morning next, between 11 and 1, at 23 South street. Please ask for Miss Flossie Montgomery. Do not delay. The case is urgent.

* * * * * *

Mr. Simpleson had not to wait long. Scarcely had he begun to admire the tasteful etchings on the wall and the heavy folds of the costly velvet curtain which divided the apartment—in the place of folding doors—when a form of beauty, gracefully attired in a pink teagown, flitted across his line of vision.

"Ah! Mr. Simpleson! how good of you—how very good of you to come."

"It is the duty of a clergyman, madam," answered the young man, "to hold his time at the disposition of his parishioners."

Miss Montgomery went on:

"Ah! Mr. Simpleson! I'm afraid you will think I am a bold, horrid, naughty girl, but hear what I have to say. You do not know me, Mr. Simpleson, but I have known you long. I have attended your beautiful services, and heard your spirit-stirring sermons. The report of your many deeds of mercy among the poor has reached my ears. At first I only admired you and wished that I could live the same self-denying life. But you know in what direction admiration leads a poor, unguided girl. I love you, Theo., and I have invited you to come here in order that I may fall down on my knees before you and implore you to marry me."

Surely never before was a curate in so awkward a predicament. Mr. Simpleson did what he conceived to be his duty and endeavored to draw away his hand from the warm grasp that held it.

In her deep disappointment Miss Montgomery threw her arms around the parson's neck, laying her cheek close to his, and sobbed convulsively as she entreated him not to reject her.

The reverend gentleman's arm glided gently round the slim waist, and he even imprinted a few consolatory kisses upon her white brow. But he felt that the situation must be brought to a close. He led the weeping girl to the sofa, gave her just one more fatherly embrace and departed.

* * * * *

Three days afterward the Rev. Theodosius Simpleson received a further communication upon the same perfumed notepaper and in the same feminine hand. It read as follows:

Dear Sir: At the moment when you embraced me at my apartments in South street your portrait was taken by a photographic friend of mine concealed behind the curtain. It is an admirable likeness and would command a tremendous sale. I have no wish to part with the negative, but if you think that the combination of my head on your shoulder would be likely to interfere with your chances of being made a bishop some day I will sacrifice it for $1,000. Yours truly, FLOSSIE MONTGOMERY.

Rev. Mr. Simpleson thought the matter over. It was rather dear for a photograph, but he thought it as well to buy it.

Children Yet.

Old, old we are; yet in our hearts
Vague longings sometimes creep,
To lay once more our heads to rest
Upon our crooning mother's breast
And sob ourselves to sleep.

The years have made us stern; and yet
Tired yearnings oft will rise,
And we are weary of it all,
And listening for our childhood's call
With wistful turning eyes.

Old. But there's something in our hearts
Will not let us forget;
The soul is young; our childhood sleeps,
And ever upward closer creeps;
We're just old children yet.
—OTUS REESE, in San Francisco Bulletin.

The Change She Noted.

Harper's Weekly: George Ade recently heard that an old lady from the neighborhood down in Indiana where he was born was in town on a visit to a granddaughter. Mr. Ade thought that theater tickets would be a fitting attention, and on consulting her as to her choice of plays she explained that she had seen the "Merchant of Venice" over thirty years ago, and had always had a strong desire to witness it again. He accordingly looked to it that her wish was gratified.

Calling the next day, he asked her how she found that the performance compared with the one of long ago.

"Well," she replied, "Venice seems to have spruced up a right smart bit, but that Shylock is the same mean, grasping critter that he used to be."

The Jews and Infantile Mortality.

Leslie's Weekly: Striking and significant testimony to the care and wisdom exercised in Jewish home life, and to the excellent and salutary character of the sanitary regulations imposed by the Jewish faith, was brought out in a recent address by a prominent English physician before a Manchester society devoted to the promotion of improved housing. According to this authority, while infant mortality in Manchester is "almost as high as it was fifty years ago," there was one part of the city where it was comparatively low, and this was in the Jews' quarter, where the "mothers stop at home and look after their children and whose law in relation to the vessels in which they keep their food is very strict." He had found, also, that in Huugary, with its immense Jewish population, infant mortality is lowest among these people.

At the council meeting Thursday night the village attorney expressed the opinion that owing to the new charter the village had no board of health and it would be necessary to elect one. H. C. Kendall, one of the new members, seemed to think that Health Officer Sherwin was purely ornamental and should be displaced. The matter was laid over.

The last week has been rather a light one in the office of the register of deeds as well as in the dens of real estate men. Although there is considerable building going on at present, and the outlook for the realty market seems bright, there it but little inquiry for lands.

W. H. Peacock, a Chicago grain man, has located in this city in the grain business.

D. L. Stinchfield returned on Tuesday from a visit in Wisconsin.

The telegraph facilities furnished Duluth by the Western Union company have long been too meager, and some time ago a request was made for additional facilities, but was unheeded. On Wednesday Superintendent McMichael was in the city, and seeing the need, sent a request for new wires. It is probable a new line to St. Paul will be laid at once.

T. H. Hawks has returned from a three-weeks' trip to the East.

The iron on the new bridge is laid nearly across, and frogs for the switches for the second draw have been put in place. After the ice goes out a dredge will be put at work dredging for the abutments and piers of the second draw.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Red Lake Courier: The present legislature contains too many gubernatorial aspirants for its own good. Several meritorious primary bills were killed because they interfered with the plans of some of the prospective governors. The Lund bill was an example. Mr. Lund figures he stands no show in a state convention, but believes he would win in a primary election.

Crookston Journal: Senator Knute Nelson says that many important changes are needed in the tariff, many of the schedules being too high, and he thinks that tariff revision will be on the program at the extra session. Possibly it may be on the program, but will the senators who represent the tariff protected trust permit any reduction?

Goodhue County News: There has been some discussion whether it is right for soldiers to carry sharpened swords. Of course, it is wrong. If a soldier is going to kill a man he should tickle him to death with a chicken feather. The idea of killing a man with a sword is abhorrent to every lover of the noble game of war. It is quite too rude.

Annandale Advocate: So long as the people let others do their thinking in politics, so long as they honor strange men and neglect their true friends at the polls, so long will the grafter in business and politics flourish. The worship of money is the curse of business and petty strife and jealousy degrades politics.

Austin Register: While the czar cowers in his palace, President Roosevelt is mingling with the people and hunting coyotes and jack rabbits with the cowboys on the Western plains. This tells the story of the two nations pretty clearly.

SMILING REMARKS.

Puck: He—Before proposing, Miss—er—Gertie, I wish to know if you have anything in the bank.

She—Yes, Mr. Poorman; I have a sweetheart there and we are to be married next week.

Atlanta Constitution: "John writes from the college," said the old man, "that I've sorter lowered his dignity."

"How so?"

"By payin' for his edication with the money from last year's watermelon crop."

Chicago Tribune: Borroughs—Can you lend me a dollar, old man?

Markley—Don't talk that way. Surely, you don't mean that.

Borroughs—Why don't I?

Markley—You mean "Will you lend me a dollar?"

Philadelphia Ledger: "My daughter was practicing her new concert piece this afternoon," said the woman next door.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Bitter, "I heard her."

"How was it?"

"Why, I simply couldn't get away; that's how it was."

Cleveland Leader: Kind Friend—You make your biggest hit in the second scene of Act III.

Matinee Idol—Sir, I do not appear in that scene at all!

Kind Friend—Well, my dear man, I'm not to blame for that, am I? I didn't write the play, you know.

Chicago Tribune: Mrs. Billus—Your prejudice against your Uncle Hiram is beyond my understanding. Why, he's perfectly harmless. He wouldn't hurt a fly.

Mrs. Hankus—I know he wouldn't, but does a neat housekeeper like to have a man of that kind around?

POINTERS BY PEASE.

Anoka Union: The board of control is Democratic now.

The people's president is Theodore Roosevelt.

Why is it easier to kill measures in the senate than the house?

Isn't $6,000 each a little steep to pay for pictures for the new capital?

The present legislature will be more celebrated for the bills it didn't pass than for those it did.

There are scores of Republicans in Minnesota who can be elected governor as easy as falling off a log next year.

The legislature failed to monkey with the primary election law and the old law stands for two years more.

The latest steal originating in St. Paul is the purchase of a governor's mansion at two prices. The old boy is always up to snuff.

Many a meritorious bill meets defeat in the legislature because the introducer is unpopular, and gives the members a chance to play even.

Whitewash is the true name for the report made on the state auditor's office investigation, by the legislative committee. The law was followed, but that's nothing. Bah.

The First Man Out.

Baltimore Herald: A minister's son, who lived up to the reputation of his class, was a heavy drinker and a great joker. All efforts to reform him were futile, particularly the last one, which was in this wise: Dead drunk, his friends put him into a coffin and lowered him into an open grave.

His would-be reformers waited behind the monuments to witness the effect of his temporary burial. Eventually he raised up the loose lid, appeared head and shoulders above the grave, looked about a moment and muttered:

"Resurrection day, by thunder, and I'm the first man out!"

In a Japanese Restaurant.

From "A Traveler's Sketch In Japan": "Moving silently on straw sandals, the waiter brought me a bill of fare. Not an ordinary bill of fare. It is a piece of black lacquered wood, the menu written on it with white chalk, in Japanese characters only. If a dish cannot be written further the finger is passed over that number and it disappears from the menu. I began at the right-hand side, remembering that the Japanese do always the opposite from the way we should do—and lo! I got a cup of bullion. It was not properly salted, but with a pinch or so tasted excellent. I then pointed at the next vertical column—they also read upside down here—and the waiter brought me soup. It was waved away. Number three looked like a dish of worms; minute fish—I believe they call them "bait" on the hotel menu—with their eyes like tiny black dots. They are baked in a bunch, and with a little Worcestershire sauce are quite palatable."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A girl never underestimates the importance to the world of titles, matinees and bon bons.

When a man retires from business to take life easy, he has to get up all the earlier to pull his son out of bed.

There is something about a woman's hat that makes a man feel sympathy for the inventor of flying machines.

You can always convince a woman that it is more becoming for her to wear her hair the way she does than it would be for anybody else.

NO ACTION TAKEN

Water Board Lays Over Several Extension Pipe Bids.

Petitions For Duluth Heights Auxiliary System Now Ready.

The board of water and light commissioners met yesterday but took no definite action in the matter of awarding the contracts on the bids for furnishing water pipes to be used in the extensions this coming year, for the reason that no assurance could be had from the companies submitting the bids that the piping can be furnished when desired. The commissioners will hold another meeting Saturday after they have taken the subject up again with the parties bidding and secured further information as to the earliest date that the material can be had.

The bids submitted for the iron pipes were as follows:

United States Castiron Pipe and Furnace Co., Chicago, $28.40 per ton for water pipe, $30.40 per ton for four-inch gas pipe and $28.40 for six-inch pipe or over.

R. D. Wood & Co., Philadelphia, $31.50 per ton for water pipe, $33 per ton for four-inch and $32 for six-inch gas pipe or over.

Crowley Electric company, Duluth, representing the Massallon, O., Iron and Steel company, six, eight or ten-inch water pipe $27.45, four-inch gas pipe $29.50, all larger sizes $29.50.

Two bids were received for furnishing special castings the National Iron Co. and the J. T. Thompson Foundry Co., of Duluth, bidding 3¾ cents per pound and the South Park Foundry Co. of St. Paul, 3 cents flat. It was ordered by the board that the contract be equally divided between the two local bidders.

The only bid received for furnishing dlange pipe for the Park Point extension was submitted by the United States Castiron Pipe and Furance company, at two cents per pound. It is understood that the Crowley Electric company, representing an outside concern will submit a bid at the next meeting.

The board, it is claimed, has already been delayed in the matter of water extensions on account of the bond issue and the members are anxious that assurance be given of the delivery of the new piping by June 1 next.

The petitions of the residents of Duluth Heights for an auxiliary water system have all been signed, but were not presented to the water board yesterday, though the board already has a list of the names of the signers and the amounts each subscribed.

The petitions are now in the hands of Alderman W. E. McEwen of the Heights, and it is expected that they will be presented at the Saturday meeting of the board. The guarantee required by the water commission before the project be investigated with the idea of building the auxiliary system was about $1,200, but the residents of that part of the city have already subscribed over $1,300. After the petitions are received the water board will direct an investigation as to the quantity and quality of the water to be had.

The impression given by the morning paper that the board of public works has to urge the water board in the matter of refilling trenches after the laying of water pipes, is said to be misleading, from the fact that there is a perfect understanding between the two departments, and the water board proceeds with the refilling just as soon as it is notified by the board of public works. During the winter season there were a number of service pipes laid, and the frost being in the ground, it has settled away since warm weather came on, leaving numerous depressions. These depressions, the water department claims, are filled as fast as they can be reached and the department is notified of them.

commissioners are to get $3,600. The senate made it $4,500 straight, and sticks to that. A conference committee has been appointed.

* * *

The senate held its first real afternoon session yesterday, not counting those held for consideration of special orders, but did not get through a great amount of work, an unexpected flood of oratory on the Hugo bill taking up much time.

* * *

Senator P. Fitzpatrick of Winona made a speech that beat the Hugo bill, which gives Bethel associations power to give legal consent to the adoption of children left in their charge when the mother does not give her consent.

Senator Fitzpatrick said that the only argument in favor of the bill was that the intentions of the Bethel people were good. He asserted that a certain locality was reputed to be paved with good intentions, but they had not been able to withstand the extreme heat.

"When this bill was up before," the senator said, "the genial statesman from the Zenith City beside the unsalted seas (Senator Laybourn) was its sponsor. Now, we find that it has been turned over to his affable colleague from the Forty-ninth district (Senator Hawkins), where everything is salted-even the mines. His ways are so winning and his smile so persuasive that only a cast iron statue could withstand them. We have given Duluth almost everything that it has asked during the present session, including a toy navy and the right to bond itself, yet this measure is one in which the whole state is concerned and it should be voted down without hesitation.

"But in this bill there is a principle at stake which is above all personalities. It is proposed that this society shall step in over the courts and shall override the constitution of the state and the nation, for the purpose of wresting a child from its mother's arms and binding it out to whomsoever it pleases. There is no necessity for such a law. We have at present abundant means of disposing of abandoned children without enacting this legislation, which I consider the most vicious which has been proposed during the present session."

Senator Fitzpatrick closed with a touching appeal to the members of the senate, from the standpoint of their own families and was so convincing in his argument that he won votes and had some to sapre. There were only 15 votes for the bill and 27 against.

* * *

The house passed the Cooke senate bill, giving the courts of Minnesota and Wisconsin concurrent jurisdiction over interstate waters. Wisconsin is taking similar action, and the idea is to make it impossible for violators of game laws in boundary waters to escape justice by flying to one state or the other.

* * *

G. W. Armstrong of Minenapolis tried to get a suspension of the rules on his bill legalizing the acts of the state auditor and the timber board in illegally extending the time of certain Minneapolis lumbermen in cutting timber off state lands in Northern Minnesota. This was one of the cases that figured in the Johnson reports against the state auditor's office. The committee on public accounts and expenditures looked into these cases, and while it found a technical violation of law, endorsed it as being fair. Had the time not been extended beyond the time allowed by law, the lumbermen would have had to pay to the state $60,000 for nothing.

W. C. Fraser and R. H. Jefferson, two of the minority of the public accounts committee who have opposed the committee's whitewash, opposed the suspension of the rules and spoke against the bill.

The motion which was to take the bill from general orders and advance it to the calendar, was lost.

* * *

The senate yesterday passed P. E. Dowling's bill allowing an extra assistant county attorney for St. Louis county at $1,000 a year.

* * *

The house yesterday afternoon passed the Johnson bill taxing express companies 4 per cent on their gross earnings in this state, replacing the present tax of 6 per cent on their net earnings. There were no negative votes.

* * *

Ward Stone yesterday afternoon tried to get a 9 o'clock session arranged for this morning, but the house voted him down, and met at the usual hour, 10 o'clock, this morning. Night sessions are expected to begin every day.

* * *

The house passed the two bills auxiliary to the code. One makes Mark B. Dunnell of Owatonna the editor and annotator of the revised code, for which he is to get $3,500, with an allowance of $1,500 for expenses and assistance.

The other provides that the attorney general, secretary of state and state expert printer shall have charge of the publication of the code in one volume, to be put out at a price of not more than $5 per volume.

* * *

The code is now out of the way, so far as the legislature is concerned, and awaits only enrolling and the governor's signature to become law. It will become effective March 1, 1906.

SHOE COMPANY BLAMELESS.

Brockton, Mass., April 14.—The R. B. Grover company, and its agents were declared to be blameless for the explosion which destroyed its shoe factory here last March and caused the death of fifty-seven persons, by the finding of Judge Bixby, which was made public yesterday. Judge Bixby held an inquest into the death of Richard Spriggins, one of the victims. The judge finds that Spriggins' death was due to burns from the fire which followed the explosion of the boiler. The explosion is held to be due to a defect which could not have been discovered.

Mrs. Stahl Asks Divorce.

Margaret Stahl, wife of Edward J. Stahl, has begun an action for a divorce in district court of this county. She alleges a systematic course of illtreatment commencing almost immediately after their marriage, July 29, 1901, at Superior, Wis., and charges habitual drunkenness. Mrs. Stahl asks for a decree, the custody of their little daughter and such alimony as the court may direct. During the pendency of the action she claims she will have to support herself and child by her own labor.

BUTTER SCARCEST THING IN MARKET

Conditions Approaching a Famine Now Exist In Duluth.

Strawberries and Green Vegetables Plentiful—Other Market News.

"Anything you care to ask?" was the reply given by a Michigan street commission man yesterday, when asked the price of butter.

"There is a regular butter famine in Duluth at the present time," he continued, "and it is almost impossible to get enough to supply the market, even at the high price that is asked for it.

"It is hard to tell the reason for the scarcity, but I believe the introduction of the cream separators is largely responsible for the condition of the market, which has existed for months past. A traveling agent told me yesterday that 120 cream separators had been sold to farmers between here and St. Paul in the last two weeks alone. All the big farmers in the state now have the separators, and they find it easier and more profitable to separate the cream and send it to the cities for sale to the creameries than it is to make butter. The result is that for the last year or more our supply of dairy butter has been steadily diminishing, making the demand for the creamery butter greater. At the present time the price of creamery butter is 32 cents on the street, and the retailers are getting anywhere from that up to 40 cents a pound for it. Dairies are selling at 25 cents again.

"At this season of the year the price should begin to get lower, but there does not seem to be any prospect of a break for several days at least."

* * *

Strawberries are selling at two pint boxes for a quarter in the stores, or at least such is the announcement of the wholesale dealers.

The berries have been coming in freely during the last week, and the price has been steadily decreasing. The Florida crop is a large one, and it is now well on the market. Next week the local dealers will be receiving carload shipments of berries, and from that time until the Minnesota crop is ripe they will be plentiful.

* * *

All kinds of vegetables are lower this week, owing to the large shipments of Southern green vegetables which have been received. Potatoes are selling at 32 cents a bushel, which is the lowest mark reached since the Minnesota crop came on to the market last year. The market is very dull even at this figure, and unless there is a brisker demand the price may go still lower before the new crop comes on the market. Several small consignments of new potatoes have already been received.

New ripe tomatoes from Mexico were received in Duluth last week. The consignment came as a local shipment from Chicago, and the price is high owing to the heavy freight rates, but epicures will be able to secure them from this time on. The Florida crop is just ripening, and one or two consignments are expected from Florida.

* * *

Oranges are much firmer in price. There has been an almost unprecedented demand for them during the last two weeks, as they have been about the only fresh fruit on the market in any quantities. They have to be shipped in refrigerator cars now, and this has caused some raise in the price. The market is firm at from $2.50 to $3 per box.

* * *

Eggs are firmer this week, the market averaging about 17 cents a dozen.

The raise in price is due to the very heavy demand which exists at the present time. The transations on the Duluth egg market have been enormous during the last week or ten days. The receipts continue just as heavy as they were two weeks ago when the price was falling, but the demand keeps the market leaned up. It will continue very heavy from now until after Easter, and there is not much likelihood of any lower price for the holiday trade.

As soon as the demand slumps after Easter the dealers will begin putting eggs in old storage for next winter. This will keep the price from breaking to any extent.

* * *

Cheese is firmer this week. The old cured cheese stocks are about cleaned up, and the new cheese is just beginning to come in.

* * *

Poultry is soaring in price and has become a luxury which only the silk stockings can afford. Spring chickens and hens are selling on Michigan street at 16 cents a pound and the retail dealers are asking 2 tor 3 cents more. The receipts have been very light during the last week or ten days, and those who have poultry are able to ask almost anything they please for it. Turkeys, geese and ducks are almost unknown quantities at the present time, and about the only poultry trade is in hens and spring chickens.

* * *

Meat prices have jumped a notch in every city in the country during the last week, and in Duluth they are higher than they have been for a year or more. Steers are sellin at 9 to 9½ cents, while the lowest grade of cows are quoted at 7 and 7½ cents.

Mutton is quoted at 9 cents and pork loins at 11 and 11½ cents a pound.

The consignments of dressed meats received in Duluth during the last ten days have been very light, and the retail butchers have been experiencing some difficulty in securing sufficient stock to supply their trade.

* * *

Unless the wholesale prices are cut during the next week or ten days, there will be a raise in the retail prices. With the reasonably low wholesale prices which have existed all winter, the retailers have been able to sell at moderate prices and make a fair profit, but the raise in price made by the wholesalers will cut off a large share of this profit.

ALLEY MURDER BILL IS KILLED BY SENATE

that the bill should not apply to the present interchangeable mileage issued by the railroads.

On this point A. K. Ware of Northfield, the author of several railroad measures, said that he had looked into the matter and found that there was just one railroad in the state that issued mileage not good on other roads—interchangeable, that is—and that therefore the bill could apply only to that road, which is the Northern Pacific. All of the other roads issue mileage that is interchangeable, and the bill would not apply.

He said further that the bill was introduced simply to stave off more dangerous legislation, and that the author first introduced a bill that was not so bad, as it provided for a 2½-inch rate and provided for mileage books of less than 2,000 miles, but the railroads gave it out that they did not like such a bill, and it was withdrawn and this one substituted.

"I was much surprised," said Capt. Ray T. Lewis of Duluth to The Herald yesterday after his return from the launching of the battleship Minnesota, "to note in a couple of Minnesota papers, including the morning paper in Duluth, statements that Frank A. Day, the governor's private secretary and representative at the launching, had made remarks in his speech that were in bad taste and that affronted the Southerners present at the launching.

"I wish you to say for me that this is absolutely untrue, and the first intimation I have heard of such a thing was after I had returned. Mr. Day made a splendid talk and a perfectly proper one, and he was well received, by the Northerners as well as by the Southerners. There were absolutely no adverse criticisms at the time it was made or afterwards, and in fact there was nothing to criticise, or that could have offended the most touchy of our Southern friends. I am sorry such reports got abroad, and I want to do all I can to correct them."

DRINKS FATAL DOSE BEFORE WIFE'S EYES.

Minneapolis, April 14.—Before she could make an outcry or an attempt to stop him in his mad purpose, Mrs. George Lucke, was forced to see her husband drink a fatal potion of carbolic acid. Lucke gave no reason for his deed and after taking the poison did not utter a word. Death came in ten minutes.

Lucke came to Minneapolis from Clinton, Iowa, four weeks ago and has since then been employed in the Minneapolis Steel and Machinery works. A week ago last Sunday he sent for his wife and child and they arrived last Sunday. The man and wife appeared to be happy and contented.

HOMESTEADER IS MISSING

Disappeared In November —Owns Valuable Claim Near Bemidji.

Bemidji, Minn., April 14.—One of the most peculiar disappearances in the history of Northern Minnesota has come to light in the absence of Magnus E. Wold, who owns a valuable claim in the town of Buzzle, about eight miles west of Bemidji, and whose whereabouts have been unknown since last November. Wold had lived on the land for nearly five years and left last August for North Dakota, where he was engaged in the harvest fields, and he intended to return to the claim to make final proof. It has developed however, that since last November he has not visited the land and it is thought by relatives of the missing man that he is dead.

The land is located on the line of the Crookston Lumber company's new logging spur, being built north from Wilton, and it is claimed that a townsite is being platted upon it. If this be true the land will be worth several thousands of dollars.

A contest has been instituted against the land by Jacob Near, and the case will come up for trial the latter part of the present month. The missing man's relatives heard nothing of his disappearance until they had learned that a contest had been instituted against him, and upon making inquiries learned that he had been absent from the land and that his neighbors had heard nothing of him since he left for the harvest fields.

BLACKNESS OF THE NEGRO

Defense Against Sun's Rays, Says Surgeon Major Woodruff.

Washington, April 14.—A London letter to the Washington Star says:

Surgeon Maj. Charles Woodruff of the United States army has solved the interesting problem, "Why is the negro black?"

The answer, roughly summarized, is that his blackness is his defense against the dangers of the sun. The entire question is treated by Maj. Woodruff in an exhaustive treatise published by Messrs. Rebman, under the title of "The Effects of Tropical Light on White Men."

Sun rays are divided into two classes—long and short. The latter are dangerous to all persons who are not defended from them; the former make for heat. To avoid these dangers the pure negro has evolved a black skin and nocturnal habits.

The defensive skin is an armor of pigment just under the outer skin. It varies in intensity of color from the coal black negro of the tropics to the white man of Northern latitudes. The pigment is always there just sufficient in strength to resist the danger of varying climes. This accounts for the varying colors of different races—black, red, yellow, copper and white. It is absent in albinos—a sign of degeneration, explains Maj. Woodruff.

An extreme illustration of the danger of rays is provided by radium. It is stated that a single pound of radium in a room would kill everyone present by the blasting force of its rays. The negro's nocturnal habits are rendered necessary by the conversion of dangerous sun rays into harmless but uncomfortable heat rays. This is how Maj. Woodruff states the facts of the case in this respect:

"The negro is really a nocturnal animal, like the other black animals of the tropics. Left to himself, he behaves like a cat, inclined to sleep all day, hiding away somewhere, and becomes lively, energetic and active at night. In the Southern states the plantation negroes can be heard all night long, prowling about, shouting, singing, courting and chicken stealing.

"Their dances, camp meeting and household habits are based on this nocturnal instinct to hide from the light, even if they are better protected than we."

The negro's natural armor is only efficient against natural heat; in a dark atmosphere the black skin ceases to throw off heat and the negro suffers. In a stoke hole, for instance, he is usually the first man to collapse, even when white men are unaffected.

BY CHILD'S REMARK

Father Was Convicted of Murder and Robbery.

Berlin, April 14.—Gustav Hampel, owner of a small hotel in Weicheron, Prussian Poland, who some time ago returned to this country from the United States, has been convicted of murder on the testimony of his 6-year-old daughter.

A servant girl working in the hotel recently won 600 marks in a lottery. While on her way to her parents' house with the money she was murdered and her money taken.

A bloody knife was found by the police near the body. A detective went into the hotel and asked if anybody knew the knife. As soon as the little girl saw the knife she exclaimed: "Why, that is papa's knife," whereupon Hampel broke down and confessed.

Hold Social Session.

After initiating a class of fifteen into membership, the members of Alpha council, No. 1, Modern Samaritans, held an enjoyable social session and smoker, at Elks' hall last evening. Several out of town visiting neighbors took part in the impromptu speech-making and story telling. The council initiated a large class two weeks ago and is preparing to take in another in about two weeks.

ST. JOHN'S HOSPITAL.

The good that is done by St. John's Hospital of Lowell, Mass., will ever be held in grateful memory by thousands of people. The Sisters of Charity who care for the sick and ailing at this institution say: "We cheerfully recommend Father John's Medicine as a good remedy for colds, bronchial troubles, etc., also a tonic for building up the system. The ingredients of which it is composed seem to be perfectly safe from troubles specified above." (Signed) Sisters of Charity, St. John's Hospital, Lowell, Mass.

Father John's Medicine prevents Pneumonia and Consumption and cures all Throat and Lung Troubles. No alcohol or poisonous drugs. Cures colds or money back. Builds you up.

Sold in 50c and $1.00 bottles. The $1.00 size contains three times the quantity of the 50c size. Father John's Medicine is for sale by all druggists; the L. W. Leithhead Drug Co., wholesale distributors.

WHEAT IS LOWER

Market Opens Stronger But Soon Has a Sharp Decline.

Shipments From Argentina Heavy—Strength In Flax.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 14.—The wheat market was strong at the opening today but soon turned weaker and continued so for the remainder of the session, closing at lower prices. The Liverpool market closed ¼@¾d higher, Paris and eBrlin ¼c higher, Budapest ¼c lower and Antwerp 1¼c higher. The Argentina shipments were heavy and were responsible fo rsome of the weakness that developed.

The Duluth market closed with a loss of ⅝c on July, Chicago ⅛c lower, Minneapolis ⅜c lower and New York ⅛-¼c lower. The May option in Duluth lost 1⅛c, in Minneapolis 1⅜c, in Chicago 1⅞c and in New York it was ¼c higher.

There has been much speculation as to the amount of wheat that is to be shipped from Duluth to Minneapolis on sales made within the past few days, all of the wheat being of contract grade. Some put it as high as half a million bushels, but among those who ought to be informed it is put at not to exceed 250,000 bus.

Car receipts at Duluth were 11, against 18 last year, and at Minneapolis 93, against 113 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 104, against 131 last year. Chicago received 45, against 22 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 228,592 bus., last year 212,256 bus. Shipments 321,291 bus., last year 292,623 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 84,309 bus.

Argentine shipments of wheat this week aggregated 4,408,000 bus., against 3,628,000 bus. last week and 3,230,000 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d higher. May corn in the Chicago market closed ⅜-½c lower. May oats closed ⅜c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 348,150 bus., last year 234,115 bus. Shipments 678,858 bus., last year 186,373 bus. Clearances were 327,573 bus. Shipments of corn this week from Argentina aggregated 351,000 bus, against 231,000 bus last week and 437,000 bus last year.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was fairly active. The July option opened ⅝c higher at $1.04, fell to $1.02¾ at 10:45, rallied to $1.03¾ at 11:35, and then fell to $1.02¾ at 12:07. Following that it rallied to $1.03 at 12:45, but again fell off and closed at $1.02¾, a decline for the day of ¾c. The May option opened ¼c higher at $1.05¾, fell to $1.05 and closed at $1.05¼. This was a loss of 1¼c.

Cash trading was light as ever and No. 1 northern continued at 1c under May.

Flax was dull, with trading in the later options almost nothing. May option unchanged at $1.33¾, sold up to $1.33⅝ and closed there, a gain of 1½c. The October option closed ¾c higher at $1.25½.

Oats made a decline of ⅜c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive—No. 1 northern, $1.04¼; on track No. 1 northern, $1.04¼. No. 2 northern, 98¼@$1.03¾. Durum No. 1, 91c; No. 2, 90c; May, $1.05¼; July, $1.02⅝; September, 94½. Flax to arrive, $1.33⅛; on track, $1.32⅝; May, $1.33⅜; September, $1.25½; October, $1.25½. Oats to arrive, 29⅜c; on track, 29¾c. Rye to arrive, 77c; on track, 77c. Barley: Feed, 29½@41c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 111, last year, 18; corn, 1; oats, 3; barley, 4; flax, 8; last year, 21.

Receipts: Wheat, 3,282; oats, 7,337; flax, 2,321.

Shipments: Oats, 455,879.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Shipments and Rains Weaken Price of Wheat.

Chicago, April 14.—Liberal shipments from Argentina and general rains throughout the Southwestern portion of the United States had a weakening influence on the wheat market here today. Pit traders were fairly liberal sellers. One of the large holders also was on the selling side. In sympathy with high prices at Liverpool the market opened firm, with July up c to 1¢ at 88½ to 88¾c. May was unchanged to ⅛c higher at $1.16¾ to $1.17¼. Following a sharp break at Minneapolis the market here became easier, July declining to 88¼c. May sold off to $1.16. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 149 cars, against 265 last week and 153 cars a year ago.

Several commission houses had moderate offerings of May, with comparatively little demand, the price steadily declined. Distant features also became still weaker, July selling off to 87⅝c. The market closed weak, with May at the lowest point of the day at $1.14⅞, a net decline of 1⅞c. July was down 1½c at 87⅛@87⅝c.

Influenced by the easy tone of wheat, the corn market showed some weakness. Selling was from influential sources. After opening a shade to ⅛@¼c higher at 48⅝c to 48¾c, July sold off to 48¼c. Local receipts were light, at 88 cars, with six of contract grade.

Lower prices at the sample tables caused additional weakness in speculative values. After selling off to 48⅛@⅜c, July closed at 48⅜c, a decline of 1⅛@1¼c.

Oats were comparatively firm on a good general demand. Small receipts wer a factor in the situation. July opened unchanged to ⅛c up at 30⅜c to 30¼c and held at 30⅜c. Local receipts were 56 cars.

A decline in the price of live hogs caused some weakness in provisions. The volume of trading was very small. July pork was off 2½c at $13.15. Lard and ribs were down 2½c at $7.50 and $7.37½ respectively.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.14⅞; July, 87¾c, Sept., 82½@83c. Corn—April 48c; May, 48½c; July, 48⅜c; Sept., 48⅜@½c. Oats—May, 30@30½c; July, 30c; Sept., 29¼c. Pork—May, $12.82½@12.85; July, $13.07½. Lard—April, $7.22½; May, $7.30; July, $7.47½; Sept., $7.62½. Ribs—May, $7.07½@7.10, July, $7.32½@7.35; Sept., $7.52½. Rye—April, 78c; May, 77½@78c; Sept., 66c. Flax—cash, northwestern, $1.32; southwestern, $1.25; April, $1.25; May, $1.25. Timothy—April, $2.85; Sept., $3.20. Clover—April, $14.00. Barley—Cash, 40@49c. Cash wheat—2 red, $1.16@1.17; 3 red, $1.00@1.15; 2 hard, $1.14@1.17; 3 hard, $1.00@1.14; 1 northern, $1.16@1.17½; 2 northern, $1.05@1.15; 3 spring, $1.00@1.15. Corn—2, 49¼@½c; 3, 48½c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The opening proved to be the high point of today's market after which it assumed a dragging tendency. Selling today has been persistently on a prominent local interest and aside from this there seems to be no special feature to the trade. The change in the weather was not looked upon as alarming and whatever buying power it possessed probably petered out at the opening. While the decline in the deferred futures was not severe, nevertheless showed activity on the part of the bear element and seemed to suggest that bullish enthusiasm while present conditions remain favorable will be sharply contested. The market has had a fair upturn from the low point and a little oozing out of the bull spirit is not to be wondered at. The action of the market is not at all bad and we continue to look for a trading market.

Corn—The dragging tendency in wheat contributed to the easier feeling in this market and the desire to take profits undoubtedly was responsible for the moderate setback. Comparing receipts and shipments, receipts are far from being burdensome, and is an incentive to bull operations in this market. The dragging tendency seemed to rule throughout the session and what little support the market received seemed to come from scattered commission house buying. Today's session did not develop the crowd one would expect from the statistics and to that extent the market seemed disappointing. We continue to feel, however, this market is still a good trading affair and likely to receive support when most needed.

Oats—This market eased off in sympathy with other grains. We still feel that as we approach May the market will be obliged to take liquidation.

* * *

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat started strong on firm cables, light Southwestern receipts and cold weather with but little precipitation throughout the West. As the day wore on the market settled back on moderate profit-taking and the absence of anything new of a bullish character. The forecast indicates no change in weather conditions except in lower temperatures. The Modern Miller considers the position of winter wheat satisfactory for this season of the year, but commcuts on the increasing number of complaints based on insufficient moisture. The changing crop advises, from both the winter wheat and spring wheat sections is not entirely satisfactory. It seems probable that the May bulls should they carry the deal through, will have less contract wheat to take than figures alone would indicate. Much of the wheat at outside points, while nominally of the contract grade, would not pass inspection here. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 59 cars.

Corn—Corn opened over 49c for the May delivery, but failed to maintain the advance. Trade was small as has been usual of late and pit traders were distinctly bearish and seized every opportunity to pound the market. They were helped by some profit-taking. The cash market was easier for the best grades and also 1c lower for the poorer qualities. Ninety-eight cars for tomorrow.

* * *

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat—Northwest temperatures were lower again this morning and reports from reliable farmers in the Red River valley claim seeded wheat is rotting in the ground rather than showing any signs of germinating and a good deal of seeding will have to be done over. Cash demands were generally excellent, the same premiums as yesterday viz.—4c to 6c was paid for contract grades over May today. There is so much outside buying that the cash market is on a very strong basis. We believe those in control still accumulating wheat on all breaks and that the market is merely scoring for another upturn to high level. It is possible for the reaction to extend a little further, but inasmuch as market conditions are naturally strong and we have had a fair decline from top, would suggest owning some wheat around this level and averaging same if opportunity afforded doing so tomorrow.

* * *

Chicago Record-Herald: "Owners of May wheat in Chicago are masters of the situation and I believe they intend to take in and pay for every bushel that they can deliver to them," said C. H. Spencer of St. Louis, who was here yesterday. "By merchandising this wheat even on the basis of present prospects for the next wheat crop they will lose less money than if they attempted to sell the wheat out in the pit. The new crop is not made yet, by any means, and I believe that whether it turns out as well as it looks now or not every bushel of old wheat that is good will be wanted by millers. There are fully 5,000,000 bushels of wheat in the visible supply in Minneapolis, Duluth, St. Louis and Kansas City that is good for nothing except chicken or hog feed. At the other extreme is a stock of possibly 8,000,000 bushels of contract grade that is too high priced to grind at present. Between the two are millers' stocks for the next four months, with supplies of flour in all positions lower than at any time within my knowledge. The shortage in May wheat extends from Maine to California and there is considerable foreign shortage besides. My impression is that there is a May wheat holding of 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 bushels and that the shortage s widely scattered. Everyone of these shorts will have to cover. I would not attempt to say who own the wheat. I do know of three men who own some wheat and ony one of these could buy the entire visible supply, dump it into Lake Michigan and still have all the money left that he needs."

* * *

Chicago Inter-Ocean: A conference of the wheat bulls was held yesterday by John W. Gates with most of his leading brokers.

The latter has come to Chicago to stay some time and is preparing for emergencies. Gates talked very confidently of his position and was assured by some of his bull friends that he had the whiphand of the lead and can dictate prices to shorts. One of the wheat bulls figures that the Gates interest can easily merchandise all the cash wheat it will be forced to take on May trades, and dictate prices to the millers for the next two months. One bull told Gates that he could easily sell 75 per cent of the cash wheat he would get on his May contracts and could afford to dump the balance.

* * *

Chicago: The buying of about 1,000,000 bus May oats by Lamson, which was the speculative feature of that market, was generally supposed to have been the covering of a short line put out some time ago. There was another suggestion, however, and that was that a big elevator interest was buying in May through that house because the extremely light receipts and the strength of standard oats in the cash market make it more profitable to take in the May than to attempt to manufacture standard oats for May delivery. —Tribune.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

The Tone of the Market Was Strong Throughout.

St. Paul Was Leader and Closed Five Points Higher.

New York, April 14.—Yesterday's conspicuous features held their place in the opening trading in the stock market this morning. Reading rose an extreme ¾ on running sales of 12,600 shares and Union Pacific as much on running sales of 6,500 shares. There was a jump of 2⅛ in Woolen and of 1¾ in Erie second preferred. Tennessee Coal, Colorado Fuel, Sugar and Metropolitan Securities gained a point and United States Steel preferred, Smelting, General Electric, Metropolitan Street Railway, St. Paul and Colorado & Southern large fractions.

An early advance was but indifferently maintained and there were indications of growing pressure against Illinois Central, Smelting, and Amalgamated Copper. Most of the leaders rose above their first prices before yielding and there was enough aggressive buying of other stocks to give an appearance of irregularity. There was a nexcellent distribution of speculative interest and transactions were uncommonly large in a number of usually neglected stocks. Near 11 o'clock, when New York Central, which has been a laggard of late, moved up to 160⅜, the tendency became generally upwards again. Union Pacific rose to 135⅝ and Reading to 99. The more notable advances were Woolen 4, the preferred 2¼, Philadelphia Rapid Transit and American Agricultural Chemical 2⅛. Northwestern preferred 2¼, Lead preferred 2 and Car, United States Pipe, Distillers Securities, Linseed, Smelting, Twin City Rapid Transit, General Electric and B. & O. preferred 1 to 1⅝.

The sustained strength of Union Pacific, St. Paul and New York Central, was the feature of the railroad list, which moved narrowly otherwise. B. & O., L. & N., Atchison, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo and Northwestern, however, rose 1. The movement amongst industrials and specialties showed great variety. Union Pacific touched 136⅝, New York Central 161 and St. Paul 181. The more notable gains amongst specialties were Hocking Valley, Car, Pressed Steel Car, Pipe, Beet Sugar and Linseed preferred 2, Philadelphia Rapid Transit 4 and American Express 8. Lead, Locomotive, Ice preferred, Federal Mining preferred and Pacific Mail lost a point and fractional declines were made in some prominent stocks. Bonds were irregular at noon.

An excited buying movement broke out in St. Paul after 12 o'clock and on purchases of many thousands of shares its price touched 183¼ or about 4 points above yesterday's final figures. Other transcontinental stocks did not rise materially above the level reached at noon, although Union Pacific brought 136⅝. Reading made a belated response to the forenoon advance in other Eastern trunk lines and rose above 144. Support developed on Locomotive and it recovered its loss.

Some new advances kept up the variety of the market, but realizing made an impression on the leaders, carrying Union Pacific back a point. Amalgamated Copper rose 2 per cent, large buying and Illinois Central and Smelting made headway against their early depression and rose 1½ over yesterday. Pressed Steel Car rose 1¼, Tennessee Coal 3, Sloss-Sheffield Steel 2 and some minor stocks a point. Rubber Goods preferred and Wabash preferred lost 1. Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred 1½ and Westinghouse Electric first preferred 4¾. The movement in Northern Securities on the curb with a rise of 5½ kept pace with the trans-continental stocks on the exchange. St. Paul rallied to 183⅜ before 2 o'clock.

Illinois Central was rushed up 4 points to above the previous high level. St. Paul was lifted 5 and the preferred 3. Rock Island on enormous absorption got up only a fraction. The railway Steel Spring stocks gained 2½. The realizing at other points was very large and prices of the leaders fell back a point or more. Locomotive preferred lost 1⅛ and Minneapolis, St. Paul and Soo preferred 2. The market rallied, but the closing was irregular.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, April 14.—Money on call firm, 2¾@3¼ per cent; closing bid 2¾; offered at 3. Time loans easy and dull; 60 days, 3½ per cent; 90 days and 6 months 3½@3¾ per cent; prime mercantile paper, 3¾@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.86.10@4.86.15 for demand and $4.84.25@4.84.35 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.84@4.87; commercial bills $4.83½. Bar silver, 57¼c. Mexican dollars, 44¼c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market closed very strong, under the leadership of its old-time favorite St. Paul, which closed sharply higher by 5 points. The railroad list seemed the center of attraction today, all issues closing higher with the industrial group inclined to sag, presumably from profit-taking. The tone of the market was strong throughout and the action of the stocks in again becoming leaders gave more confidence to buying operations. A story was circulated in connection with the advance in St. Paul that 75,000 shares had changed hands yesterday in two blocks at $1.85. This could not be confirmed, however. Take the market as a whole, stocks have had a sharp advance, in some cases remarkable ones, and whatever profit-taking has taken place has been well absorbed. It still looks as if the market would do some better.

C. B. MacDonald to B. E. Baker: This is what I hear of the Great Northern: They are going to capitalize their ore lands for $125,000,000, and the stock will be given share for share to the present Great Northern stockholders. They will lease the ore lands to the United States Steel corporation and they will pay 7 per cent on their stock.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 14.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 3 points, in response to lower cables, and turned easier immediately after the call on New Orleans bear pressure in connection with scattering liquidation and local selling, encouraged by good weather in the South and apprehension of a break in the ranks of Southern holders. After declining to a net loss of about 4@6 points, the market was steadied somewhat by Wall street buying, but the rally was slight, and sentiment seemed unsettled.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 20 points lower; middling uplands, 7.58; do, gulf, 8.10. Sales 500 bales. Futures closed steady; April 7.25; May, 7.38; June, 7.53; July, 7.36; August, 7.41; September, 7.44; October, 7.50; November, 7.51; December, 7.55; January, 7.60.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, April 14.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $137,273,351; gold, $68,986,193; silver, $24,-846,117.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Chicago, April 14.—Cattle—Receipts 3,000; steady. Good to prime steers, $5@6.65 poor to medium, $4.60@5.75; stockers and feeders, $2.50@5.10; cows, $2.00@5.60; heifers $3@6; canners, $1.60@3; bulls, $2.50@4.90 calves, $3@7. Hogs—Receipts 23,000, tomorrow 15,000; 5c lower. Mixed and butchers, $5.40@5.62½; good to choice heavy, $5.55@5.65; rough heavy, $5.45@5.55; light, $5.40@5.55; bulk of sales, $5.50@5.60. Sheep—Receipts 5,000; sheep and lambs steady. Good to choice wethers, $5.75@6.15; fair to choice mixed, $4.50@5.65; western sheep, $5@6; native lambs, $4.50@7.40; western lambs, $4.60@7.85.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul—Barrett & Zimmerman sold that the market held active in all branches. Heavy as well as the lighter grades sold rapidly. The bidding at the auction was aggressive and keen. Local buying seemed leading.

FIVE BADLY HURT

In Fire In Sweatshop Building In New York.

New York, April 14.—Five persons were badly hurt, fifty others narrowly escaped death or injury and hundreds were driven from adjoining tenements, in a fire early today which entirely destroyed the 7-story sweatshop building at 127-131 Hester street, and extended to and damaged several other nearby buildings. When the fire was at its height, the flames lit up the whole of the lower part of the city and the east river with a glare that could be seen for miles. The damage is estimated as close upon $100,000.

BUSINESS SECTION

Of the Town of Springvale Me., Burned.

Springvale, Me., April 14.—A loss estimated at more than $100,000 was caused by a fire which started early today in the shoe factory of W. R. Usher & Son here and spread to a number of the surrounding buildings. Assistance was summoned from Rochester, N. H., and Portland.

The fire was not gotten under control until after it had almost completely wiped out the business section of the town.

DESTINATION UNKNOWN.

Labuan, British Borneo, April 14.—The United States cruiser Raleigh sailed northward today. Her destination is unknown.

THE VERDICT.

Records of the ancient city Georgena, founded in 1640, better known as the present time as York Harbor, Maine, contain many quaint and unusual stories of the early life of the town says Harper's

At the entrance to York harbor a bold promontory known as Stage Neck extends some distance into the sea, from which formerly, in storm weather, a temporary light in the form of a lantern hoisted upon an upright pole was displayed as a warning to mariners.

One dark winter night a sloop was wrecked on these rocks. A survivor on being questioned about the catastrophe said:

"The vessel struck, turned over on her side, and the skipper and another barrel of whiskey rolled overboard."

The local coroner was summoned, and this somewhat startling verdict was returned:

"We find that the deceased fell from the masthead and was killed; he rolled overboard and was drowned; he floated ashore and froze to death; and the rats eat him up alive!"

A man is in "hard luck," indeed, if he has a wife who "never reads the ads," and who does her shopping in comparative ignorance of what things should cost.

SAULT IS OPEN

Three Boats Lock Through and More on the Way.

Steamer Thomas Wilson Opens Navigation—Marine News.

The first boats of the season to lock through the Sault canal came up this afternoon at 12:30. The steamer Thomas Wilson of the Wilson Transit company was the first boat to come through, and she was followed by the Duluth of the Western Transit company and the E. F. Holmes of the Hawgood line.

A dispatch to this effect was received by G. A. Tomlinson this afternoon, and the telegram goes on to say that the remainder of the fleet which was ice-bound at Detour, about twenty boats in all, are following the first one rapidly and will all have locked through by tonight. They will come right through to Duluth, so that navigation will be formally opened here within forty-eight hours, it is believed.

The down-bound boats which are tied up off Sheldrake have not been heard from, but it is believed that they are still in the ice there, nothing to the contrary having been heard for two days. The ice holding the down-bound boats was a good deal heavier than that which barred the way of the up-bound vessels in Mud lake.

The Thomas Wilson, which is the first boat to pass the Sault, has on several occasions opened navigation at the Sault and at Duluth. She will likely be the first boat to enter this port from lower lakes this year.

* * *

The only boat to leave the Duluth-Superior harbor today was the S. N. Parent, one of the Wolvin fleet, which left this morning with ore for Lake Erie.

The Mahoning is loading wheat for Buffalo and will likely leave the harbor today. Her clearance papers call for 50,000 bushels of wheat, but it is expected that she will take about 60,000 bushels in all.

The Northern Wave is scheduled to leave tomorrow with package freight for Buffalo. She will be the second vessel to leave the port with package freight this season. The Schuylkill left a few days ago with flour and wheat for Buffalo.

* * *

Now that the Sault is open it is likely that there will be a great exodus of vessels, which have been waiting here for news from that point. Ore boats will be leaving en force in a few days at least and others will have cargoes of grain of various kinds. From now on it is expected the vessel business will go on and the regular summer rush of incoming and outcoming boats will be on within two days.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

ATTEMPT TO REVERSE FOREST RESERVE VOTE

Resolutions to That Effect Introduced In Senate and House.

Simons' Bill For Settlement of Forfeited Taxes Killed By House.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The legislature is asked to say that it did not know what it was doing when it passed a resolution April 4, asking congress to throw open to settlement 225,000 acres of land in Northern Minnesota, now held up as a forest reserve, though 95 per cent of the timber has been cut off and most of the land is purely agricultural.

Resolutions to this effect, revoking the action of the two houses in passing the April 4th resolution, were introduced in the senate by Senator Morgan and in the house by J. R. Morley of Owatonna. They went over to Monday on notices of debate made in the senate by Hawkins, and in the house by N. F. Hugo.

• • •

Senator Wood this morning tried to get the senate to call from the railroad committee the Ware house bill fixing 2½ cents as the maximum rate for passenger fares in Minnesota.

Senator Hawkins said the senate had already killed a somewhat similar bill, and that to bring out the bill would be a useless waste of time. The motion was lost, 18 for and 22 against.

• • •

Senator Rieke tried to get the Ramsland bill purohibiting further insurance of state mineral leases withdrawn from the mining committee of which Pugh of Duluth is chairman.

Senator Pugh said he got the bill only yesterday and had called a meeting of his committee for this afternoon and he thought he had done his duty.

President Jones ruled that a suspension of the rules, requiring a two-thirds vote, was necessary and the motion failed, 28 for and 10 against, 42 being necessary.

• • •

Senator Gjertsen, after canvassing the situation, announced that he would not attempt to pass the chiropractic bill over the governor's veto.

• • •

Senator Schain procured the passage through the senate of a joint resolution commending the capitol commission for its work on the new capitol.

• • •

The omnibus appropriation bill was taken up in the house and the appropriations committee submitted a number of amendments which were adopted. The Anoka insane asylum in 1906 and the Hastings asylum in 1907 are given $40,000 apiece for new cottages. To help carry out the provisions of the railroad bills passed, the railroad and warehouse commission was given $10,000 more. The Rochester asylum got $6,000 more. The Grand Rapids agricultural experiment station got $2,000 more.

W. A. Nolan moved to increase the appropriation for publishing the session laws in newspapers from $30,000 to $40,000.

Armstrong of Minneapolis moved as a substitute to strike out the item altogether, saying that it does no good. His motion was lost. So was Mr. Nolan's, as Chairman Roberts of the appropriations committee said that the appropriation for this purpose was lower than usual, because the session laws would be 50 per cent smaller than usual, fewer bills having passed.

Anderegg tried to get in an item of $10,000 to buy a site for an industrial school for girls, but failed. So did all the others up to a late hour who tried to get in amendments. The senate will take the bill up this afternoon, and it will probably pass both bodies today.

• • •

The house killed Simon's bill providing for settlement of forefited taxes, a bill in which a number of Duluth parties were interested.

• • •

Thompson of Faribault called up his resolution allowing each member to call up one bill on Monday and get action on it, but it was voted down.

Rockne said that it would be all right if it applied to local bills, but it was dangerous to apply it to general bills.

J. A. Gates said it looked as though those who had been in control of the house all winter were getting their own bills through and refusing others the same rights.

Nick Jullar said if the house did less "rag chewing," it would pass more bills.

The house killed the rattlesnake bounty bill, also the senate bill raising the salaries of district judges to $4,200 a year.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

NON-UNION DRIVER

Badly Hurt By the Striking Teamsters In Chicago.

Peace Conference at Mayor's Office Apparently Futile.

Chicago, April 15.—Infuriated teamsters attacked a caravan of Montgomery Ward & Company's wagons near the Northwestern freight house at Kinzie and West Water street today, dragging John Cox, a non-union driver, from his wagon.

The attack was made so quickly that the police were taken by surprise, and it was only after a desperate fight that Cox was rescued.

A peace conference at the office of Mayor Dunne today was apparently futile. When the strike leaders emerged after a brief session, President Cornelius P. Shea of the Teamsters' union said:

"Negotiations are all off as far as I am concerned. We will not come back again unless the mayor sends for us."

The teamsters, President Shea said, were willing to end the strike if the locked out garment workers were immediately reinstated. This was refused by Ward & Company.

CONDITION UNCHANGED.

Atlanta, Ga., April 15.—The latest advices as to the condition of Joseph Jefferson, who is reported seriously ill at his winter home, West Palm Beach, Fla., are that his condition is unchanged. His family and friends are hopeful, and his physicians say the reports of his illness have somewhat exaggerated the seriousness of the case.

BIG CANNON BURSTS

Muzzle of Eight-Inch Gun on Iowa Blown Off.

Old Gun Which Had Been Fired Over Hundred Times.

Washington, April 15.—A telegram from the chief of staff of the North Atlantic squadron, received at the navy department today, states that the muzzle of one of the eight-inch guns of the Iowa blew off yesterday during target practice. No one was injured.

The telegram stated that after four of the eight-inch guns in target practice had been fired the muzzle of the fifth blew off at the first round. It was one of the old type mounted on the Iowa before the Spanish war and designed to use brown powder, and consequently had a much thinner muzzle than the new type of guns. It had been fired successfully 103 times and burst on the 104th time, with normal powder conditions, so far as now known. Several other guns of the same type on the Iowa and made at the same time have suffered similar accidents and this class of gun is being replaced as rapidly as possible with longer and thicker tubed weapons. The navy department has ordered a thorough investigation of this last accident.

SNOW SAVES FRUIT CROP IN NEBRASKA.

Lincoln, Neb., April 15.—The temperature last night was so far below the freezing point in Nebraska that all the fruit buds would have been killed had not the trees been covered with a blanket of heavy snow. Fruit growers say today that the snow has saved a large portion of the crop and that the trees are safe, provided another freeze does not come with the branches unprotected.

WORKMEN KILL POLICEMAN.

Lodz, April 15.—Two workmen shot and killed a policeman in the street. One of the assassins was arrested.

RUSSIAN FLEET STILL GOING NORTH LOOKING FOR TOGO'S SQUADRON

The Whereabouts of the Japanese Ships Remains a Mystery.

Russians Irritated Because British Warships Report Them.

St. Petersburg, April 15, 2:37 p. m.—No further news beyond that contained in the foreign telegrams, has been received regarding the squadron commanded by Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, but the impression continues that he is steaming toward the island of Formosa with the intention of giving battle if Admiral Togo accepts the challenge.

Some of the papers, notably the Novoe Vreyma, still manifest irritation at the activity of British warships in reporting the movements of the Russian squadron. The Novoe Vreyma says that the vessels of all nations are observing neutrality "with the exception, of course, of Great Britain." The paper takes particular exception to the fact that the British cruiser Ipnigenia transmitted by wireless telegraphy the information that she had passed Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet 140 miles from Saigon, which was very important news to the Japanese, inasmuch as Rojestvensky had succeeded in slipping by the Japanese scouts.

"For a commercial ship to report such a fact upon arrival at a port is quite natural," says the Novoe Vreyma, "but it is not so important as the news is then more or less old and in the meantime the fleet might have changed its course, but for a man-of-war to send such information to a coast station by wireless telegraphy is unfriendly.

"However, this is not the first time the British have conveyed a valuable warning to their friends. During the China-Japanese war, when Great Britain was on the side of China, a British cruiser at Wei-hai-wei warned the Chinese admiral by firing a salute upon the aproach of the Japanese fleet although at night, when it is not the custom to salute in that fashion."

The chief interest in the dispatch lies in its giving the exact location of the squadron, indicating that it steered almost due east from Madagascar, it is presumed here with the object of creating the impression that Rojestvensky intended to traverse the straits of Sunda and draw away the Japanese from the Malacca straits, through which he ultimately passed in safety.

FOOLED THE JAPS.

Russian Fleet Sailed Due East From Madagascar.

London, April 15.—A telegram from Singapore, Straits settlement, was received here today announcing that the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship company's steamer Marmora sighted five Russian battleships, April 3, in Lat. 8 deg. South, and Lon. 92 deg. East, steering for the straits of Sunda. The dispatch has no present significance. The fact that the Marmora, which was bound to London from Sydney, New South Wales, sighted the Russian squadron was reported early in the month from Colombo, Ceylon. The news apparently has now reached Singapore through outgoing steamers.

FROM THE FRONT.

Reports From Japanese and Russian Headquarters.

Tokio, April 15, 7 p. m.—The following official announcement was made today from the headquarters of the Japanese armies in Manchuria:

"Our forces advancing east along the Hailung road defeated a body of the enemy, April 14, near Usishihmu, ten miles east of Panshi, and vigorously chased them toward Tachotsu, twenty-six miles east of Panshi.

"Another cavalry force, advancing north from Singking, attacked the enemy holding a position five miles south of Pachatsu.

"There has been no change elsewhere in the military situation."

St. Petersburg, April 15.—Gen. Linevitch, in a dispatch to Emperor Nicholas, dated yesterday, says:

"Our cavalry, April 10, found the Japanese in occupation of a hill southward of Mt. Gaoschan, in the valley of the Hun river. The cavalry turned this position and forced the Japanese to evacuate it and retire westward."

TURNING MOVEMENT.

Liao Pass, April 15.—The expected Japanese turning movement is not developing, but preparations, it is understood are progressing for reenforcements, food and ammunition are being brought up from Newchwang. The Japanese outposts extend thirty miles on either side of the railroad.

HOSPITAL SHIP SAILS.

Saigon, Cochin China, April 15.—The Russian hospital ship Orel has sailed. She remained here thirty-six hours and took aboard 900 tons of coal as well as supplies of provisions and medicines.

COLLIERS AT HONG KONG.

Hong Kong, April 15.—Many colliers are arriving here from Durban, Natal, and Cardiff, Wales, apparently awaiting orders. War risks at Hong Kong for Japan have been raised and trade is affected. A telegram received here from Saigon suggests that the Russian fleet possibly will go north before the end of April.

OFF TO THE WOODS

President and Party Leave Train and Start For Camp.

Executive Addresses a Crowd Attired In His Hunting Garb.

Glenwood Springs, Col., April 15.—President Roosevelt's special train arrived here at 7:55 o'clock this morning and five minutes later left for New Castle, twelve miles west. At the latter point the president's party at 11:30 a. m., mounted horses and started for Camp Roosevelt, which is high up on the mountains, twenty-seven miles south of New Castle.

President Roosevelt, in hunting garb, appeared on the rear platform of his car and responded briefly to the greetings of the large crowd assembled at the depot here. He said that on returning from his hunting trip next month he would stop here for a day and take a plunge in the pool.

Pueblo, April 15.—The itinerary for President Roosevelt's return from New Castle, as given out today, includes a run over the narrow gauge portion of the Rio Grande railway through some of the wildest scenery in the state. The president will ride in a special narrow gauge pullman train prepared especially for him and in which he will be the first person to travel. On the return trip he will stop at Pueblo and Denver. The details of the trip are yet to be arranged.

MICHIGAN MINE OPERATORS WILL MAKE NO CONCESSIONS

Houghton, Mich., April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—In expectation of a general strike on May 1, the mine operators of Houghton, Keweenaw and Ontonagon counties have decided in case of such strike to make no concessions whatever and to close down absolutely for an indefinite period. The conservative element among the Calumet and Hecla employes are laboring hard to prevent such strike. In case of a general strike the old men among the employes may not get their jobs back when a settlement is reached.

"Mother Jones" is here and Charles Meyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners has been here. Federation organizers say they are not agitating a strike, but the evidence is to the contrary. Sixteen thousand men would be affected directly and as many more indirectly by a general strike.

TIME IS INOPPORTUNE

To Grant Petition of the Russian Clergy.

St. Petersburg, April 15.—Emperor Nicholas has decided that the moment is inopportune to grant the petition of a group of the influential clergy for a convocation of a general council to effect a reform of the ecclesiastical administration. On the margin of the petition the emperor appended a note as follows:

"I find it impossible in the present disturbed times to undertake a task of such magnitude requiring calm consideration. Following the old example of the orthodox emperors I intend, however, as soon as there is a favorable moment to set afoot this great work and summon the council of the old Russian church for a canonical discussion of questions of faith and ecclesiastical reform."

EVANS ON THE CONTINENT.

London, April 15.—The retiring American consul general, Henry Clay Evans and Mrs. Evans proceeded to the continent today prior to returning to America. Mrs. Choate and her daughter started for Paris to spend Easter at the French capital.

STUDENTS RETURN

After Demonstration Made at Freshman Banquet.

Terre Haute, Ind., April 15.—The belligerent Rose Polytechnic classes which engaged last night in a boisterous affray at Marshall, Ill., to which place the freshmen endeavored to escape and hold their banquet unmolested, returned to this city early today, and after some marching and counter-marching by the hostile bands, they dispersed. The siege by the sophomores was in retaliation for the manner in which their banquet was interrupted at the Terre Haute house some time ago, when the freshmen, by a liberal distribution of acid, routed the banqueters from their feast. This incident closed only with the arrest of several of the warring factions.

MORE MINERS QUIT WORK AT CHISHOLM, FEARING VIOLENCE

Outside Agitators Said to Be at the Bottom of the Trouble at the Mines and Inciting the Men.

Chisholm, Minn., April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fearing violence at the hands of 250 striking miners from Hibbing, the men employed on stripping work about or working in the Pillsbury, Leonard, Chisholm, Monroe, Myers, Shenango and Gordon mines quit working yesterday afternoon, and it was necessary to cease all operations at the seven mines. C. D. Kenniston and Dan Lear, two agitators, are said to be creating much of the discontent among the workmen. They are believed to be largely responsible for the spread of the strike.

The Hibbing strikers yesterday afternoon paid their first visit to the Pillsbury mine, where the Wallace Construction company had 100 men employed on a stripping contract. These men were prevailed upon to stop work, and as a result of the visit all operations at the mine were brought to a standstill. The band then marched triumphantly to the Leonard property, and met with the same success there in stopping work. One hundred Drake & Stratton men were induced to cease stripping operations, and the mine was forced to close as a result.

Elated by their easy victories so far in their line of march, the procession headed for the Chisholm mine, and again their visit resulted in the stopping of all operations. The Monroe-Tener mine, the largest in the district, was also tied up, although there was no stripping being done there. The closing of the Shenango came next.

From here the Hibbing strikers went to the Myers. This was about 3:30 o'clock. They proceeded to the dry house, where they were met by Supt. D. C. Peacock and Capt. Tallon. The superintendent asked the men what they wanted, and what their object was in striking. They replied by saying they desired to be paid at the rate of $2 for surface work and 72 cents a car for contract work, instead of the 62 cents a car now paid for this work.

The men showed little fear or respect for their superiors. Mr. Peacock and Capt. Tallon stood before the dry house door and denied admittance to the unwelcome visitors, who only laughed at the command of the two men, pushing them aside and entering the building so as to meet the miners as they came up from work at 6 o'clock. Here they also met with success in prevailing upon the men to quit work.

Their attention was next turned to the Jordan. This was made to close by the strikers shortly before 7 o'clock, the night crew leaving their work at the commands of the Hibbing men.

About 7 o'clock in the evening 150 strikers paraded the main street of Chisholm, coming up from the lake, and stopping half way up to hold a consultation, which resulted in half of the crowd going to the Leonard mine to stop the night crew from going to work. They met the Drake & Stratton men on their way to the mine and ordered them to stop and turn about.

"Stop or I shoot," one of the Finnish strikers said, and a moment later he fired his revolver into the air.

On this manifestation the miners stopped and then started off in another direction, finally reaching the mine by a different route. They did not go to work, however.

As a general thing the men about here do not want to strike, but they are afraid to refuse to go out when ordered to by the men already on strike. They are afraid violence will result if they do not accede to the demands of the strikers.

Outside agitators are largely responsible for the trouble and its spread. Dan Lear, a Socialist, in particular, is sowing the seed of discontent with his speeches. A meeting was held here last evening for the purpose of organizing a union under the Western Federation of Miners. C. G. Keniston, who, during his talk, said that he was a black-listed Western miner, placed on the black list because he engaged in the strike at Cripple Creek, is the organizer. He asserted that he believed in Socialism, and that, while not out for Socialism, the Western Federation of Miners is in sympathy with the Socialistic movement.

INQUIRY INTO METHODS OF THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY

Oberlin, Ohio, April 15.—S. L. Gibson, a retail oil dealer whose sales are made largely from wagons in the nearby districts, and who alleges that the Standard Oil company has waged a relentless war against him with a view of driving him out of business because he does not buy the product of the Standard Oil company, has received the following letter from the department of Commerce at Washington:

"In a clipping from a Cleveland newspaper dated recently, it is stated that during December, on account of your purchasing oil from an independent manufacturer, a representative of the Standard Oil company warned you not to buy more oil from that manufacturer, and finally declared war against you by cutting prices and establishing competing delivery wagons. Will you kindly give me full information with regard to this transaction, stating the name of the representative of the Standard Oil company, the substance of his statement to you, the prices charged by the company to retail dealers in Oberlin, before and since, and the result of the reported competition. It is important that the information furnished should be full and complete.

"HERBERT KNOX SMITH,
"Acting Commissioner."

Gibson will furnish the desired information.

EX-PUBLIC EXAMINER JOHNSON IS ACCUSED

Of Neglect of Duty and Padding His Expense Accounts.

Courthouse Commission Bill Passed and Goes to Governor.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Neglect of duty, padding of expense accounts, and collecting railroad fare from the state while traveling on passes, are some of the accusations made against ex-Public Examiner Sam T. Johnson by the house committee on public accounts and expenditures, which made its final report to the house yesterday afternoon through P. E. Dowling, its chairman.

The report will be printed in the journal and read by the members before it is considered, and will probably be acted upon about Monday.

The report is what might be called a "warm one," but it has been rather expected, as there have been rumors that the committee started out to "get" Johnson.

The defendant is ill, according to letters received from his physicians by the committee. The doctors say he is in very bad shape, and that it would be suicidal for him to appear before the committee. Anyway, he did not appear.

The substance of the report is as follows:

The law requires that the public examiner shall investigate state officers, county officers and the state banks at least once in every year. The report says that in 1902 there were six banks he failed to inspect, that in 1903 he did not inspect sixteen of them, and one of these, the American Exchange of Duluth, he did not inspect in 1904 either.

As to state officers, a letter from the present public examiner states that it does not appear from the records that Johnson investigated the following officers in 1902, 1903 or 1904: State trea-

MRS. CHADWICK'S NEW BAIL IS FIXED BY THE COURT AT $5,000

Cincinnati, April 15.—Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, who has been convicted and sentenced to prison for ten years on charges of procuring money by false pretenses, was today admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000 by United States Circuit Judge Lurton, after consultation with the other judges of the circuit court. She is already under heavy bonds for other cases, and the $5,000 is additional and in no way affects the other cases. The bail is allowed pending appeal proceedings, which are to come up next October before the United States circuit court of appeals. Judge Wing, counsel for Mrs. Chadwick, said it was not yet certain whether bail could be secured, nor could he tell just how soon the papers in the appeal could be filed.

District Attorney Sullivan was in court to look after the interests of the government when Judge Wing applied for bail, and opposed the request that it be fixed at $3,000, which was the amount desired by Mrs. Chadwick's attorney. After conferring with Judges Severens and Richards, Judge Lurton placed the bail at the figure stated. Bail may be deposited with the district court in Cleveland.

Cleveland, April 15.—J. P. Dawley, chief counsel for Mrs. Chadwick, stated today that the $5,000 bond named by the circuit court of appeals at Cincinnati, for the release of his client, was in addition to the $47,000 fixed here by the United States district court, and the criminal court. The total amount required is therefore $52,000. Asked if surety to this amount would be furnished, Mr. Dawley declared that he could not discuss the question at the present time.

HEINZE'S AUTO IN COLLISION

Mining Magnate and Friends Get a Severe Jolt.

Butte, Mont., April 15.—Seven persons have been injured in a collision between a motor car belonging to F. Augustus Heinze, a mining magnate of this city, and the runabout containing Thomas Roe, a liveryman, and Miss Lillie Lacombe. In the automobile were F. Augustus Heinze, A. L. Frank, a mining engineer and T. C. Bach, and M. L. Gunn of Helena, Mont., and A. T. Hook, the chauffeur. All of the persons were painfully injured, but none will die.

While going about thirty miles an hour, the automobile crashed into the vehicle driven by Roe, hurling the occupants a distance of nearly twenty feet. The motor car turned completely over, but fortunately the persons riding in the car were thrown clear of the wreck. Heinze and other members of the party escaped with slight bruises and scalp wounds.

MORE TROUBLE FEARED.

St. Petersburg, April 15.—Several squadrons of Don Cossacks have been brought in to reinforce the garrison of St. Petersburg in consequence of fears of a renewal of disorders. The peasant movement in the neighborhood of Moscow is also inspiring serious misapprehensions. Many properties along the Moscow-Kazan railroad are guarded by troops and the families of the land owners are seeking refuge in Moscow.

WITTE DISCOURAGED; WILL GIVE UP WORK

No Longer Able to Stand Russian Court Intrigue Against Him.

St. Petersburg, April 15.—M. Witte, president of the committee of ministers, has definitely decided to give up all work and go abroad. The last straw was the imperial rescript, addressed Thursday to Interior Minister Bouligan, creating a special commission to discuss questions relating to peasant tenure of lands and the abolition of the peasant commission, over which M. Witte presided. The emperor took the step without even apprising M. Witte of his intention. The members of the Witte commission were actually at work Thursday evening, and woke up yesterday to find the commission out of existence. M. Witte attributes the emperor's act to court intrigue, directly aimed against himself, and yesterday informed his friends that he was completely disheartened and discouraged, no longer able to endure the humiliations heaped on him, and that he would leave all and go abroad for a time.

The Slovo has received its first warning for the publication of articles entitled, "The Bureaucracy" and "The War and Reform," in which the paper severely arraigned the incompetency of the bureaucracy and the general staff and the war office.

Quite a sensation was caused this morning by the appearance in the Neva, the most widely circulated illustrated weekly in Russia, of a half-tone picture, representing the imperial family, including the empress holding the heir to the throne, the background of the picture showing in shadowy outlines the emperor, Grand Duke Sergius, Grand Duke Alexis, the dowager empress, the heir to the throne, and practically all the living members of the Romanoff family lying dead in their coffins. The work is done so skilfully that in the shadows in the drapery behind, the imperial family are discernible with great difficulty. The culprits, who were students employed on the paper, have not yet been located. Copies of this edition of the Neva are selling at a big premium.

INCREASE IN STOCK

Of Great Northern of 100 Per Cent Is Rumored.

Important Statement Due From Northern Securities Company.

New York, April 15.—It was generally conceded in Wall street yesterday after the close of the stock market that the heavy buying and sharp advances in Northern Securities stock was the chief cause of the strength of several, at least, of the high-priced railroad shares listed on the stock exchange.

No actual news regarding the affairs of the company came out and in well-informed circles none is expected until the mandate of the United States supreme court is handed down next Monday. The annual meeting of the stockholders, which was held this week, was adjourned until next Monday. Whether anything will be done that day, or whether a further adjournment will be taken could not be learned yesterday afternoon.

On the Broad street curb, where Northern Securities stock is traded in, it was definitely rumored that an important statement would be made by the company soon. Other rumors, which were circulated while trading in the stock was at its height, were that in the wind-up of the company's assets large extra payments would be made.

According to one story both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific are likely to make large distributions by way of clearing up the cash assets of the two companies. According to one report the Northern Securities company will make a straight payment of 6 per cent, or so without reference to the extra disbursements.

Still another report was that much of the enhancement in the value of Northern Securities stock was due to a plan of James J. Hill, said to be practically ready for execution, to increase the stock of the Great Northern Railway company at least 50 per cent, and possibly 100 per cent. At present the share capitalization of the Great Northern is $124,000,000.

According to the report also the new stock is to be offered to the Great Northern stockholders at par, and it is pointed out that if this rumor is correct, it would go a long way toward explaining the rise of Great Northern stock to its recent high price of $326 per shade.

In the quarters from which this report came, it is said that the issue of the stock would have an intimate connection with the iron ore properties in the Northwest, in which Mr. Hill and other Great Northern interests, as well as the railroad company itself, are largely owners.

Attention is called to the fact that if the new Great Northern stock is issued, Northern Securities stockholders will receive a proportion of Great Northern stock in the distribution of the assets of the Northern Securities company, and in that consequently the offering of Great Northern stock would add to the value of Northern Securities stock.

An official of the Great Northern Railway company said last night that he was not in a position to make any statement regarding the report that the company is to issue a large amount of new stocks.

NELSON TO NORWEGIANS

Minnesota Senator Delivers Address at the Chicago Festival.

Chicago, April 15.—Norway was lauded Thursday night by her sons in Chicago, who filled the Auditorium to take part in the ninth annual festival of the Norwegian Old People's Home society. Nearly $2,000 was netted for the home and will be used for current expenses and to establish a sinking fund.

The sentiment of the evening probably was best expressed in "Norwegian Folklore," as selected and played on the big organ by Wilhelm Middelschulte. Each of the old Norwegian songs was met with a round of applause by the audience, which momentarily drowned the music from the organ. And when the vigorous "Ja, Vi Elsker," the last of the series, was played people rose in their seats and cheered long and loudly.

Mrs. Theodore Stensland, formerly Miss Grace Nelson, sang "Voci de Primavera," by Strauss, in a way that brought an entnusiastic encore. She was presented with a huge bouquet of American beauties.

In the address of the evening, Knute Nelson, United States senator from Minnesota, said:

"While the Norwegian immigrant gave his little mite—his all—to his adopted country, we must not forget what that country did for him. He has cause to give thanks that his lot was cast in this country, where the material, intellectual and spiritual advantages are greater than in any country in the world. Perhaps you do not realize the number of Norwegians who are in the United States. Scandinavian blood flows in the veins of 6,000,000 people in this country. One-eighth of the population of Chicago is Scandinavian. Two million people in the United States are Norwegian, or of direct Norwegian parentage.

"Although the immigrants from England and Germany may have been greater in number, I confidently affirm that the Norwegians have been second to none in quality and value of service to this country."

FRANCE AND GERMANY TO CONFER ON MOROCCO.

Paris, April 15.—Although the details are carefully guarded, there is the best of reason to believe that conversations have actually begun between the representatives of France and Germany with the view to removing the misunderstandings relative to Morocco. This favorable turn of affairs appears to be the direct result of the more moderate attitude Germany has shown after communicating with Washington, London, Rome, Madrid, St. Petersburg and Vienna.

VIRTUE HAS REWARD

Philanthropic Friend of Lumberjacks Gets Free Board.

Sold Woodsmen Bogus Jobs at Two Dollars Each.

Peter Gelando is a philanthropist.

The poor, hard working lumberjack appeals to his deep human sympathies, and when Peter sees one of them coming in from the woods with his pockets stuffed with nice, long green bills and little round, yellow gold pieces, Peter's heart fairly yearns with sympathy for his oppressed fellow mortals.

Peter's hangout is the Union depot. It is there he awaits his opportunities for doing good to his fellow men. When a lumberjack is found looking for a job Peter is right there with the goods. The lumberjack gives Peter two dollars and Peter out of the kindness of his heart gives him a receipt absolutely free of charge. Peter supplies the ink and paper for the receipt and writes it himself. He also tells the lumberjack to show up in the morning and the longed-for position will be waiting for him.

But Peter is so forgetful and absent-minded about keeping engagements. It was this poor memory that landed him in police headquarters last night, while the officers sat on the chest of a husky lumberjack who wanted to get his two dollars' worth out of Peter's hide. The officers would have been glad to oblige the lumberjack but he might have got himself into trouble, so they held him until Peter was safely inside of the patrol wagon.

In court this morning Judge Windom proved that virtue is not without its reward. He donated twenty days' free board to Peter, the county standing all the expenses. All Peter will have to do in return is to take large pieces of rock and hit them with a hammer to make them small.

The technical charge was that Peter ran an employment business without a license.

* * *

The only other prisoners in court this morning were two belligerents who were caught mixing things up on Lake avenue. One of the men stood about six feet two in his stockings and the other could boast of about five feet six inches, of dimunitive manhood. Curiously enough the little man was the assailant according to the story of the officer. He was drunk and attacked the big man like a terrier does a St. Bernard. The big man good naturedly smothered the attack by throwing his arms about the little fellow's neck, but when the officer separated the two the little fellow was still unsatisfied and showered a volley of oaths on the head of the officer who had butted in to his private quarrels. Judge Windom added the last straw to his troubles by giving him ten days in jail while he let the big man go free.

J. N. Richey Appointed Commissioner For Minnesota.

J. N. Richey of Duluth has been appointed commissioner for Minnesota for the Frederick Douglass Memorial exposition, to be held in the city of Washington Sept. 13. It is desired to make the exposition representative of the genius and progress of the colored people of America, and to that end Mr. Richey is requested to urge the people of his race in the State of Minnesota to prepare to make exhibits at this exposition. They must be in to Washington by Sept. 10. Mr. Richey will devote much attention to awakening in the colored people of the state an enthusiasm in the exposition which will assure a commendable representation of this state.

PUTILOFF WORKS CLOSE

Owing to the Unreasonable Demands of Men.

St. Petersburg, April 15.—The Putiloff works have been closed. A notice on the gates says this is due to the unreasonable demands, of the men, the threatening of officials, frequent interruption of work and disregard of the rules.

Several squadrons of dragoons, detachments of grenadiers, mounted gendarmes and a regiment of sharpshooters of the guard have been stationed near the works all day long. Precautions have been taken to suppress possible disorders tomorrow. There is much excitement in the district.

DULUTH MAN WANTS PAY

Patrick McDonnell Sues City of Virginia on Sewer Contract.

Because the city of Virginia is alleged to have neglected and refused to pay him the balance due on his sewer construction contract and for certain extra repairs and material, Contractor Patrick McDonnell of this city has instituted in district court a suit against the range municipality in which he seeks to recover $1,271.60. The papers in the action were filed by John Martin of Virginia, Mr. McDonnell's attorney.

In his complaint Mr. McDonnell sets forth that he entered into the sewer contract with the city of Virginia Sept. 30, 1903, the price to be $22,500, and that amount to be paid in full after the work was completed. It is claimed that under the agreement payments were to be made to the contractor monthly on estimates made by the engineer, 15 per cent of the entire cost to be held back by the city until the completion of the contract.

Mr. McDonnell claims that he filed a $15,000 bond with the city clerk of Virginia and proceeded to carry out his contract strictly in accordance with the plans and specifications, the engineer's final estimate being accepted by the city and numerous connections having been made with the sewer. The contractor alleges that all he received on his contract was $22,000, and that the city refused to pay the remaining $500.

Mr. McDonnell alleges further that after the city took over the sewers, some of its employes, in excavating for the purpose of making excavations, left the openings unprotected, with the result that water froze in the sewers and broke the piping. He claims that at the request of the mayor and city council he made the necessary repairs in the amount of $871.60 for labor and materials, and that the city also refused to compensate him.

MAY TAKE ACTION

County Officials Likely to Mandamus Board of Control.

Conrend That Insane Austrian Woman Should Be Deported.

The United States authorities, to whom about two weeks ago a demented Austrian woman from the Petit mine location near Sparta, was turned over, intend to return the woman to the county authorities for the reason that the government will not accept any responsibility for her charge until she has first been examined by the county authorities and declared insane.

The woman is said to be in bad shape, having either refused or been unable to eat anything for nearly two weeks.

When she was first taken in charge by the county authorities it was found that she had only been in this country a short time and had not acquired a residence. She was immediately turned over to United States Immigration Inspector Dean at this point, the supposition being that the government would deport her. This the government refuses to do until the woman has first been examined for insanity.

The present situation surrounding the disposal of allen insane persons in St. Louis county is regarded as most unsatisfactory, and to no persons more than the county officials who have to do with them. This county, it is claimed, has been and is now paying for the care of allen insane persons at Fergus Falls that under the law should have been deported, and the blame is said to lie at the door of the state board of control.

Up to something over a year ago, the law was construed to provide that when persons supposed to be insane were taken in charge by the county authorities and were found to be aliens, their condition should be made known to the state board of control by the county probate court. The state board of control was then expected to send the state agent to investigate all the circumstances and, if the person was found to be insane and an alien, he was taken to the United States port where he landed and the steamship company bringing him to this country had to return him free of charge. The United States government provided half the expense of returning the insane person to the port.

That, however, has not been the way the law has been working out. The probate court of this county has been notifying the state board of control, but that body instead of sending the state agent to investigate and deport, has directed an examination to be held and the allen sent to Fergus Falls, the expense to be borne by this county.

It is claimed that the state agent has so interpreted the law, and there is a report that the former state attorney general held the same opinion.

This state of affairs is not taken kindly to by the county authorities nor is it at all acceptable to the taxpayers at large and there is a prospect that the county may start a test case over the Austrian woman mentioned, should she be examined and ordered to Fergus Falls, by instituting mandamus proceedings against the state board of control. The matter is even now being seriously considered by the county's legal department, the intention being to place the expense and care of allen insane where it should be, instead of saddling it on the taxpayers of this county.

Recently the attempt has been made by the county authorities to turn insane aliens directly over to the United States authorities with the result that Inspector Dean is bringing her back, the woman having been about the treatment she might otherwise have been receiving by this time had there not been so much red tape in arranging for her dispotition.

A New Enterprise.

The Western Labor and Supply company filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state for Minnesota looking for a charter for the purpose of dealing in railway and mining machinery and supplies, contractors' tools and equipment and to furnish labor.

This company is an associate company of the same named company in Chicago, established there for tne past twelve years and the largest and best known firm among contractors in the United States.

Agencies are already established in Minneapolis and Winnipeg. The object is to establish in this city a company similarly strong to the Chicago company who can furnish at all times labor, machinery, tool and implements for contractors.

The principal place of business is to be Duluth. Incorporators are Hiram A. Clapp, R. A. Eva, Edward Downie and G. Norstrom. Messrs. Clapp and Norstrom are residents of Chicago, and are managers of the Chicago company. Mr. Clapp is a brother of our Senator Clapp and one of the best known men in Chicago. M. Norstrom has been associated with him for the past ten years.

R. A. Eva of Duluth, the well-known railroad man, and Edward Downie, the well-known employment agent of this city, whose present offices are to be merged and taken over by the new company at 427 West Michigan street, Spalding hotel block.

At this latter point sample cars, grading implements and tools will be kept and a warehouse is to be established on the lake front for storing of implements, rails, etc. The well-known Western Wheeler Scraper company, of Aurora, Ill., by this arrangement establishes itself in Duluth by jobbing their goods from this point, the new company, the Western Labor and Supply company, acting a their agents. The amount incorporated for is $10,000, fully paid in, and the limit of indebtedness, $10,000.

FAST SCOUT CRUISERS

Are To Be Constructed Soon For United States Navy.

Washington, April 15.—Bids were opened at the navy department today for the construction of the three scout cruisers which were authorized by the act of congress of April 27, 1904. With the completion of these ships there will be added to the navy a new and unique type of vessel. In the opinion of naval officers the war in the far East has demonstrated the great value of scout ships, and since these are planned to have a high speed and great steaming radius, they are expecied to prove important additions to the naval service. Their building, also, opens the possibility of the introduction of turbine machinery, as the department, in the advertisement for bids, announced that alternative proposals for the installation of turbine engines would receive the department's consideration. The scout ships are to be 420 feet long, with a breadth of 46 feet 8 inches and a draft of 16 feet. The displacement on speed trial is to be not more than 3,750 tons. Provision is made for a total coal carrying capacity of about 1,250 tons.

Each will be provided with a battery of twelve 3-inch rapid-fire guns and two submerged torpedo tubes.

The speed of these vessels will be 24 knots an hour.

RUSSIAN FINANCES

Shown By Statement of Budget For 1904.

St. Petersburg, April 15.—A financial statement regarding the state of the budget for 1904 shows that the total of the ordinary revenue collected was $1,008,500,000, being $18,500,000 over the estimates, $7,000,000 below the total of 1903, and $55,500,000 more than in 1902. The ordinary expenditure was $395,000,000, leaving a surplus of $53,500,000. In the extraordinary budget, the $320,500,000 assigned for war expenditure, the $81,000,000 for railroad construction and the loans to railroad companies for extraordinary expenditure were met by the above surplus and $53,500,000 proceeds of the 5 per cent treasury bonds realized in 1904, imperial rente bonds totalling $215,500,000, other extraordinary revenues amounting to $1,500,000 and the balances of former years amounting to $190,500,000. This left at the beginning of 1905 a "free" balance of $53,500,000, in which the proceeds of the 4½ per cent loan were not included.

The federated trades assembly last evening adopted a form of communication addressed to the judges of district court and to the county attorney, asking that the recent shooting of strikers at Hibbing be investigated and the murderers punished regardless of who they are. After the communication was read President Shartel addressed the assembly and said:

"It is not only to our interest that this shooting be probed to the bottom, but it is in the interest of law and order. Whenever a thing like this happens, there are a lot of people who mix up labor unions with it and who seem to believe that labor unions stand for nothing but dissension and disorder. We must impress these people with the fact that they are wrong and that one of our principal demands is that law be upheld. In the case of this rioting and shooting at Hibbing labor unions have nothing to do, for no unions exist there, but the matter should be probed to the bottom and the guilty parties made to suffer."

The communication to the authorities, which was unanimously adopted, is as follows:

"According to newspaper reports there occurred in Hibbing this week a riot during a strike of miners, and in the trouble two men were reported killed by others than the sworn officers of the law.

"The men engaged in the strike were not members of organized labor, but as organized labor is always more or less regarded in a discussion of industrial controversies, and as our organization, the Federated Trades and Labor Assembly, is the only body capable of speaking for all labor, we feel it our duty to appeal to you and ask that the occurrence of Tuesday last, in which two men were killed, be given thorough investigation under the direction of the district court.

"Organized labor in this community is opposed to violation of law in any form. We care not who is guilty so long as it is made plain that the supremacy of the law is maintained.

"It has been reported to us that the men were killed by employes of a mining or stripping company, and that the peace officers of Hibbing were within 50 yards of the trouble, and that no shots were fired by the officers of the law. There seems to be a question as to who fired the first shot. This, in itself, is of little consequence until conditions leading up to this occurrence have been fully analyzed.

"The fact is that the law was violated. The strikers may have incited riot; the police may have been derelict in their duty, or the mining company and its employes may have disregarded the law. The whole event indicates that a deplorable condition exists at Hibbing and in the mining locations thereabout.

"We make this request that the matter be investigated through the proper channels under the direction of the district court, in order that future occurrences of a like nature may be prevented.

"If this investigation can be made by a fair and impartial body, selected form outside of the interests involved, we think it will result in great good to the community."

A labor leader of Duluth said yesterday that as usual in such cases there has been a general damning of labor unions among people constitutionally opposed to organizations of that kind. Said this labor leader because of this condemnation:

"Now, that cursing of labor unions immediately following the shooting, shows just about how wise these fellows are and how much they know and how fair-minded they are capable of being. There was not a labor union concerned at all. On the contrary, the strikers are a disorganized mob. Had there been a labor union there would have been no shooting and no trouble. Do you think that the officers of the union, had one existed, would have allowed the men to make their demands in mob formation? I guess not. There would have been a committee sent to the employers to state the case of the miners and until the employers by some arbitrary act or flat refusal to listen to compromise, gave provocation, there would not even be a strike. After the strike, peaceful methods would prevail, unless the employers took the initiative in making trouble.

"However, in the interests of fairness, let me point out to these cursers of labor unions and laboring men in general that somebody, other than the strikers did the shooting, for strikers were the men who were killed. What's the matter with cursing the employers' union for a change?"

At the Trades assembly meeting last evening, C. J. McDowell, the secretary-treasurer, handed in his resignation for the reason that he has been promoted to foreman of the leather department in Marshall-Wells and can no longer serve as a delegate under the rules of his union. Peter Nelson, of the tailor's union was elected to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Mr. McDowell, but Mr. Nelson will not be obligated until the next meeting in order that he may have his bond by that time.

* * *

Mr. Nelson, the newly elected secretary-treasurer, has been a trustee of the assembly for some time and last night resigned when elected secretary-treasurer. Consequently J. A. Harrion of the leather workers' union was elected trustee.

* * *

President Shartel resigned as delegate to the Superior Trades assembly and Henry Ferrault was elected to fill out the unexpired term.

* * *

The Building Trades' Alliance sent a communication which was read to the assembly last night inviting the latter body to send delegates to the alliance. No action was taken.

* * *

A donation was voted for the striking garment workers of Chicago and the unions were notified of a boycott on the American Suspender company.

* * *

A communication received from the agents of the Kalamazoo building informing the assembly that its rent will be raised. Judging from the remarks offered on the subject it was evidently the sense of the assembly that the demand is unreasonable and a motion was adopted to have the executive committee look for other quarters.

The following resolution was passed unanimously concerning the aerial bridge:

"Whereas, it has come to the attention of the Federated Trades and Labor Assembly that there is a movement on foot to let the operating of the aerial ferry bridge across the ship canal out to private contractors, and

"Whereas, organized labor stands for day labor in place of contract labor on all public work, and as other public utilities in this city are operated directly by the city in a most satisfactory manner, and as the wants and conveniences of the general public are given better attention by public officials than they are by private contractors; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that we, the delegates to the Federated Trades and Labor Assembly, petition the common council of the city of Duluth to support the proposition of operating the aerial bridge directly by the city, under the management of the proper city department; and further be it

"Resolved, that we ask the council to fix the hours of labor for operators of the bridge at eight hours each day, and that under no circumstances are we in favor of letting out the operation of the ferry bridge by contract."

Thomas Van Lear, chairman of the Federation council of the state federation of labor was in Duluth this week. He is touring the northern part of the state in the interest of the Public Ownership Party.

THEATRICAL TRUST MUST SHOW BOOKS.

New York, April 15.—The suit of David Belasco, the playwright, against Klaw & Erlanger, which has been on trial for a week past in the supreme court, assumed a belligerent phase yesterday. Samuel Untermeyer, counsel for Belasco, asked that the defendants produce their books to show exactly what dealings the co-partnership had had with Belasco and others who had been mentioned during the progress of the trial. The request was met with strong opposition from the defense.

Th trouble began during the examination of Myer W. Livingston, the auditor for Klaw & Erlanger. He had produced copies of certain statements covering certain dealings between his firm and Belasco. In the cross-examination Mr. Untermyer drew an admission from the witness that some of the copies were not complete and he then asked leave to examine the books from which the copies were made. After much argument counsel for the plaintiff was given permission to look at certain items in the books.

surer, secretary of state, state superintendent of public instruction, insurance commissioner, dairy and food commission, game and fish commission, adjutant general, railroad and warehouse commission and state agricultural society. The board of control has not been inspected since July 31, 1902, and the examination then made was not at all thorough, the committee says.

On county officers, Roseau county was never examined. Fourteen counties were not visited in 1902, six were passed over in 1903, and two were overlooked in 1904.

Beltrami county officers are now appearing in the public prints as delinquents through the efforts of the present public examiner. The committee says Johnson investigated that county in 1902, and though the records of his office show that he found that illegal and excessive charges on the part of county officers had lost the county $8,053.12, it does not appear that he ever laid the matter before the governor or took any other action. The records show that the Beltrami county attorney, in 1903, asked him to make an examination to help him bring the offenders to justice, but he does not appear to have heeded the appeal. Other similar letters came in and were neglected. In 1903 the county lost $4,920 more, but still nothing was done.

On the question of traveling expenses a series of tables showing certain alleged facts about Mr. Johnson's system are shown. It is claimed by the committee that he had passes on all roads and used them, but still sent in vouchers for railroad fare, for which he collected from the state. It is claimed also that these accounts were seldom just correct, being sometimes less and oftener more than the actual railroad fare. This is a sample of the items: "July 15, 1902, Minneapolis to Litchfield, Great Northern train No. 9, pass No. 4,155, actual fare $2.27, charged $1.58."

The report alleges further that Johnson and his deputies, E. W. McGraw and S. H. Bezoier, put in expense accounts that were "unduly large and in some cases questionable and apparently illegal." On one of Mr. Johnson's trips to Chicago, leaving St. Paul in the evening and getting there in the morning, it is claimed that he put in a charge of $2 for "sleeper and three meals." The committee is puzzled to know how he worked in the three meals on a night trip. A claim for $8 and $8.50 per day for living expenses while traveling is also criticised by the committee. It is stated that a dining car voucher for $1 appears to have been raised to $2. The committee objects to putting laundry bills into the traveling expenses of deputies, which it is claimed has been done. Where claims of $10.65 and 3.13 for hotel bills were put in, correspondence by the committee with the proprietor developed the fact, according to the report, that the charges were $10 and $2. One deputy spent $1.80 in five days in tips to waiters, which the committee thinks is an improper figure.

Accompanying the report is a written opinion from Attorney General Young that it is a violation of law for a state officer to travel on a pass and put in an expense account for railroad fare.

The committee's conclusions are not harsh, as the committee appears to have contented itself with presenting its findings. It does recommend, however, that bank examinations ought to be oftener than once a year, and suggests that they ought to be made twice a year.

Representative N. F. Hugo of Duluth has a St. Paul bond bill in his pocket, and it is claimed by members of the St. Paul delegation that he is holding it up to get even with the St. Paul members for their action in holding up the Duluth electric light bill.

Mr. Hugo states that in its present form the bill, which provides for $500,000 in water bonds in cities over 50,000, applies to Duluth as much as to St. Paul, and that he does not propose to let it become a law until he is sure Duluth will not be affected.

On the other hand, the St. Paul members say that the bill does not apply to Duluth, that it is distinctly for St. Paul, and that Mr. Hugo's action is solely designed to get back at them for their "butt-in" on the electric light bill.

The bill, which is S. F. 282, was introduced by Senator Hardy and passed the senate March 15. It authorizes cities of more than 50,000 inhabitants to issue and sell bonds for water work purposes to the amount of $500,000. The bill has for its main object the authorizing of the St. Paul city council to buy a lake near the city for storage purposes. Mr. Hugo has held the bill until it is now feared that even if the St. Paul members can get it away from him it is too late to pass it this session.

A Ramsey county member said last evening that if the bill was not reported out of the St. Louis county delegation by Monday, the last day for passing bills, a fight would be made on the floor to get it away from Mr. Hugo and pass it without the sanction of St. Louis county. It is expected that there will be a pretty scrap when the matter comes up Monday.

* * *

It is stated that the appropriation bill now pending will result in an increase of about 4-10ths of a mill in the state tax rate. This is not so bad as was expected. Some feared it might have to be a mill, and no estimates were less than half a mill. A bill has been prepared levying $1,200,000 for 1906 and $1,400,000 for 1907, to take care of the appropriations.

* * *

The appropriation for a separate training school for girls was cut out of the omnibus bill, and this put $100,000 out of consideration. The women's building for the State university was also cast aside, and this reduced the demands $200,000.

* * *

Newspaper men who have been wondering if they would have to burden the mails with copies of the revised code in publishing the session laws will feel better to learn that it is not planned to publish the code as a part of the revised laws. The omnibus bill carries $30,000 for publishing the laws, and provides that the code is not to be published.

* * *

The bill carries $37,000 for drainage purposes, of which $7,500 is to be used in getting up a comprehensive system of draining all the swamp lands of the state under the Cole bill.

The state auditor is given $7,000 more a year, to be used in advertising sales of state lands and preparing and distributing statistics calculated to draw immigrants to the state.

* * *

The bill carries $20,000 additional for the expenses of this session, and $3,500 to clean up deficiencies in the 1903 session.

* * *

Preparations for enlargement of the state prison are begun by the bill, which appropriates $45,000 for 1906 and $30,000 for 1907, to be used in buying additional ground at Stillwater and starting construction work.

* * *

The Minnesota sanitorium for consumptives at Cass Lake comes in for $50,000.

* * *

The Duluth normal school got just what the board of control asked for it, with the addition of the item of $40,000 for the women's dormitory. The total for the two years, including this sum, is $103,500.

* * *

The total for the State university for two years is $618,100, and for the school of agriculture $109,000. Of the university's total $400,000 is for a new main building.

* * *

The house met at 9 o'clock this morning, and thus averted a night session last night. Monday is the last day for passing bills, and Tuesday the legislature simply meets to approve Monday's journal and to adjourn sine die.

* * *

The house yesterday killed Senator Gjersen's bill requiring promises to revive debts discharged by bankruptcy to be made in writing, 37 for and 55 against.

* * *

The house passed the Putnam senate bill permitting county boards to complain against men that abandon their wives and families, if the wife does not complain. At present there can be no conviction if the injured wife is too soft-hearted to complain to the authorities.

* * *

The Hawkins senate bill authorizing communities owing their own waterworks to extend the plants over highways outside their limits, providing they are not within the limits of other communities passed the house.

* * *

The senate passed the Frater bill providing for a third state fish hatchery at Deerwood, cutting the appropriation down to $5,000 so as to provide for a site only, leaving construction to the next legislature if the house passes the bill.

* * *

The house yesterday afternoon, after hearing the omnibus appropriation bill read at length, decided that it would be better to follow the senate's example and wait till the bill is printed before it is considered. Therefore it went over to this morning, and the senate will take it up this afternoon.

* * *

The senate passed a constitutional amendment for submission to the people, raising the road and bridge fund levy from one-twentieth to one-fourth of a mill.

* * *

Capt. Lewis yesterday afternoon moved the suspension of the rules on the St. Louis county courthouse commission bill, and as there was no objection the bill was passed and now goes to the governor for his signature, as it has already passed the senate.

* * *

Representative Mackenzie of Sibley county yesterday pulled a bill out of the appropriations committee, shorn of its appropriation, and he got it passed yesterday afternoon. It provides for a pension of not to exceed $12 per month from Jan. 1, 1905, for all survivors of the citizen soldiery that participated in the Indian outbreaks in Minnesota in August and September, 1862, providing they are needy. The bill cannot be effective until an appropriation is made, and that will probably have to be left to subsequent legislation.

* * *

There is still a primary election bill. The senate in committee of the whole yesterday recommended for passage the Barker bill providing for separate primary elections to elect delegates to the county conventions that are to select delegates to the state conventions that nominate candidates for state offices.

* * *

The senate put in a hard work afternoon on general orders and advanced many bills to the calendar, including the following:

Dowling—Providing for parks and park boards in cities under 10,000.

Bouck—Prohibiting the sale of veal from calves less than 4 weeks old.

Anderson—Giving the attorney general an additional assistant and a clerk and increasing the salaries of assistants from $2,000 to $3,000 a year.

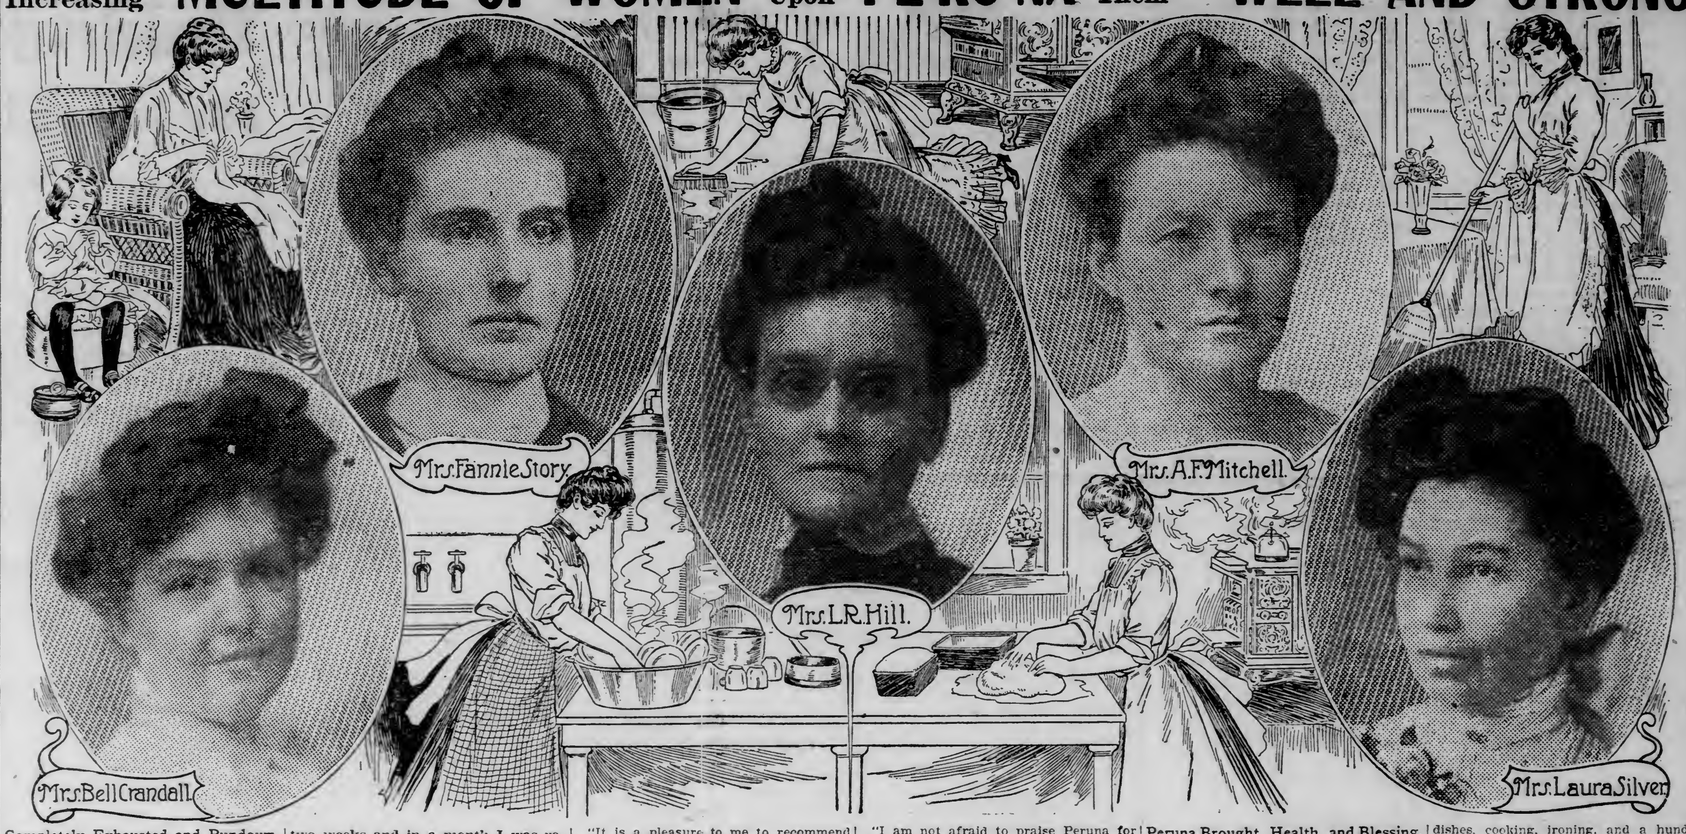
House judiciary committee—Providing liens on personal property for storing, repairing, etc.

House committee on public health—Civil service for inspectors in the dairy and food department.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

ONE SECRET OF GOOD HOUSEKEEPING.

A Rapidly Increasing MULTITUDE OF WOMEN Rely Upon PE-RU-NA To Keep Them WELL AND STRONG.



Completely Exhausted and Rundown.

Mrs. Bell Crandall, 180 Main street, Elgin, Ore., Assistant Commander of the Rebeccas and a member of the Pocahontas Lodge and the Royal Neighbors, writes:

"Peruna was recommended to me when I was completely run down and exhausted from overwork and worry.

"I decided that I must take a long vacation and have a change of scene in order to bring back my health, but a friend suggested that I try Peruna two weeks before going away, as he felt that it was all I needed.

"I took it to please my friend, also hoping that I might be saved the expense of a long vacation.

"I did find a decided improvement in two weeks and in a month I was restored to perfect health.

"I am now a strong advocate of Peruna. I have induced many of my friends to take it and all have the best praise for it."

Followed Dr. Hartman's Advice.

Mrs. Fannie Story, Hedrick, Ga., writes:

"I feel that it is my duty to thank you for the advice which you gave me in regard to my health.

"I have taken three bottles of Peruna, and can say that I feel like a new person.

"It seems such a pleasure to do my own work and take care of my children with ease.

"I have introduced it into a dozen homes or more, since I began to take it.

"It is a pleasure to me to recommend it to any of my friends whom I hear complaining of their stomachs and a tired, worn-out feeling.

"I cannot tell you how thankful I feel to Dr. Hartman and Peruna."

Happy and Busy at Work.

Mrs. L. R. Hill, 826 Farriar street, St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"I must write and tell you what Peruna has done for me. I failed to make an early report of my case because I was so happy and busy at my work. I hadn't worked so long, it seemed a treat to me.

"I am now a well woman, having gained nine pounds the first month and a half.

"What a blessing Peruna has been to me. It saved my life when all else failed. I am never without it.

"I am not afraid to praise Peruna for it does the work for nervous women.

"The doctor said I had a case of nervous prostration, and nothing would do me any good unless I quit worrying.

"But Peruna did the work, and I feel so happy. I shall forever praise it to my friends."

"I am now gaining in flesh right along, thanks to you, Dr. Hartman."

Stmach and Bowel Trouble.

Mrs. A. F. Mitchell, 546 Holmes street, Frankfort, Ky., writes:

"I was sick three years with stomach and bowel trouble and was not able even to sweep my rooms.

"I had nearly every doctor in Frankfort and it seemed that I never would get well.

"I commenced taking Peruna and it cured me entirely.

"I have never ceased to praise Peruna and so many of my friends have taken it with the very best results."

Peruna Brought Health and Blessing.

Mrs. Laura Silver, 5631 Clement Ave., S. Tacoma, Wash., writes:

"I suffered for four months with suppression of the menses which came upon me gradually with declining health.

"I first had occasional headaches, which soon became a daily occurrence. Pains in my limbs and back made it hard for me to attend to my home duties.

"The medicines I took did not help me, and it was in despair that I read of Peruna and grasped it as a last straw.

"It brought health and blessing. My general health is all that could be desired."

The Housewife's Duties Are Varied.

The duties of the housewife take her rapidly from one occupation to another. Sewing, scrubbing, sweeping, washing dishes, cooking, ironing, and a hundred other employments.

Now she is exposed to the action of hot water and steam, and then to cold water and draughts of air.

One moment her duty requires muscular strength and the next, tactile skill and deftness.

It goes without saying that such a woman ought to be perfectly healthy.

MENINGITIS TREATMENT

Employed at French Hospitals Shows Satisfactory Results.

New York, April 15:—A new method of treatment for cerebro spinal meningitis employed at the hospital Beaujon in Paris is described by the Herald correspondent in this city. Up to the present time this treatment appears, the dispatch says, to have given more satisfactory results than any other.

It consists of injections of metallic ferments, a "solution of one in ten thousand." Every day twenty cubic centimeters are injected into the muscular tissue of the hip and abdomen. In cases presenting very serious symptoms, good results were obtained from intravenous injections of a solution containing one milligramme of the metallic ferment per cubic centimeters. Silver and Manganese are the metallic ferments which seem to give the most successful results. This medication is said to be free from disadvantages.

After a few injections the record of the patient's temperature shows a general lowering. Each injection is followed by a rise in temperature more or less marked, followed in its turn by a decrease which brings the temperature below the initial figure.

All the World Loves
A Vigorous Man!

To be hale and hearty, sprightly and vigorous, with all the powers of his sex, should be the first aim of every man. Nature intended it so. If through overwork, or accident, or careless abuses or excesses, or by over-indulgence in strong alcoholic drinks or tobacco, you have been incapacitated physically and mentally, the quickest, surest and safest road to the recovery of these lost powers is the treatment afforded by the Progressive Medical Association. There is scarcely a man afflicted with Stricture, Varicocele, Blood Poison, Skin Diseases, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, Hydrocele, Nervous Decline, Male Weakness or even the most common contagious disease, who has not been unsuccessfully treated, and after spending a great amount of money and time, is in a worse condition than before treatment. A great many men come to me affected with one or more of these Pelvic diseases, seriously complicated with symptoms that indicate physical, mental and male weakness, and tell me that they have tried every known remedy and many different doctors without receiving any benefit. Nothing better than success can distinguish the skill and ability of a competent, reliable specialist from the failures made by the ordinary doctors. And the success and surety of a positive and lasting cure, as attested by hundreds of strong, vigorous men cured by us in this community, has earned for us the richly deserved title of the great Northwest's most reliable and successful specialist in the diseases of men.

REFUSED A PERMIT

Two Building Projects Held Up For Violation of Ordinance.

Inspector and Contractors Both Want Revision of the Laws.

Because the enclosing walls are to be only eight inches in thickness according to the specifications of the architects, at least two large building projects are now being held up by the building inspector, who refuses to grant a permit for the work until the plans are changed and made to conform to the building laws of the city.

One of the buildings is a two-story flat building and the other a two-story brick store building on First street.

In both instances the architects have prepared plans which call for only an eight inch enclosing wall, whereas the building laws say that no building two stories or over shall have enclosing walls less than twelve inches in thickness.

Contractors say that the law has not been strictly enforced in the past, and they appeared to be not a little surprised when the permit was refused them, but the building inspector claimed he had no alternative, as the law was very explicit.

"The people of the city are calling for cheap rents," said one of the contractors. "They want flats and houses with all the modern conveniences, such as sanitary plumbing, hardwood floors, hot water heat, and electric light, and they want them for a reasonable figure. At the present cost of building material you can't put up such a structure and build substantial twelve inch walls in the upper story. The law calls for six-teen inch walls in the first story and twelve inch walls in the second story of all two story buildings over twenty-five feet wide. That means a very substantial structure, and you can't put up such a building and rent it for any moderate sum."

Building Inspector Keilley has recommended to the council a complete revision of the building ordinance. The ordinance was passed in 1893 and is out of date in many respects. One of these points is the fact that no provision is made in it for houses built of concrete blocks. There are a number of changes which the building inspector has recommended, and the contractors of the city are said to be preparing a petition which will embody several others which they desire to see made.

The ordinance is now before the council committee for consideration, and it will be reported on at an early date.

RAILROAD NEWS

Great Northern Will Build Railroad In British Columbia.

The Red Lake Road Negotiates a Loan For $440,000.

Victoria, B. C., April 15.—A telegram received by the Victoria board of trade from Louis W. Hill, says the Great Northern road will commence to build a railway from Upper Similkameen this year and later on to the British Columbia coast, asking no subsidy. In this connection a report from Princeton says that Great Northern engineers have begun to work from there to locate a line along the Similkameen river.

GETS A LOAN.

Red Lake Road Obtains Money For Work.

The Minneapolis, Red Lake & Manitoba Railway company has negotiated a loan with the First Trust and Savings bank and James B. Forgan of Chicago in the sum of $440,000 for the purpose of providing funds to pay for the construction of the company's line from Bemidji to Red Lake and for the maintenance of the road on its completion.

The loan is secured by bonds which run twenty years and draw interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum. The bonds are known as the "first mortgage, 5 per cent gold bonds of the Minneapolis, Red Lake & Manitoba Railway company."

Work on the line northward from Bemidji is progressing in a satisfactory manner, and it is expected that trains will be operating over a part of the system, at least, before the end of the year.

Railroad Personals.

H. A. Kimball, assistant general freight agent of the Great Northern, is in the city today.

C. D. Thompson, the newly appointed general freight agent of the Great Western road in Duluth, returned this morning from Chicago.

G. M. Smith, general agent of the Omaha in Duluth, returned this morning from the Copper country. He says business is rather quiet down there just now.

W. T. Wilkie, J. C. Overman and L. E. Ayer of the South Shore city ticket office, leave tomorrow for north shore points on a fishing trip.

"The Yankee Consul" gives an evening of excellent enjoyment. Like all of the Henry W. Savage productions of musical comedy it has life, action brilliancy of costuming and scenery, tuneful music, brightness and all of the laughs one could ask. A characteristic of the Savage shows, is that practically everyone of them presents a comedian who is a rare delight, an artist in the creation of laughter, a fun-maker by nature and not a made one. It was Savage who gave us John Ransome, Jess Dandy, Frank Moulan, and now comes Raymond Hitchcock, as clever and inimitable as any one of them, just to prove that Savage still knows where to find them and that he knows what a good one is. Hitchcok is delightful and many will find him especially so in that he does not depend upon an exaggerated makeup or hideous eccentricity of costume to make fun. He is rather a dress suit comedian and the man who essays to carry the comedy of a musical comedy clad in the conventional evening dress must be a master of the art. Instead of playing a part or working for the amusement of the audience, Hitchcock gives the impression of simply going upon the stage and being himself. He neither looks nor acts as though he had assumed a character or a makeup, but rather as though he might have walked in from the street and proceeded to entertain with whatever first came to his mind. Henry M. Blossom, who wrote the book has provided some very witty lines and more than one sally created uproarious laughter. Hitchcok's songs were so enthusiastically received that it began to be gravely feared that the curtain could not go down before the small hours of the morning. "Ain't it Funny What a Difference Just a Few Hours Make" was capitally sung or rather acted for there is not much singing to it, and "In the Days of Old" received at least a dozen recalls.

Flora Zabelle, a very pretty little woman, was a striking reminder of Anna Held in many ways but has a thousand times more cleverness than the French lady and a singing voice of considerable merit. Rose Botti was a vivacious Papinta, and Eva Davenport, she of mammoth propoortions, was very pleasing in the role of Donna Teresa, whose bank account the consul courts. Sally McNeel, the Duluth young woman, has a pleasing part, though she does not get much opportunity to show her voice. Last evening she was made the target for a number of hits and much friendly interest from the company in general, induced by the fact that she was playing in the city which she claims as her home. Albert Parr is a pleasing singer and makes a good-looking American officer. The company throughout is capable. The audience was a large one.

The performance will be repeated this evening.

Mysterious Death of Canadian In Hotel at the Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie—Frank Orchard died mysteriously in the Queen's hotel, at the Canadian Soo, and the coroner believes he was doped. He was 52 and came from Simcoe county, Ont. He was well to do and highly educated. He had been drinking, and went to his room Thursday afternoon. Ruby Bishop, daughter of Landlord Thomas Bishop, died in the hotel the same hour the body of Orchard was found. The coroner refuses to disclose the nature of the evidence secured in the Orchard case.

Newberry—Newberry baseball fans are well pleased over the prospects of having a fast team this season. Dr. Perry has been elected manager; John Mackey, captain, and Ross Leighton, secretary. There is considerable new baseball timber available this spring, and those who are pushing the project state, that a team will be organized that will be able to take care of all comers.

Rapid River—In a wreck on the Soo Line's branch road north of Rapid River, Delta county, a few days ago, the third car from the coach jumped the track with one truck and cut the ties to pieces, spreading the rails, the cars behind following inside. The track was destroyed for a hundred yards. The cars were empty, and none fell over. It was necessary for the wrecking crew to lay 240 new ties.

Escanaba—Deputy Collector of Customs A. B. Chambers of Escanaba has not been advised that he will be required to wear a service uniform, and is of the opinion the report to that effect is a joke. According to the story all collectors of customs were hereafter to be required to be garbed in a suit of blue, with brass buttons, and were to wear a cap patterned after those of army officers.

Blaney—B. B. Metheany has resigned his position as general superintendent of the William Mueller company's sawmill and logging interests at Blaney, Schoolcraft county, and will go to Grand Rapids to again take up railroad work. He was formerly superintendent of the Manistique, Marquette & Northern railroad.

Iron Mountain—Charles Burt, who was ordered by Judge Stone at Iron Mountain to furnish a bond of $500 to the poor commissioners of the county as a guarantee that he would pay at the rate of $7.50 per month for sixteen years for the support of his child, has been remanded to the county jail, upon refusal to furnish the bond. The charge was non-support.

Negaunee—A scare that for a few minutes took on the proportions of a panic seized the passengers in the day coach on the north-bound Chicago train on the Chicago & Northwestern line early Thursday morning. The train had stopped near Lathrop, a hamlet south of Negaunee, in order to allow a gravel train to take a siding. The passengers sat nodding in their seats. Suddenly, without warning, several rifle shots followed each other in quick succession, and then shouting was heard. The shots came from the express car, and a broadside of startled glances was exchanged between the passengers, each person wondering what the stop in that lonely spot and the fusilade all meant.

A traveling man, seated near the center of the coach, arose from his seat and declared his belief that the train was being held up. Hurriedly detaching his watch and chain from his vest, and taking a large wallet from his trousers' pocket, he lifted the cushion from a seat and pushed the valuables to a place of hiding. In an instant every passenger in the car was engaged in a similar occupation, women screamed, while all waited with apprehension the advent of the bandits. After a few minutes' delay, voices were heard on the platform of the coach. Then a brakeman entered the car with a rabbit the express messenger had shot from the door of his car while the train was waiting.

HER CHILDREN

Go To Her Office With Her Daily.

New York, April 15.—Mrs. William G. Mulligan of the Bronx has solved a great problem. Hereafter a business woman who is a mother need not be separated from her children during business hours. This, provided the business woman is successful and wealthy.

Mrs. Mulligan has had fitted up a nursery, schoolroom, gymnasium, dining-room and kitchen in the building which she and her husband occupy as law and real estate offices. After next week Mr. and Mrs. Mulligan will have their four children always with them.

The children will accompany their parents to business in the morning from their home.

DEFENSE OF POWERS

To Be Conducted By Two Ex-Governors.

Springfield, Ill., April 15.—Former Governor Yates has been retained with former Governor Black of New York to assist in the defense of Caleb Powers, who will be placed on trial again at Georgetown, Ky., the first Monday in May. Powers is charged with murdering Governor Goebel. The employment of the two ex-governors is by an association in Louisville, which is raising funds for the defense of Powers and has paid his expenses in his numerous trials since his own resources were exhausted.

DR. MITCHELL MOVES TO LARGER QUARTERS.
325 WEST FIRST ST.
One Block East of Postoffice.

More Room Was Needed For His Offices—His Phenomenal Success Has Made Great Demand For His Treatment.

The past years all the metropolitan papers throughout the country have been giving large space to the startling cures made by Dr. Mitchell. This eminent scientist has for years devoted his energies to the study and practice of his chosen profession. He has sought and gained every particle of knowledge that he possibly could. He has undoubtedly gone further into this new system of suggestive therapeutics than any man living. His success in this field has been very marked from the beginning and at the present time he is a recognized authority on suggestive therapeutics. In talking to a reporter he said: "I know I have a system of treatment that will reach and cure all diseases. Magnetic Healing is over 2,000 years old and is a true science. It is based upon scientific principles. It is nature's own remedy, and because of this it is the very essence of truth."

The last few years many new systems have sprung up all over the country, none of them, however, can yet be compared with magnetic healing and suggestive therapeutics properly understood and applied. The above is food for thought if you are sick.

Dr. Mitchell's treatment is given without a particle of pain to the patient. Case after case has been cured. He positively cures the following affections: Catarrhal affections of the head, throat, ears, eyes, stomach, kidney and bowels; asthma, bronchitis and lung difficulties; Bright's disease, jaundice, dropsy, gall stones, gravel, torpid liver and all affections of the kidney, liver and bladder; insomnia, melancholia, debility, nervous prostration and all forms of nervous exhaustion due to overwork or disease; scrofula, tumors, eczema and skin affections; dyspepsia, indigestion, heart burn, ulceration and all affections of the stomach.

From his years of experience in this science of healing, he is enabled to offer his system to the public with positive assurance of results.

For young, middle aged or old men who are suffering, showing some of the following symptoms, nervous and physical debility, exhausted vitality, confusion of ideas, dull and loss of brilliancy of the eye, aversion to society, despondency, pimples on the face, his treatment of weakness and decay is certain and satisfactory.

In short, there is a help and cure for you. Do not let the opportunity pass you by. It may mean vigor, life and hope for you, instead of feebleness, invalidism or insanity.

Remember, Dr. Mitchell has moved on the corner of Fourth avenue West and First street and is prepared to receive all who wish to learn his system of treatment.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Wardenship of the State Penitentiary Goes to Parmley.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The long-contemplated change in the wardenship of the state penitentiary was made when the state board of charities and corrections, while holding an official meeting at the penitentiary, announced the appointment of Harry T. Parmley, a Sioux Falls business man, to the position. He will assume his duties May 6, when the term of the present warden, O. S. Swenson, expires. Some weeks ago it was rumored that as the result of a meeting in this city of the Republican state leaders, Mr. Parmley had been selected for the place. Nothwithstanding, Warden Swenson made an energetic fight to retain the office and expressed the utmost confidence that no change would be made.

Two test cases of far-reaching importance as bearing on the state pharmacy law have been decided by Judge J. W. Jones. The pluth doctrine was laid down by Judge Jones that no person except a registered pharmacist can open and conduct a drug store, even if he should employ a registered pharmacist to conduct the store. This decision was made in a hearing in a case instituted by the state pharmacy board against Henry Hoffine of Salem, who had formerly been engaged in the saloon business at that place with a man named Kingsley. Hoffine had been denied a license, and he then purchased a drug store and placed it in charge of a registered pharmacist. He was arrested last fall upon complaint of L. A. Keith, president, and E. C. Bent, secretary of the state board of pharmacy. In accordance with the decision of Judge Jones, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty, but recommended the clemency of the court. This provision of the law was for the purpose of preventing a saloon man from putting in a small stock of drugs in charge of a registered pharmacist and conducting a saloon under the guise of a drugs store. This is the first time this feature of the law has been passed upon by a court in South Dakota.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The North Dakota firemen have changed the date of the state tournament to June 14-16 and the team making the best showing will be sent to the national convention and tournament at Kansas City. It is expected there will be more rivalry this year than formerly. The tournament will be held at Valley City.

Deputy United States Marshal Haggart has arrested Benjamin Waterman of Ward county on the charge of smuggling a horse and buggy across the line. Waterman was held in $250 bail in default of which he was confined to the Ward county jail.

The Knights of the Khorassan, the fun order of the Knights of Pythias, have decided to have a big ceremonial session in Fargo, June 14, at which there will be a number of prominent leaders of the organization present.

CRISIS BEING APPROACHED

School Question In Canada May Overthrow the Constitution.

Winnipeg, Man., April 15.—The Manitoba school question is the one absorbing topic throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion. In the lobbies of hotels, on street cars, in railway trains and in domestic circles little else is spoken of these days. Men meet on the street corner and the subject is brought up again. Time and time again has this been threshed threadbare, but there is an ever prevailing uncertainty that some other startling fact in this connection will turn up. For several years the school question has laid dormant, but was brought to light again when the autonomy bill went before the federal parliament. This bill contained a clause providing for separate schools for the territories. The bubble burst. The Hon. Clifford Sifton, minister of the interior, objected to these clauses, but his protests were of no avail, and he resigned as a mark of disgust for the tactics of the party he was supporting.

The cavalier treatment accorded the territorial house by the federal parliament, and of the energetic ex-minister of the interior, has raised a terrific storm of protest throughout the Dominion, excepting, of course, Quebec—always excepting Quebec—for with its tremulous following in the house and the sagacious and powerful influence, most unspoken, of the hierarchy, it is dictating Sir Wilfrid Laurier's policy in this regard, and conditions are such at the present time that he dare not refuse their commands. The issue is a momentous one and the situation is particularly grave, as can be seen by the lampoons, cartoons, resolutions, etc., that, like dragon's teeth, are appearing all over the land. A great constitutional crisis is approaching. Ontario, always the proud rival of Quebec, and the banner province of the English, is aflame; Manitoba, savage at the stultifying of its size by reason of its school system, is fiercely indignant; the territories, helpless in their wrath and their partly disorganized state, are in a dangerous frame of mind, while the far-off Maritime provinces are "resoluting" in great volume.

The federal house, which is daily stacked with piles of petitions, will divide according to race and creed and not according to politics, the people having unfortunately already done this. The English and French Canadians stand face to face, and the Protestants and Catholics, loath to take issue, are forced by the exigencies of the situation into hostile camps.

American settlers with broad ideas of how their own schools are governed, are a mighty influence on the prairies at the present juncture, but a similar system to theirs seems almost too good to expect. The Canadian premier's coarse and ill-timed allusions to the schools of the states and its "carnival of crime" has stirred popular feeling to the breaking point.

The sensation caused by the publication of Monseigneur Sbarretti's memoranda demanding separate schools has never before been equaled in the history of the Dominion, and did much to stir up the strife which is now dividing the people of Canada. This papal ablegate demanded of the premier of Manitoba separate schools for the Catholics; in return he promised that Laurier should extend the boundaries of Manitoba as desired by the people of that province. For months these negotiations were going on, until the whole correspondence on the subject was published in the Winnipeg papers, causing a political sensation without an equal.

The result of this publication was an outburst of denial from the Catholic camps, but later it was no longer denied when Msgr. Sbarretti admitted the corn, with the result that he will be replaced by another ablegate sent out from Rome in his stead.

ASSAILANT CAUGHT.

Rev. Father Shell In Sioux City Hospital.

Sioux City, April 15.—Officers have captured Logan Lambert, the saloonkeeper of Homer, Neb., who made a deadly assault upon Rev. Father Schell. The latter is in St. Joseph's hospital here. His jawbone is broken in two places and his face is otherwise battered. The priest says he was hit with a club. He has incurred the enmity of the Homer saloonkeepers by securing their indictment by the federal grand jury for selling liquor to Indians.

INDIAN GIRL

Was Murdered and Her Body Concealed.

Marshalltown, Iowa, April 15.—The body of the young Indian girl, Ma-Sha-Che, who disappeared from the reservation March 4, was found near Montour yesterday in a ravine, where it had evidently been concealed. The body was almost nude, and wounds showed she had been murdered. The Indians had been searching for three weeks.

She was the granddaughter of the chief and was seen with an Indian named George Soldier, who was formerly the girl's husband. The Indians are greatly excited and will arrest Soldier.

NEW MINISTER TO SWEDEN AND NORWAY AS GUEST OF HONOR

Duluth Scandinavians Banquet Col. C. H. Graves.

Proud That Duluthian Goes to Mother Country.

Evidences of patriotism of the clearest and most pronounced sort, marks of enthusiastic appreciation for services rendered his friends, the city, state and nation by the honored guest of the evening, and hearty and unmistakable manifestation of the unbounded respect and esteem in which he appears to be generally held by the people of Duluth, with pleasing music, entertaining speeches and an abundance of good things to eat, all combined to make a remarkable success of the complimentary banquet tendered Col. Charles H. Graves at the Commercial club last evening by the Scandinavian-American citizens of Duluth.

Long banquet tables and chairs occupied all available space in the club dining hall. Seats were provided for 200 persons, and all of them were occupied. With very few exceptions all those in attendance were citizens of the United States who own Sweden or Norway as the land of their birth, or whose parents were born on the Scandinavian peninsula. About the only special decoration in the room were the three flags of the United States, Sweden and Norway, which were tastefully arranged at the head of the hall, the stars and stripes occupying a central position, with the flags of the other nations on either side. Music was furnished by Flaaten's orchestra. Not all of the speakers originally planned upon were able to be present. Letters of regret were read from United States Senator Knute Nelson, and O. Halden.

"The president could not have made a better choice," said Dr. J. J. Eklund, the toastmaster in rising to make the opening address, "than when he chose a man from Minnesota to represent this country of ours at the court of the kingdom of Sweden and Norway. Sweden and Norway have contributed much of the foreign element which goes to make up the American people. Their sons are spread all over the northern states. Being a northern race most of them have built their homes in the states which lie along the northern boundary of our country.

"The Scandinavian becomes naturalized very rapidly, and quickly assimilates the customs of the country of his adoption. He comes here for the purpose of making this country his home and of becoming an American citizen."

DR. J. J. EKLUND,
Toastmaster.

SENATOR CLAPP

Speaks of Scandinavian Share In American Progress.

Dr. Eklund then called upon Senator Moses E. Clapp as the first speaker.

"It is not my purpose," said Senator Clapp, "to attempt any flight of oratory, but briefly to speak of the contribution of the Scandinavian race to American progress. Perhaps one of the grandest of these contributions my distinguished colleague, Senator Knute Nelson. I regret that he is not able to be here tonight, not only because he represents Scandinavia, but as a tribute to his old friend, Col. C. H. Graves.

"Back in the dim ages of history, a tide of humanity poured into Europe from across the Asian border. The tide divided. One-half of it flowed to the south, where it found an antient but decayed civilization. Here it found homes for the people, a congenial climate, and a fertile soil. With nothing to arouse their ambition or endeavors, the people sank beneath the enervating influences and became the Latin races of today.

"But the other half of the tide pressing northward and westward found no habitation. The country was rough and uninviting. There was no established civilization, no laws or institutions, so the people proceeded to develop their own laws and establish their own civilization. In that great race were developed the Sandinavians and in time they contributed their quota to the upbuilding of America. Here in America was found the land of the savage, and muscle and brawn, strength and vigor were necessary to capture it from its savage possessors and develop its resources. Especially was this so in the Northwest, and here much of this vigor and energy was supplied by the Scandinavian races.

"The people of Scandinavia love law and order, and are strong and ready in the support of what they believe the public welfare demands of them. While I had the honor to be connected with the state's legal department, I learned that there was one race that could be implickly relied upon, and that the Scandinavian. In looking for a cause for this, I found in Scandinavia the most delicate adjustment between law and freedom. There are two ways in which a people may be made lawless. One is to surround them with harsh and restricting laws. The other is to throw down the barriers and leave them without laws. In Scandinavia these two are most nicely adjusted, and of all the races which come to our shores none so readily become Americanized as the Scandinavians.

"The man chosen to represent you in the land of your birth will prove a most worthy representative, and more so because he goes there inspired by the hearty expression of good will on the part of you people who look upon Scandinavia as the land of your birth."

THE UNITED STATES.

William E. Culkin Pays Eloquent Tribute to It.

Judge Page Morris being unable to be present, the toast assigned him, "The United States," was responded to by W. E. Culkin.

"This toast is one which, it seems to me, always easily appeals to every American citizen," said Mr. Culkin. "The United States is well worthy the devotion of any men and of any nation of people. It is a delight to look back through the pages of history and note the remarkable growth and development of this country, from a land populated with only a few hundred thousand people to the greatest nation of the world, with 80,000,000 loyal people within its borders. Every man in the United States is justly proud of this record. It was only a few years ago comparatively that the people of the nation, all of them, had their homes along the Atlantic seaboard. All west of there was a veritable wilderness. But what a wonderful change has been wrought since that time. Now we are a great power, extending across this vast continent from ocean to ocean, and our moral power extends even farther, clear around the world, in fact.

"The greatness of the country does not depend upon the length of her rivers, the height and ruggedness of her mountains, her miles of railroads, the productiveness of her soil, but rather it consists of the manliness, integrity and virtue of her people. This is the strong foundation upon which the nation is built. The population is made of such diverse elements, gathered from all parts of the globe, that we may well say the United States has received some good from everywhere.

"What a great contrast there will be between the journey of the honored guest of the evening from this city to beautiful Stockholm, and that other journey, made years ago, when the hardy Scandinavian Vikings made their first voyage across the sea in an open boat and landed on American soil. That was the first embassy passing between the two countries, and how different was the nature of their errand and their means of travel. It was then a journey of untold danger and hardship. Now it is a pleasure.

"This first embassy did not long remain in the new country they had discovered. They returned to their native land, and later their energies were expended to the southward.

"It is not my purpose here tonight to deal with historical events. I wish to say that I am glad to be able to bring my tribute here to you and to Col. Graves, and I am glad to know that you, as American citizens, honor the flags of the countries which gave you and your fathers birth. There is nothing incompatible in the best and highest Americanism and a love for the land from which you sprang. Indeed, were you the sort who forget and lose all love for the land of their birth, we would not want you here, for in that event you would not be of the stuff from which good American citizens are made. This great American republic has never had, and never will have, occasion to regret the coming here of strong-armed men and the virtuous women from the Scandinavian peninsula. As long as they continue honest at heart, love virtue and truth, and stand for that which is right, our country will go on in her grand and glorious career."

HON. MOSES E. CLAPP,
United States Senator, Speaker at Scandinavian Banquet to Col. Graves.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

K. A. Ostergren Dwells on Position of Scandinavia.

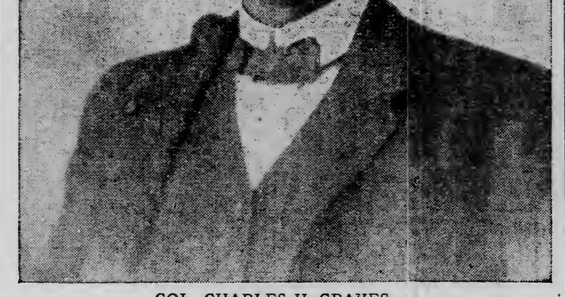
K. A. Ostergren spoke on "Scandinavia and the Eastern Question."

"I speak as a Scandinavian-American," he said in his opening remarks. "It is well and fitting that my countrymen in Duluth should thus show recognization and appreciation of the honor conferred upon Duluth and Minnesota by the selection from our midst of a minister to Norway and Sweden. When the suggestion was first made we were pleased to take it up and follow it out. It would have been a reflection on ourselves had we not done so.

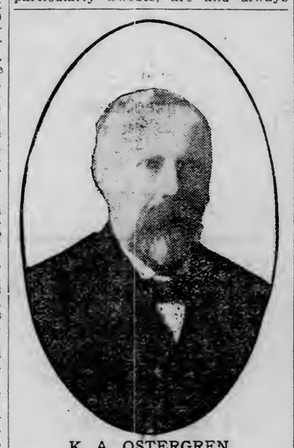
"We all esteem Col. Graves as a fellow citizen. We feel that it is a delight for us to send by him to the old home government greetings from this country. The native land is dead to us all, and whenever we think of that land of our birth our thoughts fill us with feelings of deep emotion. Our children will ever be in full accord with this feeling.

"Scandinavians have made history. They have made history for England, Ireland, Germany and France. In visiting and settling in the various countries of Europe they carried in their rugged bosoms the spirit of independence and liberty. Not only did they diffuse this spirit of liberty and independence abroad, but they cultivated it at home."

Mr. Ostergren then touched briefly but interestingly upon leading events in Swedish history, as illustrating his contention that Scandinavians, and particularly Swedes, are and always have been for peace, liberty and independence. He said emphatically that neither Sweden or Norway had ever been conquered by a foreign foe. The whole history of Sweden, he remarked, bore him out in his statements regarding her love for liberty and independence, when procured and carried out in comformity with law and order. He told of how the people of the two countries had noted the outbreak of the Russia-Jap war and how they had followed the progress of the war with intense interest. He said that the present site of St. Petersburg was Swedish territory when the Russians began to build and expand. Russia, he stated, is not content with enough, she wants all she can get, and her desire is to make a world empire if possible. If Russia should attack Norway or Sweden the whole of Europe would become involved in a bloody war. The whole world underrated the strength of the Japs, who are now placed on a footing with other nations in the master of diplomacy and fighting strength. People generally are surprised yet greatly pleased at the numerous victories of the Japanese army. He said that she has gained her point, and that she is regarded by the world as a great power. As an act of wisdom and diplomacy, he asserted, the European nations will ever guarantee the independence of Scandinavia, especially as regards her relations with Russia.



COL. CHARLES H. GRAVES,
New Minister to Norway and Sweden. Guest of Scandinavians of Duluth at Banquet.



K. A. OSTERGREN.

NORWAY AND NORSEMAN.

John Jenswold Eulogizes Them Eloquently.

"It is the lawyer's privilege to talk," said John Jenswold, Jr., in speaking on "Norway." "That is his business. Others talk about what they know. The lawyer talks of what he does not know. Others may not speak, except never speaks from personal knowledge; otherwise it would be ruled out as hearsay and incompetent. The lawyer is in a class by himself; he never speaks fro mpersonal knowledge. His statements are all based upon what he has been told, embellished onw and then with flights of fancy and figures of speech, yet he is never out of order.

"Our honored and honorable guest is about to go to a distant land among strangers. His desire to learn something of those people is but natural. The gentlemen in charge of this gathering have deemed it proper that he should be properly instructed, that he be informed about them in a legal way, and hence have selected a lawyer, who, except as it has come through his parents, has never seen that country nor taken any part in its affairs, and who is therefore thoroughly competent to perform the duty assigned.

we who trace our ancestry through those people, with whom you are shortly to take up your residence, are proud of our ancestors and believe ourselves rich in our inheritance. Our early fathers were a stern and peculiar people. They believed that an earnest and intense character was of greater value, even though at times it did grievously err, than was a vacillating one, owing no allegiance to any one thing.

"To these ends were developed their bodily activity and strength, bringing forth such a race of warlike giants that at the age of 15 they were Vikings, and at maturity, bare of shirt as of armor and shield, they were knighted Berserkers.

"In intellectual pursuits their opportunities were limited. Printing was unknown and the duties of life exacting. A hard climate and still harder surroundings were not conducive to literature or art. Still Skaldship, or poetry, one of their great Idraetter, held as a gift of God, flourished. Their skalds, on the fields of battle, witnessed the heroism of combatants, and in song perpetuated and transmitted to future generations their heroic deeds and fame, their victories or glorious death.

"Yet they also had their sorrows. They grieved as intensely as the most sensitive of our day. The song of Gudrun is of the most touching pathos.

"His entire life was one grand drama, and his death the close of a strenuous career, and as his life blood ebbed away, he sang the deeds of his achievements and with the dusk and darkness of his life's day, with dimmed sight and hearing, his spirit was carried across the river that divides life from eternity.

"They believed in freedom of action, restrained only by such rules as benefited the entire society; and they also believed in the selection of their rulers from those who were good and great, rather than in having them thrust upon them by birth or accident.

"They believed that a strong, sound body was essential to a sane mind; and, accordingly, they would exercise the one and cultivate the other to qualify them for their life's work.

"Each age furnishes new object lessons, and he reads history in vain who does not learn something to profitably guide his individual career.

"The great social characteristic of the old Norseman was his intense earnestness. To him, life was one continuous and intense struggle. In peace and in war, his aim and end was to excel. The man crowned with the most excellent achievements was the one crowned with leadership, in turn to yield his office to his superior. As heathens, their God must needs be the most powerful, hence he was armed not with things supernatural, but with the simple every-day hammer. To faithfully give one's life on the field of battle in the cause espoused, was the sure and only consideration for a seat of honor in their Valhalla. To properly fit himself for the future, he needs must be a man of Idsaetter. No need to train weaklings; only the strong was worth the training. Having successfully passed this test, the survivors entered upon the Spartan life of physical development.

"These people, though dead, still live. Their blood courses through the veins of the best people in Ireland, England and France, countries which they subjugated and subjugating settled and there intermarried with the widows of the slain, giving birth to a new race, stronger and better and wiser than their ancestors. Their wars, though cruel and devastating, wrought by the guiding hand of the Great Power benefits to all the world. Wherever they settled, they adopted the language of their children and their wives, the customs of their country, levened with that strong, manly, and healthy condition of body and mind and that fearlessness and industry which characterizes their sires.

"That was the old race. You will not meet them there. Christianity and civilization wrought in them a complete transformation. Amongst the two and one-half millions there now residing, you will be charmed by their simplicity, their candor, their hospitality. You will meet men of the highest technical knowledge and skill, and men composing literary classics. You will meet the poet philosopher, Henrik Ibsen, and accord to him the homage of a Shakespeare come to life. You will meet philosophic statesmen, such as Bjormtjerne Bjornson, whose knowledge and advocacy of republican institutions is equal, if not superior to that of any living statesman. Your loyalty to the republic you represent, will be intensified a hundred fold and your faith in self-government irrevocably fixed.

"You, our guest, will find good King Oscar the most learned man in Europe and the prince regent not deaf to the plea of justice. When you meet him, convey the greetings of 400,000 Norwegians living in the state of Minnesota.

"Tell him that one and a half million of her children are under the stars and stripes loyally supporting this government in all of its branches from the senate at Washington down the various steps to the modest voter in the booth who's pencil marks the ballot responsive to his own sensitive conscience.

"The Norwegians of this state bid you God speed and wish your work crowned with all success."

JOHN JENSWOLD, JR.

JOHN J. MOE SPEAKS.

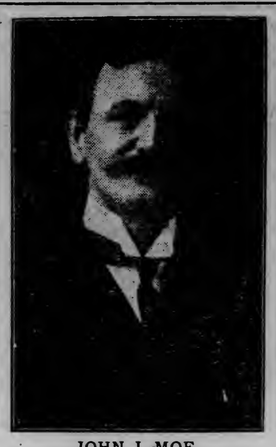
Feeling Reference to Severance of Home Ties.

"It is not without some sadness," said J. J. Moe in rising to respond to the toast on "Patriotism," that every true man bids farewell to his home to make a new home in a foreign land and among strange faces. Deep in our hearts all of us have a love of the country of our birth where our early years were spent. However, far from it we may wander, we follow every item of news concerning it. Every advancement made by it, gladdens our heart. Whether at home or abroad it is our duty and our privilege to advance the fame of our country, and to make it stand for everything that is good and noble and uplifting. Distance can never diminish patriotism in the heart of the true child.

"I am sure Colonel Graves will do his part to enhance the good feelings and fellowship existing between this country and Scandinavia. In the past he has shown his patriotism by striking a blow in defense of his country when it was needed. When the American patriot is speeding away from his home on one of our ocean greyhounds, and the last dim outlines of the land are fading slowly from his sight, he will say to himself, 'never has my country looked grander or more beautiful than she does today.'"

At Mr. Moe's suggestion the banqueters then rose and sang with fervor the first verse of the national anthem.

J. B. Cotton was to have spoken but was suddenly called away from the city yesterday.



JOHN J. MOE.

SWEDES IN AMERICA.

F. W. Lonegren Tells of Their Accomplishments.

F. W. Lonegren responded to the toast, "The Swedes in America." He said that Col. Graves would hardly go to Stockholm as a stranger in a strange land, for, coming from Minnesota, a state with 400,000 Scandinavians within her borders, he would be acquainted, to a more or less extent, with the manners and customs of the people, although the lives, interests and opportunities of the Swedes and Norwegians in this country are closely allied and very similar to those of the native American.

The speaker dwelt upon the occasion when the Swedes first set foot upon American soil, and told of the establishment of a country called New Sweden on the banks of the Delaware river. This colony lasted only seventeen years, but its marks are still to be seen in Delaware and surrounding states. Descendants of these early residents are today and always have been among the most honored and prominent residents of that eastern group of states. The descendants of New Sweden have ever played an important part in American history. They have always fought as gallantly and bravely for their adopted country as if they were battling for independence across the sea. Mr. Lonegren mentioned several great men of Swedish parentage who had had much to do with the making of history of this country, and in this class gave the name of John Ericsson, the inventor and builder of the famous little war craft, the Monitor.

Of late years immigration from Sweden to the United States has been heavy, until now there are more than 2,000,000 people of Swedish descent who recognize this country as their home. The reason for the big immigration is easily explained, said the speaker. Sweden is not a rich country, and it is difficult for the poor man to obtain land there. It is no wonder then, in view of this fact, that thousands of them gladly seize the opportunity to come to America and settle upon a part of the millions of acres of rich land offered free to settlers by the government. With his honest toil, economy and thrift the Scandinavian has converted vast stretches of American wilderness into prosperous farms and communities, with a happy and contented people. They have helped to build cities, establish educational institutions, and have taken an active and honest part in the able administration of affairs of towns, states and the nation. They have shed blood on the field of battle in freedom's cause, said Mr. Lonegren.

"We love America and American institutions," he concluded. "The Swedish-American feels that the blessings he enjoys are not granted as favors but are his by right of moral and civil endeavor. He took possession of the wilderness, and as a pioneer in the work of development, through a long period of suffering and hardship, he has earned all that he possesses."

He expressed the wish that Col. Graves might enjoy all the blessings Sweden and Norway have to bestow.

F. W. LONEGREN.

AS A NEIGHBOR.

John Brandt Speaks Happily of Col. Graves.

"The name of Col. Graves is so closely interwoven with the progress of Duluth that to separate the two would be like trying to play Hamlet and leave out the melancholy Dane," said John Brandt, in rising to speak of Col. Graves as a neighbor.

"I have known our guest of this evening since 1869, and during a part of that time have been a next door neighbor of his, in addition to being associated with him in several business transactions, and have had every opportunity to observe the qualities so much admired in a citizen.

"It required great men to perform the work of upbuilding our city, and among the foremost of the architects was Col. Graves. When Duluth was a struggling little boy among the cities he assisted it toward the goal it desired to reach. In the council chamber and in the legislative halls he has done his duty as a citizen.

"He has always been proud of his boy, and held it up for the admiration of other cities. Now tonight the boy is trying to show how proud it is of its father.

"Later arrivals in the city don't know the struggles Duluth had in the early days. There was opposition from Superior and the Twin Cities. There was the ridicule of Proctor Knott, but the people of Duluth were equal to the emergency. They had thousands of copies of the famous speech printed, and it proved one of the best and cheapest advertisements the city ever had.

"Superior drew us into a legal battle, and forced us to construct a dike across the harbor costing $100,000. And how hard it was in those days to get an appropriation. Now when we want one, our congressman gets up in the house, slaps his buckskin trousers, says he wants $5,500,000, cracks a joke and tells them to love each other. Then the committee reports, giving him what he wants and goes him one better.

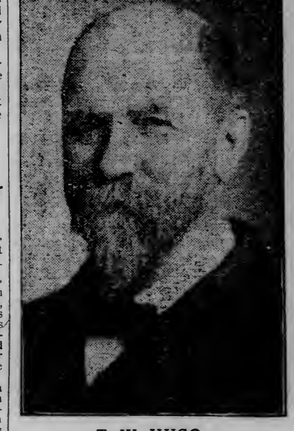
"Now, how would you gentlemen like to have a neighbor who has a fine garden, and who tells you that whenever you want any vegetables all you have to do is to go in and help yourself. I have been wondering during the last few weeks where I would get my vegetables, until I am almost ready to believe the president made a mistake in appointing my neighbor as minister to Sweden and Norway. But I am willing to bury personal reasons and join you all in wishing him godspeed."

THE EVENING'S GUEST.

T. W. Hugo Reviews Record as Soldier and Duluthian.

"Col. Charles H. Graves, Our Guest," was the toast assigned Trevanian W. Hugo. He remarked that there was very little for him to say if he were expected to take up that which had not been told by the speakers before him. He said President Roosevelt had made a good selection in choosing the colonel for the important post to which he has been appointed, and spoke of Duluth as the third city in Sweden. He reviewed the honorable war record of the new minister, who played an active part in the Civil War, rising from a private in the ranks to the position of colonel, always distinguished and distinguishable by his actions. Mr. Hugo said that no man had a more honorable record, either as a soldier, private citizen or public servant, than Col. Graves, who came to Duluth in 1869.

"The firm of Graves & Culver made the first commercial shipment of grain from the port of Duluth," continued the speaker. "He was president of the original elevator companies, and the great grain business of Duluth was built up under his supervision. His deep insight and forsight has had much to do with the present prosperity of the city. He is responsible for the starting of the salt and lime industry here, and first pig iron to be made in this tettirory, and in whose management he took an active part. In fact, nearly everything in the line of business which we are proud of here may be traced back to Col. Graves as the originator. I have been in his employ for twenty-three years, and every year has added to my respect and esteem for him. He has served the city, state and nation well."



T. W. HUGO.

COL. GRAVES RESPONDS.

Expresses Appreciation of Honors Extended Him.

"It is with a heart brim full of emotion that I thank you for the honor of being your guest here this evening," said Colonel Graves in rising to respond to the complimentary speeches that had been made concerning him. "It is difficult after all this undue praise for me to say anything. The appointment came to me as a complete surprise. I had no idea of it at all.

"The most delightful thing connected with it is the expressions of pleasure I have heard from the Scandinavian people. I was surprised at it. I had no idea that any such feeling existed. But it proves that President Roosevelt, in choosing a man from this state to represent this country at the court of King Oscar, remembered the great population of Scandinavians in Minnesota and knew better than I what would pelase them. It is mainly a compliment to your state and to your city, notwithstanding the many complimentary things that have been said here tonight.

"In the thirty or forty years that I have been among you, I have made many dear friends. I have been closely associated with many of your race and I always got along with them, without any misunderstandings. From this kindly atmosphere I shall go to that foreign land to represent our country at the court of good King Oscar, but more especially to represent you. I shall ever try that you may never be ashamed of any act of mine and shall do my best to bring the two countries into closer relations. If any of you pay a visit to that country be sure to see me. I shall value the friendly grasp of your hand.

"Really, my friends, my feelings are too much touched to say more. I thank you one and all."

REMOVE LOOSE ROCK.

Danger of Falling Stones Will Be Removed.

As a result of the narrow escape from death experienced by W. L. Smith while driving past the point of rocks at Fourteenth avenue west, the board of public works yesterday took steps to have the portions of rock that threaten to fall from the cliff removed.

City Engineer McGilvray examined the rock last winter and reported that it was in a dangerous condition and should be remedied. He said that three men could place it in a safe condition in about two days.

PALESTINE'S GALA DAY.

Masonic Lodge Giving Large Class Third Degree.

About twenty fellow-crafts will be given the master mason's degree in Palestine lodge this afternoon and evening. The initiation began at 2 o'clock this afternoon and will continue until 6 o'clock, after which supper will be served in the banquet room of the Temple. Recommencing at 8 o'clock, exemplification of the work will be started, and it is likely that the initiations will run into a late hour. Guy A. Eaton, as worshipful master of the lodge, will have charge.

A week from Monday Ionic lodge will devote a whole day to initiating fellow-crafts to the mastor mason's degree.

FOR SENSIBLE TAX LAWS.

One of the best acts of the present legislature was the passage of the bill submitting a "wide-open" tax amendment to the constitution to popular vote. All that now remains to make it a law is the governor's signature and there is little doubt that it will receive that. Next the amendment will be submitted to the people and if it is carried, which is altogether probable, the next legislature can proceed to formulate a set of equitable and just tax laws suitable to the needs of the present day.

All that the proposed amendment requires of the legisature is that in levying taxes they must be collected and spent for public purposes, and they must also be uniform on the same class of subjects. After complying with these moderate requirements legislatures of the future will have an absolutely free hand. They can, if they choose, abolish entirely taxes on personal property and this is one of the things that should first be done. They can, if they prefer, leave this matter entirely to the option of the people of the several counties, or they can make uniform laws to cover the entire state.

Whatever may be decided upon, taxation in future should be so regulated as not to impose unnecessary and unjust burdens upon business. Taxes should be so levied that it will be impossible for would-be tax-dodgers to escape.

The safest and fairest plan of taxation would be to tax land, incomes and franchises. It is to be hoped that the next legislature will formulate the best set of tax laws possessed by any state in the Union, and the people should be careful to select representatives who will frame such laws. The taxation question ought to be the most important issue in the campaign next year. There can be no other that will exceed it in importance.

COL. C. H. GRAVES.

The very general and heartfelt expressions of good will by the people of Duluth toward the newly appointed minister to Sweden and Norway must be very gratifying and pleasing to Col. Graves, who leaves the city during the coming week for his diplomatic post across the Atlantic. A week ago Col. Graves was the guest of honor at a banquet tendered him by many of the leading business and professional men of the city, who took this method to show the esteem which they felt for him and their appreciation of the honor conferred by President Roosevelt by selecting him for one of the first-class missions to foreign countries. Last night Col. Graves was again given evidence of the high regard in which he is held by the Scandinavian citizens of Duluth. It was a splendid gathering, and the new minister to Sweden and Norway must have been highly pleased by this demonstration on the part of the residents of Duluth who were born in the Scandinavian countries or are of Scandinavian descent.

The Herald feels assured that Col. Graves will receive a warm welcome at the court of the king of Sweden and Norway, and that he will be a popular representative of the great American republic.

MUNICIPAL PROBLEMS.

The scientific study of American municipal conditions is growing broader and more general yearly. In all the world there is no other nation whose cities and their governments present such diversified problems for the students, and consequently there is a large group of men who are practically devoting their lives to the questions the cities offer, and the answers to them.

A large percentage of the thinkers along these lines—those who seriously consider the possibilities, the advantages and the disadvantages of American cities—are members of the National Municipal league. Its convention, therefore, which this year will be held in New York city on April 25, 26, 27 and 28, is really one of the most important sociological events of the year. This year it will be larger and more important than ever. More members have been enrolled in the organization, more cities have been studied, new problems in municipal government and operation have arisen, and as a result the discussions are bound to be timely and interesting.

They are not merely discussions, however—these reports made by league members. They are narrations of actual conditions, and suggestions of actual remedies and betterments. There is nothing visionary about them. The leaguers are not the sort of reformers who talk of the beauty of reform and then do nothing to help it along. They are workers, every one. The plans they suggest they put into effect and carry out.

It might be interesting to those who are not fully familiar with the work of the National Municipal league to give here the titles of some of the addresses made at last year's convention, which was held in Chicago. "Partizanship in Municipal Politics" was one. This, as can readily be seen, is one of the greatest problems before the American voter; everywhere the question is asked, "shall a man stick to his party—be a 'straight party man' all the way through all elections—or shall he, in questions that are purely local and in no wise national, turn to another party if he thinks he can better his municipality?" The possibilities of the paper can be realized by every voting citizen. Charles J. Bonaparte of Baltimore, one of the best known municipal students of the country, handled that subject at last year's convention.

"A Year's Disclosure and Development" was another subject with great possibilities, which, fortunately, were fully realized. There had been arrests of municipal officers in some places; there had been charges of "graft" and corruption in many more; in still others there had been difficulties over constitutions, charters and ballot laws. That was one side of the year. On the other side there was a different story. Many cities had been materially improved through new plans and methods being put into effect. Organizations had been formed that accomplished great good in the improving of conditions. It was a great year for American municipalities. All this was ably discussed by Clinton Rogers Woodruff of Philadelphia, an experienced legislator, lawyer and well known advocate of every measure standing for improvement.

The same vital interest surrounded many other subjects. This year there will be many other topics just as interesting, to be discussed by these same prominent municipal reformers and others.

BUSINESS HONESTY.

If a merchant should sell any article to a customer knowing it to be defective while the customer did not, he would be dishonest. If a man sells stock in an enterprise, knowing it is worth less than it is represented to be, he is also dishonest. Sometimes the seller himself may be mistaken or misinformed. In such case there is no moral guilt, but when the seller knows that a property is misrepresented he is morally just as guilty of theft in selling stocks above their actual value as would be the footpad who knocks a man down and takes his wallet away from him.

This point was recently illustrated by R. C. Ogden in a story told of a New York merchant. This man, owning stock in a certain railroad, learned on authority which he know to be final that the company was soon to declare bankruptcy. He refused to sell his stock, however, scorning to take money for property that he knew to be worthless.

How many men are there like him in the United States today? It would not take long to count all of them among the stock dealers and speculators. And yet this man did nothing but his plain duty. How many times in Duluth have men deliberately lied about mining and other propositions when they knew them to be worthless in order to dispose of their own holdings before the bottom fell out? Not a few. And yet many of them count themselves shrewd business men and pretended that they had done nothing wrong.

But a different standard of business morals is now being demanded by the people of this country and the time is soon to come when the course of this New York gentleman will be the rule and not the exception. The public is becoming tired of buying rotten eggs that are represented to be fresh.

OPERATIONS ON STATE WARDS.

The state board of control has asked the legislature for authority to order surgical operations on inmates of state institutions without the consent of the parent, or the relatives or guardian of the inmate.

L. A. Rosing, a member of the board, explains the necessity for such a law by pointing to the fact that many inmates of the state institutions are not of sound mind and that sometimes they die for lack of surgical treatment, because neither their consent nor that of their parents or guardians can be obtained. He tells of one case where recently a boy in the school for the feeble minded at Faribault died because the board could not gain the consent of his parents to allow him to undergo an operation. Upon receipt of the board's letter requesting them to grant their permission, they sent back this reply: "Ship us the body of the boy when he dies."

Considerable opposition to the measure has developed and some savage and unwarranted attacks have been made upon the board. No doubt the board, as Mr. Rosing says, is moved in this matter by the most worthy of motives.

Of course the parents of a child should have the right to say whether or not an operation should be performed on that child, but when a child is turned over to a state institution the state becomes in fact its guardian, and it is a question whether the state should have more authority than the parents in matters of this kind. It would seem that in the case at least of the insane and feeble minded, the state authorities ought to have power to order an operation if it is thought necessary in order to save life.

RAILROADS AND WORKINGMEN.

While 42 per cent of the gross receipts of all American railways went directly to labor in wages last year, as shown by the reports of the bureau of labor, and less than 2 per cent to capital, (as paid in interest on mortgages bonds and in dividends), nearly 40 per cent of the gross receipts of British railroads went to capital and only 28 per cent to labor. In no other country in the world does labor absorb so much and capital so little of the gross earnings of railways as in the United States.

The English statistician, Mr. Priestly, says: "The present prosperity of the United States of America is in no small extent due to the low rates charged for transportation. American railway men have managed to do what those in no other country in the world have done, and that is to carry their goods traffic profitably at extraordinarily low rates, notwithstanding the fact that they pay more for their labor than any other country."

PARCELS POST AND THE SENATE.

If it were not for the fact that a few men are making millions out of the carrying of small packages and some of these men are members of the United States senate the American people would have long since enjoyed the blessings of a parcels post system. But the senate stands in the way of this important reform just as it blocks most of the legislation desired by the people and which would be of general benefit.

The establishment of a parcels post would deliver a death blow to many kinds of monopoly, including the express monopoly, which is one of the worst extortions with which the public has to deal. Many a time these express concerns take more than the value of the property when they carry it a few hundred miles. But no relief can come to the people because the framers of the constitution chose to take the government out of the hands of the people and place it in the hands of a few men who are now chosen by the corporations and special interests.

It was the belief of Senator Hanna before he died that the next great issue before the people would be socialism. If the people who fear socialism desire to escape it they should unite in a demand that United States senators shall be elected by the people and that power shall be returned to the people to initiate or veto legislation.

EDUCATION IN THE SOUTH.

The eighth meeting of the Conference for Education in the South is to be held on April 26 to 28 inclusive at Columbia, S. C. The Boston Transcript says there seems to be in some portions of that section a growing spirit of unwelcome toward the movement that this conference represents. It encounters in some quarters a mind-your-own-business attitude and a strange distrust of its motives and purposes. This is all the more to be wondered at, inasmuch as the membership of the conference is really more Southern than Northern. It originated in pure philanthropy and public spirit, and it has been enabled to make its work more fruitful largely through the liberality of Robert C. Ogden of New York. Last year there were frequently expressed in Southern newspapers distorted views of the methods and intentions of the organization, and the present year they have begun in advance to make ready their shafts of criticism.

In view of this situation a very timely article appears in the Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier from the pen of Dr. Julius D. Dreher, formerly president of Roanoke college at Salem, Va. He writes from Selwood, S. C., where he is now living, and says: "From the home of my family for five generations, I confess to a feeling of pride that this conference is to be held in the capital city of my native state, for I believe that this meeting will mark an advance in educational achievement and thus prove a great blessing to the South, and most of all to South Carolina." No man is more familiar with the origin and development of this movement than Dr. Dreher. Much of it he has seen and no small part of it he has been. He was one of the provisional committee to make arrangements for the first meeting. He has attended most of those since held, and has been in close touch with the entire record of progress.

This movement was suggested by the success of the earlier Mohonk conferences. From the beginning at Capon Springs in West Virginia in 1898, it has steadily expanded, and many there are, and they most familiar with its service and influence, who make grateful acknowledgement of its value. The state superintendent of public instruction in Virginia said two years ago: "It is impossible to overestimate the value and influence of such meetings on the educational, social and material interests of the country." In that state it has certainly produced gratifying results. One of its fruits, direct or indirect, is a Co-operative Education commission there, Governor Montague being chairman of the executive committee, and the main purpose as announced in its circulars is "a chance for every child, whether living in the city or in the country, whether white or black," to have the benefit of a richer and more complete system of educational advantages than has previously been the case.

Race sensitiveness has taken alarm where there is no cause for alarm. Those connected with the movement, whether from the North or the South, recognize not alone the educational needs of the blacks, but still more strongly those of the whites, and in fact the preponderance of emphasis in their work inclines to the latter.

An echo of the Blair tragedy in St. Louis comes in the form of a report showing there was a deficit of $1,000,000 in his accounts as early as Dec. 31, 1901. Yet the public did not know how short he was until a year ago.

A postoffice inspector in Philadelphia tearfully declares he made "a fatal mistake" when, three years ago, he accepted a loan of $1,100 from an investment concern which is shown to have swindled its victims out of $3,000,000. And the color of the money so affected his eyesight that he could see nothing wrong about the concern.

The many facilities injoyed by the modern householder for calling the police were illustrated by the fact that three young women who were in the upper story of a Brooklyn residence the other night when a burglar entered the lower story were able to put three methods in operation simultaneously. One young woman rang the District telegraph alarm; another went to the telephone and called up the police station, and the third followed the old-fashioned method of putting up the window and yelling for help.

Formerly Iowa elected its governor and other state officers biennially in the odd numbered years. Then the congressional and presidential elections came in the even-numbered years, so that the state had an election each fall. Iowa grew tired of this and a constitutional amendment has been carried and just sustained by the supreme court of the state, by which Governor Cummins and the other state officials will have their present terms extended a year, and the next state election will not be held until November, 1906, at the time of the congressional elections. Enumerated according to the manner of electing their governors, twenty-one states now have quadrennial elections, one state—New Jersey—has a triennial election, twenty-one states have biennial elections, and only two—Massachusetts and Rhode Island—still elect their governors every year.

Hotel Gossip.

"The Indian school across the lake from Tower is meeting with a remarkable degree of success," said Albert Kitto of Tower at the McKay. "There are now upwards of 200 pupils, both boys and girls, in attendance, and most of them seem to have bright minds. They are apt in their studies and learn quickly.

"A visit to the school offers opportunity for interesting observation. There are five or six buildings, with everything arranged with an eye for comfort and convenience. As the children are government wards while at the school, they are clothed at the expense of Uncle Sam. The boys are dressed in a sort of uniform not unlike that worn by your mail carriers, while all the girls are dressed in gray.

"The attendance at the educational institution would be very much larger but for the fact that the majority of the Nett lake Indians refuse to allow their children to be educated there. There was a fight on when the school was established as to whether it should be built at Nett lake, thirty miles distant from the present location, or where it is now. The Tower district won out, and it appears that the Nett lake residents have not as yet gotten over their defeat.

"As a rule, the parents seem to be indifferent on the question of white man education for their children, and do not care much whether the younger generation goes to school or not. Some, however, are anxious for the little ones to learn. I believe the rule is that any person who is at least one-eighth Indian can be educated there at the expense of the government. A number of the boys and girls you see there you would not take to have any Indian blood in their veins at all.

"The adult Indians' reputation for laziness is ably sustained by members of the race in the vicinity of Tower. Their aversion to manual labor is very pronounced. A few of the men exert themselves to such an extent as to work in the woods for a time during the winter months, but this is not at all to their liking. Neither do they take kindly to farming. A small patch of potatoes for their own use is the limit of their endeavor in this line. Speaking of potatoes, I myself disposed of 1,700 bushels last year for as many hundred dollars. There was a good market for them on the Mesaba range."

"The warm weather is bringing out the hoboes in large numbers," said Frank Cantwell, a Staples railroad man, at the St. Louis. "These gentlemen of the road travel on reduced rates the year round, whether the weather be warm or cold, but their patronage is naturally the heaviest when spring and summer are here.

"During certain seasons of the year they make life a burden for the average railroad man. The latter has his orders to keep the bums from stealing rides, and if he wishes to live up to his orders in this respect he must be continuny on the lookout, and even then the hobo, grown clever from long association with box cars, may escape detection. Even when he is found he does not always get off without a show of force to keep his position, and it sometimes happens that regular pitched battles occur between members of train crews and the men who are trying to steal a ride. In these encounters the bum is of course pretty apt to get the worst of it, but in more than one instance in the past he has left his mark on the unfortunate brakeman who was instrumental in spying him out and dislodging him."

"I have just been down to see and ride on the aerial bridge," said B. G. Hardwick, a Minneapolis traveling man, at the St. Louis. "It behooves the man on the road to learn a little about all these new things that are causing talk, for he is bound to be led into conversations concerning them while going about his business, and if he can talk intelligently on the subject when it is brought up his chances for a favorable impression on the merchant he is dealing with, or trying to deal with, are just that much better.

"But aside from purely business reasons I had a great personal curiosity to see the new ferry in operation. It certainly is a wonderful contrivance. As an advertising medium for Duluth its value can hardly be overestimated. People residing here know of the way it has been spoken of in different magazines, but few of them realize what a lot of talk there is at outside points, and how much interest is shown in the structure. Tell a person you have been to Duluth and one of the first questions he will ask is whether you have seen and rode on the aerial bridge. He wants to know how it looks and how it operates.

"Some commercial travelers are veritable encyclopedias of knowledge on matters of general interest, and of course this knowledge works to their advantage. My territory extends down into Southern Minnesota, and during the progress of the Koch trial I was supposed to know everything about the case and what verdict the jury would bring in, as well as the nature of the verdict they ought to bring in if they didn't. About every store I would go into the subject of conversation, if any men were grouped about, would be the famous murder trial. The clerks, proprietor and everybody was interested. Naturally I was also interested with the rest, and did not particularly object to talking about it, but in the course of time, after I had heard it tried a score of times or so, the thing began to get a little monotonous. At the present trial, to begin next week, I do not believe the interest will be so great as on the previous occasion."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The best way to be popular is not to be successful.

A woman would rather be wrong and win the argument than right and lose it.

Nothing is easier than for a woman to fool a clever man, specially if he isn't.

There is a great deal of money in it for the man who doesn't go into public life.

Either a man finds fault because he is taxed or because he has nothing to be taxed.

Scored on the Conductor.

In a dispute between a conductor and a passenger in a London subway car, the conductor remarked: "I have been on this train, man or boy, for 20 years."

"Yes?" said the bitter passenger. "What station did you get in at?"

Twenty Years Ago.

Parties coming in from the woods report that it is almost impossible to get through on account of the deep snow.

The vessels comprising the Northwest Transportation company's fleet will be commanded as follows: United Empire, Capt. Edward Robertson; Quebec, Capt. J. B. Symes; Ontario, Capt. H. Zealand.

Wreckers are at work on the schooner Harvey Bissell, which stranded at Crap river, Lake Superior, last fall. She is full of solid ice. After the Bissell has been released, work will be begun on the Mary Battle at Eagle river.

New grain firms have been coming into Duluth in large numbers of late; and the newcomers are all heavy firms. Dunn & Thomson of Chicago have opened an office here and put A. Bailey, formerly Barden's resident manager, in charge. Mr. Thomson, who now has charge in Montreal, is expected here soon, and will locate. David Dows & Co. have found that a St. Paul branch was of no use to them and have moved it to Duluth. Andrew Blackstone of New York is now in charge here. George S. Barnes & Co. of the Northern Pacific Elevator company will soon open a house here.

Building operations have commenced in West Superior, but it is safe to say that the town will see no important improvements, except in the way of sidetracks, this season.

The village council has ordered the chief of police to remove all obstructions from along the railroad tracks between Lake and St. Croix avenues, and also all the obstructions from sidewalks.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Chicago Tribune: The ambitious young merchant caressed the shapely hand of the heiress.

"Dear little hand!" he murmured, absent mindedly. "So delicate! So fragile! And yet I hope some day to see it lift the heavy mortgage that's on my store!"

Somerville Journal: It's mighty hard to be an optimist when the children all have the measles, the cook has left, your employer has just fired you and the coal is out.

Louisville Courier Journal: "Why do you waste so many hours on beautifying devices?" inquired the old-fashioned woman. "Why not devote that time to thinking beautiful thoughts?"

"Oh, fudge," retorted the modern damsel. "My beau isn't a mind reader."

Philadelphia Press: Mrs. Dresser—I thought the sermon quite short. I'm surprised that you should have considered it long.

Mr. Dresser—But I wasn't wearing a new bonnet, with a consciousness that all the other women in the church were admiring it.

Chicago Tribune: The Rev. Dr. Fourthly (who has been invited to occupy the pulpit on the morning in question)—At what point in the service, brother, do you take up the collection?

The Rev. K. Mowatt Laighfly—O, we don't do that any more at all! Some of the contributions might be morally tainted.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "And do you mean to say, madam, that you and your husband never had any spats?"

"My husband had a pair once, sir, but he gave 'em to the boy who sprinkled our grass."

Cleveland Leader: Binks—Young folks seldom have insomnia, do they?

Spinks—Nonsense! My baby is only 5 weeks old, and he's got the worst case I ever saw!

Philadelphia Ledger: Mother—Mabel is in love with that Jack Poorley. I do wish I knew of something to cure that affair.

Father—Well, there's one sure way. Let her marry him.

Russian Army Customs.

Penny Magazine: Many, indeed, are the curious customs connected with the Russian army. For instance, none but giants are allowed in the Preobrashenski bodyguard regiment. To the Ismailowski regiment none but fair men are admitted, while a turned-up nose is the qualifying adornment of the Pawlow guards. The Guards Chasseurs, on the other hand, are composed exclusively of dark-haired men. Then, too, the distinction between officers of the guards and those serving in line regiments is most marked, a guard lieutenant until recently taking precedence over a captain of the line.

Knew Where They Were.

Chief Clerk Ben. F. Russell of Steelville, Mo., is telling a good story on Speaker David Hill of the Missouri house of representatives. Hill is a big man, weighs something like 200 pounds, and is bold as a lion. Hill reached home tired from his efforts as presiding officer of the house. He retired early and was soon sleeping pacefully. About midnight he was partially awakened by Mrs. Hill.

"Dave, Dave," she called.

No response.

"Dave, wake up. I hear thieves in the house," said she.

"Thieves in the house?" said Mr. Hill, half awake. "I guess not. They're all in the senate."

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Attitude of Public Men Toward Religion.

The public estimate of religion at any given period in the world's history is one measure of its real worth and a great factor in its onward march. To be sure there have been times of hypostacy, when men generally have fallen away from, denied and scoffed at faith, crucified and burned the purest and noblest among their fellows. But these seasons have been usually of short duration and are always followed by a renaissance of faith, hope and love. It is especially true that the estimate which the natural leaders of the human race, its statesmen, generals, philosophers and poets put upon religion, goes far toward substantiating it as reality and confirming it in the minds and hearts of the populace.

Not that religion is at all dependent for its continued existence and spread upon what Senator A or Governor B or Emperor C thinks about it. Religion sheds more luster upon their lives than they can ever possibly confer upon it; and it is far more essential to their well being than they are to it. But the fact that, throughout the centuries, the prevailing opinion of the profoundest minds and of the ablest men in practical affairs has been favorable to religion counts powerfully when we stop to sum up the reason why the ordinary person should believe in religion and govern his life by its ideals.

Recently three of the most prominent men in this country have on public platforms expressed themselves unqualifiedly as believers in religion. The president of the United States, the only living ex-president, and the man who has twice been the candidate of his party for the presidency, are the three men who made these remarkable deliverances. The first was from the lips of President Roosevelt, who said:

"All of us will make this twentieth century better, and not worse, than any century that has gone before in proportion as we approach the problems that face us with a firm resolution to neglect no one side of the development of the man, but to strive to make him decent, God-fearing, law-abiding, honor-loving, justice-doing, and also fearless and strong, able to also strive mightily that the forces of right may be in the end triumphant."

The second testimony is from ex-President Cleveland, who said in Philadelphia only a few weeks ago:

"The word 'Christian' has broad significance and various shades of meaning, but in all its meanings it signifies not weakness and not the nerveless complacency of an amiable belief, but a rugged faith in God, and His purposes toward men, strength of heart, head and hand, cheerfulness, courage, dutiful work and the perseverance that points the way to success."

And for a third witness we may summon William J. Bryan, who within a short time, has made this declaration:

"We talk about the mysteries and the miracles of the Bible, but there is still a mystery equal to any recorded in Holy Writ. It is the change in the heart of a man that makes him hate the things that he loved and love the things that he hated. It is the transforming of one who would have sacrificed a world for his own advancement into one who would give his life for a principle and esteem it a privilege to make a sacrifice for his convictions."

Note that all these testimonials are not from ministers who might be prejudiced, or from sentimental idealists, but from hard-headed men of affairs. And what are they good for?

In the first place they show that religion today is not exclusively a concern of women and children or of invalids and incapables. It appeals to virile intellects and to ambitious spirits in all walks of life. Any person, who, in the midst of a hostile environment, any boy in a remote hamlet who is striving his best to do right and fear God, is leagued by a sort of free masonry, with stalwart souls over the world. He may be the only boy in the village who is trying to rise to higher things; he may be the only man in his shop who is walking by faith. But he is not in any true sense alone. He belongs to a vast and growing company of worthy men and women who are keeping the faith.

These quoted utterances show also that the religion which appeals to the modern man must be broad and tolerant. It must be built on a few great fundamentals. It does not split hairs, as religion in former days did, over trifling and inconsequential matters. True religion is roomy enough for every man who loves God, who loves his fellowmen and who follows the light as it is given him.

If religion commands the respect of men whom we esteem as thinkers and leaders, it may be worth our while to scrutinize our own personal attitude toward religion. Why should not you and I have a decided opinion on this important matter? Why should we drift along never having courage and energy enough to make up our mind? Why should we not show our colors when the right time comes, modestly, yet firmly and gladly?

THE PARSON.

Highways and Byways of The Town.

The man was very angry. He was old enough to make his anger impressive, and young enough to make it dangerous. He faced an astonished friend on the rear platform of a West Duluth car, and exploded with all the vehemence of an Italian count on the comic opera stage.

"A pretty lot of protectors of the people these policemen and their superiors are," he stormed, prancing about in a manner startling to behold, "a pretty lot. Here they are, making all kinds of laws against one set of poor devils, and enforcing them, too, when they ought to be looking after the people they are after, and give a little of their kind care to some one that needs it.

"Take that last move, whereat he cops are told to see to the peace and comfort of the ladies while they are on the street, and to keep all rude men from looking at them. Why, a more fool arrangement I never heard of, and the people should not stand for it at all. No, sir, not for one holy minute. Why, sir, I tell you it is the men that need protection. Yes, sir, the men.

"The idea! It makes me snortin' mad every time I think of it, and George was such a nice boy, too, full of promise, and I had hoped so much for him. Women don't want men to lok at them? Huh, you can't tell me that, not when I have lived in this world for fifty-five years, and been in the city most of the time at that. The devil! If you don't look at them, and stare hard enough so they can call it rude, you can just bet that that is the time when they will fly to the police with their tale of woe. Yes, sir, that is when they want to have you arrested. Oh, I know 'em.

"They are taught how to take care of themselves before they leave the cradle, and if they ain't, they inherit the knowledge. But what of the boys? Oh, they can take care of themselves, the mother says, and then they let 'em grow up without knowing anything about the thieving ways of the female sex. In view of this fact, what chance has a modest young man got when a smooth thing in petticoats gets her evil eye on him, and lays for him by the wayside, all the time protected by the police? What chance, I say? None at all; no, sir, devil a bit, and yet they are getting up rules for the protection of the robbers."

"What in the name of conscience ails you, anyway?" interjected the friend, while the elderly gentleman stopped a moment to gasp for breath. "Haven't you got a daughter of your own? And a son, too? And here he got married only three days ago. Why, you ought to be happy and thankful, instead of jumping around here like a wounded jackrabbit."

"Jackrabbit, happy, thankful—ye gods and smelley fishes, it's that marriage that started me on all this. Me and ma didn't like the girl from the first, the bold, young hussy, but George, he was all tied up in her, and it was give in or let 'em elope, and so we gave in, but you can bet I wouldn't have consented if I had known then what I know now.

"Police protection for the women, bah! They make me tired. Here was George, a nice, modest, promising young fellow, with all the chances in the world for getting ahead, but he hadn't been around much, because he was so shy, I suppose, and therefore didn't know enough to see the snare set for him by this thing moving under the protection of your bloody laws.

"I ran across this letter, that must have started it all, in his bureau drawer yesterday, after they left on their honeymoon, and then snooped around and found out a few things that showed she wasn't quite so good and pure as she claimed to be. Oh, he was an easy mark alright, but I tell you, sir, that there are a hundred more like him right here in this very town. But what are you going to do about it? Nothing, simply nothing. All we can do is to stand back and watch them build up fences to keep the wolves from getting hurt while the innocent lambs are running about unguarded and unsuspecting. Here is the letter."

And the friend read:

"Dear Mr. ——:

"I am well aware that I am taking a very unusual step in venturing to address you, but trust that, under the circumstances, you will feel inclined to excuse any seeming boldness and forgive me, as, unfortunately, there appears to be no other course open for making myself known to you.

"Surprised? Well, yes, I might well guess that, on opening this letter, and finding it comes from a stranger, you will be somewhat surprised, but, really, you can hardly call me a stranger in this case, for I am what might be termed a silent, absent friend. You no doubt will be just a little astonished on perusing the contents of this letter, but, nevertheless, I trust that I shall not offend you by what I am going to say, or suggest occasion for ridicule.

"I realize that you are scarcely prepared for a communication of this nat-

"What a chance has a modest young man got, when a smooth thing in petticoats gets her evil eyes on him."

ure, and it has taken me some time to decide upon so difficult and delicate a matter as writing it. I shall not attempt to conceal that, from the various opportunities I have had of observing your character and disposition I have conceived for you a feeling of friendliness—forgive me—prompted by an impulse which I cannot control, and impelled by an admiration which overwhelms every other consideration, I have dared to address you, with the hope, faint yet deathless, that Fortune, which sometime seconds a desperate resolve, may thus far favor me.

"The various occasions on which I have had the secret pleasure of seeing you have served but to deepen the impression which you at first created, and the one hope that animates me in thus writing to you is that you may feel interested enough in these lines to gain such favor in your eyes that you will pen me a line—promise me a line, if only forgiveness you grant me.

"Think not, dear Mr. ——, that I do not realize what your feelings would naturally be in a matter of this kind. Yes, I am well aware that you are a man much of retirement, modest and have little to say, but hold your own ideas and think deeply. That is just why I truly admire you, and could not keep from writing you. One cannot often meet a person whose face will follow one home and somehow be so impressed that it becomes a living pleasure. Yet this is just what has happened to me, and while I am still young.

"Did I mention age? Perhaps I had better tell you a little something about myself—give you a pen picture, so to speak. Well, to begin with, I am 21 years old, a graceful age. I have so far in my travels met two gentlemen of my ideal—that I was desirous of having their attention and friendship. You are one of them, while the other person lives in the West. I met him last summer at Seattle. Strange to relate, he is also engaged in the same business as yourself. I have been visiting a good deal during the past three years and all last summer was West. The truth is, I canont content myself here in Duluth. I am sure I don't know why, for I have a lovely home here, and this city has been my home since early childhood. As a matter of fact, dear old Duluth is a pretty city, and I truly admire her rocks and hills, but to tell the truth I much more enjoy the little, wood-bordered lakes, where you may go boating on a summer evening with a person to your liking. The climate here contains too much of winter. I love the South, the beautiful South, where there is always summer, and where nature is ever in a joyous mood. Even now I can, in imagination, hear the voices of the pretty birds, and see the wonderful flowers, and smell their delicious perfumes.

"I am, like yourself, a young person of retiring disposition, modest in general makeup and quiet. While I am all right that is bright, witty and entertaining, I am still womanly in all my actions. I seek the quiet and private of home rather than the public searchlight of society. The general crowd are always rushing ahead and, I fear, are not enjoying the peace and happiness of congenial companionship.

"You will find me of tall, slender stature, stately, though not too slender, for I weigh 126 pounds—Gibson type, not stylish, modest though aristocratic in general appearance, womanly at heart and of a kind and loving nature, though firm. I am considered pretty. Have pleasing face, with classic features, dark brown, expressive eyes. I am well educated and musical. You will find me all feminine, and a lover of all that is beautiful. I admire fine horses and it is my delight to be dirving. I enjoy the theater and good standard plays, but do not care much for moving in society. I am interested in sane and deep thinking.

"Ah, yes, I am a brunette. Do you not admire brunettes?

"I guess you now have a good pen picture of me, but do not, I beg of you, judge me until you have seen me in person. Seretly I have been trying to study you, and your likes and dislikes, but I have failed when results are considered.

"Rather than let a third person know I have a desire to meet you my natural timidity prompts me to write you direct and trust you to keep my secret. Can we not correspond for a time, you not knowing my true name? I am so afraid to give it, for fear that you may not take kindly to my thus addressing you. I trust and place confidence in you, and hope that you will do the same by me. Just about two weeks ago I believe we met. You raised your hat, if I am not mistaken. I was all nevous, and it happened that morning that I was much sadcned over some news I had just received. It all happened about 10 o'clock.

"Do let me hear from you. I shall anxiously await a reply to this letter. It is with the greatest spirit of unrest that I shall move about until I have heard what your answer will be. You know the feeling one has after he has sealed and mailed an important letter, while he is waiting for a reply. Fear will be with me during the interval, but still I shall hope, for surely you will also address the luncheon talk at 5:15 on "The Birthright of Manhood."

It was under Mr. Montgomery's leadership that the lunch table talks were first commenced, and he will be given an enthusiastic reception on his return visit. Both meetings are open to all men, whether members of the association or not.

SERVICES FOR SUNDAY AND COMING HOLY WEEK

Elaborate Ceremonies To Be Conducted At the Cathedral During the Most Solemn Week of the Year.

Rev. R. A. Montgomery at Y. M. C. A. Meeting and Glen Avon Church.

Next week is Holy Week, and at the cathedral it will be observed with the usual solemn ceremonies. The office of Tenebrae will be chanted by the clergy on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings at 7:30 o'clock. Wednesday afternoon and evening, after services, confessions will be heard by a number of priests and holy communion will be distributed on Thursday morning at 7:30 o'clock.

On Holy Thursday at 10 o'clock Bishop McGolrick will celebrate pontifical mass, aided by Rev. John Sroka as assistant priest; Revs. Francis S. Kosmerl and T. G. Fournier as deacons of honor; Rev. Leo Laskowski as deacon of the mass, Rev. A. Hartman, O. M. S., as sub-deacon of the mass, Rev. Timothy Corbett, first master of ceremonies, and Rev. John A. Limmer, second master of ceremonies; Rev. O. Robillard, O. M. I.; Rev. Robert Wewers, O. S. B., and Rev. Edmond Walsh will act as bearers of the holy oils. During the mass the bishop will consecrate the oils to be used during the year in the administration of the sacraments of baptism, confirmation, extreme unction and holy orders. After the mass there will be a solemn procession to the repository, where the blessed sacrament will be kept until Friday morning. The people will visit the blessed sacrament during the afternoon. The ladies of the cathedral parish will decorate the repository beautifully and artistically. In the evening Rev. J. J. O'Mahoney will deliver the sermon.

Good Friday morning at 9 o'clock the right reverend bishop will celebrate the mass presanctified, assisted by the Rev. Louis G. Fournier as assistant priest; Revs. Edward Ginther, O. S. B., and Didacus Guillet, O. M. I., as deacons of honor; Rev. Omer Plourde, O. M. I., as deacon, and Rev. Edmond Walsh as sub-deacon of the mass; Revs. A. Hartman, O. M. I.; Leo Laskowski and John A. Limmer will chant the passion. There will be the reading of the prophecies, the veneration of the cross and the procession from the repository to the altar. The people will make the way of the cross during the afternoon. In the evening Rev. John O'Dwyer will deliver the sermon.

Holy Saturday services will begin at 7 o'clock. There will be the blessing of the new fire, the paschal candle, the Easter water and the baptismal font, followed by the mass.

On Easter Sunday solemn high mass will be chanted at 10:30 o'clock and Bishop McGolrick will deliver the sermon. The full choir will render a very fine program of music, and will be assisted by Flaaten's orchestra.

Nurse and Patients Praise Duffy's

Mrs. A. Schuman, One of Chicago's Most Capable and Experienced Nurses, Pays an Eloquent Tribute to the Great Invigorating, Life-Giving and Curative Properties of DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY.

"For that weak, run-down and gone feeling, it is the best tonic and stimulant in the world."

MRS. A. SCHUMAN.

"After years of constant use of your Pure Malt Whiskey both by myself and as given to patients in my capacity as nurse, I have no hesitation in recommending it as the very best tonic and stimulant for all weak and run down conditions. At least twenty-five families use it in my own neighborhood, and when I go out nursing patients ask me what to take for that 'gone feeling,' and once that Duffy's is within their reach it is used always."—Mrs. A. Schuman, 1576 Mozart St., Chicago, Ill.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

For more than fifty years Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has been prescribed by doctors and used in over two thousand leading hospitals as the purest and most powerful tonic-stimulant, invigorator and health-builder known to medical science. It is indorsed by the clergy and professional nurses and recommended by all schools of medicine as a positive cure for pneumonia, consumption, grip, dyspepsia, indigestion, malaria, chills, fever, and all run-down, weakened, diseased conditions of the body, brain, mind and muscle. It is a heart tonic, blood purifier and promoter of health and long life; makes the old hearty and young, and keeps the young vigorous and strong. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey contains no fusel oil, and it is the only whiskey recognized by the Government as a medicine.

There is but one Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Insist on having the genuine and refuse cheap substitutes and imitations offered by unscrupulous dealers, which are placed on the market for profit only and which are positively harmful to both body and brain. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and be sure the seal on the bottle is unbroken. Sold in sealed bottles only; never in bulk.

All reliable druggists and grocers, or direct, $1.00 a bottle. Advice and medical booklet free. Duffy's Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disenfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gasses and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gasses which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disenfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

WIVES ASK DECREES

Charges of Cruelty, Desertion and Non-Support Are Filed.

The complaints in two divorce actions were filed in district court this morning. Sophia Simi, aged 45 years, asks a decree from Nicholas Simi on the grounds of desertion which is alleged to have dated back to March 27, 1892. They were married Jan. 20, 1890 at Duluth. Mrs. Simi resides in this city. She claims that she has not heard anything of her husband since he left. The couple have a daughter 12 years old.

Mrs. Helen Duff of this city has sued Cyril Duff of Cass Lake for a divorce on the grounds of cruelty, non-support and desertion. They were married at Duluth March 1, 1902, and have no children. Mrs. Duff would resume her maiden name of Helen Todd. Both parties in the action are 21 years of age.

In the divorce action of Alzina Ford against John Richard Ford, Judge Cant made an order, this morning, that Ford shall pay his wife $12 per month temporary alimony and shall pay John Martin, his wife's attorney, a fee of $50.

Cleanse your system of all impurities this month. Now is the time to take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. It will keep you well all summer. 35 cents, Tea or Tablet. Ask your druggist.

ARSON CHARGED

By Bemidji Man Against His Former Wife.

Bemidji, Minn., April 15.—Fire started on the outside southeast corner of the J. A. Wonzor residence, 1007 Beltrami avenue, badly damaged the building and did some damage to the furniture and contents. The loss is estimated at $500, with no insurance.

That the fire was incendiary could be seen at a glance. The ground and the lower part of the building at the corner where the blaze originated had been saturated with kerosene and a strong odor of burning oil was prevalent.

Mr. Wonzor suspects his former wife of having started the blaze. Mrs. Wonzor was given a decree of divorce some time ago. It is claimed by Mr. Wonzor that his former wife threatened to "get even" with him. Mr. Wonzor has consulted County Attorney Loud about the matter and expects to swear out a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Wonzor.

POACHERS WITH BASS

Caught As They Were Starting For St. Paul.

Anoka, Minn., April 15.—Antone Lamotte and Frank La Point of Centerville, Anoka county, were arrested Thursday and brought to Anoka by Deputy Warden Charles Stevens charged with seining fish in Rice creek. They had in their possession over 100 pounds of black bass and crappies, besides a large quantity of pickerel and bullheads. The bass and crappies were all strung on wire in bunches, for private orders, and loaded in a wagon ready to start for St. Paul.

A PERCURSOR OF CHOLERA.

St. Petersburg, April 15.—A peculiar epidemic of cerebral spasms almost always fatal has made its appearance in St. Petersburg. The doctors say it was imported from Galicia to Lodz, where there have been many victims. It is regarded by the doctors of a percursor of cholera. Some of the doctors believe the epidemic is identical with cerebral meningitis cases of which recently were numerous in New York.

OCEAN STEAMSHIPS.

New York, April 15.—Steamer St. Louis from Southampton reported by wireless telegraph thirty miles east of Nantucket lightship at 9 a. m. Steamer Carpathia, from Fiume, etc., reported fifty miles east of Sagoponock, L. I., at 9 o'clock this morning. Both steamers will probably dock about 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

West Duluth

DOWLING IS THANKED

Representative Dowling's Efforts For West Duluth Appreciated.

Commercial Club Expresses Gratitude For Justice Court.

The West Duluth Commercial club met last night, but for the most part of the hour spent in session, transacted only routine business. One feature cropped out, however. The club passed a vote of thanks to Representative P. Ellard Dowling of Eveleth for his efforts in getting into the bill regarding justice courts in cities a rider proving that West Duluth may have a justice court.

The people of West Duluth feel very grateful for this work on the part of Mr. Dowling and believe that had it not been for his efforts in behalf of the matter, West Duluth would have found herself without a court of justice without going up town.

Secretary J. A. Scott will inform Mr. Dowling at once of the action of the club.

APPRECIATE HIM.

C. H. Martz Elected Alderman of St. Hilaire.

H. R. Patterson has received a letter from C. A. Martz, formerly of West Duluth and now of St. Hilaire, Minn. Mr. Martz was formerly a member of the board of public works here, was an alderman of the city, and was one of the original organizers of the village of West Duluth. He is now owner and operator of the Riverside Farm at St. Hilaire, and was recently elected alderman there, getting more votes than any other candidate on any ticket.

In the Duluth market May lost 1c, in Minneapolis 1¼-⅝c, in Chicago ⅛c and in New York 1¼c. The July option lost ⅝c in Duluth, ⅞c in Minneapolis, gained ⅛c in Chicago and in New York was ⅛c lower.

Broomhall estimates world's shipments to be reported Monday at 10,400,000 bus.

Stocks of wheat at Duluth are estimated to decrease 100,000 bus. this week. Minneapolis stocks decreased 378,218 bus. and the stock of No. 1 northern decreased 71,980 bus.

Car receipts at Duluth were 5 against 12 last year, and at Minneapolis 164 against 107 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 169 against 119 last year. Chicago received 68 against 77 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 395,000 bus., last year 321,000 bus. Shipments 268,000 bus, last year 159,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¾d lower. May corn in the Chicago market closed ⅝c lower. May oats closed ¾-⅝c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 245,000 bus, last year 225,000 bus. Shipments 738,000 bus, last year 219,000 bus.

In the Duluth market the trading in wheat was very light. The May option opened ⅜c higher at $1.03, fell to $1.02⅞ at 10:25, sold at $1.02 at 11, and closed at $1.01⅞, a loss of ⅜c for the day. The May option opened ⅝c lower at $1.04⅝, fell to $1.01, and closed at $1.01¼, a loss of 1c for the day.

Cash wheat was very dull and offerings next to nothing. No. 1 northern continues at 1c under May.

Flax was even less active than wheat. The deferred options were strong. October closing ¼c higher and September ½c higher, while May was ¾c lower.

Oats declined ⅜c, and rye was unchanged.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat to arrive—No. 1 northern, $1.03¼. On track—No. 1 northern, $1.03¼; No. 2 northern, 97½c-$1.00¾. Durum No. 1, 91c; No. 2, 90c; May, $1.01¾; July, $1.01⅞; Sept., 84½c. Cars inspected: Wheat 5, last year 12; corn 9, rye 1, barley 6, flax 6, last year 13.

Receipts: Wheat, 1,779; oats, 9,425; flax, 771.

Shipments: Wheat, 87,829; oats, 8,359.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Selling of May Delivery Has Weakening Influence.

Chicago, April 15.—Selling of the May delivery by a prominent long had a weakening influence on the wheat market in general here today. Bearish sentiment was increased by a decline at Liverpool. As a result of low temperatures throughout the West and Southwest the market opened firm, with July up ⅛c to ⅓c at 87⅝c to 88c. May was ⅝c to 1¼c up at $1.15½ to $1.16. Pressure on May developed soon after the opening, and the price quickly dropped to $1.14. Covering by shorts forced the price up again to $1.14⅝. In sympathy with the weakness of May the July option sold off to 87¾c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 229 cars against 198 cars last week and 136 cars a year ago.

Liquidation of May continued throughout the day. Fresh reports of damage to the winter wheat crop caused a firm tone in July the last hour of trading. After touching 87⅜c, the price of that delivery, rallied to 88¼@⅜c. The market closed about steady with July up ⅛c at 87c. May was off ⅛c at $1.14¾.

Sentiment in corn was bearish, partly as a result of the weakness of wheat. Another factor, however, was a decline at Liverpool. Local longs were inclined to take profits, and offerings met with comparatively little demand. July opened unchanged to a shade lower at 48½@⅝c to 48⅜c and sold off to 47⅜c. Local receipts were 104 cars, with 10 of contract grade.

A feature of trading was heavy selling of May and a consequent decline of over a cent in the price of that delivery. Other months declined in sympathy, July selling off to 47⅝@⅜c. At the close July was down ⅜c at 48c.

Little interest was manifested in oats, the volume of trading being very small. Weakness of wheat and corn had a depressing effect on the price of oats, July opened unchanged at 30c, sold at 30@⅛c and then reacted to 29¾c. Local receipts were 68 cars.

Provisions were steady on a moderate demand from packers. July pork was unchanged at $13.07½. Lard was up 2½c at $7.50. Ribs were a shade higher at $7.35.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.14¾; July, 87¼c; September, 82¾c. Corn—April, 47⅜c; May, 47¾c; July, 48c; September, 48@⅛c. Oats—May, 29⅜@¼c; July, 29¾c; September, 29c. Pork—May, $12.72½@12.75; July, $13.00. Lard—April, $7.17½; May, $7.25@7.27½; July $7.45; September, $7.37½@7.40. Ribs—May, $7.00@7.02½; July, $7.27½@7.30; September, $7.17½. Rye—April, 78c; May, 77½c; September, 69c. Flax—Cash, northwestern, $1.29; southwestern, May and April, $1.25. Timothy—April, $2.85; September, $3.20. Clover—April, $14.00. Barley—Cash, 40@46c. Cash, wheat—No. 2 red, $1.16@1.17½; No. 3 red, $1.09@1.15; No. 2 hard, $1.14@1.17; No. 3 hard, $1.00@1.14; No. 1 northern, $1.16@1.17½; No. 2 northern, $1.05@1.15; No. 3 spring, $1.07@1.15. Oats—No. 2, 30½@c; No. 3, 29½@30c. Corn—No. 2, 48@⅝c; No. 3, 47½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—High price was made at opening, after which the market sagged through most of the session. A very noticeable fact in today's market was that, while pressure at times seemed severe, but little headway could be made on the short side. Such selling pressure as developed seemed to meet with stubborn resistance. Take the market as a whole throughout the session, it seemed to us to show quite a little stubborn strength. We still feel the short interest is large and somewhat stubborn, but the action of the market today seems to confirm us in our views that it is unwise to become too enthusiastic on the selling side.

Corn—The market was under pressure most of the session. Much of it came from liquidation, at times commission houses generally being on the selling side. The stubborn strength displayed by wheat contributed much to bring about this rally. The market seems to have lost its edge and seems more two-sided. The cash situation is not over-urgent, but is in a healthy condition, and in view of this fact we think purchases on such setbacks as we had today will result in moderate profits.

Oats—The slow cash situation in this market will undoubtedly cause further liquidation, particularly in the May, and we still feel that the bulls are likely to find their load very heavy.

* * *

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat—A very active and irregular market with a strong close, except in the case of Minneapolis May and July. The trading in the May was of light volume. Prices sold over a wide range and were affected by any important buying or selling. Weather map showed conditions slightly more favorable. Moisture in the form of snow was reported in several of the Western and Southwestern states. Through duplication of receipts, the movement to primary markets is made to look large, but the cash demand is excellent. The movement of wheat to Chicago is steadily enlarging with fifty-eight cars estimated for Monday. Bears claim 8,000,000 bus. will be turned over on May 1 to the Gates interest. This would strengthen the July materially and leave little good wheat for milling purposes. Not only do the deferred months appear heavily oversold and likely to be influenced by weather changes, but we feel that the statistical position of wheat is to receive great attention. The market has had a good reaction and should be bought early Monday, whether higher or lower for a strong rally.

* * *

Chicago Record-Herald: Valentine has been the largest seller of July wheat here the past 3 days. He has been spreading between Chicago and Minneapolis, buying there. He has also bought July and sold September in Kansas City at a 4-cent spread for three days.

"We are bullish on July wheat," said E. W. Dennis of the Pringle house. "We believe that July will sell 10 cents over September between now and July 30. It went out last year at this difference and is likely to do so again this year."

* * *

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat acted very firm today, although the selling at times, on the easier cables and weakness in corn, depressed prices for brief periods. There was little in the immediate situation to justify short sales for the fall deliveries. The belt is experiencing this month weather usual in March. Prevailing conditions are not at all favorable for crop progress. The indications are for fair weather with killing frosts general over the belt. Minneapolis reports the first half of April the coldest on the records on the weather. This, with the early seeding and the quality of the seed, is causing evident uneasiness.

Corn—There was a raid on corn during the early part of the session. Selling was general and came from a great many sources. Aside from the lower cables and the heaviness of local operators, there was nothing in the news to warrant free selling. Receipts continue light. Weather conditions are not entirely suited to spring work. Feeders in parts of Illinois are paying 45c to 48c for corn. On the break a better shipping demand developed and fair sales were reported. Estimated receipts for Monday, 161 cars.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Good News Still Predominates In Trade and Industry.

New York, April 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Good news still predominates in trade and industry. Easter business is of large volume; dry goods, clothing, footwear and all lines of wearing apparel reporting an unusually good demand, and shipping departments are taxed to their full capacity in many cases. The country as a whole is experiencing more settled weather, which is reflected in a better retail distribution of merchandise. Jobbing trade in goods for fall delivery is broadening, and there is more inclination to prepare for the future. Manufacturers report less idle machinery, the iron and steel industry leading with an unprecedented output of pig iron, yet consumption is also above all records, for there is no accumulation at the furnaces. Textile mills are also well engaged, as a rule, and forwardings of footwear from Boston make favorable comparisons with every year except 1900. A few labor controversies are threatened, but none are of sufficient magnitude to materially check progress, even if expected settlements are not attained, for the number of hands involved is comparatively small. Reports are somewhat conflicting as to mercantile collections, but improvements should follow the liberal distribution of funds in starting agricultural work, treasury shipments of small change to the interior largely exceeding the amount in transit a year ago. Car blockages are few, owing to the favorable weather, although traffic is very heavy, as shown by railroad earnings for the first week of April, 10.9 per cent larger than last year. Prices of commodities declined 2.7 per cent during March, according to Dun's index number, a logical concomitant of the advancing season. Eggs, dairy and garden products, grain and coal made the most notable declines. Foreign commerce at this port is keeping pace with the improvement in domestic trade, imports for the last week exceeding the same week last eyar by $6,656,735, and exports gaining $3,185,498.

Many steel mills are several weeks behind with deliveries, and in some cases contracts are not taken where shipment is desired before July 1. Pressure is especially noteworthy in all lines of railroad supplies, particularly light rails.

Failures this week numbered 214 in the United States against 225 last year, and 20 in Canada compared with 16 a year ago.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Closing Was at the Low Point of the Day.

Market Started Buoyant But Heavy Realizing Brought Reaction.

New York, April 15.—Under the influence of revived rumors regarding the Northwestern railroad situation, prices rallied strongly on the stock exchange this week after considerable unsettlement. The early depression was largely caused by scepticism about these rumors, caused by the dropping of E. H. Harriman of the Union Pacific from the Northern Securities directorate, uneasiness over the May wheat situation in Chicago and its possible effect on the stock market, and the possible withdrawal of gold due to needs of foreign markets on account of the war.

Trade accounts were highly favorable, conspicuously so in steel.

New York, April 15.—Opening prices of stocks today moved up strongly at some points, while the general level of the market was little changed from last night, a handful of stocks showing concessions on realizing. Smelting ran off 1⅞ and locomotive ⅞. The trading in the trans-continental group was large and excited. There were running sales of 8,000 shares of St. Paul at 185 to 185¾, compared with 184 last night, and 6,500 shares of Union Pacific at 136½ and 136⅝, compared with 136 last night. New York Central and Illinois Central rose about a point on large transactions. Philadelphia Rapid Transit jumped 2 and the Metropolitan stocks and Twin City Rapid Transit rose 1. There were large fractional gains also in quite a number of stocks.

The tone was animated and buoyant until heavy offerings of the speculative favorites caused an abrupt check to the rise. New York Central was carried a point below last night and Illinois Central as much. St. Paul gained over 2 points and lost half of it. On the curb Northern Securities mounted to 185¾ and relapsed to below 182. Great Northern preferred sold up 8 points to 330. Atlantic Coast Line, Cac, the Linseed stocks, Rubber Goods preferred, Shaf preferred, Locomotive preferred, Realty preferred, North American and Woolen gained 1 to 1½. Lackawanna rose 2½ and reacted 4. Prices were carried under last night on the reaction in most instances. Republic Steel preferred lost 1, Pressed Steel Car 1¼, Federal Mining preferred 1½ and Pittsburg, C, C. & St. Louis 3. The trading immediately relapsed into dullness at the reaction.

Atlantic Coast Line was rushed up 5¼ and lifted Louisville & Nashville 1¼ in sympathy. St. Paul and Union Pacific rallied to the best in sympathy, but the general response was languid. American Express gained 2¾, Pipe preferred 1⅝ and Vulcan Detinning 1. Prices sold off after the appearance of the bank statement. Union Pacific fell 1 below last night, St. Paul lost its gain and Atlantic Coast Line reacted 3¼. Illinois Cetral lost 2½, Delaware & Hudson 2, Pump, Tennessee Coal and Sloss-Sheffield Steel 1¾, and Reading, Atchison, Canadian Pacific, Northwestern, Erie first and second preferred, Copper, Sugar, Woolen preferred, Paper, United Railway Investment, Westinghouse Electric and some dormant and some common 1 to 1½. The closing was active and weak.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: After yesterday's snap the early advance was continued but after the bank statement there was liquidation. The bank statement was somewhat less favorable than expected in view of the large increase in loans. This and a desire to take profits pending the holiday was responsible for the easing off in prices. The advance this week has been altogether on old rumors of combinations and still lack authentic confirmation; otherwise nothing new has transpired that would in any way add to the intrinsic values of properties. Considering these facts and the level which the market has attained it might be wise to be conservative on the bull side.

* * *

Dick Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was buoyant again this morning and there was enthusiastic buying all around the room. From the opening, however, heavy realizing was in evidence and increasing toward the close. This brought about a sharp reaction and a decidedly weak closing. The bank statement proved less favorable than expected. Otherwise there was no news. Th mrkeat closed at the low point of the day.

* * *

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today at the opening was very strong and prices went up with ease. The bank statement was about as expected, but before the close there was a very heavy selling and the whole market reacted. The decline was general. We do not look for any very great break on Monday, but the selling today was of a good character and it is advisable to be very cautious.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The activity in the Utah company stocks continued today with Bingham the feature. The buying of this stock was excellent and the closing was the highest for the day. Boston Cons. seemed to be coming out freely around 8½. Parrott which broke badly yesterday on the shut down at the mines recovered 2⅞ today on scattered buying. The activity in the industrials continue and the prospects are good for higher prices next week.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 15.—Market opened steady at unchanged prices to 2 points advance, in response to covering based on prospects for showers and rain over Sunday, accompanied by lower temperatures in the cotton belt. Trading was very quiet and the market following the call held fairly steady, with fluctuations within 2 or 3 points of the opening figures. There was no special feature.

Cotton futures closed steady: April, 7.30; May, 7.43; June, 7.36; July, 7.40; August, 7.44; September, 7.48; October, 7.54; November, 7.60; December, 7.60; January, 7.64. Spot cotton closed quiet; middling, uplands, 7.85; middling gulf, 8.10. Sales, none.

LOOK FOR BREAK

Boats Expected to Come Through Ice Barrier at Sault.

Wind Is Against Them But They Are Gaining Distance.

A telegram which came over the wires of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway from Marquette, says:

"Following is from Wellsburg: Man just in from point two miles west of Iroquois light says he can see down-bound boats about twenty miles from Whitefish Point. They have been in the same location three days, but up-bound boats are five miles west of Iroquois and started up west at daylight. They have got about five miles further west than a tug did the other day. They seem to be taking turns at bucking the ice. There are nine of them but the names can't be distinguished."

Another telegram received says:

"About fifteen boats are in the ice going down between Sheldrake and Whitefish Point. They don't seem to move much. They are fighting hard with the ice which is plentiful."

A later bulletin received over the Western Union from the Sault says:

"Snow last night. Wind northwest, strong this morning. Fifteen boats reported in shelter at Sheldrake. Nothing downbound.

* * *

The boats which got through the Sault canal yesterday are about twenty or twenty-five miles from the down-bound fleet and both groups of vessels are icebound in Lake Superior. The up-bound boats are making a hard fight against the ice and the impression among local vessel men is that they will break through tonight, although they have an awfully hard proposition to fight with the wind blowing from the northwest and packing the ice into the Sault end of the lake. If they break through tonight the first boat into Duluth will arrive about Monday.

* * *

The only boat to leave this morning was the Robert W. Wallace, one of the St. Lawrence route boats. She was loaded with ore.

The Mahoning has on board 60,000 bushels of wheat with which she is expected to leave for Buffalo some time today. She took 46,000 bushels on this side of the bay and 14,000 in Superior.

* * *

On Monday the steamer Scranton will load wheat at the Great Northern elevators and following her a number of others will load at these elevators.

* * *

The Passage Island and Menagerie Island lights will be beaming on Monday night. The crews will leave tomorrow morning for their summer stations and will get busy at once. The Passage Island light is in charge of Capt. Alex. Shaw of Duluth and his assistants are Walter Peters of Marquette and Donald McKay of Mackinaw Island. The Menagerie Island light is in charge of Capt. John Malone of Superior and his son, Albert Malone.

REALTY MARKET IS LESS ACTIVE

Demand Is Excellent Though Deals Are Less Important Than Those of Few Weeks Ago—New Railroad Closing on Options on Property In West End of City.

While the present situation does not show as great an activity as characterized the local real estate market a few weeks ago, there is an excellent demand for Duluth realty right along, and a steady consummation of sales, although the big deals do not occur with the frequency that they did earlier in the year. The principal buying seems to have been during the last week among improved and unimproved property in the residence districts of the city, although some negotiations are still in progress on some proposed large business property transfers. Some of these transfers will depend on the terms that can be made between the proposed buyers and some individuals or firms that they may have negotiating for a lease for the next year, or term of years. This is particularly true of unimproved property in the business section of the city, where it is proposed to make some improvements.

* * *

A great deal of interest is being manifested just now over the taking up of the options held on West End property by the Lake Superior & Southeastern Railroad company, the new line that is coming into Duluth from Ladysmith, Wis. The first transfer, that of Hutchinson Bevier, to the railroad company, was recorded last week. This week there have been several recorded of property between Garfild and Twelfth avenues west, while there is a large batch of warranty deeds which are being held back until the taxes can be looked up. It is expected that the railroad company, through W. R. Gillis, its agent, will continue to file the deeds right along now for the property that is being taken over to constitute the railroad company's right-of-way to a point near Eleventh avenue west, below Michigan street.

Among the warranty deeds filed this week, and running to the railroad company, were the following:

The southeast corner of Michigan street and Twelfth avenue west, comprising a two-story brick store and apartment building, with a frontage of seventy-five feet on Michigan street, from Abby Percy and George R. Percy, for $15,000. The property is described as the westerly half of lot 190, and all of lot 192, block 24, Duluth proper, Second division.

The southeast corner of Fifteenth avenue west and Michigan street, an unimproved lot, from George Brousseau, for $4,000. The property is described as lot 240, block 21, Duluth proper, Second division.

A lot on the lower side of Michigan street, between Fifteenth avenue west and Garfield avenue, unimproved save for a small building, from the Howard Investment company, for $7,500. The property is described as lot 252, block 20, Duluth proper, Second division.

An unimproved lot on the lower side of Michigan street, and between Garfield and Fifteenth avenues west, from Francis and Mary Gibbs of Chisago county, Minn., for $3,500. The property is described as lot 246, block 20, Duluth proper, Second division.

A whole block on the upper side of St. Anthony street, Oneota, between Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth avenues west, from Henry W. and Sarah C. Wheeler, for $3,000. The property, which is unimproved, is described as lots 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, block 17, Oneota.

All of the deeds release any claims for damages to adjacent property owned by those selling on account of the purchased property being used for railroad purposes.

* * *

It is reported as quite possible that the city council will refuse to confirm the revised plat of block 120, Portland division, on which the Howard Investment company has erected a number of houses. The block lies between Fifth and Sixth streets and Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues east. The investment company has planned to open a roadway forty feet wide, through the center of the block, to be known as Twelfth and a Half avenue, making the lots on each side 30 by 75 feet and 30 by 85 feet, facing on the new avenue and on Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues.

Aldermen have raised objections on the ground that the symmetry of the blocks in that part of the city will be destroyed and that it will crowd the houses too close to each other, engendering unsanitary conditions and establishing a bad precedent for other real estate companies. The investment company has given notice to be in attendance at the next meeting of the council, when the matter will be discussed.

* * *

A. Forester of New York city, a traveling man who makes this territory occasionally, and who has for a number of years been the owner of about 200 lots in the West end, has decided to make some improvements and recently contracted for the erection of two houses at Thirty-ninth avenue west and between Fifth and Sixth streets. Nord & Jacobson have the contracts, one building to cost $2,600 and the other $1,500. Mr. Forester has always been an enthusiastic believer in Duluth, her realty and her future and he has, during his trips over the country, done a considerable amount of missionary work in the city's behalf.

* * *

Instances are coming to light right along of transactions that are being made by investors in Duluth real estate, where a nice little profit is realized. One such occurred this past week, when, on the the strenth of the advice of a local real estate men, his client bought an unimproved lot on Michigan street for an investment, at $1,050. The client had never seen the lot, in fact, probably did not even know of its location, as he is an out-of-town buyer. The ink had not yet dried on the deed when the realty broker resold the same property at $1,250, the price fixed by his client. The profit was only $200, but it was profit, nevertheless, and is a straw to show which way the wind is blowing in Duluth real estate.

* * *

Stryker, Manley & Buck report a number of sales to the close of the present week, including the following:

Six lots on Railorad street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth avenues west, to the Lake Superior & Southeastern Railroad company, for $9,000; a store building property at 1905 West Superior street to Eastern parties, for $4,500, D. W. Scott representing the owner; two lots on the upper side of the boulevard, near A. P. Cook's residence, to Ella Cook, for $1,000; a lot on the lower side of Third street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues west, to Thomas E. Considine, for $650; a house and lot on Pittsburg avenue, above Fifth street, from Peter Johnson to Peter Dever, for $650; a house and lot on Piedmont avenue from Mary Curry to Ida Nelson and Oscar Freberg, for $1,000; two lots on Ninth avenue east and Fourth street, from Thomas Scott, to F. C. Oullette, represented by H. H. Hanford, for $2,000; lot on the corner of Tenth avenue west and Michigan street to an Eastern party for $1,050; same lot from Eastern owner to local party for $1,250; two double houses and five lots in West Duluth to J. A. Scott, representing the buyer, for $2,000; a lot on East Fifth street, between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues, for $650, from A. Schellin to S. Christopher.

* * *

Indications point to some lively changing about among business firms on Michigan, Superior and First streets, during the next few weeks. A number of leases to business property will expire May 1 next, and the firms holding them are already hustling about securing quarters. Some have begun to change their lease before the end of the month.

* * *

The contract for the new business block which Henry H. Myers of Myers Bros., will erect on the lower side of First street between Third and Fourth avenues West, has been awarded to George H. Lounsberry, who will begin work immediately. The building is to be completed early in the summer.

* * *

The deed transferring to the Duluth Telephone compnay title of the east half of lot 42, West First street, went on record this week. The lot which is immediately east of the company's building, was sold by the Western Land company for $10,000.

* * *

Charles Schell and Emil Bjorlin have closed an option with the Lake Superior & Southeastern Railroad company whereby the latter can take over some West Duluth property at $9,000.

* * *

F. W. Paine is building an addition to his home on East Superior street and London road, near Tenth avenue East, and making some general repairs. The cost will be about $3,000.

* * *

The Duluth Tar company has taken out a permit for a $11,500 brick building which it is proposed to build at West Duluth this winter.

* * *

A. W. Kuehnow, of the Boston & Duluth Farm Land company has sold 320 acres of land to two men from Jorden, Minn., who expect to establish stock and dairy farms. The land is located near Holyoke, Minn.

* * *

It is understood that the Embarrass River Land and Improvement company, of Minneapolis, which was incorporated this week, purposes to push the sale and settlement of a large tract of land on Embarrass river in this county.

* * *

J. J. Wangenstein is getting out plans for a three flat building on Sixth street between Sixth and Seventh avenues east, for a local party, a residence at Cass Lake, a residence at Cloquet and a two-story brick store building at Bemidji, for the Duluth Brewing & Malting company.

SAID HE WAS "CORRUPTED"

Thief Reproaches the Man Whose Money He Stole.

New York, April 15.—To lose $7,600 in a pocketbook in a railroad train and then, after seventeen years, to receive a letter from the finder accusing him by implication of teaching a humble person bad habits, all of which was preliminary to an offer to return the empty pocketbook for several dollars, are the experience of Henry Stedeker, veteran member of the Metropolitan Turf association.

Mr. Stedeker has been a bookmaker in the "big ring" for many years, plying that vocation in the days of Jerome Park, and there the first act of the comedy, or tragedy, was enacted. As he explained it last night:

"I was on my way to the track one day in the fall meeting at Jerome Park, in 1888. I had in my inside pocket a leather pocketbook which contained $7,600 in one hundred dollar and five dollar bills, which I had intended to put in the bank, but could not because I had to run to catch a train.

Soon after I seated myself in the car a man paid me $300 he owed me, and I took out the book to insert the bills. At that moment a friend across the aisle called my attention to the death of a friend, and handed me a newspaper containing the information. I took the paper and laid the pocketbook in my lap. I was reading the account of the death when we reached the park, and in the hurry and excitement forgot the book, jumped up and, of course, it rolled to the car floor.

"That was the last I ever heard of it until today, when I received this letter although the police and private detectives worked on the case, and I offered a reward of half the total sum for its return. Here is the letter:

Mr. Stedeker:

Manny, manny years ago I finded me a pocketbok going to the Gerome park races if it was a pore man who lost it I think I would have returned it but when I thought of your business the amount so great to me was perhaps only a day's good business with you I said to myself I will keep it. I have often thought in late years whether it would not have been better for us both if I had not found it as I coltivated tastes I cannot satifie now. I write to you to say I have kept your pocketbook as when I found it and if you think it any value to you I willingly send it too you for a few dollars as i am peppliless.

Yours truely,
KARL WIDRASSETS,
General Postoffice, New York City.

"Of course, I have got over grieving for the loss of that money," continued Mr. Stedeker, "but when that fellow blames me indirectly for teaching him bad habits by losing the money, I think it is carrying things too far. I hope, though, he did acquire a taste for champaigne and high life. It would only serve him right. But if he will bring that pocketbook back to me I will give him a couple of dollars for it, just as a souvenir. I won't have him arrested."

GOLD IN SEA

Syndicate Picking Up Sites on English and Irish Coasts.

New Process to Extract Gold From the Sea Water.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The old theory that there is gold in sea water now again comes to the front through a report recently made to the department of commerce and labor by United States Consul Mahin from Nottingham, Eng.

Some years ago an attempt was made on the seaward side of Long Island, N. Y., to extract gold from the ocean waves in that vicinity. The effort was not successful, except insomuch as its projectors gathered in a good lot of money from very many persons who were gullible enough to invest their savings in the venture. That gold particles are floating about in the oceans, washed down to the sea by divers and sundry rivers draining mountain territory there can be but little doubt; but the problem as to how to procure this "floating gold" in quantities sufficient to bring in even a small dividend upon money invested for necessary machinery has not yet been solved. So far as the attempts to extract gold from sea water through experiments made in America is concerned it has proved a failure. In reality, the most notable instance, above mentioned, off the Long Island shore, turned out to be a bunco game of the rankest character, and many hundreds of trusting "get-rich-quickly" people were swindled. The proposition of extracting gold dust from a watery grave, so to speak, passed along with the Keeley perpetual motion machinery scheme of something like a decade ago. Many good American dollars went into both propositions, and there remain, so far as the investors or their heirs are concerned. Consul Mahin, in his report as to the efforts of our English cousins to extract gold from sea water, says:

"It has long been asserted that gold exists in a state of solution in the sea, and that in the many attempts to extract it some has been collected and precipitated, but it is admitted that failure has attended every effort at extraction on a commercial basis. The announcement is now made, however, that a new process has received the sanction of no less a person that Sir William Ramsey, professor of chemistry in University college, London, officer of the French Legion of Honor, corresponding member of the Institute of France, member of scientific and philosophical societies in nearly every civilized country, and the author of numerous scientific papers and treatises. The new process is patented, but no further description of it is given than that it "bears a certain resemblance to the treatment adopted in the mines of the Witwatersrand" (South Africa).

"It is said that a syndicate, whose title and address are not given, has been quietly picking up favorable sites on the English and Irish coasts, and has now acquired rights over some fifty miles of foreshore. The securing of extensive foreshore rights is necessary because the sea water must be absolutely pure to obtain the best results from the new process. Therefore, factories and pumping stations must be established well out of reach of passing steamers, the bilge water from which would contaminate the surrounding sea and derange the process of extraction.

"Some forty years ago active experiments began which showed that gold in minute quantities was dissolved in many rivers and streams, and later on a measurement of gold in sea water placed the amount at about a grain in each ton of water. A grain of gold being worth about 4 cents, and the tons of water in the ocean being placed at 60,000,000,000, it staggers the mind to attempt to compute in dollars the prodigious total value of the gold in the ocean. Should the new process do all that its friends sanguinely claim for it, gold would almost become a drug on the market; but it is considerately remarked that "it would obviously not serve the interests of the syndicate to secure gold in greater quantities than the market could absorb. Moreover, the firm of financiers whom we believe to be mainly concerned in the developments is far too deeply involved in high finance to engage in any operations which would have an unsettling effect upon the currency."

"Many newspapers express skepticism and distrust of the new scheme and doubt if Sir William Ramsay's "indorsement" really amounts to more than testimony to the efficiency of certain apparatus that may have been submitted to him. So far, however, Sir William does not seem to have directly spoken on the subject; but it must also be said that no one for him has directly denied that he indorses the new process.

FIGHT OVER TOGA STARTS

In Iowa and Cummins and Dolliver Are Active.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 15.—The understanding among politicians that Governor Cummins is to be a candidate against Senator Dolliver next year has created no end of furore. As a result of the announcements that have been made, Senator Dolliver has accepted an invitation to appear in Des Moines at the annual meeting of the Grant club next month and will accept a dozen Chautauqua engagements this summer in Iowa. Senator Dolliver had previously said he could not make speeches this summer. Governor Cummins is accepting invitations to high school commencements in sections of the state slated by politicians as "doubtful."

The Washington Post recently published an interview with Governor Cummins, who is in Washington arguing the Vicksburg battle-flag cases, which has stirred up political Iowa. In this interview Governor Cummins says that Iowa is to have a new primary law which will cause congressmen from this state to look to their laurels and intimates that the state, under this primary law, will be able to make a free and unbiased expression on tariff revision. Locally the governor's statements are taken as a challenge to those congressmen who will oppose his candidacy for the United States senate.

As an evidence of his sincerety in announcing an anti-railroad fight such as Governor La Follette conducted in Wisconsin, the governor of Iowa has returned to all of the lines of railway in the state annual passes which have been offered to him. It is said that prior to the first of the year the governor rode on passes on several roads.

Ray Stannard Baker and Lincoln J. Steffens are coming to Des Moines to write up the railway situation for McClure's Magazine.

DRAWBACK

Sole Road to the Exportation of Flour.

Washington, April 15.—Secretary Shaw and Senator Hansbrough have been engaged in a controversial correspondence in regard to the former's action in authorizing a drawback on wheat imported to be milled and then exported as flour. Secretary Shaw states that "the American miller must retire from the export business unless Canadian wheat is used."

Senator Hansbrough asserts the secretary's decision was the "crowning act in behalf of a policy under which all raw materials now practically are on the free list, with every possible advantage reserved for the manufacturer. In effect, the twenty-five cents duty on wheat has been repealed. Hereafter all such duties are to be rebated to those persons who are only importers of wheat.

"No doubt the millers' profits would be greater if he could buy his wheat at eighty cents a bushel—the Canadian price—and this is what he now is doing under your decision."

CHICAGO POLICE

Asked To Break Up a Spirit Trust.

Chicago, April 15.—The police department may be called upon in a few days to investigate one of the most remarkable trusts ever known. The "trust" threatens to control the supply of spirits—not the intoxicating, but the mediumistic kind. The investigations will be demanded by F. H. Stoller, leader of the Universal Occult society. Mr. Stoller says the Chicago Spiritual league, of which he was secretary until a few days ago, and which was organized to investigate "fake" mediums, is nothing less than a combination to control the spirit market. Mediums who incur the disfavor of the organization, according to Mr. Stoller, are denounced by it and driven out of business.

"The information that I secured while a member of the league will be turned over to the police, who are investigating these societies, and I will make every effort to have its guilty members brought to justice," said Mr. Stoller.

Representatives of the league said Mr. Stoller had been a barber before becoming a spiritualist, and it was in a barber college that he acquired the title of "professor." Mr. Stoller admits being a barber, but says that it was merely for the study of human nature.

UNIQUE CAMPAIGN

Has Been Started By People of Rhinelander.

Rhinelander, Wis., April 15.—This prosperous little city will be the scene of great matrimonial activity this spring and summer. In the last two years several hundred women have homesteaded lands adjacent to the city. The majority of them are young and fair to look upon, but by reason of their isolation in their forest homes have no means of meeting representatives of the opposite sex.

The city and county have taken up the matter of encouraging matrimony among the homesteaders, and many inducements will be held out to worthy men to join these lonely but prosperous women in wedlock.

Clergymen have agreed to tie the marital knot free and leading business men will give valuable presents to every couple.

July 4 has been selected as the red letter matrimonial day. Plans are being formed for 100 marriages in the city park, and $25 in cash will be presented to each couple as soon as the ceremony is performed.

Officials of the city and county hope to obtain a supply of eligible men from the Twin Cities and the rural districts of Minnesota.

ODD UPHEAVAL

Occurs In the Oil Fields In Texas.

Houston, Texas, April 15.—The Humble oil field was the scene of a most unusual phenomenon. Thursday. An upheaval of volcanic violence took place at the Swayne-Underwood wells.

A solid column of earth twenty feet in diameter was thrown 200 feet in the air. A derrick was torn to atoms and drilling machinery which was on the edge of the crater tumbled in and was buried. A sort of mud lava followed the eruption, filling the chasm and running over in streams from it.

The sand and oily muck and stones that had been hurled heavenward covered an area of many acres. Accompanying the eruption was an immense volume of gas which was ignited from the furnace 200 feet back from the well. The flames burned 100 feet in the air with the roar of a volcano.

They diminished until they were only flickering from the fissures about the point of disturbance, and in the evening went out.

The Humble field has been marked by a number of subterranean disturbances, but none of this character. Oil operators say they have never seen the like of it in any field. The rumbling of the earth gave the workmen sufficient warning to get away and no one was injured by the eruption.

BEDE SAYS

United States Should Protect San Domingo.

Washington, April 15.—Congressman J. Adam Bede returned yesterday from a month's trip in the West Indies, where he went with the river and harbor committee.

"From what we saw and learned in Santo Domingo," said the congressman, "it is evident that the people there are unable to maintain a government. They are not even successful in getting up any more revolutions. It seems to me that it is up to the United States to maintain the Monroe doctrine and keep foreign powers out of the local custom houses. Porto Rico is prosperous and everybody in Cuba is making money on sugar."

ROLLWAY AT THE RED CLIFF LUMBER COMPANY'S PLANT AT ONEOTA

The accompanying picture gives an excellent idea of the rollway at the Red Cliff Lumber company's plant on the bay front in Oneota as it appeared at the opening of the sawing season this year.

This season the company will saw from 35,000,000 to 40,000,000 feet of lumber, and, in preparation for the summer activity logging trains have, during the past winter season, brought down thousands of carloads of logs from the logging camp districts and deposited them here. A fair idea cannot be gained from the picture of the immenes amount of timber constituting the rollway, for a greater part of the logs are hidden from sight.

The lumber company begins its rollway near the shore and extends its temporary railway track, also built on logs, out into the bay as the immense pile progresses. The log trains are run out on this track, and their contents rolled, either side striking on the skids and rolling to the farther side. By this method the logs are piled up tier after tier on each side of the roadway, the great weight above gradually pressing down those underneath, until the whole structure finally rests on the bottom of the bay.

The distance that the rollway extends out in the bay depends entirely on the amount of logs that the lumber company puts in to start its season. In this instance the railroad runs out nearly one-half mile, and the photograph was taken by J. S. Maher from a platform constructed by placing four logs on end for the corners, and held together by a framework of timber. The picture was taken from a point close to the outer end of the rollway.

Sometimes during the building of a rollway it becomes necessary to raise the railroad tracks so as to give the proper slant, or pitch, in order that the logs will roll on the skids to the farther side. To do this the tracks are taken up and more logs are piled underneath, and the track is replaced. The weight of the logs on top also presses those underneath to the bed of the bay, so that for temporary purposes the track is "well ballasted."

In the spring of the year, when the ice goes out of the bay, the logs are taken out of the rollway and floated to the "booms," from which they are taken to the mills, as needed, for sawing.

In some localities, instead of having the rollways from tracks laid on logs out over the water, the railroad tracks run along close to and parallel to the water's edge, and the logs are rolled off into the water or on top of the ice, as the case may be. This plan works all right if the railway tracks are at some distance above the water level, so as to give a proper pitch to the skids permitting the logs to go far out, otherwise the plan of running the trains straight out over the water, and rolling the logs off either side, works out best.

During the log hauling season a large crew of men is kept busy at the rollways, loosenign the chains which hold the logs to the cars, and assisting them in rolling off, with peavys, should they become hung up. The idea when a trainload of logs is run out on a rollway is to get it unloaded in the shortest time possible, to make way for another train, or to start the rolling equipment back toward the base of log supplies as soon as possible.

Logs can be unloaded at the rollways all winter, as long, in fact, as the logging trains are kept running.

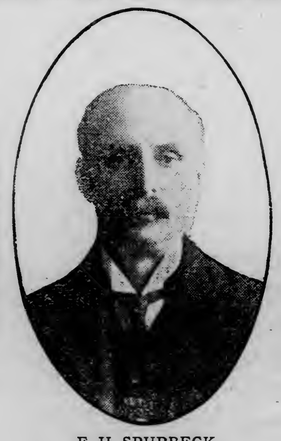
Some companies, in order to facilitate their work, build a high, permanent trestlework cut over the water, where trains can be run at any season of the year and the logs dumped into the water.

OFFICIALS OF UNITED STATES CUSTOMS SERVICE IN DULUTH

No Class of Men Whom Travelers Take Such Pains To Deceive As the Customs Officers--The Duties of These Important Officials.

L. M. WILLCUTS,
Collector of the Port of Duluth.

N. A. LINDERBERG,
Special Deputy.



F. H. SPURBECK,
Deputy.

T. H. LITTLE,
Deputy.

V. S. WILKINSON,
Storekeeper.

D. S. McKENZIE,
Inspector.

JAMES COGGSWELL,
Deputy at Two Harbors.

The first person whom an emigrant runs against on entering the United States, who represents the authority and inflexibility of Uncle Sam's government is a customs officer. After that for a few days, until he gets his affairs straightened out with the customs, these officers are to him the most important people yet moulded. This impression sticks to him for awhile, but after a time it wears off and the police fill the horizon formerly occupied by the customs men.

The next time the customs man appeals to him as something extraordinary is when having visited his former home, or having gone over into Canada for a trip, coming back he is again held up and compelled to open up his grip and trunk for inspection by the customs officer, whose curiosity to see what contraband goods may be concealed, leads him into looking into every nook and corner of the traveler's bagage.

There is probably no class of men in the world whom travelers take such pains to attempt to gull or to conceal things from as the customs men of all countries. Travelers tell them tales, which would be considered base falsehoods in any other case, or at least would be known by the more polite term of "prevarications," outbloss customs men, were they so disposed, could write books about the ingenuity of the yarnse poured into their ears almost every day. It seems to make no difference what a man's politics may be, he will try to beat the customs just the same. If he is a Republican he will vote for high tariff on everything foreign coming into the country, but as soon as he has occasion to bring something foreign into the country he will swear by all that is good and holy to anything which will reduce the custom on it or let him escape paying anything on it. The Democrat, on the other hand, who does not believe in a tariff, will take just as extreme measures as the Republican, but his course may be more consistent, if it is not honest.

And the customs man is really as important as he seems to be when one gets right down to it. You can tell him the most charming story, you can "cuss" him if you want to, you may refuse to open your baggage or you may do anything you please, but the customs man is monarch of all he surveys for the time being and you must obey his mandates before you are through.

Duluth is one of the most important points in the United States customs service. It is one of the greatest international ports in the world and shipments are received here from

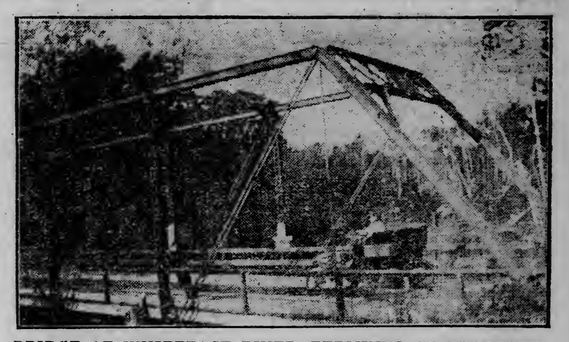
DULUTH'S AUTOMOBILE CLUB

Working To Secure First-Class Road To the Twin Cities.

Arrangements Now Being Made For An Endurance Run.

Course On Park Point For Automobile Races Projected.



BRIDGE AT WHITEFACE RIVER, TERMINUS OF PROPOSED ENDURANCE AUTOMOBILE RUN.

The automobile census of the city at the present time, shows sixteen vehicles owned by private citizens, and several others in use on the streets as demonstration cars by agents of the automobile manufacturers.

Of the sixteen, just one-half are touring cars and half are runabouts.

Probably the most conspicuous car in the city is the aluminum colored Winton, owned by Al. Ribenack. It bears the number "2" as its mark, and is one of the handsomest cars in the city. It is propelled by gasoline. Ward Ames, Jr., also has a Winton touring car, numbered 1001.

There are two Rambler touring cars in the city, which bear a very close resemblance to each other. One is owned by Victor Huot, and is numbered 10. The other is owned by Thomas Furniss of Superior, but is kept in Duluth all of the time. It is numbered 24, and for the last two or three weeks Mr. Huot has been running it, as his own car is being overhauled.

W. C. Brown owns a Thomas touring car which carries number 8, and E. J. Filiatrault owns a big yellow National, formerly owned by George C. Stone. It has been repainted a handsome blue color, with the yellow wheels, and carries number 17.

There are two steam touring cars owned in the city. One is the property of D. G. Cutler, and is numbered 12. The other has just been purchased by L. R. Martin, and has no number yet.

There are no less than four of the Olds runabouts in the city. They are owned by Walter Turrie, A. H. Smith, C. Hutchinson and William Dalrymple, and are numbered 18, 7, 13 and 21 respectively.

George C. Stone has a handsome new Auto car runabout, numbered 1023, and G. L. Thomas, Jr., owns a Baker electric runabout, numbered 15, Morton Miller's machine, which carries number 4, is a Studebaker electric runabout, and W. J. Stephenson has a new Stevens Durea stanhope.

A. H. Smith has a handsome new Maxwell runabout.

As far as speed is concerned, there is little to choose between the eight touring cars. They are all of approximately the same power, and can attain a speed of forty-five miles an hour if pushed. They are seldom run faster than thirty-five or forty miles per hour, however, and this can be said to be their speed limit. The steam and gasoline cars have practically the same speed limit.

The electric runabouts, which are intended only for use in the city streets, cannot run to exceed fifteen miles per hour, their average speed when "let out" being about twelve miles.

As a result of the increase in the number of automobiles in the city this spring, the owners felt justified in organizing an Automobile club. The first officers of the new club are as follows: President, William Dalrymple; vice president, Al. Ribenack; secretary, A. H. Smith; treasurer, Victor Huot. These four officers, together with W. J. Stephenson, constitute the board of directors.

The object of the club is to promote interest in automobiling in Duluth and to assist in getting better roads throughout this part of the state. The club is working with the automobile clubs in Minneapolis and St. Paul to secure a first-class road between Duluth and the Twin Cities. The present road is in fairly good condition for the greater part of the way, but it needs some improving to put it in good shape for automobiling. It also needs a bridge over the Kettle river. At the present time it is necessary to ford the Kettle river at Sandstone and if the water is high it is no easy task to get one of the heavy touring cars across.

The club is also working on a map which will show all the roads in the vicinity of Duluth, stating the condition they are in and whether or not they are suitable for automobiling. This map will show at a glance all the good trips that are possible in the vicinity of Duluth.

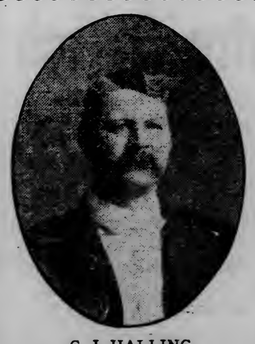
Arrangements are also being made for an endurance run, in which all of the touring cars in the city will take part. The run will be made from Duluth to the White Face river bridge on the Miller trunk road, a distance of about forty-two miles, and return. Three timekeepers will be placed at each end of the run, and a prize will be given by the club to the owner of the machine which makes the best time on the trip. The exact date of the race has not yet been fixed, but it will be held as soon as the roads are in good condition.

Last, but not least, the club will take up the plan to improve the lake shore of Park Point and establish there a course for automobile races. If the plan is carried out it will give Duluth a straightaway course, seven miles in length and from forty to sixty feet in depth, composed of hard, level sand. Such a course would be second not even to the famous Ormond Beach course, in Florida, which has gained a world-wide reputation from the automobile records which have been established there. If such a course is perfected it would give the city an immense amount of free advertising.

The expense would be very small, as the course is already there, and all that is necessary is to clear it of the small amount of driftwood which has accumulated along its length. The new ferry bridge provides easy access to the course, which would otherwise be out of reach.

The improvement of London road, which will be continued this year, will give Duluth another excellent speedway, five miles in length along the shore of the lake, and will give the city as good facilities for indulgence in the sport by those who can afford it as almost any city in the country.

E. C. CLOW,
Deputy.



C. J. HALLING,
Night Deputy.

A man is in "hard luck," indeed, if he has a wife who "never reads the ads," and who does her shopping in comparative ignorance of what things should cost.

But one more week of the most remarkable Lenten period through which Duluth has fasted and done penance for some years. The weather has been so beautiful that it has been hard indeed in many cases to assume the devout and demure expression that is supposed to be the outward expression of inward repentance, for with such sunshine and such air, eyes will sparkle and cheeks flush prettily in spite of the dull Lenten days that offer little diversion. Society has been quiet, and talk of Easter hats has been most apropos this year, indeed some few people who have the courage of their convictions, their first selections of hats and their pocketbooks, have already donned the spring hat that is supposed to mark the dividing line between Lent and the resurrection of all light and life. The coming week will offer little diversion in society, except the wedding of Miss Julia Salter and Homer Fulton, which will take place Wednesday evening, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Charles Cotton Salter of Glen Avon.

* * *

One of the most brilliant weddings that Duluth will have seen in some time will be that of Miss Stella Livingston O'Reilly and Francis Paul Mitchell, which will take place the Wednesday following Easter. The ceremony will take place at the cathedral, and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's uncle, M. S. Burrows of 1632 East First street. Many out-of-town guests will be in the city for the wedding, and among them will be Mr. and Mrs. T. A. McIntyre and Malcolm Mitchell of New York, Charles B. Houghton and Miss Houghton also of New York, and Mrs. E. O'Reilly of Ottawa, Canada.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

The meeting of the Ladies' Literature class Tuesday afternoon of this week at which the program was devoted to German lyrics and ballads, was an artistic success and was a fitting termination of a most successful and delightful year. The program was in charge of Mrs. E. W. Matter and a history of the lyric and ballad was read by Mrs. Frank Adams. The musical program was presented by Mary Syer Bradshaw with Mrs. J. A. Stephenson as the accompanist. Mrs. W. B. Dunlop read "The Glove" by Schiller and "The Wild Rose by Goethe, and also read an interpretation of "The Erl-King." Following the program an informal social hour was spent. The following was the program presented by Miss Bradshaw:

"Widmung" (Ruckert).. ....Schumann
"Du bist wie eine Blume" (Heine)
....Schumann
"Dedication" (Mueller).. .....Franz
"Erlkonig" (Goethe)..... ..Schubert
"Sapphic Ode" (Schmidt).....Brahms
"Zur Ruh" (Korner).....Hugo Wolf
"Beating Hearts" (Blerbaum).....
....Richard Strauss

One of the interesting announcements of the week of particular interest to the musical people of the city was that of the appearance at the Lyceum in May of the famous Pittsburg orchestra directed by Emil Paur and Madame Johanna Gadski, the great American prima donna. The concert will be one of more than usual interest and it is hoped that the effort to bring the organization here will meet with financial success.

* * *

The Cecilian society organized in 1887, on Nov. 22, St. Cecilia's day, was reorganized Thursday afternoon. Officers chosen were: Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker, president; Mrs. K. A. Ostergren, vice president; Mrs. John F. Segog, secretary; Mrs. James McAuliffe, corresponding secretary; Miss Isabel

JESSICA DE WOLF.

Jessica De Wolf is one of the truly great singers on the American concert platform today and it is a matter of congratulation that the Duluth public, who during the last few weeks have had Paderewski and Rudolph Ganz, should have an opportunity also to hear one of the great sopranos of the country. Madame De Wolf appears with the Beethoven club at its last appearance at the Congregational church Wednesday, April 26.

Pearson, treasurer; Miss Grayce Turner, librarian. There was a short program before the business meeting. The numbers were:

"Lullaby" .. ..Gustav Becker
Mrs. John F. Segog.
Rhapsodie, No. 8.. .. ..Liszt
Miss Julia Hunter.
(a) "An Irish Love Song".. .. ..
.. ..Margaret Long
(b) "A Life Lesson"..Ethelbert Nevin
Mrs. James McAuliffe.
Norwegian Dances .. ..Grieg
Miss Clara Stocker and Mrs. Stocker.
(a) "Per Un Tuo Bacio" .....Vannini
(b) "Dawn" .. ..d'Hardelot
Miss Grayce Turner.

At 5 o'clock light refreshments were served, and the society adjourned to meet at 3 p. m. on the second Monday in May with Mrs. Mark Baldwin.

* * *

The meeting of the Bishop's club, which was to have been held next Tuesday evening, has been postponed until Tuesday evening, April 25, because of holy week. At the meeting Mrs. Robert Seymour will speak on "The Revival of Irish Literature," and the meeting will be in charge of Miss Poirier.

* * *

The annual meeting of the Lester Park Literary club was held Tuesday afternoon of this week with Mrs. J. H. Norton at Lester Park. The election of officers took place and the following were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. John Pinkerton; vice president, Mrs. W. J. Stevenson; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Dodge; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. B. Curtis, and chairman of the program committee, Mrs. J. M. Burbank.

The report of the committee on the next year's program was given, and the club will devote its study time and next year to American literature. The club will continue its meetings until the first Tuesday of May.

* * *

Last evening the last in the series of entertainments given in the People's Lecture course of the Lester Park Methodist church was a recital given by pupils from the class of Mrs. Emma L. Schmeld. The program was a most interesting one and was listened to with pleasure by the audience that filled the little church. In the numbers by the younger pupils the individuality expressed with an almost faultless execution brought many expressions of approval to teacher and pupils. A particularly interesting number was that played by Leo L. Schmeld at which two selections were presented. The first was "Gavotte" by Popper and the second "French Dance," Op. 3, by Leo L. Schmeld. The number was played in a musicianly manner and was heartily encored. The following number, "Serenade Espagnole," by Preyer, played by Miss Ita Schleids, was also a finely played number. A two piano number played by Miss Agatha Cotter and Miss Irma Richards when "Grand Polonaise" by Weber was the selection, was a splendid number, finely played. The "Rhapsodie Hongroise, No. 8," by Liszt, played by Miss Julia Hunter and Carl V. Lachmund's "Valse Impromptu," played by Miss Mae Kennedy, were also numbers that were greatly appreciated. Other pupils who took part were Misses Hazel Levin, Marion Fitger, Melville Silvey, Dorothy Douse, Marie Merrill, Carolyn Swift, Dorothy Olcott, Elizabeth Olcott, Carolyn Marshall, Judith Hartley, Elcey Cole, Carolyn Munger, Josephine Haley, Christeen Rosa, Gertrude Smith, Edna Harris, Ruth Kennedy, Dorothy House, Margaret Swift, Irene Pattison and Ruth Sutton and Master Joe Ross.

* * *

The last regular meeting of the Matinee Musicale will be held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Steinway hall. Following the program the election of officers for the next year will take place. The program is in charge of Emily Ellis Woodward and Mrs. Stephen H. Jones. The music of Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" and the following is the program:

Reading from the play ....
Miss Wylie.
Overture—Allegro Abwace ....
Mrs. Stephenson, Miss Simonds.
Duet with chorus—Ye Spotted Snakes
Mrs. Ball, Miss Bradshaw.
Nocturne—Andante tranquillo .....
Miss Lynn.
Solo with chorus of elves—"Thro' the House" ....
Mrs. Ball.
Wedding March .....
Mrs. Stephenson, Miss Holmes,
Mrs. Day, Miss Simonds.

The announcement that Jessica De Wolf would appear at the last concert of the Beethoven club on April 26th at the Congregational church, has afforded great pleasure to the Duluth musical public. There are few singers on the American concert platform that are better known than Jessica De Wolf and her surpassing merit and exquisite art brings her the choicest engagements with all the large orchestras of the East, as well as a lucrative church position in her home city.

Being already known to the Duluth public from her coming here with Sauret last summer, the opportunity to hear her again will surely not be missed by Duluth music lovers. This concert will also be the last appearance of the Beethoven club, which during the last five seasons have played so many delightful programs, and by their faithful work brought Duluth in touch with the larger musical world by their production of modern chamber music.

* * *

The annual business meeting of the Ladies' Literature Class will be held Tuesday afternon of next wek at the club room of the library.

* * *

A pleasing piano recital was given Tuesday evening of this week by a number of the younger pupils of Miss Mabel Fulton at her home 229 Fourth avenue west. Miss Virginia Bean assisted, playing a violin solo, "Henry VIII Dances," by Edward German, and responded to an enthusiastic encore. The evening was a pleasing and interesting one to the friends of the little folks that were present.

* * *

The regular meeting of the Book club was held Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. H. E. Johnson of 814 East Seventh street. "The Lady of the Lake" was the study for the afternoon.

* * *

One of the musical events of the coming week will be the singing of "The Crucifixation," by Sir John Stainer which will be given at the Pilgrim Congregational church, Good Friday evening by the Altrurian club of the church, under the direction of Emily Ellis Woodward.

WHEN JIM TOOK WATER

By Kennett Harris.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

There was one thing about Jim Kitchener—he was, as the population of McGinnisburg generally admitted, "a heap sot in his ways." "But," McGinnisburg added, "he ain't no sotter than what Perry Gamler is."

That was true. They were both of them men whose boast it was that they never took water on a proposition. They stopped short at cutting rates and that was all; otherwise their rivalry in the livery business at McGinnisburg was bitter in the extreme.

Jim had known that Perry was going to run a hack line over to Etheria, the new mountain health resort that had recently been boomed by the Chicago crowd, he would never have started one himself, but he did not know it until he overtook Perry one morning about half way to this new Mecca of invalids.

"Whoa, there!" said Jim to his horses, as he drew alongside of his rival. Then he called to Perry, "Travelin'" or goin' somewhere, Perry?"

"I'm a-goin' to Etheria, if you want to know," replied Perry, sourly.

"I thought that you wasn't travelin'," said Jim, blandly; "that is, not travelin' so's a person could notice it."

"An' what's more I'm goin' to make a trip every day, rain or shine," growled Perry.

"Is that so?" inquired Jim, with polite interest"—with them old crowbaits? Well, who'd thought it! It happens though that I'm a goin' to do that same identical thing, an' as I expect to get there some time today I'm afraid I'll have to leave you. So long."

He whipped up his horses and tried to pass, but Perry, jockeyed him in the narrow road and then applying the lash to his team, began to throw a respectable cloud of dust behind him. It was twelve good miles from McGinnisburg to Etheria and they had six of them to go. They did that six in record time, touching only the more elevated portions of the route and arriving in Etheria neck and neck, the teams in a lather of sweat and dust. From that time on they raced whenever they met, and that was every day. The passengers that they took with them usually had a pretty exciting time of it. It was about an even thing between them. Sometimes Jim had a good load of passengers or freight and Perry had none and sometimes it was the other way about. Once Perry wrecked his hack and lamed a horse and then Jim broke a passenger's leg and the damages that he had to pay about evened that score. It was nip and tuck, McGinnisburg said—a question of who could hold out the longest, for there was not more than enough business on the road, taking one day with another, to pay one hack line. Naturally there was a certain feeling between the two men. If you mentioned Jim to Perry he ground his teeth and swore. If anybody said anything about Perry to Jim, Jim would laugh, for that was his way, but there was something not quite hearty and spontaneous about the cacchinnation. "I'm makin' money hand over fist on this proposition," said Jim; "if I wasn't I would quit too quick, but it's different with Perry, poor fool!" Perry never spoke to Jim, but Jim always made it a point to speak to Perry. When there was a particularly offensive sulphur pool discovered about eight miles east of McGinnisburg and Major Spinkins, the real estate man, got Eastern capital and boomed it to the detriment of Etheria, Jim asked Perry if he hadn't got tired of working for nothing. "You know that you haven't had a passenger for a week," he said; "all them reporters are agoin' over to soak themselves in that stinking mud of Major Spinkins'. You know that you can't stand this racket."

"Who's been a-telling you that?" asked Perry. "I'm puttin' money in the bank every day. I'm goin' to keep on until I make enough to build an electric car line. Then I'll quit an' not before, so you just put that in your pipe and smoke it, dog-gone you."

"Well," said Jim, smiling, "since you are so gol blamed confidential I don't mind tellin' you that I am buying up all of the Burlington railroad stock that I can lay my hands on with the money that I'm getting out of this, an' when I get enough of it to pull my strings I'm goin' to run a stub to Etheria. Your car line won't amount to hell room."

A day or two later the news came that Etheria was to have a postoffice and that the contract for carrying the mail was awarded to Perry. That was a body blow to Jim, but he was not discouraged. He knew that the contract itself would not pay the expenses of the hack line and that the rest of the hauling was not worth consideration. Without delay he sat down and wrote a letter to a carriage factory in Omaha, as a result of which a brand new, spick and span, vermilion painted, corduroy cushioned coach was loaded at the freight depot tagged for him. To this gorgeous vehicle Jim attached his finest team and drove in triumph around the streets of McGinnisburg. Perry beheld him from his stable door and his teeth came down so hard on his pipe stem that his mouth was filled with splinters.

"Perry can have the mail," Jim announced, "but what passengers there are I'm going to haul, you bet your sweet existence."

Major Spilkins admired the outfit as it passed his office on Main street. "Corkin' good team you've got there, Jim," he called.

"Purt' tol'able," answered Jim, carelessly, at the same time pulling up. "Git aboard, Major, an' see how she rides."

The Sulphur Spring boomer accepted the invitation and Jim made another circuit of the town, after which the major got off. Then Jim, with a thoughtful face drove around to Perry's stable. Perry and one of his helpers were just hitching up for the Etheria trip.

"Perry," called Jim, "let Bill there hold my horse for a few minutes, I want to speak to you on a particular matter of business. Don't grouch, I'm holdin' out the olive branch. I won't keep you long."

"Well," said Perry, grudgingly, "I haint goin' to give you long. Bill, hold up them poor weak hosses o' Jim's an' turn their heads around so they won't smell the oats in the barn an' go crazy."

He led the way into his little office and Jim swung himself in a seat on the safe. "Now, Perry," said Jim, 'you see what sort of an outfit I've got an' that there ain't no use buckin' me. I own up that I'm tired o' bitin' off my nose to spite my face. You're a stayer, all right, but I don't want to see a neighbor o' mine ruin himself if he is bull-headed. I can afford to buy you out, an' if you're willin' to be reasonable I'll do it. What's the use o' me an' you bein' at outs all the time?"

"I'm no quitter," said Perry, gruffly, "an' as far as that goes I could buy you out jest as easy as you could me."

"Mebbe," said Jim, doubtfully.

"Ain't no 'mebbe' about it," said Perry. "What'll you take?"

"Don't you let pride stand in your way," urged Jim, kindly. "You'd better quit an' let me pay you. You've lost enough money now."

"What'll you take?" repeated Perry, stubbornly.

"Give me $300 an' I'll pull off the Etheria line for good," said Jim, after a moment's reflection.

Perry reached up to a pigeonhole in his ricketty desk and pulled out a check book. A minute later he handed Jim his check. "Now, do you want to sell that fancy outfit o' yourn?" he asked triumphantly.

"Well, no," replied Jim, slowly, "I'm goin' to need it to drive over the Sulphur Springs. Major Spilkins has taken a notion that he wants a stage line an' I'm under contract to run it for him for $250 a month an' hoss fed. So long, Perry; I wish you luck, but I'm afraid that Etheria is a busted community."

FERGUSON CHOSEN

Directors Elect Him President of the Commercial Club.

Other Officers Are Also Elected For Ensuing Year.

E. M. Ferguson was elected president of the Duluth Commercial club at a meeting of the directors of the organization, held at the club rooms this afternon, at 1 o'clock. Frank Crassweller was elected first vice president; G. L. Douglass, Jr., second vice president; W. E. Magner, treasurer, and Hubert V. Eva, secretary.

The following directors were present and voted at the meeting: J. W. Kreitter, W. E. Magner, J. I. Thomas, George H. Crosby, A. B. Black, Frank Crassweller, George C. Stone, C. W. Elston and G. L. Douglass. E. M. Ferguson, who is not in the city at present, was the only one of the ten directors who was absent. The constitution of the club allows the directors two weeks' time after the annual meeting in which to hold an election of officers. The annual meeting and election of directors occurred last Wednesday. As some of the latter will be out of the city after today, it was thought best for them to get together this afternoon for the transaction of necessary business, for it is not likely that nine of them will be in the city at the same time again within the next two or three weeks.

Ever since its inception Mr. Ferguson has been an active and enthusiastic worker in the club's affairs, taking a personal interest in all movements started for the benefit of the city. His selection as president will prove a popular one. He is now serving his second term and third year as director, having been re-elected to the position in 1904. During the first year of his term he acted as second vice president, and last year was elected to the position of first vice president. W. A. McGonagle, for the past two years president of the organization, was not a candidate for re-election as director.

Frank Crassweller has also taken an active and important part in club matters since it was organized, as has Mr. Douglass and Mr. Magner. Under the management of Secretary Eva the general condition of the organization, in the way carrying on its business an dthe method of conducting the several departments has shown a marked advancement and improvement.

The club's policy under the new officers and directors will, it is announced, be practically the same as under the old. It is expected that the improvement in all departments during the coming year will be as marked as was the case during the twelve months just ended.

As soon as Mr. Ferguson returns to the city it will become his duty to appoint three committees, a house committee, with three members; a membership committee of ten, and a finance committee, consisting of three club members. As a rule such committees are made up of club members who are not directors, except in the case of the house committee, on which a director usually acts as chairman.

Still Coming In Crowds.

In the early part of January several thousand immigrants from Russia landed in New York, and it is expected many thousands more will soon arrive. They desire to escape military service and the general tyranny of that country. If you want to escape the tortures inflicted on you by a rebellious stomach, inactive liver or weak kidneys, resort to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters at once. It has given freedom to thousands during its fifty years' experience and will be just as effective in your case. One bottle will be sufficient to prove its wonderful merit and that's why we urge you, for your health's sake, to get it today. It positively cures spring fever, colds, grippe, poor appetite, dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, costiveness or malaria, fever and ague. Don't accept a substitute.

PREMIER TISZA

Censured By Lower House of Hungarian Diet.

Budapest, April 15.—The lower house of the diet today passed the motion of Herr Otvo for a vote of censure on Former Premier Tisza for being actuated by political motives in raising the pension of the late president of the house, Perczyl Van Bonyhad from $1,600 to $3,000. The motion was carried by a large majority. The house then adjourned until May 3, when the independent party's address to the crown comes up for discussion. The address is practically a platform of the united opposition and its discussion is liable to give rise to a heated debate unless a solution of the ministerial crisis is discovered meanwhile. The united opposition shows no signs of weakening in its demands or of disintegration and neither does the crown give evidence of a tendency to withdraw from its previous utterances or attitude. The situation consequently is serious to say the least.

GETS SIX MONTHS.

Former Wife of Wisconsin Physician Is Sentenced.

Chicago, April 15.—Mrs. Louisa Stewart, divorced wife of a Wisconsin physician, was today sentenced here to six months in the house of correction. While on trial recently Mrs. Stewart denied any knowledge of the thefts alleged to have been perpetrated by herself and a man known as "Rattles" Walsh, with whom she was arrested. She claimed she was engaged to marry Walsh. The jury acquitted her, but when she was arraigned on another indictment Mrs. Stewart caused surprise by pleading guilty. Her motive apparently was to save Walsh, but the change was unavailing. Walsh will be sentenced next Saturday.

VICTORY OR DEATH

Decision That Rojestvensky Expects In the Coming Sea Battle.

Japanese Expect to Lose Trading Vessels By Russian Fleet.

Paris, April 15.—Gaston Dru telegraphs from St. Petersburg to the Echo De Paris that Admiral Rojestvensky's last telegram before leaving Nossi Be was singularly laconic and eloquent. He wired:

"I will not telegraph again before the battle. If I am beaten you will learn it through Togo. If I defeat him I will announce it to you."

M. Dru adds that the telegram was accepted as meaning that the Russian seeks victory or death.

Paris, April 15.—A dispatch to the Temps from Saigon says Admiral Rojestvensky did not sight any Japanese scouts during his entrance into the China sea by way of the straits of Malacca. The dispatch adds that it is expected the Russian fleet will re-provision on the coast of Annam.

Admiral Jonquieres, with the French cruiser Deschartes, the armored gunboats Styx and Acheron, the torpedo bont destroyer Takou and a division of torpedo boats remain off Cape St. James, near Saigon, prepared for all eventualities.

Chicago, April 15.—A special from Tokio to the Daily News says:

That Japan is certain to lose trading vessels and commercial steamers of all kinds, and Jiji Shimpo thinks inevitable, because of the Baltic fleet in traversing the path of navigation.

Nevertheless, it says, the enemy will be allowed some latitude without molestation to its movements. Even marauding in the open sea will be unnoticed while the Japanese complete their plans to catch the enemy's fleet and effect in a single engagement the annihilation of Rojestvensky's squadron. Meanwhile the Japanese should bear slight losses of commerce with equanimity, awaiting Togo's ultimate glorious victory.

Japan is mourning the death of Gen. Viscount Torio, a privy councillor, and also the death of Dr. Taguashi, a member of the house of commons and a prominent economist.

St. Petersburg, April 15.—The Russ today remarks, referring to the dispatch from Washington published here yesterday, on the subject of the Japanese assurances in regard to the opening of hostilities:

"If the telegram is true Japan deceived the United States. Why has the United States waited fourteen months to let the world know this when it did not hesitate to charge Russia with breaking her promises?"

Washington, April 15.—Acting Secretary Loomis today stated that the publication of the diplomatic correspondence respecting the Russo-Japanese war and particularly that portion relative to the outbreak of hostilities before the formal declaration of war was entirely in the usual course of departmental routine and was without any motive whatever or intention to affect the sensibilities of either of the belligerents.

WOULD INDICT HIGH OFFICIAL

For Interfering With Witnesses In "Beef Trust" Investigation.

Chicago, April 15.—The grand jury investigating the alleged "Beef trust" made special efforts today to secure enough evidence from one woman and two men to indict a high official of one of the leading packing firms in Chicago. The charge is attempting to influence government witnesses. The three witnesses were summoned on forthwith subpoenas and were rigidly questioned but failed to tell as much as had been expected. Although indictments on the charge named have been returned against five persons, it is claimed that efforts are still being made to interfere with government witnesses. It is reported that the first intimation of the alleged interference with another witness was gathered from the testimony of Edwin B. Fish, on whose testimony four employes of Schwarzschild & Sulzberger were indicted Thursday.

Another delay in the hearing of the case of Thomas J. Connors, the indicted general superintendent of Armour & Co. was granted by Judge Landis today by agreement of counsel for the packers and of the government. The matter went over until next Saturday.

Former Commander of G. A. R. Is Dead.

Albany, April 15.—Gen. John Palmer, former commander in chief of the G. A. R., died here today, after a long illness. His death resulted from a wound at the spine which he received in the Civil War and from which he suffered since that conflict. He was one of the most prominent members of the G. A. R. in the country, being commander in chief of that order in 1892. He was elected secretary of state of New York on the Republican ticket in 1895 and held that office for five years. He held many other posts of trust and was one of Albany's most prominent citizens.

THE MISSION PRESS

At Shanghai and Great Work It Accomplishes.

New York, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was recently received here, at the offices of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, the annual report of the Mission Press at Shanghai, China. The report shows to what an important place in missionary work the printing press has attained. This Shanghai press, which is one of a number maintained by the Presbyterian board at various points on the foreign field, compares favorably in size and in quality of output, with many of the important printing houses of the United States. The number of its employes will indicate something of the size. Press and machine men number 40; Chinese compositors, 34; English compositors, 36; workers in the foreign bindery, 22; in the foundry, 22; salesmen, office boys, etc., 18; Chinese proofreaders, 4; carpenters, 8; messengers, gatekeepers, etc., 15; binders of Chinese books, 80. Further indication of the size of the establishment is gained from the record of a year's output. This was, last year, 72,405,048 pages in 1,814,100 copies of Chinese works; and 8,717,670 pages in 102,720 copies of works in English and other languages. A total of 81,122,718 pages.

It is to be noted that although the Shanghai Press is a Presbyterian institution, its work is not confined to the missions of that body. In the past year work has been done for twenty-five societies and missions, including American, British, German, Norwegian and Swedish; while as regards religious bodies, the patrons of the press included Episcopalians, Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists and Presbyterians. The North China Tract society was one of the customers. This organization is working to replace the missionary literature destroyed during the Boxer troubles a few years ago. The Shanghai press has recently moved into new buildings erected for it outside the city, and has just built twenty-five workmen's houses close to the works.

As indicating the progress being made in China along educational lines, it is interesting to note that the largest number of pages in any item printed in Chinese last year was for educational books. There were 35,735,656 pages of text books for schools and colleges, and works on history, civilization, etc. The next largest number of pages in Chinese was for religious works and is stated as 19,469,284 pages of commentaries, hymn books, catechisms, and works on theology, Christianity, the spiritual life, etc. Of the Scriptures there were printed 6,452,800 pages. The largest items of English printing was 2,120,600 pages of dictionaries of the Chinese language. An item almost as large was that of educational text books. The directors of the press say there is constant demand for literature in Chinese, mainly of an educational character, and that while certain parts of China are more progressive than others, due perhaps to more enlightened officials, progress is everywhere apparent and for China to ever again go backward seems now impossible.

Summer conferences for church workers are rapidly multiplying in number. These workers study the Bible, hear reports from mission fields and listen to sermons by great preachers, and then take excursions, go bathing, play baseball and golf, and have a good time. These conferences are a modern development, and one reason for their popularity is that the amusements are as carefully planned as are the religious meetings.

Last year the Episcopal church inaugurated conferences at Richfield Springs, on a western spur of the Catskills, a region made famous by Fenimore Cooper in his Leather Stocking tales. They met with immediate and hearty success. This coming July and August more conferences are to be held as follows:

Woman's Missionary Conference, July 20 to 30.

Seabury Conference for Men, July 30 to August 6.

Church Workers' Conference, August 8 to 20.

Sunday School Conference, August 20 to 27.

School of Church Singing, July 20 to August 20.

A new organization, called the Seabury Society of New York, has been effected to have charge of them. The president of the women's conference is to be Bishop Burton of Lexington, and of the church workers meeting, Bishop Darlington of Harrisburg. The Bible teachers will be the Rev. Dr. James S. Stone of Chicago and Prof. Samuel R. Colladay of Berkeley Divinity school.

Very prominent women in the Episcopal church are in charge of the woman's conference. They include Miss Sallie Stuart, Virginia; Mrs. Mary E. Watson, New York; Mrs. J. Elliott Langstaff, Brooklyn; Miss Emma W. Abbott, Newar; Miss Alice Manton Morgan, Boston; Mrs. Thomas R. Proctor, Utica; Mrs. Samuel B. Ward, Albany, and Mrs. Daniel S. Merritt, Philadelphia. Equally prominent men are on the committee in charge of the Sunday school conference. The president of the last named meeting is to be the Rev. Llewllyn N. Caley of Philadelphia, a city in which Episcopal churchmen have long led in Sunday school work.

Governor Higgins of New York, who is a vestryman of the Episcopal church in his home town of Olean, is to attend, and there is to be a governor's day. A little later Governor Warfield of Maryland is expected to speak about the condition and prospects of the negro, and there is to be a Maryland day. Other speakers include Capt. A. T. Mahan, Japanese Consul General Uchida of New York, Hon. James S. Sherman of the House Indian Affairs committee, and probably Mr. Booker T. Washington.

The preachers are to include the Rev. H. McKim, Washington; the Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, Philadelphia; the Rev. J. O. S. Huntington, head of the Order of the Holy Cross; the Rev. John R. Mathews, Ohio; the Rev. John Henry Hopkins, Chicago; and several bishops, including those from Cuba, Georgia, Ohio, Lexington, Porto Rico and Harrisburg. During the Sunday school conference instruction is to be given by the Rev. Milton S. Littlefield, New York; William Walter Smith, New York; Lester Bradner, Ph. D., Providence, and Charles Scadding, Chicago.

A new feature will be the school of church singing. The aim is to improve the heartiness of the pews in public worship. That is, people in the congregation are to be encouraged to respond with greater earnestness. Instruction is to be given to those who can read music and to the people who cannot do so. This part of the work is to be in charge of Mr. Reginald L. McAll of New York, who has had much success in it.

For amusements there are to be provided on each Friday afternoon a concert, at which talent of the first grade will be heard, and on each Friday night there will be a choral service, with an address. There are already two receptions planned at Cooperstown and two at Richfield Springs. Besides there are golf, baseball, bathing, boating, trolley excursions and visits to haunts of Deerslayer and Harry Hurry. The railroads have made reduced rates to this as to many other summer meetings.

The Richfield conferences are in charge of the Seabury Society of New York, as has been noted, and the address of the organization is 31 Union Square, in the city named.

John L. to Appear In Duluth With Vaudeville Company.

Guarantees to Knock Out Any Opponent In Four Rounds.

Is there any amateur pugilist in Duluth that desires to stand up against John L. Sullivan for four rounds for $500?

The ex-champion pugilist of the world, who has lately risen from the pugilistic grave into which he was knocked by Corbett, is coming to Duluth on April 28, when he will appear in his vaudeville show at the Lyceum theater.

The following telegram was forwarded by him to the sporting editor of The Herald today:

"I will give $500 to any man I don't knock out in four rounds at Lyceum theater, April 28.

"JOHN L. SULLIVAN."

It is now up to some of the sports around town who have been calling Sullivan a "dead one" to show their lack of fear for the corpse, by stepping into the ring with him a week from next Friday, and incidentally earn $500.

The telegram was sent from St. Louis, where Sullivan is at the present time. He will go from Duluth to the coast and make a tour of the cities in the West with his vaudeville show.

Sullivan has evidently wearied of the lecture platform. The critics have made so much sport of his English that he has apparently decided to go back to his old love.

SOME EXCITING TIMES WITH JOHN L. SULLIVAN

Reminiscences of the Fighter By Frank Moran, Who Was Formerly His Manager—Schemes of Many To Put Out the Champion.

A group of sporting men sat around a table in a Broadway cafe talking of fighters who are now classed as has-beens and one of those who now loom high on the pugilistic horizon, says the New York Sun. One of the group was Frank Moran, who was at one time John L. Sullivan's manager.

Some one remarked that John L. was still up and doing, for although he is old and fat, he is said to have knocked out a heavyweight in a Western city a few weeks ago. The mention of the ex-champion's name brought forth many reminiscences of the fighter, and it was Moran who told the best ones.

"Soon after Sullivan whipped Paddy Ryan," said Moran, "Al Smith conceived the idea of having him make a tour of this country. That was in 1883, when the big fellow was in tiptop shape.

"Smith got a troupe together. There were nine persons in the party—Sullivan, Pete McCoy, Steve Taylor, Mike Gillespie, Herbert Slade, Mike Donovan all boxers; Al Smith, Jake Munzinger, theo treasurer of the troupe, and myself.

"Smith went ahead of the show, smoothing the way, while I stayed behind and stuck to the big fellow and kept things going smoothly. It was an eight months' trip, and we made $110,000 outside of our expenses, which were $44,000.

"It was purely a boxing troupe, and Steve Taylor was Sullivan's sparring partner. Sullivan was so good then that we went all over this country offering $1,000 in cash to any man who would stay before him for four rounds.

"Many men tried to cop that money, but none succeeded. During that tour Sullivan knocked out thirty-nine men. Some of them were husky citizens, too, for Richard K. Fox was sore on Sullivan and left no stone unturned to find a man who could whip him. That he didn't succeed only proves that Sullivan was the greatest fighter this country or any other ever produced.

"Although we made a lot of money on that tour, we certainly had some worrying to keep us from getting it too easy. Sullivan caused the worrying.

"He was then engaged in a catch-as-catch-can fight with that celebrated champion, John Barleycorn. Mix the last named John with the first named and you have a combination that would keep a dozen angels busy trying to avoid trouble.

"When we struck Butte, Mont., the miners turned out in force to welcome Sullivan. The first night we played they were hanging to the rafters.

"We struck town early in the day and as usual Sullivan spent his leisure time in examining the interior woodwork of the city's barrooms. When it came time for the show he was well soused.

"Nevertheless we had advertised that there was $1,000 in cash for any man who would stay four rounds with Sullivan. We had to make good, even if Sullivan was a little shaky on his feet.

"Well, a big strapping miner thought he would like that money, and he let it be known to his friends. They egged him on, and when he got to the hall where the show was to be held I found that the aspirant after the thousand was a pretty ferocious looking citizen. I was a little worried, for I knew the shape Sullivan was in. I didn't care about losing the money, but I knew if the big fellow was knocked out by some unknown his reputation would be dinged.

"I told Sullivan that I thought he was up against it, but he only growled at me. I had a couple of the boys work on him to get him in as good shape as possible. Then I went to the unknown's dressing room and handed him his gloves.

"They were two and a half ounce gloves, and you know what a wallop with one of them means. The miner wore heavy cowhide boots, and told me he would box in them. He looked so big that I went back to Sullivan's room to try and throw a scare into the big fellow.

"'He's a big duck with a red shirt and red beard, and he looks as hard as nails,' I said to him.

"'Got a red beard, has he?' said Sullivan. 'That'll stop the blood when I get at him.'

"'He's as big as you are, John,' said I.

"'So much the better,' roared the champion. 'The bigger he is the harder the fall.'

"Well, they went on. Both men got a great reception. Sullivan wabbled a bit, and the miner hit him a clip on the side of the jaw. That woke the champion up. He went at the unknown and in a minute that red-shirted, red-whiskered miner was covered with gore. Beforet he round was over Sullivan put him out.

"'What did I tell you?' said the champion as he came back to the dressing room.

"We went through part of British Columbia, and when we struck Victoria we were met by the mayor of the town, who asked us if it were true that we were offering $1,000 in real money to any man whom Sullivan couldn't knock out in four rounds. The mayor was an Irishman, and a little bit of a fellow. I told him I stood ready to make such an offer, and he asked me to produce the money.

"After I made sure who he was I turned over $1,000 to show that we meant business. They had a Frenchman in that town who the natives thought was a great fighter. He was a pretty good third-rater, but, of course, we didn't know that until after he had gone up against the champion.

"The night of our show I found this Frenchman in his dressing room, being rubbed from head to foot with fish oil. I asked what that was for, and his handlers told me that was being done so that Sullivan's blows would slip off his body. Another precaution they took against Sullivan's fists was to wrap about ten yards of red flannel around that Frenchman's stomach. When he lined up before John L. he was a funny-looking sight, with his oily body and his red flannel bandage.

"Sullivan was about in the same condition as when he met the red-whiskered miner in Butte. When he once got his bearings he was all right and he knocked the Frenchman down three times in the first round. The last time the Frenchman stayed down, and, in fact, he was unconscious for twenty minutes.

"When he came to he asked Sullivan to speak to him.

"'I break wood and fences with my fist,' he said to John, 'but you break stone.'

"'How's it feel to be knocked out?' asked Sullivan.

"'The first punch I thought I saw one French soldier,' was the reply. 'The last punch I thought I saw a whole regiment.'

"Knocking out the local champion made John L. many new admirers, but he didn't keep them long.

"Ned Hanlan, the oarsman, happened to be in town the next day. He was on his way to Australia with George Lee. The people in the town got up a banquet in honor of Hanlan, and he invited the members of Sullivan's party. No one went to the banquet from our troupe but Sullivan and Gillespie.

"There was plenty of drink there and Sullivan didn't stint himself. At the end of the dinner the toastmaster rapped for order and called upon every one to rise and drink to the health of the queen. Everybody got up but Sullivan. Gillespie arose and Sullivan tried to yank him back in his chair. The toastmaster noticed that Sullivan didn't get up and he couldn't help but remark it.

"'Who is the guest who refuses to rise and drink the health of the queen?' demanded the toastmaster.

"'John L. Sullivan,' bellowed the only man sitting. 'To h—l with the queen! Come on, Gillespie.'

"Sullivan was out of his seat in an instant and making for the door, dragging the other fighter with him. Of course there was a great hubbub over this, but we got out of town the next day and the incident never seemed to hurt our business once we got out of British territory.

"We all felt badly over Sullivan's break with the exception of John himself. We had been treated royally in Victoria and made much of. We had even been invited aboard a British man-of-war that was in the harbor, and it seemed a mighty ungrateful thing for even a prize fighter to do.

"However, no one could tell Sullivan that without danger of getting whipped. Sullivan wouldn't listen to advice in those days. If he had listened he would be a wealthy man today.

"In several cities John came near getting hurt, and in one, Fort Worth, Texas, he had to be hurried out of town during the night. A party of drunken cowboys got on his trail and they certainly would have put an end to Sullivan if they had caught him.

"Cockfighting was the principal sport in Fort Worth then and a big main was pulled off for our especial benefit. It took place in the afternoon, and one of the men who handled some of the birds was an old chap who certainly was popular with the cowboys. I don't recall what the old man's name was, even if I ever knew.

"If Sullivan knew the old chap's name he forgot it. When the birds were at it Sullivan bellowed that he would bet $50 on the bird which the old man was handling, and, not knowing his name, called him a name that was tabooed in Fort Worth. Sullivan didn't mean anything by it, but the cowboys got together and decided that one of their friends had been insulted by the champion pugilist. They talked over the insult and then began to liquor up. When they got a sufficient quantity of booze aboard they concluded that they would kill John L.

"It was night when they came to this determination and set out to search for Sullivan. John L's friends learned their intentions, and the champion was half carried, half dragged away and bundled into a wagon and taken from the town.

"At Dallas, Tex., we had another exciting adventure. In many towns in which we showed some big gun would try to provoke Sullivan into a fight when he was drunk in some barroom. This was done so that the man who did the provoking could get a few good punches at Sullivan and then go out among the town's people and play the part of the hero.

"One of the city officials of Dallas decided that his fortune would be made if he could whip Sullivan, and he laid pains to do it. The only trouble was that he arranged to kill Sullivan if he should get the worst of the fight in which he intended to engage the champion. This fight was to take place in a barroom when Sullivan was about half loaded.

"Well, this official laid his plans carefully, but I heard of his intention in time to prevent a fight. The scrap was almost due when I appeared on the scene and took John away in a jiffy.

"Then I went to the man who was going to get into a fight with him and told him what I had heard. He admitted that he wanted to whip Sullivan, and said that if he couldn't do it with his fists he was going to do it with a gun. He seemed aggrieved when deprived of the opportunity. The man rather surprised me for he held an important city office, one which required him to preserve peace and order instead of breaking it, as he firmly intended to do.

"These are only a few instances of the times we had on that tour. They were exciting times, but I wouldn't want to go through them again. We all got back safe and sound, with the exception of the big Australian Slade. He was the only deserter from our ranks. He quit in Utah and joined the Mormons. I guess he is a Mormon still."

CLOSED DOORS AT NOON.

Private Bank Had Received Deposits All Morning.

Owosso, Mich., April 15.—The private bank of M. L. Stewart & Co. of this city, one of the largest private banking institutions in the state, closed its doors today and posted a notice saying that the bank's affairs were in the hands of the Detroit Trust company. The bank's deposits have been estimated to be over $500,000. The bank accepted deposits during the morning and the closing of the institution caused a sensation.

It is alleged that the inability of a carriage company to meet $28,000 worth of paper was the cause of the closing of the bank. No statement of assets and liabilities is yet available.

Ralph Stone, secretary of the Detroit Trust company, who is in charge of the affairs of the bank, said this afternoon:

"The assignment of the bank was caused by the institution advancing to a carriage company in which C. D. Stewart, the head of the banking firm, was a heavy stockholder, sums aggregating $28,000. This indebtedness the carriage company was unable to meet. We are now doing our best to untangle the affairs of the bank, but it will be several days before we can make a statement of assets and liabilities. The liabilities are much higher than the assets."

C. D. Stewart, who has been the head of the bank since the death of M. L. Stewart several years ago, has turned over all of his property without reserve for the benefit of the creditors.

DRAMATICAL

ATTRACTIONS AT THE LYCEUM

"Happy Hooligan" on Monday Evening, Henrietta Crosman in "Mistress Nell" Tuesday and Wednesday and Field's Minstrels on Friday and Saturday.

Delightful comedy, presented by a charming comedienne is the announcement for the Lyceum next Tuesday and Wednesday when Henrietta Crosman will present George C. Hazelton's merry play, "Mistress Nell." In any event Miss Crosman would be sure of a hearty welcome, but it will be the more cordial from the fact that she is to be seen in this celebrated comedy, in which she has achieved her greatest renown. Of her many and marked triumphs, Miss Crosman has scored her most distinct success in "Mistress Nell." Herein, she earned wider popularity even than in "As You Like It" or in "Sweet Kitty Bellairs." So fascinating is her portrayal of Nell Gwyn, and so delightful the play itself, that in "Mistress Nell," Miss Crosman made a run of two seasons in New York, a record that speaks for the qualities of both the player and play.

The character gives Miss Crosman every opportunity to display her rare gift of comedy. It is bright, roguish, dashing and blends the touch of softness. The play abounds in clever speech and stirring situations, and every person is interesting. It is because of her most conspicuous success having been achieved in "Mistress Nell" that Miss Crosman has chosen the comedy for the brief spring tour she is making. As she has never presented the play in this city the engagement offers uncommon interest. The supporting company has been carefully selected and numbers several of the original cast. In richness and picturesqueness of scenic effects, "Mistress Nell" is prodigal. Miss Crosman's visit may well be regarded as one of the season's notable, theatrical events.

The full cast is as follows:

King Charles II.....H. Reeves Smith
James, Duke of York.August MacHugh
Duke of Buckingham.....Addison Pitt
Earl of Rochester.....Hollister Traynor
Jack (Charles) Hart, actor-manager of the King's theater..J. R. Furlong
Strings, an old fiddler, formerly of the King's theater orchestra.....William Herbert
Swallow, His Majesty's Constable.....Edwin Fowler
Buzzard.....Alfred Cahill
Landlord of the Blue Boar Inn.....John Steppling
Officer.....John J. Burke
Lord St. Albans.....George Roberts
Lord Hyde.....P. Wallace
Page.....Lorraine May
Lady Hamilton.....Victoria Addison
Louise, Duchess of Portsmouth.....Emily Rigl
Moll, an organe girl.....Fanchon Campbell
Maid to Nell Gwyn....Bertha Carlisle
Spanish Dancing Girl.....Barbara Clemmet
Nell Gwyn, actress at the King's theater.....Miss Crosman

HENRIETTA CROSMAN,
In "Minstrel Nell," Coming to Lyceum Tuesday and Wednesday.

FIELD'S MINSTRELS.

Big Aggregation Coming to Lyceum Next Week.

It is always a pleasure to announce the coming of Al G. Field's Greater Minstrels. Theatergoers have learned to rely upon the promises of Mr. Field, and the people have come to realize that the Field Minstrels are just a little better than the Field posters, and the show in fact is just a little greater than the words that attempt to portray the merits of the organization.

The Field Minstrels have been making a tour of the United States for twenty years, and are good as old wine; in fact it was this season that Mr. Field celebrated the twentieth anniversary of the organization of his show. He will be at the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday and Saturday afternoon.

His productions always afford genuine entertainment. The show this season is said to eclipse anything he has offered to the public. The melody of its popular songs has preceded it into this city, for its songs have been whistled throughout the country. The refrain from several songs by Reese Prosser and Albert Tint may be frequently heard, being sung by men while at their work. These popular song hits are offered in the first part. It is said that the color scheme and the "effects" of the first part surpass anything of the kind ever presented in minstrelsy, and it is claimed its good humor and melody run over at the side. George Goodale of the Detroit Free Press wrote that its end work is the best that has been presented in a generation. In song and in humor, in execution and effect, in refinement and in art, it is said to be superior to any first part Mr. Field has given to the public. It is a rich, mosaic in black and white and gold and purple. Frolicking cupids and black-faced comedians lend pleasing shades and colors to the picture.

Environed by the lights and the shadows of the forge, and inspired by the melody of the anvil and hammer, "The Quaker City Quartette" is said to give a high class entertainment of song and comedy. This act is relieved by the "Astonishing Avolos," who do a series of swings and somersaults from perpendicular bars. It is said to be the strongest vaudeville act ever presented in this country. "Where the Moonlight Falls" shows a miniature landscape, with a full moon and rippling waters. It furnishes an environment for a company of darkies who gather and do a series of dances. There is a monologue by Billy Clark and a musical "fete" by Nick Glynn. The performance is closed with "While Old Glory Waves," a series of spectacles disclosing the varied career of America in arms.

"HAPPY HOOLIGAN."

"Happy Hooligan" will be at the Lyceum Monday. The piece sparkles with bright lines, and the music has a rhyme and jingle of pretty and catchy songs up to the standard of light opera. The principal characters are in the hands of Frank McNish, John Price, Charles Gramlich, Ruby Raymond, Eva Thatcher, Charles Saunders and Joseph Pettinggill.

A PLEASING ACTRESS.

It will be especially interesting to know that Agnes Ardeck, who assumes the role of Lady Mary Carlisle in "Monsieur Beaucaire," the play which Creston Clarke will present at the Lyceum, April 25 and 26, has had a wide and rather diversified experience during the seven years of her stage career, and while she has appeared to special advantage in a number of successful dramas, her artistic work is more pleasantly remembered on account of her having succeeded Henrietta Crosman as "Mistress Nell," starring under the management of Maurice Campbell. However, her latest achievement before being engaged as leading lady of Mr. Clarke's organization, was the original Molly Wood, supporting Duntam Farnum in "The Virginian" during the long run of that excellent play at the Manhattan theater, New York city.

THE BILL AT THE METROPOLITAN

Tom Marks and Company All Week, With a Change of Bill Each Night.

Tom Marks and his dog, Buster, are now well known in the West, throughout which the Marks Stock company has been playing for the past season. Tom is big, and handsome, and Buster, while not perhaps exactly beautiful, is decidedly picturesque. They are the leading lights of the company, which will be at the Metropolitan next week, presenting an original play every evening. The opening play for Monday is entitled "That Irish Boarder," and is funny from start to finish. The company is No. 1 of the Marks shows now on the road, and is headed by the genial Tom himself. He has strong support, including a number of clever specialties by which long waits between acts are entirely disposed of. The plays to be given are of a different order from the stereotyped Irish drama and are new and original.

Tom Marks himself is one of the best Irish comedians now before the public. A prince of good fellows, he has made a strong following of personal friends in every town which he has visited and has had no difficulty in drawing big houses on his return. He has just closed a return engagement at Winnipeg. His delinations of the son of the Emerald Isle are alive and genuine and breathe the spirit which has made Erin's sons beloved the world over. The old stage Irishman was a caricature, a distortion. Tom Marks is the real thing.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Arnold Daly Compelled To Seek the Rest Cure—New Scheme In View For Lillian Russell—Viola Allen Intends To Put On "Cymbeline."

New York, April 15.—Arnold Daly, the young actor, who leaped into stellar performance by his remarkable success in the G. B. Shaw plays, has been compelled to seek the rest cure at Lakewood, N. J. It was reported that Mr. Daly had completely broken down that week, but investigation shows that he is simply taking a brief vacation in order to recover from the effects of strain he has been under all season in the trying roles of the various plays he has introduced to this country, all being the work of the gifted Irish dramatist. During his stay at Lakewood Mr. Daly was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Gould frequently. He writes from there that he has been vastly benefited by his enforced stay and will return to the boards this week.

New York's great hippodrome, which Thompson and Dundy are building, has been completed, and after many postponements it is now authoritatively announced that the public opening will take place next Wednesday night, when a new and wonderful spectacular entertainment will be introduced to this country.

Cecelia Loftus, who has gone back to vaudeville in the East, has added an imitation of Ethel Barrymore to her repertoire, which is said to be the most striking bit of mimicry Miss Loftus has ever given in this country. Other people she is credited with imitating surprisingly well are Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Julius Steger, Edna May, Fay Templeton, Marie Dressler, Mabel Barrison and Sara Bernhardt. Miss Loftus is not a versatile actress, but after this list it cannot be said that she is not a remarkable mimic.

John Kendrick Bangs has a new scheme in view for Lillian Russell. Encouraged by his success with "Lady Teazle," it is said the humorist intends writing a libretto for Miss Russell next season, which will be based upon Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew." If this project is carried though we will see the beautiful Lillian as the shrewish Katherine in a musical comedy version of the rare old play.

Two permanent summer runs are practically booked for New York, not to mention the roof gardens and the continuous vaudeville houses. The first is "Sergeant Brue," in which Frank Daniels and a strong company has already opened, with every sign of continued favor. The next will be the appearance of Sam Bernard Hattie Williams and Joseph Coyne in "The Rollicking Girl," which begins at the Herald Square next week what is intended to be an indefinite engagement. If the two make good, as their promoters hope, they will run the summer season through.

Nellie Beaumont, who has been with "The Awakening of Pipp" for the past two seasons, has been engaged to play the role originated by Cecelia Loftus in Zangwill's comedy, "The Serio-Comic Governness." The piece is to be altered and made over into a musical comedy.

Viola Allen says: "All my life I have been anxious to play three Shakespearian plays—first, 'Twelfth Night,' which I have done; second, 'The Winter's Tale,' which I am doing; and next, 'Cymbeline,' which I will do. No, not next year, for if my present plans are carried out I expect to appear in a new play, written especially for me. Then the following season I hope to put on 'Cymbeline.' In comparing the three Shakespearean plays it will be observed that I commenced in pure comedy, following with my present play, which combines both comedy and tragedy. 'Cymbeline' is tragedy. So you see I am progressive."

All the advertising matter of "The Heir to the Hoorah," the new comedy which Kirke La Shelle is producing at the Hudson theater, bears, as a sort of a trademark, the picture of a plump, rosy, bald-headed, widely-smiling infant. The reading matter of the bills doesn't say so, but the implication is—or at least an astute Gerry agent so accepted it—that the said infant plays a part in the comedy. So, having absorbed the full strength of the implication, the Gerry man came around to the Hudson theater to deliver friendly but portentious warning. He saw Manager Harry B. Harris of the theater.

"You know you can't put kids of that age on the stage," the Gerry man said warily. "What's the use of making us come up here and stop it opening night?"

"How old does the kid have to be to be beyond the Gerry limit?" demanded Mr. Harris.

"Ten with a permit; 16 without."

"This 'un's 17," placidly replied Mr. Harris.

"What, that kid 17? Stop your kidding," exclaimed the Gerry man pointing to the picture of the cherubic infant; "17 what? Seventeen months?"

"Seventeen years. I'll bet you 100 to 10 on it."

"Where did you get it? Out of the Lilliputian show? Where was it born, Coney Island?"

"It wasn't born at all," placidly remarked Mr. Harris. "It was made in Germany and Beverly Sitgreaves nursed and mothered it till she was 10 years old. She dug it up the other day as a mascot to play the 'Heir.'"

The Gerry man looked pained but doubtful as he filed out behind his shadow.

"There's one thing an American actor can't do well," said a man whose appearance gave every indication that he was a typically hardened New York theatergoer, as he lit a cigarette in the lobby of the Liberty theater the other night during an entr'acte of "The Education of Mr. Pipp.

"What's that?"

"He can't play an English gentleman. He can play any other nationality perfectly, and he can even go so far as to get the English dialect all right, but there's a line of distinction between the Britisher and the Yankee that is too fine for any actor to get. It shows in the Englishman's gait, in his movements and in his inflections, and the only way to get the part of a British swell played right in this country is to import a man for it like this Frederick Courtney, who does the Englishman so well in this play."

"You can have one more guess," laughed his companion. "Fred Courtenay was born and brought up in America and is as good a Yankee as you are."

"You have probably heard of the Southern negro's aversion to a doctor," said Macklyn Arbuckle of "The County Chairman" company, recently. They put them in the class with night doctors, who are supposed to prowl around after dark seeking for subjects, and particularly dark subjects for the dissecting table. Well, after I moved to New York from the South I brought with me a typical old 'mammy' who had all the indelible beliefs of her race against doctors. This old negress, Lucy, was suffering terribly with toothache after we reached New York, and it was a long time before I could persuade her to go to a dentist to have the troublesome molar extracted. She classed dentists with 'night men,' and was frightened out of her wits at the sight of a medico. I finally persuaded her, however, and she went to one of these so-called painless dentists.

"'Did it hurt?' I asked when she came home.

"'Lan' sakes no, chile,' she said. 'I suttinly is glad I went to him. He taken an' hooked them tings onto my tooth, an' he says:

"'Good thing you didn't go to Dr. Myer down stairs. This is the way he pulls teeth.'

"'Then he gives my pore face a pow'ful yank, and I let's out a yell.'

"'Then he says, "reckon you glad that Dr. Jones ain't got hold of you, 'cause dis is the way he pulls teeth."'

"'And then he shows me how Dr. Jones pulls teeth, and he gave me such a jah that I t'ought I was a gwine to die for sho', and I let's out 'nother screech.

"'Now,' he says, 'I'm gwine to 'monstrate my method, and with that gives it just de littl'st twist, an' out she comes. Never hut a bit. I sho' am glad I went to dat painless dentist 'sted of dose other doctahs.'"

Next season George Ade's comedy, "The College Widow," will be played by two companies. The vaudeville performers of today get much larger salaries than they used to in olden times, but that they are as good fun-makers, as ingenious, original and amusing as some of those who have passed from the scene before the era of four-figure contracts, is a subject which admits of very serious doubt. In talking on this subject recently, Harry Buiger, who plays the comic Blue Jay in "Woodland," declared: "I don't believe there is a man on the stage in America today who could approach Harry Kernell in his own peculiar line. He was original off the stage as well as on, and kept everyone around him in a state of continual surprise. One of the most comical things I ever saw occurred one night in the town of Scranton, Pa. The Kernells were playing at one theater and I was at another, and when I got through my turn, at about 10 o'clock, I walked over to their house. It was a second-story theater, and up along a flight of stairs, on a landing, I found Harry at the door himself. When I reached the place there were a half-dozen yokels surrounding him, doing all sorts of stunts; one would whistle three times, another was punching his own chest furiously, a third was standing on one leg, and a fourth one had his thumb in his mouth biting it. I asked Harry what this ourious exhibition meant, and he explained to me that he had no pass-out checks, and that he had required each of these fellows, when he had come out of the door, to perform some kind of a trick to identify himself when he returned. Kernell was enjoying the fun himself immensely, and declared that he was a better manager than Hackler.

Ethel Barrymore, having resumed her tour in "Sunday," is to be given an opportunity before the season closes to play a brief engagement in Ibsen's "Doll's House." Manager Frohman has secured two weeks at the Lyceum theater for Miss Barrymore, and beginning May 1 she will appear there in her important undertaking.

A hearing of the differences between David Belasco and Joseph Brooks relative to a division of the profits of David Warfield's first starring venture came up before Judge Fitzgerald in the New York supreme court last week and served to illustrate some of the syndicate's methods. Belasco testified on the stand that when he endeavored to find time for Warfield as a star in the syndicate theater, A. L. Erlanger of the syndicate insisted that he be given 50 per cent of the attraction or it could not be booked in their theaters. Belasco further testified that he could not see his way out of it, and under the pressure brought to bear submitted to a division of the profits. The suit was for a settlement of that old account, Warfield having afterward bolted with Belasco and refused to play. This has nothing to do with the present Warfield-Belasco success, "The Music Master," which is one of the genuine hits of the present season.

Arthur W. Pinero has written one or two letters to the newspapers recently to advocate a British repertoire theater, but with these exceptions nothing has been heard from the premier dramatist since the painful affair of "A Wife Without a Smile." Mr. Pinero, however, has not been sulking in his tent. He has been hard at work on two new plays. Both of them are now well advanced, though, as usual with Pinero, there is no telling when either will be finished. Of late the author of "Quex" has let the aristocracy severely alone. If one remembers rightly, there was not a single titled person in "Iris." Letchmere and his sitter were almost the only swells in "Letty." The characters in "A Wife Without a Smile" were all of the middle class, and so are those in the more important of Mr. Pinero's two new plays.

In the Theater Magazine for April, James Huneker gives an interesting account of that unhappy half-made Swedish dramatist, August Strindberg, whose works are practically unknown in America, yet who wrote plays that anticipated many of the best known pieces of Ibsen. In the same issue is begun the first of the series of articles entitled "The Stage History of Famous Plays," the writer reviewing the origin of the great masterpieces of our drama and of those players who have been identified with their leading roles. The first play under consideration is "Romeo and Juliet." The interview of the month is with Louis Mann, with obligato by Clara Lipman. The clever dialect comedian relates his tribulations as an actor before success finally smiled upon him. Also in the number is a tribute to the memory of the late Albert M. Palmer, laying stress upon the personal virtues of the man apart from his distinction as one of the most prominent of American theater managers. That series of interesting and instructive articles, describing places famous in the Shakespearean plays as they are today is continued. Venice, the home of Shylock, is the place described. This is illustrated with exceedingly good views of the famous Italian city. There is also some account of Mrs. W. G. Jones, who has been on the stage sixty-six years and who succeeds the late Mrs. Gilbert in the title of "Grand Old Woman of the Stage."

A pretty compliment to "The Bonnie Brier Bush" and the lovable old actor, J. H. Stoddart, was the recent endorsement of a prominent Seattle clergyman, who, in addressing his congreation from the pulpit on the Sunday prior to the production of the Ian MacLaren play in that city a few weeks ago, urgently advised his parishioners to attend one of the performances, stating that such a powerful, impressive and convincing sermon on charity, patience and humility has rarely, if ever, been seen on the stage of this country.

Henry W. Savage's "Prince of Pilsen" has long since earned the title of the perennial musical comedy. Backed by a verdict of favor from every city in these United States, and with the British stamp of approval, too, the tuneful Pixley-Luders piece is now in New York for a return engagement. Since "The Prince's" metropolitan debut at the Broadway theater, this attraction has played twelve engagements in Greater New York—a pretty fair record. The present company contains many of the original cast, which contributed to the phenomenal success; and includes Jess Dandy, Ivar Anderson, Arthur Donaldson, Louise Willis, Jeannete Bageard and J. Francis Sullivan.

"I know another queer yarn about 'Rube' Waddell, if you fellows will stand for it," said Dan Collyer, of "The College Widow" company, to a gathering of the clans in a Broadway "club house" the other day. "The verdant Rube was training at Thomasville, Ga., and it was his first excursion into the southern country. The only oranges he had ever seen were on a fruit stand up in Hazleton, and when we landed down in that country of almost perpetual sunshine, George Edward couldn't understand it at all. Right outside of the hotel there was a big grove filled with the luscious fruit. In the center was a tree heavy with grape fruit. Fred Clark steered the 'yap' out among the trees, and told 'Rube' the proprietor had said for him to eat all he wanted. Well, Waddell punctured the skin of the largest grape fruit, and let a yell out of him like a Comanche. The bitterness of it drew his mouth up like the stem end of a tomato."

It is possible that the drama which Maxim Gorky wrote or rather completed, in the fortress of Peter and Paul, will never be staged, but an interesting account of it has just been published in the St. Petersburg Novosti. The play tells of two friends, one of them a scientist and the other an artist, who dwell in the upper part of a house, while below them, in the basement, a working class family resides. The savant is absorbed in his experiments, studying how to create a "homunculus," and the artist has been working for years at a picture by which he wishes to astonish the whole world. The workmen spend their whole life in toil, varied by bouts of drunkenness and abuse of the dwellers on the upper floor. In a word they live no better than savages. The moral of the work is that the two elements of Russian society can never come to an understanding while there exists between them such difference in education and conditions of life.

The most important of the coming American enterprises in London is that of the Schuberts, who are going to open their new London playhouse on May 5, with alternate performances of grand opera and classic European dramas. To begin with Calve will appear in the opera "Adrienne Lecouvreur," and Signora Duse in the play of the same name, and later on Edouard de Reszke, Bonci and Ancona will be heard.

Italian grand opera will have to be looking to its laurels in America if there be any significance in what New York critics have been saying recently anent Henry W. Savage's productions of grand opera in English. When it came to the performance of Verdi's "Othello," a work that musicians heretofore held could not be given adequately except in Italian, the critics pronounced it a "triumph of American lyric artists." Some of the writers declared it "The best performance Verdi's 'Othello' has ever had in this country." This opera is only one of the numerous successes in Mr. Savage's repertoire of grand operas in English.

About two years ago Maude Adams took up the subject of improving the method of stage lighting—that is, to evolve some plan by which a stage could be so lighted as to make the faces of the players appear more natural. The existing defect, particularly in semi-dark scenes, has been the source of no little annoyance to audiences, as well as to managers and players. Miss Adams has familiarized herself with the science of electricity, and has expended much time and no little money in developing a system of lighting the stage which it is believed will in a short time be universally adopted in theaters. As is well known, the harsh glare from the footlights frequently distorts objects uopn the stage, especially the expressions of the actors. To remedy this as much as possible, Miss Adams has invented a method of creating a more natural light in conjunction with the usual stage lights, by locating in the dome of the theater, immediately over the audience, a cluster of powerful lamps which can be managed from the stage by the electrician, to be used with their full force or subdued as occasion may require. After experimenting with Miss Adams's device for about eighteen months, Mr. Frohman gave it a trial in his Empire theater, New York, where it proved so successful that he proposes equipping all of his New York and London theaters with what has already become known as "the Maude Adams system."

ACCENT AND THE PLAYER

Why German Actors Rarely Succeed In English Plays.

"It is a peculiar fact that actors who have won success on the German stage in this country," said a theater manager, "rarely repeat that experience once they pass over the English speaking stage. I can recall scarcely a single actor who was received with equal favor in English.

"Leo Ditrichstein, who used to act here, has been much more successful as an adapter of German plays than as an actor. He acted a character part in one of the French farces played by Charles Frohman's comedians when that organization was in its prime, but Mr. Ditrichstein has prospered more through keeping fresh in his mind the plots of the German plays he used to act in and turning them into English than in transferring to our stage the traditions of German acting.

"Ellen Terry, who is now the wife of Robert Edeson, met with no particular degree of success as an English speaking actress, though it was thought while she continued to play in German that she was destined to make a name for herself. Old Adolphi, Max Freeman, who has made a reputation as a stage manager but not as an actor; Janisch, who made several attempts to establish himself as an English speaking star—these are only a few of those who have made the attempt and found very little happiness afterward.

"I don't try to explain why these actors make such a different impression, once they act in English. But it is a fact that the German stage today cannot supply us with actors, finished and artistic as these players are on their own stage."

The manager might have added that the German accent is a permanent drawback to success on the English speaking stage. The German accent is that of humor and burlesque—and pretty cheap humor at that. So it is impossible for a serious actress to find acceptance with this drawback against her.

A French or a Polish accent might possibly be tolerated still, but it is a notable fact that there are no conspicuous actors on the stage today with the strong foreign accents once regarded as no impediment to success.

Poles are famous as liguists, but Modjeska at the outset of her career was all but incomprehensible to her audiences. She learned to speak English much more distinctly after a long while on the stage, but an actress with her marked foreign accent would not be accepted now as she was earlier in life, however talented she might be naturally and however skilled as an actress. Jannauschek used to say "Gif me dare tagger" in "Macbeth" and nobody laughed, so great was the admiration of the public for her art. But audiences are more readily affected by externals now.

"If Jannauschek," the manager went on to say, "should appear on the dramatic horizon today, it would be possible for her to appear only in strongly marked character roles in which an accent was not a disadvantage. In classic parts she would never be accepted.

"It is all very well to contrast the present condition of the stage with the so-called 'palmy' days, to the usual disadvantage of the state of affairs existing today. But it seems to me an advance in taste when the public wants to hear its own language spoken properly on the stage.

"Some other causes interfere with the success of German actors when they set out to conquer our audiences. The men never learn to dress in the way English speaking audiences require of leading men, and the women are always lacking in elegance and the degree of smartness that American actresses soon learn."

THE WIT OF BARRYMORE

Bright Sayings At the Height of His Career—His Rapier-Like Thrust At Steele Mackaye—How He "Got Even" With Bernhardt.

While at the apogee of his ability and fame as a leading man, the late Maurice Barrymore was the chief support in a highly romantic play of an actress noted in the profession for explosive outbursts of violent language upon small occasion. In the progress of the play it was the part of Barrymore's business to bestow a protracted osculation upon the lips of the actress.

On the opening night Barrymore, inspired by a sense of mischief, far overstepped the limit in his bestowal of this kiss. He not only deprived it of the remotest semblance of the conventional stage kiss, but kept his lips glued to the actress' for an unconsciously long time, until the first night audience rocked with laughter, the actress' eyes blazing with anger while Barrymore held her in his relentless grasp.

The critics touched up the incident abundantly, generally with harmonious comment.

"Barry, remarked Abe Hummel, who met the actor in Broadway on the following afternoon, "you clung to that caress last night for a deuced long time. What was the idea?"

"I was seeking a reputation at the cannon's mouth," replied Barrymore amiably. "Instead, I lost it. You should have heard her when the curtain fell."

• • •

When Barrymore and the late Steele Mackaye, actor, playwright, manager, got together there was inevitably a clash of rapier-like wit that relegated the other men around the tables to voluntary silence.

One night at a dinner at the Lambs club the versatile Mackaye, who was an excellent actor and a splendid reader, rendered the main scene from a part which he had himself written and played with immense success.

When Mackaye finished the rendition Barrymore seemed to be the most enthusiastic man around the table. He clanked his knife against his plate and shouted:

"Bravo! A hundred times, bravo! Mackaye, you ought to be an actor!"

A dozen or more years ago, when Mme. Sarah Bernhardt was returning to France by way of New York from her Australian tour, she was present at a gay little Sunday night dinner party of well known theatrical folk in a private dining room of a New York hotel.

Along before the wind-up of the evening the divine Sarah, who was more subject to such whims than she is now, has been in later years, began to direct the somewhat cutting shafts of her Gallic wit at Barrymore, who received the barbs with the greatest good nature. He made it a point not to tilt with women unless absolutely driven to it, and, moreover, he used to declare up to the final years of his lucidness that he had never been able in least degree to understand women.

So Barrymore allowed himself to be the butt of the French woman, and made no effort to get back until she sent him some sort of a challenge. Then he made it a point of politeness to tilt with her, and remarked that he had a great mind to knock his, Barrymore's, head off, then and there.

"Robby," blandly remarked Barrymore, "behave. You appear to be burying a lot of dead tonight."

"That's all right," replied the pugnacious actor, his face curving into a foolish grin, "I'll Barrymore."

Barrymore gazed at the man with an expression of the most hopeless disgust for a full half minute, and then he said:

"Even the excuse of drunkenness is no condonation for such an unspeakable lingual profanation."

Whereupon he suddenly darted in, caught the other man around the waist, lifted him into the air as if he had been a paper bag of flour, tossed him face down on a table and spanked him in the old-fashioned way, but with modern enthusiasm, for five minutes, the prone actor making frantic but ineffectual efforts to regain his feet.

When the conquered and chagrined actor was at length permitted to get up he gazed weakly a Barrymore for a bit and then said:

"Maurice Barrymore, I wouldn't have your disposition for the world."

Which was the origin, dating back nearly two decades, of a phrase which has recently been revived and converted into one of slangful meaning.

• • •

Barrymore was once standing on a Broadway corner, waiting for the expected arrival of a friend when a well dressed man of middle age walked up to him and inquired:

"Sir, can you tell me where I can find a branch post office in this neighborhood?"

"Yes," replied Barrymore, with a polite bow—and walked off.

About twenty minutes later the actor returned to the same spot and found the same middle-aged man standing there as if waiting for a car.

"Did you really want to find a branch post office?" inquired Barrymore, going up to the man.

"Yes," was the middle-aged man's reply, accompanied by a polite bow—and he, in turn, deliberately walked off.

• • •

Barrymore's carelessness as to his apparel was so pronounced that it was a genuine grief to his family and friends. His contempt for the matinee idol—which he never admitted himself ever to have been for as much as a minute—was so acute that he took actual pleasure off the stage in showing by the carelessness of his attire that he had no mind to be catalogued with that lot.

He was walking along Broadway one afternoon with a couple of companions, when from the opposite direction approached an actor of note in classical roles who was conspicuous at all times for his nobby exterior.

"Ah, Barry," hum-hawed this actor, coming into speaking distance, "here you are, in a disgraceful suit of clothes, as usual. This one, however, is even more shocking than his predecessors. Wearing it on a bet, old man?"

"Yes," replied Barrymore.

"You must have given the other man long odds, Barry," said the other actor.

"I did," replied Barrymore. "I wagered him that you were not the most mediocre reader of blank verse now alive on the globe, and he proved me wrong, and won."

remainder of the evening, but always when she met him afterward.

Barrymore had a dislike for puns, which was altogether unusual for an Englishman.

A well known leading actor—now in vaudeville—who was always more or less on his muscle when in drink, dropped into the Merton house cafe while Barrymore was there with some friends. He no sooner saw Barrymore than he began to rail at him for wholly imaginary injuries, and to threaten to macerate Barrymore to unrecognizable pulp.

Barrymore, noting his fellow actor's condition, took it all in good part. At length his taunter, who really was an accomplished man with his fists, as he had shown on several occasions when infuriated, strolled over to Barrymore and remarked that he had a great mind to knock his, Barrymore's, head off, then and there.

"Robby," blandly remarked Barrymore, "behave. You appear to be burying a lot of dead tonight."

"That's all right," replied the pugnacious actor, his face curving into a foolish grin, "I'll Barrymore."

NEW YORK THEATERS

Imitation of "The School For Scandal" Breaks Out Afresh In "London Assurance" and "The School For Husbands"—Fun In "A Case of Frenzied Finance."

New York, April 15.—Lady Teazle has reappeared under the alias of Lady Manners, and not in "The School For Scandal," but in "The School For Husbands." She again torments her Sir Peter, now Sir John, but not as before, for this time she is good, he is bad, and her conduct is not that of a heedlessly gay young bride led astray by Sir Joseph Surface, but of a sedate wife who fools Sir Benjamin Backbite—now named Lord Foppington, and not Joseph Surface—by pretending that she will yield to him. Sir John Manners is no such doting old fellow as Sir Peter was, but a drunken libertine, who takes no pains to hide his sprees or his liaisons, and whose affectionate but resolute spouse brings him back to marital loyalty by making him believe that she is going away from it. Earlier this season Lillian Russell surprised us with a success in "Lady Teazle," a musical version of the Sheridan comedy. Now Alice Fischer astonishes us with a triumph in "The School For Husbands," a venture which we regarded as far more hazardous. In theatricals you never can tell beforehand.

You know what a big, frank creature of good humor Alice Fischer is, with no trace of coquetry in her make-up, and so you can understand that she doesn't tease prettily. She doesn't tease at all. She tames the monster by violence much as Petruchio does Katherine, and she is very like a termangant, if not a shrew, when she suddenly resents his insults, smashes every fragile thing in the room and starts off to roue his jealousy by a might-and-main flirtation. "What is sauce for you, the gander," she cries, "shall be sauce for me, the goose," and she proceeds to make the sauce hot as tabasco. So Lady Manners is different from Lady Teazle, and less entrancing, but prodigiously more amusing. I vow, by gad, oddzooks and stab my vitals, as Sheridan would put it.

This play in its audacious imitation of "The School for Scandal" has no counterpart of the pestered, exasperated, maddened Sir Peter Teazle, for the Sir John Manners, who takes his place, is more in danger of delirium tremens than of apoplexy or paralysis, until cured of alcoholism and adultery by his wife, who has put him through the jealousy cure. But Sheridan's group of scandal-mongering women are on hand, bearing the new names of Speckhill, Tattle and Ardesh, and they start the play with a session of fresh tattle, slander and malice in the Sheridan manner. The language is original with Stanislaus Stange, however, and we would be calling him a fool for rushing in where angels might fear to tread but for the fact that his wit and humor don't strike so far below the Sheridan mark as we expected. Moreover, he sets his model of classical comedy aside at the end of the second act, not to be brought forth again till the last act, and between them he has put in two acts of farce in the modern French spirit, although worded in eighteenth century English. And he has introduced as a lover of Marla—taking the place of Charles Surface—an East Indian Prince, as tawny and brawny as any Othello you ever saw, as fierce in his passionate love as the Moor was about Desdemona, but inclined to kiss her to death rather than smother her with a pillow. This dark fellow is played by a Shakespearean actor, Arthur Forrest, with a heavy romanticism meant for burlesque, and therefore he is an insult to Sheridan; but he is also the most amusing thing in the show, except Miss Fischer.

By a curious change a revival of Boucicault's imitation of Sheridan is made simultaneously with the first production of Stange's. "London Assurance" is given by a special springtime company led by Ellis Jeffreys, the English woman who as taken the fashionable town by storm. Again let me remark that in theatricals you never can tell beforehand. Here was an actress well on toward 40 in years, not beautiful, with no trace of genius and no home distinction beyond a fair vogue as a "leading woman." Who could have foreseen that the project of making a "star" of her in America could come to anything but failure? To be sure, she was the wife of the wealthy Herbert Sleath and a sister-in-law of Lord Curzon's brother, but no effort was made to utilize those connections for boom purposes. Ten years ago she had come over as a minor member of John Hare's company, expecting to play a subordinate role in "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith," but she broke an ankle on shipboard, and had to go home without having introduced herself here even as a "walking juvenile." Now she is the Lady Gay Spanker of Boucicault's famous comedy, declaiming the steeplechase rhapsody to the delight of modish audiences; and a suddenly effulgent "star" of considerable magnitude.

The present cast of "London Assurance" is a mixture of imported and native actors, and the American eagle may scream over the fact that our showing of talent beats the English. Although Ellis Jeffreys is a delight, she is too ladylike to be the best of Lady Gays, and our Ida Conquest's Grace Harkaway is the better impersonation. Eben Plympton's Sir Harcourt Courtley, W. H. Thompson's Max Harkaway and Joseph Wheelock's Dolly Spanker score hits for our side, while Ben Webster's Charles Courtley, Murray Carson's Meddle and Herbert Sleath's Cool are misses for the other side. Henry E. Dixey rehearsed for Dazzle, and undoubtedly would have raised our score, but—

In the good old palmy days of the drama, before the stage had been degenerated to its present low level, inebriety was taken as an eccentricity of genius. The elder Booth's popularity wasn't hurt by his frequent appearance when drunk. Even as late as the younger Booth's closing days, when he fell while playing Iago to Salvini's Othello and had to be assisted to his feet by the Italian, the general belief that he was intoxicated didn't seem to damage his professional reputation. The truth was that poor Booth had for many years been temperate with alcohol, and that he drank only a bottle of beer during that performance. His unsteadiness was caused by locomotor ataxia. But there was no excuse for the wabbly condition of Dixey's usually able legs at rehearsals, and Miss Jeffreys insisted that his name be crossed off the role.

It would be interesting if William J. Ferguson would tell how many times he has been drunk in mimicry. Probably he couldn't. Until Mark Kennedy died last year it was neck and neck between him and Ferguson for the deceptive husband and inebriate stakes. Poor Kennedy is no more, but up bobs Ferguson, drunk again, and this time from start to finish. It is a funny idea of Chambers' new farce, "A Case of Frenzied Finance," that a country undertaker comes to a big New York hotel for a quiet, restful booze and gets unwittingly into the whirl of Wall street, making a million dollars by simply laying in the $16,000 bed at the Hotel St. Regis while a strenuous bell boy uses his name on change. And how fully Ferguson does it! It would seem that nothing was left to do as a stage drunkard, and true this actor doesn't vary the old rules a shade, but merely with the old thickness of speech, unsteadiness of movement and bleary lifting of the eyebrows he makes the play a scream of joy while he is on the stage.

Did it ever strike you that the bell boy who serves you in a hotel has feelings much like your own, has a mind perhaps better and has a business push that will end him somewhere on the top of the heap? These things struck Harrie Chambers, and the concussion evidently occurred about the time he had metamorphosed himself into "Kellett Chalmers, dramatist," so he put them into a play. The farce is called "A Case of Frenzied Finance," although Mr. Chambers deserves the benefit of the doubt caused by references in the dialogue that suggest "The Spirit of the Life," as probably the original title. Anyway, it's all about a bell boy who overhears Wall street magnates giving subrosa tips in the bar of the Van Billion hotel, seizes the first J. W. Johnson in sight as the J. W. Johnson who is a "Copper King," and while that worthy is intoxicated, doffs his bell boy uniform and makes a clear million as a financial secretary. That's the sort of bell boy who indicates at the start his aptitude for frenzied finance by selling "fake" souvenirs to rubber-neck visitors at the gaudy Van Billion hotel. These sightseers are "types." That is made manifest by the ill-fitting shirt waist of one, and a broad white elastic that unpicturesquely holds on the hat of another. They are the wife and daughter of the J. W. Johnson who is the "Copper Underwriter" and "Stinkers," and is hustled into the place, for farce reasons, of the rich Johnson. He, too, has a daughter who indicates her wealth and refinement by wearing pink satin and gold spangles in the morning.

Now, Mr. Chambers is related to the real Hotel St. Regis "under the following extraordinary circumstances:" His wife is Katherine Grarew when she writes of lurid experiences for some Sunday newspapers. When the latest and extraordinary sumptuous New York hostelry was opened she hastened to occupy its best advertised as the $50,000, and wrote fulsomely of her dreams therein. Mr. Chalmers-Chambers accompanied her, and during the evening an Italian named Conte permitted himself to be announced erroneously as "Count." This experience, and the mental attitude back of it, is interesting in more than the authority it gives to representation in the farce of the bridal suite—that of the Van Billion, with a bed appraised moderately at $16,000 adjacent but not visible. The drawing room of the suite—called "sweet" in subtle travesty upon American pronunciation—is circular, and is hung in rose Du Barry brocade, with pillars of white between, and on which hangs a pure white telephone. Here the progress of the plot allows a representation of a luncheon in

HAPPENINGS IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THEY ARE OFF

First Games In the Two Major Leagues Are Played.

Duluth Scrub Team Playing Practice Games In Minneapolis.

With the opening games of the National and American league schedules played yesterday, another baseball season is fairly launched.

Last year was an eminently successful one for both major leagues, and for the majority of the minor organizations and this year promises to be even more so. Interest in the national game was never greater than it is today, and the competition for players was never keener.

The features of last season's play was the greatly increased importance of the pitcher to the team, and this year the twirlers are likely to prove even more effective in cutting down the batting averages of the players. Only the veteran "stickers" were able to keep above the 300 mark last year, and with the array of pitchers they will be called upon to face this season the chances are not bright for an increase in the number.

The famous "spit" ball has been added to the list of curves used by the leading pitchers, and it is bound to cut a big figure in the game this summer.

On paper last year's champions in both leagues look like winners again. Their line-up is for the most part unbroken and it is up to the tail-enders to make some big improvements if they wish to be in at the finish.

The New York Nationals still have their old stand-bys Matthewson and McGinnity, and with Ames, Taylor, Wiltse, Lindeman and Elliott to fall back on, have a twirling staff that will be hard to beat. For catchers they have Bowerman, Bresnahan and Marshall, and in the infield McGann, Gilbert, Dahlen, Devlin, Neal, Strang and Dunn. The outfield, with Mertes, Donlin, Browne and Graham is intact.

Chicago has its old pitchers back and a few new ones. The list includes Lundgren, Mitchell, Weimar, Wicker, Brown, Briggs, Grothe, Ruelbach and Pennell.

The Pirates have at least nine pitchers of promise, including Phillipi, Leever, Flaherty, Lynch, Lindaman, Goodwin, Holmes, Case and Robertaille.

Cincinnati has added Charlie Chech of the champion St. Paul team to its list of twirlers, and has in addition Harper, Ewing and Han, three of last year's stars, and Hochstetter, Overall, Feeney, Farrell and Walker.

Against such aggregations of pitchers as these the tail-enders will have a hard time breaking into the first division.

In the American league the champion Boston team still has its great quartet of twirlers, Dineen, Young, Gibson and Tannehill, and in addition has added "Perry" Sessions, formerly of the Grand Forks team and later of St. Paul, Winter, O'Brien, Olmstead, Abbott, Josselyn, Miller and Morton.

The New York Americans have their five principal twirlers, Chesbro, Powell, Orth, Griffith and Clarkson and about a dozen new men who are being tried out.

Cleveland still has Joss, Bernhard, More, Donahue, Rhoades and Hess, and some good new material.

Chicago retains Altrock, Owen, Patterson, Smith, Walsh and White, and has added some promising youngsters.

Here again the first division teams look very strong, especially as the tail-enders have apparently not strengthened their teams greatly over last year.

But baseball is equalled only by horse-racing and politics for uncertainty, and the stars of last year may find themselves giving way to a bunch of youngsters drafted from a minor league. Sickness and accidents must also be counted on as contingencies which may figure in the race.

Meanwhile the Duluth team is beginning to be heard from in Minneapolis. Artie O'Dea is in the Flour City signing new men and waiting for the players to report. He has assembled those who are already in Minneapolis and, filling in with subs, has played one or two games with the university students with varying luck. Nothing can be learned of the team from the games, as only a few of the regular men are in the line-up. All of the players will have reported by April 25, and after a few games with Minneapolis teams will go to the Copper Country for a series of eight games with teams from that league. The team will pass through Duluth on its way to St. Cloud, where the season will be opened on May 15.

The schedule has not yet been published, Manager Van Praagh is in Winnipeg at the present time, and on his return the schedule will doubtless be made public by the league officials.

"Si" Bennett, the Duluth boy who played for a time with the White Sox last season, has gone to Marshalltown, Iowa, where he will play in the Iowa state league this summer.

A copy of an official baseball guide, edited by John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Nationals, and published by Richard K. Fox of the Police Gazette, has been received by The Herald. It contains a special chapter on the "spit" ball, and some excellent photographs of the best known stars in action.

WHAT DULUTH FANS WILL SOON BE WATCHING: CATCHING A FOUL.

BREAKDOWN OF M'GOVERN

Terry Has Gone South to Take a Long Rest.

Everybody in the fighting game was sorry to hear the news of Terry McGovern's breakdown, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. McGovern announced on Thursday last that he would quit the stage and start at once for the South to take a long rest. Life on the road has been too strenuous for the little fighter, and he has been compelled to seek recreation in hopes of building up his shattered constitution. At the present writing it is impossible to say whether or not Terry will ever return to the ring, but the chances are that he will give up the game and take life easy.

For several months McGovern's friends have been worried over his health, but with his customary grit and determination Terry stuck to his job on the stage and would not give up until the doctors scared him into taking a rest.

Ever since the opening of the theatrical season McGovern has been out on the road with one of Sullivan, Harris and Woods productions, called "For Fame and Fortune." The play is really a picture of Terry's life from a newsboy to a champion, and the little boxer was all wrapped up in his part. His wife appeared on the stage with him, and they have been playing with great success everywhere, so it was not due to any financial reverses that Terry's nervous system was shattered. Perhaps a good long rest will bring the game Brooklyn lad back to his old time health and strength.

It is not going too far to say that McGovern hardly has an equal in the popularity line. He always has a good word for the kids and his easy going manner made him popular with all classes of sporting men. He certainly was a "Terrible Turk" in his day and, though he may never again don a glove, his glories of the past will forever remain fresh in the memory of the American public. McGovern has no better friend on earth than Sam Harris, his manager, and who is part owner of the company in which Terry has been showing. Sam has done Terry many a good turn and put him in line to make big money in other ways than following pugilism. True Terry has been a great money winner for Harris, but there is not another instance in the world of boxing where a man took hold of a young fighter and made a champion out of him, then, after earning a fortune in the boxing game, turned around and gave the boxer an equal chance to share his fortune in other ventures. Terry is well fixed financially and can retire from public life whenever he feels like it. The sincere wish of his host of friends is that he will be with us for years to come.

CANADIANS WANT THE CUP

Racer Secretly Built During the Winter at Hamilton.

Detroit, Mich., April 15.—It seems that under cover the Canadians have been constructing a third Canada's cup defender at Hamilton, and that they are in deadly earnest in their attempt to lift the cup is certain, according to Sail and Sweep, the local yachting magazine.

Mr. J. H. Fearnside, a yachtsman well known to Detroit yachtsmen, ordered the boat secretly several months ago. Mr. Fearnside several years ago built Hamilton, for the Canada's cup races at the time that Cadillac defended the cup. She was beaten in the trial races by Invader. Last year she was owned in Cleveland under the name of White Ribbon. This year he ordered another defender from William Johnson of Hamilton, and work has been progressing rapidly ever since, so that the boat will be ready in a few weeks.

Toronto yachtsmen fear that the Hamilton craft, which will be called Hamilton II., will give the two boats they are building a hard race.

Hamilton II. is 29 feet 9 inches water line, and has an over-all length of 50 feet 6 inches.

She will be timbered throughout with Indiana white oak, and is very strongly tide with white oak floors and iron bolts at every frame.

The frame was put together without the use of a piece of iron. The designer has an ingenious way of dove-tailing the frames into the backbone, and with the cross-tying of the floor frames, the boat has an excellent skeleton. She is being planked to the waterline with Michigan white pine, and above she will be planked with British Columbia cedar, specially selected.

The rig will be jib and mainsail, the latter being about 75 per cent of the whole area. She will spread the limit allowed which is only 1,550 square feet. Hamilton I. had a spread of 1,630 feet.

The dimensions are:
Waterline length, 29.9 feet.
Over-all length, 50.6 feet.
Beam, 10 feet 9 inches.
Ballast, 2 tons.
Draught (estimated,) 6 feet, 11¾ inches.
Sail area, 1,550 square feet—main-sail about 1,02 feet, and jib about 388 feet.
Midship section, 22.32 feet.

For a 30-foot craft the ovrehangings are rather long, but it was necessary for easy entrance and counter, as the rules make a deep midship section necessary. Her body is twice as deep as that of the celebrated Invader, although the waterline is practically the same. The new boat will be seven feet longer than her namesake, Hamilton I.

WISCONSIN TO ENTER

Minnesota's Relay Event at Minneapolis May 6.

Madison, Wis., April 15.—Pleased by the great indoor work of his relay quartermilers, Coach Jim Temple will enter his men in the Minnesota athletic carnival on Northrop field May 6.

Woodward, who made 0:51 2-5 the best trial on the gymnasium track; Rideout, winner in the event at the far western meet last June for Colorado; Waller, who shattered the Central A. A. U. indoor record; Hasbrouck of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., claimed to have negotiated the distance in 0.51 1-5; Meyers, interscholastic winner in 0:53; Montgomery, the Omaha boy; Schophoester, good for 0:54, and Stevens, a sprinter well fitted for the distance, are the most likely candidates for the team.

Outside of the relay team, the track prospects at Wisconsin are anything but promising. Star after star has left college or fallen under the ban of the faculty. First, Dulaney, the high jumper, left college, and was soon followed by Kiesel, the middle distance runner.

During the last week the faculty has barred Fletcher, the giant weight thrower. It was stated today that Johnson, last years' hammer thrower, would not be seen in a suit this season on account of class work.

A report has it that Daniels, who starred for Wisconsin three years ago, would return to the fold.

Wisconsin baseball prospects received a bad jar and severe loss when it became known that "Big Perry," guardian of second base and premier slugger on the nine, had left college to accept a lucrative position with some lumbering interest in the northern part of the state. Coach Pierce is bemoaning his loss and appears to be in the dumps over the matter. Perry was a member of the football squad for the last two years.

HERMIS LEADS LIST.

Stalwart and Beldame Follow In Excelsior Weights.

New York, April 15.—The weights for the Excelsior handicap, to be run on the opening day of the spring meeting of the Metropolitan club, at Jamaica, on April 25, are as follows: Hermis, 129; Stalwart, 125; Beldame, 123; McChesney, 120; Goldsmith, 119; Rapid Water, 119; Major Daingerfield, 115; Floral King, 114; Rose Ben, 111; Orthodox, 110; Burleigh, 109; Ormonde's Right, 108; Montreson, 107; Leonidas, 107; St. Valentine, 105; Hazelwood, 105; Duke of Kendal, 104; Wild Mint, 103; Little Em, 103; Oxford, 102; Grenade, 102; Buttons, 102; Witful, 102; Ocean Tide, 101; Sydney C. Love, 100; Canteen, 100; Lord Badge, 100; Red Knight, 100; Martimas, 99; Wontan, 98; Incubator, 98; Cairngorn, 98; Crown Prince, 98; Trapper, 97; Merry Park, 95; Chieftain, 95; Sinister, 94; Jim Beatty, 94; Ostrich, 93; Santa Catalina, 93; Witch Hazel, 92; Pallette, 90; Bohemia, 90; Sir Briller, 90.

SEASON IS OPEN

Trout May Now Be Taken From Minnesota Rivers.

North Shore Streams In Good Condition For Fishing.

It is now lawful to take trout from any of the streams in Minnesota or Wisconsin, or to spear pickerel, redhorse, suckers, carp or bullheads.

The trout season opened this morning, to remain open until Sept. 1. The open season on the other fish will close May 1, to remain closed for twenty-nine days.

Reports from the streams in this part of the state indicate that the best of luck may be anticipated by the sportsmen on the opening of the season. Less snow than usual fell during the last winter, and the spring breakup was early. Last year but few anglers attempted to go out during the first two weeks of the season, but this year the north shore streams are in comparatively good condition, and there should be good fishing for the opening days.

A large number of anglers went out on the Iron Range trains today, and more will follow tomorrow to take advantage of the first few days of the season, when the fish are ready to rise at any bait.

The latest novelty in flies is christened the "Coaxer," and it is claimed to be a novel idea in artificial lores. The coaxer bears some faint resemblance to a miniature, headless rooster, and is supposed to possess a mysterious fascination for fish. The body is of cork, painted white, a pair of red felt wings projecting from the sides and a red feather tail, concealing a hook. This, the maker claims, will, when cast upon the bosom of the bass-inhabited water, arouse in the fish an appetite so ravenous that they will frequently leap from the water in their eagerness to seize it. Without undertaking to explain why, fishermen who have used it say that it is remarkably attractive.

For the benefit of the anglers who do not happen to have a copy of the game laws in their possession, the following extracts are given:

Trout, excepting Lake Trout—Open season, April 15 to Sept. 1.

Black, Gray or Oswego Bass—Open season, May 29 to March 1.

Herring—Any variety. Sept. 1 to April 1.

Pike, Muscallonge, Whitefish, Crappies, Perch, Sunfish, Sturgeon, Lake Trout, Catfish, or any variety of fish—Open season, May 1 to March 1; excepting that pickerel, suckers, bullheads, redhorse and carp may be speared and had in possession, March 15 to May 1.

Sale of bass and trout prohibited.

Fish less than six inches loug, excepting minnows for bait, cannot be taken.

Lake trout or whitefish, less than two pounds undressed weight, and wall-eyed pike (pike perch), less than one pound undressed weight, cannot be taken.

Unlawful to use explosives, medicated bait, poison or traps in fishing.

Unlawful to construct a building or inclosure concealing a person fishing on ice in waters of the state.

Unlawful to catch more than fifty fish in one day, excepting in Mississippi river and international waters, with net.

Non-resident may take fifty pounds of fish with him out of the state.

THE YALE CREWS.

The Squad Cut Down to Twenty Men.

New Haven, April 15.—The Yale crew squad has just been cut down to twenty men, the last reduction which will be made till just before the oarsmen go to New London.

Coach John A. Kennedy and Capt. Dick Whittier plan to keep the oarsmen rowing as they are now, two varsity eights racing each other practically daily, and the other four members of the squad rowing in a four-oared shell, their members being drawn upon to supply any vacancy in the varsity or second eight in case any of the regular members is sick or called away for a day. Plenty of racing is planned as the practice for the oarsmen. They will chase each other down the two-mile course on the Quinnopaic river several times a week, and two or three times before they go to London they will get over the four-mile course laid out on the harbor. It is only a week since the last of the floating ice left the harbor and it has been possible for the oarsmen to launch their light shell, quitting the pair-oar shells and the heavier barges for the season. Rough water is expected most of the time during April, and it is not likely that much rowing will be possible on the harbor, the crews sticking to the Quinnipiac river till about May 1. Whenever there is a chance to get out beyond the Tomlinson drawbridge into the open harbor for long rows on a calm afternoon the advantage will be seized by Messrs. Kennedy and Whittier. No two-mile spins have yet been taken, but the races of this length will be tried the coming week.

The twenty oarsmen on the varsity squad are distributed as follows at present:

Varsity—Stroke, Whitney; No. 7, Morse; No. 6, Capt. Whittier; No. 5, Chase; No. 4, Scott; No. 3, Kineon; No. 2, Daly; bow, Weeks; coxswain, Kruttschnitt.

Second eight—Boulton, stroke; No. 7, Low; No. 5, Hopplin; No. 5, Bloomer; No. 4; Bouscaren; No. 3, Williams, No. 2, Ortmayer; bow, Blair, and coxswain, Husted.

Four-oared crew—Stroke, Defrees; No. 3, Gregory; No. 2, Harris, and bow, Atkins.

The second eight is composed largely of the freshmen eight of last year. This will be sent against the Annapolis eight May 6 on the Severn.

TROTTING STAKES.

Kentucky Association Issues Its Schedule For Season.

Lexington, Ky., April 15.—Secretary H. W. Wilson of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' association has announced the list of stakes, to close June 1, which will be contested for at the thirty-third annual meeting of the association in October. Following is the list:

Transylvania, $5,000, for 2:12 starters, to be named Sept. 11.

McDowell, for $3,000, for 2:00 trotters.

Tennessee, for $3,000, for 2:08 pacers, starters to be named Sept. 11.

Walnut Hill cup, $3,000, for 2:15 trotters.

Stoll, $2,000, for 2:19 trotters.

Johnston, $2,000, for 2:24 trotters.

West, $2,000, for 2:29 trotters.

Kentucky, $2,000, for 3-year-old trotters.

Wilson, $2,000, for 2:20 pacers.

The Kentucky futurity, payments in which are also due June 1, raises the money offered in the June stakes to $48,000. The purse program to close in September brings the amount to $80,000. The June closing events will be best three in five heats, and hopeless pacers will be allowed to enter.

BENEFITS BOTH

Boat and Yacht Clubs Both Prospering Since Separation.

Greatly Increased Interest Taken In Aquatic Sports This Year.

Instead of weakening both clubs and causing a decline in the interest in aquatic sports in Duluth as might have been expected, the separation of the Duluth Boat club and Duluth Yacht club has apparently acted in just the opposite manner, and both clubs are booming as never before in their history..

There is room for both organizations and they will not interfere with each other, but they will be of benefit to each other, by increasing the general interest in all kinds of water sports.

Before the separation the combined clubs had a membership of about 250, which barely sufficed to support the organization and pay the annual installments on the club house.

Since the separation the Yacht club has acquired a membership of 180 and the boat club has added over eighty new members bringing its membership up to 325.

The membership of each club will be ample to pay all expenses, wipe off a goodly amount of indebtedness each year, and allow for a snug sum to be laid aside as surplus toward future expenditures in the way of new equipment.

The members of both clubs are congratulating themselves on the showing that has been made and the outlook for the coming year, and they will work together most harmoniously in the interests of good sport and fellowship.

The work on the new boat house of the Yacht club is making good progress and it will be ready for occupancy by the time the members are ready to use it.

Plans are under way for a series of weekly races similar to those held last season.

Candidates for the Boat club crews are hard at work in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium getting ready for the spring training in the shells.

The annual meeting of the club held last Tuesday evening, was the most enthusiastic in its history. With the prospect of a trainer, several new shells and many new candidates for the crew, the crew the chances for a winning crew were never better. All that is necessary to get together a crew capable of meeting St. Paul, Minneapolis or Winnipeg, is interest in the racing game and that does not appear to be lacking.

The club house will be opened next week for those who care to make use of it, but there are not likely to be many members freuentinqg it until the weather gets warmer.

NEW WORLD'S DISCUS MARK

John Garrels Beats Record Nearly Four Feet.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 15.—All Michigan's practice discus throwing records went to smash Tuesday afternoon when John Garrels beat the world's discus throw nearly four feet with a throw of 131 feet, 4 inches. The best part of Garrels' wonderful work was its consistency. Besides this throw, and two more estimated at about 130 feet, two other throws actually measured, showed records of 127 feet and 124 feet respectively. Garrels, as a freshman last year, had a consistent record of only about 120 feet. But he was only 18 years old then, and his improvement this spring is regarded as no freak of luck, but the natural development of a year's training in both football and track work. It was practically the first discus throwing Garrels has done this year.

Michigan has added a sixth athletic organization to her famous teams namely a gymnastic team. In the last five years Michigan has won the majority of championship in track, football, tennis, golf and baseball, and the new team was organized, out of the great number of gymnasts that has always existed in Michigan's immense gymnasium, but who have never competed with other colleges, for the express purpose of entering the Western competitive exhibitions. The athletic association has given permission to the gymn team to compete for the "M" insignia of all winning Michigan teams.

Excursion Tickets to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

On sale April 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14 via "The Northwestern Line," excursion tickets to San Francisco and Los Angeles and return at $57.80. Tickets good going via Omaha or Kansas City, returning same route, or going via one Missouri river gateway and returning via the reverse.

Going via Omaha or Kansas City and returning through Portland, Or., the rate will be $70.40. Final limit for return 90 days from date of sale. City Ticket Office, 302 West Superior street.

Race For Supremacy.

It is interesting to watch the race for supremacy among Minneapolis-St. Paul-Chicago trains. First place is securely held by the Pioneer Limited and the second place by the Fast Mail. Both trains are entirely owned by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. There are three other fast trains via this line from the Twin Cities to Chicago every day, and there is no extra fare to ride on them. Address W. B. Dixon, northwestern passenger agent, St. Paul, for further particulars, lowest rates, etc.

STRATEGY BOARD

Two Latest Moves an Even Break, Says Tim Murnane.

Ball Players Are Plentiful and Great Managers Scarce.

New Orleans, April 15.—The two latest moves by the board of strategy was an even break. The first was a play by the would-be handlers of the Eastern league to make it unpleasant for President P. T. Powers, and, perhaps, cause him to offer his resignation. The other play was made in bringing President Brice of the Columbus club to the front as the champion of the cause. Mr. Powers has no idea of resigning, but instead will buckle on his armor and go to work as he should have done early last winter. As for Mr. Brice it's a case of using the salve on a very deep wound. The Columbus man is highly respected by all who know him, and had he been considered at the go off much that is lost to the minors would have been a walkover. But until very late Mr. Brice was considered a rank outsider, and keenly felt his position. I well remember stopping off at Columbus on my way back from the Cincinnati meeting last January, and having a very interesting chat with Mr. Brice and his partner in the Neil House. He was very anxious to know what they had done at the Laughery club, and added: "Well, Columbus will find a place in some league, for we are doing business." Mr. Brice said the scheme of the Cleveland papers, in trying to mix things up for the minors, was a fine piece of work, and he laughed heartily over the cleverness of the writer, Ed Barnard. This was the article that got Messrs. Griffith and his people all worked up and in shape to declare war.

The board of strategy must be putting the salve on very thin, when they have decided to work as far as Columbus. Mr. Brice will have all he can do to look out for his end of the game without now coming out as a leader while others sit back for a little rest, having met a stone wall of opposition. While at Columbus I defended one or two members of the national board by saying they never acted arbitrarily. "Ah, but that is one of their strong points," said Brice. "They never seem to be interested, but they have others scheming and doing the work." I am at a loss to know how Mr. Brice came to the front as a worker unless it was by the same methods he spoke about when I last saw him. Brice is safe whatever stand he takes, however, but the story of "Old Dog Tray" comes strongly to one's mind.

I found the clubs of the South Atlantic league of Macon and Savannah very strong for minor league organizations. At Jacksonville the club had very strong backing, but I had no chance to see the youngsters work, as Boston and Cincinnati came together for three games at that place, ignoring the youngsters. I learned after the series from one of the officers that the local club would have to be considered hereafter, as Cincinnati was altogether too selfish. I found the backers of the clubs of this thriving league all dead set against war talk with the big leagues, or in any way disturbing the present smooth surface. I also was surprised when I arrived at New Orleans to learn that Messrs. Griffith and Tip O'Neill, the war commissioners, had skipped this place on their way back from the coast, although there was several telegrams awaiting the gentleman from Jersey City. Several baseball writers of this place told me that Judge Kavanaugh has the full confidence of the people of the South, and with the owners of the clubs more than any one else.

One writer added: "And when it comes to a fight we will back the judge against any one to the limit." The judge knows the South and baseball well, and will not be pulled into some hatched-up scheme for the personal benefit of three or four schemers."

The strategy board made a big mistake in wholly ignoring the smaller leagues. The little fellows stood strong until it was too evident they were being used as tools. Then it was about time to wake up and figure this thing out for themselves.

An outbreak by the Class A leagues will simply clear things up after one or two clean knock-outs, which are dead sure to come, for the history of baseball teaches that people are never satisfied, and the under dog is ever bound to push the fellow on top over the ladder. While the cunning ball player says not a word but enjoys anything like martial music while unsigned.

I saw at least six players in the clubs of Macon and Savannah ripe enough at this moment for the major league. Then why worry about ball players? The woods are full of them and great managers are as scarce as ever.

Capt. Collins is getting his champion Boston team into splendid form in his own quiet way. He never forces the players, but sees that they keep going all the time and never shirk a practice stunt.

The three games with Cincinnati at Jacksonville drew out fine crowds. Kelley's boys were the prime favorites before the meeting, but the superior ball playing of the champions soon won the Boston boys plenty of friends. It was the first time that the Cincinnati scribes had a chance to see the champions at work, and while four of the best men—Young, Dineen, Criger and Freeman—were absent, the other players agreeably surprised the scribes, especially the infield, with classical playing.

Cincinnati looked well trained, but failed to sift sand when jig music was called for. It might have been that the champions were so fast that ordinary work looked tame; however, Cincinnati looked shy of winning form.

They have picked up one great pitcher in Overall, and when this young giant is on the rubber, Cincinnati has an even break for any game. He is the most promising pitcher I have seen in years, being over six feet in height, with a fine loose swing, great reach, speed, curves and a cool head. He is a ringer for Cy Young while with the Cleveland club ten years ago. Joe Kelley has a team that will play in streaks—at times clipping off the miles on record time, then falling off. He needs a few more fighting players, boys who will bat on the road as well as at home.

I saw the Boston league boys perform at Savannah and they looked good for a light second division team. The Southern team tore the earth up with Tenney's boys the next day, showing the quality of ball players in this little Southern league.

Never was Cy Young and William Dineen in as good form in the spring as at the present time, which means much for the champions' success. The champions are still carrying twenty-five men, but this number will be carved down to at least twenty before the team reaches East to open the season next Friday. McGovern, a catcher; Josslyn and Olmstead, pitchers, and Grimshaw, a first base and outfielder, will be found in major league company, as they are topnotch ball players and willing workers.

Big Crowds Witness First Games In Big League Series.

Record-Breaking Attendance at New York-Boston Game.

The major league season started off yesterday with opening games in seven cities of the two big leagues.

Big crowds attended the games, the New York crowd proving to be a record-breaker. Over 40,000 people crowded into the grounds to witness the opening performance of the Giants, and their favorites, with McGinnity in the box, trimmed Boston to the entire satisfaction of the fans.

A snow storm at Cleveland prevented the game between Cleveland and Detroit, but all of the other games were pulled off as scheduled.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

NEW YORK, 19; BOSTON, 1.

New York, April 15.—In the presence of a record-breaking attendance, the turnstile showing that over 40,000 persons had visited the grounds, the National league champions easily defeated the visiting Boston team by a score of 10 to 1 at the Polo grounds yesterday. Prior to the game the two teams participated in a parade through the city and when they returned to the grounds they were greeted with tumultuous cheers. Many floral pieces were presented to Manager McGraw and the individual members of the New York team, all of whom took part in the hoisting of the championship pennant. The game was rather one-sided as McGinnity had perfect control, while Wilhelm and Young were hit pretty freely. Donlin got the credit of making the first home run of the local season and the star fielding play of the game was a one-handed catch of a low drive from Tenney's bat by Dahlen. Scores:

	R.	H.	E.
New York .....2 0 2 3 0 2 0 0 x—10	14	1
Boston .....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0—1	2	3

Batteries—McGinnity and Bresnahan; Young, Wilhelm, and Needham. Umpires—Johnstone and Emslie.

CHICAGO, 6; ST. LOUIS, 1.

St. Louis, April 15.—Before a crowd of 2,500 shivering fans the Chicago team defeated St. Louis in the opening game of the season by a score of 6 to 1. Brilliant pitching by Lundgren held the St. Louis club at bay. For eight innings he held the locals for one hit. In the ninth St. Louis touched him up for three hits, including a three-bagger by Farrell. A double play by Dunleavy and Warner in the second inning was the feature of the game. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
St. Louis .....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 1—1	4	3
Chicago .....0 0 1 0 0 0 1 0 1—3	8	1

Batteries—McFarland and Warner; Lundgren and Kling. Umpire—O'Day.

PITTSBURG, 9; CINCINNATI, 4.

Cincinnati, April 15.—Cincinnati started off well in the opening game of the season, but in the fifth and sixth innings Harper weakened, allowing the Pittsburg's to secure a lead which could not be overcome. The attendance was the largest ever seen at a local opening, 15,118 people being present. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Cincinnati .....0 2 0 2 0 0 0 0 0—4	9	2
Pittsburg .....0 0 0 0 2 6 0 0 1—9	12	4

Batteries—Chech, Harper and Schlei; Flaherty and Peltz. Umpire—Klem.

PHILADELPHIA, 12; BROOKLYN, 8.

Brooklyn, April 15.—The Philadelphia National league team opened the season at Washington park yesterday, and beat the locals by a score of 12 to 8. The game throughout was fast and snappy, but the visitors were more lively around the bases and bunched their hits to good advantage. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Brooklyn .....1 0 3 0 1 0 0 0 3—8	10	1
Philadelphia .....0 0 0 0 6 2 0 4—12	11	1

Batteries—Scanlon, Jones and Ritter; Pittinger, Donlin. Umpire—Bauswine. Attendance, 10,000.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

PHILADELPHIA, 3; BOSTON, 2.

Philadelphia, April 15.—The American league season opened here yesterday with a victory for the home club, Boston being defeated by the score of 3 to 2. Owing to the crowd, who overflowed into the field, a ground rule was necessary. The usual flag raising function was participated in by both teams and the first ball thrown out by Mayor Weaver. Young and Bender were the opposing pitchers and the latter up to the last inning was invincible. Boston had not scored a run and had made but two hits when in the ninth Bender weakened. He allowed two doubles and gave four base on balls, forcing in a run. With three men on bases he struck the last man out and saved the game. Monte Cross was struck by a ball which he tried to bunt and retired from the game. President Johnson was a spectator. Attendance, 15,211. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Philadelphia .....0 1 0 0 1 0 1 0 x—3	10	1

Batteries—Bender and Powers; Young and Farrell. Umpire—O'Laughlin.

NEW YORK, 4; WASHINGTON, 2.

Washington, April 15.—New York and Washington opened the American league baseball season here yesterday. The local team lost principally because of Chesbro's pitching. The visiting team's "spit ball" artist had Washington completely at his mercy, especially when hits meant runs. In the eighth inning he retired the side on strikeouts, and in the ninth, by his excellent control of the ball, checked what seemed to be a batting rally. Patten pitched good ball, but had one bad inning in which the game was lost. In the opening inning an error, single and sacrifice followed by Williams' home run sent three men across the plate. Score:

	R	H	E
Washington .....0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 1—2	5	4
New York .....3 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 —4	8	3

Batteries—Patten and Kitredge; Chesbro and Kleinow. Umpire—Connolly. Attendance, 6,000.

ST. LOUIS, 2; CHICAGO, 1.

Chicago, April 15.—The opening of the American league baseball season in Chicago yesterday resulted in a victory for the St. Louis club, which defeated Chicago, 2 to 1. Pitcher Howell's work was a feature. Score:

St. Louis .....0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0—2	7	2

Batteries—Smith and McFarland; Howell and Sugden. Umpire—Sheridan. Attendance, 8,654.

FIREMAN WINS

Martin Johnson Throws Columbus Danielson Twice In Succession.

Wrestling Was Characterized By Fast and Furious Work.

Martin Johnson, the Duluth fireman, won the wrestling match from Columbus Danielson of Medford, Wis., at the Armory last night in two straight throws. The match was for $100 a side and the gate receipts.

Nearly 400 people witnessed the exhibition, which was fast and furious from start to finish, Johnson being the most aggressive and showing the most agility. Danielson pulled himself out of several tight places by main strength alone and, while the sentiment was plainly in favor of the Duluth man, Danielson's feats were heartily applauded.

The match was originally made for the best three out of five throws, catch-as-catch can, strangle hold barred, but as the preliminary wrestling match had been prolonged to a late hour both principals of the big match agreed to change the conditions to the best out of three falls.

Both men showed up in fine form, Johnson weighing in at 168 pounds and a few pounds heavier than Danielson. Johnson won the first bout in 33 minutes and 35 seconds, both men appearing quite tired at the close. After a rest of ten minutes Danielson started in with a rush to floor his opponent and the second bout was very exciting from the spectators' standpoint. For about twelve minutes the honors were even, first one and then the other coming to the top, but Johnson's quickness won the day, and he caught Danielson in a turning act and pinned both shoulders to the mat. The time was 15 minutes and 30 seconds.

At the conclusion of the match both men were nearly exhausted, Danielson immediately challenged Johnson for another match for any amount of money the latter wishes to put up. The match was refereed by Martin Olson of Proctorknott.

The preliminary bout between Joseph DeChambeau of West Duluth and P. Harris of Superior was declared off, after the contestants had wrestled an hour on the second bout without either getting a fall. Harris won the first bout in 14 minutes and 35 seconds with a body hold.

DeChambeau was the aggressor throughout and showed the greater cleverness, but Harris was by far the stronger and contented himself with playing the defensive. Both men worked slowly and the second bout finally became so tedious that Referee Olson declared that unless a fall was had inside the hour the match would be declared off. When time was called DeChambeau had Harris on the mat, but was unable to turn him.

FULL FIELD

Promised In the Kentucky Derby This Year.

Louisville, Ky., April 15.—The Kentucky Derby this year promises to be the most interesting since the year 1889, when Proctor Knott and Spokane finished noses apart for the classic event.

The field will include at least ten of the best 3-year-olds that have shown in the West since the great Ben Brush won the Derby in 1895. With Agile, Ram's Horn, Dr. Leggo, Ivan the Terrible, Kurtzman, John Smulski, Jack Lory, and a few that are still uncovered to face the flag, there is no doubt it will be a "hoss race" from the barrier's rise to the finish.

The dates for running the important stake events at Churchill Downs this spring have nearly all been decided upon. Of course, the Derby will be run on Wednesday, May 10. The Clark Handicap will be decided Saturday, May 13, and on Saturday, May 20, the Nursery Stakes will be run. On that afternoon the cup for gentlemen riders will also be run. The Kentucky Oaks will be decided on Saturday, May 27. Six other stake events will be run during the meeting, but the dates have not been decided on yet.

Secretary Lyman Davis has received over 200 letters from owners asking for stable room. He has endeavored to give stalls only to those who have first-class racing material.

VETERANS MATCHED

John L. Sullivan and Charley Mitchell to Fight.

Tacoma, April 15.—The sporting editor of a Tacoma newspaper, it is said, has succeeded in matching John L. Sullivan, former champion pugilist of the world, and Charley Mitchell, champion boxer of England, for a twenty-round bout, Marquis of Queensberry rules, the battle to occur some time in May. When Mitchell was asked if he would meet Sullivan, the Briton replied:

"Ask John. I will be ready to meet him any time anywhere."

Sullivan's reply was characteristic: "Will fight Mitchell ten, fifteen or twenty rounds, for keeps, for a reasonable purse. Answer if he accepts."

The battle will likely occur in Tacoma, where boxing is permitted.

PICK 'VARSITY CREW.

Class Races Will Determine Choice For Harvard.

Boston, April 15.—Announcement has been made at Harvard that the class crew which wins the interclass championship race, which will be rowed about May 25, will be sent to the American Henley at Philadelphia. This will be the first appearance of a Harvard crew in that regatta.

The 'varsity squad has been broken up into trial eights at Harvard and the work of developing the 'varsity crew is on in dead earnest. The squad has been divided into three crews, but no attempt has been made to grade them. It is the present plan of Capt. Filley and Coach Wrey to keep these crews together until a series of races are held early in May, and from the showing the men make in those races the first and second 'varsity crews will be picked.

Manager Roger Lerby of the Harvard 'varsity crew announced that the race between the Cornell and Harvard crews on the Charles river, May 27, would be a race between 'varsity crews. This has been understood for some time, but the official statement has been delayed. This means that Harvard will have pretty near her final selection of a crew by that time—a date somewhat earlier than 'varsity crews have been determined upon in recent years. It also will be the first 'varsity race that Harvard has ever rowed on the Charles river.

GOLFERS' CLUBS

Getting Ready In the East For the Spring Handicaps.

List of Tournaments Arranged In America and Abroad.

New York, April 15.—The golfers of the metropolitan district, both young and old, are already bringing out their clubs in preparation for the opening of the spring handicaps. With anything approaching fair weather for the next ten days the various courses in this vicinity will witness the early comer out in force. This will be especially true of the schoolboy players who have in mind to enter the tournament for the New York interscholastic title now held by Jerome B. Travis. This is the hardest to win, and means the most of all the scholastic championships, for the individual and team championships of the New York Inter-scholastic association are open to pupils of preparatory and high schools in every part of the country. The entries from New York schools are always in the minority, which is satisfactory to the promoters, who wish the tournament as far as possible to be national in its scope.

The entries will close on May 10, with Jefferson W. Coe of St. Paul's school, Garden City, L. I. The tournament will be over the links of the Garden City Golf club, under the auspices of St. Paul's school, on May 18, 19 and 20. There will be an eighteen hole qualification round, the scores to count in the team championship, and the first sixteen to qualify for the championship and the second sixteen for a consolation cup. As prizes there will be a gold medal to the one making the low score in the qualifying round, silver cup for each sixteen and gold medals to the four members of the winning team.

OLD GUTTA BALL.

There is a movement in the West to adopt the old "gutta" golf ball for tournaments, owing to the expensive cost of the rubber cored ball. The "gutta" originally cost $3.50 a dozen, and was a good one, but now the new ball costs $9 a dozen, and golfers are asking if it is worth the price.

The Yale golf team this year will be made up chiefly of A. M. Reed, Max M. Behr, Bruce D. Smith, M. E. Phelps, C. Truesdale, W. E. Clough, Jr., and R. Abbott. The schedule of the team matches is as follows: April 29, with New Haven Country club, at New Haven; May 6, with Hartford Golf club, at Hartford, May 13, with Wee Burn Golf club, at Noroton, Conn.; May 20, with St. Andrews Golf club, at Chauncey, N. Y.; June 3, with Fall River Golf club, at Fall River, Mass.; May 27 is an open date.

One of the best authorities on golf course building is John Duncan Dunn, who has been in England for the last three years, adding to the experience gained in golf on this side of the water.

"If it is at all feasible," said Mr. Dunn, in discussing the subject of new golf links this week, "I would recommend anyone who intends laying out a link to obtain the services of some competent professional man—a man who has had varied experience in mapping out courses. It is a great saving later on if the course is properly laid out in the beginning. Where the ground is all good turf and well drained, the work is comparatively simple, but these conditions are not usually found, and an expert's advice as to the most advantageous layout is valuable. If the acres extend eighty and the ground is fairly good, an 18-hole course may be planned. If less than, say, 40 or 50 acres, never more than nine holes should be attempted. Nine holes are, of course, much less expensive to maintain than eighteen. For inland course, grounds with a sandy or gravelly subsoil should be soft; ground with a clay bottom should be avoided, as it always will be troublesome. If the land is to a great extent covered with undergrowth and the surface is pretty level, one of the speediest means of getting it in shape is to plow it up with a "scarrifier," an implement with a number of prongs, drawn by horses. It usually makes short work of preparing a surface. The first consideration is to determine the start and finish of the round. This should be near where the club house is to be erected. It is customary on nearly all golf courses to play the round on the right going out and the left coming in.

The first holes should be long and easy, to let players get away soon. Any existing formation, such as a ravine, pit or ponds, should be made the most of as a hazard. Never under any circumstances let the lines of the play cross, as there is danger frof flying golf balls. At each hole the ground for a distance of 120 yards may be left rough to punish a short or "foozled" drive, after which it should be as good as the putting green.

BIG TURF DUEL SEEMS LIKELY

Agile and Ram's Horn Getting Ready For Kentucky Derby.

Agile's recent victories at Memphis have created renewed interest in the coming Kentucky Derby, which will be run at Churchill Downs May 10. For a time after Ram's Horn had won the Montgomery handicap turfmen were of the opinion that Capt. Jim Williams' son of Bute—Aunt Tessa, would have no trouble in capturing Kentucky's blue ribbon turf classic, but Agile's performances last week at Montgomery Park put an entirely different complexion on the situation, and followers of the sport of kings believe that these two will have a battle royal here next month.

Ram's Horn arrived at the Downs on Friday, and he is said to be in grand shape. He will be carefully prepared at the Kentucky track between now and Derby day, and Capt. Williams promises to send him to the post in the best possible condition.

Judge Charles F. Price, than whom there is no better judge of a race horse in the West, is very enthusiastic over Agile.

"I saw Capt. Brown's colt win the Tennessee Derby," said Judge Price, "and he is the grandest 3-year-old I have seen in ten years. While I do not say he will win the Kentucky Derby, I know that he will be a powerful contender for the honors. I believe the Derby, if only Ram's Horn and Agile were to start, would be the best race of its kind run here in years; but there are other corking good youngsters in the bunch that will start, and the race is bound to be a grand one."

The Derby is less than a month away, and at this time it looks as if fourteen colts will go to the post. Capt. Brown, in addition to Agile, will start Broadcloth, and Secretary Davis of the New Louisville Jockey club has received a letter from California, in which it was stated that Dr. Leggo is in fine form now, and if he can cross the mountains in good shape he should be a serious contender for the honor. Tom Hayes will start both Laysan and Braden. Even the Terrible is also named to start, while Mr. Corrigan will send Drexel to the post. Tod Sloan will have the mount on Drexel, and this combination will likely create renewed interest in the event. Many people here believe that John Smulski and Jack Lory will be ready for a bruising race by May 10, and that both of them will make somebody's horse run to win the glory and the money which are attached to the Kentucky Derby.

THE "SPIT BALL."

Batters Will Soon Become Familiar With It.

No baseball report is considered complete now unless it includes several references to the latest thing in the pitching line, commonly called the "spit ball." Some writers, says the Chicago Tribune, spread the saliva around so thickly that the average reader imagines the pitchers must need bathing suits, or, at least, rubber boots, to enable them to remain in their positions with any degree of comfort. Some of the writers speak of and describe this new method of delivery in terms which prove that they have small conception of what a "spit ball" is, and probably would not know one if it hit them in the eye. Nevertheless, they have been reading all about it for a year or more, and feel confident in asserting that every player who even thinks he can pitch is a thorough master of the expectoration shoot, at the same time imagining they cannot demonstrate their own familiarity with the national pastime if they omit some reference to it. Much has been said and written about the marvelous upheaval which the "spit ball" is sure to cause in baseball, now that all pitchers are supposed to have mastered it. There is no doubt this puzzling style of delivery, whose vagaries the pitchers themselves cannot explain, and few can control with any degree of accuracy, will eliminate some of the little batting still left in the game by the rulemakers. But that any radical change will be produced in the quantity of runs or the method of making them few will believe. Ball players wanted the curve ball ruled out back in the old days of its introduction, because it would put all the batters out of business. Today a pitcher who depends wholly on a curve ball would hardly do for a grammar school nine. When the "drop" ball was discovered its general use was expected to revolutionize the game. The batters learned to recognize it and how to treat it. Then came the "change of pace," which has become one of the most effective weapons of the modern pitcher. That has not put the intelligent batter on the shelf. Now that the "spit ball" has been added to the pitcher's repertoire and is likely to come into as general use as all its deceptive predecessors, the batsmen will have more chance to study its peculiarities than when only one of two pitchers were able to use it safely in a game. By constant study the batters will become familiar with the mysteries of the new delivery, and, as somebody said a long time ago, "familiarity breeds contempt," it will not be long before the batters will regard the pitcher who can toss them nothing but "spit balls" with the same contempt as they now treat the man who can pitch nothing but the "out curve."

KNOCKERS UNABLE

To Show Hart-Johnson Contest Was Not on Level.

Jabez White-Jimmy Britt Match Is Still In the Air.

San Francisco, April 15.—The native sons are on trial again. The latest accusation—and, like the others, it bears an Eastern date mark—is that the Hart-Johnson contest was "rigged" for the purpose of developing an opponent who would not be objectionable to the world's champion, James J. Jeffries.

Of course, those who were responsible for the match deny that trickery, or fraud of any kind was practiced, and a man has only to move around a bit to discover that the general run of fight patrons in this city do not harbor the suspicion that there was a prearrangement in connection with the bout.

This is an age of realism and thoroughness, however, and it is no great trick to hoodwink the public. The conditions are such that a self-respecting critic is prompted to exercise extreme caution in testifying to the genuineness of any kind of a sport's happening. He might find, if he had placed himself on record, that he was one of many who were fooled. Then he would be embarrassed.

Unfriendly comments say it was arranged for Hart to win. If so the schemers certainly overlooked something. Ring swindles, like other swindles, are planned for the purpose of garnering currency. It is an old axiom that money talks, and often in the case of sure-thing sports with a job on hand it fairly shrieks. A short ender who is programmed to win will go by bounds to even money and finally become a favorite.

In this instance—if the fight was prearranged—the sure-thing money was deaf, dumb and blind. The price against Hart was 10 to 4 right up to the moment the men entered the ring, and, to use a flip expression, "there was no four."

Is it possible, or likely, that the plotters, if there were any were so much engrossed in forcing Hart to the front that they forgot to take advantage of an opportunity to make a killing.

Personally I believe the announcement that Hart and Jeffries had been matched would merely invite derision. It would be so palpably a pugilistic mesalliance that I doubt that if an offer of free seats with Martini cocktails and club sandwiches thrown in would attract a crowd.

Hart is a decent fellow, but in fighting, as in acting, a reputation for being well spoken or "good to his folks" isn't sufficient to command recognition for a man. In the affair with Johnson it wasn't Hart's pugilistic ability half as much as the negro's disinclination to fight that influenced the referee.

If Hart is wise he will put in a kind of wander-year battling with Ruhlin and men of Ruhlin's caliber. If he survives a few goes of this character he will have a better chance of interesting the public in his ambition to tackle Jeffries.

About the only thing to do with the Jabez White-Jimmy Britt match is to report no progress. Coffroth has not as yet received official sanction to hold the contest this month, and there appears to be room for doubt whether the permit will be given to him at all.

The situation, so far as the supervisors are concerned, is a peculiar one. There are as many city fathers in favor of granting the Yosemite club permission to handle the contest as there are against it. It is virtually a deadlock, for, while Coffroth is unable to land the prize, he has strength enough to prevent anyone else getting it. It is understood that considerable lobbying is being done, and maybe the question will be settled one way or the other within a day or two. It is said that Coffroth has a couple of extra strings to his bow. If blocked in San Francisco he may take the match to his arena in the meadows down Colma way. Another surprise is that, having paid an annual license of $1,200 for the Yosemite club, he may defy the supervisors and attempt to carry on his show without a permit. In order to do this he would be in all probability first arrange a test in the hopes of obtaining a court ruling to the effect that a promoter who pays an annual license and intends to operate under the provisions of the state law governing boxing shall be immune from the hampering influences of the supervisors.

We haven't heard so much of the Nelson-Britt feud lately, and it is just possible that the warring factions have discovered that the public has wearied of the wrangle. In the meantime Jabez White is doing road work and sparring a little over at Larkspur and impressing people with his modesty, if with nothing else.

It is a lucky thing for Jabez that he is being chaperoned by such a self-reliant, resourceful fellow as Charley Mitchell. Charlie is both bland and breezy, his manner, as some one remarked, suggesting a mixture of "swagger and savoir faire." While he hasn't exactly the soft answer that turneth away wrath, he possesses the knack of giving a humorous twist to a situation.

When Nolan, manager for Nelson, sought to corner Charley a few days ago anent the big Englishman's offer to bet thousands that Nelson couldn't stop White in ten rounds, Mitch is reported to have said: "Why, my dear boy, it was all a joke, wasn't it? I'm sure I didn't give a moment's thought to the matter. I'm a bit of a spoof-bird myself, you know, and when Nelson talked of stopping Jabez in ten rounds, I thought it an excellent—what d'ye call it—josh. Come around when we get through with Britt and we'll give you a go. We won't ask any concessions, either."

All of which convinces me that Charley is just the fellow to stand between White and petty annoyances.

TENNIS CLUB WILL MEET

The annual meeting of the Endion Tennis club will be held at the Commercial club next Wednesday evening.

The meeting will be an important one, as the election of officers will be held at that time, and the plans for the summer discussed.

The question of new and larger grounds and a more commodious clubhouse will be discussed. It was planned to move to larger grounds last spring, but the plans failed to materialize, and the matter will be again brought up this summer.

Last year was a most successful one, and the members are looking forward to another prosperous season.

AFFAIRS OF WEEK IN HIGH SCHOOL

Spring Athletics, Including Baseball and Track Contests, Are Subjects of Much Consideration—Twelve Honor Pupils of Senior Class Announced During the Week—Pupils Urged to Show Interest In School Gardens.

Monday afternoon the athletic association held a short meeting in the assembly hall, but no business of importance was transacted.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $1.89 on hand, which is the total sum at present available for the on-coming spring athletics. Baseballs and other apparatus have been ordered, making it necessary that additional funds be raised immediately. Last year the association passed a motion to the effect that every member of the organization be required to pay an annual fee of twenty-five cents per year on penalty of being excluded from the meetings. A committee has been appointed to see that this is collected, but as yet they have done nothing towards doing so. If the association is to close the season successfully it is essential that every means of acquiring funds be made use of, and it would be well to start by seeing that the yearly fees are secured first of all.

A motion made and passed that a committee of three be appointed to look into the matter of getting a stock of "D's" in order that there may be a number constantly on hand. Another committee of three was also appointed to select a design for the "D's" that are to be presented to the hockey team.

Max Cramner, captain of the baseball team then made a short address, saying that there was plenty of excellent material in the school, thus assuring a first-class nine. He desired to have everybody turn out in order that two teams might be formed and enable the candidates to have a better practice than would be the case if but thirteen or fourteen men came out. He added that a god schedule would be secured with perhaps one or two outside trips.

Friday afternoon, April 21, Coach Church will leave for Ashland, where he will meet with faculty representatives from the high schools of Ironwood, Bessemer, Ashland and Superior.

It is proposed at this meeting to perfect a central association of the high schools at the Head of the Lakes for the furtherance of the athletic relations between the various schools.

The conditions of athletics at the different schools will be fully discussed and arrangements made for remedying any defects that may be found to exist. Officers will be elected and a central organization formed as far as possible.

Nothing of this sort has existed for many years, but if the plans can be carried to a successful conclusion it will greatly benefit athletics in all of the schools that come into the organization. Rivalry will be awakened, meets arranged, and a general stirring up of interest will result. Rules governing the contests will be laid down at this meeting or the next, thus enabling the competing teams to work with these conditions in view.

* * *

Prof. E. L. Campbell, who teaches book-keeping, commercial geography and commercial arithmetic, will take charge of the track athletics of the school upon the request of Coach Church.

Mr. Campbell has had considerable experience in this line of work, and will undoubtedly turn out a winning team. He had charge of the track athletics at Ironwood a year and also at Moline, Ill., for a similar length of time. He took an active part in athletics at Hillsdale college, but at Michigan, where he graduated, he was not eligible, as the rules require that a man who has been transferred from another school shall have attended the university at least one year before he will be admitted to any of the athletic events.

THE HONOR PUPILS.

Twelve Seniors Who Stand Highest In Studies.

Wednesday afternoon Principal Smith announced the names of the honor students, those who have maintained the highest averages during the first three and a half years of their high school course.

Of the entire twelve only three were boys, and of the first five, who were Lillie Olessen, Elizabeth Morris, Isabelle McLean, Lester Seyler and Johanna Strate, but one was a young man.

To be on the honor roll speaks well of the ability of the student and reflects great credit upon those who have been successful in attaining the highest rank in the class. It marks the culmination of three and one-half years of hard study and constant endeavor to make use of the excellent opportunities afforded by an unexcelled school system.

In the order of their respective standings the complete list is as follows: Lillie Olessen, Elizabeth Morris, Isabelle McLean, Lester Seyler, Johanna Strate, Helen Money, Nina Johnson, Stanley Strand, Claudia Cox, Laura Schiller, Edith Seekins and Clarence Evans. Each of these, and also the next two, had averages of 90 per cent or better.

In past years it has been the custom for the first five honor students to give the program on commencement night, but this will not be the case this year. Every pupil in the senior class is required to write an essay or oration of from 1,000 to 1,500 words, and of these the best five will be selected for delivery on graduation night, the judges to take into consideration the oratorical ability of the writer as well as the literary merit of the paper. In this way a more satisfactory program will be secured, as those who are the best students are not always the best speakers. It has been the common experience of the past several years that a part of those who speak on this occasion have been unable to make themselves heard throughout the hall.

The entire class is at present busy preparing the papers, the outlines of which were submitted to Prof. Thomas of the English department yesterday afternoon. The completed essays are due a week from the coming Friday, April 28.

SCHOOL GARDENS.

Pupils Urged to Interest Themselves In Them.

Yesterday morning Principal Smith read a communication to the school from the Women's Council of Duluth, asking for the co-operation of the superintendent and principals of the various schools in the city in establishing "school gardens" for the cultivation of flowers and vegetables, in order to give the boys employment during vacation and to make the city more attractive.

The idea is to have four or five boys in the neighborhood of each school form a sort of committee to take the matter in hand and pick out any vacant lots in the vicinity, which they will plant with either flowers or vegetables, as may seem advisable. The principals of every public school in the city are asked to submit the plan to the boys, and also to determine the age and character of those who wish to join this group of "junior gardeners."

The services of an experienced gardener will be secured who will devote his entire time to the care and supervision of the school gardens, teaching the boys to prepare the ground and giving them practical instruction in gardening. He will visit all the school gardens at stated times during the season.

The duties of the committee will be to look up the vacant lots, and to put forth their efforts to secure the use of them for the boys and to get the assistance of any one in the neighborhood who will be willing to help in plowing or breaking up the land.

Each school will be furnished with seeds, fertilizer, and the necessary tools, for the care and preservation of which the committee will be responsible. The council will appoint a committee at the end of each season to visit each garden and report on the comparative merits of each junior garden.

Although this applies more particularly to the primary grades, Principal Smith expressed himself as being very desirous of seeing several of the high school boys who live in any one locality get together and take charge of a garden, or of more than one if possible. He said that it would do much to assist in beautifying the bare spots of the city, and that it would also be a source of considerable profit to the boys as well.

The proceeds of the gardens go to the boys themselves, so that the amount of their earnings depends entirely upon the efforts that they themselves put forth. If the lot were a large one in a suburb of the city, it could be planted in vegetables and quite a considerable sum derived from it. Many gardeners in this city make their living exclusively from just such plots of ground, which are perhaps larger than any that the boys might be able to secure. Working under a practical gardener, the experience would be of great benefit to them, as well as a source of profit and a means of beautifying the city.

DEBATES IMMIGRATION.

Demosthenes Club Holds an Interesting Discussion.

Monday afternoon the Demosthenes club had a very interesting and instructive debate. The question under discussion was "Resolved, that the Present Immigration Laws are Insufficient," and resulted in a decision for the negative.

The affirmative was supported by Wallace Quimby and Hanford, and William Harrison and Donald Holmes upheld the negative. The former claimed that the majority of immigrants admitted are of a low class that demoralized politics by voting for the man that was able to pay the most for their votes. They claimed statistics show that they are coming from the southern part of Europe, introducing anarchism and socialism, as is proved by the fact that these increased in about the same proportion as the immigration.

The negative side held that this class of people was needed to do the more menial and physical kinds of work, such as digging ditches and building railroads. They said that the Southern European was quick to learn, and that their children were enjoying the privileges of our public school system and would make good citizens. "The present laws are very strict," they added, "excluding all paupers, cripples, and the undesirable classes in general."

The subject of the next debate, which will occur a week from Monday, will be "Resolved, That the Central Government Should Control Corporations." Leo Bondy and Fred Ober will speak on the affirmative and George Markus and Isadore Mondschine on the negative.

The club then voted to have a committee of three appointed before each debate to act as judges. The judges will be required to state upon what they base their decision.

School Notes.

The seniors and the faculty are to play a baseball game! This means an unlimited amount of fun for the entire school the best part of on entire afternoon. In view of the severe defeat that was administered to the professors last year it was thought until lately that they would not be able to thus soon muster their courage for another contest on the diamond. But the fond hopes of the seniors have been shattered and they will be again compelled to lower the hopes of the ambitious faculty, however much they may dislike the task.

* * *

In the freshman class Leo Schmied received the prize of $2 for the best story. Mary Weston that of $1 for the best frontispiece, Myrla Presnell that of $1 for the best poem, and Kathryn Denfeld was awarded 50 cents for the best tailpiece.

The track caps that were voted by the senior class to the track teams of their sophomore and junior teams have been sent for. They are of what is known as the "swagger" style, with broad brims, and are made of white broadcloth and bear the numerals "1905."

The freshman class had their regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Assembly hall. They decided to have their supread and dance sometime towards the latter part of May. The affair was put in the hands of a committee, Edna Parks, vice president of the class was in the chair in the absence of the president.

* * *

A special meeting of the sophomore class was called Wednesday afternoon to make the final arrangements for their hop, which will be given Friday evening, April 28, in the high school building.

* * *

The annual sacred concert of the High School Musical society has been again postponed until Friday evening, May 12. If it cannot be given on this date, Prof. Custance, who has the matter in charge, says that it will not occur.

* * *

The regular meeting of the Agassiz club will be held in the biological laboratory Friday afternoon of next week. Prof Ulrich will give a talk on the nitrogen problem and plant food.

* * *

The freshman class pins have arrived. They are of a handsome design in gold and black, the class colors.

* * *

The regular monthly report cards will be issued Monday after school.

* * *

The Zenith board had its picture taken Thursday afternoon.

* * *

The baseball work is progressing in fine shape. The condidates are turning out regularly for practice either on the campus or at the league grounds in the West end. A series of games is being arranged with Superior, who will have a first-class team this season, according to report.

IN COPPER CIRCLES

Chances of General Strike In Lake Region May 1.

Western Federation of Miners Taking Hand In Matter.

Houghton, Mich., April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The matter that is attracting attention in the copper district, almost to the exclusion of other topics, is the strike situation, and the chances of a general strike about May 1. The Copper Range Consolidated company, which employs nearly 3,000 men, announced an increase of wages, amounting to nearly 10 per cent, about March 10, the raise dating from March 1. The Quincy was the second property to announce a raise, dating also from March 1, and this raise was met by a strike, the trammers thinking that they should be given the same wages as the miners. For the past month there has not been a week without a strike at some of the mines, and the air is full of rumors of a general strike. The situation is made worse by the street car strike, which has been in progress for seven weeks, and there is considerable talk of a sympathetic strike by miners to aid the street car men. Inasmuch as the entire street car force on strike is not quite one hundred men, and there are some sixteen hundred mine employes in the district, the wisdom of such a symuathetic strike is not apparent. Furthermore, the street car company has not the least connection, near or remote, with the mines, the only point of rememblance being that both the traction company and most of the mines have their main offices in Boston.

The Franklin miners and trammers have gone back to work on precisely the same terms as before they walked out, three weeks ago. The management of the Franklin explained that the mine could not afford to pay higher wages, and inasmuch as the Franklin paid its last dividend twelve years ago, the management seemed to have the best of the argument. The miners at the Franklin were not overly anxious for a strike, but the trammers had their way, and the strike was called. Some of the trammers objected to calling the strike off, and there were several assaults on men returning to work, but three of the men guilty of assaulting miners were fined, and two others given short jail sentences, since which there has been no trouble.

The Wolverine miners and trammers walked out two weeks ago, but were prevailed on to return to work until the matter could be given consideration by the Eastern management, but again walked out, and still remain out. The management is understood to have fuly determined to grant none of the demands made by the men. At the two Kearsarge mines of the Osceola Consolidated company the strike is still on. At these mines the strikers demand that the contract system be abolished, and that all men be paid uniform wages. This demand shows quite plainly that the Western Federation of Miners is taking a hand in the matter locally. The Lake Superior copper miners never have been organized, until quite recently, and it is an open question just how strongly the federation has gained a footing in the lake district. The Western Federation of Miners has its headquarters in Denver, and is strongest in the states of Colorado, Montana and Idaho, with considerable memberships in the other Rocky Mountain states. The Western Federation of Miners is nothing if not pugnacious, and outside of Butte, where there has been little trouble, has had many bitter labor wars. The strikers at Wallace and the other Coeur d'Alene silver-lead camps became so bitter, some years ago, that federal troops were called in to quell the troubles. The labor war in Colorado of the past two years is so recent that its main details will be recalled by most readers. The Western Federation of Miners is the most radical labor organization of the the United States, and is openly pledged to socialism. At present the Western Federation is in bad odor with the other labor organizations of the country, because of its very radical actions, and there is a strong suspicion on the part of many of the other unions that they have been "worked" to fill the depleted coffers of the Miners' union. Naturally, the advent of the Western Federation of Miners into the copper district is viewed with apprehension by the managements of the mines, and by the great majority of the business and professional men of the district, to say nothing of the similar feelings on the part of several thousand miners and mine workmen who have worked in peace for many years, and have saved considerable sums of money, most of which has been invested in the shares of the local mines. These men are placed in a very awkward position. As miners, their sympathies are with their fellow workmen, while as mine-owners, they deprecate labor agitation. The Western Federation of Miners denies that it ever has adopted illegal methods in its disputes with the mine-owners and operators, but it is a fact that in all of the big strikes conducted by the federation there has been bloodshed, and the list of operators and non-union workmen who have been shot in the back, assassinated from ambush, blown up by dynamite and otherwise murdered, is a long and gruesome one. The work of organizing the local miners was undertaken some fifteen months ago, and has been conducted quietly but systematically, since that time. Were the miners being organized by any other union, the managers would feel more at ease, but the possibility of passing through a reign of terror, such as was experienced in the Coeur d'Alenes, Telluride, Cripple Creek and elsewhere in the West, is no pleasing prospect.

The construction of the Keweenaw Central railway will bring about a great revival of business in Keweenaw county this year. The mere fact that a road is to be built has stimulated activity in many ways. Several of the idle properties are arranging to renew work, others will increase present forces, and several entirely new companies are being formed. Mr. W. E. Smith of Eagle River, has just returned from Boston, where he succeded in organizing a pool to begin exploratory work in the vicinity of the Bohemian Range property, where a hundred foot shaft is bottomed in excellent rock. The lands turned over to the City Trust company of Boston, are supposed to be held in trust for the Calumet & Hecla, and something in the mining line may be begun upon them this season. The Washington, which has been idle for four seasons, may see a resumption of mining, now that railroad connections are in sight. The Keweenaw Copper company probably may resume work, and the owners of the Amygdaloid may be sufficiently encouraged by the prospect of a railroad to do something at their property, while at numerous other old mines there are prospects of resumption.

The section 16 shaft of the Wyandot is sinking in an 18-foot amygdaloid carrying considerable epidote, calcite and quartz, with fine copper disseminated throughout.

Work at the Winona is progressing systematically and satisfactorily. The showing in the bottom levels to the southward continues almost uniformly good, and with the capable management possessed by the Winona, it would seem to be merely a matter of opening sufficient ground to make a payable mine. Milling was discontinued last November and will not be resumed until the mine is developed to the point of giving a large and steady tonnage. About 80,000 tons of Winona rock were milled by the Atlantic, and about 1,750,000 pounds of fine copper secured therefrom. For 1904 the average returns were nearly 19 pounds of fine copper per ton, a figue that would allow a handsome profit upon a large tonnage.

At the Mass mine much new work is planned. The proceeds of the $200,000 assessment recently levied are to be expended almost entirely underground, with a view to opening sufficient stoping ground to permit a careful selection of rock broken for the mill.

HORACE J. STEVENS.

OFFICIALS OF UNITED STATES CUSTOM SERVICE IN DULUTH.

Canada and all parts of Europe. The customs office here, therefore, is one of note. It is no one-man affair as most customs ports are. In winter, of course, business is not so great as in summer, but now that the navigation season has opened the port collector's office is beginning to be a busy one.

Not only are there inspections to be made, but all bills of sale of vessels must be filed there, all vessels entering the port must be reported and before they go out they must have clearance papers. In fact, the business of the port collector's office is enormous when everything is said and done. Here are some of the things the port collector and his deputies have to do:

Enforce the navigation laws, which are many and intricate.

Inspect and appraise all imported merchandise.

Measure vessels.

Test liquors.

Try violators of the navigation laws and impose the fines.

Act as register of deeds of vessels.

Issue clearance papers to vessels and keep statistics of the amount of receipts and shipments.

These are just a few of the things the port collector's office must do. There are lots of other things; to try to enumerate which would require deep study, great research and voluminous writing.

The collector of the port and each deputy are enrolled as port collectors, inspectors, weighers, gaugers, measurers and numerous other things. The office is under the secretary of the treasurer and the secretary of commerce and labor, the business of both departments in the customs come so close together that each has a share in it.

The Duluth customs office takes in Two Harbors as well, and a deputy collector is maintained there.

The collector of the port of Duluth is L. M. Willcuts, who has held the office since 1897, and will be appointed for another term when his present one is ended. Mr. Willcuts is one of the leading Republicans in the state, and has done valiant and valuable service for his party. His deputies in Duluth are: N. A. Linderberg, who is known as special deputy; T. H. Little, E. C. Clow, Carl J. Halling, who is night collector; Frank Spurbeck, Mrs. L. M. Petty, Volney S. Wilkinson, who is United States storekeeper, and Donald C. McKenzie and William Fisher, who in the summer live on the boats which ply between here and Port Arthur. James Coggswell is the deputy collector at Two Harbors, and also is editor of a paper there.

All of the local collectors have their work cut out for them during the summer months especially, and are not overloaded with spare time.

Pictures of the local force accompany this article, in order that people who leave Duluth for foreign parts, and then come back with valuables, may know them and "duck"—if they can.

The uniform of the inspectors is of regulation dark blue, but this year there is a change in the caps. Inspectors examining baggage must wear red caps, with a deep vizor and having a spread-eagle insignia on the front of it. The red cap is an innovation, but is regarded as an improvement in the uniform, at least in favor of the picturesque.

AMONG THE PLANTS.

Spring is here again, and how glad we all are, but if you want to know the full joy of springtime wait until the frost settles on your hair to stay; youth loves the spring, but what joy it brings to those who have passed that time of youth. My old friends are asking for a few directions on planting and I can only go over the same old ground. Wait until the soil is dry enough to crumble to pieces when it is dug, or plowed and make the soil rich in plant foods and so lay the foundation right for some good crops. As soon as the soil is right you can sow some of your hardy seeds, such as garden peas, sweet peas, lettuce, spinach, and also plant some onion sets, but do not put all your eggs in one basket, for there is plenty of time and the main crops can be planted in May. Don't plant too deeply or cover these early sowing deeply, for the ground is cold yet. By the way, sow your poppy seed now, it will not need any covering at this time and any old corner will grow them. They are no good as a lasting cut flower, but a bright bunch will look very pretty on the table when freshly picked. You can plant out pansies now, a frost will not hurt them, and the earliest planted are always the best, even though they do get a battered look by the frost and winds.

Now let us chat on another subject, that is insects injurious to house plants, for dozens have asked for a word on this subject, as they are very troublesome now. Have you ever tried hot water for them? I have been through a whole series of trials, just to find out. Turn water into the bath tub and bring the temperature to 120 degs., which is easy; then souse them under for a minute. You need not fear damage, for we tried it on everything that we had, and have never seen the slightest damage even to the most delicate ferns, and the plants come out clean. Green fly, white fly, mealy bug and scale bug, all yield to it, although in case of the scale bug it takes longer, but if you have an old fern or ivy infested with scale, it is a little brown fellow that lays flat on the under side of the leaves, just plunge your plant pot and all into the tub and let it lie there for half an hour, and what the heat does not kill will drown.

Insects or rather grubs that infest the soil are got rid of by strewing about a quarter of an inch of common smoking tobacco on top of the soil. The juice will wash in when the plant is watered and the worms will not like it. Set the pots on something that will leave the hole in the bottom of the pot free, and even the angle worm will leave the tobacco dressed pot. We mention these two methods in treating plants because they are simple and within the reach of every one, for it is lots of trouble to get lime and tobacco stems, and spray and fuss, all to kill a bug.

There was something else I wanted to say, but have forgotten what it was.

Good Profits By El Paso In March.

Colorado Springs, Colo., April 15.—The El Paso Consolidated company during the month of March cleaned up in profits from ore settlements in the neighborhood of $90,600. The regular dividend of $49,000 was paid, besides all running expenses, leaving a balance to be added to the treasury which is now well over the half million mark.

Sometime during the course of next week, J. R. Wright, owner of the Jo Dandy mine, will commence shipments of 100 tons of ore a day. At the present time the shipments are amounting to about eighty tons a day, but with the addition to the ore house completed a decided increase will be made. Much of the ore that is being broken in this property is shipped without sorting and while it is of low grade the operator is taking out a small fortune every month.

The management of the Gold Soverign property is quite elated over the new find of ore in the ninth level, as the ore gives promise of being very rich. The ore shoot when worked for by lessees was broken for a width of from 20 to 30 feet. With a little more depth it has now widened out so that the company is breaking ore for fifty feet in width all of which will average close to $50 to the ton.

The Vindicator company in cross-cutting south o fthe shaft has encountered a new vein in virgin territory in the tenth level which gives great promise. So far the ore shoot only measures from 12 to 15 inches across. The grade of the ore shows an average of four ounces to the ton. The Vindicator mine and its different lessees are now sending out between 2,000 and 2,500 tons of ore per month which is building up the treasury reserve at a rapid rate.

The Golden Cycle company is now making a monthly production in the neighborhood of 5,000 tons. Leo Van Rossenburg, the expert who is to examine the property for the people holding the option, is at the mine and working as fast as possible under the circumstances.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Work Mining and Milling company a dividend of ½ cent a share, making a total disbursement of $7,500 on the 1,500,000 shares, was declared. This is the company's second dividend and checks will be mailed on May 15th. The gross production for the fiscal year was $66,487.60, about 2,200 tons of an average value of $30 a ton being shipped. Of the expenses, $17,933.65 went for treatment and transportation, $35,547.47 to lessees and $3,201.48 for general expenses. There is $20,050.21 in the treasury and the mine is in splendid physical condition. The company owns nearly thirty acres on Raven Hill, the Morning Glory being the principal claim. The leasing policy is in vogue.

Railroads report a great increase in railroad traffic, both freight and passenger, over corresponding periods of previous years. Since the first of the year the average tonnage has been increased between 10,000 and 15,000 tons over the corresponding period of last year. The inbound freight is reported heavier than last year and fully as good as five years ago.

MURDER OF GANNON.

No Clew to His Slayer Has Been Found.

Bemedji, Minn., April 15.—County Attorney Loud and Coroner Marcum returned yesterday afternoon from Baudette, where they examined the circumstances surrounding the murder of Matt Gannon last Saturday night. Mr. Loud stated that as yet not the slightest clue had been found. Sheriff Bailey will remain on the scene of the crime for one or two days longer in an attempt to apprehend the perpetrator.

The investigation by County Attorney Loud before the coroner's jury was most searching, ten residents of Spooner and seven of Baudette being examined. The investigation developed that Gannon had twice drawn his gun on inoffensive parties the day he was shot but no clew to his murderer was secured.

County Attorney Loud and Coroner Marcum say that the murder of Gannon was most foul and the former declares that vigorous efforts will be made to bring the murderer to justice.

BETTER VENTILATON OF PASSENGER CARS

How To Change the Air Without Producing Draughts—Elaborate and Successful Tests.

Washington April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Following the recent report of Surgeon General Wyman of the Marine Hospital service, there has been a veritable crusade by health boards throughout the country for better ventilation of street and railway passenger cars. Texas was the first state to take active steps in this direction, and under a recently enacted law the Texas health officer has direct supervision over the ventilation and sanitation of all cars used in the transportation of passengers in that state, and very rigid regulations have been promulgated. Health officers who made a study of this matter hold that next to cleanliness in the cars, proper ventilation is the subject most needing attention at this time.

Tuberculosis is now universally regarded as one of the most deadly diseases the human system is heir to, and those who have investigated the subject most thoroughly maintain that this dread disease is spread over great sections of the country by means of the vitiated and infected air in passenger cars. Statistics are now being collected which, it is expected, will sustain this contention. Thousands of persons suffer from the "White Plague" long before they are aware that it is sapping their lives, and they travel back and forth through the country, throwing off, with every breath, the poisonous germs to be taken into the lungs and systems of fellow passengers, not yet affected, while scarcely a train to certain sections but carries a number of persons afflicted with tuberculosis and seeking another climate, scattering the seeds of disease throughout the country.

To check the spread of this and other diseases in railway cars is the work now before the health boards. They insist that railroad officials shall improve the ventilation of all cars used in the transportation of passengers, and of late the inquiry has been extended to the improved ventilation of cars devoted to carrying perishable food products, it being patent that such products are very readily inoculated by disease germs.

The question of ventilation of passenger cars is an old one, almost as old as railroading itself, and the devices that have been patented number a score or more. Every traveler has felt the annoyance occasioned by the clouds of dust and cinders introduced into the car every time a window or door was opened, and yet he has craved a breath of fresh and pure air from the outside. So it was that the efforts of inventors turned toward solving the problem of introducing fresh air while excluding smoke, dust and cinders.

Prominent health officers have stated that the preservation of the health of the traveling public demands an entire change in the air in passenger cars at least once in every five or six minutes, and it would be much better if it was changed oftener than that. To effect this change without producing drafts has been the knotty problem engaging the attention of health officers, railroad authorities and inventors. It is not only necessary to provide for the intaking of pure air from the outside, but at the same time for the expulsion of the foul or vitiated air. To accomplish this and not produce a draft that would be dangerous to the health of the passenger, and not long since considered an impossibility, yet health officers insisted it must be done.

This situation has led to many interesting experiments and tests, those by Dr. Walker, chief of the department of health of Brooklyn, being quite elaborate and successful. In his statement of the result of these tests, Dr. Walker said that when the car was filled with smoke, everything being closed, the ventilators were opened by his order, and the smoke was entirely replaced with fresh air in two and one-half minutes, without a particle of draft. In another test the air was completely changed in sixty seconds.

For his experiments Dr. Walker used a simple device, designed by a noted English author, named Taylor. Mr. Taylor, it is said, years ago, contracted one of the African fevers and had a narrow escape from death. He attributed his slow recovery to the vitiated air which he breathed in the hut to which he was confined while ill and made up his mind that he would make air and ventilation a life-study, not for profit, but as a "fad." Since then he has studied the question from the systems employed by the ancient Egyptians of ventilating the pyramids, down to the elaborate equipments of the English house of parliament and the capitol at Washington.

The device is very simple in its construction and operation. It consists of a double wing, which extends outward from the clear story of the car. On either side of this double wing is an opening. The openings are fitted with horizontal louvres, so tilted at the inner side as to cause the air received from the outside to be deflected toward the roof, thus avoiding a draft. The air striking the outer wings, dust and cinders fall, while the smoke and steam rises, so nothing but pure air is admitted into the car. The vitiated air is drawn outward by the strong suction behind the double wing.

LESSON FROM CHICAGO'S VICTORY

By George H. Shibley, Director of Department of Representative Government, Bureau of Research, Washington, D. C.

The Chicago victory for municipal ownership and operation is the result of a campaign that extends back for ten years and furnishes several lessons for other cities, chief of which is the fact that the advisory initiative, combined with the systematic questioning of candidates, is an effective institution for overcoming machine rule. These institutions were controlling factors in the Chicago victory for municipal ownership.

This is being overlooked.

The advisory initiative system was established in state and city affairs in Illinois early in 1901 as a non-partisan measure. It slipped through with little discussion, and the monopolies did not suspect its potency.

The Public Opinion Act, as it is usually termed, provides that on a written petition signed by 25 per cent of the registered voters of any incorporated town, village, city, township, county or school district; or 10 per cent of the registered voters of the state, it shall be the duty of the proper election officers to submit to the electors any question of public policy petitioned for, provided the petition is filed not less than sixty days before the date of the election and that not more than three questions are to be submitted at one time. It is further provided that every question submitted shall be printed upon a separate ballot the same as constitutional amendments or other public measures are voted for in Illinois.

Under this system three questions were voted upon by the citizens of Chicago in the spring of 1902, three more in the state election of that year, three again in the city election two years later, again three more in the state election of the same year, and three again in the recent city election. In this way the municipal ownership question was voted upon in 1902, 1904 and in the recent election.

For this advisory initiative system to become effective it is necessary that the candidates who desire to become the people's agents in the legislature shall pledge that, if elected, they will obey their employers' instructions. To this end the aldermanic candidates in the Chicago campaign of 1902 were questioned by the Chicago Federation for Majority Rule, a paper organization merely, but so effective is the questioning of candidates as to obeying instructions by the voters that of the candidates elected more than one-half were pledged in writing, and this, too, under the worst possible conditions in America, namely, a great city with two million people of all nationalities and with an immensely valuable franchise at stake, while the campaign was among aldermanic candidates, a class who are less responsive to public opinion than any other set of legislators, and there were opposed, the managers of the Municipal Voters' league. But the power of public opinion was so great that the mere questioning of the candidates as to obeying instructions resulted in pledges. Furthermore, the pledges included an agreement to vote to install the advisory referendum as to franchises for all municipal monopolies.

The referendum vote at the election above described was for municipal ownership of the street railways and lighting plants and direct nominations, and immediately after the vote was taken the Chicago American questioned as follows the hold-over aldermen and the newly-elected ones:

"Will you obey the people's instructions for public ownership of the street railways and against a long-time extension of franchise?"

Of the 50 who were interviewed, 33 declared that they would obey the people's will; 10 declared for a short-time franchise in order that the city might get ready for public ownership; 2 dodged, and only 5 declared in favor of a long-term franchise. The mayor declared that he would veto a long-term franchise. It appeared, therefore, that the long-time extension of the street railway franchise was blocked.

And such proved to be the case. During the year the monopolists were unable to succeed. And in the legislature elected in the autumn of 1902, which convened the following January, a statute was enacted, the Mueller law, authorizing the city of Chicago to enter upon public ownership of street railways should the people approve the plan submitted. The statute provides all the details for taking over the railways and managing them. Certificates of indebtedness can be issued with the railway property and a possible twenty-year franchise as security. To pass this statute, however a revolution by force occurred in the house of representatives at Springfield.

In the Chicago spring election following the one described, the Referendum League of Illinois questioned the candidates for aldermen and mayor as to whether, if elected, they would obey the will of the people as expressed at the polls. A majority of those elected were pledged. This majority combined with the majority that were pledged the preceding year made a majority in the common council.

Toward autumn it was rumored that the monopolists had arranged to buy their way through the council, but the people asserted themselves in such a determined manner that no coup d'etat was attempted.

In the spring election of 1904 the Referendum league again used the advisory initiative provided in the state law of 1901. The question put to referendum vote included public ownership of the street railways, and the people again voted for the system, the vote standing 2½ to 1.

Some months later the people of Chicago were astounded by an announcement from the mayor, who had steadily heeded the people's instructions for municipal ownership, that he would approve a proposed bill for the extension of street railway franchises unless the people should again petition for another vote for municipal ownership. It looked for a time as though the monopolists had won the day, but the Chicago American stepped in and called for volunteers to circulate petitions, and soon secured more than 133,000 signatures. This enormous petition was taken over to the mayor's office, and he again pledged that he would exercise his veto power in accordance with the people's instructions until they should vote upon the proposed extension of franchises. The result was the recent municipal-ownership victory, with which we are all familiar.

The lesson which every statesman should learn is the value of the advisory initiative and the questioning of candidates as an open-sesame against machine rule.

Applying these principles to the situation in other places, it will be found that the line of least resistance is for each to establish for itself the advisory initiative, which can be accomplished by a majority vote in the city council. A bill should be introduced, public hearings secured, and when the simplicity and need for the system are fully established, call for the vote in the council, serving notice that such aldermen as oppose the people's sovereignty will not be re-elected. This was the procedure in Detroit and every alderman voted for the people's sovereignty.

With the advisory initiative in operation a vote can be taken on the question of public ownership and operation of street railways and the lighting plant, which will result in an avalanche of votes for the proposition. After this expression by the voters there can be questioned the candidates for the legislature. Ask them: If elected, will you vote to grant to the people of the cities and counties the power to conduct their own affairs? and will you vote for an advisory initiative and referendum system in state affairs? This questioning will prevent an evasion of the issues and the candidates' self-interest will compel them to pledge and in writing. These pledges will be kept if the people are wide-awake and mean business. Illinois succeeded, and so can Minnesota and other states.

The dynamic force for the Illinois changes started from non-partisan sources, as the foregoing history demonstrates. In other states the same course will probably be pursued. The opening wedge is the establishment of the advisory initiative in a city council, and the measure is most likely to be forced through by a Municipal Ownership league, the Central Labor union or by a Referendum league, provided there is secured the co-operation of a wide-awake daily paper.

TRAINED NURSES FOR THE ORIENT

Miss Jane Van Zandt, a Graduate of New York Post-Graduate Hospital, To Take Charge of First School For Nurses In Asia Minor—Beirut a Great Center of Medical Missionary Effort.

New York, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Syrian Protestant College at Beirut is about to enlarge the scope of its activities by adding a training school for nurses, the only institution of its kind in Asia Minor. A medical department was established at the college in 1867, the year after the institution was founded, but up to the present there has been no place nearer than London where physicians women could receive the scientific training which modern medicine demands from nurses. The need for such a school in the Orient is further indicated by the recent announcement that the next enlargement of the American College for Girls at Constantinople is to take this form, and by the difficulty experienced in finding women to take charge of the children's hospital founded in Athens a few years ago.

The addition to the Beirut institution is to be known as the Maria DeWitt Jesup Hospital for Women and Children and Training School for Nurses, in honor of the wife of Morris K. Jesup, the president of the board of trustees of the college. One old building has been refitted and, if the officials at Constantinople, to whom all such matters in the whole Turkish empire are invariably referred, are not more than usually dilatory in granting the necessary permission, a new one should be ready for occupancy in the near future. Miss Jane Van Zandt, who is to have full charge of the training school, sailed on the Slavonia for Naples on March 28. From Naples she will go to Alexandria and from there to Beirut. Miss Van Zandt is a graduate of the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital's training school for nurses and is a specialist in food for babies and children, to which more and more importance is being attached by physicians. She was in charge for a year of this department in the Post-Graduate hospital, where a special diet kitchen is maintained for the babies' wards.

Much difficulty was experienced by the trustees of the Syrian college in finding a suitable person to undertake the responsibility of inaugurating so radical an innovation in the East. When the children's hospital at Athens was started not a trained nurse could be found in the country to take charge of it and it was necessary to import one from England. An assistant was found in Miss Cleonike, a graduate of the American college at Constantinople, who had taken a course in nursing at the Massachusetts General hospital, where she had been seen by a Greek traveller. His called attention to her and Miss Cleonari returned to her own land where she has gained a high reputation. When the authorities of the Syrian college were confronted by the same difficulty, no Syrian traveller came to their rescue. Instead, they applied to Miss Rykert, superintendent of the nurses of the Post-Graduate Medical School. She at once recommended Miss Van Zandt who was then connected with the work of the Speedwell Society at Morristown, under the charge of Dr. Chapin, also, a member of the Post-Graduate faculty. It is probable that two or three other nurses will be sent out to assist Miss Van Zandt, who will also have the assistance of Mrs. Dale, the daughter of President Howard Bliss. She has been active in the work of the institution and has the great advantage of being a fluent Arabic scholar.

How much physicians, hospitals and nurses are needed in Asia Minor, and in fact, everywhere in the Orient, is scarcely realised by Europeans or Americans. The old Arabic science of medicine, which was once far in advance of European knowledge has dwindled with the decay and overthrow of the empire of the Caliphs to a rudimentary acquaintance with the virtues of herbs, combined with a enormous amount of exorcising the evil one. Of surgery and anatomy there is no knowledge at all. Mr. Jesup records that one of his visits to Beirut, a native doctor asked him for an American newspaper, secured it and departed. In a few days he was back again, asking for another. "What do you do with them?" Mr. Jesup asked him. "Oh," the native replied, "I tear them in pieces, soak them in water and feed them in oil to my patients. It cures them all right."

With such methods in vogue it is little wonder that the graduates of the medical department of the Syrian Protestant college are in demand all over Asia Minor and Egypt. Recently the authorities had a request for more men from the medical staff of the Soudanese army, where many of the 221 graduates have already found service. Others have secured government places and one or two have become members of the faculty. The students, who numbered last year 129, come from every part of Asia Minor, Egypt and the islands of the Greek archipelago, representing nearly every race and every creed which still survives in that quarter of the globe where all races and creeds have at one time or another been represented. Among them is a fair sprinkling of Mohammedans whose hatred of the infidel is held in abeyance by the desire to accumulate some of the infidel's learning. Whatever their creed may be, all students are compelled to attend the religious services of the college, but no objection is made to their also attending any others they may see fit.

The admirable work which is accomplished by this school can be appreciated only when one remembers that with the exception of the Jesuit college at Beirut, it is the only medical school in Asia Minor. The men in charge of it are physicians of the highest standing and it has been said by those in a position to estimate correctly that Dr. George E. Post, its head, could without difficulty make an exceptionally large income by the practice of surgery in America. The other members of the faculty are all graduates of well-known medical institutions, several having taken additional courses in the New York Post-Graduate Medical school. The facilities for observation and study at first hand, without which the best medical instruction in the world is almost paralyzed, have hitherto been obtained by an arrangement with the hospital founded and supported by the Knights of the Johanniter Order of Germany and containing eighty-three beds. The patients are attended by a corps of nine deaconesses of Kaiserswerth, assisted by native servants. The deaconesses have not been willing to undertake a training school and they also decline to receive maternity cases which are still treated by native midwives as they were in the days of the Pharaohs. This refusal has made necessary the establishment of a training school by the college itself.

No difficulty in obtaining pupils is expected, for within the last fifty years a remarkable change in the attitude of the Syrians toward education has taken place. Beirut is now once more a great educational center as it was in the time of Justinian the Great and is probably the most enlightened city of the Orient. There is far less prejudice there against foreigners than there is in Constantinople, for example, and the Mohammedans have been driven by the success of the Protestant college to establish schools for their own girls and women—a reform as violently opposed to Eastern traditions as can well be imagined. No better place than Beirut from which to influence the Arab world could be imagined. The establishment in this city of the greatest educational mission in the world whose property is valued at $1,000,000 was a fatherly act of the American missionaries who founded the college.

Since the people have consented to permit themselves to be cured by foreign physicians there is little chance of their going back to newspaper pills or to exorcisms of the evil one, and with the rapid spread of medical knowledge has come an appreciation of the accompanying necessity of skilfull nursing. Miss Van Zandt will at least have as willing pupils as those in the post-graduate school where she herself was trained and there will be no lack of ability to accompany the zeal. As a race the Syrians, from who mthe majority of new nurses will in all probability come, have retired the subtle, clever minds for which, in the last days of the Roman empire, their theologinns and philosophers were distinguished.

Although the Syrian Protestant college exists entirely for missionary work, to establish, as one of its trustees recently said, "A Christian civilizattion in Asia Minor," yet the extension of its activity which will be effected by the new training school, is not without political significance, for every nation in Europe has had its eyes fixed on the Eastern shores of the Mediterranean sea for many years. The Jesuit college at Beirut, the concentration of all former Jesuit activities through Syria, was formerly supported in large measure by the French government. Russia also has been active in the promotion of schools where Russia has been made a compulsory study in preparation of the day when the bear will be strong enough to reach to the south of the Black Sea. The war in the aFr East has shattered these projects and Germany is now the most active power in Asia Minor.

FOREIGN PARTICIPATION IN WESTERN CENTENNIAL

European, Oriental and Asiatic Countries Send Large and Comprehensive Exhibits To Lewis and Clark Exposition, Opening In Portland June 1.

Portland, Or., April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The officials of the Lewis and Clark Exposition, opening in Portland, June 1, are to be felicitated over the magnitude of foreign participation in their enterprise. There is hardly a country in the world that is not represented with a large and comprehensive exhibit of its resources and products.

The large European and Oriental exhibit buildings at the Western Centennial have been found utterly inadequate, as regards space, in complying with the demands of the various commissioners, and more than one country was forced to be satisfied with an amount of space far below its desires.

The exhibits of foreign countries at the Lewis and Clark Exposition represent an outlay for cost of assembling and transportation of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and the value of the displays can hardly be estimated.

As extremely low rates have been offered by all railroad companies for the round trip to Portland from various parts of the country, the trip is placed within the means of even those of moderate circumstances, and an opportunity is afforded to see the very interesting and instructive exhibits of the foreign countries. Among the countries represented are Italy, France, Germany, Great Britain, Holland, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Austria, Hungary, Switzerland, Turkey, Prussia, Algeria, Egypt, China, India and Ceylon.

Probably the largest, most valuable and interesting exhibit will be that of Italy, which will occupy more than one-half of the European exhibits building. The participation of this country has been under the careful supervision of Sig. Zeggio, Italian Commissioner, and is thoroughly representative of Italy. The exhibit is valued at a figure which closely approaches $1,000,000.

Half of the Italian space is devoted to marble statuary, for which the country is pre-eminently renowned. For this part of the exhibit many of the famous groups of the Loggia in Florence have been assembled, and figures from Naples, Rome and Venice are included. Italy's greatest masters will be represented by their best efforts. In addition to these, the art branch of the Italian exhibit will embrace the marvelous mosaics from Venice and Genoa, and Florentine silver filagree work. A creditable display will be made of paintings art jewelry, hand carved furniture, draperies, fine laces and embroidered curtains. The agricultural resources of Italy will be ably represented with a distinctive exhibit in which the products, peculiar to the country, will be featured.

France ranks second to Italy, sending a very large and valuable exhibit to the Centennial. A French drawing room of about the time of Louis XIV is to be reproduced and will form an interesting part of the exhibit. In this will be displayed gowns of fabulous value, some of them worth thousands of dollars. This feature should demand preferred attention from the fair sex. L'Art I'Vogue will be given considerable space, and the latest achievements of French jewelers and pottery manufacturers will be displayed. Bronzes, clocks, watches, paintings, ceramic arts and tapestries will complete the French exhibit in the European building. That country, however, is sending a liberal contribution of fine paintings and sculpture which will be displayed in the Fine Arts building.

Among the various exhibits of the German section, that of fine art needle work will prove astonishing as well as interesting. One specimen, ten feet long and eight feet wide, is an embroidered fac simile of the famous Sistine Madonna. It required three years in which to make this remarkable piece of needle work. The specimen is valued at $10,000.

Notable amongst the exhibits of German handiwork will be the displays of fine Batterburg laces, art and painted China, leather and linens.

In the display of musical instruments, an automatic organ, which in operation closely resembles a large orchestra, will prove a mystifying feature of the German exhibit. This contrivance is valued at $10,000. Art furniture, jewelry, amber goods, stems, large hall clocks and perfumery will be included in the exhibit and a representative display will be made of German wines and beers.

From Holland will be sent a large quantity of Delft ware, tiles, hammered brass and copper goods, painted ivory and cutlery. The natural resources will also be represented, with products of the podders of Zuyder Zee, principally cocoa, tobacco and Schedam Schnapps, a sort of gin, manufactured from potatoes and prunes. The exhibits from this section should prove of great interest to agriculturists and horticulturists, because it will be remembered that the products are from land which the sturdy Hollandese devoted eleven years to reclaiming from the savages of a great and disastrous flood.

Great Britain's participation in the Lewis and Clark exposition is rather light, but the exhibit will be complete in all respects and characteristic of the country. Graphic arts and fine linens will form the principal part of the exhibit, while English porcelain and Sheffield cutlery will be creditably displayed.

Sweden and Norway will make a joint exhibit of their beautiful potteries and tapestries, fine furniture and bric-a-brac.

Though suffering severely at the hands of the Japanese, Russia has not deemed the war of sufficient consequence to permit of ignoring the Lewis and Clark exposition, and she is assembling a representative exhibit. This will offer, in particular, the magnificent furs for which Russia is noted. Fine wood work, in laid with silver and gold, brass goods, bronzes and other metal art work will constitute an important part of the display.

The beautiful Bohemian glassware, in which visitors to previous expositions have exhibited so much wondering admiration, may be seen in profusion in the Austrian exhibit at the Centennial. Aside from this, the goods, statuary, jewelry, painted and colored crockeries, leather goods and bijoutirie or dainty trinkets.

Fine embroideries, crockeries and wood carving will form the principal part of the Hungarian exhibit. This will also embrace clothes and fancy garments, furniture, glassware and leather goods.

Swiss watches of the latest patterns and the ingenious cuckoo clocks are to be sent to the exposition from Switzerland. The magnificent laces of this Alpine country and fancy carved woodwork will also be shown.

Participation by Asiatic countries in the Lewis and Clark exposition has been exceedingly liberal. The Japanese section of the Oriental exhibits building will contain a very elaborate and instructive exhibit, showing the various products and manufactures for which the country is noted. A large and complete display will be made of Japanese arts, which will include the ingenious handiwork of embroidered kimonas and wall panels, the marvelous carved ivories, bronzes, lacquer work, gold and silver fancy work, hammered into gun metal, cloysene, Satsuma ware, kanazawa, oritware, imarlware potteries and hand-painted porcelain.

China is sending a very thorough and representative display of handiwork. The ingeniously carved and inlaid furniture, which has won for China the admiration of the entire world, will form the principal part of the exhibit. Aside from these, the display will include teakwood boxes, chests and cupboards, silk embroidered work, crockery and bronzes.

India's exhibit will show to advantage the marvelous rugs and shawls peculiar to that country, silks, embroideries, carved furniture, hammered and enameled brass and copper goods, bronzes, ivories and carved wood, and many antiquities of historical significance.

Turkey, Algeria, Prussia and Egypt have cast their lots together and will make a common exhibit. One of the most interesting features of this display will be an Egyptian mausoleum, a true replica of Egyptian architecture, which will contain a number of mammies, some of them 5,000 years dead. This exhibit is designed to exemplify the peculiar methods of embalming that were practiced by the ancient Egyptians, and should prove of unusual interest. The age of the mummies has been determined by the styles of wrapping in vogue in different epochs.

The Algerian, Prussian and Turkish sections will show displays characteristic of these Mohammedan countries.

TORTURING SKIN HUMOR

Whole Body Mass of Itching Sores and Scales. Awful Suffering for Fifteen Years.

CURED BY CUTICURA

"I take the liberty to drop you a few lines to let you know of my wonderful cure by Cuticura. My head was one mass of scabs, and my forehead was covered down almost to my eyebrows. I had to wear my hat all the time. My legs, arms, and body were covered with spots in size from a pin-head to as large as a silver dollar. A white, crusty scab would form and itch, and words cannot express how I suffered for fifteen years. I tried many doctors and all kinds of treatments, but could get no help, and thought there was no hope for me. While in Michigan last summer a friend told me to get Cuticura. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment, and in three days my head was as clear as it ever was. I applied the Ointment night and morning, also taking a hot bath three times a week, and using the Ointment freely after the bath. After using one cake of Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was completely cured, without a mark on my head or body. I was so pleased I felt like taking my hat in my hand and running down the street to tell every one I met what Cuticura had done for me. I shall never use any other soap but Cuticura. If any one is in doubt about this, they may write to me."

COMPLETE TREATMENT, $1

Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the skin and scalp of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and lastly take Cuticura Resolvent (Liquid or Pills), to cool and cleanse the blood. This pure, sweet, and wholesome treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep, and points to a speedy, permanent, and economical cure of the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, and scaly skin, scalp, and blood humors, eczemas, rashes, and irritations, from infancy to age, with loss of hair, when all else fails.

Millions Use Cuticura Soap

Assisted by Cuticura Ointment, purest and sweetest of emollients, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery.

Cuticura Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

Why We Recommend Orrine to Cure Drunkenness.

In taking the agency for Orrine, the liquor habit cure, we thoroughly satisfied ourselves that it was an article of genuine merit, and that the company, which is located in Washington, D. C., deals squarely and lives up strictly to the guarantee, "If the cure is not made the money will be refunded."

Since selling Orrine numerous cases have come to our knowledge that have been cured of the horrible liquor habit by this meritorious article, which strengthens the nervous system and destroys the craving for whiskey, beer or other alcoholic stimulants. Orrine is prepared in two forms. No. 1 should be given to cure the patient without his knowledge. It can be put into coffee or food, as it is tasteless, colorless and odorless.

We think that when the excessive drinker is approached properly he will be willing to be cured. If he consents, purchase Orrine No. 2, which is put up in pill form. Either form sells at $1 per package. Step into our store and receive full information regarding Orrine, the remedy that really cures the liquor habit. If you will write to the Orrine Company, Inc., Washington, D. C., they will send you free a book on "Drunkenness," in a plain paper wrapper.

We have great confidence that Orrine cures the drink habit, and highly recommend it to you. F. W. Kugler, 108 West Superior street, Duluth.

Nature Tells You.

As Many a Duluth Reader Knows Too Well.

When the kidneys are sick,
Nature tells you all about it.
The urine is nature's calendar.
Infrequent or too frequent action;
Any urinary trouble tells of kidney ills.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.
Duluth people testify to this.

Moses Leckey, flagman on the Northern Pacific railway, living at Seventy-first avenue west, Duluth, says: "A friend did me a great kindness when he recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me. He had used them with marked benefit, and on his recommendation I got a box and began treating a bad case of backache and kidney disorder, which had troubled me severely all last winter. There was acute pain in my back and loins and the irregularity of the kidney secretions was most annoying. It prevented sleep at night. The first box almost rid me of the trouble, but I continued using them until I had taken two boxes, then not a trace or a symptom of the trouble remained. I used Doan's Ointment for itching hemorrhoids with equally fine results, and it is needless to say that I am an earnest endorser of both remedies."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Negaunee

Negaunee, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Vashaw, Frank Walker, Axel Rasmussen, Abram Houison and F. W. Simcox represented the Negaunee camp of the Modern Woodmen of America at the county convention held Thursday at Michigamme. One delegate was chosen to attend the state camp session to be held in Battle Creek early in June.

The pupils of Prof. George C. Miller have arranged a very pleasing musical program, which they will render to the public, at McDonald's opera house, on Friday evening, April 28. Following the musical program, there will be dancing until 12 o'clock. The Negaunee and Ishpeming bands will be in attendance.

The members of S. H. & E. F. No. 8 have reason to congratulate themselves over the success of the social entertainment given Saturday evening at Christ Johnson's hall. The object of giving the social was to secure funds for a poor and worthy family of this city and it is pleasing to note that the neat sum of $56 was realized.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Dyer Wednesday morning.

Olaf Swanson, who left here about seven years ago for Alaska, returned Wednesday morning on a visit to friends, after which he will leave on a visit to his former home in Sweden.

H. W. Donaldson, who resigned his position as chemist at the Mary Charlotte and Breitung Hematite mines in this city and left shortly after for Arizona and Mexico, has settled in the latter place, where he has accepted a position of assistant superintendent of a copper property operated by the Copper Queen company at Cananea.

Miss Nellie Gaffney is here from Green Bay, on a visit to her mother.

Mrs. William Jory and daughter, Mabel, concluded a visit here, the guests of Mrs. Anthony Bread, and returned to Princeton Wednesday.

At the monthly meeting of the Negaunee French society Sunday afternoon matters pertaining to the annual reunion of the Marquette county societies to be held in this city Midsummer day, were discussed. SCOTT'S EMULSION

We don't put Scott's Emulsion in the class of advertised cure-alls; it doesn't belong there. We hardly like to use the word "cure" at all, but we are bound to say that it can be used for a great many troubles with great satisfaction. Its special function is to repair the waste of the body when the ordinary food does not nourish, and this means that it is useful in many cases which are indicated by wasting.

We'll send you a sample free.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl Street, New York.

Routine matters occupied the attention of the village council Monday evening. The application of Stanley Cooke and Godfrey Rothfus for permission to string a telegraph wire on the electric light poles from First to Seventh avenue was refused, on account of the danger of fire from crossing with electric wires. Plank walks were ordered laid from Poplar street along the alley in block 5 to the village jail and across the street at intersections where renewals are required and the street commissioner was authorized to inspect the Cedar street bridge and have the necessary repairs made on same. The resignation of P. G. Pastoret as chief of the fire department was accepted and Mr. George Spurbeck was appointed chief to succeed him. Thanks for past services were extended to the retiring chief. The committee who investigated the report of gambling in the village reported that the location of such gambling was unknown to them, and the chief of police was instructed to see that all gambling was stopped and prohibited in the future. Application was granted Barbo and Nelson to conduct a saloon in the Sundberg block, First avenue, and their bond for $2,000 in the American Bonding company was accepted. Forms of contract between the village and plumbers L. R. Erickson and P. G. Pastoret were approved and ordered executed and $250 bond of L. R. Erickson with C. M. Floathe and J. H. Nordby as securities was accepted as was also the bond of Constable William Pepperling for $250, with L. P. Christenson and C. A. Yernby. J. M. Hickox presented a bill for $206 damages on account of dangerous condition of the old water tank and tower. Chief of Police Yernby reported that he had checked the report of Justice of Peace W. S. Andrews, finding a balance of $5.60 due the latter. Bids for burning the garbage at the dumping grounds were opened and the contract awarded to Louis Helm, his bid being $59.60, against Hern an Anderson's $65.40. Three hundred dollars semi-annual interest on $10,000 water bonds, due on April 20th, was ordered paid the Corn Exchange bank of New York, and other bills amounting to $359.04 were allowed.

No Knife Needed

Piles can be cured by internal treatment. To get at the cause—that is the secret, and that is why Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific is so universally successful in its results. It increases the flow of digestive juices in the stomach—accelerates the action of the liver. With congestion of the liver removed and constipation relieved, the two chief and distinct causes of piles are reached and conquered.

Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific

The Internal Remedy

For dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness, catarrh of the stomach and kindred ailments it is the greatest remedy that has ever yet benefited mankind.

Certain in its results, this remedy will cure the most obstinate case of Piles.

WOMEN WHO FORCE THEMSELVES TO WORK.

Women Who Suffer from All Manner of Uterine and Ovarian Troubles, Weak, Nervous, Bloodless, Melancholy Women Find a Positive Cure in DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE PILLS

Every day sees an army of worn out women dragging themselves to work or forcing themselves to attend to their household duties—women whose trouble lies in an overstrain or over-exertion at some time in the past—women who stay in this condition and think themselves beyond repair, because they know nothing of the wonderful power of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills to give them back their health, strength and vitality, by their ability to resupply the lost nerve energy, to build up the system, to manufacture good, rich blood, and give increased weight by making the digestion strong and vigorous.

Mrs. Ella Smith, of No. 48 Miller St., Newark, N. Y., writes:

"Last summer I was so weak I staggered when I walked. I was very nervous, easily excited, could not rest nights, blood thin, appetite poor, and hands trembly—I was in a low state of health. About this time I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills, and though everything else had failed, these pills put me on my feet in good health, and that quickly, too. It was not long before I was eating and sleeping well—the nervousness and trembling gone—the blood rich and my strength back. They are a grand medicine and I feel vigorous and strong in every way." 50c a box at dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Portrait and signature of A. W. Also an agent for crushers and road rollers gave facts and figures in reference to having the city own a plant of its own, and crush some of the numerous rock outcrops in the neighborhood for roads as well as streets. The secretary reported seven new members, making the total membership now eighty-five. A committee of three members consisting of C. E. Bailey, Nell McInnis and Patrick McClory was appointed by the chair to act with the street committee of the city council with a view of getting proper information as to the cost of grading the main street either with macadam, brick or crushed rock. After a vote of thanks was tendered to the secretary, Solomon Sax, for his untiring efforts on behalf of the new organization, the meeting adjourned.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS CORNER

Betty Binner gave a dinner
On her third birth-day;
Teddy Smarty, fat and hearty,
Came with her to play.
And the naughty, naughty sinner
Saw the fixings for the dinner,
Crept he to the spot;
Stole the goodies—cake and candy—
Everything that he found handy—
Then away did trot.
Betty Binner saw the sinner,
Eating as he ran,
Loud she called, she screamed and bawled,
But Ted came not again.
Maud Walker

Anna May and Polly

or The Story of the Pickleses and the Tickleses.

BY MAUD WALKER.

"Le's play house," said Anna May, seating herself on a footstool and opening a big white pasteboard box that was crammed full of dolls and doll rags.

"All right," agreed Polly. Anna May's chum, who had just come to spend the afternoon. "Who'll you be?"

"I'll be Mrs. Pickles again, and you may be Mrs. Rattles, same as always," answered Anna May.

"Oh, let me be Mrs. Pickles this time," begged Polly, "and you be Mrs. Rattles."

Both little girls loved to play at being Mrs. Pickles, for in their imaginative minds Mrs. Pickles was a most desirable lady to impersonate, for she was supposed to be very beautiful, very wealthy and rode in a snow-white carriage drawn by a white shetland pony. Mrs. Rattles, on the other hand, was supposed to be a poor sick woman, with a number of very naughty children, who worried and fretted their mother continually. Mrs. Rattles had no carriage, either, and when she was able at all to go out it was to ride in a wheelbarrow pushed by an old negro servant.

Long days of playing these two fancied characters—Mrs. Pickles and Mrs. Rattles—had so identified the little girls with the parts that they thought of them as real ladies. Anna May, being the older of the two (she was eight years old and Polly was seven), always chose her part first, and her selection usually fell to the beloved Mrs. Pickles. Polly, of course, must needs take the one left to her without the privilege of choice.

But today Polly felt a desire to impersonate the elegant lady of ease, who had no children to vex her and who adorned herself in royal purple and priceless gems. So wealthy was this wonderful Mrs. Pickles that she had the buttons on her white kid shoes made of diamonds. Indeed, Polly was quite weary of playing the poor, sick Mrs. Rattles, who was forever swallowing bitter medicine and wearing a cloth wetted with cold water on her forehead.

"But I've always been Mrs. Pickles," declared Anna May. "You wouldn't know how to play her."

"Yes, I would," insisted Polly. "I'll play her just like you do."

"But I don't know how to play Mrs. Rats," said Anna May, determined to not relinquish her hold on the beloved Mrs. Pickles. "Cross my heart and 'pon my word an' honor I don't know how to play sick."

"Oh, then I'll tell you what le's do," cried Polly, a new thought coming. "S'pose we play Mrs. Rattles has got well again. She could easy do that. Then will you play her?"

"But I'd have to know how to play a woman what has been awful sick," said Anne May, using every argument she could to retain her hold on the person of Mrs. Pickles.

Polly sat quite still, thinking deeply; then the inventive little mind produced another suggestion: "Say, I'll tell you what let's do; let's play Mrs. Rattles is dead. You know the last time I played her she had smallpox. We can play it killed her."

"But who will you be if Mrs. Rattles is dead?" inquired Anna May, a bit confused.

"Why, I—I'll," hesitated Polly, thinking very fast, "I'll be a new lady, rich and b-u-t-i-f-u-l, like Mrs. Pickles. I'll play she has just moved to town."

"But what will we do with Mrs. Rattles' children?" asked Anna May, not relishing the idea of letting Mrs. Rattles—the object of her beloved Mrs. Pickles' charity—be got rid of. "Somebody has got to look after Minnie and Ethel and Grace and Archibald and Willie Rattles, yor know."

"Oh, yes; but I'll tell you what we'll do," quickly explained the ready-witted little Polly. "We'll play Mrs. Rattles has a mother, and after Mrs. Rattles died we'll play Gran'ma Rattles came on and took all the children home with her. That'll be awful nice for the children, don't you think so? We'll play she took 'em to—to——"

"To Cal-i-forna," suggested Anna May, who had an uncle living in that far-off land. "S'pose we play the children never—n-e-v-e-r were heard of any more."

"All right," agreed Polly. "Now, what shall I call the new rich lady?"

Then followed a long argument over names suggested by each, till at last they agreed on the name "Mrs. Tickles" as being similar to "Mrs. Pickles."

Then dolls were taken out of boxes and playthings were sorted over, as the homes of Mrs. Pickles and Mrs. Tickles were quickly arranged. There were two little tea tables, several doll chairs, a bedstead, a washtub, a small flatiron, some dishes and other like furnishings that go into the ideal playhouse, to be divided and placed into opposite ends of the long playroom. At one of these ends lived the rich and elegant Mrs. Pickles, while across the fashionable avenue (across the room) dwelt the newcomer in society, the beautiful Mrs. Tickles.

"Now," said Anna May, when all was in readiness for playing "house, "s'pose you play you have a green carriage and pony."

"All right," consented Polly, agreeable to most any suggestion, now that she was no longer obliged to be the ill Mrs. Rattles, vexed by mischievous children and obliged to swallow bitter medicine every hour.

"And play that a green carriage and pony ain't so expensive nor stylish as a white one is," went on Anna May.

"But play they are a-l-m-o-s-t as stylish," pleaded Polly, who desired the social position of Mrs. Tickles to be on a par with that of Mrs. Pickles. "Play green is next fine to white."

"Oh, yes; it can be next to white, but not so fi-n-e," consented Anna May. "And now let's play I'm coming to see you."

"All right," answered Polly. "Play that I'll ask you to stay to luncheon. Play I'll be dressed in pink satin, trimmed with white lace and di'monds."

"Oh, no," and Anna May shook her curly head, "Mrs. Tickles must n-o-t wear di'monds. Di'monds belong to Mrs. Pickles—always."

"But can't Mrs. Tickles wear 'em, too?" eagerly asked Polly. "Mamma has two di'mond rings and a pin and her lady frien's wear di'monds, too."

"No," and Anna May shook her head more determinedly than before. "I won't play if you 'sist on Mrs. Tickles wearing di'monds."

"Then, what can she wear?" questioned Polly, a shade of disappointment in her voice. She had associated Mrs. Tickles with pink satin and diamonds, and it cost her an effort to give them up.

"She can wear opals," suggested Anna May.

"No," remonstrated Polly, "I've heard Aunt Emma say it is bad luck to wear opals. I won't let Mrs. Tickles have bad luck—so I won't." And a gleam of defiance shot from the big, heavenly blue eyes of little Polly.

"Well," hesitated Anna May, wishing to arrange the matter of Mrs. Tickles' jewels satisfactorily, "s'pose she wears pearls."

"Are pearls expensive?" asked Polly, also anxious to have the question settled, so that the play might go on.

"Mercy—goodness! Expensive? I should say so," answered Anna May. "'Specially mother-a-pearls are."

"All right, then," agreed Polly. "Play I'm dressed in pink satin and mother-a-pearls. Play I'm sitting in my parlor when you come, an' play my parlor is as fine as yours."

Again the curly head of Anna May shook vigorously. "Oh, no," she said, "Mrs. Pickles must have the finest parlor in town. But Mrs. Tickles can have the next finest."

Polly reflected. Why should Mrs. Pickles have all the best? If Mrs. Tickles relinquished the white carriage and pony and the diamonds to Mrs. Pickles, then why should Mrs. Tickles rank second in the matter of a parlor?

"No, sir-ee," she said, for once determined to assert her rights—the rights of her already beloved Mrs. Tickles. "If I can't have as fine a parlor as you have I won't play. I'll take all my stuff and go home."

"I don't care—you can go if you want to," pouted Anna May. "I'll play by myself, so I will. I'll put my big dolly, Myrtle Isabel, over in that corner where you are and let her be Mrs. Tickles while I'm Mrs. Pickles."

"Oh, let me be, Mrs. Pickles, this time!" begged Polly.

"No, you shan't let Myrtle Isabel be Mrs. Tickles," stoutly declared Polly, her quick little temper asserting itself. "Mrs. Tickles is mine—all my own make-believe lady—and you s-h-a-n-t let Myrtle Isabel, nor anybody else, play her." Then Polly's eyes flashed, she clenched her round, little fists and stamped a harmless, tiny foot very emphatically.

"I guess I'll play Myrtle Isabel is anybody I please," declared Anna May, giving look for look, fist for fist and stamp for stamp.

"You're mean!" screamed Polly, beginning to cry and gathering up her playthings to go home. "You're mean—so you are, and I'll tell mamma on you—so—I—will."

"And you're mean, too," cried Anna May, also giving way to tears. "You won't never do as I say. You're a b-a-d girl—so you are."

Just as things were coming to an awful climax, for little fists seemed threatening, the door leading into the playroom was violently thrown open and in bounded Tod, the 11-year-old brother of Anna May. He was all excitement and did not notice that a storm was raging in that playroom.

"Hello, kids!" he cried. "Come, get on your hats and follow me. Papa's bought a new Shetland pony and cart, and if the pony is satisfactory he's going to buy it for us—you and me, Anna May. And you," turning to Polly, "may ride with us as often as you like, for you're Anna May's chum. Come, don't fool around, but get a 10-cent more on yourselves and don't keep us waiting." And away went the enthusiastic fellow, going down stairs astride the banister, for when he was in a hurry he found descent by the steps too slow.

Anna May dried her eyes instantly and looked at Polly, a smile banishing the little frown that had wrinkled the pretty brow.

Polly dried her eyes likewise and looked at Anna May, happy anticipation shining through the tears.

"Are you going home?" asked Anna May.

"Don't know," faltered Polly, putting down her playthings and beginning to twist the corners of her apron.

"Well, if you're not," said Anna May, "you may—go—with—with—Tod and me a-riding behind the new pony—if you want to."

"All right, said Polly, quickly getting her hat. "I'll leave all my stuff here, so when we come back we can play."

"Yes," replied Anna May, tying on her own hat, "and Mrs. Tickles may have a parlor just for all the world like Mrs. Pickles. We'll have lots of fun, won't we?"

And down the stairs hurried Polly and Anna May, their chubby arms about each other's shoulders, friends—yes, chums—once more, with only happiness in their innocent minds.

Hank Bunker's Letter To the Children.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

Deer Boys and Gurls, I quit Writing last week to eat my Supper which made Me end my letter offul Hasty. Now Ime going to tell you about mine and Ma's trip to the east for shure.

After a hole lot of Fuss we got our cloze and stuff all packed into our Trunk and cent fur the Hack man what took our trunk up on the frunt seet beside his self. me and Ma we got in the back and pa did 2. pa jest got in to go to the Depow 2 see us off. When we got to the Depow the trane hadent come in frum the west yet. It wus a mixed train at carried part cattle, part hogs and part people. the cattle and hogs and other fruit wus up clost to the enjin and the people Rode in a nise coach Behind them all with seets covered with stuffed red velvit. They wes very easie seets to set in but hot. The cattle and hogs got offul warm and uneasie. The people got warm 2 but not uneasie fur they was all agoing some where. Of course the cattle and hogs was agoing some wher 2 but they dident no it. They only need they wus took frum thare fine big pashtures and chucked into a hot car. They wood a bin much uneasier if they had noed they wus agoing somewhere to be et up. I felt sorry fur them hogs and cattle. Ide hate to be traveling 2 my own funerll and be et up after I wus Slautered.

Well, I guss you all think Ime going a long way Round to make a short kut bone. So here Goes.

After a long tegious wate in pulled the old traue, the enjin a spitting smoke thick as Mud and twiced as nasty. Pa got on the car with Me and ma. I carried a pillo and shoul and quilt and my overcote did up in a Strap. I also carried the lunch basket. It had enuff grub in it to start a hotell. Ma carried a nuther pillo and a big tellscope valice. ma also carried her best hat what had blush Roses with rubber stems in a hand box. Pa fumed when ma bowt that hat. He said it wus Tom foolerie. It cost $8. But ma said She dident mean to go East looking like no yahoo. Misses Skot had a $5 hat when she Went to the east. Ma is the sort that wont stand one step Lower down than no body else. She says she is As good potaters as the next one Ime Gitting redy 2 away 2. We come of Good stock ma says.

When the train began to move pa shook our hands and jumped off. But he whispered to ma to hold tight to her pocktbook. Ma says she bets pa's hart is the shape of a silver $.

When the trane pulled out thrne the big cut and we shot into the country ma wus excited offul, and said in a trimbling voice, we are off to the east, sun.

All that day we travled hard; not fast, but offul hard. It was a hot Day and the wind blowed like Sam Hill. it blowed nginst the trane and made it hard to pull. sinders kep agitting in my eyes. I set with ma and put outn the window. So did ma, but she wore a vale. A woman got on with a baby at a small stachun, where we stopped for the kunducktor to git off to walk a little while. He seemed tired of the cars. She was an offul fat woman and she set down in the seet next to me. Ma had a seet to herself and her bandbox. The Fat woman said to me, set nOng bub. jest as thow she dident already have 2 thirds of the seet. Then she asked me to git a drink fur her nuo the baby what was bailing to bret the Band. I done it threw respeck for her being a woman. My mother is a woman. But I dident have no respeck fur the kid.

After a long time the kunducktor come threw a taking up the tickets. Every pursin in the car asked what time they wood git threw, and that kunducktor told each one different. One Man he told wood git threw at 2 o'clock and a nuther one he told 4 o'clock. He wus a man that nobody could depend on. When he come 2 the fat woman she told him that she had left her Trunk a-setting on the Depow platform. He asked her if she checked it. she Dident no what He ment. Ma leaned over the Hind part of the seet and told the fat woman what a Trunk Check was. She took our Trunk Check out of her Bussin, whare it was pinned with a safety, and showed it 2 the fat woman, who shook her hed and said she dident have no sich ticket as that. The kunducktor got quite furious, but he kindly give Orders to the trane to shove back to the stashun and git the fat woman's trunk. When we got Back, low and behold, thare wus the fat woman's trunk on the platform and her husband wus setting astraddle of it. I guess He wus afraide some body wood steel it. The fat womnn got up and begun 2 git off the trane. The kunducktor tryed 2 shove her back on and told Her he wood sea 2 gitting her Trunk if she wood jest point at it. I aint a-going on the trip I started on, said the fat woman, getting as mad as a setting hen and pushing past the kunducktor. Then seeing her man setting on the Trunk she yelled at him, come hear, Sam, an git this youngin. I aint a-going 2 Squash Senter.

Her man got up onconserned and come 2 the platform of the trane and took the bailing kid in his Arms. The kunducktor got so all fired mad that he said something 2 a nuther man in My hereing that if pa had said it in-ma's hereing he—pa—wood never a herd the last of it to his dying day.

As our trane pulled out of that stashun agin we seen the fat woman load herself into a wagon what stood hitched to a telygraph pole, and she took the bailing kid after her. Then in clum the man after putting in the trunk behind the seet. Every pursin in the car laffed and laffed excep the kunducktor, and he wus mad enuff to a bit hisself. Buy and buy we come to a little town whare a lot more folks got on. A woman dressed up offul tony got on and set down beside of ma. A man got on with a prairy dog in a bird cage. He set down buy me. He was as fat as the fat woman, only he was a man, which wus no kompliment to him. When the train started I stooped over and looked at the prairy dog and stuck my finger in the cage at him. The man thumped me on the head with his nuckels and said: Take care thare kid. Don't munkey with that animal. After bit I got up and went back 2 git a drink. As I done so I noticed ma was a talking to the stilish dressed lady with the tony vooze. She seamed very frendly. I reckon she cood tell that ma come of good stock. When I had got full to my neck of ice water I returned to my seat, and there I sawe the man had slid along and took my end next to the windo. I wus offul mad, for I wanted to sea every thing of the world as we travled. Ma's quick eye seen what he done 2, so she jest reached over and punched the man in the neck with her finger and said: Excuse me, sur; but that end of the seet belongs 2 my sun. The man looked back at her and said: This seet belongs 2 the rale rode coupany, madam. Ma she spoke up as quick as greased lightning and said: I've paid my money fur that seat, and it belongs to my sun till his ticket expires. The man set perfectly quite and said back at her: Madam, if you can show me the place on your suns ticket what calls fur this espeshal seet then I vacate. Ma fired back at him with some pritty stiff talk. Says she: Well, you show me on your ticket where you own that thare seet and I'll give in. Then the man jist staired right in her face and said: Are you a paying full fair fur this youngstir? Ma seemed kinder stunped, and said: Well, Ime paying what the law ackwires me 2 pay. He is under 12.

The man he grunted like a hog and said, that is jest what I thout, I'aying half fair and wanting a hole fair seet. Hole fair seets, madam, are always next 2 the windo. Your kid is dooing well if he gits a seet on the ile. Then he turned round and kep the seet he set in and I staid buy the ile. But I made up my mind that Ide git eaven with him. I set and swung my feet against the legs of the fat man, once in a while hitting the bird cage with the Prairy dog in it. The old cogger wood stair hard at me and troun till you wood think he wood snap in 2, just like a mad school teacher. Then He would say 2 me, can't you set quite. I wood look up at him and grin and say, no mister.

Ma seamed to ketch onto my trick and it tickeled her most 2 death, she whispered and told the tony woman in the fine cloze about it. Then the woman whispered sumthing back at ma that made her laff till I thowt her jaw wood brake. Then ma mosbioned 2 me with her finger 2 come 2 her. she whispered in my year, saying, Henery, sun, we have planned a Trick on that old Feller. This lady bear and I have. Now you go back and set down. B jest as figity as you can. Ile bend over clost 2 you and ask if you are sick and you say you are so figity that you cant set still. Then ile ask if you feel a Fit coming on. You may depend on it if that old guy ever seen any pursin in a fit he will be making his self as scarce as possible.

So I set down on the ile end of the Seat agin and began 2 kick about like the old Skratch, a mocking the Bird cage with the Prairy dog in it plum over. The man set and Fumed. Purty soon ma she leans over and says, are you Feeling sick. I answered that I was awful figity, just coodent set quite. Ma jumps up and comes to me and pulls me up and sets her self in my place and takes me into her lap, acting as if she wus affal skared about me. Then she asks me, Sunny, doo you reckon a fit is coming on. I ansered that I Never felt more like having one in my Life than I did that minit. Ma she turns suddeutly to the man and says, Mister, will you please Lean back soze a little Fresh air can reach this chile. Flity-fide childern must have air. The old kogger looked nervous and scart. I begun ti wiggle and kick in ded Ernest then and you Orter a seen that old fellow git out of that seat. He grabbed up the cage containing the Prairy dog and shot down th ile to ward the back end of the car at a faster Spend than the old enjin was a pulling us tother direction. He speaks a Few excitible words to the kenducktor and back he comes. The kunducktor I mean. He looked at me sort of funny like and said to ma, is your child sick madam. Ma jest smiled real nise and said no, thanks, he is all right now sense he has his windo seet. I had popped into The Seet by the windo as soon as the old kogger got out.

Well I enjoyed the rest of that Ride but it was funny to sea that old feller with the Prairy dog. He stood out on the little porch at the back of the car a looking in at me and ma and he was so mad it seemed he wood explode his cloze.

But here come old Misses Skot to talk about New York Sity so I must quit for this time. You will hear from me agin next week for ile take up the east by then. I coodent rite when ma and her is talking for I want to hear ma Down her. Me and ma seen lots of things ole Misses Skot never saw.

So good buy, dont cry nor have a stye on your Eye. Your friend and school mait HANK BUNKER.

BILLY BUMPER BROWN IN THE COUNTRY.

"I love it in the country,"
Said Billy Bumper Brown,
"There's heaps of jolly fun out there
That can't be found in town.

"At mornin', when you first awake,
Right out of bed you jump,
An' run out through the kitchen
An' wash beneath the pump.

"Then, after breakfas' has been et
You skip and run about,
Performin' on the iron-rod fence,
A-turnin' inside out.

"Sometimes you try to ride a hog,
And land right on your head,
For hogs ain't easy goers,
If you don't care what is said.

"Then to the swimmin' pool you go,
With yell and laugh and skip,
And in the damp, wet water
You take a head-first dip.

"And so it is from morn till night,
You play the whole day through;
The country is the place for kids—
Just kids like me and you."

JIM AND MAG

Little Mag and little Jim
Came to school one day;
Teacher asked them questions,
But no word would they say.

They stood with wiggling fingers
And bashful, downcast looks,
One a-holding to the slates
And t'other to the books.

"'You're brother and you're sister,
I s'pose?" the teacher said;
The boy—he answered nothing,
The girl—she shook her head.

"'We ain't broth-er an' sis-ter,"
The girl spoke very low;
"I'm Mag an' he is Jimmy,
An' we be twins, you know."

ALL QUIET AT MINES AND MOST OF MINERS WILLING TO RETURN

Stripping Work at the Burt Mine Resumed By Porter Bros.

General Belief at Hibbing That Strike Is Practically Over.

Hibbing, Minn., April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—All is quiet here in the strike situation today. No further disturbances of any nature whatever on account of the strike are expected. The men appear to regret their action in walking out, and the big majority are ready to return to work as soon as the employing companies are willing to consent to such action on their part.

This morning stripping work at the Burt mine by Porter Bros. was resumed, with about 200 men employed. Neither the Mahoning nor any of the other mines to the west of Hibbing have discontinued operations because of the strike, or been affected by it, and it is not expected that work will be in the least interfered with there. Winston & Dear expect to begin stripping operations at the Mahoning mine next week. Other stripping jobs, affected by the strike, will probably be taken up again in the near future.

The order issued by the Oliver company Saturday, closing all its mines in the Hibbing district until a settlement with the strikers is made, still continues in effect, and no work is being done at these mines. The general belief here is that the strike is practically over.

At a meeting held Saturday evening, socialist speeches were made by Thomas Van Lear and C. G. Kenison, the latter being the Western Federation of Miners' man. Both emphatically stated that they were against any disturbance being started by the strikers. Sheriff Bates, Chief of Police Ring, Mayor Hardy and Village Recorder Bardessono were present at the meeting.

The Western Federation of Miners seems determined to organize the miners on the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges, and agents are in all the range towns now, and have been there for some time past, working toward this end. It is said that the federation hopes to organize Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan miners at the same time.

STRIKE OF ITALIAN RAILROAD MEN FAILS

Many of the Trainmen Refuse to Risk Bread For Their Families.

Rome, April 17.—The strike of railroad men which began today was not as successful as expected. Some of the men refused to strike and published a manifesto saying they could not risk the bread of their families. With these men and a military escort one train left Rome on each line. A car on each train was converted into a prison for use if arrests are necessary during the journey.

Notwithstanding the uncertainty of such traveling many Americans left this city for Naples, Florence and Pisa.

The leaders of the movement are trying to bring about a strike of all workingmen, but they find little sympathy. If it occurs the government has decided to entrust the military authorities with the maintenance of order.

Five men-of-war have been ordered to Genoa to maintain order.

The strike is in protest of the new bill presented by the Fortis cabinet because it provides for the dismissal of those who go on strike and does not contain an arbitration clause.

DEAF PEOPLE HEAR SERMON BY MEANS OF TELEPHONES

Chicago, April 17.—The first "sermon by telephone" ever preached in Chicago, has enabled Mrs. Mary De Blois, who is quite deaf, to follow every word of the first sermon she has heard in twenty-five years.

The sermon was preached by her son, the Rev. Austen K. De Blois at the First Baptist church. Although he was ordained seven years ago, Mrs. De Blois never had heard her son's voice from the pulpit, and her dearest wish was to be gratified.

Several other persons with impaired hearing also were able to understand everything the minister said.

The eight persons shut off from the rest of the world by reason of their affliction were connected with the pulpit by means of wires concealed under the carpet. By placing small receivers carrying almost invisible wires to their ears, they were able to hear the sermon.

On the reading desk in front of the pastor stood the transmitter in an inconspicuous oblong box. The pastor spoke in his usual tones. He did not at all times occupy a position in front of the reading desk, but wherever he stood in the pulpit his voice was caught by the transmitter.

The apparatus is built on the general principle of any other telephone, but is so constructed that it concentrates or collects the voice of the speaker and then magnifies it.

MRS. DANZ MUST HANG FOR MURDERING HER HUSBAND

Philadelphia, April 17.—By a vote of four to three the supreme court today decided that Mrs. Catharine Danz must hang for the murder of her husband, William G. Danz. George P. Hossey, a negro voodoo doctor, has also received the death sentence for the part he took in the murder of Danz. Danz died under peculiar circumstances, and a postmortem examination of the remains revealed the fact that he died of arsenal poisoning. Both Mrs. Danz and Hossey were arrested charged with the murder of Danz. The woman testified that she had bought powders from Hossey and administered them to her husband for the purpose of curing the drink habit. She claimed not to have known the contents of the powders. Hossey was first placed on trial and convicted of having sold powders containing arsenic and which, the prosecution alleged, killed Danz. At the conclusion of Hossey's trial, Mrs. Danz was tried on the charge of murder, for having administered the poisonous powders. She was also convicted, and both were sentenced to be hanged. An appeal was taken to the supreme court by the woman's counsel, but today's decision leaves only the pardon board between the woman and the gallows.

PATTERSON TRIAL IS POSTPONED

New York, April 17.—The trial of Nan Patterson for the murder of Caesar Young, which was postponed from last Monday, was again postponed today when the case was called in the court of general sessions.

The delay this time, however, probably will be only for twenty-four hours, since the only thing awaited is the final ruling by Justice Gaynor on a motion asking that District Attorney Jerome be ordered to surrender the papers confiscated when J. Morgan Smith and his wife were arrested at Cincinnati. The motion for an adjournment until tomorrow, which was made by Assistant District Attorney Rand, was strenuously opposed by counsel for the prisoner.

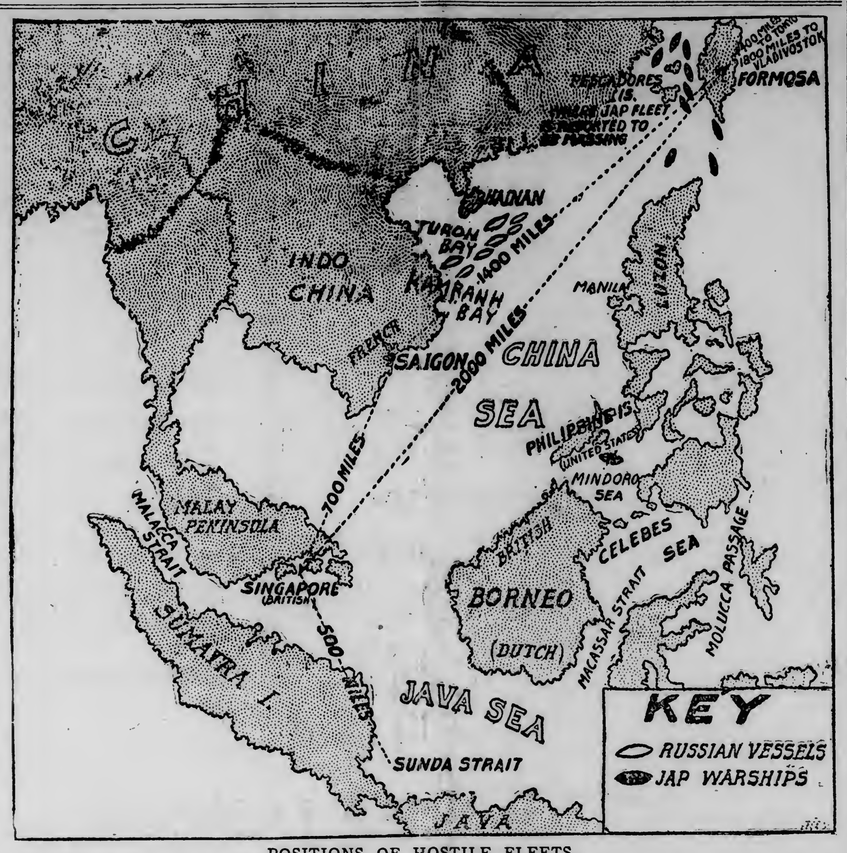
McGOVERN BADLY OFF.

Stamford, Conn., April 17.—Terry McGovern, the pugilist, has been brought to a sanitarium here from New York. According to the physicians he is suffering from nervous, mental and physical exhaustion, and it is expected that his stay in the institution will extend over several months.

GAME CALED OFF.

Philadelphia, April 17.—Today's Boston-Philadelphia game called off on account of cold weather.

MYSTERIOUS MESSAGE CAUGHT BY UNITED STATES MAN-OF-WAR



POSITIONS OF HOSTILE FLEETS.

Part of the Russian squadron was sighted Sunday at Turon bay, 350 miles north of Kamranto bay, which is supposed to be the main base of Admiral Rojestvensky for the purpose of taking on supplies. Nothing has been heard from Admiral Togo, but his fleet is supposed to be in the vicinity of Pescadores island, which he has taken for a base.

HOUSE WILL NOT RECEDE FROM ITS ACTION ON THE FOREST RESERVE LANDS

Action on Report Roasting Former Examiner Johnson Avoided.

Trouble Between the Two Houses on Reciprocal Demurrage.

Barker Primary Election Bill Passed By the Senate.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house this morning refused to recede from its action in asking congress to throw open the Chippewa reservation forest reserve lands to settlement, by a vote of 52 to 32. The question came up on the Morley resolution revoking the former action of the house on the matter. Morley and W. B. Chamberlain of Minneapolis spoke in favor of the resolution, and B. S. Bennett of Posston, A. L. Cole of Walker and W. D. Washburn, Jr., of Minneapolis, made speeches agains it.

Cole and Bennett made stirring pleas, asking the house not to vote to tie up a large portion of Northern Minesota for an impracticable forest scheme.

Hugo of Duluth raised the point of order that under the rules the resolution would have to go to a committee and be considered in committee of the whole first. The speaker sustained the point and Morley moved the suspension of the rules. Upon that motion there were 34 for and 52 against, so it was lost.

Action on the Morgan resolution in the senate was put over to this afternoon.

* * *

John Zelch of Cottage Grove introduced a resolution stating that as the public accounts committee had found that ex-Public Examiner Johnson had taken money illegally, the attorney general should be instructed to begin suit in court for recovery against him and his deputies. The resolution went over to tomorrow on Jefferson's notice of debate.

The house avoided action for or against the report of the public accounts committee roasting Johnson by laying it on the table. Burdett Thayer of Fillmore county moved the adoption of the report, and before any debate was indulged in, Sherman Smith moved the previous question. Rockne then moved to lay the Thayer motion on the table, and the speaker ruled that this motion took precedence. It was carried with only a few dissenting votes.

* * *

The revenue bill was introduced and passed under suspension of the rules. The bill carries a levy of $1,200,000 in 1906 and $1,000,000 in 1907, and provides that the tax levy shall not exceed a mill and a half. It will be about 1.4 mills in 1906 and 1.2 mills in 1907.

* * *

There is going to be trouble between the two houses on reciprocity demurrage during the closing hours. The senate this morning passed the Nolan bill, with the railroad committee's amendments, which left nothing but the title, by a vote of 34 to 1. The bill was reported back to the house, and the house refused to concur in the amendments. A conference committee has been appointed, consisting of three from each house, and W. A. Nolan, author of the original bill, is on the house committee. The house will want to strike out the senate railroad committee's amendments and restore the old bill, though it may be willing to concede something.

* * *

The omnibus bill came back from the senate this morning. The house refused to concur in the amendments and appointed a conference committee of seven, asking that a similar committee be appointed from the senate. The outlook is that the insurgents will not be able to hold their strength, and that while the senate may consent to scale down the university's appropriation, a little $50,000 or so, the bill will not be much changed from the condition in which it left the senate.

* * *

On motion of Morley, the house advanced all of the senate bills now on general orders to the calendar, together with house bills that are of a local character. This will save much time and will enable a few more bills to get through.

* * *

The house adopted a resolution by Mackenzie commending the capitol commission for its work on the new capitol.

The house killed the Roberts bill prohibiting bill boards in cities.

* * *

The house committee on illuminating oils, which has been thinking over the proposition of a gravity test for oils for a couple of months, reported that it had not had time to properly consider the matter, that a gravity test would increase the price of oils 2 cents a gallon, that it would not be proper to interefere with the privilege of the people to buy cheap oils if they want to, and that the state oil inspector should look into the matter.

* * *

The senate passed the Barker primary election bill providing for separate June primaries to elect delegates to county conventions that select delegates to the state conventions.

* * *

The bill confirming the acts of the auditor in illegally extending the time on large timber permits was killed, 21 for and 25 against.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

DIFFERENCES OVER APPROPRIATION BILL

House Scales Down Amounts and Senate Puts Them Back.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The last working day of the thirty-fourth session of the Minnesota legislature dawned full of possibilities of war—war between the two houses and within each.

The principal disturbance was expected to be over the differences between the two houses on the omnibus appropriation bill. Saturday afternoon the insurgents, led by R. J. Wells of Breckenridge, began their attacks upon the bill in earnest, and succeeded in scaling it down $190,000.

Afterwards the senate put all of the items making up this total back in the bill, and added $15,000, making a difference of $205,000 between the two houses.

So today opened with this difference to be made up in conference committee, and the outlook for trouble was good.

The increases made by the house appropriations committee, and adopted by the house, as reported Saturday, were all concurred in by the senate.

The ball opened Saturday afternoon, when R. J. Wells offered an amendment cutting down the state university's appropriation for a new main building from $400,000 to $300,000. The feeling against the university was made manifest when the amendment was adopted, after a heated argument, 58 for and 45 against.

Then, in rapid succession, the following items were struck out by the

BRIGGS ACQUITTED BY COURT-MARTIAL.

Manila, April 17.—Commander John B. Briggs, U. S. N., has been acquitted of the charges preferred against him by the naval court-martial which tried him here.

Commander Briggs was in command of the cruiser Baltimore when that vessel grounded in the straits of Malacca, about six months ago, and it is presumed that the charges preferred against him were in connection with that affair.

CAME BY WIRELESS FROM OFF MANILA

Torpedo Boat Destroyers Are Unable to Fathom the Source.

Rojestvensky's Fleet Is Now Well Along to the Japanese Base.

Manila, April 17.—The cruiser Rainbow, the flagship of the Philippine squadron, received a wireless telegram at 6 o'clock yesterday evening from some point estimated at about sixty miles off the entrance of Manila bay, as follows:

"Is there anyone inside with a wireless apparatus?"

The following answer was returned: "Do you wish to communicate?"

No reply was made to the question, and the torpedo boat destroyers Dale and Decatur were sent to investigate. They have returned to port without having solved the mysterious message.

London, April 17.—A special dispatch from Hongkong says that a portion of the Russian fleet was seen Sunday at Turon bay, about 350 miles north of Kamranh bay.

Turon bay is between Lat. 16 and Lat. 17 north. According to advices from Hai Fong to a Paris newspaper forty Russian vessels were recently sighted in that latitude, steaming north.

St. Petersburg, April 17, 11:14 a. m.—The news that vessels of the Russian fleet have put into Kamranh bay, north of Cape Padaran, off the east coast of Cochin China, bears out statements contained in these dispatches a week ago to the effect that Admiral Rojestvensky probably would seek shelter off that part of the Cochin China coast and there coal and make his final preparations before embarking on the final stage of his journey. No definite information is obtainable as to the length of the fleet's stay at Kamranh bay, or whether the warships have already sailed, the admiralty even if it knows being naturally silent on this point.

"You may be sure," said an officer, "that every precaution will be taken against a torpedo attack. Rojestvensky can be relied upon to protect his ships."

Among naval men the idea that Admiral Rojestvensky has divided his fleet is not entertained.

No confirmation has been received here of the reported naval engagement north of the Natuna islands, which, according to the British steamer Telemachus, which has just arrived at Hongkong, took place 150 miles north of the Natuna islands in the afternoon of April 12.

Tokio, April 17.—It is calculated here the Russian fleet arrived at Kamranh bay at noon April 12 and, therefore, had been occupying the port for eight hours when seen at noon April 14.

The information received regarding vessels of the Russian fleet being seen at Kamranh bay, April 14, reached Tokio today and was given to the public through a brief communication from the navy department. The news was a surprise because it was generally doubted that France would permit the use of her ports to a belligerent squadron engaged in offensive operations. The Japanese government is silent on the subject of its intentions, but it is expected that it will make immediate representations to France. The response to France is eagerly awaited, particularly as to whether France admits the squardon is within territorial waters. France denied that the Russian squadron was within territorial waters when off Madagascar. If she denies it in this instance it will give Japan an opportunity to attack the Russian vessels without violating France's neutrality. Many people continue to believe the Russian squadron will speedily leave Kamranh bay and continue its voyage northward.

RUSSIAN RENDEZVOUS

Is Probably In the Vicinity of Kamranh Bay.

Paris, April 17.—The dispatch from Saigon announcing the presence of Russian warships at Kamranh bay is considered as showing that Admiral Rojestvensky is not moving northward as fast as was expected.

The fact that Admiral De Jonquieres, the French naval commander at Saigon, is proceeding to Kamranh bay and the departure from Saigon last night of a vessel having on board a cargo of Russian stores, combine to indicate that the Russian rendezvous is not far distant from Saigon and that probably it is in or near Kamranh bay.

RUSSIAN WARSHIPS

Are Anchored In Kamranlo Bay Taking Supplies.

Saigon, April 17.—The Japanese recently captured a large number of colliers off the coast of Cochin China.

Six men supposed to be Japanese landed some days ago at Cape St. James, near here, from a junk and after a brief stay reimbarked.

A number of Russian warships are anchored in Kamranh bay where they are revictualling.

The steamer Eridan which was purchased by a local French firm, sailed yesterday evening with a full cargo of provisions for the fleet.

The health of the Russians is remarkably good. Only eight deaths from disease have occurred since their departure from Europe, out of an effective totaling 18,000 men.

A Russian officer suffering from beri beri is in the hospital here. The other sick men who were brought here by the Russian hospital ship Orel include Prince Cantacuzene but the reports that the Orel had wounded men on board are unfounded as there had been no fighting up to the time of her arrival.

Admiral De Jonquieres has rejoined the French cruiser Descartes in Kamranh bay, Cochin China, about 200 miles northeast of Saigon.

RUSSIAN SAILOR WAS SAVED.

Saigon, April 17.—The Russian sailor who fell overboard in the straits of Malacca, and who was rescued after floating twelve hours on a plank, was brought to Saigon, whence he has rejoined the squadron.

Admiral Bayle has signed a contract with a Hong Kong firm for the salvage of the French armored cruiser Sully, which ran on rocks in Allong bay early in February. The firm will be paid $300,000 if it succeeds in raising the cruiser. The Sully is still fast upon the rocks.

HELD UP BY RUSSIANS.

German Steamer Detained For Over Two Hours.

Hongkong, April 17.—The German steamer Brunhilde arrived here today from Singapore and reported that she was stopped for two hours by three Russian cruisers April 14, thirty miles north of Cape Badaran. The Brunhilde counted altogether thirty-three vessels steaming north northeast at ten knots. The ships appeared to be in good condition. A report is current here that a portion of the Russian fleet has reached a bay in Chinese waters northward of Hongkong.

Cape Padaran, off the east coast of Cochin China, is not far south of Kamranh bay where it is reported a number of Russian warships are anchored and revictualling.

FREQUENT COLLISIONS

Are Occurring Between the Armies on Land.

Tokio, April 17, 2:30 p. m.—The following official report was issued today from the headquarters of the Japanese armies in Manchuria:

On the night of April 15 five squadrons of the enemy's cavalry entered Sanyenching, on the Fakoman-Fenghua road. Our force made a night attack and repulsed the enemy northward. The enemy was panic stricken and left eight men dead on the field. Our losses were two men killed.

Frequent collisions between cavalry are occurring at various places. Otherwise there has been no material change in the situation.

STEAMER HEARS FIRING.

Hong Kong, April 17.—The steamer Telemachus reports that she heard firing 150 miles north of the Natuna islands at 3:20 o'clock on the afternoon of April 12.

PROCLAIM DEFENSE ZONES.

Tokio, April 17.—The navy department has proclaimed defense zones surrounding the Pescadores, the island of Okinawa, in the Loochoo group, and the islands of Oshima and Emi, off the province of Osumi. The usual navigation restrictions apply.

FOREIGN SYMPATHY.

St. Petersburg, April 17.—A very marked change in tone towards the United States is noticeable in the newspapers which usually voice the opinions of the government, many of which dwell on the manifestations of a friendly disposition at Washington. The Novoe Vremya, discussing the question of foreign sympathy, remarks upon the distinction between the attitudes of the government and peoples, the French masses, for example, earnestly desiring a Russian victory, while the French financiers are doing everything possible to bring about the conclusion of peace. In the United States, the paper adds, the people appear to be hostile, but the government is friendly.

Amos Shephard Better.

The condition of Amos Shephard, who developed a turn for the worse that gave much alarm on Saturday, is much better today. Symptoms of meningitis, which developed Saturday, did not remain long, and yesterday he was better, and today a further improvement is noted.

CHANGE IN ATTACHES.

St. Petersburg, April 17.—M. Gutoroski, an attache of the Russian embassy at Washington is to retire and will be succeeded by M. De Thal, second secretary of the Russian legation at Copenhagen.

RAILROAD NEWS

Section Crews Being Brought Up to the Normal Size.

Union Pacific Gasolene Motor Car Given Thorough Test.

All of the railroads in this section of the country are beginning to employ full crews of section men for regular railroad work, as well as extra gangs for any special work which it may be found necessary to carry on. During the cold months of the year the regular section crews are reduced to two or three men, because, in the winter time, when the ground is frozen, few repairs are necessary, and it is also difficult to make any changes or improvements in the tracks. With the arrival of spring, and as the frost leaves the ground, the services of additional men are required, and the section crews are brought up to their normal size.

All of the roads entering Duluth have more or less of new work to be done. Considerable has already been said of the new construction work on the three range roads. At the Head of the Lakes the largest number of extra men are at present employed at the Allouez Great Northern dock, where several improvements are in progress. The most extensive of these is the filling in of the long trestle approaching the ore dock. The approach is half a mile in length and in one place forty feet high. The object of the improvement is to do away with the almost constant repairs made necessary to the approaches by wear and tear of heavy traffic.

IS A SUCCESS.

Union Pacific Motor Car Attracting Attention.

Omaha, April 17.—Railway officials who yesterday made a 200-mile trip in the Union Pacific gasoline motor car which was put in commission by that road today, express the opinion that the success of the car will result in a revolution of suburban and branch line railroad passenger and freight service. Yesterday's test of the Union Pacific car was the final one before placing it in practical service between Grand Island and St. Paul, Neb., where it will make two trips daily as a branch train.

The car, which was built purely in an experimental way, seats twenty persons, and in the forward end, where is located the gasoline motor, is a space reserved for baggage. The regular service cars, construction of a number of which will begin at once, will be fifty feet long, will seat fifty-five passengers and accommodate their baggage.

Officials of a number of the large railroad systems of the country already have interested themselves in the idea, which will be exploited at the coming railroad congress at Washington.

PROFITS ARE LESS.

Road Agent Gives Figures to Prove Assertion.

According to a dispatch from New York J. H. Maddy, the press agent of the railroads in their resistance of proposed rate regulation, calls attention to the preliminary report of the interstate commerce commission giving the earnings of practically all the railroads of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, which shows some very important changes in the cost of conducting the railroad business. The figures for the 1904 fiscal year show the results of the operation of 209,699 miles, as against 205,313 miles for the preceding year. The totals for 1904 are as follows:

Gross earnings $1,956,633,821
Operating expenses 1,332,382,948
Income from operation $624,250,873

The gross earnings for 1903 were $1,890,-846,957, or an increase for the year 1904 of about $65,000,000. Operating expenses were $1,332,382,948 in 1904, as against $1,257,-538,852 in 1903. The ratio of operating expenses thus increased from 66.46 per cent in 1903 to 67.75 per cent in 1904.

This increase in the cost of operating the railroads of the United States is of particular interest at this time. It resulted in a decrease of teh revenue available for interest charges and dividends of something over $8,000,000, the net earnings in 1904 being $624,250,873, as against $640,644,128 in 1903. In other words, while the railroads sold over $65,000,000 more transportation than in the preceding year, the actual returns, as regards the owners of the railroads, diminished $6,000,000. The figures of the interstate commerce commission are claimed to demonstrate on their face, therefore, that the public received cheaper transportation, and the relative proportions of profit to the railroads materially diminished.

Great Northern Extension.

Seattle, Wash., April 17.—The Great Northern railroad has let contracts to a St. Paul company for the construction work for a line to run from some point on the Republic, Wash., line of the system to Princeton, B. C., a distance of eighty-six miles.

Railroad Personals.

C. L. Kennedy, commercial agent of the Omaha in Duluth, has returned from a trip to Chicago.

W. T. Wilke, J. C. Overman and L. E. Ayer of the South Shore city office have returned from a fishing trip up the north shore. They report good luck—in getting home.

A. B. Smith of St. Paul, assistant general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific, is in the city today.

GEORGE GLEASON

Of Biwabik Dies at the Rochester Hospital.

Biwabik, Minn., April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sad news reached here Sunday morning that George Gleason, who left here four weeks ago for Rochester, Minn., to undergo treatment for goiter, with which he had been suffering since Christmas, died Saturday night at 10 o'clock after being in a serious condition since Tuesday. He had contracted an attack of pneumonia. Rheumatic fever set in. His parents left here Wednesday morning and were at his bedside when he passed away. The news came as a great shock to the community. George Gleason was 22 years of age and had made his home here since he was a little lad. He held the position of bookkeeper at the Biwabik mine for the past few years, his brother Delbert filling the vacancy since he went to Rochester. The deceased was well liked by all who knew him and was elected village treasurer at the last election by a large majority. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral.

MILLS ALL GOING

Merrill & Ring and Alger-Smith Have Started.

St. Louis Began Wednesday—No Night Shifts Yet.

The Merrill & Ring saw mill began its operations this morning. The company expects to saw about 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 feet of lumber during the year but will not have a night shift so far as known at present. The mill was to have started up a week ago today but was prevented from doing so by the amount of ice in the ponds and slips. This has been removed and there is no impediment now.

The St. Louis mill which is being operated by Robert P. Dowse this year, began its season's run last Wednesday, a break in the machinery causing a delay of a day. The amount which this mill will saw is as yet problematical. A contract for W. T. Bailey of Virginia will run anywhere from 7,000,000 to 12,000,000; besides which Mr. Dowse will saw some lumber for himself.

The Alger-Smith mill began operations today also. This mill will cut about 35,000,000 to 40,000,000 feet of lumber for the company which owns the mill.

GUN CLUB MEETS.

Will Fix Date For First Formal Shoot.

The West Duluth Rod and Gun club will hold a meeting tonight at the rooms of the Commerical club and will then prepare for the first shoot sometime within a week. The members of the club gathered yesterday at the site chosen for grounds at the foot of Sixty-third avenue west, and built and almost completed their shooting house. The work will be finished in a few days. The trap and birds will be here this week and will at once be installed in place so that the members of the club may have their shoot soon. The date of the first shoot will be decided on tonight. A full attendance is expected.

TO CANADA TO LIVE.

Al Warren's Family and Hugh Blaine's Moving.

Al Warren, sawyer of the Red Deer Lumber company of Saskatchewan, is back and will leave for his post in the Canadian Northwest on Friday. Mrs. Hugh Blaine, wife of the superintendent of the Red Deer company, has her goods in the same car, and she herself will visit for a few days in Marquette, Mich., before going to her new home. Mr. Blaine was formerly superintendent of the Seur mill at West Duluth.

Mr. Warren is enthusiastic over the northwestern part of Canada, and says he is going there to stay. He says the seeding is over for two weeks past in that territory, and every one is prosperous. Winnipeg, he says, expects to add 25,000 to her population in the next year.

FARMING IN DAKOTA.

W. H. Hawthorne Sowing Flax and Wheat.

W. H. Hawthorne will tomorrow ship about five or six men and thirty head of horses to Melville, N. D. Mr. Hawthorne expects to put in about 2,200 acres of grain for himself. He is owner of a considerable tract of land there. Mr. Hawthorne has a full farming equipment at his farm which he has worked for several years.

One thousand acres of the land is to be broken this spring, and will be sown to flax. The old land will have wheat.

Entertain Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hunt delightfully enetertained a number of their friends at their home, 1831 West Fourth street, Saturday evening, in honor of the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage. The rooms were beautifully decorated and the evening was spent in music and cards. The head prize was won by Mrs. William Munnion, and the consolation was captured by Thomas Hunt. Dainty refreshments were served.

Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames H. Longdon, T. Hunt, Woods; Mesdames W. Munnion, M. J. Flliatrault, W. F. Brotherton, S. Hunt, McMahon, Jeffrey, Trible, Anderson, Norstrom, A. Anderson and La Brosse; Merrs. P. Toomey, G. Kline, H. Sleycer, C. Johnson and L. Peterson.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Miner Crushed By Rock Fall on Leaving Day's Work.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Lead—A large rock fell from the roof in the Homestake mine, killing John Peretti, a miner. Peretti had been working in the place all day, and was preparing to go off shift when, without warning a part of the roof fell, pinning him to the ground. The rock was removed by other miners, and Peretti was taken to the hospital, where he died in an hour.

Aberdeen—The Dakota Central Telephone company has presented a petition to the city council asking permission to place its wires in the business part of town underground. The council will undoubtedly pass an ordinance governing the subject. The company intends to expend at least $30,000 in improvements on its local system.

The local ministerial association has taken ground against the Sunday funeral. Company L, South Dakota National guard, was inspected by Captain Michael J. Lenihan of the regular army. The examination was very strict, and at its close the members were mustered into the service for three years.

Sioux Falls—A Sioux Indian aristocrat bearing the plebian name of Long Legged Bull, while visiting Adolph Ziska, an old German friend in this city, enjoyed many of the viands set before him at a German dinner given him by his friend, but drew the line at sauerkraut. The Indian relished the weinerwurst, but after tasting the sauerkraut passed it up with an expressive grunt. After eating heartily he arose from the table and explained that he must hurry down to the hotel where he was stopping. He stated that he had a dinner paid for at the hotel and would not miss it for anything. Thus the hungry Indian enjoyed two dinners. Long eLgged Bull is in Sioux Falls as a witness in a case pending before the United States court. His home is on the Cheyenne River reservation. While being shown the sights of the city Ziska took the old Indian in the elevator to the top of one of the local skyscrapers. The Indian was frightened and insisted upon using the stairway in going to the lower floor of the building.

Elk Point—Young men giving the names of George Taylor and Harry Vreeland of Sioux Falls, were arrested here for burglarizing two saloons, a billiard hall and a blacksmith shop at Akron, Iowa. They waived examination and were bound over to the circuit court of Plymouth county, Iowa. It is understood they will plead guilty.

Rural mail carriers from this postoffice handled nearly 3,000 more pieces of mail in the first three months of 1905 than in 1904.

Pelrre—Judge Gaffy, after hearing the arguments in the Walforth county seat contest, dismissed the proceedings, which sends the records from Selby back to Bangor, but allowed a stay of sixty days for an appeal.

Selby failed to get a majority at the election, but took possession of the records. If the supreme court sustains the lower court they will have to be taken back.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The loss of an arm in an explosion of a cannon in a celebration did not save James McKechnie from arrest by United States officials on a charge of selling liquor to the Indians. He was employed last summer on the state encampment grounds at Devils Lake. He denies the charge and claims that on the date in question he was intoxicated. He learned the authorities were after him and skipped, but recently returned to his father's farm in Ransom county, where his arrest was made.

Trainmen on the west-bound Northern Pacific passenger were forced to remove a Portland passenger from the car here and send him to the hospital for treatment for delirium tremens. The man had $999, but was unable to give his name or that of friends.

The railroad lines on the Northern Pacific are to be double-tracked this summer through Fargo and Moorhead. Only one track will be laid across the bridge, but the other work will facilitate the handling of trains to a great degree.

A new bank is to be established at Harvey by Charles B. Webster of Fargo.

Fargo is threatened by a boost in the prices of all kinds of meats as a result of the dearth of marketable stock.

CHEATED DEATH.

Kidney trouble often ends fatally, but by choosing the right medicine, E. H. Wolfe, of Bear Grove, Iowa, cheated death. He says: "Two years ago I had Kidney Trouble, which caused me great pain, suffering and anxiety, but I took Electric Bitters, which effected a complete cure. I have also found them of great benefit in general debility and nerve trouble, and keep them constantly on hand, since, as I find they have no equal." All druggists guarantee them at 50c.

PUT TAX ON BACHELORS

Cleary Bill Favorably Reported to the Wisconsin Assembly.

Madison, Wis., April 17.—Single blessedness—male single blessedness—bids fair to become a taxable luxury in Wisconsin in the near future. The Cleary bill to tax bachelors over 30 years of age has been favorably reported by the assembly committee on assessment and collection of taxes, and will come up as a special order in the lower house of the legislature next Wednesday night.

The legislature has a strong majority of married men in both branches, and the economists finally have succeeded in getting a taxation measure to the fore which has been handicapped by the old stalwart-half-breed factional warfare.

Forty thousand badger bachelors will be affected by the provisions of the Cleary bill if it becomes a law. Two hundred thousand marriageable women also are taking more or less interest in the pending legislation. Governor La Follette, whose veto might defeat the proposed legislation, began his duty to society and the state before he entered upon his public career by getting married, and his interesting home is brightened by two girls and two boys.

Legislation to make marriage easier is pending as a sort of accompaniment to the proposed tax on bachelors. A few years ago the legislature enacted a marriage license law, the outgrowth of the agitation against the no-license system that made Wisconsin a Mecca for runaway couples. It provided that licenses must be taken out five days previous to the marriage ceremony, and was effectual in putting an end to the scandal it was designed to correct. Now it is proposed to amend the law so that there need be no delay between license and ceremony.

Assemblyman Patrick Cleary of Elroy, himself is a bachelor of taxable age, introduced the new revenue measure, which will yield $400,000 annually unless those to whom it applies accept the alternative of matrimony, inspired by the happy home life of Governor La Follette and the preaching of President Rossevelt against race suicide.

Originally the bill provided the tax should be $5 a head, but the committee, composed entirely of married men, raised it to $10. The original bill also provided that anyone showing before the circuit court that he was unable to pay the tax should be exempted for five years. The committee bill decreases the exemption to one year.

Divorced men over 30 years of age are placed on a plane with bachelors for taxing purposes. A section of the bill which shows its general working provisions is as follows:

"Any male person herein described not released from such tax who refuses or neglects to pay such tax within one month of the date set for the collection of such tax, shall be declared delinquent and may be subject to a penalty of not less than $15 nor more than $50, or imprisonment for not more than thirty days."

Since introducing his bill Mr. Cleary has received many letters of approval from unmarried women, ranging in age from sweet 15 to romantic 40, from all parts of the country. Some have forwarded photographs, together with descriptions of their culinary skill and intellectual charms. But alas for their hopes, Mr. Cleary has admitted he will evade the law by marrying before it becomes effective.

NEW YORK'S TEN-HOUR DAY LAW IS FOUND UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Washington, April 17.—In an opinion by Justice Peckham, the supreme court of the United States held to be unconstitutional the New York state law making ten hours a day's work and sixty hours a week's work in bakeries in that state. Justices Harlan, White, Day and Holmes dissented and Justice Harlan declared that no more important decision had been rendered in the last century.

The court affirmed the decision of the circuit court for the Eastern district of Missouri in the case of Pabst vs Krenchaw, attacking the validity of the beer inspection law of the state of Missouri. The effect of this decision is to sustain the law, as not antagonistic to the commerce clause of the constitution. The opinion was delivered by Justice White. The chief justice and Justices Brewer, Brown and Day rendering a dissenting opinion.

The court decided the case involving the removal of George W. Beavers from Brooklyn to Washington against Beavers, holding him subject to removal.

The court through an opinion by Justice Brown, affirmed the decision of the New York federal court refusing to grant a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of John A. Benson, who is resisting removal to the district of Columbia for trial on the charge of conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with land frauds on the Pacific coast.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Youngs Lake Mining Company Sells Out For $250,000.

Sault Ste. Marie.—Peter Primeau has closed a deal for the property of the Youngs Lake Mining company, adjoining the famous Shakspere mine. The purchase price is $250,000. The company will expend $20,000 at once in development work.

Marquette—The death of Mrs. John Varebrook, 121 East Ohio street, occurred Friday afternoon about 5 o'clock. Mrs. Varebrook had lived in Marquette for twenty-eight years, and was 56 years of age. Mr. and Mrs. Vorebrook raised their family here, and the members still reside in the city, the husband and the children being at the bedside when the end came.

Houghton—In the case of John Smith and Frank Meisen, each aged 16, of Painesdale, charged with larceny, Justice Brand of Houghton fined them $10 each or thirty days in jail, but suspended sentence on promise of good behavior. The youths were accused of stealing baseball material from the South Range Mercantile company's store at Painesdale. The complaint was made by H. S. Goodell, manager of the store. The youthful culprits pleaded guilty. Evidently they were eager to start the baseball season.

Ishpeming—James Meager, who lost his sight in a mine explosion here last summer, will return to England where his wife and children now reside. He is a recipient of a Carnegie relief fund benefit and will be well provided for during the rest of his life. Frank Sherman, piccolo player in the City band, will accompany Mr. Meager, and will pay a short visit to his mother.

Samuel Hosking, a miner, employed at the Cleveland Lake mine, sustained bad bruises and suffered the dislocation of a knee cap about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon as the result of a fall of ground. He was removed to the Ishpeming hospital.

Eliza Ann, aged 47, wife of Capt. "Jack" Trebilcock, of the Winthrop, died yesterday morning. The deceased was well known both in that village and throughout the country. She was the mother of five children, four of whom survive her, being Mrs. Henry Cardew, William J., Jabez and Luella Trebilcock.

PROBABLY DROWNED.

Two Students Fail to Reach Their Destination.

Charlevoix, Mich., April 17.—John Paddock and Carl Lamphead, both 17 years old and high school students, are supposed to have been drowned yesterday in Pine lake while canoeing to Ironton, seven miles from here. They did not reach Ironton, and today their canoe was found near an ice floe.

QUITS BRIDE TO VOTE.

Hurries From Altar to Aid His Party.

New York, April 17.—A London cable to the Herald says: A private ceremony, but still a ceremony without precedent in the history of the house of commons, took place a few nights ago in one of the largest of its committee-rooms, when the prime minister presented a massive silver vase to Sir William Arrol in recognition of the fact that he rushed to London posthaste from Ayr on his wedding day to vote against Winston Churchill's fiscal amendment to the address, which was defeated by 42.

This hurried journey on so auspicious a day was such a striking object lesson in party loyalty, Sir William being 66 years of age, that his brother Unionists, to the number of 350, spontaneously subscribed to a tangible acknowledgment of the event.

"No doubt most Unionists strive to emulate Sir William Arrol's devotion to party," said Premier Balfour in making the presentation, "but it is given to few to afford so striking an example of that virtue.

"The occasion which brought the member for Ayrshire to London was one on which the opposition confidently expected to get the best of us. They failed because there is no lack of that public spirit in which Sir William Arrol has excelled."

MAN PLEADS GUILTY OF USING MAILS ILLEGALLY.

Cincinnati, April 17.—George W. Thatcher of Dayton, Ohio, pleaded guilty today in the United States district court in this city to three counts in indictments charging use of the mails to defraud by means of what is called the "Mercer" estate in England, which he declared to be valued at over $50,000. Letters to Mrs. Martha Winn of Peoria, Ill., Mrs. Sarah Evick of Delphos, Ohio, and Mrs. Charles Reed of Portland, Ind., were in evidence, in which he sought money from them to help in collecting their shares in the English estate.

STYLES OF BRACELET.

Inteeresting Things as to Now Popular Ornament.

"There are two styles of bracelets. The very wide band with the clasp and the narrow rims of gold which are slid upon the arm, and which are pushed up and down to make them set gracefully and becomingly. From ten to twenty of these narrow bracelets are worn, and, though they are of new design, they look surprisingly like the bangles of long ago, when bangles were worn by every woman, says an exchange.

"There are Egyptian bracelets, very thin, very wide and set with colored stones. These are clasped around the arm, and a wide band to match is fastened around the throat. This is one of the latest fashionable fads. Rhinestone collars are very showy and one sees a few of them. But fancy leans toward the pearl strings, arranged with mathematical precision around the throat and secured with a handsome clasp at the back. And next to this comes the Oriental necklace, made of colored stones and dull gold.

"One of the favorite ornaments for evening is a cross, which can be made of gold, or of silver, or of some other metal with colored stones set in. Never was the cross half as popular as a neck ornament, and women who saved the old-fashioned gold crosses can bring them out and have them set with colored stones or can wear them plain. A lovely gold cross, set with amethysts of purple, so natural that they look real, yet, if true, they would have cost a ransom. There were twelve of them in the cross, arranged so that stone touched stone.

"Bands of velvet, for those who have no jeweled necklace, are much worn around the throat. They are wide and are worn very snug. At the back there is set a handsome pin, and in front there is another pin, or a pendant is arranged upon the velvet. Many women to whom necklaces are not becoming are wearing these bands of black velvet and similar ones around the wrists. The effect is strikingly pretty with a bodice of bright colors.

"Jewels in drop necklaces and pendants are so cleverly imitated for reasonable prices that many a society girl this winter has several of these 'mock jewel' ornamentst to correspond with the shades of her various gowns. Imitation jewelry is generally something to be avoided, but the craze for barbaric designs has been a little overdone, and will probably not last many more seasons; consequently she who desires to be fashionable on a small income must strain a point, as it scarcely pays to buy an expensive ornament of an extreme style.

"Indeed, the chain necklace with jeweled pendants has become such a recognized part of the toilette, and to such an extreme has the demand for harmony in color reached that such a necklace is fairly considered a part of the trimming of the gown itself rather than as a jewel with an individual value."

Hayden Arnsworth sighed heavily. It was a sigh that told a story by itself and, indeed, this was not so strange, since he spent the greater part of his time inventing tales, mostly of the divine-passion order, which, worthy or not, persisted in being unsalable.

The story in question, his latest born and the most wayward of all the cherished flock, refused positively and unconditionally to turn out the way all well-regulated and remunerative stories should. His heroine was, in the first place, the lady of his dreams and those errant will-o'-the-wisps have a sly little way of surprising their admirers by devolping quaint and inconsistent traits in utter contrast to their erstwhile soft acquescence. They dance onward and upward, along the highway of one's fancy, flitting wraith-like in the paths he directs them to follow, filling his bosom with self-complacency and joy when Presto! they have switched off on some moonward tangent of their own and positively disdain the slightest suggestion as to the way their feet shall tend.

Heretofore, Arnsworth had studiously avoided the relation of anything bordering on personal experience, but he felt that in some way he must redeem his good name from hopeless failure, so the charming creation of his fruitful imagination condescended to lend the raid in the venture which was to justify in his own mind, Arnsworth's choice of professions and incidentally, start him on the path of fame and fortune.

To quote his own expression of her charms "she was soft and sweet—virgin-eyed, with dainty, dimpled hands full of tremulous movement, as shy and unstudied as her sweetly smiling and unsmiling red-rose mouth." She had moved graciously and gracefully through twenty pages of inspired manuscript, only to rebel stubbornly (mulishly had been Arnsworth's first thought which he dismissed as unworthy) at the twenty-first. She simply refused point-blank, to marry the hero assigned to her. She gave no reasons—she disdained reasons, femininely. "Look at the creature!" her very attitude said, "marry that pamby-pamby absurdity!" and her retrousse nose perked a trifle more haughtily as she braced her absurdly small oxfords to stem the rising tide of indignation to which she knew she was subjecting herself.

Arnsworth swore—politely. Later, he swore less politely and later still, politeness was altogether forgotten. He left his comfortable chambers in town and poked off into the hills in the hope of changing his lady's obstinacy. He found a dismal room in an old-fashioned farmhouse and tramped the hills all day, only to meet her scornful face (for it had lost its softness and much of its sweetness in the struggle) on his return. He worked feverishly, for days, in his efforts to subdue her, but in vain. She was adamant. It seemed incredible—but thus can woman, the most clinging and dependent, become on necessity. Adamant is putty compared to some of them.

He felt a sense of hurt and outraged hospitality. Here for years had he harbored and worshipped this delicate creature, giving her the adoration of his intense nature, only to be flouted and mocked at the critical moment in his career, by a whim born of inexplicable foolishness.

He swore again, pettishly, as he heard a fresh, young voice carolling its joy, during his enforced shortness of toilet in the little room under the eaves. He had been regaled with much laudation relative to the charms of the expected guest. He thought of her with anger and abused all womankind, softly, under his breath. An unreasonable, domineering, ungrateful lot, taking them all together, he declared, as he took his customary seat under the huge old oak, awaiting the brisk call to the delightfully rural breakfast, which, he was forced to acknowledge, was perfect in its way.

Suddenly, he flushed—the tide of red surged hotly to his eyes. Some wayward, unparented emotions thrilled him unaccountably. He slowly turned and there—but a few steps behind him—she stood. Shy but gay, saucy yet demure, with all the modest maidenliness and the softness and sweetness, even to the virgin eyes and dimpled hands. She had been but a dream so long—a beautiful, gracious dream, which had brightened his lonely hours and blessed his idle ones; and before her naughty unruliness, such an obedient, dutiful lady, and here she was—materialized. He gasped and paled, forgetting all self-consciousness in his amaze. He even closed his eyes and counted slowly to ten, only to open them to the exquisite vision. He had never, in his wildest moments, anticipated this. A sudden fear grasped at his heart and stilled its excited beating. Was he—had he—in his worry and distress over his work, muddled his brain to the verge of insanity? Was this but the creation of a diseased mind?

Then she laughed and her laugh was like all the rest of her—gay and sweet and wholesome. "Auntie sent me to call you to breakfast, sir," she said and he awakened and awakening, advanced, his work, his obstinate heroine, all the distress and worry and restlessness of the last month forgotten. It was ever so; a woman's laugh is the key to paradise.

There followed heavenly days all too short and blissful nights, all too long, in which he slept to dream of his love and awoke to long for dawn, and the smile of her and her eyes and her mouth and all her adorable, charming self.

There was not a cloud on the sky of his happiness—not even a tiny feathery-white wisp of a cloud to challenge memory and disturb the beauty of his landscape. She was all-sufficient, all-absorbing, and everything else was thrust by as one spurns the sapless leaves that obstruct one's feet in a glorious Autumn path.

And then—one precious evening, differing from the others only in that it was the latest and the sweetest of them all—a gentle voice said softly:

"Why were you so sad, so distressed so altogether forlorn, when I saw you here first?" She waved a dimpled hand in the familiar gesture he knew so well. His big, brown fist made an awkward plunge and closed surely, warmly, on the trembling white and pink flesh and held it fast. He laughed whimsically. The remembrance of those days was absurd. That a man should care about a mere story to such an extent as to be made miserable—Pshaw!

"But why?" she insisted, "you don't answer me."

He told her slowly, broidering his tale with richest romance, of his days of unrest and misery.

"And then," he concluded, "when she refused to marry the man I meant her to marry, I grew desperate."

"Oh!" she smiled, then more seriously, "but you were putting her in your story without her consent. Was not that something of a liberty?" Her voice had chilled a trifle.

"But I couldn't know that she cared, since she was only a lady o' dreams," he insisted, "and since I had harbored her in my heart for such a length of time, it was base ingratitude for her to refuse me what I wanted."

"And that was to marry the man you mean her to marry?" Her voice was very soft now.

"Yes," he repeated, "that was to marry the man I meant her to marry."

She smiled oddly to herself and slowly—very slowly—moved a bit nearer until her head was dangerously near his shoulder.

"Are you sure she won't?" she whispered, ever so low, against his coat.

NEW CANAL PLAN

Lindon W. Bates Proposes Compromise Scheme Which Stirs Officials.

International Commission to Pass on Project In Autumn.

Chicago, April 17.—Walter Wellman says in a Washington special to the Record-Herald: Two big boxes were delivered at the White House a day or two before President Roosevelt departed for the West by Colonel Edwards, chief of the insular bureau of the War department. When opened they were found to contain beautiful models or relief maps of the Panama canal. President Roosevelt, his cabinet ministers and other callers examined the maps with great interest, as also have Chairman Shonts, Chief Engineer Wallace and the members of the new Panama commission. These models present in graphic form an entirely new project for solving the physical problem at Panama, and this project is deemed so promising that for its consideration President Roosevelt ordered the creation of a commission or board of consulting engineers composed of the most eminent professional men to be found in the world. President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft realize that the two fundamental steps to be taken in regard to the canal project are these: First, to adopt the right plan for the work, and, second, to secure the best men and organization to execute it. The president and secretary believed they have found the men and created the organization. The next thing is to choose the best plan. During the coming autumn it is expected the international commission of engineers will assemble in this city and probably go to the isthmus to make a thorough investigation and decide upon the plan to be adopted.

• • •

The new project is the work of Lindon W. Bates, the eminent hydraulic engineer. Mr. Bates is an American, but most of his work has been done abroad. As a youth he had valuable experience in building mountain railways in the West. He executed an important contract on the Chicago drainage canal. There he invented and built a hydraulic dredge which has revolutionized dredging throughout the world. He built monster dredges for the Mississippi River commission, earning large sums in premiums for efficiency. The Belgian government invited him to prepare plans for the enlarged harbor of Antwerp. He carried out important dredging work for the Russian government. He prepared plans for the Indian government for improving the river at Calcutta, one of the most difficult pieces of engineering in the world. He devised plans for similar work at Adelaide and other ports in Australia for the Australian government; also for the Dominion government, and many more projects in various countries. He is widely recognized as the leading dredging and hydraulic expert. His prodigious dredges have developed until now a single machine possesses 6,000 horse power. His firm has the Galveston contract, and an engineering company of which he is the head, and which has behind it the City bank, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Speyer, the Deutsche Bank of Berlin and other financial interests, has big contracts on the New York barge canal. He has studied canals, rivers, dams, locks and embankments, and the relation of such work to shipping, in many countries. Last year he visited the isthmus, and made a careful study of the Panama problem. The result is the present project, which is entirely new and differs materially from any previous plan.

• • •

There are now under consideration three distinct projects for the canal. One is the sea-level plan. It is favored by Engineers Parsons and Burr, and to a limited extent by Chief Engineer Wallace.

The second is a revival of the plan of the French Comite Technique, Bunau-Varilla, the man who organized the revolution at Panama, and who was the first minister of the fledgling republic at Washington, recently crossed the ocean to urge this plan upon the president. His idea was that its adoption would "save the honor of France" by demonstrating that though the French had failed as canal builders, their engineers were men of genius and far-seeing wisdom. Our French friends are so sentimental.

The third is the Bates plan. It strikes a happy mean between the other two. The French plan called for a summit level 62.5 feet above the ocean, though Mr. Bunau-Varilla advocates making the level 165 feet at the start. His idea is that a canal at that level could be completed in five years and afterward could be sunk by dredging in the channel to any depth desired, even to sea level. Among engineers there are differences of opinion as to the practicability of this scheme.

At the other extreme we have the sea-level plan. It is not strange that it should find advocates. The phrase "sea level" catches the imagination. It conveys the notion of completeness, of superiority, of finality, the last word. It appeals to men whose instinct is to get the best at the outset and have done with it. But when it is found that a sea-level canal is not the superior canal, and that it is an inferior canal, though costing the most money and taking the longest time to complete, it is believed sentiment will have to give way before solid facts.

• • •

Of what does the superiority of one canal over another consist? In a statement recently submitted to President Roosevelt it was declared the following are obvious points of superiority:

A—Shorter time of transit of vessels through it.

B—Smaller cost of construction, operation and maintenance.

C—Smaller interest charge and sinking fund, admitting of lower tolls and greater usefulness to the world on a dividend basis.

D—Greater safety of the canal works from flood or other disaster.

E—Greater security for ships in transit, which means that tonnage is attracted and marine insurance is less.

In all these respects the Bates plan is believed to be superior to the sea-level canal, because:

1. The average time of passage will be about four hours shorter per ship.

2. Cost of operation will be the same and of the maintenance of the canal works less, because there is smaller danger of flood and accident through a more perfect control of the Chagres.

3. For the same reason there will be less danger of interruption of the working of the canal by caving in of tunnels, etc.—and such interruption would be a calamity of world-wide significance.

4. With a hundred millions (or so) smaller cost up-to-date of opening interest charges will be $2,000,000 a year less and tolls may be made more favorable to commerce.

5. Security of ships in transit will be greater because of the larger section of the canal throughout, and insurance charges hence will be smaller.

• • •

The Bates project is a summit level of twenty feet plus mean tide, with two locks, one at either end of the canal, and two terminal fresh water lakes, giving about twenty miles of lake navigation.

By any plan a canal without locks is impracticable. There must be a tide-lock at one end. The so-called sea-level canal must have one lock, the Bates plan has two locks. This extra lock means nominally twenty to thirty minutes' delay in passing a ship, but actually it means no delay at all.

When a ship arrives at a canal entrance the captain goes ashore with his papers. The canal officials board to take measurements for tolls. Various shore business is to be attended to. Meanwhile the ship is locked through. It is the same at the other end, before putting to sea again. Hence terminal locks cause no delay to vessels.

Such a canal as Bates proposes would have about twenty miles of lake navigation, through which ships would steam at full speed. Again, he provides a larger section or canal prism throughout which he is able to do without putting the cost too high, and through these larger sections ships could pass more rapidly. Hence it is true that a canal with two terminal locks would pass ships from ocean to ocean in a shorter time than the so-called sea-level canal. Carefully made computations show that a large ship would pass through the two canals as follows:

Sea level, 13:14 hours.
Terminal locks, 8:41 hours.

• • •

With a high level canal, and a number of intermediate locks, this advantage would be lost. If a sea-level canal be attempted one of two things must happen:

A—In order to get a sufficient section throughout the canal, the cutting must be so deep and wide as to run the cost to almost prohibitive figures, or,

B—To save money the section must be so scant as to make but poor provision for the large ships of the present and the larger ships that are to come in the near future, there will always be danger of ships striking the sides in a section that gives poor steerage way, which means a hazard sure to be reflected in insurance rates.

But by putting the level at twenty feet plus mean tide, as Mr. Bates does, he saves that twenty feet cut at the bottom throughout (which means a vast addition to the top width in order to get the necessary slope), and devotes a part of the energy and money this extra twenty feet would require to enlargement of the cross section.

Of prime importance is this question of the prism of the canal. The channel proposed by the commission, with thirty-six feet depth, could not carry some of the largest ships now afloat. The size of ships is steadily increasing and the 1,000-foot monster, requiring forty feet of water, is near at hand. Instead of wasting money in the needless deep and wide cutting involved in sinking the channel to tide level through the whole isthmus, Culebra Hill included, the expenditure is devoted in the Bates plan to giving depth and capacity to the canal itself. A depth of forty feet is proposed and a minimum section of 2,500 feet.

• • •

In a sea-level canal the great problem is to dispose of the flood waters of the Chagres. They must be diverted, and it is proposed to carry them off through tunnels piercing the mountains. Many engineers regard these tunnels as hazardous experiments.

By the Bates plan both tunnels and high dams are avoided. The flood waters of the Chagres are impounded in a series of catch-basins formed by low dams or barrages. The discharge is through the canal itself, in both directions from Gamboa to both oceans. This doubles the carrying capacity over taking the discharge one way only, and provides against all contingencies. In other words, the river would be caused to run both ways, and would then be canalized, terminating in great fresh water lakes, submerging the foul swamps near Panama and Colon. This proposed solution of the problem is both simple and practicable. It averts swift currents in the canal. It is of enormous advantage from the sanitary point of view. And the whole watershed of the Chagres is placed under perfect control. The superintendent of the canal may sit in his office and by touching an electric button raise or lower the water level in any catch-basin, in the canal itself, and in the two fresh water bodies, Lakes Chagres and Panama.

This canal is estimated to cost about $100,000,000 less than the sea-level or one-lock canal. Probably the American people would not be satisfied with an inferior canal in order to save a hundred millions. But saving a hundred millions and still getting the best canal is quite another matter.

CLEVELAND ON FISHING

Former President Defends the Sport and Answers Critics.

New York, April 17.—In the first number of the Country Calendar, a magazine devoted to the problems and enthusiasms of country-loving persons, Grover Cleveland makes a valiant defense of hunting and fishing, and incidentally enters a personal rejoinder to the accusation that he uses his sportsman's expeditions as a cloak for dissipation.

"I am an enthusiast," writes Mr. Cleveland, "in my devotion to hunting and fishing, as well as every other kind of outdoor recreation. I am so proud of this devotion that if my sporting proclivities have at times subjected me to criticisms and petty forms of persecution, I do not harbor the shadow of a desire that my steadfastness be looked upon as manifesting the courage of martyrdom.

"On the contrary, I regard these criticisms and persecutions as nothing more than gnat stings suffered on the bank of a stream—vexations to be borne with patience and afterward easily submerged in the memory of abundant delightful accompaniments.

"Thus when short fishing excursions in which I have sought relief from the killing vexations and perplexities of official duty have been denounced in a mendacious newspaper as dishonest devices to cover scandalous revelry, I have been able to enjoy a sort of pleasurable contempt for the author of the accusation, while congratulating myself on the mental and physical restoration I had derived from these excursions.

"So far as my attachment to outdoor sports may be considered a fault, I am, as related to this special predicament of guilt, utterly incorrigible and shameless."

After asserting his belief that fishermen and hunters are born, not made, Mr. Cleveland adds: "There can be no better conservators of the sensible and provident protection of game and fish than those who are enthusiastic in their pursuit, but who at the same time are regulated and restrained by a sort of chivalric fairness and generosity felt and recognized by every true sportsman."

OLD FRAUD CLEARED

Body of Partner In "520 Per Cent" Swindle Found.

Schlesinger's Death May Lead to Recovery of $170,000.

New York, April 16.—By the discovery of the body of Edward Schlesinger in a vault in Ostend, Belgium, where it was held for the non-payment of physicians' bills, and the subsequent discovery that $170,000 in cash and securities that had belonged to Schlesinger had been taken from a safe deposit box in Brussels by his relatives, another interesting chapter in the "520 per cent Miller syndicate" is given to the world.

This latest feature in the story of the gigantic swindle of 1899 will be told in the United States district court next Friday, when Solomon Schlesinger, the dead man's brother, and Esther S. Blake, his mother, will appear before Judge Thomas in Brooklyn on an order to show cause why they should not turn over all moneys and securities recently obtained from Belgium to the depositors who lost their money in the Miller syndicate.

Edward Schlesinger was a partner of William F. Miller in the enterprise by which hundreds of persons were swindled. On Nov. 24, 1899, when the Miller syndicate collapsed, Schlesinger disappeared with a hand-bag which was said to contain $150,000 of the syndicate's money and $25,000 belonging to William F. Miller. It was said Schlesinger had fled to Europe, and detectives could not find him.

by T. Ellett Hodskin, a New York lawyer, by T. Ellet Hodskin, a New York lawyer, who spent four years on the case in the interest of John B. Lord, trustee in bankruptcy.

During the first two years after Schlesinger's disappearance rumors reached this country of his prodigal life in Paris and other parts of Europe, and efforts were made to locate and extradite him. These efforts all failed. In 1903 the story was told here that he had died in destitution somewhere on the continent, and, although denied and forgotten, the story of his death was true.

Early in 1903 Mr. Hodskin went to Paris to find Schlesinger and if possible induce him to make a settlement or return to America. He did not locate the fugitive, but stories of his elaborate entertainments and his caprices of one sort and another were heard throughout the French capital. For a time Schlesinger had lived at the Grand hotel, and was known as Edward Solly or Sully. He spent money lavishly and was surrounded by a circle of gay friends. Later he established a racing stable, but because of some infraction of rules was barred from the Jockey club of France and sold many of his horses.

He embarked in a big copper speculation and was said to have made a great deal of money. Then something occurred which caused him to leave Paris suddenly, and no one knew where he had gone.

Next came the rumor of his death, and after that all definite trace of the man was lost until early in March last, when information reached Mr. Hodskin that Schlesingers clothing had been sent from abroad to his mother, now Mrs. Esther Blake of this city, and that this clothing had been quickly disposed of to a second-hand dealer.

Mr. Hodskin at once set detectives at work on the case, and Mr. Lord started for Belgium. There, after several weeks of searching, he made the acquintance of Ely Friedlander, a rabbi, in Ostend, who had officiated at the deathbed of Schlesinger, who had been known in Ostend as Edward Solly. From this startling point the story was soon unraveled.

Schlesinger died of appoplexy Aug. 11, 1903, in the Hotel Spineldid, Ostend. At his deathbed were Auguste Liebaert, a Knight of the Order of Leopold; Jules Smets, a wealthy wine merchant, and two or three other boon companions, whose affidavits as to the circumstances of death will appear in the case. Three days prior to his death he had collapsed in the Kursaal club, and was taken to the hotel by his friends. A. Piters, the mayor of Ostend, also made affidavits as to the death.

Several physicians were called to attend the fugutive, but were unable to collect their fees. The physicians then, under the laws of Belgium, withheld the burial certificate, which prevented the body being removed to America. Investigation proving it was still in the city vault of Ostend.

Mr. Lord learned that Schlesinger had a large sum in the Credit Lyonais, a bank in Brussels. He called upon the officials of this institution. They merely told him Schlesinger had carried an account with the bank, which was not large, and that he had rented a safe deposit box in their vaults, the contents of which they were not supposed to know.

Through the aid of George W. Roosevelt, consul at Ostend, the consul general and other United States officials, Mr. Lord managed to learn from the bank that Schlesinger not only had a large sum of money and securities in the safe deposit, but that soon after his death his brother Solomon and a New York lawyer with power of attorney for Mrs. Blake had appeared at the bank and taken possession of all of the dead man's money and securities amounting to about $170,000.

With this information the scene shifted to New York again. Through detectives it was learned that Mrs. Blake had recently come into possession of a large sum of money. Solomon Schlesinger, the surviving brother of Edward, is in partnership with Norbert D. Light in the firm of Light & Schlesinger, silk waist manufacturers of this city.

THE KAISER AIDS DANCER

Emperor Leads Spanish Girl to Adopt the Stage.

London, April 17.—Kaiser Wilhelm, many-sided monarch, has found time to endow the world with a new dancer. Carmen de Fayaa, the kaiser's little friend, is already one of the spoiled darlings of London and bids fair to ripen rapidly into one of those artists who, like her country-woman, La Belle Otero, in two senses play a great part on the world's stage.

Less than one year ago she was in the convent school; she is a little more than 18 years old now; already she is admired in four capitals—especially in Berlin—and already she is meditating planning the conquest of the world.

Two kings already have fallen at her feet; she has ceased to number the princes and titled magnates who stuggle for her smiles. To the kaiser she owes everything.

"He has been a father and a friend to me," she cries with enthusiasm. "He is the geratest and noblest man in all this world."

But perhaps though she would not quite like to own it to herself, even, the tenderest place in her heart—"the heart of a Spanish girl," she explains—is for a young king with whom she never had exchanged a word.

"It is at San Sebastian," she confessed in the longer room of the Hotel Cecil in her pretty foreign way. "It is at San Sebastian at the Concours Hippique, I dance. It is Spanish dances; it is Russian dances; it is gypsy dances; it is every dance.

"A young man, fraceful and slender, like a boy of 16, but with a face grave like a lawyer, watches me, watches, watches. When my dances are done I am in my box; it is next the young man's box. I do not know who he is, but he watches me, watches.

"Next day comes a messenger, a box. I open. It is a basket of roses, beautiful, beautiful, beautiful. It is a letter in the roses. It says: 'The loveliest flowers of Spain to Spain's loveliest.' It is I—'Spain's loveliest:' and the letter, it is signed Alfonso R. It is the Rey Alfonso.

"Is it not charming? It shall be my nicest souvenir. But the young king, he leaves that morning his beautiful villa of San Sebastian. I see him no more. But it is to remember. No?"

It was at an aristocratic club in a town of Germany, whose name the senorita is determined to conceal, that the kaiser saw the Spanish child and was attracted by her grace and the curious beauty of her dancing.

"You must use professionally the delightful talent you have shown us socially tonight," said the emperor. "You will be one of the great dancers of the world; you will be famous. The great capitals will rave over you. You will make all the money you could desire. Only you must study as an art what you now practice as an amusement. You will have to work hard. If you do, I promise you your triumphs."

In two months, at the atelier of Mme. Mariquitas, the young dancer learned everything of her art that is to be taught and was ready for a public appearance.

"It was easy for me, all easy," she says, carnestly. "It is in my blood. When I was a little girl of 6 I used to put on my satin slippers and dance for an hour at a time before a mirror, delighting in graceful poses and rapid movements, falling into some strange rhythm that I could not understand, but which seemed to me to mean more than any words could ever tell.

"At the convent of the Sacre Coeur, at Breslau, where my mother sent me, I used to dance away all my half-holidays, alone by myself. At Mme. Mariquitas I saw for the first time a reason in many things I had done unconsciously before."

The senorita is fascinated by the idea of America. Until she has the new world at her feet she feels she has not tasted the full measure of success. She will dance at the Lessing theater for Berlin and for the kaiser in October. Then, if her contemplated arrangements hold good, she will visit New York.

FORMER JEHU NOW BARONET

Is In England to Take Over Old Irish Title.

New York, April 17.—A London cable to the Herald says: An interesting society romance is revived by the arrival in England from Australia of Sir George Augustus Jervis Meredyth, baronet, of Green Hills, County Kildare, Ireland, accompanied by his pretty wife, to claim his rights to the baronetcy.

Few of those whose names appear in Burke's Peerage, have had such a rough-and-tumble existence as Sir George Meredyth, who at various portions of his career has been shoemaker, sailor, storekeeper, hay presser, policeman and cab driver.

He traveled in the steerage of the Ortama, as he is not as yet in possession of the Irish estates, which are said to produce only $2,000 a year. It was something in the nature of a honeymoon trip, for Sir George married the present Lady Meredyth, who is his second wife, a day or two before leaving Melbourne.

Their arrival at St. Pancreas was almost pathetic. Sir George, though he bears his years lightly, was too tired to grapple with the luggage problem, and Lady Meredyth, a pale-faced and gentle-looking woman quietly clothed in black, was almost unnerved by the bustle.

At the home and colonial hotel, Buston, when they had time to recover themselves somewhat, Sir George explained that after a stay of four days in London he was going to Ireland to look after his interests. It is understood there is some difficulty about the estates.

"The tenants know me and will pay their rents to me. There are some farms and a house at Timohenry in Kilkenny I have to look after, and that is where I am going."

He walks almost erect and, with his white military mustache and bronzed, thin face, has a distinguished appearance. He is full of anecdote, extending from the time when he tried to blow up his schoolmaster in Ireland by putting gunpowder in the pedagogue's boots to a fight with whalers and sailors in Hobart when he was a member of "the force."

"I have been nearly killed dozens of times," he said, pointing to various scars on his face. "I was in the police for fourteen years and have my belt now. I was too straight-tongued for them, however, and resigned because I could not get on with a sergeant. I next bought a cab and a car wagonette with seven horses. I drove the cab myself."

Sir George left Ireland in 1850, but has revisited it on more than one occasion when a sailor. His last visit was five years and a half ago.

He is the eleventh baronet and succeeded his cousin, Sir Edward Meredyth, last October. The title was created in 1660, and, though the present holder is recognized by Burke, De Brett says the baronetcy is believed to be extinct.

SUPREME COURT REFUSES WRIT

Of Certiorari In Case of Jewell Vs. Superior.

Washington, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court today denied the petition for a writ of certiorari in the case of Harry L. Jewell ve the city of Superior. The case originally grew out of an action for an accounting as to certain street improvements, levied upon property benefitted by the defendant city, for the purpose of paying certain improvement bonds held by the plaintiff.

RECEIVING MUCH PRAISE

Those Who Had the Col. Graves Banquet In Charge.

Members of the committee which had in charge the arrangements for the banquet in honor of Col. C. H. Graves last Friday evening at the Commercial club by Duluth Scandinavian-Americans are coming in for many congratulations on the very successful manner in which the affair was carried through. The general committee was made up as follows:

Dr. J. J. Eklund, John Brandt, O. N. Lundberg, H. P. Knudson, J. Ostergran, J. Flaaten, C. W. Ericson, A. G. Sanstrom, O. Halden, J. W. Wandensten, J. W Nelson, Otto Gafvert, Gust Bergquist, Thomas Olafson, Dr. Tufte, N. A. Linderberg and John Sundeen.

The banquet was carefully planned and passed off without a hitch, reflecting considerable credit on the management. It was declared one of the most successful affairs of the year.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Miss Harriette Colfax, Oldest Lake Lighthouse Keeper, Is Dead.

La Porte, Ind., April 17.—Miss Harriette E. Colfax, a cousin of Former Vice President Schuyler Colfax, and for forty-three years keeper of the Michigan City lighthouse on Lake Michigan, is dead, aged 81 years. Until her retirement last fall Miss Colfax was the oldest lighthouse keeper in the United States service. She had a remarkable record, the big reflector in her lighthouse never failing to show its bright rays, no matter how fiercely storms might rage. Her companion during her years as lighthouse keeper was Miss Ann Hartwell, who died two months ago, aged 70 years. Both were born in Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Chicago, April 17.—William M. Knight, for many years the proprietor of the Briggs house, died at his home here today.

Detroit, April 17.—Dr. P. H. Reaney, son of Captain Reaney of the lighthouse service and brother of Chaplain Reaney of the United States navy, died today of tuberculosis at the family residence here.

Plainfield, N. J., April 17.—Mrs. Hannah Nelson, mother of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair, died at her home in Newmarket today. She was at one time a "bushel" woman in a clothing factory here.

Leipzig, April 17.—Dr. Guthrod, president of the high court of the empire, died today.

JOSEPH SELLWOOD SELLS PROPERTIES

Said to Have Disposed of Large Interests on Mesaba.

Furnace People Buyers—Will Continue to Manage Them.

For some time rumor has had it that Joseph Sellwood of Duluth was disposing of his interests in iron mines on the Mesaba range, and possibly the two which he owns on the Michigan ranges. The mining papers are beginning to take notice of the matter, and among his Duluth friends the report is generally accepted as being at least in a considerable measure true.

Mr. Sellwood owns four mines on the Mesaba, owns heavy interests in two others, and manages two more. The four mines that are his own property are the Leetonia, an open pit mine with a big body of ore, not far from Hibbing; the Cass, a small underground property near Biwabik; the Larue, at Nashwauk, with a good-sized body of high grade ore, and the Morrow, with a fair-sized body of ore, near Chisholm.

The two mines in which he is a heavy owner are the Cyprus and Croxton, and the two he manages are the Hawkins and Agnew, operated for the International Harvester company.

The Jones & Laughlin people and the the Lackawanna Steel company are supposed to be the interests that are acquiring Mr. Sellwood's properties, and the four mines, of which he is absolute owner, are supposed to be the ones in the deal. He also owns the Brotherton and Sunday Lake, on the Menominee range, but whether they are to go in or not is not known.

All kinds of rumors are afloat as to the price paid Mr. Sellwood, but that it is from $1,500,000 to $2,500,000 admits of little doubt, with the right figures probably in the neighborhood of $2,000,000.

It is learned upon pretty good authority, too, that Mr. Sellwood will continue to operate the properties for the new owners. He is not yet ready to retire from the iron mining business, and being one of the best and most successful operators of mines, it is not at all likely that he would be allowed to without turning down some pretty strong inducements.

A report that came from New York today indicates that the Jones & Laughlin interests have acquired the Leetonia mine for $2,000,000.

WINNEBAGOS IN BAD SHAPE

Once Mighty Indian Tribe Dying Off By the Score.

Milwaukee, April 17.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Black River Falls, Wis., says: The once mighty Winnebago tribe is facing a miserable end, though it has $900,000 with the national government to its credit. The red men are dying by scores of consumption, and are a heavy expense to several towns. According to a decision of the United States supreme court, it is believed, the town in which sick and poor Indians reside must pay for their care as they would for any indigent citizen. Sickness prevails, and hundreds of dollars are being needed to treat the decrepit warriors.

Resident Indian Farmer A. P. Jones is authority for the statement that consumption, unless stopped, will soon kill the whole tribe.

It is said that little attention is paid to the marriage rights among the Indians in this vicinity, which has resulted in demoralizing conditions.

NEW DIRECTORS FOR PANAMA RAILROAD.

New York, April 17.—Secretary Taft and members of the Panama canal commission were in session today at the office of the Panama Railroad company. The following new board of directors of the Panama railroad was elected:

Theodore P. Shonts, J. F. Wallace, Charles E. Magoon, M. T. Endicott, Peter C. Haines, B. M. Harrod, Oswald R. Ernst, William Nelson Cromwell, William Barclay Parsons, Clarence R. Edwards, J. R. Obaldia, R. L. Farnham and Edward A. Drake.

It is understood that Mr. Shonts will be elected to the presidency of the company.

OSLER'S FADS

To Save Canada the Loss of Girls.

Baltimore, April 17.—Dr. William Osler is in Canada saying farewell to his old friends and former associates. He is also making his characteristic little speeches to the people there. In an address to the Canadian club recently Dr. Osler, referring to the fact that so many Canadian girls cross the corder, said: "Something should be done to stop the loss of the mothers of the country." He suggested two remedies—a tax on bachelors and an export tax of $100 each on girls.

At 25 or 26, he said, the man who had not a family to support should be helping the other fellow, and such a tax would be a reasonable and rational political measure.

As to the export tax on girls, he said: "She's worth more than that, and it would pay Canada to give as much as $1,000 to the family to keep her at home."

In an address to the medical students at Toronto the doctor said: "The mistress of your studies should be the heavenly Aphrodite, the motherless daughter of Uranus. Give her your whole heart, and she will be your protectress and friend. A jealous creature, brooking no second, if she finds you trifling and coquetting with her rival, the younger, earthly Aphrodite, daughter of Zeus and Dione, she will whistle you off and let you down the wind to be a prey, perhaps, to the examiners, certainly to the worm regret."

MASONS' WEEK

Beginning Tuesday Scottish Rite Degrees Are to Be Conferred.

Sovereign Grand Commander Richardson to Arrive Wednesday.

Beginning tomorrow afternoon the conferring of the Scottish Rite degrees will take place in the new Masonic Temple and will continue until Thursday evening, when the Maundy Thursday banquet will be held.

Wednesday evening will be one of the greatest events in Duluth Masonic history. Sovereign Grand Commander James D. Richardson of Tennessee of the thirty-third degree, who will arrive from Washington, the shrine of the Scottish Riters of the United States, on Wednesday morning, will conduct the consecration of the Scottish Rite theater of the temple, assisted by the officers of the grand lodge. He will be accompanied by Frederick Webber, secretary general, who will also come from Washington, and other offices of the grand lodge will be filled for dedication purposes by Samuel Emery Adams of Minneapolis, who is lieutenant grand commander, and by local thirty-third degree men, of whom there are nine.

The grand officers will remain here until the close of the Maundy Thursday banquet, when they will depart for their homes.

It is expected that about 100 candidates will take the degrees.

They will gather in the reception rooms on the auditorium floor at 1 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. The secretary will be at the temple at 11 o'clock a. m. to receive candidates.

The fourth degree will be worked, beginning at 2 o'clock, and all the officers must be on hand ready at that time, as the program will start on time whether or not the officers or candidates are on hand. Immediately following the fifth degree, the communicating of others will take place and the first portion of the fourteenth degree will be taken up before supper. The fourteenth degree will be worked in the evening, beginning at 8 o'clock, the brethren and candidates gather at 7:30 p. m. The fifteenth degree will begin at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, after lunch the communication of degrees will be proceeded with and the work of the eighteenth degree will begin at 2:30, the brethren and candidates gathering at 2 p. m. After supper the brethren will gather at 7:30 p. m. and at 8 o'clock the ceremony of consecrating the autditorium will be proceeded with under the direction of the sovereign grand commander. To this every Mason, of whatever degree or rite, is invited.

On Thursday morning at 9:30 the candidates and officers of the council will assemble, degrees will be communicated to the candidates, and the officers will be ready to work the thirtieth degree at 10 o'clock; then lunch, again assembling at 2 p. m. The candidates being prepared for the thirty-second degree, and the officers ready to begin work at 2:15. Immediately after the degree is completed, there will be an informal reception for the purpose of giving the brethren at 6:30 an opportunity to meet the sovereign grand commander and visitors, the procession is formed and all will proceed to the banquet room and partake of the Maundy Thursday feast, to which all Knights Rose Croix are invited.

DR. HILPRECHT WINS.

President's Evidence to Disprove Charges of "Faking."

Philadelphia, April 17.—Dr. Herman V. Hilprecht is believed to have won a victory in his hearing before a committee of trustees of the University of Pennsylvania in reference to charges of "faking" about his discoveries in the Nippur temple. A number of tablets he found in the temple were offered in testimony by the accused Assyriologist and explorer of Babylon, and the inscriptions on them were explained by him.

Arguments intended to controvert the statements that have been made by Dr. Hilprecht were read by Dr. John P. Peters of New York. Dr. J. B. Prince of Columbia university, and Dr. Herman Rankе of the university museum. Dr. Peters left the meeting early and seemed very angry.

"It was outrageous," he said. "They made no effort to get at the truth; it was nothing but a lot of legal quibbling."

Dr. Jastrow and Dr. Price also left the room, looking angry, but refused to talk. Dr. Hilprecht remained some time after they were gone. He came out smiling and apparently victorious. The committee will probably hold another session to arrive at a final verdict.

EXASPERATING

Difficulties For Montgomery Ward & Co.'s Wagons.

Chicago, April 17.—Exasperating difficulties were experienced at every turn today by the wagons of Montgomery Ward & Co., whose teamsters and garments workers are on strike. At the Michigan Central freight house, in South Water street, the police, who escorted the Ward caravan, met with stubborn opposition on the part of the teamsters in sympathy with the strikers. The anti-Ward teamsters loaded or unloaded their wagons with provoking slowness, and told the police "we are not pieces of machinery."

Many of the teamsters in the street leading to the freight house insisted that they had been waiting for two hours, and when the police made way for the Ward wagons to be loaded earlier than other wagons, there was a loud complaint from each teamster. Members of the Freight Handlers' union gave indications that unless the police ceased to give the Ward wagons the right to unload before teamsters who had been waiting ahead, a strike among the freight handlers would be ordered.

RETAIL COAL DEALERS TO BUCK MINE OWNERS.

New York, April 17.—A meeting of retail coal dealers throughout the country has been called for this city May 10, to form a defensive alliance against the mine owners and coal distributors. The avowed purpose of the movement is to devise methods for the quicker delivery of coal by the operators, and its better preparation for shipment. According to some of those interested the retailers claim to have not received fair treatment of late at the hands of the shippers, because of which many small dealers, and a few large ones, have been forced out of business. It is said the new association will not attempt to regulate prices beyond trying to secure lower freight rate concessions from the carrying roads.

BY RIVER ROUTE

Hotel Goes From New Duluth To Fond du Lac.

Charles Gasper Responsible For This Change of Base.

From New Duluth to Fond du Lac on a series of big scows tied together, is a trip destined for a large frame boarding house at the former town, which is to be transformed into a summer hotel when it reaches its Fond du Lac location.

The building was recently purchased by Charles Gasper, a merchant of New Duluth who saw the possibilities for a summer hotel at Fond du Lac, if he could get the building there. He cast about for the best means of moving it and the river route was found to be the more practicable. The building has been moved toward the river front and in a few days more will be loaded on the scows. It is expected that the sight of so large a structure being towed up the river will be a novel and somewhat unusual one.

Last year the government moved several buildings from their former location at the Seventh avenue west slip to the yards purchased by the government on Park Point. None of these buildings, however, were so large as the hotel building.

Just what location Mr. Gasper expects to place the hotel on at Fond du Lac is not definitely known, but it is reported that it will be close to the river front.

Fond du Lac people and those who spend the summer in that locality have been urging for several years past the desirability of having a hotel there and there has been talk from time to time of projects about to be set on foot to build one. It is claimed that some parties have even gone so far as to have plans drawn for such a hotel, but nothing further has been heard of the project.

Mr. Gasper's hotel, while it will not be on so large a scale as some of the new ones contemplated, will it is claimed, be well equipped to take care of a number of summer visitors and improvements will be added later on as the demand grows.

The little folks love Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Pleasant to take; perfectly harmless; positive cure for coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma.

MANDATE IS ISSUED

By Supreme Court In the Northern Securities Case.

Washington, April 17.—In accordance with the previous announcement by Chief Justice Fuller, the mandate of the supreme court of the United States in the Northern Securities case was issued today. It was directed to W. P. Clough, chief counsel for the Securities company, and the essential part of it is as follows:

"Whereas, in the present term, the cause came on to be heard before the supreme court, and was argued by counsel, it is now and here ordered, adjudged and decreed by this court that the decree of the United States circuit court of appeals in this cause be and the same is hereby affirmed with costs, and that the said appellant, the Northern Securities company recover the said appellate's $20 for its costs herein expended and have execution therefor; and it is further ordered that this cause be and the same is hereby remanded to the circuit court of the United States for the district of New Jersey."

TIMOTHY HORGAN DIES.

Leaves Large Family of Grown Children.

Timothy Horgan died at 4:30 o'clock this morning at his home, 166 Thirty-second avenue east, of Bright's disease.

Mr. Horgan, was 73 years of age at the time of his death. He leaves three sons and six daughters. The sons Daniel, Frank and Michael and three of the daughters, Maggie, Nellie and Mrs. Thomas O'Donnell all live in Duluth. The other three daughters are Mrs. F. B. Carroll of Trout Creek, Mich., Mrs. M. Bolan of Port Arthur, Ont., and Mrs. B. Everth of Los Angeles, Cal.

The funeral services will be held in the Cathedral Wednesday morning, but the exact time has not yet been fixed. Interment will be made at Calvery cemetery.

TO CLOSE FOR EASTER.

Liverpool, April 17.—The corn exchange here will be closed April 21, 22 and 24, and the provision exchange, April 21 and 24, in observance of the Easter holidays.

TROUBLE IS ABATED

Separate School Question No Longer Live Issue In Canada.

Duncan Ross, Member of Canadian Parliament, In Duluth.

"The row over the separate school question in Canada is now about all abated, except where it is being kept alive for political reasons," said Duncan Ross, member of parliament from Greenwood, B. C., who is visiting his brother, John G. Ross, clerk of the municipal court.

Mr. Ross is in Duluth on a short vacation only, as the Dominion house has not yet adjourned. He is a member of the Grit party and a supporter of the Laurier administration.

"The separate school question was really started by the Protestants in Quebec," he said. "When the provinces joined together in confederation, the Protestants in Quebec, who were in the minority, wanted schools, and the Catholics in other provinces wanted the same rights that were given the Protestants in Quebec.

"A number of compromises followed, and several fine points in constitutional law mixed up in the present fight on the question. As a matter of fact the bill which aroused such a storm from the opposition did not give the territories anything more than they already possessed, and the bill as it is at present amended is practically the same as the original bill, only the wording is different to make it clear to all the voters. By the amended bill, which will carry by more than the normal Liberal majority, the Roman Catholics in the new provinces of Alberta and Assiniboia are granted the right to have religious instruction in the schools, where they are in the majority, for one half hour after 3:30 o'clock. The teachers in all the schools, however, must have the regular certificates and qualify the same as the teachers in every other part of the Dominion.

"The percentage of separate schools that will be established, or that are at present maintained, is very small when compared with the total number, and the question was in reality a minor one after all, and not worthy of all the stir it created. The only people who are trying to keep the agitation up now are the politicians.

"The two new provinces will be admitted to confederation about July 1, making nine provinces in the Dominion. The four territories of Alberta, Athabasca, Assiniboia and Saskatchewan are combined to make the two territories of Alberta and Assiniboia. The boundary lines of the old territories are not in any way observed, but the new provinces will be divided by new boundary lines. Edmunton will be the capital of Alberta and Regina of Assiniboia, until the new provincial parliaments meet and select the new capitals."

Insures for $200,000.

The largest single life policy ever written on an individual in the State of Michigan, namely one for $200,00, has just been issued by the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York, to Hamilton Carhartt, the well-known manufacturer and art connoisseur of Detroit.

SNOW AND COLD IN THE SOUTH

Much Fruit and Vegetables Killed By Freezing Temperature.

Huntington, W. Va., April 17.—Snow to the depth of two inches was on the ground here today, having fallen at intervals yesterday and last night, and ice formed on all small streams during the night. The weather was the coldest known here for the season in years, and all fruit is believed to have been killed. In the mountains six inches of snow was reported.

Atlanta, Ga., April 17.—The reports of cold weather from various parts of Georgia indicate heavy damage to the vegetable and fruit crops. The local weather bureau reports a temperature of 31 deg. here at 6 o'clock this morning, the lowest on record for so late a date. Killing frosts are reported from Macon and Augusta and from as far south as Mobile.

Arkansas City, Kas., April 17.—Light snow fell in Southern Kansas early today, changing to rain later. Crops will be benefited.

Cairo, Ill., April 17.—A severe frost in this section last night damaged 50 per cent of the fruit crop. The early vegetable crop is regarded as a total loss.

Norfolk, Va., April 17—The formation of ice throughout the vast Norfolk county trucking section did great damage.

Greenville, S. C., April 17.—A killing frost visited this section this morning, fruit and early vegetable being badly damaged.

Indianapolis, April 17.—Reports received from all parts of Indiana indicate that the loss of farmers and gardeners from frost will be light except near Lafayette.

Springfield, Ohio, April 17.—Farmers in Clark and adjoining counties report that the freezing weather of last night damaged the fruit crop thousands of dollars.

Hagerstown, Md., April 17.—Freezing weather, snow falls and ice yesterday and today will do considerable damage to the fruit crop in Western Maryland.

Cumberland, Md., April 17.—The thermometer registered 12 degrees below freezing in the vicinity of Terra Alta, Oakland, and through the Glades this morning. Early fruits and vegetables are damaged.

THEY HAD TO WALK

Passengers on the Interstate Cars Enjoy New Experience.

Defect In Bridge Puts West Side Out of Commission.

Since early Sunday morning only one side of the interstate bridge has been used by street cars, owing to a weakness in the westerly approach to the north end of the bridge. The defect is not considered a very serious one, and affects only the surface of the structure, but it will probably be about the middle of the week before that side of the bridge is again in condition for use.

The trouble is the result of a spreading of the "stringers" supporting the planks which form the flooring, caused, it is believed, by the action of ice and cold weather on the supports. Today a crew of twenty-five or thirty men is at work relaying the flooring and making general repairs to the approach. The foundation proper is not damaged at all, it is said.

The defect was discovered Saturday, and for the sake of safety orders were given by the street car company that no loaded car should be run onto the approach until the weakness was repaired, for fear that the great weight on the defective surface might result in a serious accident. The order was issued as a precautionary measure. Saturday evening and night and for a time Sunday morning all the passengers going by street car to Superior had to walk the full length of the approach. The car would stop when it reached the first planks, the passengers would alight and walk up the incline to the bridge proper, and then, when they had all reached the top, the car would slowly follow them, picking up its load again when at the end of the approach.

Yesterday morning a switch was completed on the approach at the south end of the bridge, which, with one north of the bridge, allows cars from both directions to use the same track while passing over the structure, necessitating frequent short delays, for with this arrangement two cars can not be on the bridge at the same time, and all of them have to wait to be flagged ahead before proceeding. The same condition will continue until the bridge is repaired. The delays are of little consequence, for in no single instance do they amount to more than two or three minutes.

HARRIMAN HAS SOLD OUT

His Interest In Northern Securities Acquired By Rivals.

New York, April 17.—Wall street has a new report, which, if correct, explains sufficiently the retirement of E. H. Harriman from the Northern Securities board of directors. The report is that early last week Mr. Harriman sold to J. Pierpont Morgan and James J. Hill $20,000,000 par value of Northern Securities stock at $175 a share and thus disposed of all his personal interest in that big railroad combination. His personal interest is aside, of course, from the Union Pacific's interest in Northern Securities.

Mr. Harriman, however, has been known to be a heavy seller of Union Pacific for the last few weeks. There has been gossip in the street to the effect that he has lost control of that road and that he has not attempted as yet to get it back.

The Kuhn-Loeb interest, supposed to be closely allied with Harriman, has been borrowing Union Pacific certificates for some time, and has not begun to deliver its own stock to cover sales that were made some time ago.

If it be true, then, that Mr. Harriman has lost control of Union Pacific and has disposed of his personal interest in Northern Securities there is good reason why he should not be re-elected a director of the latter corporation.

None of the directors in Northern Securities would do anything at the time of the annual meeting early in the week to lift the veil of mystery that surrounded his retirement.

It has been suggested that Mr. Harriman consented in the interest of peace to retire from the board, but people who know his history and his disposition are of the belief that he would not consent to be unrepresented on a board that controlled any large amount of his fortune, as the Northern Securities board once did.

If these reports of Harriman's sale of his Northern Securities stock and his losing control of Union Pacific be true, it looks like a grand victory for the Hill-Morgan party in the battlefield of railroad finance, a victory to which the Equitable scandal contributed probably not a little.

Mr. Harriman's vigorous championship of young Mr. Hyde in the Equitable controversy, and his bitter antagonism to Mr. Alexander created at once the suspicion that he was largely in debt to the Equitable, and that he had borrowed funds there to finance his deals on account of his influence over the youthful vice president, whose conduct has been criticised so severely. Did J. P. Morgan know that Harriman was being carried by the Equitable, and did he start the fight on young Hyde to smoke Harriman out?

There are people who are usually very well informed on matters of high finance who believe that Morgan executed just such a program as that, and that he has carried it out most successfully.

At any rate, the Harriman selling of Union Pacific is undoubted, and the statement that he has turned over his Northern Securities to Morgan and Hill is vouched for by men of excellent standing.

MAY SOON DEPORT HER

Insane Austrian Woman Now Considered a Public Charge.

The Austrian woman from the Pettit mine location, whom the county authorities believe to be an alien insane person, has been turned over by Immigrant Inspector Dean to the sheriff of St. Louis county, and is at the present time being cared for in the county jail, although arrangements are being made to take her to a hospital.

Inspector Dean took the woman to the county jail Saturday noon. Since that time she has refused to eat anything.

Following the procedure required by the United States government, Inspector Dean has been notified by the county authorities that there is held by the sheriff a woman who is a public charge. Mr. Dean is preparing a report in the matter to the government, the report requiring in detail the name of the woman, the boat she came over to this country on and the date of her landing. After his report passes through the usual channels, the woman will be deported by the government, the steamship company bringing her over being required to return her to the port from which she embarked, free of charge.

In The Herald's article Saturday evening, referring to the disposition of the alien insane, it should have been stated that the government first requires that the persons believed to be afflicted become public charges, that is, that they become charges of the sheriff of the county poor commission. The government does not assume charge for deportation on the simple information that a person is insane and an alien.

Court Overrules Demurrer.

Judge Ensign has filed with the clerk of district court an order overruling the demurrer entered to the complaint made by the Duluth Street Railway company against John P. Hoffman. Mr. Hoffman is given twenty days to withdraw his demurrer and file an answer, and is directed to pay the street railway company $10 costs. The action is one that the company brought against Hoffman, as bondsman, to recover the costs of a personal injury suit against the company in which the plaintiff lost.

JOKES ON POLICE

Two Duluth Officers Are Victims of Laughable Situations.

Clairvoyant Asks Police to Locate Her Missing Husband.

Two good stories are going the rounds of the police department on two of the officers.

The first one is told on Officer Bartlett, who is on the Lester Park beat. He was requested by a citizen of Lakeside to shoot a large Newfoundland dog which had been suffering from some ailment from which recovery was not likely. The officer agreed to perform the duty, but said he would have to take the dog outside the city limits. He accordingly tied a rope to the dog's neck, and started off through the woods. After walking for about a mile and a half or two miles he came to a place which he decided was a suitable site for the death of the dog, and pulling out his revolver he turned. The rope was dragging along the ground and no dog was in sight.

The officer tramped the two miles back to Lakeside and found the dog lying in its owners yard.

The owner says he is going to give the veterinary another chance to save his life.

• • •

The other story is told on officer Barber, who has the late watch on the Superior street beat. It was nothing less than a little game put up on the policeman by two young men Saturday evening.

"Say, do you see that fellow across the street?" asked a well dressed young man of the policeman. "He just bummed me for a half dollar. I gave him a quarter last night, and now he's back for more."

"I'll throw him in," said the officer, taking out a book and writing down the name of the young man, who was known to him, as a witness.

But as the officer walked across the street, the stranger disappeared into a drug store, and the officer not wishing to make a scene in the store, took up his position outside the window and waited. Five, ten and fifteen minutes passed, but still no young man appeared.

"Must be getting a prescription filled," thought the officer.

Just then the drug clerk appeared.

"Were you waiting for a man in the store?" he asked.

"Yes," replied the officer.

"Well, I let him out the back way fifteen minutes ago."

And then the officer had to think up some reason for missing his hourly report to headquarters, the time for which had passed while he was waiting outside the store.

• • •

But an incident which happened this morning made the police feel so good that they forgot the two incidents just related. A noted clairvoyant, who has been doing business in the city at two dollars a sitting, came in to headquarters and asked the police to locate her husband for her. She said he was missing and she feared he had met with some harm. Her anxiety was quite like that of an ordinary mortal.

"If it had been anybody ele's husband, she could have spotted him for two dollars," said one of the officers, "but when it comes to her own husband, she is floored. Funny how this clairvoyance works, isn't it?"

THE DEATH RATE IN CHICAGO DECREASES.

Chicago, April 17.—In closing his ten years of service as commissioner of health for the city of Chicago, Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds presents in his annual report significant data showing the decrease of the death rate in the city.

During the ten years from 1885 to 1894, inclusive, the yearly average rate of death was 20.02 in every 1,000 of population. During the succeeding ten years the rate decreased to 15.1 in every 1,000 of population.

FISH SUPPLY FOUND SHORT

Deputy Game Warden Says Pike Are Not Running.

Deputy Game Warden Green, who went up the St. Louis river to Fond du Lac, last Saturday, with the intention of beginning the work of taking the spawn of pike, after examining the conditions as to the supply of fish, gave the matter up for a time.

He found that while the pike had begun to run up the river several days ago, during a brief warm spell of weather, that the movement has stopped, presumably because the water is still a little too cold.

Mr. Green will postpone any further attempt to get the pike spawn until assured that the fish are running freely and in sufficient quantities to insure a good catch.

MEETING OF THE D. A. R.

Begins at Washington In the New Memorial Continental Hall.

Washington, April 17.—The annual meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution began here this morning. The sessions were in the new Memorial Continental hall, which was dedicated today. The building is not completed, but its construction has progressed sufficiently to allow the meeting to be held in it.

The dedicatory ceremonies were elaborate and interesting and were participated in by Ambassador Jusserand of France. Right Rev. Henry Satterlee, bishop of Washington, pronounced the invocation, the assemblage sang America and Rev. Dr. H. Pereita Mendes, minister of the Spanish and Portuguese congregation of New York, led in prayer.

The president general of the society, Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks, then delivered an address. She was followed by Senator Dolliver of Iowa, who in turn was followed by Ambassador Jusserand.

MUSIC AS CIVILIZER.

The late Theodore Thomas gave expression to a great truth in these remarks: "There is no class of men in the world which suffers so much from fatigue as our American business men. The fatigue alluded to is that caused by applying certain faculties for an undue length of time to any one thing. Nor is there anywhere a class as much in need of a healthful and elevating recreation that will necessitate the use of other faculties, and by stimulating the latter rest the former and thus create a healthy harmony in the system. To listen to music is restful to the human being, because faculties are called into action and appealed to other than those he ordinarily uses, and also because it absorbs all his attention and frees him from his worldly cares. Instrumental music is especially restful, because it appeals to his imagination and intellect, and permits his own interpretation to the extent of his experience, whereas in vocal music the interpretation is bound by the text. I speak now of masterworks, and not of sentimental rhythmical trifles. * * * One reason why I came to Chicago was because I understood the excitement and nervous strain that everyone, more or less, suffers from who have lived there, and realized the consequent need of establishing a permanent musical institution in such a community."

Not only is music a great relief from mental strain and worry, but it never fails to have a helpful and elevating effect upon all classes of humanity. The managers of insane asylums have discovered that even the insane are made more tractable and quiet when they are permitted to enjoy good music and that it assists in restoring the curable insane to health.

There is no art that has a greater influence for good upon the minds of children, and for this reason the time spent in the public schools in teaching and demonstrating music is time very profitably expended. The poet expressed a truth when he said that "music hath charms to soothe the savage breast." There is more or less of the savage in the natures of all human beings and a splendid way to overcome it is to permit the child to listen to good music and to teach him how to make music.

Duluth has a splendid musical organization in the Third Regiment band, and with the addition of a couple of French horns it would be, in the opinion of many experts, fully equal to the splendid organization in Chicago formerly directed by Theodore Thomas. It is appreciated, too, not only by the people of Duluth but of all the surrounding country. It should receive the liberal support and encouragement of all Duluth citizens.

Likewise the musical department of the public schools of the city should be kept up to a high standard of efficiency. There is nothing that will have a greater power in developing good morals and good citizenship among the rising generations.

HAS FALLEN FLAT.

The house committee on public accounts, of which Representative Dowling of Eveleth is chairman, has followed up its whitewash of ex-State Auditor Dunn's actions in regard to timber trespass cases and mineral leases by a report declaring that ex-Public Examiner Samuel T. Johnson was guilty of neglect of duty in not examining many state banks, and of padding expense accounts, etc. Possibly the charges are true, but the public would have more faith in the accusations if they emanated from some other source. Nothing that the house committee on public accounts says on this subject can be accepted as correct, because it is well known that it started its investigation with the deliberate purpose of whitewashing ex-Auditor Dunn's record, and of finding some irregularities on the part of Examiner Johnson, who conducted the original investigation into Mr. Dunn's office and made the report that was responsible to a great extent for Mr. Dunn's defeat for governor. The charges against Mr. Johnson have been largely discounted, and, in view of their source, have created no sensation, falling very fat. The house committee has not benefited Mr. Dunn by its whitewashing report, nor injured Mr. Johnson very much by its accusations.

OVERSHOT THE MARK.

The advocates of a "big" navy for the United States generally overshoot the mark aimed at. They always proceed upon the theory that the United States is in danger of attack from some European power. Admiral Dewey is the latest to become worried over the possible awful fate of the United States unless it possesses a big navy. And he says battleships are the real thing. He appear to forget how little Spain's battleships amounted to in the recent war.

He also forgets that American history records the fact that in every war entered upon by this country, with the exception of that with Spain, our naval forces fought and won against superior numbers and superior equipment. The people thought the same thing had occurred in the Spanish war, but when they found out the actual facts, Admiral Dewey was no longer a hero in their eyes.

The admiral thinks that forty-eight battleships would be enough for this country and that it would only take $100,000,000 a year for the maintenance of such a navy. Only $100,000,000! How glibly your naval officer can talk of millions. And supposing after we had forty-eight modern battleships, some European power should build twice that number, would we then have enough? No. It would be necessary to build some more, and so the process would go on and on forever.

The fact is that forty-eight battleships would be no more of a guarantee of peace than would be eight. This country has no need of an enormous navy unless it intends to be an aggressor. If it minds its own business and deals justly and fairly with its neighbors there is no reason why it should ever be attacked by any of the great powers of Europe. And if an attack should ever come the country's success or failure will not depend upon the number of battleships on hand. It will depend upon the patriotism and skill of the American people, and the resources of the country. The United States can, in case of necessity, build and equip battleships faster than any other nation on the globe. It can man them with better men and it can invent new engines of destruction faster than any other. Therein lies its strength and its security from unjust attack.

Admiral Dewey fears that with our present "small" navy, an opponent might get between our two squadrons of battleships and raise particular "hob." If the nation had not taken a false step in adopting a colonial policy of expansion it would not need to have battleships in Far Eastern waters to prevent a possible assault upon the Philippines. The conquest and annexation of that worthless territory has made necessary an enormous addition to the navy, and all this expense might have been avoided by following the same plan with regard to the Philippines as was adopted in the case of Cuba.

THE LAW'S TECHNICALITIES.

Once upon a time a man who was convicted of perjury in St. Louis county was liberated because his attorney found that the clerk who administered the oath had not been sworn himself. Because he was not duly authorized to administer an oath therefore the defendant was not under oath and could not be guilty of perjury.

That is what is known as a "technicality." It made no difference that the defendant thought he was under oath when he gave the false testimony. It made no difference that the jury decided he had testified falsely. The law's technicalities had to be respected. Therefore the man who bore false witness against his neighbor was given his liberty.

It is on a similar technicality that two more of the convicted boodlers of St. Louis are likely to escape the penitentiary. Charles F. Kelly and Charles A. Gutke have been granted new trials by the supreme court on the ground that the original information filed against them by Circuit Attorney Folk had not been verified by affidavit. The judgment in each of these two cases followed an earlier ruling of the court under which eight or ten of this same group of boodlers have been saved from serving just sentences.

Of course it is possible that these men may be convicted again but the longer the time that elapses between the commission of a crime and the trial, the less chance there is to secure a conviction. Now these men are just as guilty as if this technicality had been complied with. Everybody knows it. Yet the law gives them another opportunity to escape their just deserts.

Is it any wonder that many people are losing faith in the law and the courts of this country? It would seem to be about time for the different states to amend their criminal statutes so that technicalities of this nature would not so often serve to defeat the ends of justice.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

Cheer up. It will probably be warm during July and August.

The "experts" say that the coming battle between the navies of Russia and Japan will end the war if it should happen to go against Togo. But do not bank too highly on that. The experts are often mistaken.

It is said that H. C. Frick is going into politics. Mr. Frick has been a busy man, but he is yet to experience a taste of real strenuosity.

The logical outcome of mob law has been reached in Mississippi, where Sheriff Hoag was shot to death by a mob who were attempting the release of a man accused of crime. Governor Vardaman has promised to punish the perpetrators, and it is hoped that he will succeed.

* * *

Governor Warner of Michigan during the last campaign made the assertion that he would sign any primary bill that the legislature would pass, and then used his power and influence to prevent the passage of any sort of measure. There are a lot of reformers like Warner in political life.

Since he is probably in the right, President Castro can afford to make faces at the other powers. Right is stronger than a big army and navy.

The defense of Judge Hooker of New York, who is accused of grafting, is that others have done the same. That is an old excuse, but it goes sometimes.

England is getting ready to throw a lot of its old battleships on the junk pile. That course may be necessary with some now being built by the United States, before any real use is found for them.

Rev. Dr. S. M. Zwemer, who has spent ten years in various parts of Arabia as missionary of the Reformed Church in America, says that the reported rising of the Arabs against the rule of Turkey means that ere long there must be a British protectorate. The aggressive policy of Lord Curzon has practically made the Persian gulf an English lake, for "already there are numerous turbine steamers subsidized by the Indian government, and consulates are building at such important places as Bagdad Kuweit and Bander Abbas." So thinks Dr. Zwemer, from his long experience, in which he has made a close study of political and religious conditions. Great Britain's job of policing the world is certainly full of trouble.

Compliment comes to the assistant secretary of the navy, Judge Darling, as he is preparing to leave Washington for the more lucrative post of collector of customs at Burlington, Vt. Frank W. Hackett, who held the same place in the navy department under the McKinley administration, speaking in Baltimore, declared Judge Darling "to be one of the ablest men who had ever taken part in the administration of naval affairs." In commenting thereon the Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript adds: "In this judgment Washington opinion generally concurs."

* * *

The Boston Commercial Bulletin recently made a canvass of Canadian sentiment concerning reciprocity. It sent questions to every daily newspaper in the Dominion and also to the smaller weeklies, a total of 241 journals circulated in every part of Canada. Of those papers only twenty favor reciprocal trade concessions, ninety-four apparently disdain to answer, and 101 squarely oppose reciprocity on any terms. There was a time, not long ago, when Canadian opinion ran as strongly in the opposite direction. Now they are beginning to feel their own strength and take pride in going alone. The blundering statesmanship in this country is responsible for the fact that a reciprocity treaty is not now in existence.

Hotel Gossip.

"A show troupe meets with a variety of queer hotel experiences while on the road," said J. M. Ratliff of "The Yankee Consul" company at the Lenox. "One such came our way only last week, down at Madison, Wisconsin's capitol city. When we struck town we found that the legislature was in session, and that, in consequence, all the first-class hotels were filled from basement to garret.

"This left us no choice but to proceed in a body to a house where the rate was, I believe, about 50 cents a day, much as we disliked to do it. But it was either that or sleep on the ground. As a matter of fact, we found the rooms were neat and clean when once we got into them, and not half bad, but it was the getting into them that lent interest to the incident.

"Immediately following the close of the show Frank Ranney, stage manager, and I made our way to the hotel. Of course, it was near the hour of midnight when we arrived there. We found a fat, sleepy, grouchy, cussing old German in charge as night clerk. He had a double chin, double neck and double stomach, likewise a double swearing capacity, for he could do more cussing to the square yard than any other man it has ever been my misfortune to meet.

"He did not like our intrusion, and plainly showed his resentment, but bore up very well under the usual preliminaries in the way of questions concerning rooms. Then I asked him what time he could call us in the morning. He said he would call us at 6 o'clock. We told him we didn't want to get up at that particular hour, but he said that made no difference to him, and that he was going to rouse us out then whether it suited us or not. This information was gaudily embellished with the choicest and most picturesque collection of swear words that ever painted the sky blue. It fairly hid the ceiling from view in a haze which might easily be mistaken for the heavenly canopy.

"After a little further argument along this line we gave up as useless any attempt to be roused at the time we wanted to get up, and I asked him for a key so that I might look at some of the rooms. It appeared that one pass key opened all the rooms in the rather large house. This one key was in the German's possession and he did not care to part with it, but volunteered the information that we might go up and try the doors and call down the elevator shaft to him if we found them locked. The elevator wasn't running, he said. He was afflicted with that peculiar disease which goes by the name of the gout, and did not care to climb the three flights.

"Joe and I followed out his instructions and found the doors locked. I hollered down the elevator shaft and our jolly clerk came hobbling up the stairs. So greatly was his progress impeded by his unfortunate affliction that I began to fear he never would put in an appearance. Finally, however, he loomed up on the horizon.

"'What time did you say you were going to call us in the morning?' I asked.

"'Six o'clock,' he bellowed.

"'Better start at 5,' I said, and at that Joe had the ill grace to laugh in a very pronounced way. I joined in, and the Dutchman came within an ace of turning about and leaving us there in the hall to make our bed on the floor as best we could, but he thought better of it and remained.

"'Laugh, you blankety-blank-blank-blankety-blanks,' he remarked in a voice that must have awakened the cat in the basement. 'I've got your money. What in — do I care.'

"He certainly had the cinch on us there, for we had paid in advance.

"He looked at the list of names and room numbers he held in his hand and wanted to know which door we wanted opened first. We told him those the company were to occupy. That didn't help any, for he informed us that he couldn't read, so we picked out a certain room and told him to unlock it. His efforts in this direction brought forth a shrill feminine scream from the other side of the door, and a cry of robbers, fire, thieves, help, etc., and so on. Unbeknown to us one of our fair chorus girls had returned to the building before we did and retired for the night.

"The Dutchman turned on us with the fury of a wounded bull and we had to retreat rapidly down the hall to escape his ponderous fist. The eighty rods of high grade cussing material he then ripped from the endless roll he had hid somewhere about his weighty person fairly made the windows rattle, and the chorus girl's assumed even louder than she did when first roused from her slumbers, but Joe's soothing voice floating in through the transom soon put her fears at rest. When our genial host had quieted down somewhat, we asked him how he was going to know who to call in the morning if he could not read.

"'Who I call? Who I call?' he roared. 'I call efrey blankety-blank blank-blank in de 'ouse at 6 o'clock. Efrey ones here gets him hup at 6 o'clock.'

"Paving the way with delicious cuss words that made us dizzy as we walked he led us to another room and opened the door. What we saw was satisfactory in a way, and so we went on along the line, he opening doors as we proceeded. When we reached the toilet room I happened to remember that I was thirsty.

"'Got any ice water?' I asked.

"'Ice vater? Ice vater? Vouse vant ice vater in mittle of summer time?' he said.

"'Well, give us a glass to drink out of, anyway,' I said, seeing nothing but a tin cup in the room.

"'Dere's de faucet and dere's de tin gup. You drinks mid dem. You gets noddings else,' he answered.

"And we did."

The Unwelcome Suitor.

The girl who wants to get rid of a persistent and tiresome caller usually does everything she can to show him he is unwelcome without openly telling him so. Her performances are many and interesting.

First she pleads other engagements. Her next dodge is to "big brother" him. The third scheme is to act nautral, so horribly natural that anybody but a born idiot would take the hint.

That failing, she takes to palming him off on her family.

Then she gives away his flowers and insists upon her small brother gobbling up his chocolate creams under his very nose.

Next she abuses him. She makes appointments with him and takes pains not to keep them. She gives his dances to some one else. She goes off rowing with a rival when she has promised to go driving with him.

When she shuts herself up in her room and refuses to see him, the desired result is generally accomplished, even where all other methods have failed.

If he still comes, she can either ask her father to hit him in the head with an ax, or she can ask him why he doesn't get married, so he will have some place to spend his evenings. Then he will either propose or quit. If he proposes she can refuse him, and he is sure to come no more—at least for a while.

TART TRIFLES.

Washington Star: "Your husband," said the physician, "must not let his system run down."

"Doctor," answered young Mrs. Torkins, "he has been doing his best to keep it up. But it never wins."

Chicago Tribune: Mr. Cookley (to his wife)—Estelle, we haven't been to church for several weeks. Let's go next Sunday.

Youngest of the Family—Why, papa, what are they going to give away next Sunday?

Cleveland Leader: "Do you," asked the humorist, fairly bubbling over with mirth, "do you accept contributions written on both sides of the paper?"

"If," responded the editor, without looking up, "it's a check for your subscription made payable to us, we do. I've been caught on that old joke once."

Philadelphia Ledger: "Have you really no affection for any other girl, dear?" she asked of her fiance.

"No," replied the drug clerk, absentmindedly, "but I have something just as good."

Washington Star: "Well," said the multi-millionaire, "I have done a good day's work today."

"Made a whole lot more money?"

"No. Better than that. Succeeded in persuading a church organization to accept some of it as a gift."

Chicago Tribune: Instructor—How far will the modern bullet carry?

Shaggy Haired Pupil—That depends on the charge of the powder.

Instructor—I mean how far will it carry with sufficient force to kill a man?

Shaggy Haired Pupil—That depends on the man behind the gun.

Philadelphia Press: "'Woman's Talk,'" quoted Nagget from his Sunday paper, "that's a queer heading for this department."

"What's so queer about it?" demanded Mrs. Nagget.

"Why, there's only about half a column of it."

THE WOODEN INDIAN.

Behold the wooden Indian,
Who stands outside the door,
And guards with frown and hatchet,
The old tobacco store.
He never beats a grocery bill,
He never told a lie,
He never took a longing look
At bourbon, fizz or rye.

Behold the wooden Indian,
A mass of oak and paint;
He never made a crooked move,
In faith, he was a saint.
He never bought a stack of chips
And sat into a game;
He never rushed a chorus girl
Or flirted with a dame.

Behold the wooden Indian,
Who, on the other hand,
Was never known to help the poor
That fill our glorious land;
Who never heard the piteous cry
Of him who starved alone—
Who never gave a hungry dog
So much as one small bone.

Behold the wooden Indian,
(And clay is much like wood),
Who never did a bit of harm,
Nor yet a bit of good.
His family is not extinct—
In fact, one often meets
A lot of wooden Indians
A-walking on the streets.

That Undefinable Boundary.

A writer in "Leslie's Magazine" discussing the question, "Who is Insane?" relates a story of a student who asked the French alienist Esquirol if there were any sure tests by which to tell the sane from the insane. "Please dine with me tomorrow at 6 o'clock," was the answer of the savant. Two other guests were present, one of whom was elegantly dressed and apparently highly educated, while the other was rather uncouth, noisy and extremely conceited. After dinner the pupil rose to take leave, and as he shook hands with his teacher he remarked: "The problem is very simple after all; the quiet, well-dressed gentleman is certainly distinguished in some lines, but the other is as certainly a lunatic, and ought at once to be locked up." "You are wrong, my friend," replied Esquirol, with a smile. "That quiet, well-dressed man who talks so rationally has for years labored under the delusion that he is God the Father, whereas the other man, whose exuberance and self-conceit have surprised you, is Mr. Honore de Balzac, the greatest French writer of the day."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A man married to an old wife stands a better chance to have one over with.

It is as easy for a woman to think she thinks as it is hard for her to do it.

It is high finance when somebody else does big things with your money for himself.

When a man punishes his son his wife can't help wondering if he is jealous of his brains.

The Evening Paper Supreme

STATEMENTS FROM ADVERTISERS WHO KNOW FROM EXPERIENCE

No. 8.

HOUGHTON & DUTTON
BOSTON.

"We prefer the evening paper by all means, because it goes into the homes directly, while a morning paper has a tendency to work back into the business section and does not reach the homes in such relative numbers as the evening paper."

Twenty Years Ago.

Taken From the Columns of Duluth Papers of This Date 1885.

Memberships on the board of trade are now sold at about $225, with sellers scarce.

Dr. G. W. Davis has been appointed county physician.

Capt. Farrell is now customs inspector of this port.

The ice in the lake, under the influence of a northeast wind, has moved back toward shore.

R. P. Edson has purchased the house occupied by C. L. Watrous, on East Third street, for $1,650. He has sold his property in Caro, Mich., and his family will move here in about two weeks.

 Surveyor Stuntz is instructed to lay out a road between Fond du Lac and Thomson, as petitioned for by citizens of that locality.

Since the first of April local sales of the Refrigerator Car company have been over $11,000. This does not look much like hard times.

A. F. Stahbuch is building a dwelling on Fourth street, between Second and Third avenues east.

The new Swedish church building at Rice's Point is nearly completed. It will seat, with gallery, nearly 200, and is a very pleasant audience room. The members call themselves the Swedish Church of Christ, or Free Lutherans. They expect a minister from Minneapolis, Rev. Mr. Dillner, next week, and will dedicate their church early in May.

Cards have been issued for the marriage of Frances Lois Rice of St. St. Paul to L. Arthur Marvin of this city. The ceremony will be performed in the Second Presbyterian church of Lafayette, Ind., on Tuesday afternoon of next week. Miss Rice is the daughter of Rev. Dr. Rice, at one time pastor of the Presbyterian church here. Mr. Marvin is assistant superintendent of the elevator companies.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Wahasha Herald: Mankato ought to be well governed this year. The mayor is a Democrat, which is good, but better still he is a large sized Democrat, weighing 420 pounds. When he once takes a stand it will not be easy to move him.

Halsted Reporter: Did you ever realize of what value the creameries are to the town or neighborhood in which they are located? If not you should live where they have no creameries. They bring cash money to the farmer every day in the year and that money goes to the merchant, and at the end of the season the farmer has not so large a bill at his general trading place and he gets along a lot easier in life than if he was not taking milk to the creamery every week and getting his cash for it.

Albert Lea Tribune: The indications now are that there will be no primary election legislation this season of the legislature in next year. It is generally conceded the people of the state wanted some primary law reform and the legislature should have agreed upon some form of law to at least make a start toward the goal sought for.

Owatonna Chronicle: The present state legislature at this date bids fair to leave behind it a record of petty political maneuvering and backbiting with nothing of any importance accomplished. Well, if it fails to pass any positively bad legislation it will be entitled to some credit.

Stillwater Gazette: The law punishing jumpers of board bills is all right, but why not have laws protecting the balance of us? Suppose that a fellow who takes a newspaper a year or two or six, writes that he does not want your dogasted old sheet any longer, or has the postmaster send it back marked refused, why not give this disgrace to humanity a jail sentence? He has consumed the newspaper man's goods the same as if he had eaten a meal, and if a jail sentence is right for the meal grafter it is equally so for the fellow who takes a paper for years, and then refuses to make good with the root of all evil.

Freeborn County Standard: The legislature of the state has repeatedly petitioned congress to permit United States senators to be elected by a direct vote of the people, and yet the present legislature not only refuses to provide for their nomination by primary election, but, worse yet, it rejects with scarcely decent consideration the proposition demanded by the conventions of both political parties, reinforced almost unanimously by the press and the earnest demands of the people, to extend the privileges of the primary system to the nomination of state officers.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Philadelphia Ledger: A New York preacher has drawn an ideal picture of what the preacher ought to be. Of course, it's the old story of a $100,000 a year man on a $1,000 salary.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Toledo is justly inflated over the announcement that Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady is to occupy one of its pulpits for two months or more. There are few clergymen in this or any other nation who can keep two stenographers busy at the same time, dictating a sermon to one and a work of fiction to the other.

Philadelphia Press: The "Rev." J. Frank Cordova has begun his four-year sentence in Trenton state prison, and much is said about his mistress and his poor wife and three young children. They are left to the mercy of the world without thought on the part of the disgraced husband and father. Such a man should be kept in prison, the proper place for him.

New York Tribune: Mr. Rockefeller is said to have given a total of $32,405,000 to American educational, religious and public uses, and in all these cases, we believe, the money has been gratfully accepted, and in some cases solicited in advance of the gift. In addition to the proverbial admonition about looking a gift horse in the mouth, the question raised by the American Board of the Foreign Missionary society as to whether it should accept a gift of $100,000 tendered to it by Mr. Rockefeller tends to throw discredit upon the half a hundred or more institutions and boards which have accepted similar gifts.

Portland Oregonian: "Rev. Daniel S. Toy will tell the story of his life, 'From Sporting Life to Preaching.'" Such is the public announcement. Brother Toy probably has been a very vile, immoral and wicked man. Such a confession, unhappily, is included in his statement, or at least is to be inferred from it. But isn't silence about such a life better than exposition or exploitation of it for sensational purposes? Is it edifying, can it be conducive to the cause of truth and virtue, for one like Brother Toy to tell how bad he has been? Again, wouldn't it be more in accord with the dignity of human nature if such a one should enter into his closet and shut his door and refrain, even for revival purposes, from exposure of his past life in its monstrous moral nakedness?

Military Theories Exploded.

Springfield Republican: Official returns by the Russians, which seem trustworthy, now fix their total losses in killed, wounded and prisoners at Mukden at 167,000 men. The Japanese have acknowledged total losses on their side as about 57,000. These figures contrasted make it impossible to argue for the Russians at any conceivable point in strategy, tactics and fighting power. For, while Oyama probably had a numerical superiority, Kouropatkin was on the defensive. That the Russians fighting a defensive battle could have suffered losses about twice as large as their enemy's would have been deemed impossible before the war began. Modern weapons were supposed to increase greatly the life-preserving abilities of an army intent merely upon holding its ground. But night attacks and other adaptations of infantry and artillery combat to new conditions appear to have restored largely the old equilibrium between the attack and the defense.

Thomas Realized His Power.

This little passage in "Theodore Thomas' autobiography, written in his days of stress, gives a glimpse of the great Chicago orchestra leader's steadfastness of purpose and the courage with which he fought his way to success and of his faith in himself and the ultimate appreciation of the American people:

"I was hungry last night; but no fox gnawing at my side, as in the Spartan story, can make me abandon the course of life I have laid out for myself. I have gone without food longer than I should. I have walked when I could not afford to ride. I have even played when my hands were cold, but I shall succeed, for I shall never give up my belief that at the last the people will come to me, and my concerts will be crowded. I have undying faith in the latest musical appreciation of the American public."

EVERY GIRL MAY BE VENUS

Drink Lots of Water and Operate a Carpet Sweeper.

Chicago, April 17.—A rule was given Saturday whereby every girl may become a Venus, well rounded, plump and supple, if she has the desire. Lack of form can no longer be blamed on nature, for Dr. Charles J. Lewis declared before the National Promotion of Health club that women as well as men could round out their forms and add flesh to their bodies by drinking plenty of water. "Your system needs much water, and you should drink a proper quantity every day," he said.

Dr. Lewis revised the current cure for laziness, and declared that people are often accused of being lazy when in reality a post mortem examination often reveals that their lack of desire for work was due to unhealthy and shattered condition of the heart.

"My, my," exclaimed one little mother, "that may be the very reason our Willie doesn't like to run errands."

The club was startled when Mrs. Cornelia Claflin, its president, announced that our lives are too artificial, and that women wear too many clothes to be healthy.

"With a long skirt trailing and swishing along over sidewalks, gathering up dirt and microbes, woman is anything but a thing of beauty and a joy forever," she declared.

Dr. Lewis' rules for women to become Venuses are:

Drink water freely.
Wear less clothing.
Do more washing.
Operate a carpet sweeper.
Go out doors more.
Wear shorter skirts.
Get back to the simple life.

NEWEST MANSION

For Fifth Avenue Will Set a Fast Pace.

New York, April 71.—The newest mansion planned for Fifth avenue is setting a fast pace for the other dwellers of that aristocratic thoroughfare. It is to have a big automobile garage on the first floor and a squash court and garden on the sixth.

James A. Garland, the Wall street banker, is the builder of this residence, the plans for which were filed Saturday with the bureau of buildings. The mansion is to be a six-story and basement structure, with a frontage of forty feet and a depth of 100. Its location is at No. 1021 Fifth avenue, near Eighty-third street. It will be of colonial design with a facade of Harvard brick and many small-paned windows.

On the first floor will be the automobile garage and a great billiard room. On the second floor will be a spacious drawing room and dining room. The third floor will be taken up with sleeping apartments. The fourth and fifth will accommodate a two-story library. The sixth floor will have the squash court and garden.

The estimated cost of the mansion is $125,000.

HOW FOOD WORKS.

A Sure Way Out of Bowel Troubles.

So called "septic appendicitis" will often hang on for years. This is caused by white bread, potatoes and other forms of starchy food that the individual does not properly digest, and it is useless to attempt to make a permanent change by any form of drug, for all drugs "wear out" and in time refuse to benefit where the cause of the disturbance is not removed.

Septic appendicitis is a general term for a diseased condition of the bowels caused from undigested starch, and, as stated above, it may go on for years; yet people must have starchy food.

It is a well established fact among physicians and individuals who have made the experiment, that when bowel disturbances are shown, a change in food must be made, and that the famous predigested food—Grape-Nuts—is the most perfect remedy, for it contains no medicine of any sort, but it is made up of the selected parts of wheat and barley in which the starchy part has been changed into the form of sugar that is found in the human intestines after the starchy part of the food has been perfectly digested.

When Grape-Nuts food is used in place of bread, or any of the other forms of starch, the body is supplied with the necessary elements already in the form of this sugar (known as "Post sugar") and is therefore ready for immediate assimilation for the first act of digestion has taken place outside of the body and during the process of manufacture.

Absolute certainty of results can be depended upon and the disease relieved by this method.

A prominent Missouri editor tells this cheerful story:

"For three years I suffered from septic appendicitis, with all that involves. The aid of physicians was inadequate and the difficulty of finding food that would assimilate without great annoyance in the region of the vermiform appendix was fairly insurmountable until I struck Grape-Nuts.

"Grape-Nuts relish and digest comfortably. They have not only proven to be most satisfying and nutritious food, but they have actually healed my ailment. I am, today, after several months' use of Grape-Nuts, absolutely free from any disorder whatever—in perfect health—and I attribute my strength of mind and body to Grape-Nuts." DEDICATE CHURCH

New Building at Arnold Opened By Duluth Pastors.

Dr. Rice Preaches Eloquent Sermon at First Methodist.

The newly erected Presbyterian church at Arnold was dedicated yesterday, the first sermon in the new church being preached by Rev. J. T. Moody of the Duluth Bethel.

The text was taken from the promise of God contained in the sermon of Moses: "I have chosen and sanctified this house that my name be there forever and mine eyes and ears shall be there perpetually."

The speaker charged the people to keep the church as a sanctuary, inviolate and inviolable.

Rev. Willam Asher offered the dedicatory prayer, calling for a blessing upon the work to be accomplished in the new church.

Lewis Sulcov reviewed the history of the church in Arnold, and Miss Anna Carlson told of the struggles of the Sunday school since it was organized thirteen years ago by Miss Jensen, with but thirteen pupils. Mrs. William Asher and W. W. Schaub sang, and the congregational singing was led by the choir in charge of Lewis Sulcov, with Miss Maymie Mathews as organist.

The communion sacrament was administered by Rev. J. C. Faries of the Glen Avon church and Rev. J. T. Moody at the close of the regular service.

Palms and greens decorated the new church in honor of the occasion.

This is the second church to be erected at Arnold within six months, a new Lutheran church having been but recently completed. The new building is now free from debt, the small remaining indebtedness having been wiped out by a collection taken up yesterday.

"I Must See Rome" was the subject chosen by Rev. M. S. Rice for his sermon last evening at the First M. E. church. His sermon was a plea for some fixed purpose in life, and the determined following of that purpose.

"How much the earnest expectation of a needy world has had to stand aside from the real march and drill, drill, drill with the awkward squad," he said, "just to pound into them the time of the march and to leave ringing, indeed, through the halls of experience the evidence of multitudes of dull learners, as we have heard the well-known terms and the stumbling answering steps, hay foot. Straw foot. Hay foot. Straw foot.

"And the multitude in the business of real life seem never to come out from that elementary drill.

"This old world so constituted as to be an insurmountable obstacle to drone, has much proven that in the momentous issues of life, we do not find success by stumbling upward. Men stumble down, but not up. Men stumble upon diamonds sometimes, but never upon character.

"Set you a mark. Set it high enough to demand the best power of a man, and be sure then that you spend every strength of its attainment. God have mercy upon a man equipped with weapons fit to win life's battles, who grovels and who uses king's powers in slave's business.

"'I must see Rome.' I may die there as a result of my going but what of that? Death is but an incident in human life. Keeping alive on this earth is no great compliment to a man. It is all right for a tortoise. They outlive men by natural right. The poor old tortoise can't move fast enough to make his heart beat a march to an early grave. Life is accomplishment, not existence.

"A Dead Sure Thing" was the subject chosen by Rev. R. Ames Montgomery for his talk at the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon. "Men believe in the inviolability of the law," he said. "They know that if they transgress the law physical or economical, they must surely reap the fruits of their acts, but they disregard the fact that such a retribution is equally certain in the moral and spiritual world."

"Russia," the second in the series of lectures delivered by the Rev. Charles Fox Davis was given last evening at M. E. church, Lester Park. Mr. Davis spoke for nearly an hour, and was listened to with much interest. He spoke in part as follows:

"Russia has been the storm center for over a year in the Far East, and the eyes of the world are turned in that direction. There is no nation that is bigger than its religion. It is utterly impossible to write the history of nations without religion. All questions, whether they belong to individuals or nations have to do with the morals of its country. Russia is a dark, superstitious country that puts a mortgage on the brains of its citizens. It has been described as the 'bear that walks like a man.' She is a great giant that has thrown itself against civilization. She has one-tenth of the entire globe's inhabitants.

"The races to be found in Russia are legion, and sixty different languages are spoken there today. She is governend by an absolute military monarchy. The czar's wealth is greater than any emperor or king in the world." Here Mr. Davis read an extract from an article in Saturday's Herald in proof of the assertion. "So wealthy is Russia that they could maintain a war like that in which the Boers and England were engaged in some years ago, forever. Her railroad system extends almost to the very doors of Germany and it is by the manupulation of her railroads that she will annex China if the other powers do not stop her. Iron, copper and other minerals in Russia have just been scratched. The vastness of the czar's power is simply amazing.

"Japan has been the first nation to stop her progress in the East. 'Thus far no fruther,' says Japan, and they have pushed her out of Manchuria. Can the other powers stop Russia if she really wants China? China's losses mean Russia' advancement. Russia has changed the map of Asia. For her to want a thing is to take it. She took Stberia, Manchuria and Port Arthur and her railways are within gunshot of Pekin. Once Russia gets her grip on China nothing can stop her. You cannot tell which way India will go.

"Napoleon said that within a century the world would be either republican, Anglo-Saxon or Slav. It will be Russia, with her great resources, against the world, according to eminent historians.

"Priests are used as political workers, as they go out into the country that is desired by the czar and furnish maps and all information to St. Petersburg. The emperor is also the head of the church, the holy father, the pope, the God on earth, and no man dare touch his crown. He is the only monarch in the world that crowns himself.

"The Russian soldier is used almost in an inhuman manner. When returning from the battlefield, maimed and wounded he is given a certificate to beg. This is in marked contrast to the system in vogue in the United States, England, Germany and France, where the wounded soldiers and sailors are sent to the spacious homes built for the purpose of enabling them to pass the remainder of their lives in comparative comfort.

"The cross of Jesus Christ is the key that is going to unlock Russia's superstition and ignorance to Christianity."

The next of the series will be "Japan," which will be given the week after Easter.

MISS ROOSEVELT

To Visit Mrs. Longworthy and Gossip Starts.

Cincinnati, April 17.—There was a stir in society circles last evening, when Congressman Nicholas Longworth confirmed the report that Miss Alice Roosevelt will visit his mother in May.

Following the many rumors of their engagement, the visit is generally accepted as giving substance to what has been quiet talk in official circles for some time.

Mr. Longworth said:

"Miss Roosevelt is a great friend of my sister, Mrs. Waltingford, and will accompany her on a visit to my mother at her home on Grandin road. She will be here a couple of days."

MICHIGAN WINS DEBATE.

Chicago University Is Defeated In Annual Contest.

Chicago, April 17.—Michigan university won the annual intercollegiate debate against the university of Chicago in the Fine Arts building, the vote of the judges being unanimous in favor of the representatives of Ann Arbor. By defeating the local team the winners earn the title of champions of the central debating league.

The question was: "Resolved, that the preservation of the Chinese empire is for the best interests of civilization." Michigan had the negative side of the question and Chicago argued in favor of the resolution.

VAN WYCK TO MARRY.

Mrs. Hertie Refuses to Talk About It.

New York, April 17.—It is reported that Former Mayor Robert A. Van Wyck is to marry Mrs. John C. Hertie.

Mr. Van Wyck's secretary refused to confirm the rumor.

"I must decline to answer any such question," said Mrs. Hertie. "I will not discuss it at all."

NORMANNA WINS

Captures Carlson Trophy a Second Time In Singing Contest.

Svea Club Makes Fine Showing, Being But Little Behind.

The second prize singing contest between the Svea Glee club and the Normanna Male chorus yesterday afternoon at the Lyceum packed the house to overflowing; and it was an appreciative as well as an enthusiastic audience.

The program opened with the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner," by Flaaten's orchestra, the audience standing during the rendition. Then followed a processional march by Halvorsen, played by the orchestra.

H. B. Knudsen acted as master of ceremonies and introduced E. L. Millar, who extolled the virtues and valor of the Scandinavians, and gave some interesting data about the state of Minnesota and the city of Duluth, mincing in a few quibs and quills, and winding up with a tribute to music.

Next followed a chorus by the two societies, "Sta Stark," by Wennerberg, directed by Charles Fremling, which had a good rendition.

The first prize number was "Olaf Trygvasson," by Reissinger, sung by the Normanna. The society has sung the composition before, but yesterday afternoon the singers were "on their metal" and shading, tempo, climax and everything in expression that a work of this kind needs was brought out to its fullest extent.

The Svea Glee club chose Franz Abt's beautiful "Die stille Wasserrose" ("Nackrosen") for its first contest number, a difficult number, making heavy demands on the voices and intonation. It was well done, though, and the many fine crescendos and decrescidos so characteristic of Abt's tender music were well done, showing good hard work at rehearsals.

Miss Grayce Frances Turner sang a soprano solo, "Den Store Hvide Flok," by Grieg, and responded to an encore with "Norge mit Norge," by Lindtner.

W. S. McCormick, told a number of amusing short stories and kept the audience in a happy frame of mind for a quarter of an hour.

The Svea Glee club's second prize song, a hunting song by Cronhamn, followed next, which was contested with "Og Raven laa Under Birkerod" by the Normanna. Both are spirited compositions, though the latter gave more opportunity for expression.

"Reminiscences of Gluntarne," by Wennerberg was another orchestra number, after which the judges announced the awarding of the prize. The counting was by points and out of a possible 600 for each society the Svea received 482 and the Normanna 504, thus giving the Normanna the contest by 22 points.

The contest was conducted on accuracy in reading, intonation; rythm, including tempo and proper vacilation; attack and smoothness, beginning and ending phrases; shading, including climax; tone quality or timbre; balance: sustenuto, including accent; interpretation; expression, style, manner, altitude and freedom.

On the first contest song the Normanna received 248 points; the Svea receiving 238 points. On the Svea's second contest song it was awarded 244 points, and the Normanna received 256 on its second contest song, thus giving the Normanna Male chorus the trophy by 22 points.

After the announcement of the award by the judges the two societies sang Grieg's "Landsighting," with baritone solo by George Thrana and orchestra accompaniment, under direction of J. H. Flaaten. It is a grand number and was well rendered, except that orchestra and chorus were not sufficiently in touch with each other at times.

The judges were Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker, George L. Tyler and Franz Schultz, and they took occasion to compliment both societies on the high standard of music chosen and the high degree of merit in which it was rendered.

The trophy for which the societies are contesting is a large silver loving cup on an ebony base, presented by Carlson Bros., and it is necessary that either society win the same three times before it can claim final possession. This is the second time the Normanna has won the trophy.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—"Happy Hooligan."
METROPOLITAN—Tom Marks' company in "That Irish Boarder."

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Tuesday and Wednesday, Henrietta Crosman in "Mistress Nell."

"HAPPY HOOLIGAN."

This evening at the Lyceum "Happy Hooligan," a jolly musical comedy of the broad order, written by Frank Dumont and founded upon the familiar character created by F. Opper and found in the comic sections of newspapers, will be given. The company is said to be a good one and includes Frank McNish, John Price, Ruby Raymond, Eva Thatcher, Charles Grambich, Charles Saunders and Joseph Pettinglil.

TOM MARKS HERE AGAIN.

Tom Marks, who comes to the Metropolitan for an engagement of two weeks, beginning tonight, played, for some weeks in Duluth about six years ago and at that time made many friends. He is undoubtedly one of the best Irish comedians on the American stage and since his last visit here has scored successes. He carries with him a strong company including some clever people. He presents bright new plays and gives a performance of merit. The Marks shows are practically continuous performances, the waits between acts being entirely occupied with vaudeville and are wholesome and entertaining. One lady will be admitted free tonight with each paid reserved seat ticket when a four-act comedy by Ernest C. Filkins entitled "That Irish Boarder" will be given. This piece though having a plot of sustained interest is full of ludicrous situations and in it Tom Marks is very funny. There will be a change of bill every night during the engagement.

HENRIETTA CROSMAN.

"Mistress Nell," the comedy Henrietta Crosman will present for the first time in this city at the Lyceum tomorrow evening, appearing also Wednesday evening, calls for an exceptionally strong cast, as there are many powerful scenes and situations interwoven with the merriment and fun. That the play will be cleverly done is assured from the list of Miss Crosman's company. It includes H. Reeves Smith, Augustin MacHugh, Addison Pitt, J. E. Furlong, William Herbert, Edwin Fowler, Alfred Cahill, John Steppling, John J. Burke, Emily Rigl, Victoria Addison, Fanchon Campbell, and Bertha Carlisle. Of these players, several were in the cast when the comedy ran for two seasons in New York, scoring one of the biggest hits ever made by a play on Broadway.

DIED AS A PAUPER; ENTITLED TO FORTUNE.

Norfolk, Va., April 17.—Thomas Yandaw, a conspicuous figure in Norfolk for over fifty years, claimed up to the time of his death that he was entitled to large fortune in California. Five years ago he was adjudged a lunatic and sent to the Eastern Virginia asylum at Williamsburg. Two years ago he died and was buried in a pauper's grave at the asylum. A letter has just been received here by a local attorney from the Pacific coast stating that Yandaw was entitled to a large portion of an estate in California worth upward of $1,500,000. Yandaw's wife is dead and he left no heirs.

NEWEST FLYING MACHINE.

Will Be Result of a Washington Man's Dream.

It is promised that the citizens of Washington shall soon witness an unusual spectacle in the clouds over the White Lot, says the Washington Star. The novel performance will be by a massive flying machine, which, like some green white bird, will circle about the dizzy-heighted Washington monument. This is the expectation of the inventor of the airship, Capt. George West Byron, a Washington man prominent in commercial and Spanish war veteran circles.

Capt. Byron has entered his claim at the patent office, so that his rights cannot be infringed, and the work of constructing one of the aerial vessels will begin, it is expected, in the coming spring or early summer.

The inventor says he can discount Santos-Dumont, who sailed about over gay Paris in his airship, and to demonstrate this he proposes to navigate in air about the Washington monument in his machine and perform mid-air evolutions which will put the Dumont ship in the shade. One of Capt. Byron's claims is that he can fly his ship from Washington to Chicago without once alighting on terra firma for either food or fuel.

On the official files of the patent office the Byron machine is described as "an invention which has for its object the production of an airship that will form a minimum resistance to the wind currents, whereby the control of the same is rendered possible."

A further object is to locate the cabin or other place for the accommodation of passengers or freight as to afford the least possible resistance to the buoyancy of the airship. A further object is to so position the cabin as to protect the same from the wind and other air currents whereby the drag of the air currents upon depending cages is obviated. A still further object is to provide means for assisting the airship in its initial movement incident to elevation and flight.

Speaking of his airship to a Star reporter, Capt. Byron said today that the very first thought he had of inventing an airship came to him while he was asleep.

"I dreamed I was on my way to Cuba in a flying machine," he said, "and it was made of two cigar-shaped balloon, with a cabin between them. When I awoke I was surprised at such a dream, for I had never before thought of going up in a balloon or flying machine. I could not get the matter out of my mind, however, nor could I go to sleep again. At last I said to myself: 'If I was actually going to Cuba in such an airship and it should fall into the gulf I would be drowned.' Then I began to figure how one could be made so that if it fell into the water it would be safe and could be propelled to the shore.

"Finally," continued Captain Byron, "I thought of making it in the shape of a boat, with a cabin in the center. I thought of it again during the day, and made a crude drawing of the ship at my office. Then it was that the wedge-shape gas bag came to me, and the six different compartments. Most of my best thoughts came to me between 5 and 7 o'clock in the morning, while yet in bed. I thought of a canopy for my cabin, which finally developed into an immense gas bag over the entire airship.

"I now intend to employ nine separate gas bags to make the aerial ship for long-distance traffic. Two of the bags are to be square, and will be located in each end of the cabin, and can be detached in 30 seconds and used to make a jump to the earth, as if they were parachutes, or for sending parcels or freight to the ground. On the first or trial ship we will employ only six gas bags, leaving out the two just mentioned, and the great canopy bag, which will be those that surround the cabin. The cabin is to be six feet wide and twenty-three feet long and seven feet high. The gas bags will be seven feet high next to the cabin and taper off to one inch at the outer edges, thus reducing the resistence to a minimum. The ship will be forty feet wide, seventy-five feet long, and, leaving out the ballast frame—which extends below, the ship some eight feet, and is the same size of the cabin, and held up by eight tubes, which are so far apart that they will not offer any resistance at all—the resistance will be the fiftypound bags of sand on the bottom, and the bottom is made of open wire work, to let the sand sift through when turned over by cords running up to the cabin. The ship is to be only seven feet high, and with the ballast frame the height will be fifteen feet. Two propellers at the rear end will force the ship through the air. T&At a high rate of speed, as the ship tapers off for thirty-five feet in front, practically cutting off the air like a knife. Two propellers near the front end, one on the sides to guide the ship to the right and left, also a propeller up over the front, at the tip end, for the purpose of raising or lowering the front of the ship, causing the ship to be driven higher or to descend toward the earth.

"Thus I will have complete control of the ship and can compel it to go in any direction desired. All the propellers work separate and independent of each other, and work both ways equally as well. This ship will only require an engine of ten horse-power to run all five propellers at their greatest speed. The eight-foot ballast frame and the four landing legs which swing from and below the ballast frame are made of bicycle tubing. There is to be an anchor or grappling hook, which is attached to a 200-foot rope. With this ballast, no matter how 'gusty' the wind may become, the ship will not 'turn turite' or even rock and more than do the Norfolk and Washington steamers on the Potomac river. Having six or more separate gas bags, the ship is actually immune from falling suddenly to the earth unless the last one of the gas bags should collapse, which is almost an impossibility and would not happen once in forty years.

"Of course, if three or more of the bags should burst, caused by a Mauser bullet, the ship would settle off toward the ground, but would come down very slowly, so there would be no danger to the passengers. I have arranged for a safe and sure landing of the ship by means of the anchor and a capstan. When I attach the upper or canopy gas bag to my aerial ship I will have a combination of balloon and aeroplane, as both the upper and the lower gas bags are flat on the bottom, making it possible to glide around and ascend or descend through space with less than 100 pounds of lifting power.

"My complete aerial ship will have a carrying capacity of more than a ton. I can with a larger ship and a twenty horse-power engine carry as much as five tons. I expect to build such a ship before the close of this year. When I build my fist ship (and that will be before July 11, my birthday) I will propel it, within a week after it is completed, around the Washington monument both ways, and then over and under the Aqueduct bridge, and return to the aereodrome starting point in safety.

"If a great cigar shaped balloon, with its propelling power eight or ten feet below it, can be made to go almost any way the operator desires, why not any aerial ship, with all edges sharp as a wedge and my propulsion right at the base of resistance, and that resistance figured down to a minimum? I can drive it around through space and have as much control over it as any automobilist has over his 'red devil,' and with more safety."

A FAMOUS REMEDY WHICH HAS BEEN FAVORABLY KNOWN FOR NEARLY FORTY YEARS, IN THE CURE OF THE DISEASES OF : : : : :

WOMEN

Is not a "patent medicine" but a PROVED prescription of a graduate Physician who early made the diseases of women his specialty.

Dr. Pierce's

Favorite Prescription

Will hereafter have the ingredients in plain English on every bottle that leaves the laboratory. Made entirely of medicinal flowering plants, this prescription of Dr. Pierce does not contain a particle of alcohol or injurious drugs.

THE PROOF:

From long experience Dr. Pierce acquired the knowledge of how to combine the following ingredients in just the right proportion in his "Favorite Prescription" for disease of women.

This medicine contains the following non-alcoholic vegetable extracts:

℞

Lady Slipper (Cypripedium Pubescens).
Black Cohosh (Cimcifuga Racemosa).
Unicorn Root (Chamaelirium Luteum).
Blue Cohosh (Caulophyllum Thalictroides).
Golden Seal (Hydrastis Canadensis).

THE REASON:

To meet the many outrageous and wholly baseless attacks of some scoffers, Dr. Pierce has decided to make public the ingredients of this medicine, which is the best tonic for debilitated and nervous women.

OBJECT TO BILLBOARDS

Lakesiders Opposed to Such Unsightly Methods of Advertising.

Unsightly billboards on vacant lots in Lester park are frowned upon by the residents of that locality.

At a meeting of the Lakeside club held Saturday evening, a motion was passed, requesting merchants not to place advertising signs on vacant lots in that suburb, and requesting the owners of such lots not to lease their property for such a purpose.

The people living at Lakeside claim that it is strictly a residence locality, and they do not care to have the beauty of the spot ruined by he huge, painted signs, with their gaudy lettering.

The street railway service was also under discussion and a resolution was finally passed requesting the public affairs committee to ascertain if the company would not restore the original twenty minute service in place of the half hour service now in use.

Among the members of the club, who were present and spoke were: John Jenswold, Jr., Frank Crassweiler, J. J. Le Tourneau, John Coventry, H. B. Inman, Capt. Bush, J. D. Park, Alderman C. S. Wilson, and James A. Wharton.

DIES WHILE DRIVING HOME

Hermantown Farmer Expires Suddenly From Heart Disease.

While driving home with his son Saturday afternoon, Louis Archambault, a farmer about 45 years of age, living at Hermantown, died suddenly of heart disease.

He was seated in his buggy driving along the Hermantown road when his head fell on his chest and he expired without a sound.

The dead man leaves a wife and nine children. He was one of the pioneer settlers in the vicinity of Duluth, having lived here seventeen years.

He had a somewhat similar experience last summer, and his recovery was for some time, a matter of doubt.

FIGT IN A SALOON.

Mattoon, Ill., April 17.—Thomas Beveridge, nephew of United States Senator Beveridge of Indiana, Sunday seriously stabbed James Datewood. The fight followed a quarrel in a saloon. Datewood assaulted Beveridge, who drew a knife and slashed him in the fact and side. While attempting to escape arrest Beveridge was shot twice by an officer. Both injured men are in the hospital, but will recover. Warrants have been issued for their arrest.

DETECTIVE'S HOME RAZED

Fire Totally Destroys Residence of Donald H. Irvine.

Another destructive fire broke out on Park Point Saturday evening when the home of City Detective Donald H. Irvine was burned to the ground, entailing a loss of about $2,500, on which there was an insurance amounting to $1,000.

The fire was first discovered in the roof, about 6 o'clock. It had caught from a defective flue, and was easily extinguished by Mr. Irvine with a few palls of water. He then went up town to report at headquarters. About 10 o'clock Mrs. Irvine had sent the children to bed and was about to retire herself, when the flames burst through the walls of her bedroom. She awakened the children and took them to the house of a neighbor.

Friends assisted in removing the furniture from the house and some of the household effects were saved.

Meanwhile an alarm had been turned in and Chief Black ordered two steamers, two chemicals and a hook and ladder truck to the bridge. Owing to the heavy sand on the approaches, which have not yet been paved, the steamers could not reach the car, but the chemicals and the truck were sent over. It was too late for the chemicals to save the burning house, but they kept the fire from spreading to the adjoining dwellings.

Mr. Irvine had just completed some repairs to his home, which together with the original cost made it worth about $2,600. It was insured for $1,200, and there was $400 insurance on the furniture.

LUMBER IS SOLD

Two Large Stocks Are Disposed of to Go East.

One Sale Said to Be Below the Market Price.

Two lumber sales aggregating 10,000,000 feet are reported from this market. The first is all the No. 3 and better lumber stock now cut, or to be cut, for the McAlpine Lumber company, amounting to about 4,500,000 feet. The sale price is said to have been $18 per thousand, or about $2 under the market price for that grade of lumber. The company is also reported to have sold all its No. 4 boards.

The second sale is that of the W. T. Bailey Lumber company of its summer cut at the St. Louis mill in this city. The sale amounts to about 5,000,000 feet, made by grades, the stock to go to the Eastern Lumber company of Tonawanda.

The Edward Hines Lumber company is said to have already sold 110,000,000 feet of its prospective cut of 175,000,000 feet for this season, in the Lake Superior district. The company is also a large buyer and is reported to have recently purchased the stock of the Nebagamon Lumber company's mill to be cut during the next two or three years.

The Hines company has a large quantity of logs on hand and will manufacture about 50,000,000 feet at the Head of the Lakes this season. The Murray-McCann mill which is sawing for the Hines company is now working with a day crew but will also put on a night crew very shortly. The mill started first last week but had to close down again until this week on account of the heavy ice in the pond.

The mills at Tower and Ely are running and their estimated cut for the season is 120,000,000 feet.

A large number of the old logging spur tracks owned by the Duluth & Iron Range road are being taken up this spring and are being laid at other points where they will be of further use. The company has just laid a new spur at Mile 47 from which logs will be shipped to Duluth this summer. Some new steel has also been laid on other spurs and on the main line.

The Northern Lumber company has a large force of men at work improving its dam at the foot of Squagama Lake. This dam was built three years ago for the purpose of raising the water of the lake for driving purposes. Large quantities of logs are now in the lake ready to be driven to Cloquet. The company's drives on Partridge and Embarrass rivers have already been started.

Rumors are current that the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road is to be extended this season from its present northern terminal at Ashawa past Pelican Lake toward the Canadian boundary. Further extensions of the road at the present mean the opening of additional timber markets to the northern mills, and, eventually a through connection with the Canadian Northern road. A number of changes have been made in the operating force since W. H. Cook has regained control of the road.

DIFFERENCES OVER APPROPRIATION BILL

house: $25,000 for a model school at the St. Cloud normal; $15,000 for bass ponds at the new Glenwood fish hatchery; $50,000 for an auditorium at the state agricultural school.

An attempt was made to strike out the $50,000 appropriation for a livestock amphitheater at the state fair, but it failed. So did an attempt to cut out $75,000 for a nurses home at the Fergus Falls insane asylum, and $25,000 for a monument to Minnesota troops at Vicksburg. An amendment to cut the appropriation for a women's building at the Soldier's home from $75,000 to $25,000 was withdrawn.

The house defeated an amendment adding $30,000 for a governor's mansion, and another appropriating $6,000 a year for county schools of agriculture.

* * *

There was a vigorous fight in the senate, but the result was that all of the items eliminated by the house were restored. The strongest fight was made and a test vote taken on the first item reached, that appropriating $15,000 for bass ponds at the Glenwood fish hatchery. R. P. Brower of St. Cloud led the fight for the restoration, and G. W. Somerville of Sleepy Eye led the opposition. The item was restored, 32 to 26.

Senator Rieke tried to get the Vicksburg monument appropriation cut from $25,000 to $15,000 so he could get in an item of $10,000 to pay pensions to citizen soldiers, who fought the Sioux in 1862, but his amendment was defeated. His item of $10,000 for pensions was accepted, however, and the Mackenzie bill providing these pensions is thus cared for, if the item sticks. The other addition made by the senate was $5,000 for a monument on Shiloh battlefield to the First Minnesota battery.

Senator R. E. Thompson tried to cut out the appropriation for a live stock amphitheater at the state fair, but his motion was lost.

* * *

The senate committee on mines and mining held a meeting Saturday afternoon and this morning reported for passage, slightly amended, the Ramsland house bill prohibiting further issuance of state mineral leases or extensions of outstanding leases. There is no time in which the bill can be passed. Senator Pugh is chairman of the committee.

* * *

There will be no revision of the Minnesota constitution for a while. The senate Saturday afternoon killed the Sherman S. Smith bill proposing a constitutional convention, upon the unfavorable report of the judiciary committee, which was adopted without a dissenting vote.

* * *

The house has receded from its action on the insurance commissioner's salary bill, by which it provided that after the end of the present term the salary should be made $3,500, while it would remain at $4,500 during the present incumbent's time. The senate insisted upon the change and the house agreed.

* * *

The inheritance tax bill, as passed by both houses, provides for a tax of one-half of 1 per cent on all legacies from $10,000 to $50,000; of 3 per cent on all from $50,000 to $100,000, and of 5 per cent on all above $100,000. The amended bill makes no distinction between direct and collateral relatives of the devisors.

* * *

It looks very much as though the Laybourn grand jury bills, which are on general orders in the house, would die there without action by the house. In fact, the outlook this morning was that very little more important legislation would go through.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON

Orders Commission to Investigate Beltrami Officials.

St. Paul, April 17.—Governor Johnson has announced the appointment of a commission, consisting of Cleve W. Van Dyke, Alexandria, and Graham M. Torrence, a Beltrami county commissioner, to investigate the alleged irregularities in the conduct of Beltrami county officers, as charged by Public Examiner Peter M. Kerst in his recent report.

The commission will proceed to Bemidji within two weeks, and will conduct an investigation and take evidence. Should the evidence secured be sufficient to warrant prosecution, R. A. Stone, second assistant attorney general, will represent the state. Indictments will be brought against all the county officers implicated if the charges against them are substantiated.

County Attorney Loud and County Commissioners Wright and Sibley of Beltrami county, whose removal is recommended by the public examiner, stoutly deny the charges against them, and say that they will demand an immediate and exhaustive investigation. They declare that the charges against them are false, and were inspired by political enemies.

SUDDEN WEDDING

Enlivens an Automobile Ride at Elk River.

Elk River, Minn., April 17.—A romantic marriage occurred here Saturday afternoon, the couple united being Harry S. Coates, a prominent St. Cloud business man, and Miss Sara Belle Keyes of East St. Cloud. The couple in an automobile came here, accompanied by Arthur J. Coates, brother of the groom, and Miss Bertha Stevenson of St. Cloud. A license was secured at the courthouse where the Parmer trial was progressing and soon the wedding knot was tied by Rev. Alex L. Butler at the Union church parsonage. Then the wedding trip was resumed to Minneapolis. Mr. Coates and Miss Keyes had been keeping company nearly ten years, and the culmination was the result of pleasant joshing on the part of the other couple while all were enjoying an automobile ride.

THE GREAT AMERICAN PIE IS GOOD FOOD.

But It Is Absolutely Necessary That It Should Be Properly Digested.

Pie is good food.

Good flour, good butter, good fruit, good sugar, perhaps egg—what could be better?

The only trouble is, it forms such concentrated nourishment that it's hard to digest it.

That's where the rub is.

However you can get over this very easily by taking a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain digestive ingredients which act on indigestible food of any kind, and quickly render it acceptable to the weakest stomach.

Think how the world has suffered for the want of just such natural assistance as this!

But now, it's all over.

No need to suffer any more.

One Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet puts an end to it and saves the valuable vital energy, which is wasted by indigestion, for other and more important work.

The proper understanding and use of this great assistance to nature is a wonderful step forward in the history of the development of the world.

It simply adds many thousand units of energy to the life force of each individual.

It creates time, and strength to make good use of time.

You lose many hours, perhaps days, in a month, when your best faculties are dulled with suffering from indigestion, causing such symptoms as sick, nervous, bilious headache, neuralgia in head or stomach, rheumatism, colic, constipation, wind, eructations, vomiting, dizziness and other blood poisoning.

All this useless suffering and loss of time can be done away with, relieved and prevented by the proper use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

These grand little Tablets are a scientific medicine, which act on all the internal digestive organs and cure their weaknesses.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the result of the labors of all the greatest thinkers and discoverers in the realm of physiology, therapeutics and curative medicine.

They represent the best that these great minds have been able to evolve, after careful study of all the symptoms, causes, and possible methods of treatment, of the alimentary and digestive tract.

This treatment has finally narrowed down to a very simple proposition, the careful use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

After all, when you come right down to it, all the evils and troubles of indigestion are caused by just one thing, and that is undigested food.

And when you get rid of this undigested food you get rid of the cause, and, therefore, of course, bring about a cure.

Between you and me, this is all there is to the whole great secret of the benefit that can be obtained from Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

They get rid of the undigested food. They get right down to the ultimate cause of indigestion and cure it.

They do this as no other medicine, drug or pharmaceutical preparation, has ever yet been able to do, by virtue of the perfection of modern discoveries as taken advantage of in the combination of ingredients of which they are composed, forming the grandest digestive compound known to science, which not alone actually digests the food that it touches, but revitalizes the nerves and tissues of all the digestive organs and glands, thus restoring them to a condition in which they can do the work that is required of them.

All this is gospel truth.

Test it by trying Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for your own trouble, and note how quickly it will disappear.

Do it today.

DESERVED REWARD

Fox's Promotion as Chief of Bureau of American Republics.

Washington to Erect Hall For Inaugural Balls and Conventions.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Through the appointment of W. W. Rockhill as minister to China, William C. Fox, who was for many years chief clerk of the international bureau of American republics, was promoted to the directorship. This action of the president showed in a marked degree his intention to observe and reward merit in the public service even to a very high position.

Mr. Fox is a native of St. Louis, Mo., but his family came from Buffalo, N. Y. His grandfather, Captain Samuel Pratt, was one of the founders of Buffalo, going there in 1801 from Vermont. Some years of Mr. Fox's boyhood were spent in that city but he was educated at the Washington university of St. Louis and the Pennsylvania Millitary college at Chester, Pa. At the age of 21, he was appointed by General Grant as United States consul at Brunswick, Germany, serving continuously at this post for thirteen years, retiring in 1888. He again entered the service in 1890, becoming vice consul general at Teheran, Persia, where in 1892 he was in charge of the American legation. It was during this period that the great cholera epidemic broke out in Merve, which swept across Asia, through Europe, to the shores of the United States. The suffering in Persia, especially in Teheran, was terrible, and through the initiative of Mr. Fox, the American missionaries co-operating with him, a hospital and dispensary were organized for the treatment of the sufferers in this great epidemic. This work was so highly appreciated by the Shah of Persia that he sent for Mr. Fox, expressed to him his sincere thanks, and offered him the decoration of the Order of the Lion and the Son of the First Class. Mr. Fox declined to accept this decoration, owing to the statutes prohibiting officials of the United States government from so doing. The American Board of Foreign missions also recognized what Mr. Fox had done by passing resolutions and officially filing them with the department of state, and publishing them very generally in the press at the time.

Mr. Fox again retired from the service in 1898, and established in the city of New York the only strictly diplomatic and consular journal that was ever attempted in the United States. It was while publishing this paper that he was called to the bureau of American republics, whose affairs had become somewhat involved, and was tendered the position of chief clerk, which he has, on several occasions, been acting director of the bureau, and in that capacity was the representative of the international union of American republics at the second international American conference at Mexico in 1900-02.

Mr. Fox was a member of the United States board of management at the Pan-American exposition in Buffalo, in 1901 and is still well remembered there for his active participation in that work, in which he showed the greatest interest. He was also a member of the government board at the World's Fair in St. Louis last year, and is a member of the same board at the Lewis and Clarke exposition which opens in Portland, Oregon next month.

Washington, is really in earnest at last in the matter of the erection of a hall for inaugural balls and even conventions. The action of congress last winter in refusing for upwards of a month to permit the pension building to be used by the inaugural committee has at last had its effect and it really looks today as though ground will be purchased and a building erected within the next four years which will enable the citizens of Washington to inaugurate the next president without the aid of congress.

Henry L. West, one of the district commissioners, who is at the front of the movement, estimates that land can be purchased and a suitable building erected for $500,000. Already a fund has been started and during the coming summer the intial steps will be taken towards accomplishing this long-neglected purpose. It is probable that the steel and iron work used in the government building in St. Louis, during the exposition, will form the basis of the inaugural building and as the residents and business men of the capital seem to be in earnest in their determination to go ahead without a congressional appropriation, there is every reason to believe that the efforts of Commissioner West will meet with marked success. It costs about $70,000 to inaugurate a president, and the only way in which the people of this city can recupe their expenses is through the sale of ball tickets, which are $5 apiece to every one, the president being the only man granted a complimentary ticket.

Great scientific interest attaches to the coming annual meeting of the National Association For the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which will take place in this city on May 18 and 19. So widespread and so deadly has become this disease that it is now generally referred to as the "white plague." Surgeon General Wyman of the United States marine hospital service has received numerous letters from health officers on this subject, especially on that branch of it which relates to the spread of the disease by travelers on the various railroads. Dr. S. J. Crumbine, secretary of the Kansas state board of health, thus drites:

"The geographical position of this state is such, lying immediately east of the health resorts of the Rocky mountains, that it could probably be asserted that there is scarcely a transcontinental train going West the year round that does not carry its one or more pasengers afflicted with tuberculosis, seeking the life-giving and healthful resorts of Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona. With little or no convenience for the proper disposal of the expectoration of these people, it must be self-evident that these cars are in a chronic state of infection. Time and again I have personally observed a consumptive in a day coach where there were no cuspidors provided coughing and expectorating upon the floor. These people being of low vitality and afraid of draughts and cool air while traveling require that the coaches be closed, which adds to the danger of infection to their fellow passengers. The constant vibration of an ordinary railway coach is free, and which is admittedly the carrier of the bacillus of tuberculosis."

Dr. H. M. Bracken of St. Paul, secretary of the Minnesota state board of health, has been assigned to read a paper before the association on "Infection in Transportation," and as Dr. Bracken has made an exhaustive study of the subject, he is expected to present data of the greatest importance. In connection with the above meeting, Dr. Wyman has called a meeting of the executive officers of the state board of health for May 15.

It is regarded by the scientists, who expect to be in attendance, as especially fortunate that while the meeting is in progress they will have unusual facilities for studying the latest improvements in the ventilation and sanitation of railway passenger cars. Simultaneously with the meetings of the health specialists will be the meeting of the International Railway congress, with its great exhibition of cars and railway appliances, for which congress has granted the use of the "white lot." In the exhibit will be many devices for the ventilation and heating of passenger cars, a matter that is just now being widely discussed by health boards, scientific men and railroad authorities. Numerous tests will be made in the presence and under the direction of distinguished health officers from different parts of the country. The tests will consist of a series of experiments to demonstrate how quickly and how completely the air in passenger coaches can be changed, it being the already expressed opinion of scientific men that public health demands an entire change of air at least once in every six minutes.

SUICIDE IN CLOQUET CELL

Rush Kewich From South Superior Hanged Himself.

Cloquet, Minn., April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rush Kewich committed suicide here yesterday morning. Kewich, who appears to be about 40 years of age, is believed to be from South Superior, and was drinking heavily Saturday with a companion, who it is said, tried to rob him. On Saturday evening Chief of Police McSweeny arrested both and put them in jail for drunkenness. The night police noticed Kewich acting queerly in his cell, where he spent most of his time praying.

At 2:30 yesterday morning a night jailor found Kewich hanging from the bars of his cell by one of the bed blankets, out of which he had made a rude rope. The jailor bolted without cutting the man down and ran after Dr. Johnson, who, on arriving, cut the man down, found that life was extinct, and ordered the body taken to the morgue. The body will be sent to Superior. Kewich's companion occupied the adjoining cell, but knew nothing about the matter until the police told him.

SUPERIOR RIG HAS ACCIDENT

Frightened at Automobile, Horse Spills Occupants on London Road.

Frantic with terror at the sight of an approaching automobile on London road at Eighteenth avenue east yesterday afternoon, a horse driven by a Superior couple made a short run, dashed into the curb overturning the rig, throwing out the occupants and tearing the harness in pieces before being brought under control.

The automobile was operated by A. H. Smith, and was going west and the rig was being driven east when the accident happened. The woman in the rig was thrown clear of the vehicle when it overturned, and escaped with only a shaking up, but the man was caught between the wheels and the box and was evercly bruised before the horse succeeded in clearing itself of the righ and harness.

As soon as the horse showed fright Mr. Smith stopped his machine and went to the assistance of the driver, seizing the animal by the head and preventing its getting away. He also took the unfortunate couple in his automobile and brought them down town, where they go on a street car to go home.

INVESTIGATE HIBBING RIOT

County Authorities to Gather Evidence For Grand Jury.

The county authorities will conduct a searching investigation into the recent Hibbing riot, in which two miners were shot and killed and several others wounded. Evidence will be collected and presented to the next grand jury, which will convene early in May.

The Federated Trades and Labor assembly last week passed resolutions asking the authorities to make an investigation, but the initiative steps had already been taken by County Attorney J. M. McClintock and the request of the assembly will be complied to in the fullest degree.

If the evidence warrants it, the grand jury will probably return indictments and those suspected of being criminally involved in the riot resulting in the death of the miners will have to stand trial in district court.

THE RAPID GROWTH

Of the Production, Industries and Commerce of Mexico.

Commerce Between United States and Mexico Increased.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Commercial Mexico in 1905" is the title of a monograph just issued by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics. Its object, as indicated by the title, is to present commercial conditions in Mexico at the present time, the producing and consuming power of that country, the sections of the world from which it now draws its imports and to which it sends its exports, the classes of articles in which its demands are increasing or decreasing, and the classes of products which it is supplying to various parts of the world, and especially to the United States.

Commerce between Mexico and the United States has grown in recent years with great rapidity, and large sums of American capital have been invested in various business enterprises in Mexico, including agriculture, mining, transportation and manufactures, while on the other hand Mexico is contributing each year more largely to the commercial requirements of the United States, especially in those articles and classes of articles not produced in this country, or at least not produced in sufficient quantities to supply the demands of manufacturers or others in whose industries of business enterprises they are required. Imports of merchandise into the United States from Mexico have grown from $4,346,364 in 1874 to $40,533,275 in 1904, the value of merchandise imported from Mexico in 1904 being, therefore, ten times as great as in 1874, or thirty years earlier. On the other hand, exports from the United States to Mexico have grown from $5,496,839 in 1874 to $45,814,720 in 1904 the exports to Mexico in 1904 being thus about eight times as great as in 1874.

The above figures of trade between the United States and Mexico are taken from the official reports of the United States government, and show the imports into the United States from Mexico and the exports from the United States to that country. An examination of the statistics of Mexico, however, shows that in 1903, the latest available year, 64 per cent of the exports of merchandise from that country were sent to the United States and 53 per cent of the imports of merchandise were from the United States. Comparing these conditions with earlier years, it may be said that in 1875-74 the exports of merchandise to the United States from Mexico formed but 53 per cent of the total of Mexican exports, and the imports from the United States formed 25 per cent of the total of Mexican imports.

The rapid growth of the production, industries, and commerce of Mexico in recent years and the prospect for continuation of that growth is suggested by the fact that in the short period of twenty years its revenue has increased from $10,000,000 to $30,000,000, its imports from $20,000,000 to $75,000,000, and its exports from $7,000,000 to $45,000,000, exclusive of $30,500,000 of gold and silver. The investment of American capital in Mexico was estimated by United States Consul General Barlow in 1902 at $500,000,000, nearly all invested within the last twenty-five years, and about one half of it within the last five years. Since then the investment has doubtless increased materially. Such investments, by adding to the productive power of the land, must necessarily increase its purchasing power. Evidently, therefore, Mexico is now, and is destined to be to an increasing degree, a customer whose wants and whose resources are eminently worthy of accurate study by American business men.

The features of the work which are of especial importance to those who are engaged in commerce with Mexico or who are desirous of developing commerce with that country are the tables which show the imports into Mexico for a term of years and the countries from which these imports were drawn, also tables showing the exports from the United States to Mexico for a term of years and the principal articles making up this export trade to Mexico.

Taking up first the table of imports into Mexico from the various countries of the world, it may be stated that the total value of the imports of Mexico were in 1903, $75,905,000, against $43,413,000 in 1893, making a gain of $32,500,000 in the imports during the period from 1893 to 1903. Of this $32,000,000 of increase, nearly one-half occurred in the imports from the United States. The total imports of Mexico from the United States in 1893 were $26,236,000, and in 1903, $49,736,000, a gain of $14,500,000. The next largest increase in imports is found in those from Germany, which were in 1893 $2,875,000, and in 1903, $9,569,000, an increase of $6,750,000, against the increase of $14,500,000 by the United States.

The next in the order of gain during the period was the United Kingdom, from which Mexico imported merchandise and specie to the value of $5,681,000 in 1893, and in 1903 $10,331,000, an increase of $4,750,000. From France, the imports of 1893 were $4,781,000, and in 1903 $6,537,000 a gain of less than $2,000,000. From Belgium the imports of 1893 were 398,000, and in 1903 $2,590,000, an increase of a little more than $2,000,000. From Spain, the imports of 1893 were $2,212,000, and in 1903 $3,030,000. Thus, it may be stated in a word that the growth of imports into Mexico during the period from 1893 to 1903 was, in the case of Spain less than $1,000,000, France a little less than $2,000,000, Belgium a little more than $2,000,000, United Kingdom a little less than $5,000,000, Germany slightly less than $7,000,000, and the United States slightly below $15,000,000, and that the increase in imports from the United States alone was more than that of the increase from Germany, United Kingdom and France combined.

As to the principal articles making up the grand total of $45,000,000 worth of exports from the United States to Mexico, it may be stated that manufactures of iron and steel held the highest rank; coal, second in rank; cotton, and manufactures of cotton, third; while lumber, carriages and cars, manufactures of leather, manufactures of wood, chemicals and drugs, dyes, gunpowder, and mineral oil are also important items in the table of exports to Mexico, and in practically every case show a gratifying growth.

SSS THE BEST TONIC

When the system gets debilitated and in a run-down condition it needs a tonic and there has never been one discovered that is the equal of S. S. S. It is especially adapted for a systemic remedy, because it contains no strong minerals to derange the stomach and digestion, and affect the liver and bowels. It is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks selected for their purifying and healing qualities, and possesses just the properties that are needed to restore to the body strong robust health. When the blood becomes impure and clogged with waste matters and poisons the body does not receive sufficient nourishment and suffers from debility, weakness, sleeplessness, nervousness, loss of appetite, bad digestion and many other disagreeable symptoms of a disordered blood circulation, and if it is not corrected some form of malignant fever or other dangerous disorder will follow. S. S. S. builds up the broken down constitution, clears the blood of all poisons and impurities and makes it strong and healthy. The nerves are restored to a calm restful state, refreshing sleep is had again, the appetite returns and the whole system is toned up by this great remedy. S. S. S. is a blood purifier and tonic and acts promptly in this run-down depleted condition of the system. Book on the blood and medical advice furnished by our physicians, without charge.

I have used your S. S. S. and found it to be an excellent tonic to build up the general health and give tone and strength to the system. I have used other things highly recommended, but S. S. S. did me more good than everything else combined. As to its tonic properties it gives a splendid appetite, refreshing sleep, and the system undergoes a general building up under its invigorating influence. 548 Woodland Ave., Warren, O. MRS. Duluth Northern League Team Defeats Javas In Minneapolis.

Patched Up Team Makes Good Showing Despite Cold.

Minneapolis, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—A patched up team representing the Duluth Northern league club, defeated the crack Java independent team here yesterday afternoon before a crowd of 500 shivering fans, by the score of 5 to 4.

The weather was so chilly that neither the players or the spectators were able to work up any enthusiasm. Henry Rees, who played with a Minneapolis independent team last year, pitched for Duluth and proved to be very effective, allowing the Javas but six hits.

The Duluth line-up contained only a few of the regular men, as all of the members of the team are not due to report until the latter part of the week.

The score yesterday was as follows:

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

John Manier, marshal of Pretoria, N. Y., was shot and instantly killed Saturday night by Pete Thomas, a negro. Thomas had been creating some disorder. The negro was captured Sunday by Sheriff Edwards. He made the statement to the officer that Manier was the sixth man whose life he had taken.

George McMahon and Joseph Barrett, young lumbermen, were found burned to death Sunday in the ruins of a shanty occupied by an Italian at Otis, Mass. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

In a collision with an automobile Sunday at Mexico, Ind., two children of Charles Burkheiser were fatally injured. Burkheiser, with his wife and children, the occupants of a buggy, were returning from a funeral when an automobile struck the back of the vehicle. Burkheiser and his wife were painfully injured.

In an endeavor to part two friends who were quarrelling over a 5-cent stake in a game of cards, Angelo Gentle was stabbed to death with a stiletto, the police allege, by Antonio Pience at Manuia, a suburb of Philadelphia. Pience was arrested by a policeman after a long chase.

The yards and plant of the Western Lumber company, owned by Senator W. A. Clark, on Porphry street, Butte, Mont., together with a number of houses on that street, were burned Sunday. Loss $60,000. Enormous flocks of wild geese, attracted by the light, continually circled around above the fire.

Mrs. Robert Givens of Crowfoot, N. J., shot her husband twice as he lay in bed Saturday night and then tried to kill herself. She fired three shots at the head, but all the bullets went wide. Givens will probably recover. Mrs. Givens' mind is believed to have been unbalanced owing to financial troubles.

Because he had been ejected from a boarding house at Luzerne, Pa., Andrew Bygash, a Hungarian, blew up the building Sunday with dynamite. He placed a stick of the explosive under one corner of the house, and the entire rear portion of the structure, the kitchen and two bedrooms over it were completely wrecked. He was immediately arrested.

News was received of a tragedy near Broughton, Ga., Saturday night. Kelsey Cranford, aged 22, and his younger brother Walter were waylaid by four negroes. Twelve shots were fired, the elder Cranford being killed outright. Walter Cranford received the contents of one load of buckshot in his left arm. He outran the negroes and gave the alarm. Excitement is rife.

DASTARDLY OUTRAGE.

Girl Assaulted and Killed Near Little Falls.

Little Falls, Minn., April 17.—There is great excitement here over the discovery Sunday morning of the dead body of Annie Kintop in the woods, about four miles from this city. The body was entirely stripped of clothing, a handkerchief was tightly twisted about her neck, the head was a mass of bruises, and there were evidences of outrage. Two negroes were seen in the vicinity of where the body was found, and search is being made for them. If caught, it is feared a lynching will follow.

The girl, who was about to leave for the northern part of the state to take up a homestead claim, had been in this city purchasing supplies. She left here Monday evening for Darling, from which station she was to walk to her home, distant about two miles. After leaving Darling, she was not seen again until her dead body was found. As she had often spent a week or two visiting a married sister in Little Falls, her parents were not alarmed at her absence, and search was not begun until Saturday morning.

The place where the girl's body was found bore evidence of a terrific struggle. Her empty pocketbook and the parcels she was carrying were found in a ditch near by. Her watch was found on the body. Charles Nelson, living near the scene of the murder, heard screams about dusk on Monday night, and saw two unknown negroes near the spot, and it is suspected that they were the perpetrators of the crime. A posse has been organized, and the country is being scoured in search of them.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Nine Nations

Now Use Liquozone. Won't You Try It—Free?

Millions of people, of nine different nations, are constant users of Liquozone. Some are using it to get well; some to keep well. Some to cure germ diseases; some as a tonic. No medicine was ever so widely employed. These users are everywhere; your neighbors and friends are among them. And half the people you meet—wherever you are—know some one whom Liquozone has cured.

If you need help, please ask some of these users what Liquozone does. Don't blindly take medicine for what medicine cannot do. Drugs never kill germs. For your own sake, ask about Liquozone; then let us buy you a full-size bottle to try.

We Paid $100,000

For the American rights to Liquozone. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, after proving, in thousands of difficult cases, that Liquozone destroys the cause of any germ disease.

Liquozone has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. It is not made by compounding drugs, nor with alcohol. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetal matter.

There lies the great value of Liquozone. It is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissue, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a disease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

DRY SUNDAY AT ST. LOUIS

It Was Also a Shaveless, Shineless and Smokeless Day.

St. Louis, April 17.—For the first time in six years St. Louis was a dry town for twenty-four hours on Sunday, and for the first time in history the "dryness" has been complete, even side doors being closed. Not only was it a dry Sunday, but it was a shaveless, shineless, smokeless, and almost a hungry Sunday as well. Promptly at midnight Saturday night the lights in saloons were extinguished, and the patrons were required to depart at once. Barber shops closed, news and cigar stands following suit, small grocery shops and delicatessen stores shut up their shops, and the large downtown restaurants did not open their doors Sunday.

There seemed to have been a preconcerted action among all classes of caterers to the public that if the latter wanted the so-called "lid" placed on St. Louis during the Sabbath, that the proprietors of the stores should cooperate and practically all business except drug stores was suspended for twenty-four hours.

In some cases the enforcement of the Sunday closing laws was so strictly observed that it was done at a positive inconvenience to the patrons of the shops affected by the law.

S. H. Hatton, a barber, was arrested thirty minutes after the legal hour for closing his shop while he was engaged in trimming a patron's hair, and the luckless occupant of the barber's chair was forced to plead with the policeman before the barber was allowed to finish his work. The barber was then taken to police headquarters, where he was released with a warning.

Scrofula, salt rheum, erysipelas and other distressing eruptive diseases yield quickly and permanently to the cleansing, purifying power of Burdock Blood Bitters.

TO TRY AGAIN.

Rockmen Will Attempt to Force Wage Scale.

New York, April 17.—Union rockmen and excavators in this city have decided to tie up all work in their line May 1, unless a demand for a new wage scale is granted before that date. Men to the number of about 26,000 will be involved. The demands are for 25 cents an hour for rockmen, with 30 cents an hour for overtime and 20 cents an hour for excavators. Notice of the desired change was served on the contractors two months ago, but no reply has been received.

A similar strike of those workers in the building industry occurred about two years ago. The men remained idle sometime and were beaten. Their union was broken up then but has been reorganized on new lines and its officials declare they have now no fear of failure to enforce the demands.

SUICIDAL MANIA

Seems to Run In an East St. Louis Family.

East St. Louis, April 17.—Mrs. Lucinda Parr, 42 years old, last night attempted to commit suicide by saturating her clothing with kerosene and then setting fire to her garments. Her husband was in an adjoining room and, hearing his wife's screams, reached her in time to tear her clothing from her and save her from serious injury. Parr was seriously burned and required medical attention. Mrs. Parr was arrested and charged with attempted suicide. Less than three months Parr was badly burned in saving the life of his daughter, who attempted to end her life in the same manner as that of her mother last night.

BOARD TO ASK FOR NEW BIDS

Water and Light Commission Rejects Water Pipes Bids.

At the special meeting of the board of water and light commissioners, Saturday afternoon, all bids submitted for furnishing piping for water and gas extensions planned for this season were rejected, and Manager L. N. Case was instructed to readvertise for new bids, to be opened April 27. It was learned that the material could not be delivered June 1, the date the commission desires it, and, as some of the previous bidders misunderstood the specifications, the board decided it advisable to readvertise.

The bids for the pipes were opened at the Thursday meeting of the board, at which time the question arose as to the date of delivery, and Manager Case was directed to communicate with the concerns bidding.

It is said that the commission cannot enter into a contract to purchase the pipe material until the funds are available, and the money from the sale of the $140,000 water and light bonds is not yet in the hands of the department. It is expected, however, that the money will be available by the time the board is ready to let the contract furnishing the pipes, under the new bids to be advertised.

BAKING POWDERS

Not Correctly Labeled, Says Food Commission.

St. Paul, April 17.—Bulletin No. 4, issued by the state dairy and food commission, says: Considerable trouble has been encountered the past month with the baking powder question. Nothing of an injurious nature has been found among the ingredients of the different samples analyzed by our chemists, the large number of illegal samples found being so classed because of incorrect labelling.

In view of the fact that the baking powder law has been in effect for several years in this state there is absolutely no excuse for the manufacturers and jobbers putting out the goods in such shape as we have found some of them. There is also no excuse for a retail grocer keeping improperly labelled goods on his shelves, when it is so easy for him to acquaint himself with the provisions of the law.

WELL ATTENDED CONCERT

By Third Regiment Band at Lyceum Sunday.

The concert given last evening at the Lyceum by the Third Regiment band was very well attended, nearly all of the better part of the theater being completely filled. The program opened as usual with the national anthem, following which was "The Grand Master's March," repeated by request.

Miss Elizabeth McGraw of Superior sang "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" from "Sampson and Delilah." Miss McGraw is of pleasing presence and her rendition of it brought forth a great deal of applause, to which she responded with "My Mercedes." Miss Mary Shesgren recited "The Night Watch" and was recalled. The instrumental part of the program was splendid and was greatly enjoyed, almost every number being enthusiastically encored. To the audience in general, doubtless the most acceptable numbers were a characteristic entitled "Vision" by Blon, and a remembrance from "The Isle of Spice."

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS.

Columbus, Ohio, April 17.—Col. George H. Hopper, manager of the Nell house, who was stricken with paralysis yesterday afternoon, is still in a precarious condition today, although somewhat recovered from the shock. His left side is helpless, but he is able to speak. He is well known throughout the Northwest and is past commander of the Knights Templar of Wisconsin.

CARGO FOR JAPAN.

Steamship Manchuria Sails From San Francisco.

San Francisco, April 17.—The steamship Manchuria sailed for the Orient today with a cargo of 10,000 tons of freight mostly for Japan. The cargo is mostly of a character that would be considered as contraband of war by the Russians, and consists of not only foodstuffs, but heavy machinery for the railroads and bridges of Manchuria. In view of the possibility of Admiral Rejestvensky defeating Admiral Togo on the sea, somewhere on the Asiatic coast, some anxiety exists regarding the safety of the Manchuria, and she will call at Midway islands to receive instructions.

VAUDEVILLE ACTORS ASPHYXIATED BY GAS.

Philadelphia, April 17.—Louis Heck, Jr., musical director of Keith's Chestnut theater, and his wife, known on the vaudeville stage as May Belle Eckert, were found asphyxiated by gas Sunday in the bedroom of their apartment in this city. Two burners of a chandelier in the room were open. Mrs. Heck's body was found lying on a couch. The body of her husband was on the floor in the sitting room.

Mr. and Mrs. Heck were married about five years ago. They were well known in vaudeville, having traveled as a musical team under the name of Eckert and Heck.

About three years ago Heck left the stage to become musical director of Keith's theater in this city, but his wife from time to time appeared on the stage in musical and singing specialties.

ST. LOUIS CHURCH JANITOR ENDS LIFE BY SHOOTING.

St. Louis, April 17.—James A. Rider, 66 years old, for four years the janitor of the St. James Memorial Episcopal church, committed suicide Sunday by shooting in a room adjoining the auditorium, where the rector was conducting devotional services. The sound of the shot was plainly heard by the congregation. One of the vestrymen investigated and reported to Dr. Duckworth, who requested the congregation to leave the church at once.

Very little is known of Capt. Rider's antecedents. It is said that he was born in Liverpool, England, and that he was a captain in the British merchant marine service.

Does your hair need nourishment? Is it thinning out, getting dry, harsh and brittle or splitting at the ends? The way to find out for yourself is to make an actual test—that you can see and understand. Pull a hair from the top of your head, examine the root. If the bulb is plump and rosy it is all right, but if it is white and shrunken your hair is diseased and needs nourishment. Rexall "93" Hair Tonic supplies this need. It is a germ destroying nutritive hair tonic. It first of all destroys the germs that are causing the trouble at the white and shrunken roots, then it tones up the hair follicles. A new growth of hair begins at once and the hair soon regains its youthful color and lustre. It makes an excellent dressing, delightfully perfumed and conveniently put up in a handy sprinkler top bottle. We sell a large bottle for fifty cents that we guarantee to give satisfaction or we return you your money. You will find that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic backs up all the claims we make for it.

WHEAT IS LOWER

After Showing Strength at Opening—Market Falls Off.

World's Shipments Are Smaller Than Expected —Flax Has Advance.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 17.—Broomhall's guess on the world's shipments of last week was more than a million bushels above what they really were and the smaller amount caused a show of strength at the opening of the wheat market today, but it did not continue long under liberal selling, the price fell away.

About half the loss was regained later. The May option in Duluth closed unchanged, in Chicago ½c lower, in Minneapolis 1½-¾c lower and in New York ¼c lower. The July option lost ⅜c in Duluth, ½c in Chicago, was unchanged in Minneapolis and ¼c higher in New York. The weather has not been quite so favorable for a day or so, but the change has not been enough to cause any justified alarm. The Liverpool market closed ¼d higher, Berlin ⅛c higher, Budapest ½c lower, and Paris and Antwerp unchanged.

World's shipments of wheat and corn last week, the week previous and the corresponding week of last year were as follows:

WHEAT.	Last week.	Previous week.	Last Year.
America	976,000	1,368,000	1,200,000
Russia	1,712,000	2,608,000	2,080,000

Argentina	351,000	231,000	437,000
Total	2,620,000	2,971,000	1,874,000

The amount of wheat on passage last week increased 1,120,000 bus, and corn decreased 661,000 bus.

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 5, against 5 last year, and at Minneapolis 200, against 250 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 205, against 255 last year. Chicago received 54, against 16 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 433,189 bus., last year 363,000 bus. Shipments 200,079 bus., last year 195,450 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 322,249 bus.

The visible supply of wheat last week decreased 725,000 bus., and is now 30,572,000 bus., against 31,369,000 bus. last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼@¾d lower. In the Chicago market July corn closed ⅜@⅞c lower. July oats closed ⅛c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 457,578 bus., last year 259,950 bus. Shipments 372,209 bus., last year 220,401 bus. Clearances were 351,815 bus. The visible supply of corn last week increased 1,238,000 bus., and is now 10,378,000 bus., against 9,278,000 bus. last year.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was fairly active. The July option opened ⅛c higher at $1.02, sold at $1.02¼ at 9:55, and fell to $1.01 at 11:30. It then rallied to $1.01⅝ at 12:45 and closed at $1.01½, a decline from Saturday of ⅜c. The May option opened ¼c higher at $1.04⅛, sold down to $1.04, bulged to $1.04⅝ and closed at $1.04¼, unchanged from Saturday.

Cash sales of wheat were almost nothing. No. 1 northern continued at 1c under May.

Flax was dull and strong. The May option bulged 2c to $1.41 and closed there. The September option closed ½c higher and October ¼c higher.

Oats declined ¼c. Rye was unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Buying By Shorts Gave Wheat Firm Undertone.

Chicago, April 17.—Buying of the July delivery by shorts created a firm undertone in the wheat market in general here today, but May option, however, was inclined to weakness, owing to selling by several prominent traders. World's shipment were smaller than estimated and this fact had considerable influence on values. July opened ⅛c to ¾c higher at 88⅛c to 88¼c. After selling at 87⅝c, the prices steadied around 88c. May opened ⅛c lower to ¼c higher at $1.14⅛ to $1.15. A decline to $1.13⅞ was followed by a rally to $1.14½. Duluth, Minneapolis and Chicago reported receipts of 259 cars, against 283 cars last week and 271 cars a year ago.

Later sentiment became rather bearish and throughout the remainder of the session lower prices prevailed. Weakness of coarse grains brought out some selling by pit traders. The market was further weakened by fresh reports of excellent crop conditions. After selling down to 87⅝c, July closed at 87¾c, a net loss of ⅛c. May closed with a loss of ½c at $1.14¼.

Renewed liquidation by local longs caused weakness in the corn market. Prospects of increased receipts had a bearish influence. July opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 48c to 48⅛c, and sold off to 47¾@⅞c. Local receipts were 172 cars with 13 of contract grade.

As the session advanced the market became still weaker. July selling off to 47⅝@½c. The close was near the lowest point of the day. July being off ½c at 47½c.

Weakness of corn had a depressing effect on the oats market. Trading was of small volume and confined mainly to pit traders. July opened unchanged at 29⅝c and declined to 29⅜@⅜c.

Provisions were weak as a result of enormous receipts of hogs. July pork opened down 5c at $12.95 and sold off to $12.90. Lard was off 2½c at $7.42½. Ribs were 2½@5c lower at $7.25.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.14¼; July, 87¾c; Sept., 83¾c. Corn—April, 46¾c; May, 47⅛@¼c; July, 47½c; Sept., 47⅜⅝c. Oats—May 29⅝c; July, 29⅜c; Sept., 28⅝@29c. Pork—May, $12.60; July, $12.85. GRAIN GOSSIP.

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat—While the market was a shade lower at times, the character of the crop reports checked free selling and the tone on the whole, was firm. The advices at hand, covering thoroughly the states of Nebraska and Kansas, show the crop is hardly holding its own over the entire territory, and deteriorating in many sections as a result of the cold weather and lack of moisture. The situation affords ground for apprehension if present weather conditions are protonged. The indications for the next twenty-four hours suggest gradually rising temperatures and some precipitation west of the Missouri river. Crop conditions are the vital factor for the time being. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 116 cars.

Corn—Corn opened firm, but was immediately made the object of a raid by local professionals, based on the bearish local sentimen. The May was the delivery attacked and was weaker relatively, than the July and September. The market was steady around bottom prices the last hour. The country is selling nothing, the cash market was steady to ½c lower. Our Western advices, particularly from Iowa, show 47c to 50c to be the prevailing prices paid by feeders. Our Liverpool house advised us shipments were too small to allow of much decline. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 262 cars.

• • •

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Trade at times seemed stagnant, with hardly anything of significance throughout the session. Continued weakness in the corn pit counted against the market, tending somewhat to hold bullish enthusiasm in check. While the weather map is less favorable, inasmuch as temperatures are lower and sections of the belt are still without moisture, it is yet too early to determine the actual damage, if any, to the plant. However, weather conditions being being less favorable, tend to cause some hesitation among the bearish element, and possibly the stubborn strength displayed by that market too adds a little to this conservative feeling. While the market at the close shows but little tendency to advance much, it nevertheless seems to suggest that bearish pressure is meeting with some resistance.

Corn—This market was under pressure through most of the session, and seemed like a continuation of the liquidation that developed in Saturday's market. Receipts were somewhat larger and the increase in the visible was a shock to the bulls. This contributed much to the weakness. Statistics at the moment seem to favor the bears, but we still feel there is a good demand for export corn. Add to this the fact that corn has been pretty well shipped out by the farmers, with no very urgent pressure from this source at the moment. The speculative market to us still seems to hold much promise for a good trading market.

Oats—Considering the weakness in corn, this market showed quite a little strength. We feel, however, the cash situation must improve sharply to maintain present or higher prices.

• • •

Chicago: The following letter is from one of the principal grain companies in Nebraska with headquarters at Lincoln: "Will state for your information that we have never seen such a clean up on corn in a crop year as exists at the present time. The writer has scoured the state for white corn without result. Mixed corn almost as bad and we know of a broker who wired today from Southern points saying, 'Could not buy 25,000 bushels of white corn at any price.' We are selling corn for Missouri points equal to 50½ cents to the river for mixed corn. Farmers are in a position to make their own price, which they will do until the new crop is in sight. Added to this is the fact that they are busy and will be for thirty days."

Chicago Tribune: A good deal of figuring has been done on the importation of Manitoba wheat to bring up the grade of the light weight spring wheat of the American Northwest and permit of large additions to the Chicago contract stock. Some of the figures look well on paper. It is said Manitoba No. 2 northern can be laid down in Duluth for 90c, charges paid, which, with the duty, would make it $1.15, and that three bushels of this wheat could be mixed with seven bushels of Duluth No. 1 northern, and, with a little handling, produce ten bushels which would grade contract in this market, and could be brought here at less than $1.10 per bushel. It is claimed experiments have been made which prove such a mixture would pass contract here and that a round lot of Manitoba wheat has been bought. Some of the local brokers who have handled the Manitoba wheat doubt if it would carry any admixture of native wheat of consequence and grade here, and put the cost of Manitoba No. 2 northern laid down at Duluth at $1.01 duty paid, instead of $1.15. Elevator interests bringing Manitoba wheat here would naturally be careful not to mix too much light weight wheat with it, as it would involve the loss of the duty, at least if the imported wheat failed to grade.

U. S. TORPEDO BOATS

Reach British Borneo From the Philippines.

Labuan, British Borneo, April 17.—The United States torpedo boat destroyers Barry and Chauncey arrived here this morning from the Philippines, to join the United States cruiser Raleigh, which, however, had already left.

The destroyers did not sight any Russian or Japanese vessels.

The Raleigh left Labaun heading north on the morning of April 14.

ATHLETE DIES FROM AN UNKNOWN MALADY.

New York, April 17.—Rawley D. Evans, son of Col. D. Evans, president of the Wells-Fargo company is dead at a hotel where he made his home in this city. He was born twenty-five years ago, in Portland, Or., was educated in the East and became known as a clever athlete. Death is believed to have been due to cerebral hemorrhage, but an autopsy will be performed, because two attending physicians say there are features of the man's illness they do not understand.

Evans had muscles like iron. He complained on Saturday night of not feeling well, but apparently was all right when he got up Sunday. Later he was attacked with nausea, and at noon went back to bed. A few hours later he became unconscious and passed away.

"NOT GUILTY"

Plea Entered By Gottschalk on Murder Charge.

St. Paul, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Gottschalk was arraigned before Judge Lewis in the district court this morning. He was charged with the murder of Joseph Hartman and Christian Schindeldecker. The indictment for the murder of Schindeldecker was first read.

Gottschalk, asked to enter his plea, inquired, "How many indictments are there?"

S. J. Donnelly, his attorney, informed him there were two.

Gottschalk entered pleas of "not guilty in each case.

TORPEDO BOATS READY.

Sebastopol, April 17—Several torpedo boats, which Lewis Nixon of New York has been setting up here, have been completed and shipped to Vladivostok.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat—While the market was a shade lower at times, the character of the crop reports checked free selling and the tone on the whole, was firm. The advices at hand, covering thoroughly the states of Nebraska and Kansas, show the crop is hardly holding its own over the entire territory, and deteriorating in many sections as a result of the cold weather and lack of moisture. The situation affords ground for apprehension if present weather conditions are protonged. The indications for the next twenty-four hours suggest gradually rising temperatures and some precipitation west of the Missouri river. Crop conditions are the vital factor for the time being. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 116 cars.

Corn—Corn opened firm, but was immediately made the object of a raid by local professionals, based on the bearish local sentimen. The May was the delivery attacked and was weaker relatively, than the July and September. The market was steady around bottom prices the last hour. The country is selling nothing, the cash market was steady to ½c lower. Our Western advices, particularly from Iowa, show 47c to 50c to be the prevailing prices paid by feeders. Our Liverpool house advised us shipments were too small to allow of much decline. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 262 cars.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Trade at times seemed stagnant, with hardly anything of significance throughout the session. Continued weakness in the corn pit counted against the market, tending somewhat to hold bullish enthusiasm in check. While the weather map is less favorable, inasmuch as temperatures are lower and sections of the belt are still without moisture, it is yet too early to determine the actual damage, if any, to the plant. However, weather conditions being being less favorable, tend to cause some hesitation among the bearish element,

NEW HIGH RECORD

Is Made By United States Steel Preferred Stock.

Common Also Advanced —Market Closed Heavy and Uncertain.

New York, April 17.—Stocks opened the week with wide advances in many of the speculative favorites, and a few of the less active stocks made straggling declines. Great Northern jumped 5 points, Atlantic Coast Line 4, Louisville & Nashville and Tennessee Coal 1¾, Illinois Central 1½, St. Paul and North American 1¾ and Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Erie, Reading, Locomotive and Car and United States Steel preferred about a point. There were large fractional gains in a number of cases. The trading was broad and active and the strength widely distributed.

Liberal offerings came out on the advance and the market reacted. Union Pacific, Illinois Central, Atlantic Coast Line and Tennessee Coal fell off 1 to 1½, and New York Central was driven a point below Saturday's closing. St. Paul's progress upward was not interfered with seriously by this selling, and it reached 187¼. Some comment was aroused by the counter movements of St. Paul, Union Pacific and New York Central. Industrial specialties were actively traded in and in general showed good gains. Up to 11 o'clock the market was very variable and trading became quieter. St. Paul ran off a point. Chicago Great Western preferred and Erie second preferred, North American and Vulcan Detinning improved 1¾ to 2¼, and Erie first preferred, Delaware & Hudson, Colorado Fuel, Linseed preferred and the United States Reduction stocks about a point. Cleveland, C., C. & St. Louis, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo, United States Rubber preferred and Railway Steel Spring preferred lost 1 to 1½.

Stocks came out freely during the second hour and the market became decidedly weak, then rallied vigorously and became quiet. Requirements of speculative operators in wheat were supposed to induce the selling. Union Pacific was forced 1¾ and Smelting 2⅛ under Saturday, and both made full recoveries. St. Paul lost all but a fraction of its gain and then rose again to 187. Baltimore & Ohio, Westinghouse Electric and Consolidated Gas lost 1 to 1¼, and the average level of prices got below last week. Atlantic Coast rose a fraction higher than before. There were gains in Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis of 3, United States Reduction 2, Pipe preferred 2, Virginia Iron 1⅜ and Chicago Great Western and Fort Worth & Denver City stamped 1. The tone was dull and heavy at noon. Bonds were generally steady at noon.

The market leaders did not vary much between 12 and 1 o'clock, but the tone was better. Inactive stocks fluctuated widely, Chicago Great Western preferred jumping over 4 and Woolen 3. Northwestern and General Electric broke 1 and Consolidated Gas 3¼.

Atlantic Coast and United States Steel preferred gained a fraction. St. Paul and Atlantic Coast Lines extreme rise was 2⅝ and 5½ respectively, and United States preferred reached 104⅝. Railway Steel Spring got up above 40 and Mexican Central gained a point.

The heavy demand for United States Steel sustained the market for a time. The common stock rose 1¾, and the preferred to a new high level at 104¾. Atlantic Coast Line touched 159 before reacting. Profit-taking ultimately carried prices back. Union Pacific got down to 134, when the decline was arrested. Brooklyn Gas broke 4. United States Steel preferred recovered to the highest and there were other rallies. The closing was heavy and uncertain.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Strength was in Steels and St. Paul today. Throughout the market was nervous and seemed as if it was under selling pressure under cover of strength of one or two strong specialties. The railroad list did not to any extent follow the advance in St. Paul nor did the Industrials participate in any pronounced strength. The market today looked somewhat two-sided. As we pointed out Saturday stocks have attained a good tone and would be conservative in buying them.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 17.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 2 to 3 points on covering promoted by reports of cold weather in portions of the belt. Cables were a little disappointing, however, and with the forecast calling for more seasonable temperatures, while there was a slight increase in local stocks available for delivery on contract, the market failed to hold the gain. New Orleans appeared to be selling, and with local bear pressure against near months, prices reacted to Saturday's finals.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 7.85; middling gulf, 8.10. Sales none. Futures closed steady: April, 7.22; May, 7.36; June, 7.38; July, 7.32; August, 7.35; September, 7.39; October, 7.45; November, 7.48; December, 7.50; January, 7.55.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, April 17.—Money on call steady, 2½@3 per cent; closing bid 2¾, closed at 3; time loans easier, 60 and 90 days and six months 3½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 4@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers bills at $4.86.20@25 for demand and at $4.84.45@50 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.85@4.87; commercial bills, $4.84¾. Bar silver, 57¾c; Mexican dollars, 44½c. Government bonds weak; railroad bonds irregular.

U. S. STEEL CORPORATION

Re-Elects Directors and Fixes Days For Payments of Dividends.

New York, April 17.—The stockholders of the United States Steel corporation in session at Hoboken, N. J., today re-elected the eight retiring directors and ratified the purchase by the steel corporation of the Colorado Steel properties.

Daniel Wolfe representing about 2,400 shares of common stock introduced a resolution to the effect that directors be authorized to issue 5 per cent bonds for standing preferred stock of the corporation. Chairman Gary said the question was too important to warrant action without notice in advance to the stockholders. The resolution was withdrawn and was left with the chairman to submit to the board of directors.

Three amendments to the by-laws of the corporation were adopted. They fix the date of the regular meeting of the board of directors as the last Tuesday of each month; provide that ten directors constitute a quorum of the board and fix the date for the declaration of dividends on the preferred stock and on the common stock as on the date fixed for regular monthly meetings of the directors in April, July, October and January. The date for the payment of preferred dividends is fixed for the 30th of May. August and November, and the last day of February, and stock for the 30th day of June, September, December and March.

NO WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT

Expected Courier Has Not Arrived at Glenwood Springs.

Glenwood Springs, Col., April 17.—Up to noon today the expected courier from President Roosevelt had not arrived, and no word had been received by Secretary Loeb. The secretary says he does not expect word from camp more than two or three times a week at the most.

The itinerary for the return trip of the president to Washington is nearly completed. There will be but two stops for receptions of a formal character. These are to be at Denver, where the board of trade will give a dinner, and at Chicago, where the president will attend a dinner by the Merchants' club, a reception by the Hamilton club, and a dinner by the Iroquois club. The dates for the engagements depend upon what time the president concludes his hunt. Secretary Loeb will inform the organizations whose hospitality he will accept, as soon as anything definite is received from the hunter's camp. It is likely the president will make three speeches in Chicago and one in Denver.

MANY DELEGATES ATTEND.

New York, April 17.—Although arrangements have been made for the accommodation of only 150 persons, 350 delegates were in attendance at the opening session of the annual convention of the American Physical Education association which began here today. The sessions are held in the teachers' college, Columbia university.

TO BRING JONES BODY TO THE UNITED STATES.

Washington, April 17.—After a conference today between Secretary Morton and Acting Secretary Loomis it was announced that a decision had been reached to have the remains of John Paul Jones unearthed by Ambassador Porter in Paris and brought to America at the proper time in a naval vessel with a proper convoy.

ANOTHER INTERVENOR.

New York, April 17.—Leave to intervene in the action of Franklin B. Lord against the Equitable Life Assurance society to prevent the mutualization of the society, was granted today to H. Van Rennselaer Kennedy of New York city, holder of sixteen shares of Equitable stock. Mr. Kennedy, in the action, also represented as administrator the estate of Rachael Lennox Kennedy, owner of four shares. The application was unopposed.

CAPTAINS OVERCOME BY GAS.

New York, April 17.—Two Finnish sea captains, M. Sjolund and N. Turnquist, en route from their home port, Orland, Finland, to Portland, Or., to take charge of vessels, were probably fatally overcome by gas today in the home for Scandinavian immigrants here. They are now in a hospital in a serious condition.

APPEAL REJECTED.

Nagasaki, April 17.—The appeal in the case of the British steamer Nigretia, seized by the Japanese cruiser Tsushima, Dec. 30, off the coast of Korea and condemned as a prize, Jan. 5, has been rejected. The vessel and her cargo have been confiscated.

SEE THAT YOUR EASTER GLOVES ARE PERRINS!

And they will be correct in fit and shade.

"First Quality" Glace, $2.
"La Mure" Glace, $1.50.
"First Quality" Suede, $1.50 and $2.00.
"Royal Scots"—gauntlet effect, the "smartest" glove made — put your monogram on it.
"Perrins" Glove—but without their name, $1.

These are values that we want discriminating women to see!

The Gidding Store, where fashion reigns supreme.

Were You Here Last Saturday?

It seems as if everybody was who had any clothes-buying to do! Even with our large force of experienced salespeople we couldn't wait upon our customers as promptly as we should like to. However, our customers were good natured, and that makes all the difference!

Everybody says there are no clothes like "Gidding's" shown at any other store—nor does any other store seem to have struck the "keynote" so well—for while Gidding's styles are "different," "exclusive" and "smart," people of moderate means can afford to buy them!

If you've been buying at Gidding's it's needless to tell you of the many advantages this store offers—if not, you owe it to yourself to at least "look" over their assortments before you finally make up your mind to buy — try their clothes on and make comparisons.

This business hasn't been built up so wonderfully and in so short a time on a lot of empty words! Discriminating shoppers "know," and they keep the store busy. "But, leaving price out of consideration," said a woman Saturday, "I prefer to buy my clothes at 'Gidding's' for then I can feel sure of wearing the correct styles no matter where I go—East, West, North or South!"

FRENCH MODEL COVERT COATS $15.00.

More of them have just arrived. 20 different styles to select from in plain tailored effects, "natty" mannish effects, "jaunty" trimmed effects, triple straps and pleats, double straps and pleats—velvet trimmed and cloth trimmed—in fact, every good style of the present season is represented. All of fine double and twist covert cloth, in light, medium and dark shades of covert. Buyers who have shopped around tell us they equal other stores' for $20—$15.00— in all sizes for women or misses.

MORE NEW COVERT COATS at $12.50.

Colarless effects—inlaid with velvet to match or with broadcloth in resida green, sage green and "Alice" blue—or notch collar effect, untrimmed—made of a splendid quality light tan covert—lined throughout with a soft Duchess satin—in a full range of sizes from the small to the large at $12.50— values $17.50—This same model can be had in black Vicuna — velvet trimmed—same price; also in plain tailored styles.

"PICADILLY" COATS.

Full length and form-fitting of fine Tan Coverts and English gray mixtures in several shades—pleated and beautifuly tailored and with just a touch of velvet to harmonize here and there—value $37.50—at $25.

NEW "REDINGOTE" MODELS.

Gray and tan — gray trimmed with Alice blue—tan with Persian—$35 value at $25, and $25 models in tans at $16.50.

ALSO NEW "SWAGGER" COATS at $18.50.

Of mannish worsted—large Shepherd checks, with black velvet collars and cuffs — and "mannish" cheviots in gray over plaid — a "smart coat for smart dressers," $35 values—at $25—$25 values received today. $18.50.

HIGH-CLASS TAILORED SUITS, $25.

In various materials and colors in the newest Easter and Spring models—ones and twos from lines of which materials are closed out and which we cannot reorder.

Values ranging from $32.50 to $39.50—for $25.

NET DRESSES OVER SILK—$19.50.

Beautifully made—white over white, pink or blue—value $32.50—$19.50.

OTHER DRESSES FOR EASTER.

Of net, "Point d'Esprit," Organdie and Lawn—beautifully made—and in a wide range of styles at $17.50, $22.50 and $29.50. White and some colored effects. Values that are unusually attractive.

ATTRACTIVE WAIST VALUES FOR EASTER.

Hand-made Waists of fine net and lace—in a variety of styles—white and ecru—value $19.50—at $12.50.

Hand-made Lace Waists and Silk Waists—beautifully made by French hand-workers—white, cream, pink or black at $13.50, $16.50, $21.50 and $25.00.

$8.50 CHIFFON TAFFETA AND CREPE DE CHINE WAISTS, $6.75.

Of Chiffon Taffeta—all are new and fresh from the makers. The colors are brown, several shades of green, several shades of blue; white or black.

Of Crepe de Chine—pleats and fagoting. Colors are Resida, brown, blue, white and black. Made over a lining. They are splendidly made and fit beautifully.

TAILORED CHINA SILK WAISTS, $4.00.

Pleated folds front, back and sleeves. White or black. All sizes—$5.50 value—$4.00.

BEAUTIFUL SILK SHIRT WAIST DRESSES

High-class exclusive novelties in the prevailing shades and materials. Some $25.00 values at $19.50—several styles, in the new greens, navy, brown, black, sky blue and white. A full range of sizes.

$25 MAGNIFICENTLY TAILORED AND PLEATED VOILE SKIRTS, $17.50.

Side pleated and double box pleated, gray, resida, tan, blue, brown and black—have just arrived—ready tomorrow.

OTHER NEW SKIRTS WHICH HAVE JUST ARRIVED.

At $12.50—Beautifully tailored "Panama" cloth box pleated skirts—they hang and fit as perfect as can be—the materials are very fine.

At $16.50—Triple box and side-pleated skirts—of chiffon Panama cloth—an entirely new model and one that is destined to become very popular.

Splendidly Tailored Skirts—Serges—Panamas, etc.—$7.50.

Also mixtures of various kinds—values that appeal to women who want well made stylish skirts for little money.

A NEW SHIPMENT OF OUR FAMOUS $25 "LONDON TWINE" SKIRTS AT $14.50.

Everybody who sees this skirt goes into ecstacies over the perfect hang and the make—The original of these skirts were made to sell for $25. We have sold them to the best-dressed women in the city at $14.50—but we are compelled to advance the price to $16.50 on our next orders—if we are able to get them at all.

ASSUMES OFFICE

F. L. Ryan Succeeds Simon Clark As Surveyor General.

Paul Perkins Will Be Office Deputy—Many Appointments.

F. L. Ryan assumed his office of surveyor general of logs for the Duluth district, today, succeeding Simon Clark.

Mr. Clark has held the office for two years, and has proved a popular and efficient official. He turned over the affairs of the office to Mr. Ryan this morning.

The first deputy to be appointed by the new inspector, was Robert Metcalf, who will be sent to scale in the Rainy River mill. Alexander D. Sibbald, another of the newly appointed deputies, has been sent to the Rainy River boom.

Paul Perkins has been appointed as the deputy in the office. He formerly lived at Pine City and for six years has been connected with the office. He will succeed Henry Taylor in the office position.

The other deputies who have been appointed are: John O'Donnell, O. Bisbee, R. N. Metcalf, E. T. Smith, G. W. Jones, M. B. Riley, J. H. Beagle, I. Anderson and D. S. McDonald.

Fourteen inspectors have been deputized to scale in the mills at Cloquet and Scanlon and others will be appointed from time to time as they are needed.

The offices will be retained in their present location at 507 and 508 Palladio building.

TWO DREDGING BIDS OPENED

Local Concern Bids $13,000 For Superior Entry Work.

Bids were opened this noon at the office of Major Charles L. Potter, United States engineer in charge of this district, for the dredging work that will be necessary at Superior entry this summer preliminary to putting down the outer end of the new concrete south pier. There were only two bidders, both Duluth companies. The aggregate bids were as follows:

Duluth Dredge company, $17,760; Lake Superior Contracting & Dredge company, $13,000. The last bid is the only one that falls within the limit of the amount fixed by the government to be spent for the project, in fact the bid is exactly the government's estimate.

The bids were asked for the removal of about 48,000 cubic yards, excepting the rip rap; the removal of about 1,000 cubic yards of rip rap and the hire per hour of a dipper dredge, steam tug and scows by the hour, the bids of each company on the respective items being as follows:

Duluth Dredging company, 34½ cents, $1.30 and $19.50; Lake Superior Contracting & Dredge company, 25 cents, $1.00 and $25.

Major Potter is just at present absent at Houghton, where the bridge accident occurred Saturday, and he will make his recommendations to the war department as soon as he returns. If the government decides to accept either of the two bids it is probable that the work will be started immediately.

Last year the government called for bids for the same work, but rejected them all as being too high. The dredging concerns claimed that the work last fall was attended with a great deal of risk to their equipment and that there would be much of the time they would have to be idle on account of rough weather outside. There was strong talk for some time that the government might go ahead and do its own dredging work, a procedure that is just as likely to happen if these bids opened today should be rejected.

FINGERS CUT OFF.

Man in West Duluth Mill Seriously Injured.

A man named Anderson, whose first name could not be learned, and who lives on Garfield avenue, was quite severely hurt just about noon today in the Alger-Smith mill at West Duluth. All of the fingers of his left hand were cut off close to the hand and the thumb was badly lacerated.

The mill began operations this morning and while working about a saw, in some way Anderson's hand came into contact with the saw and the accident as described was the result. Dr. D. Graham dressed the wound.

CITY BRIEFS

Lawyers' briefs. North Land Printery.

The young people of the Asbury M. E. church, West Duluth, will conduct the service at the Star of Hope Mission this evening at 8 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. F. G. Clarke, will speak. There will be special music.

The first hearing on the condemnation of the extension of the boulevard from Fifty-third avenue west to Sixty-fifth avenue was held this morning by the board of public works.

Charles Lindquist was arrested Saturday night for disorderly conduct. He was accused of having disturbed a meeting of the Salvation Army in the West End. A fine of $15 and costs was imposed by Judge Windom this morning.

J. M. Gidding & Co. want tailoresses and seamstresses. Best wages. Apply at once.

Tonight, tomorrow evening and Wednesday evening services will be held in Holy Apostles' church by Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, the rector. Mr. Mooney will conduct services at this church on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock and on Good Friday from 1:30 to 3 in the afternoon. On Holy Saturday baptism will be held at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

F. L. Ryan and John Cashin have formed a partnership to carry on a lumber inspection, shipping and brokerage business with offices at 409 Torrey building. Mr. Cashin will have charge of the office.

C. Howard Clark, Jr., has started suit in district court to clear title to lot 192, St. Louis avenue, Upper Duluth. The defendants are president, recorder and common council of the Town of Duluth, the City of Duluth and district court judges. Mr. Clark is represented by Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell.

LAY BLAME ON EACH OTHER

Different Version Given of Portage Canal Bridge Accident.

No further news was received at the government engineer's office here of the accident to the Portage lake bridge at Houghton, other than the latest Copper country papers containing detailed statements of the affair.

Major Potter is still at Houghton and the government will go ahead and clear the channel of the obstruction unless the county, which owns the bridge commission is being held today to take some steps.

The account of the accident in the Mining Gazette of Houghton, indicates that there is a dispute between Captain Carringway, of the steamer Northern Wave and Engineer Hardiman, of the bridge as to which was in the blame. Captain Carringway claims he gave the proper signals and Engineer Hardiman claims that the steamer gave signals indicative that she was going to the dock instead of passing through. One man who was crossing the bridge and who was severely injured in the collision claims that just before it occurred Engineer Hardiman shouted for him to render assistance as the machinery was not working properly.

FOR ONE YEAR ONLY.

Helsingfors, April 17.—The Finnish national parliament has agreed to pay to the Russian treasury 2,000,000 towards the military requirements for the year 1905 only. The proposal of the Russian government was that this amount should be payable annually from 1905 to 1908.

AGED CHICAGO MAN ENDS HIS EXISTENCE.

Chicago, April 17.—T. C. Haynes, secretary of the Rand-McNally Publishing company, shot and killed himself in his room at the Marquette club. He was 80 years old and it is believed that he ended his life because of illness and steadily failing health, following his advanced age.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

FINISH OF LEGISLATURE CAME AFTER CLOCK WAS TURNED BACK IN HOUSE

The Omnibus Appropriation Bill Was Finally Agreed To.

Reciprocal Demurrage Bill Killed on Motion of Nolan.

Dowling Got Water and Light Commission Bill Through.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The session of the Minnesota legislature was formally closed at noon today, after the customary preliminaries had been gone through. Each house appointed a committee to inform the other that it was ready to adjourn, and each house appointed a committee to wait upon the governor, inform him that the legislature had concluded its duties, and was ready to quit, asking him if he had anything to communicate. To each he replied that he had nothing officially, but he asked the committees to thank the legislature for him for the uniform courtesy it has shown him during the session.

• • •

The senate public accounts committee, which made no investigation of public matters but attended some of the house committee's meetings, sent in a report. It states that Public Examiner Johnson's examinations of the state auditor's office were purely on the records and if there had been better feeling between the examiner's office and the auditor's office, the former might have investigated further and found a more moderate report. Yet the reports have been beneficial because they have resulted in better and more careful methods in the auditor's office. Dunn did no grievous wrong, yet reforms have followed the reports on his office. State Auditor Iverson is commended as a faithful public official.

• • •

The usual fight over gratuities resulted in a merry time in the house, and the clock was turned back that it might be finished when it was just adjournment time under the constitution. Nearly all of the gratuities were defeated in both houses.

• • •

The working days of the legislative session came to an end last night amid a tumult in the house caused by schoolboy like glee over the end of the work, and by more dignified manifestations of pleasure in the senate. According to its usual custom, the house started early to throw about everything movable, and this increased until adjournment, shortly before 11, when the confusion was so great that it was impossible to transact business. Outside of this, the finish was unexpectedly tame.

• • •

The conference committee on the omnibus appropriation bill came to a unanimous agreement and both houses accepted its settlement without opposition. The university was cut $50,000 from the original figures, the agricultural school was cut $10,000, the St. Cloud normal $4,500, and Glenwood fish hatchery $1,000. Still, that there was some feeling left in the house was shown by the fact that there were 80 votes for and 30 against the amended bill.

• • •

There was no fight over reciprocal demurrage, either. As expected from the makeup of the conference committees on the Nolan bill, the two committees were divided equally against each other and a disagreement was reported. The bill was in the house, or rather the mangled remains of it left after the senate railroad committee was through with it, and the author moved its indefinite postponement, which was carried.

• • •

The bill changing Pine county to Clover county passed.

• • •

Laybourn's grand jury bill was killed in the house, 30 for and 71 against. It lost many votes because it was announced that its author did not want any discussion of the bill, but wanted it voted upon at once.

• • •

The Ramsdaal bill suspending mineral leases died in Senator Pugh's pocket.

• • •

The Ware 2½ cent fare bill, the Witherstine distance tariff bill and the Everhart committee's bill making the railroad and warehouse commission orders effective at once, notwithstanding an appeal, died in the senate railroad committee.

• • •

Presentations were the order in the house last night. N. E. Hugo of Duluth, in a brief but happy vein, on behalf of the members, gave Speaker Clague a watch, Chief Clerk Schmahl a handsome Masonic ring, and the three desk clerks a ring apiece. The judiciary committee gave W. B. Anderson, its chairman, a handsome seal ring.

• • •

The Hawkins bill requiring municipal judges in cities and villages of certain size to swear to their bills was killed in the house, being unconstitutional. The voting machine bill passed. N. F. Hugo hung onto and killed the St. Paul bond bill, authorizing the issuance of $500,000 in water bonds by the city council without submission to the people. The Buck bill taking the Faribault schools for defectives away from the board of control died in the house, not being reached. The same fate overtook the bill prohibiting giant fire crackers to be sold in the state. The bill establishing a free state employment bureau in one of the three large cities passed the senate.

Dowling of Eveleth got his water and light commission bill through at last. The Smith bill proposing a constitutional amendment permitting special legislation in regard to cities went to the governor.

The senate refused to stand for a binder plant at the state penitentiary to compete with the harvester trust. Senator Frater's bill for a third state fish hatchery at Deerwood was never reached in the house.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

Is Still Improving.

Amos Shephard is again much better this afternoon, and fears of a dangerous turn in his condition have passed.

DR. LENONT INJURED.

Hibbing, Minn., April 18.—Dr. C. B. Lenont, proprietor of the Lenont hospital, was so severely injured in a runaway accident yesterday that it is believed by attending physicians he will lose the sight of his right eye. He also suffered internal injuries which will keep him to his room for one time. When picked up, he was unconscious and bleeding from cuts on the face and arms.

GRAND JURY BILLS DEFEATED IN HOUSE

Several Measures of Interest to St. Louis County Were Passed.

FROM THE HERALD ST. PAUL BUREAU.

St. Paul, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Prior to the real engagement of the evening, over the bills on which there was radical difference between the two houses, both senate and house put in a long afternoon and evening of work, passing bills by the score and making laws at a rapid rate.

Early in the afternoon, in the house, Senator Laybourn's grand jury bills were met with on the calendar. George Mackenzie of Gaylord made a speech in favor of them, a talk crowded full of meat, but when he had finished the opponents of the bill availed themselves of the rule under which the house general orders were advanced to the calendar. Under this twenty members could put a bill at the foot of the calendar, and twenty members and more demanded that these bills should go there, and they went.

P. E. Dowling of Eveleth protested against this as unfair, and on each of the next half dozen bills that came up he moved that they go to the foot. They went there, because there were always enough votes with Dowling to send them there. Then the house got down to business and began to pass bills.

One of the beauties of the rule that had been adopted was shown when Burdett Thayer of Fillmore county tried to get one of the postponed bills back to the head for consideration. The chair ruled that that would require a suspension of the rules, which only eighty votes could do. He got a vote, and seventy-four were for his motion, but the seventy-four could not undo what the twenty had done.

Among the bills that passed yesterday afternoon, that go at once to the governor, having passed the other body previously, were the following:

St. Louis county delegation—Emancipating the Duluth school district from the control of the county superintendent.

PORTO RICANS TEAR THE AMERICAN FLAG

And Trample It Under Foot During Labor Riots With Police.

San Juan, P. R., April 18.—Six meetings of strikers were held simultaneously yesterday in the Ponce district. The insular police report that at one meeting an American flag was torn and trampled upon. They attempted to make arrests and a riot followed. The crowd attacked the police, clubs and revolvers were used and a number of persons were wounded, including three policemen. A lieutenant of police received a scalp wound from a machete. After a number of arrests had been made, order was restored though with great difficulty.

About 4,000 strikers attended another meeting on the plaza at Ponce. Orators of the American Federation of Labor and President Sanchez of the local organization addressed the men. A disturbance ensued and the police used their clubs, which was followed by revolver shooting from the crowd. The situation became decidedly alarming, but the firing brought reinforcements of police and order was partly restored.

An attempt to rescue the arrested strikers, while they were on their way to jail, provoked another disurbance during which a number of persons were injured though not seriously.

The federation orators are bitter in their denunciations of the political parties of Porto Rico and accuse the police of willfully inciting the strikers to riot. Quiet has been restored.

TO OUST HARRIMAN FROM DIRECTORATE

Of Northern Pacific Said to Be Plan of the Hill Interests.

New York, April 18.—General readjustment in the personnel of the Northwestern railroad directorates concerned in the Northern Securities dissolution is soon to take place, according to the Times. This is understood to have been found necessary in order to comply with the decision of the supreme court, under which it is believed that one man cannot be a director in two parallel and competing railroad companies.

This discovery upsets one of the working methods of the community of interest plan under which practically the same board of directors controlled a large number of systems, and while it is not believed that the decision will do away with this idea altogether, financiers say it will make the control of such boards of directors much more difficult.

One of the first changes scheduled to take place will be in the board of the Northern Pacific railroad at the annual meeting, May 18 next. This will be the first meeting held by the stockholders of that road in two years and a half, because of the injunction preventing the voting of the stock held by the Northern Securities company, without which there was never a quorum. J. J. Hill resigned from the board some time ago because he believed it illegal for one man to sit as a director of competing lines.

The Hill interests are said to make no secret of their intention not to re-elect E. H. Harriman, and the latter interests admit that they expect that Mr. Harriman will fail of re-election. It is stated that the views held by Mr. Hill are also now maintained by the Rockefeller interests, and that for this reason there will, in the near future, be many changes in board memberships.

If the decision of the Western interests is carried further there may be a rearrangement of the directors of many of the Eastern roads, which are competitors and whose boards are composed of practically the same men. All this, of course, will not necessarily mean the end of the community of interest idea, but that the old plan of having boards of directors as nearly identical as possible will have to be abandoned.

NEWFOUNDLAND PASSES BILL EXCLUDING U. S. FISHERMEN

St. Johns, N. F., April 18.—The upper house of the colonial legislature has passed Premier Bond's bill excluding American fishermen from Newfoundland waters. The bill provides that American fishing vessels, found within three miles of the coast of Newfoundland with bait, supplies or outfit, purchased at any port in the island, shall be seized and forfeited, together with their cargoes. The task of proving that the supplies were not purchased in Newfoundland is made to devolve on the captain of the vessel. The bill was amended so as to permit the suspension of its operation at the discretion of the government.

The vote in adoption of the measure was 13 to 3. Some members advocated a permanent law to exclude all Americans, and the abandonment of all reciprocity negotiations with the United States. They argued in support of that plan that it would be more advantageous to Newfoundland's fishing interests.

The governor's assent to the bill is expected before the end of the week, permitting the enforcement of the new law.

REDUCTION OF STOCK

Of Securities Company, Ninety-Nine Per Cent, Announced.

The Distribution of the Railroad Stocks Is Arranged.

Trenton, N. J., April 18.—The Northern Securities company today filed with the secretary of state articles providing for the reduction of its capital stock from $395,400,000 to $3,954,000. The new capital is just 1 per cent of the original outstanding. Accompanying the papers and as a part thereof is a resolution of the board of directors of the company providing for the reduction of the capital stock and the giving to the stockholders, stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern company in return for the surrender of 99 per cent of their holdings of the stock of the Northern Securities company. It is provided that for each share of stock of the Northern Securities company of the par value of $100 each, the stockholders shall receive stock of the Northern Pacific railroad of the par value of $39.57 and stock of the Great Northern railroad of the par value of $30.17.

The certificate sets out the resolution adopted by the board of directors on April 21, 1904, providing for reduction of the capital stock and the distribution of the stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads, two of the surrendered stocks of the Northern Securities company.

This is really the final distribution that was attacked in the courts by E. H. Harriman, the suit finally terminating in a victory for J. J. Hill and the interests which he represents.

The New Jersey corporation laws provide that increase or decrease of capital stock must have the consent of the holders of two-thirds of the company's outstanding stock. Accompanying the certificate filed today is the consent of the holders of stock aggregating $294,474,000.

Among those who have given their consent, and the number of shares of stock held by each, are:

J. J. Hill, 326,000 shares; John S. Kennedy, 262,701; Rt. Hon. Lord Strathcona, 148,500; Moore & Schley, 78,000; Albert Smith, 50,645; John W. Sterling, 44,863; Charles Arthur Ellis, 35,387; Rt. Hon. Lord Mount Stephen, 31,394; Samuel H. Miller, 31,381; John W. Sterling, trustee, 31,362.

THE STRIKE TO GO ON

Chicago Labor Committee Tells Mayor Negotiations Are Ended.

Mayor Asks Them to Keep as Orderly as Possible.

Chicago, April 18.—A committee of eleven appointed by the Chicago Federation of Labor called upon the mayor today and informed him that the unions have not receded from their position regarding the strike of the garment workers and teamsters against Montgomery Ward & Co. and that, as far as the union are concerned, the negotiations to end the strike have terminated. Mayor Dunne asked the labor men to exert their influence to keep the strike as orderly as possible and to discourage a spread of unsettled labor conditions.

The union men promised to move discreetly in the struggle and to take only such steps as are necessary to uphold the union's contentions.

DIED IN A CELL.

Insane Man Had Threatened to Shoot Officials.

Green Bay, Wis., April 18.—Charles Veehe of Seymour, 30 years old, died in his cell at the police station whither he had been taken two weeks before. He had been sent to a local hospital, and while there became violently insane, threatening all who came near. He sat in his room in the hospital armed with two revolvers. Aversion for secret societies, particularly the Elks and Masons, about which he had written pamphlets and distributed them at church doors, caused his insanity, and his death was due to heart failure brought on by over-exertion when resisting capture.

CLAIMS AGAINST MEXICO

On Account of the Yaqui Atrocities.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 18.—Former Senator Thurston of Nebraska, the attorney in the case, says that the claims for the Americans killed by the Yaqui in Mexico will aggregate $450,000—$100,000 each for the four men killed, J. K. McKenzie and Dr. Robert McCoy of Chicago, Walter Stubinger of Kewaunee, Ill., and M. H. Call of Sioux City, and $25,000 each for the terrible experience of the two survivors, C. E. Terrington of Salem, Ohio, and H. E. Miller of Los Angeles, Cal.

Paul Morton, secretary of the navy, will assist in presenting the claims to the Mexican government, which will probably be made through John Hay, secretary of state.

JAPS ACCUSE FRANCE OF GIVING AID TO RUSSIANS, VIOLATING NEUTRALITY

Make a Bitter Protest to the Use of Kamranh Bay.

France Claims to Be Doing Everything to Preserve Neutrality.

Nothing Has Been Heard From the Opposing Fleets.

Tokio, April 18.—Discussing the presence of vessels of the Russian second Pacific fleet at Kamranh bay, on the east coast of French Indio-China, the Jiji Shimpo declares that the use of the island of Madagascar by the Russian fleet was a direct and prolonged violation of the principle of neutrality but on account of the distance, Japan in that instance, simply lodged a protest. The paper, however, insists that Russia is now using Kamranh bay as a base for action against her opponent and says she intends to use it as the point for effecting a juncture with the remaining division of the squadron.

"If the use of Kamranh bay is continued," the Jiji Shimpo adds, "Japan must regard its neutrality as completely ignored and Japan will not be obliged to respect its neutrality. Violations of neutrality in distant ports are not important but when close to the zone of war, it is impossible to view them with the same leniency."

The Jiji Shimpo further declares that France is lending the Russians efficient assistance, thus actually joining issue with Russia against Japan and that it is now necessary for Japan to notify Great Britain and obtain her co-operation according to the terms of the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

"Protests," the paper asserts, "are unavailing. The time for action has come."

The navy department today declared Tsugara straits a zone of defense, with the usual maritime restrictions.

Manila, April 18.—Two unknown steamers have anchored in Lingayan bay, island of Luzon, about 130 miles north of Manila bay.

EVERY PRECAUTION

Taken By France to Preserve Neutrality.

Paris, April 18, 3:25 p. m.—The French government has taken every precaution to secure the observance of neutrality in France's waters in Indo China. To this end instructions have been sent to M. Beau, governor general of Indo China, again calling his attention to the regulations concerning the observance of neutrality issued at the outset of the war. These are identical with the neutrality rules in force during the Spanish-American war. It is believed that Admiral De Jonquieres, commander of the French naval forces at Saigon, in proceeding to Kamranh bay, where part of the Russian second Pacific squadron has been seen is following the governor general's instructions.

The latter were not the result of the report that Japan contemplated making representations on the matter, as no such action has thus far been ordered and France has acted voluntarily in seeking to maintain the neutrality of her waters. This, however, is increasingly difficult at remote points not connected by telegraph and far from opportunities for official communications. Nevertheless the instructions sent to M. Beau contemplate the full observance of neutrality. It is probable that this has been made known to the Russian naval commander. However, it is impossible for France to anticipate or control the movements of the Russian fleet and she can only direct the governor general to enforce the regular rules of neutrality.

The officials here have no information concerning the length or circumstances of the stay of the Russian vessels at Kamranh bay and therefore they are unable to determine whetner the ships are actually within the territorial limits of French waters.

RIVER TRAGEDY.

Decomposed Body of Man Taken From Mississippi.

Little Falls, Minn., April, 18.—The body of a man was found floating in the Mississippi river at Blanchard's rapids, about ten miles below Little Falls. There were no means of identification, the features being decomposed and battered beyond recognition by logs. The man was 5 feet 9 inches in height, heavy set, smooth shaven and apparently weighed about 175 pounds. His hands were small and did not appear to be those of a working man. No postmorten could be held and the story of his death will probably never be known.

SUIT AGAINST THE MARY McKINNEY MINE SETTLED.

Cripple Creek, Col., April 18.—The $1,000,000 damage suit brought by the Morning Glory Mining and Leasing company against the Mary McKinney company has been settled by the payment of a little over $100,000 by the defendant to the plaintiff in full settlement for all claims. The plaintiff was recently awarded judgment for $164,000, and an appeal taken by the defendant. The decision of the court was based upon ore taken from the property of the plaintiff.

ONE HUNDRED MINERS PROLONGING STRIKE

All the Other Strikers Want to Return to Work.

Trouble at Agnew Mine Feared But Did Not Develop.

Hibbing, Minn., April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Considerable excitement prevailed in the village this morning, but outside of the arrest of one Finn for creating a small disturbance, there was little doing. Last evening the strikers went to the Mahoning mine, and the force of men there was pulled off at 5 o'clock. There was no disturbance, and the men were quietly withdrawn from work. This morning part of the force was again at work, and no trouble was made.

The Agnew mine is working also, in spite of threats that were made that work would be stopped there today. There was more excitement over the possibility of trouble at the Agnew this morning than over anything else. At that mine preparations were made to meet any force that should be used, and an armed guard was reported to be on hand there to keep the troublemakers off. The strikers did not show up, however, and work progresses as usual.

The Burt mine is working as usual and cars were run in there this morning to get ore.

Efforts to organize the men have have failed thus far. The Italians and Austrians want to organize, but the Finns are against it. The Finns are holding another of their many meetings at their hall this morning. All told, there are about one hundred men who are continuing the trouble and keeping the strike going. Opposed to them are more than a thousand who want to work, but are afraid of violence. The merchants are becoming greatly alarmed over the condition of things for they see their trade about to be paralyzed, and there is talk of calling on Governor Johnson for militia to stop the trouble.

ASSASSIN OF SERGIUS CONDEMNED TO DEATH

Supreme Court at Moscow Makes Short Work of Kaleieff.

Moscow, April 18.—The supreme court today began the trial of Kaleieff who killed Grand Duke Sergius.

Kaleieff was sentenced to death.

St. Petersburg, April 18.—Gradually many interesting details surrounding the recent arrest of a band of about a dozen terrorists are leaking out. The capture which is regarded by the authorities as being of immense importance was accomplished by Kashovsky the Russian detective.

Governor General Trepoff, upon his appointment as governor general of St. Petersburg, induced Kashovsky to return to St. Petersburg and within two weeks the detective captured the entire band which had been operating here under the direction of the central organization which apparently has its headquarters in Switzerland. Alfred Henry McCollough, the man killed March 11, by the accidental explosion of a bomb at the Hotel Bristol whose real name was Bauman, was one of the chiefs of the terrorists having charge of the manufacture of bombs and Kaleieff who killed Grand Duke Sergius also belonged to the same group. After Bauman's death Kaleieff's duties devolved on Mlle. Leontieff, daughter of General Leontieff who recently was appointed governor of Yakutsk, Eastern Siberia. Mlle. Leontieff became a convert to terrorism during her stay at Lucerne, Switzerland. Kaleieff's identity was established through the discovery of a photograph belonging to Savinkoff who had been his comrade both at the university and in exile. When Kaleieff was charged with his identity he admitted it saying immediately:

"Savinkoff has been arrested."

The police later thought they had captured Savinkoff and so announced publicly, but it turns out that the man held under that name was another and that Savinkoff to whom Kaleieff evidently had confided his intention of killing Grand Duke Sergius is still safe abroad.

Among the others captured was Madame Ivanovskai, a sister-in-law of Korolenko, the Russian author. She was involved in the Nihilist plot to assassinate Emperor Alexander II, for which she was sentenced to fifteen years in Siberia, but at the end of seven years she escaped to America.

Perhaps the most romantic feature is the fact that Mlle. Leontieff converted two nieces of Governor General Trepoff, Mlle. Trepoff and Princess Denisheff, to the doctrine of assassination, and that after the arrest of her mentor Mlle. Trepoff actually attempted the life of her uncle, firing two shots at him, both of which missed. Thereupon the two girls became panic-stricken and attempted suicide, Mlle. Trepoff throwing herself under a train and Princess Denisheff shooting herself. Neither of them succeeded in killing herself. The family has since tried to make it appear that the girls' acts were the result of a mutual pact for self-destruction, both being in love with the same man, an officer of the guards.

About 100 male and female students of the Conservatory of Music, who have been connected with the agitation in favor of Rimsky Kosakoff, who was removed from his professorship in the conservatory because of his attitude towards the striking students, have been arrested and sentenced to a month's imprisonment.

THOUSANDS OF BAKERS MAY STRIKE

New York, April 18.—The decision of the United States supreme court against the constitutionality of the bakers' ten-hour law will, it is feared, be followed by a strike of 85,000 bakers in the leading cities. Frank Harsbecker, secretary of the Journeymen Bakers' and Confectioners' union, has declared, on learning of the decision, that there will be a fight all along the line of the bakers' demand for a ten-hour day if refused on May 1. All the union officials in this city declared there will be no let up in the fight for a ten-hour day, despite the nullification of the state law. In Greater New York an agreement between 3,000 journeymen and their employers expires May 1. The bakers desire a renewal of the contract. The employers are willing to pay union wages, they say, but are opposed to any formal agreement, so that a strike is considered likely.

McGOVERN BUCKS ON SANITARIUM

New York, April 18.—Terry McGovern, the prize fighter who escaped from a sanitarium at Stamford, Conn., yesterday, was at his home in Brooklyn today and declared that he would not return to the sanitarium. He said:

"I will go to Babylon, L. I., my summer place, or I will go somewhere with Sam Harris, but I won't go to any sanitarium again."

He was exhausted and suffered from cramps today as the result of his run yesterday to evade the searchers for him at Stamford. McGovern's friend plan to bring him into court for a judicial determination of his condition.

Stock Company Gives Pleasing Performance at Metropolitan.

CAST.

Dennis Donovan .....Tom Marks
Albert Ashton .....W. S. Hammer
Tom Worthington ....E. Sardis Lawrence
Seth Holcomb .....Chris Allen
Calvin Davis .....James R. Field
Ezra Brown .....Harry King
George Davis .....Harry King
Kate Davis .....Rachel May Clark
Carl Davis .....Gracie Rentfrow
Martha Smith .....Mrs. J. R. Field

If all the plays in the Tom Marks stock company repertoire are as good as "An Irish Boarder," produced at the Metropolitan theater last evening, the success of the two weeks' engagement of Mr. Marks and his followers in Duluth is already assured. The audience at the opening performance was large, and everyone appeared to have a good word for the production.

"An Irish Boarder" is an excellent comedy-drama. The usual impossible situations of the average stock company play, with murders galore, were lacking, and in their place was an interesting plot and amusing comedy. The Irish boarder himself, in the person of Tom Marks, big-hearted, friendly and witty, found great favor with the audience, and was given an entausiastic reception whenever he made one o. his timely appearances on the stage.

W. S. Hammer did excellent work as Albert Ashton, cashier in the village bank, who was thwarted by the Irishman in his attempt to wreck the happiness of the Davis family, who resided on a farm which turned out to be very valuable because of a mica deposit it contained. E. S. Lawrence made a manly looking hero, and was pleasing as Tom Worthington, an ambitious young physician. Chris Allen was funny as Seth Holcomb. James R. Field, Harry King, Rachel Clark, Grace Rentfrow, and Mrs. J. R. Field were all good in their parts. Mrs. Field was particularly good as Martha Smith, a widow with matrimonial desires and an eye on the Irish boarder as a possible candidate for the position of husband. She played the part well.

The specialties came in for a generous measure of applause. They were produced between every act, so that there was something going on on the stage almost every minute during the evening, from the time the curtain rose on the first act until it descended on the last.

There will be a change of bill every night.

VERY BAD SHOW.

The program said it was Al Dolson and Walt. M. Leslie, who showed "Happy Hooligan" and his company on an unsuspecting public at the Lyceum last night. If it really and truly was Al and Walt, they ought to be jailed for obtaining money under false pretenses. "Happy Hooligan" ran a close second to the Cherry Sisters, inasmuch as it was so bad that it came near being good.

HENRIETTA CROSMAN.

At the Lyceum this evening playgoers of this city will have a chance to judge Henrietta Crosman's talent both as an actress and as a stage director. Every detail of the production of "Mistress Nell" is under the personal supervision of Miss Crosman. She is always her own stage director. Of course, there is a stage manager to look after things while Miss Crosman is before the footlights or in her dressing room, but her guiding genius is everywhere, ever present, and not the smallest point escapes her observation or attention. Miss Crosman never fails to conduct and direct rehearsals of her company and this she has done since she first headed an organization of her own. There is all the recommendation needed for player and play. Nell Gwyn, more than any other character in her repertoire, enables Miss Crosman to display her comprehensive comedy gifts. The Nell Gwyn of Mr. Lazelton's comedy is merry, roguish, daring, but warm-hearted and generous. This personality Miss Crosman invests with realsless charm. She is mistress of her art a is no other comedienne on the English-speaking stage of today, if the verdict of the New York and Boston and Philadelphia and Washington critics be accepted. New York is so attached to Miss Crosman that it has held her there for two years, entertaining its playgoers. The present tour is her first in that time.

ASSAULTED THE LAWYER.

Disappointed Litigant Almost Kills Owen Lovejoy.

Jefferson, Iowa, April 18.—At the end of a lawsuit Owen Lovejoy, Republican candidate last year for railroad commissioner, was set upon and assaulted by Jack Reeder, whom he opposed in the trial. Lovejoy was just leaving a meat market when Reeder struck him, knocked him down, then jumped on him and struck him repeatedly in the face. Lovejoy got up and started on, when Reeder again attacked him and knocked him down. Persons then interfered.

The case in court was a replevin action wherein Mabel Pooley, by young Reeder, who holds her power of attorney, sought to recover a buggy from her brothers, and lost. Mr. Pooley, who was worth $60,000, dropped dead several years ago. Reeder secured the power of attorney from the girl and attempted to have the estate divided, but was unsuccessful.

MASONIC EVENT

Formal Consecration Of Scottish Rite Auditorium Imposing Affair

Work of Conferring Degrees on Hundred Candidates Begun.

Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock the formal consecration of the Scottish Rite auditorium of the new Masonic cathedral will take place under the direction of James D. Richardson of Tennessee, sovereign grand commander of the Scottish Rite in the Southern jurisdiction of the United States. Notices are being sent out to all Masons of whatever degree in Duluth to attend this consecration and it is expected that there will be an enormous congregation of the members of the mystic tie at the temple to take part in the services which will doubtless be elaborate and impressive.

Aiding the sovereign grand commander will be Samuel Emery Adams of Minneapolis, lieutenant grand commander and inspector general of Minnesota; Frederick Webber of Washington, D. C., secretary general, and the following thirty-third degree masons of Duluth: Trevanion W. Hugo, W. E. Richardson, George W. Buck, Jerome E. Cooley, S. L. Frazer, J. R. Carey, W. A. McGonagle, Bernard Silberstein and William C. White.

This afternoon at 1 o'clock the work of conferring degrees began. About one hundred candidates presented themselves and the work was begun at the fourth degree. By this evening the fourteenth degree will have been conferred and tomorrow beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning the fifteenth to twenty-ninth degrees inclusive will be given. On Thursday morning the thirtieth degree will be conferred and in the afternoon the thirty-first and thirty-second degrees will be given.

On Thursday evening will be held the Maundy Thursday banquet and extinguishing the lights will take place on Easter Sunday at 4 o'clock at the temple.

Elaborate music will be heard during the conferring of degrees by the Scottish Rite quartet, consisting of Mrs. Leo. A. Ball, soprano; Mrs. Burt Holcomb, contralto; J. L. Martin, tenor, and H. G. Gearhart, basso. A. F. M. Custance is director of the quartet. During the conferring of the thirty-second degree music will be furnished by Flaaten's Third Regiment band and orchestra, a chorus of sixty voices from St. Paul's church choir, and the High School Musical society.

The musical program follows:

WILL OPEN BIDS

Board Will Let First Street Paving Contract Friday.

Unusually Large Number of Small Contracts This Year.

Bids for the paving of First street from Sixth avenue west to First avenue east will be opened next Friday by the board of public works.

The bids will cover four different kinds of pavement, sandstone blocks, tar macadam, asphalt and creosote blocks, and the work will involve an outlay of from $40,000 to $60,000, according to the kind of pavement chosen.

Most of the owners apparently favor either creosote blocks or asphalt. The fact that the street will have to be torn up in many places during the next few years as new buildings are erected has led many who were at first in favor of asphalt to change their views. The difficulty of repairing asphalt when the city has no repair plant of its own has proved a strong argument in favor of the other kinds of pavement.

The whole matter will be discussed Friday, when a number of the property owners are likely to be present at the meeting of the board to await the opening of the bids.

The preliminary work on the other large paving contracts under consideration is also making good progress. The petition for the repaving of Second street from Sixth avenue west to Seventh avenue east was again presented last evening to the council, with the requisite number of names, and was referred to the board for action.

The petition for the paving of West Superior street from Eighth to Twenty-fifth avenues west is not yet complete. The requisite number of names for the district between Fourteenth and Twenty-fifth has been secured, but some more are needed for the district between Eighth and Fourteenth.

The contract is probably the largest single paving contract ever undertaken by the city, and it will involve an expenditure of about $100,000.

The Fourth street and Jefferson street jobs are not likely to be undertaken this year, owing to the large amount of other work on hand. The number of sewers and small jobs is unusually large this year. Every week for the last two or three months the council has ordered from three to a dozen small improvements costing from $100 to $5,000, and the total of these small jobs will amount to almost as much as the large contracts.

San Francisco, Los Angeles and Return $57.90.

April 10th to 14th inclusive, the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets to above points and return for $57.90, good for 90 days, with liberal stop-overs in each direction. Tickets via diverse routes, one way via Portland, returning another, $70.40. For tickets and full information, call at City office, 332 West Superior street.

INSPECTING PAVEMENTS

Eveleth Citizens Are In Duluth Looking For Information.

With the intention of securing information concerning the different kinds of pavements that have been laid in the city, a delegation of three Eveleth citizens, arrived in Duluth this morning.

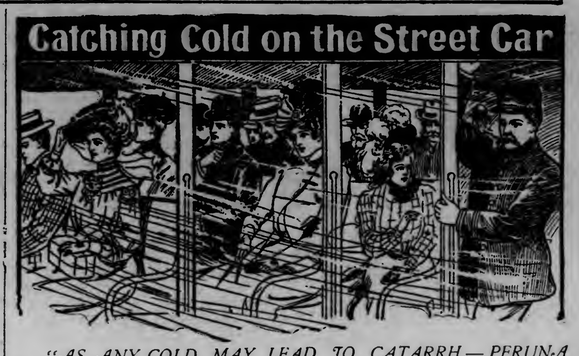
The delegation is composed of Neil McInnis, P. McGlory and C. E. Bailey. They were appointed by the Eveleth council to secure information concerning the relative merits of the different pavements, with a view to selecting the most suitable pavement for Grand avenue, the main street of Eveleth, which is to be paved this summer.

The property owners along the street want a substantial pavement even if the cost is rather high, and the three delegates apparently had a leaning toward either asphalt, creosote blocks or sandstone blocks.

They inspected the sandstone on First avenue west, the brick on Superior street, the creosote blocks on the Sixth avenue viaduct, the tar macadam on Fifth avenue west, and the asphalt on East Superior street, and consulted with the members of the board of public works and the city engineer. They learned all of the favorable points regarding each kind of pavement and the objections to each, and left with all the statistics and estimates that the city officials and several contractors could furnish them.

A man is in "hard luck," indeed, if he has a wife who "never reads the ads," and who does her shopping in comparative ignorance of what things should cost.

Catching Cold on the Street Car



"AS ANY COLD MAY LEAD TO CATARRH—PERUNA SHOULD BE KEPT IN EVERY HOME."—Dr. S. B. Hartman.

MANY people persist in riding on the street cars, insufficiently protected by clothing.

They start out perhaps in the heat of the day and do not feel the need of wraps.

PRECAUTION BETTER THAN MEDICINE.

The rapid moving of the car cools the body unduly. When they board the car, perhaps they are slightly perspiring. When the body is in this condition it is easily chilled. This is especially true when a person is sitting.

Beginning a street car ride in the middle of the day and ending it in the evening almost invariably requires extra wraps, but people do not observe these precautions, hence they catch cold.

Colds are very frequent in the Spring on this account, and as the Summer advances they do not decrease. During the Spring months, no one should think of riding on the car without being provided with a wrap.

NIP COLDS IN THE BEGINNING.

A cold caught in the Spring is liable to last through the entire Summer. Great caution should be observed at this season against exposure to cold. During the first few pleasant days of Spring, the liability of catching cold is great.

PE-RU-NA PREVENTS COLDS.

No wonder so many people acquire muscular rheumatism and catarrhal diseases during this season.

However, in spite of the greatest precautions, colds will be caught.

TAKE PE-RU-NA IN TIME.

At the appearance of the first symptom, Peruna should be taken according to directions on the bottle, and continued until every symptom disappears.

Do not put it off. Do not waste time by taking other remedies. Begin at once to take Peruna and continue taking it until you are positive that the cold has entirely disappeared. This may save you a long and perhaps serious illness later on.

Mr. George Livingston, a prominent architect and builder of Los Angeles, Cal., writes from the Census Office Building, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"I do not hesitate, when I see a friend or acquaintance suffering from a cold that is stubborn and threatening to become chronic, to recommend Peruna.

"It relieved me from a long and distressing catarrhal trouble and brought back the strength the disease had taken away. I recommended it as a cure and a tonic that cannot be surpassed."

Mrs. B. Schober, 221 10th St., Portland, Ore., writes:

"I am pleased to testify to the wonderful curative value of Peruna in cases of colds and a rundown condition of the system. I took it for a cold which I could not get rid of, and in less than a month it had cured me. I feel like a different person.

"You certainly deserve success."

We have in our files thousands of letters from grateful people who have been cured by Peruna.

WEST END.

IT WOULD HELP

Sprinkler Needed at West End of City to Lay Dust.

Work Doing on Point of Rocks Removing Small Boulders.

The streets of the West end are getting to be badly in need of the attention of a sprinkler. Dust blows about in clouds and not only blinds pedestrians and drivers, but is getting into the stores and covering goods to a most provoking extent. The council has just fixed the boundaries of the sprinkling districts and will advertise for bids for sprinkling the streets. Ten days must elapse before the bids can be opened and then comes the acceptance of bonds and other red tape so it is safe to assume that the West end will have to swallow dust, slivers and small gravel for at least fifteen days and possibly longer.

The city has men at work removing the small boulders from the Point of Rocks at Thirteenth avenue west and Superior street. It was at this point that a rock fell a few days ago and crashed through the shafts of a buggy between the horse and the driver. A great deal of the rock at this point is loose and likely to fall at any time so it will be removed.

If it were possible to do is without much danger to residents surrounding, the huge boulders at this point should be destroyed also, for they give a most uncomfortable feeling to people passing on street cars, having a rather formidable appearance. One is almost compelled to speculate as what would happen should one of those boulders break loose and the speculation is not very wild at that. The Point of Rocks is a land mark of the city, but one that can be very well done without.

TEMPERANCE TALKS.

Rev. J. O. Johnson Gives Some—Coming Back.

Rev. J. O. Johnson of Chicago is in the city this week in the interest of the temperance movement and gave an address Sunday afternoon at the Norwegian Lutheran church at First avenue east and Third street, and on Sunday evening he delivered a temperance sermon at the First Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Tridd street.

This evening and Wednesday evening he is to speak at Swedish Baptist church in Superior, and on Thursday evening a meeting has been arranged for at Wasa hall, 5117 Ramsey street in this city. He come to this city from Aitkin where he held several successful temperance meetings, and from here he will visit Two Harbors and is to be back here April 25 and speak at the First Swedish M. E. church. He is a friend of long standing of Rev. J. A. Anderson. Some ten years ago, Rev. Johnson was pastor of the Baptist church at Clear Lake, Minn., while Rev. Anderson was pastor of the Methodist church at the same place. Rev. Johnson is publisher of the Swedish Temperance Journal, a monthly paper run in the interest of temperance and prohibition. While Mr. Johnson has no connection with any temperance society he is connected with the prohobition party, and is said to be a very convincing speaker.

IMPROVEMENTS.

Houses Going Up and Rebuilding In Progress.

Peter Johnson of 2223 West Third street is having plans drawn for four modern houses at the corner of First street and Twenty-fifth avenue west. These houses will be erected in the near future and in fact the materials are now being put on the ground. The houses will be of medium size and modern in most respects, and will be a valuable addition to West end residence property.

Even Hanson of 912 Twenty-second avenue west is making extensive improvement on his residence; and when his present improvements are finished the house will be one of the most up-to-date in the West end.

The Norwegian Lutheran church at the corner of Twenty-fifth avenue west and Third street is undergoing repairs and improvements to an extent that will practically rebuild the church. A new roof is being put on, new stairways are being built, the interior is being renovated and altered and the church will look like new when the work is finished.

West End Wanderings.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Grace Methodist church gave a bazar and supper last Friday night, both of which proved very successful. Alderman Haven acted as auctioneer of the bazar and made a hit in this capacity. He auctioned off the goods on sale like the real thing and cleaned out the bazar, bringing good prices for everything.

Next Wednesday night, Duluth camp of the Modern Woodmen, at the West end will hold a social session and entertain the camp of Royal Neighbors. There will be a musical program, cards and dancing and refreshments will be served.

The churches of the West end are making elaborate preparations for the Easter services of next Sunday.

Dr. L. W. Meckstroth of Walpeton, N. D., has been visiting his brother-in-law, R. R. Forward for a few days, but has now returned home.

Capt. D. E. Stevens has gone to Marquette with his tug Mystic.

George Stevens and family have returned from a fishing trip at Midway river.

E. A. Martin is back from a business trip on the ranges.

William Berg of Minneapolis, who has been clerking at R. R. Forward & Co.'s has returned to Minneapolis.

Sandy McDonald, the engineer of the derrick crew which fell sixty feet some weeks ago, when a part of the Missabe dock approach collapsed, is slowly convalescing. His arm, which was broken in the fall, is mending, but Mr. McDonald is still incapacitated.

Edward McLeod, a fireman on the Northern Pacific, who has been visiting relatives for some time in Alpena, Mich., has returned and will resume his duties immediately.

JEFFERSON'S END IS NEAR

Famous Old Actor Is Dying at Palm Beach, Fla.

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 18.—Dr. Potter, the attending physician of Joseph Jefferson, reports that the patient's condition slightly improved during the morning, but is still critical. Mr. Jefferson is very weak and the prospect is uncertain. There seems to be no particular ailment and only his advanced age is against. At noon Mr. Jefferson was very weak. Charles B. Jefferson says his father has given up. The family has lost hope. They think the patient may live a day or two, but say he is liable to die at any moment.

Jacksonville, Fla., Apuril 18.—A telegram received here today from Henry M. Flagler, at Palm Beach, says Joseph Jefferson cannot live. The end seems near.

Rome, April 18.—The strike of employes of the state railroads against the government regulations continues, but more men returned to work today and it has been possible to make up more trains, excluding sleepers and salon cars for cars able to carry a larger number of passengers. Owing to the troubles, Mrs. White, wife of the American ambassador, and their daughter, who stopped at Lucerne, Switzerland, have been unable to rejoin the ambassador here. Mrs. Meyer, wife of the American ambassador at St. Petersburg, and J. P. Morgan, who expected to leave Rome Wednesday, has postponed his departure until Friday.

SAND AND GRAVEL

Instead of Crushed Rock Being Put on Grand Avenue.

Heavy Teaming Requires Better Roadway Rather Than London Road.

Since the kicks began about the condition of Grand avenue and West Third street from the entrance to the fair grounds to West Duluth the people of West Duluth have become more and more worked up over the matter. A short time ago a petition was sent to the council from this end of town asking that the avenue and street be improved.

Within the last few days the board of public works has been hauling and spreading from the curb to the street car track on Grand avenue, a conglomeration of stuff that is making matters, if anything, worse than they were before. The stuff that is being spread is a mixture of sand and gravel, and among the gravel are rocks half as large as a man's head. A protest has been made but the city authorities reply that they have no money to put in crushed rock. It is pointed out, however, that the city has money to put crushed rock on London road.

Comparing the two places West Duluth people find it hard to see the consistency of the city's course. They say London road is a driveway solely, scarcely anything but eight teams, bicycles and automobiles using it. While Grand avenue, on the other hand is a business thoroughfare over which heavy teaming is done and is used by the Duluth wholesalers in carrying their goods to West Duluth merchants. There is no dispute that the best roadways should be where heavy business traffic is carried on.

What the West Duluth people want to know is: Why, then, are the owners of "bubbles and people who drive solely for pleasure to be given the preference over those who have to drive heavy loads for business purposes?" London road can wait; Grand avenue can not. What excuse, ask the West Duluth people, has the board of public works for its course? Said one man this morning.

"We don't want to be unreasonable or unjust, all we ask is what the president calls a 'square deal.'"

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Bishop Hare Gets $100,000 For All Saints School.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The interesting announcement was male here that Right Rev. W. H. Hare, Episcopal bishop of South Dakota, who returned to his home in this city today, after being detained in the East by sickness, has realized his life's ambition—the endowment of All Saints' school, an institution of learning founded by him in this city. He has succeeded in securing an endowment fund of $100,000 which will make the institution permanent and enlarge its sphere of usefulness. Of this amount Eastern friends of Bishop Hare have given in cash and pledges approximately $97,000. Of the remainder the sum of $1,500 is pledged in South Dakota outside of Sioux Falls, while citizens here will make up the rest.

As the result of a council held by what are known as the Flandreau Sioux Indians, it was voted to refuse to accept the proposed payment of $44,000 which was soon to have been made to them by the government, unless the terms fixed by the secretary of the interior governing this and other payments be changed to suit their wishes. The Indians expected to be paid the entire amount, and claim not a dollar of the sum due them should be withheld, as they are not reservation Indians, but reside on homesteads and are contending for a living among white people.

A CREAMY FOOD

Scott's Emulsion is cod liver oil prepared as a food—not a food like bread or meat, but more like cream; in fact, it is the cream of cod liver oil. At the same time it is a blood-maker, a nerve tonic and a flesh-builder. But principally it is food for tired and weak digestions, for all who are fat-starved and thin. It is pleasant to take; children like it and ask for more.

A gulch in the pasture has been dammed and will be flooded first, after which a large tract of land will be irrigated for alfalfa. The successof this well has removed all doubts as to securing a good well at Fort Pierre, and the project to sink an artesian to supply that town with gas for lighting purposes and for power to pump Missouri river water for domestic purposes will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

Beautiful Printing.

The new hat and cap catalogue for the Blake & Waite company has just come from the press of O. F. Collier and its excellence is thoroughly in keeping with the complete and up-to-the-minute stocks handled by this progressive house.

Printed on heavy coated enamel and profusely illustrated with over 250 beautiful cuts, to say it is a choice bit of artistic printing is but putting it mildly.

As an example of the modern catalogue it would do credit to any of the high-class printing plants in the country.

The skillful creation of the many vignetted half tones is far above the average, in fact, from the expert's view they are well nigh perfect and offer but further evidences of the truly artistic work being turned out by this shop.

The O. F. Collier press is to be congratulated on this effort and commended for their rapid developement along the line of high grade printing.

Nervous Headache.

The Cause of Much Suffering to Women is Permanently Cured When the System is Built Up By

DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE PILLS.

When the head aches hard and throbs; when the neck and eyes grow stiff, the face flushes or grows deadly white; when any excitement or over effort brings on an attack of nervous headache so severe that it leaves you weak, trembly, shaky and utterly worthless for days, it is a certain indication that the nervous system is shattered—that resistive power is gone—that you need a medicine that will rebuild and re-supply the lost nerve force, that will so strengthen you that you can resist and overcome these terrible seizures. Such a medicine is Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills, a medicine that does not relieve but goes to the root of the trouble and positively cures. Mrs. John Fall, of Fourth St., Toronto, O., says:

"I like Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills because they cured my nervous sick headaches—these headaches used to play me out and leave me weak and nervous, the pain being so severe. My eyes used to get stiff and sore during the attack and the neck so stiff I could hardly turn it. The Nerve Pills, however, proved to be just what I needed, and cured the attacks in a hurry. As a result I feel steady in nerves, physically strong and vigorous, and in every way sound and well. This makes me feel I can't speak too highly of the medicine." 50 cents a box, at dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Portrait and signature of A. W. LAUGH AT STORY

Mining Men Discredit Reported Great Northern Ore Land Sale.

Fail to See Any Object For Steel Corporation.

Every few months the story that the United States Steel corporation is to take over the ore lands of the Great Northern Railway company, bobs up. Each time it grows in size, and it is significant that it always emanates from New York and always comes up at a time when there is some stock market movement that might be benefited by having the story accepted as truth. It is also a feature of the story that each time it comes out it grows in size.

The latest that has been going the rounds is that the Steel corporation is to take the lands from a new company that is to be organized to control them, with a capital of $125,000,000. The royalty basis is rumored to be such that it will pay 8 per cent, or $10,000,000 a year on the capitalization. The story also has it that the corporation would be required to furnish the Great Northern with tonnage upon a sliding scale basis, the amount to increase every year.

Among well informed iron men these rumors never receive any credence or attract little attention because they know that if the Steel corporation was to take over the ore lands of the Great Northern it would be upon no such extravagant basis as is always rumored.

There is no inducement, according to iron men, for the Steel corporation to take over the Great Northern lands except to get the iron ore or the tonnage for its own railroads. The question then is what has the Great Northern to offer in iron ore. An investigation made a few months ago by a man informed in mining affairs disclosed the fact that the great Northern road has not to exceed 35,000,000 tons of ore, at the utmost limit, that is not under contract to some furnace company. The Steel corporation would hardly want to buy ore that is already sold to a competitive concern, so that the only ore it would want would be that 25,000,000 tons.

Now as to the tonnage. James J. Hill wants tonnage for his ore-carrying railroad and is he going to give up the carrying of the ore upon the lands he controls? Not unless he has changed his nature mightily over night and no one suspects that he has.

The only thing, therefore, it is conceded, that the United States Steel corporation could get that would be of value to it would be the ore not under contract, and the undeveloped ore lands. Mining men laugh at the idea of the Steel corporation obligating itself to the extent of $10,000,000 a year to get those.

It would be a pretty good deal for the Great Northern. Last year that road carried a little less than 4,750,000 tons of ore. At the rate of 80 cents a ton that figures up $3,800,000 gross profit. A royalty of 50 cents a ton would be high for the Mesaba range and on that basis the royalty on the ore carried last year would be $2,375,000. The entire sum figures up a trifle more than $6,000,000 and yet Mr. Hill's company is to get $10,000,000 for royalties alone, according to this rumor.

Another view shows up the absurdity of the story even more strikingly. As said before, a royalty of 50 cents a ton would be high for the Mesaba range. Assuming that to be the figure, however, in order to yield Mr. Hill's company an annual revenue of $10,000,000, the United States Steel corporation would have to mine from those lands alone 20,000,000 tons every year. The banner year from the entire Mesaba range thus far has been 14,000,000 tons. Then, too, Mr. Hill's road would have to carry all of the 20,000,000 tons and at 80 cents that would mean $16,000,000 more to be paid to him.

That story may do to stimulate buying interest among bucket shop frequenters, but it deserves no more prominence than that.

Mining men do not for a moment discredit the story that the Great Northern lands may some day pass to the Steel corporation, but their belief is that it will be upon a basis that will yield a fair thing for the Great Northern and a fair thing for the corporation.

FRANCHISE TAX CASE

Argued Before the Supreme Court of the United States.

Washington, April 18.—The argument in the New York franchise tax case before the supreme court of the United States was resumed when the court convened today. William D. Guthrie, continued his presentation of the corporation side of the question. He contended that the law is in contravention of the constitution of the United States in that it impairs the obligation of the contracts under which they acquired and owned the franchises and operates to deny them due process of the law as guaranteed by the federal constitution.

"The subject," he said, "is of general interest in all the states. It is of great concern and interest to many states and to numerous corporations similarly situated that this court shall indicate whether existing contracts granting such franchises are protected against impairment by this new form of subsequent legislation, and whether such legislation must tax all owners of franchises engaged in substantially the same business and under substantially the same conditions with equality so far as practicable."

HAYES BLOCK MAY BE SOLD

The sale of the Hayes block at the southwest corner of Superior street and First avenue east to a trust company of Massachusetts is said to be practically closed through the office of W. M. Prindle & Co. The consideration is not made public.

The Hayes block is one of the oldest and formerly the most pretentious of the business structures in Duluth. It belonged to the estate of Former President Rutherford B. Hayes.

The property has a frontage of 100 feet on Superior and Michigan streets and 115 feet on First avenue east. The Hayes block is a three-story brick structure. The intentions of the new owners is said to be to modernize it to a considerable extent and build on a fifty-foot addition on the west side and

DAMAGES ASKED

Husband Sues Old Folks For Alienating Wife's Affections.

Claims Father-in-Law Exercised Hypnotic Control Over Her.

Charging his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Professor and Mrs. Benjamin Haskins, of 2601 Huron street, with alienating his wife's affections, Prandia Galloway has instituted an action against the old folks in district court for damages in the amount of $5,000.

The papers in the case, which were filed yesterday afternoon, contain some very interesting and unusual charges, the principal one being that Professor Haskins, who is a phrenologist by profession, claims to be a hypnotist, and has exercised undue control over the will and actions of his daughter.

According to the complaint, Galloway, who is a butcher by trade, is 39 years of age and his wife is 33 years old. They were married under the parental roof Oct. 15, 1904, and are alleged to have lived together happily until Jan. 12, 1905. Before marriage Galloway boarded at the Haskins' home.

The son-in-law now charges that immediately after the marriage Haskins made a threat that he would break up their happy home inside of three months and began to wrongfully and maliciously combine and conspire with Mrs. Haskins to alienate the young wife's girlish affections and cause her to desert and abandon him.

It is claimed that Benjamin Haskins pretends to possess certain hypnotic powers by means of which he is able to subject the will of others to his own. Galloway claims that while he has no knowledge on which to found his belief in the occult powers of his father-in-law, he knows that he does exercise great control over the mind and actions of the daughter, Mrs. Galloway, so that she is timid and afraid and moved to tears and shows other nervous manifestations when in her father's presence.

Galloway also alleges that on numerous occasions during the few months he lived with his wife, the Haskins would send after his wife to go to their home and that on her return she would be weeping, nervous and hysterical.

It is alleged that from the date of the marriage Haskins began and continued a systematic course of threats and intimidations directed toward his daughter and calculated to break up the Galloway family circle, but that the marriage relations continued cordial and affectionate up to the final break.

Galloway claims that about Jan. 12 last his wife and himself, following out a plan of action they had previously agreed on, began to pack up and ship their household goods to Greenville, Mich., where the husband's property and business was located. Allegations are made that while Galloway was absent from the house, about an hour at the depot to see about loading and shipping the goods, Mr. and Mrs. Haskins interviewed the wife to such effect that she began an action directed at the railroad company carrying the goods to stop them in transit and prevent their delivery at Greenville. Galloway says he knew nothing of this action until informed by the freight agent, and that when he went to see her and get some information as to the reason, the Haskins family refused him access to his wife, or to have communication with her, threatening bodily harm and prosecution if he persisted. Mrs. Galloway, it is claimed, since this instance has refused to see her husband or to have anything more to do with him.

Galloway claims that he continued on his way to Greenville alone to take up his business, and that after he left Duluth Mr. and Mrs. Haskins compelled their daughter, his wife, to work out as a domestic and turn her wages over to them for their use and enjoyment.

Galloway alleges that the Haskins family is worth at least $5,000, and he wants that amount on account of the "wrongful, malicious and wicked acts of the defendants that have deprived plaintiff of the conjugal affection, society and aid of his wife."

Charles F. Hopkins of this city represents Galloway.

NEVER TIRE OF IT

Duluth People Are Pleased To Show the Gratitude They Feel.

People cured of lame, weak and aching backs, kidney weaknesses and urinary troubles, never tire of letting others know about the remedy that did it—Doan's Kidney Pills. The cures are permanent cures, as people who were cured years ago now testify. Here is a case of the thorough work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Duluth:

J. H. Temlin, lather and contractor, of 112 W. Palmetto street, Duluth Heights, says: "What I said in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills six years ago was not only true, but the cure I described at that time has been permanent, and I am pleased to inform other sufferers of this fact. My case was a severe one, and it clung to me persistently for two years. The backache finally got so bad that I was obliged to lay off from work for days at a time, and I suffered such pain that it hurt to bring the slightest strain on the muscles of the back and loins. The kidney secretions were irregular and I was unable to rest well at night. All these irregularities yielded promptly to the treatment, and the result was a permanent cure."

PROGRESS RAPID

In the Digging of the Big Ditch at Panama.

The Rainy Season Begun and Travel North Increases.

Boston, April 18.—A Panama letter, dated April 5, to the Transcript says: The month of March ended on the Canal Zone with all previous excavation records at Culebra Cut broken. On Saturday, March 23, there were seven modern American steam shovels at work—two 95-ton shovels and five 70-ton shovels, made in Milwaukee. On that day were excavated 6,400 cubic yards of earth and rocks, completing a total excavation for the month of 128,000 cubic yards. The old records of the French canal workers show that in their palmiest days on the Isthmus, with every wheel moving, the highest output was only 25,000 cubic yards in any one month.

This excellent showing so early in the day must certainly be very gratifying to the commission and to the American people, who are paying for the work.

It should also be said that aside from these seven American steam shovels there is not a modern tool or machine in use in the cut. Even the shovels in the hands of the workmen look ready to bend and break at any moment. The engines in work in service hauling the excavated material away from the shovels to spoil banks and filling places are of an old French pattern, uncertain of gauge, very unwieldly on their trucks, stiff and treacherous in operation. Failure of forward trucks to curve frequently causes derailments and consequent delays in serving the shovels. The dump cars are all mounted direct on the journals, without trucks, thus sliding with sprung centers at curves. These also cause frequent derailments. The old French rails are of a light weight chair pattern, high, and narrow at the base, short-spiked on soft ties, and frequently turn over with the minimum of tonnage required for proper service.

Remedies for all these difficulties are considered by the engineers as only a side issue to their other problems of construction. All new bench tracks now being laid are on a five-foot gauge and the old equipment is being changed to correspond as rapidly as possible. American dump cars are badly needed, as are also American locomotives—the latter especially to meet the new demands of the service on the Panama railroad. The railroad is fast becoming overwhelmed by the unusual tonnage with which it is now being taxed on the arrival of every steamer at either the Atlantic or Pacific port. The road will be called upon to handle upwards of 2,000,000 tons of freight a year during the construction of the canal, and that its present equipment is inadequate for even the vanguard of this business goes without saying. The road will have to be entirely rehabilitated and practically reconstructed. The preparatory work of clearing, cutting and filling is now under way for double tracks. Enlargement and the installation of modern machinery is also planned for the car and engine shops at Colon and Bas Matachin. All this, of course, is directly in line with the canal construction, as the greatest demands upon the facilities of the railroad will be in the hauling of men, material and supplies in connection with the principal undertaking.

New steam shovels of the 70-ton type are being shipped to the isthmus as fast as they can be turned out in American shops, and a new one is put into operation every two weeks. Thus it will take five years to install the 120 or 130 steam shovels which it is proposed to use on the work. Even then, with new problems to be met at every slope, bench, level and bend of the canal, full headway in its construction will not have been gained. In a recent interview, Chief Engineer Wallace is quoted as saying that not until the last two years of the ten estimated for the completion of the canal, will the ultimate maximum force and machinery be at work. This means that in eight years there will be crowded between the two slopes of the canal, every available every known American mechanical contrivance of proven worth which can be used in canal construction. The work will be pushed by working a day and a night force just as soon as they are available, for it must be understood that at present the procuring of men for the heavier work is also one of the problems with which the commission has to deal.

Over five hundred laborers have arrived this week fom Jamaica, Porto Rico and Barbados. Large consignments are finding their way to the isthmus every few days. There are now 4,500 laborers at work along the canal.

Frank B. Maltby, formerly of the Mississippi River commission has just arrived at Colon to occupy the position of division engineer. His will be the problem of dredging at the Atlantic entrance of the canal, and up the canal possibly as far as Bohio, to which point it is thought the excavations may be made by dredging more economically than by dry digging. Six of eight thousand feet of breakwater will be necessary at Colon, and material is now being hauled from Culebra cut for the bottom work below wave action. Two of the old French dredges will be at work within a few weeks to deepen water at and the approaches to the commission's docks at Cristobal. Piling for two additional docks is also being driven, but work here, as at every point on the canal, is being delayed by lack of material. New dock crews have been set to work at La Boca, the Pacific terminus of the canal, and 200 feet of newly constructed dockage is now practically completed. Trackage and yard facilities at La Boca are also being enlarged.

The steamer "Veronique," the ill-starred bearer of Lord Fitzwilliams and his fortune seekers, is now lying at La Boca, for sale at $40,000.

The rainy season has fairly begun. Light showers are now falling daily, and the pre-rainy season heat is having its depressing effect, as the over-crowded condition of departing New York steamers shows. The business of the New York line is further enhanced by the action of New Orleans in quarantining against Panama. Resignations among American employes from the states have amounted to 20 per cent in the month of March. Yellow fever, however, is practically nil. There were but two actual cases of yellow fever among the American employes during March. The other cases reported amounted to nothing but suspects with a headache. There are only three cases in bed at the Ancon hospital at this writing. One of these was taken from the canal building last week. The other two are negroes. This is the busy season of the mosquitoes, and in spite of constant fumigation throughout the city, these creatures of evil intent are thriving immensely.

Mrs. Wallace did not accompany her husband to the states, she preferred the heat and mosquitoes of Panama to the April chill of New York.

MOTHERS ARE ARRESTED

The troubles of the truant officer are multiplying as the spring advances and the weather becomes warmer, and he is experiencing more and more trouble in keeping the boys who are nrmally inclined to truancy, in school.

In a number of cases the parents of the boys are inclined to side with the boys to resist the efforts of the teachers and the truant officer to keep the boys off the streets and in school during school hours. Yesterday an example was made of two women who have persistently refused to send their children to school, and a warrant was sworn out for their arrest on the charge of illegally keeping a minor child out of school. One of them was brought into court yesterday and one this morning. Both pleaded guilty and were released with a warning under a suspended sentence by Judge Windom.

OBJECT TO RATE

Misunderstanding Arises as to Northern Pacific Switching Rate.

Claimed to Be Not In Accordance With the Agreement.

"Between industries, 15 cents per ton; minimum charge, $3 per car."

These words and figures, appearing as above in the new switching tariff sheet as issued by the Northern Pacific Railway company, to govern switching rates in Duluth and between Duluth and certain outlying points beyond the local yard limits, are causing some complaint from local shippers. All troubles over switching rates were supposed to have been amicably adjusted at a recent meeting of shippers and railroad officials, but this new misunderstanding has arisen.

The claim is made that the company, in inserting the clause relative to a tonnage charge, has acted contrary to the agreement made with the committee of local shippers. The understanding between the committee and officials was supposed to be that there was to be no tonnage charge whatever in the new tariff sheet, which was gotten out as a result of protests registered by Duluth against a proposed raise in the switching rates.

The railroad committee of the Commercial club and a special committee of shippers held two meetings with Northern Pacific representatives relative to the matter, and at the last an agreement, which appeared to be satisfactory to all concerned, was arrived at. It provided for a reduction rather than a raise in the rates, and the attempt of the company to place its rates on a tonnage basis, which would have been a virtual raise, was believed to have been defeated, for, it is claimed, there was to be no provision in the new tariff sheet for any of the charges to be made on a tonnage basis.

Another meeting of the special committee of shippers will be called in the near future to determine what stand the shippers will take regarding the objectionable clause in the new tariff sheet.

The shippers committee, of which C. L. Twohy is chairman, is made up as follows: Z. D. Scott, W. C. Mitchell, J. W. Bailey, C. F. Rowe, F. O. Davidson, E M. Ferguson, C. A. Lamb, C. P. Frank, C. T Fitzimmons and L. R. Martin.

Local officials of the Northern Pacific assert that the tariff sheet is in strict accordance with the agreement as arrived at between the shippers and railroad representatives at the last meeting. Members of the committee say the sheet is all right, with the exception of the clauses relating to a tonnage charge.

That part of the tariff sheet relating to the tonnage charge in the different districts reads as follows:

"District No. 1—Between industries, 15 cents per net ton; minimum charge, $3 per car.

"District No. 2—Between industries, 15 cents per net ton; minimum charge, $3 per car.

"District No. 3—Between industries, 25 cents per net ton; minimum charge of $5 per car. Fond du Lac to West Duluth and Duluth, lumber, lath, shingles and ties, 3 cents per 100 pounds; minimum charge, $8 per car.

"Switching rates between local industries in different districts as described:

"Between District No. 1 and District No. 2, 15 cents per net ton; minimum charge, $3 per car.

"Between District No. 1 and District No. 3, 25 cents per net ton; minimum charge $5 per car, except on lumber, lath, shingles and ties from District No. 3.

"Between District No. 2 and District No. 3, 25 cents per net ton; minimum charge, $5 per car."

District No. 1 includes industries located on tracks situated between the Duluth & Iron Range connection and Thirty-seventh avenue west, including Boston Coal Dock and Wharf company and H. R. Elliott & Co.

District No. 2 includes industries located on tracks west of Thirty-seventh avenue west, to and including the Zenith furnace terminals.

District No. 3 includes industries located on tracks west of the Zenith furnace and docks, including New Duluth and Fond du Lac.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Calumet—Harold Swanson accidentally shot and killed his playmate, John Johnson, aged 14. The boys were playing with a 22-rifle and did not know it was loaded.

Bessemer—The proposition to issue $30,000 in bonds for the erection of a new high school building was voted down at a special meeting of taxpayers.

Crystal Falls—W. D. Hill has been reengaged as superintendent of schools at Crystal Falls at an increase in salary of $50 per year. He will draw $1,000 per annum.

Menominee—The estimated amount of logs coming down the Menominee river this year is 75,451,000 feet; pulpwood, 27,638,000 feet, and ties, posts and poles 5,422,000. This is below the average.

Iron Mountain — Joe Miller, an Iron Mountain boy, will play ball with the Oskaloosa, team of the Iowa league this season. He is a pitcher of no mean ability and it is believed that next year will see him in still faster company.

Sault Ste. Marie—A fire engine has been installed at Fort Brady, at the Soo. It has a capacity of 250 gallons per minute. When tested water was thrown about eighty feet into the air. Two ⅝-inch streams can be thrown at once or larger single streams as desired.

Escanaba—Word has been received in Escanaba that Henry Farley, a cook employed in one of the lumber camps of Lewis Van Winkle, near Vans Harbor dropped dead while at work. No details of the death have been received, but it is said that Farley showed no signs of illness, and death is thought to have resulted from a chronic disease of the heart.

Theodore Durendahl, an Escanaba painter, fell thirty feet from the roof of a house on which he was working and escaped with two broken ribs and a bad shaking up. In his fall Durendahl struck a porch and bounded to the ground. He was unconscious when picked up, but his injuries will not compel his absence from work for more than a few days.

While working for the Ford River Lumber company on the Ten Mile creek drive, O. La Pointe, brother of Joe La Pointe of Escanaba, was drowned the latter part of last week. La Pointe was a new man on the drive, and was drowned two hours after beginning work. The accident is the first of the kind reported this spring, although there have been numerous unfounded

Yesterday afternoon the last regular meeting of the Matinee Musicale was held at Steinway hall, and the program was one of the most delightful that has been presented to the society. Emily Ellis Woodward and Mrs. Stephen H. Jones were in charge of the program, and "Midsummer Night's Dream" was the subject for the afternoon. The lines of the play were read by Miss Wylie, and the dainty charm of the plot, with the airy and amusing tricks of the fairies, were charmingly brought out in the selections of the play read.

The incidental music, the themes that would accompany the entrance or departure of the Queen Titania or Oberon, were played by Mrs. J. A. Stephenson. The music presented was, of course, Mendelssohn's compositions, that so exquisitely supplement this fanciful comedy. The "Fairies March" was played with delicay of touch and fine interpretation by Mrs. Stephenson, and the Nocturne, after the third act, was played by Miss Lynn at the organ. The well known wedding march was played at two pianos by Mrs. Stephenson, Mrs. D. H. Day, Miss Holmes and Miss Simonds. The overture was played by Mrs. Stephenson and Miss Simonds. "Ye Spotted Snakes" was sung by a chorus, consisting of Mrs. Leo Ball, Mrs. James McAuliffe, Emily Ellis Woodward, Miss Bradshaw, Miss Ruth Markell, Miss Mary Morris and Mrs. W. H. Stephen, under Mrs. Woodward's direction. Solos were given in this number by Mrs. Leo Ball and Miss Bradshaw. Another chorus, "Through the House," with a solo by Mrs. Ball, was also delightfully sung. The afternoon was a most delightful one.

The report of the treasurer was read by Miss Holmes, and during the past year $900 have been taken in through membership. The members are elated at this growth in the society, and hope that the club may continue in its success next year.

At the business meeting following the program the following officers were elected for next year: President, Mrs. C. B. Miller; vice president, Mrs. J. N. McKindley; recording secretary, Miss Bernice Crowley; corresponding secretary, Miss Carlotta Simonds; treasurer, Miss Winnifred Holmes, and the three directors elected were: Mrs. J. K. Brearley, Mrs. Stella Prince Stocker and Mary Syer Bradshaw.

Tomorrow afternoon the annual meeting of the Daughters of Liberty chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will meet with Mrs. N. J. Upham of 1523 East Third street. The election of officers for the year will take place. Mrs. Page Morris has been regent during the past year. Following the election an informal musical program will be given. The chapter has passed a most successful and interesting year. One hundred dollars have been given to Continental hall, which is being erected by the Daughters of the country, in addition to the funds which are contributed for the maintenance of the room at St. Luke's hospital, for which the members of this chapter make themselves responsible each year.

CLEARED THE AIR.

Stenographer and Employer Reach Understanding.

She had been in the office two months and was beginning to feel aggrieved. She had learned to take the normal number of words per minute, and gotten into the habit of arriving on time in the morning and had quite recovered from any doubts she may have had of her own importance at the start. She even did her hair in a dip pompadour and had bought a crocheted sweater; and she thought she ought to have her salary raised. She waited a while for this to occur, and then she went to the boss with a calm, patient smile and suggested the thing to him. But he merely went on writing letters and vouchsafed her only a mild grunt, says an exchange.

She waited a week longer, during which the dip in her pompadour grew more pronounced and she acquired a pair of gold-rimmed glasses. Then one evening she bought a newspaper, went over the advertisements and sat down determinedly to answer two of them. Both advertisers stated that they wanted a stenographer of some experience, intelligence and capability, and named a box number. This is what she wrote to each of them:

"Dear Sir—In reply to your advertisement, I would like to state that I am a young lady of refined manners and good appearance. Have been a stenographer for some time and am now employed in the office of Mr. John Brown.

'I wish to change my position, as I do not feel that I am fairly treated where I am, having to work from 8 until 6, with no holidays and no possible chance of a raise in pay. My employer seems to think that a stenographer is a mere machine. He is a mean man, and I can no longer stay in such a place. Besides he does not regard the presence of ladies, sits around in his shirt sleeves and uses the cuspidor very frequently. He is so engrossed with himself that he never addresses a smile or a kind word to anybody.

"I have been working in this place two months at a salary of $8 a week, and even now I can't get a raise. So I am going to make a change, and if you have anything better than this to offer me I would appreciate an answer."

She signed the letters, addressed them to the enigmatic box number mentioned in the advertisement, and went to sleep feeling that she would now vindicate herself.

That was Saturday night. On Monday morning she presented herself at the office as usual, feeling that she was hiding a secret in her bosom and congratulating herself on the surprise that she had in store for the boss. Pretty soon he arrived, gave her a casual nod, and began opening his mail and arranging the letters carefully into separate piles. Suddenly he sat up perfectly straight, holding a sheet of note paper before him. He looked at the paper as though he could not believe his eyes. Then he broke into a loud, rude, boisterous laugh.

"Miss Smith," he called, "will you take dictation, please? Yes, over here. Now take this: 'Miss Smith Stenographer, No. 27 Blank Street, Harlem—' Yes, that's right," he assured her as she glanced up at him in surprise.

"Bu—but you must be mistaken. That's my—"

"Take dictation, please. Now this:

"'We have your two favors of Saturday, the 9th, and appreciate your position.

"'We, too, have been thinking of making a change, because our present stenographer, while of good appearance, actually pretty, in fact, is so conscious of her own importance that she is inattentive to business. When she came to us she was perfectly green. She has been with us two months and, at our expense, has learned her business. Now, at the end of this time, she wants us to raise her salary and is constantly trying to impress upon us our good fortune in having her here.

"'We regret that we, too, work in our shirt sleeves and use the cuspidor frequently, but will say that we shall try to control the latter habit if you decide to accept the position here and that we shall certainly never fail to smile when we look at you. Very sincerely yours.' That will do, I think."

And now that they understand each other perfectly, they are getting along famously.

Nothing to Do But Eat.

New York Sun: "If I stay in this city I shall be a dyspeptic or ostrasized from society," said a bright little bride the other day who had recently exchanged a quiet home for existence in a fashionable uptown boarding house. "It is a matter of eating all the time or being unsociable. From 3 o'clock in the afternoon until late bedtime there is a round of entertaining and being entertained. There are afternoon visits, with their inevitable cup of tea (I always hated tea), afternoon teas, before the matinee lemonades and ice cream sodas, during the matinee bonbonnieres, and after the matinee tea, ice or a 'little bite.' Then comes the seven-course dinner and all sorts and kinds of late suppers, formal and informal. There is no rest from it. If one stays at home for a quiet afternoon one of the ladies in the house is sure to drop in with: 'I'm having a friend or two for a little tea, drinking ; won't you join us?' Of course I have my own tea and coffee and cocoa outfits and return favors—what else can I do? Breaking bread together as a symbol of friendliness is a good deal over done in this town of yours."

A DAY AFIELD

By Belle Maniates.

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Everything was yellow and bursting with the full glory of harvest time, at Poplar farm. Grace Glidden, a young artist from the city who was spending the summer in the country, was in an ecstatic state of artistic inspiration. She had made a few delicate sketches during her visit—a bit of the river back of the farm, a clump of olive-hued willows, a piece of the orchard with a yellow haze of sunset and a surreptitious drawing of the "help" feeding the chickens, but now she felt she must do her piece de resistence.

Farmer Ludden had promised to send one of the hands up from the fields to transport her easel, brush and colors to the scene of action, and she stood watching him as he came down the lane. Her artist's eye noted his careless grace and easy stride.

"Why how do you do, Mr. Williams. Let me make you acquainted with Miss Glidden; Miss Glidden, Mr. Williams," said Mrs. Ludden. "I came up to carry your artist materials down to the meadow, Miss Glidden," he said, speaking easily and in a deep, rich voice. "Are you going to paint a harvest scene?"

"Yes, maybe I'll paint the fields dotted with haystacks and a young mower in the foreground sharpening his scythe," she said smilingly.

"They don't use scythes now," he protested. "It's all done by machinery-mowers, tedders, hayloaders and horseforks."

"What a pity!" she lamented, "that progress and cultivation should take the romance and poetry out of everything. I read a poem not long ago about 'mowers brown,' and I am sure they were swinging scythes."

"Poets' license! But a field of windrows and the farmers stacking hay might make a pretty picture."

Grace didn't suppose that farmers talked in this style, but she was learning not to be surprised at a great many things this summer. The walk to the meadows a mile away was pleasantly pursued in company with this appreciative and responsive companion. When they arrived at the busy fields, Grace was enchanted with the world of beauty. All the breezes were permeated with the fragrance of new-mown timothy and clover as the mowing machine smashed into the pink- created sea of green in lush meadows, over fair uplands and rolling lowlands.

No one returned to the house for the midday meal, but 'neath the canopy of a benignant, spreading elm they partook of the substantial contents of their baskets. Grace noted with amusement the similarity of their luncheons—thick slices of generously spread bread, quarter sections of pie, pie, twisted doughnuts, thick, triangular-shaped pieces of yellow cake and corpulent pickles—all of which were washed down half-famished throats by copious draughts of cider. After dinner, the men were again hard at work laying low the glory of the fields.

"What a pity!" sighed Grace, looking regretfully at the close cropped meadows.

"Oh, there will be a resurrection!" laughed her meaning escort.

distant swale and the busy mowers afield inspired Grace to set up her easel under the inviting elm. Through the long afternoon of dazzling heat and light she sketched the beauty about her while young Williams hovered near with deep interest in her work. Grace wondered that he was not reprimanded by Farmer Ludden, who had the reputation of being able to get more work out of his help than any other farmer in the county, but he seemed to utterly ignore this strapping youth.

About 5 o'clock Grace returned to the house, and young Williams again was her escort.

"I am afraid, Mr. Williams," she remarked apprehensively, "that Farmer Ludden won't pay you for a full day's work."

He laughed carelessly.

"I am working out whmat I owe him," he replied.

Prompt to the hour, the men came trooping in from the meadow—a tired, hungry, good-natured, coatless, dust-covered lot. Their toilet for supper consisted of a soap lathering of face and hands and a plastering of hair. They seated themselves with bustle and clamor, attacking their food with avidity and a knife and fork stunt of phenomenal dexterity.

Steaming hot potatoes were tossed down longing throats with agility; bread sopped in milk gravy quickly followed by now and then a generous mouthful of crisp salt pork; hot corn cake proved popular and baking powder biscuits were swallowed as so many capsules. There were also flashlight disappearances of little accessories like sweet pickles, honey, crullers and blackberry pie, attended by a constant irrigation of green tea.

Grace noted with an indefinable, unconscious thrill of pleasure that the table manners of young Williams were perfect.

"I suppose you won't have much to do after you get through mowing," she ventured in remark to the lean, lank farmer who sat next to her with his fingers wound about his fork as if it were a piccolo.

He paused in the act of conveying a knife blade of pie to his mouth, and looked at her with comical seriousness.

"Wal, not so dern much. Jest callate this month to clear off the fust crops, shoke the weeds, plant stock crops, sow buckwheat, thresh winter wheat, bush beans, harvest potatoes and a few other things that I don't just seem to reckiect now."

The general laugh that followed did not abash her in the last.

"If you do all that this month," she said sagaciously, "you will have to work faster than you did today. I made a sketch of you standing knee deep in clover with your hands in your pockets."

A still louder laugh followed this thrust, and the serious eyes of young Williams danced in mirth. Zed Lowe was noted for shirking.

"Guess 'twant me!" he grinned, "must have been some other feller."

"I will prove it!" she declared, jumping from the table and going into the next room. When she returned she held aloft by the extreme edge her sketch of a half-shorn meadow. Zed, lounging between windrows, was an imposing picture. Forks and knives suspended operations for an inspection of the sketch which brought forth a rousing laugh, for the likeness was close-enough to admit of no controversy.

"You know how to paint fields all right," commented one critic.

"Wall I guess I kin hear the bees a hummin'!" approved another.

Supper dispatched, the men started for their respective homes.

Williams lingered. "There's a lovely idea for a picture down near where I live," he said to Grace. "Can't you drive home with me now and see it?"

"What, now? It's getting late," she replied hesitatingly.

"Sho!" said Farmer Ludden. "It's long days now, and he drives like the wind."

Thus urged, Grace consented, and the harvest hand soon drove up to the side porch with a neat trap and shining black horse, whose light feet skimmed the ground as they drove down the country road.

"Haven't we come a good stretch?" asked Grace suddenly.

"Eight miles," he laughed.

Just then a turn in the road brought them in sight of a beautiful modern villa set well back from the street with a slope of green lawn and hedged driveway in front.

"What a lovely place!" she cried. "To whom does it belong?"

"To me," he replied simply.

She thought he was jesting until he drove up to the front entrance and a man came and stood respectfully at the horse's head. At the same instant, a white-aproned maid came out of the door.

"Fannie," asked Williams, "is my mother in?"

"No, sir," was the reply. "She has gone for a drive."

"We will drive a little longer, then," he said to Grace, "and return. She will want to meet you."

Grace was silent until they were in the road again.

"I thought," she said with a little laugh, "that you were in truth a harvest hand—until now."

He laughed delightedly.

"I know you did. I was today. You see, Farmer Ludden was very good to us one day last harvest when a storm was coming up, and we could not get help. He was short a hand this year and I felt that I must return the compliment. I don't think he found me a harvest way, so he sent me up after you in order to dispense with my services.

STRIKERS HELD BACK BY MEN WITH RIFLES

Supt. Peacock and Eight Men at Shenango Repulsed Them.

Chased Away From Myers Mine By the Sheriff's Deputies.

Chisholm, Minn., April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The striking miners here today met with some opposition that they were not courageous enough to meet. At the Shenango mine they were twice held back by Supt. Peacock and eight men armed with rifles, and at the Myers they ran up against the sheriff's deputies, who chased them away.

The Steel corporation is doing very little work at its mines in this vicinity. The Chisholm and Glen mines, with the outbuildings, are boarded up. At the Drake & Stratton Leonard mine, no attempt is being made to carry on the stripping operations, but men are working at the mine proper under an armed guard. Strippers are working at the Wallace and at the Pilisbury men are doing stripping work guarded by men with guns.

Early this morning there was a large mass meeting of strikers at Finn hall in Chisholm.

Immediately after the meeting 200 men started out and went to the Shenango mine. This was between 8 and 9 o'clock. They found the property guarded by Supt. D. C. Peacock and eight armed men. Mr. Peacock, as leader of the little band, defied the strikers to set foot on the premises, and succeeded in standing off the crowd of 200.

Frightened away from here, the strikers proceeded to the Croxton mine, operated by Capt. Sellwood of Duluth and succeeded in tieing up operations, as the management was unprepared for them.

Elated at their victory here, they decided to return to the Shenango, and did so, but again were driven away by the superintendent and his armed men.

Next they went to the Myers mine. By this time the sheriff's deputies had heard of the disturbance and had arrived on the scene. They were armed and soon succeeded in driving the strikers away from the Myers.

The crowd then marched to the depot, followed by the deputies, who seemed determined that no further disturbance should be created by the miners. According to the last report there is a big crowd about the depot, with a number of deputies on guard, fully armed. The deputies and the strikers have not yet clashed.

At the Monroe all is quiet. The strippers at the Monroe are not working. The Chisholm mine is guarded by a number of extra policemen. At Buhl the trouble has subsided and the mines are working.

YELLOW MOTH PATCHES.

Why is it that women, and young women at that, in every other respect beautiful, will go through life with the horrible disfigurement of moth patches. Can it be that they do not know that Beecham's Pills will in every case put the liver in thorough working order, and make the skin as clear and rosy as the most exacting whim of any woman could wish? Beecham's Pills are a boon to women; they remove all obstructions and keep the delicate organism of the body in such perfect condition that the woman who uses them faithfully is the envied of her sex, a perfect specimen of healthy, vigorous womanhood. Beecham's Pills are a quarter a box at all drug stores.

COSTLY TOWELS.

Towels are to be had these days at the cost of a few cents by the woman who keeps an eye open for bargain sales and on the other hand $12, $14 and even $16 are asked for some modern productions, says the Brooklyn Eagle. To be sure these are what might be termed high art towels and much too fine for ordinary use outside the household of a millionaire. They are very handsome, although the practical woman will be likely to say that Cluny lace and Italian filet seem somewhat extravagant decorations for towels.

An exceedingly fine quality of huckaback and which lasts for years is used for many of the finest towels. It is with this material that Italian filet is employed to give the decorative touch. Towels of this kind sell in New York for $12.50 each. The approved dimensions for towels are 27x48 inches and all the up-to-date productions in huckaback, momie cloth and damask are of this length and width.

Momie cloth is much in demand for fine towels and Cluny lace is used as insertion. One point should be noted with regard to these towels, namely, that the lace band is used on one end only. Women who are handy with the needle find it profitable to buy momie cloth by the yard and fashion their own towels, thereby considerably reducing the cost, for towels such as these belong in the expensive group.

The newest styles in towels are those with the edge of Italian cut work and others bordered with a deep fringe of Italian workmanship made from mercerized thread. It is these fringed towels that bring $16 apiece in the New York shops, the fine quality of the toweling and the skillful way in which the lace-like fringe is executed accounting for the high price.

Fine Irish linen towels wit hinsertion of old Irish lace find many admirers, although in the opinion of an expert they are not so serviceable as the lace trimmed huckaback and momie cloth. They are beautiful, however, and the woman who pins her faith to linen towels is pretty certain to have some samples of Irish manufacture in her linen chest.

Last, but not least, come the damask towels, with daisy wreath, a new design, as the favorite pattern this spring. A dozen damask towels of fine quality with the daisy wreath or some other preferred pattern, cost $24, and they are hemstitched monogramed and scalloped at the will of the purchaser.

Shops are fascinating places in this age, and the visitor to the line shop or department will find it well worth her while to look up the latest in towels.

THE WICHITA GOLD FIELD.

The Mineral Kingdom, a trade paper at Lawton, still cloims that there is plenty of gold in the Wichita mountains. In describing that region the paper says:

"Our mineral zone is very large, comparatively speaking, covering an area about sixty miles in length by twenty miles in width, the same being traversed by hundreds of veins which are well defined, showing good walls almost on the surface, and, strange to say, many of these veins show remarkable values in gold and silver at a depth that would be considered impossible in other mining countries. Assays have been made by men of reputation and ability which have shown values which will pay the operator handsomely for his expenses of mining and milling, and there is now a shipment of ore on the road East to be treated at a reputable smelter, the separated values to be returned here as proof of the existing values, and one property which has come to our notice, the ore is now being sacked for shipment, and in our judgment this material will pay a profit sufficient to enable the operators to continue their development with no capital outside of the returns obtained from the shipment of their ore.

"There are many properties in these mountains which are worthy of especial mention, but space forbids except in a general way, and they are being developed as rapidly as the capital of the owners will permit, and the efforts of these are being rewarded. It was said by would-be learned men that values were not to be found in these mountains, but it has now been proven that either they were not honest in their belief, being actuated by some selfish motive, or they had very little knowledge of the characteristics which go to make a rich mineral district."

FRANCE'S GREAT SCULPTOR.

Rodin is 64 years of age. For years poverty dogged him, says T. P's Weekly. He earned his living by doing any kind of caving work that came to his hand. Later he "devilled" for the sculpter Carrier Belleuse. When the Franco-German war broke out he served as a corporal in the national guard. After 1881 he produced many of those beautiful mystical things where he has pushed sculpture to its uttermost limit, such delicate and subtile works as "Twilight Descending Into Night," "The Eternal Idol" and "The Fall of Icarus."

He lives simply, rarely going into society, devoted to his art. The best where he is happiest, is his great light studio at Meudon, a suburb of Paris. The studio stands upon a hill overlooking the Seine, and only those who have visited this sun-bathed studio and seen the sculptures—some hardly begun, some half finished, some only needing the finishing touches—which crowned it, can realize the achievements of Rodin.

He also works in his great official studios in the Rue do l'Universite in Paris, where he is at home on Saturday afternoons. If you have the privilege of entry you find a smple, unaffected elderly man, with a powerful face and a beard turning gray. This "force" in modern European sculpture is one of the simplest and kindest of men. It has been said of Rodin that he talks about art as a farmer talks about crops.

MANY PIPE DREAMS

Railroad Official From Hibbing Says People Are Excited.

Claims Sheriff Bates' Force Is Far Too Small.

"Everybody has his 'pipe' going at Hibbing," declared a railroad official, who has been spending several days in the trouble district looking after the company's interests.

"One man hears that the strikers might make trouble at a certain mine. The second man tells the third man that the strikers are going to make trouble, and, to make it a little stronger, he sets the date when the trouble is to start. So the story grows until it has reached the collossal proportions of a riot alleged to have already taken place, by the time it has reached Sheriff Bates' ears.

"The trouble is that everybody is excited and on the lookout for trouble so that every little act is magnified, whether harmless or not, and is made to appear apprehensive.

"It is the same way about most of the meetings you hear about being held. The Finns are known to be a people who are great for the meeting idea. There is scarcely a time that you cannot see from six to a dozen men lounging about in front of the hall. One Hibbingite passes by and sees them and he tells the first citizen he meets that there was a big meeting down at the Finlander hall. The second man tells a third man about it and when asked what was done will reply: 'Well, I can't say positively, but a friend of mine was told so confidentially by aonther friend, who heard from a friend of his, that the strikers are going to such and such a mine at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.'

"The air at Hibbing is full of 'I heard they will do so and so' reports, and there are mighty few reports where you can pin a man down to say that he knows positively what he is talking about.

"The situation is this at Hibbing. The Finns who are out on a strike are a peculiar class of fellows. You can't get any of them to tell what they are striking for. They simply have quit working and they have got it in their heads that as long as they are not working nobody else should be working and so they begin going from mine to mine.

"It would take a regiment of men to guard all the mines and prevent trouble. Sheriff Bates is doing good work with his handful of deputies, but to get around to the places where he is sometimes wanted right away would require a swift flying machine.

"Take for instance the other day. Nobody had any notice that the strikers were going to Chisholm. They commenced to drop out of town by twos and threes, some going in one direction and some in another. After a while the sheriff got a report that a crowd of 150 or 200 man had gathered at some place to make trouble. The sheriff cannot anticipate this scattering and subsequent gathering movement and, with the small force of men he has at his disposal, he cannot guard every property. The strikers are not going to look for trouble at any locations where they know the officers are waiting for them. Instead they are quietly selecting the unguarded locations and sneak out there in small numbers until they have a crowd before the officials are aware what is going on."

PATTERSON TRAIL IS ON

Former Actress to Face a Jury For the Third Time.

New York, April 18.—After many annoying delays, Nan Patterson today for the third time went into court to stand trial on an indictment charging her with the murder of Caesar Young, a wealthy bookmaker. The first two juries which the young woman faced were in the supreme court, but the present trial is taking place in the court of general sessions before Recorder Goff. It was expected that the case would be called promptly upon the opening of court today, but an unfinished burglary trial had the right of way and the opening was delayed for several hours.

As soon as the burglary case was disposed of Miss Patterson was brought into court and her trial began. The court room was filled with a special panel of 200 talesmen. Counsel for each side was allowed thirty challenges.

District Attorney Jerome by affidavit, made the open charge before Judge Foster in the court of general sessions today, that J. Morgan Smith and his wife Julia for nine months were kept out of the jurisdiction of the New York courts, by advice of counsel. Mr. Jerome said he had this information in writing.

The charge made by Mr. Jerome came out in a motion before Judge Foster to inspect the minutes of the grand jury on the conspiracy indictment against the Smiths. Lawyer Limburger, counsel for the Smiths was present and argued that the defendants had not had the advantage of a police court examination to which they were entitled under the law.

RAILROAD RATE BILL

Passed By Wisconsin Assembly Without Debate.

Madison, Wis., April 18.—Without debate, by a vote of 75 to 12, the Wisconsin assembly today passed the administration railroad rate commission bill. The assembly concurred in senate bills prohibiting the sale of giant fire crackers and forbidding spring shooting. The Social Democrat resolution for an old age pension fund was killed.

WITNESS IN "BEEF TRUST" CASE MISSING.

Chicago, April 18.—A sensation was caused among federal officials interested in the investigation of the alleged Beef trust today when it developed that a much sought for witness had left Chicago. The witness is Carl Levi, head of the Berthold & Levi Sausage Casing company of this city. A servant at the home of Mr. Levi said today that he left Chicago more than a week ago and that a short time later his wife followed. No information is given as to their detination.

Insures for $200,000.

The largest single life policy ever written on an individual in the state of Michigan, namely one for $200,000, has just been issued by the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York, to Hamilton Carhartt, the well-known manufacturer and art connoisseur of Detroit.

CHOICE OF PRESIDENT

For D. A. R. the Most Absorbing Topic of the Day.

Washington, April 18.—Interest of the Daughters of the American Revolution today centered in the preliminary campaign of the candidates for president general of the society. Mrs. George M. Sternberg of this city, Mrs. Donald McLean of New York, and Mrs. Charles Warren Lippitt of Rhode Island, are the active candidates. The friends and adherents of each are leaving nothing undone that might promote the interests of their favorites.

The election will take place tomorrow morning, but it is not possible at this time definitely to forecast the result. Active work in support of the candidates was the absorbing feature of the sessions of the congress yesterday. Friends of the several candidates worked throughout the day and evening among the delegates securing pledges of support, and meeting any arguments that were advanced against the availibility of their candidates.

Completion of Continental Memorial hall is figuring prominently in the campaign, the desire of all the daughters being to elect a woman as the head of the organization who will carry forward to the best advantage the work begun so auspiciously by Mrs. Fairbanks, the present presiding general.

ANTI-CIGARETTE LAW

Enforced For the First Time In Indiana.

Muncie, Ind., April 18.—Chester Bell, a young man, was fined $25 and costs today in the police court on the charge of having cigarette papers in his pocket. This is the first penalty assessed in Indiana since the anti-cigarette bill became a law. Bell said he had never smoked a cigarette in his life. He was arrested on another charge, and on being searched the papers were found in his pockets. Judge White, who was on the bench, warned Bell that a repetition would call for a fine of $100.

NO WORD FROM PRESIDENT FOR OVER THREE DAYS.

Glenwood Springs, Col., April 18.—Three days have passed since President Roosevelt started on his bear hunt and no word has been received by Secretary Loeb. This is not considered strange, for the president announced, before farewells were said at Newcastle, that he would not be in a hurry to communicate unless he had something of importance to send out. Mr. Loeb said today that the courier from the camp will not arrive until tomorrow.

EQUITABLE AGENTS

Make Formal Protest Against Strife In the Society.

President Alexander Indorsed and Mutualization Plan Favored.

New York, April 18.—More than 600 general agents of the Equitable Life Assurance society, representing nearly every section of the country, met here today to make formal protest against the strife within the organization which has engaged public attention for months. While resolutions expressing confidence in President Alexander were adopted at a causus attended by about 180 of the agents, it was said today that the alignment thereby forcasted might not develop any serious features. The chief desire of the agents, it was said today was to bring about an immediate cessation of the present trouble.

When Vice President Hyde arrived at the Hotel Savoy, he was greeted by five or six agents who accompanied him to the elevator, and took him to the room where the meeting was to be held. President Alexander came in five minutes later. He was surrounded by more than a score of agents. When the session began everybody excepting the properly identified agents were excluded from the floor.

Just before going into the meeting Mr. Hyde said in reply to questions:

"I have been looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to this meeting, and will have something to say. I cannot tell what it is, because it will depend on what develops. No, I do not know what the program is. You will have to ask Mr. Alexander about it."

Soon after the meeting opened, Mr. Alexander made an address, and was followed by Mr. Hyde and Mr. Tarbell. The talk of all was confined strictly to the admonition that all concerned should work from now on for the best interests of the society. When Mr. Hyde arose to speak he was hissed by a general agent of the society, who was said to be the leader in last night's movement to engage Joseph H. Choate, now American ambassador to Great Britain, to conduct an investigation on behalf of the agents into the society's affairs. Mr. Hyde remarked that any such reception was really a compliment, and proceeded with what he had to say undisturbed by the agents. He said that if he had done anything wrong, financially or otherwise, or had participated in any wrong-doing by others, he should be "knock out," and if any other officers of the society had been guilty of wrong-doing, they should be "thrown into the street."

After the speeches by the officers of the company, the agents voted a recess. After the recess they adopted a report submitted by a committee on resolutions, endorsing President Alexander and favoring the mutualization of the society.

Wonders of the New Devices For Subduing Microbes.

Is the sanitary millneum at hand? You who have inveighed against the disease breeding microbes of great cities, who have seen death skurrying in every eddying whirlwind of dust in the gutter corners, who sniff daintily and fearsomely least the swiftly moving bacteria in the atmosphere of surface, elevated, underground and steam railway cars enter your lungs and bring you to a bed of illness or perhaps to an untimely grave, who even see the danger signals in each swish of the housemaid's duster, and believe of a verity that safety dwells not in any spot on the face of the earth, cheer up. Perhaps the beginning of a promised reform in cleanliness as well as godliness is to become universal and spread over the land from one end to the other, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

In the vision of this reform wave one may see streets—even Brooklyn and Manhattan streets—kept as neat as the proverbial kitchen floor of the New England housewife; he may see the outside of buildings as immaculate as the walls of the houses in Spotless Town, and as for the inside—they may be so spick and span that it will be a sanitary joy to enter their refreshing precincts.

Within the last year or two some extraordinary efforts have been made to bring many of the cities in this country into a better state of sanitation than has even before been deemed necessary. This effort has been recognized by inventors of new sanitary appliances, and, singularly enough, three recent inventions—all on different lines, yet all working toward the same end—have made their appearance. One of these inventions purports to clean the streets effectively and rapidly without raising any dust whatever. Another is used to clean the interior of cars and buildings, and the third is said to keep the exterior of buildings free from all dust and grime of the years, restoring the stone to its original color. With these three apparatuses in full operation there is a promise of cities becoming so clean and so sanitary that they will be a delight to live in.

One of the first who is ready to hail with delight this promised sanitary millennium is Dr. Darlington, commissioner of health. Dr. Darlington's crusade against the spitters has been so marked and vigorous that he is looked upon as the leader of the movement for a new order of things in the way of a modern sanitary city. He is always in favor of any plan that promises better kept streets or street cars or houses.

In the meantime some of those whose bump of curiosity is abnormally developed are beginning to investigate the appliances that claim to be the advance guard of this sanitary millenium. Some of the inventions have progressed so far that they have been put in practical operation. One railroad—the Central Railroad of New Jersey—has recently put in a car cleaning plant, and the vice president, W. G. Besler, says it is giving perfect satisfaction. Two or three large cities—Hartford and Chicago and some others—have been testing the street cleaning devices, and the stone cleaning invention has been applied recently to the city hall in Manhattan. Thus it is apparent that a start has been made in the matter of making things tidy in cities. Will it prove to be universal, and will it actually result in a revolution in the now dirty, unsanitary and almost uninhabitable cities of the United States?

According to the figures of the United States labor bureau, the cities in this country expend $20,000,000 annually for street cleaning. The city of New York last year spent $3,855,000 for sweeping the streets and carting away the dirt in the boroughs of Manhattan, The Bronx and Brooklyn. Yet, despite this great expenditure, the filthy condition of the streets was only too apparent. And what was true of New York was true of the other cities, and in many cases—notably Chicago—the condition was much worse. The plan that is generally adopted for the cleaning of streets by most cities is said by experts who have investigated the matter to be entirely wrong. Usually, the army of "white wings" sweep the dust and rirt into little heaps, which are subsequently removed by the carts of the street cleaning department. If the carts are prompt in carrying away this dirt, so much the better for the citizens. But if, as is frequently the case, the piles of refuse are allowed to remain where they have been swept for hours and sometimes days, they are scattered about the vicinity by every passing breeze, and having been stirred up afresh by the brooms of the "white wings" they are a greater menace to health after the department has commenced its work than before.

A new street cleaning device that has been recently put in operation in several cities completely revolutionizes the old methods according to claims of the inventors. The machines, which are leased, but not sold to city corporations, sprinkle, sweep, collect and carry away under cover, the dirt from 8,000 square feet of pavement an hour, and do this, it is claimed, sanitarily and without dust. There are two classes of machines; those operated by one team of horses and one man, and those operated by an automobile and one man. The machines clean the dirt up thoroughly from the gutters and the corners, moistening the pavements just enough so as to prevent dust from rising. No piles of dust are left to be scattered by the wind or passing vehicles. All the work is done under a covered mechine, hence there is on chance for disease germs to be scattered through the air; and the work is done with no more noise or disturbance than that caused by the passing of an ordinary truck or wagon. All the dust is automatically dumped into the attending cart and carried away to the dumping grounds without being exposed at any time to the air. The capacity of the different machines to sprinkle, sweep and dump in a day of nine hours is as follows: Two-horse machine, 5 feet wide, 700,000 square feet; three-horse machine, 7 feet 6 inches wide, 1,100,000 square feet; auto or motor machine, 6 feet wide, 1,560,000 square feet. Or, to state the matter differently, on a street thirty-three feet wide between curbs—which is the average street width—one machine will do the work ujst mentioned in a day of nine hours covering this area. Two-horse machine, two miles of street; three-horse machine, six miles of street; auto or power machine, eight and one-half miles of street.

The automobile street sweeper was thoroughly tested on the streets of Chicago and has been also used in different cities to demonstrate its efficiency. It was reported in Chicago that it did the work formerly performed by an army of "white wings," and that no dust whatever was observable. The dirt box has a capacity of one and one-half cubic yards and 200 gallons of water are carried in the tank which is sufficient for an hour's run. It will work on all kinds of streets and when in operation travels at the rate of six or ten miles an hour. The big 24-horsepower, four-cylinder motor is located in the front of the machine, and the gasoline tank with a capacity of thirty-five gallons, is placed just back of the dust elevator. The weight of the machine when the tank is filled with water is 7,200 pounds. It can be operated on the street in less space and with greater ease than the old-fashioned carts and sprinklers drawn by horses.

"SWEETENING" WOOD.

The newest method of curing timber quickly for joiner work, pianos, etc., is to sweeten it. The process, which was invented by an Englishman named Powell, is described by United States Consul Atwell, in Roubaix, France:

"Powell replaces the sap of trees by beet sugar or saccharine, which acts as a reservative by driving the natural humidity from the fibres. Newly felled wood is laid on a wagonette, which is rolled into a huge cylinder, the interior of which is provided with pipes. The wood having been placed in the cylinder, the latter is supplied with sugar or saccharine. Hot water is then forced through the pipes. The heat boils the sugar, which penetrates the pores of the wood. Cooling is accomplished by cold water forced through the pipes. The cylinder is emptied of the sugar or saccharine and the wagonette is rolled into a special room, where the wood is dried by currents of hot air. After being cooled again, the wood, properly seasoned by the sugar, is ready for use. It is said not to spring or gather dampness and to be proof against destruction by insects.

URIC ACID GRAVEL

IS CAUSED BY THE KIDNEYS BEING UNABLE TO CARRY THE POISONOUS WASTE MATTERS OUT OF THE BLOOD.

The urine of persons suffering from uric acid or gravel is generally scanty, and after it has stood a while, a reddish, sediment like brick dust forms in it. In advanced stages the uric sometimes appears as fine sand, or large crystals.

Those who pass gravel in any considerable quantity are usually troubled with inflammation of the kidneys, bladder and urinary organs, sour stomach, indigestion, heartburn, gout and rheumatism.

CURED BY WARNERS' SAFE CURE

"I have used Safe Cure for chills caused by uric acid poison in my system and I have been perfectly cured. It has done for me what I have never known any other medicine to do. It cures people in the South who suffer much from malaria, which always affects the kidneys. If all the doctors would prescribe Safe Cure instead of quinine for cases of malaria there would be less bad after effects, as quinine does not remove the disease germs from the system like Safe Cure. I take 'Safe Pills' when I need a gentle laxative."—Mrs. M. E. DEAN, Treas. Lotus Club, Cattanooga, Tenn.

THIS TEST WILL TELL:

Put some urine in a glass or bottle. After it has stood 24 hours, if it is cloudy, or contains a reddish-brown sediment, or if particles float about in it your kidneys are diseased and unable to do their work, and if not attended to at once Bright's Disease, diabetes, rheumatism, gout, uric acid, inflammation of the bladder, gallstones or urinary troubles will develop and prove fatal in a short time.

Safe Cure is the only absolutely safe and certain cure for all these forms of kidney, liver and bladder diseases. It is purely vegetable, free from harmful drugs found in many so-called kidney cures, contains no sediment and is pleasant to take.

For sale at all drug stores, or direct, 50c, and $1.00 a bottle.

ANALYSIS FREE.

If after making this test you have any doubt as to the development of the disease in your system, send a sample of your urine to the Medical Department, Warner Safe Cure Co., Rochester, N. Y., and our doctors will analyze it and send you a report, with advice and medical booklet, free.

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES AND IMITATIONS

They are worthless and very often exceedingly dangerous. Ask for Warner's Safe Cure; it will cure you.

WARNER'S SAFE PILLS move the bowels gently and aid a speedy cure.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mends shattered nerves. Gives a healthy red to pale cheeks. Puts good flesh on thin children. Takes off pimples, rashes. Ask your doctor to tell you about it.

MORE ROOM NEEDED.

Since it is practically decided that there will be no city hall built in connection with the county courthouse, at least for several years, the suggestion of Judge Windom of the municipal court that two stories be added to the present city building is timely and one that should receive early and favorable consideration by the city authorities.

The present quarters are entirely inadequate for carrying on the city's business in proper manner, and especially is this true of the rooms assigned to the municipal court. They are too small, poorly ventilated and unsanitary. The different departments are already cramped for vault room in which to store the city's records.

Judge Windom suggests that after the two new stories are added the entire first floor be devoted to the use of the municipal court and that a covered passageway be erected between the courtroom and the jail building, so that prisoners will not be exposed to the gaze of the curious outside the hall. He would have the engineering department located on the top floor and the other departments on the third floor. He would also have an elevator installed.

All these are good recommendations, and The Herald believes that the improvement is imperatively needed.

THE FORESTRY ZEALOTS.

The Minneapolis Journal, one of the most hysterical supporters of the scheme to lock up a large section of Northern Minnesota from settlement and turn it over to the forestry zealots, said a few days ago that the resolution passed by the legislature asking congress to repeal the law by which over 600,000 acres of land has been segregated, was adopted without due consideration and that the majority of the members would not have voted for it, had they understood its full import.

Possibly the Journal will now be willing to admit that it was mistaken and that the members of the legislature did know what they were doing when they adopted the resolution. The matter has since been agitated by the forestry enthusiasts so that every member of the legislature was made fully acquainted with what they wanted. And what was the result? In the senate a resolution to reverse the former action received only three or four votes and in the house yesterday only thirty-two votes could be rounded up in favor of creating a huge game and forest reserve and retarding the development of Northern Minnesota. This action by both houses should be convincing proof that the sentiment of the legislature is firmly and unalterably opposed to this unrighteous scheme to withdraw from settlement a large area of as good farming lands as can be found in any part of the state.

If the Journal wants a forest reserve let it take steps to have the federal government secure control of some of the farm lands in Hennepin and adjoining counties and plant them with trees.

DECEPTION AIDS SOCIALISM.

Those persons who are unalterably opposed to government operation or control of industry will no doubt be interested to learn that practically all the so-called life preservers used on the passenger vessels plying the waters of the Atlantic coast have been condemned by the government inspectors and the new ones to take their place will be manufactured under the direct supervision and inspection of government agents, that iron, dust and gravel shall be eliminated, and only cork shall be used in their interior construction.

Of course the same results might be obtained by private inspection of these appliances by the purchasers and a specification that they shall be properly made. But no doubt it is cheaper to fill life preservers with dust and gravel than with cork, and as nothing but human life depends upon them, the ship owners are willing to take just as cheap an article as will pass the government inspection.

But the burning of the steamer Slocum opened the eyes of the authorities to the deception and fraud that had been practiced almost universally in the manufacture of these life preservers, and now in order to make sure that the fraud is not repeated the government will see that they are properly made before they leave the shop.

The Socialist says that if all work was in the hands of the government there would be no incentive for anybody to produce other than honest goods. The men in trade and manufacture who practice fraud and deception in order to make more dollars are playing into the hands of the Socialists. The poisoners of food, liquor, drugs, etc., are also assisting in the work, and the United States senate is also helping along the Socialist cause.

TRAVELS OF PRESIDENTS.

A Washington correspondent who has been looking over the records of the presidents of the United States, finds that President Roosevelt has done more traveling than any of his predecessors. His trip two years ago throughout the West was probably the longest presidential tour, measured in miles, that has ever been taken. President McKinley's great tour was interrupted at San Francisco by Mrs. McKinley's serious illness. President Cleveland did not travel much in either of his administrations, getting no further away from Washington in his last administration than to Chicago, where he went to attend Secretary Gresham's funeral. President Harrison, whose term separated the two Cleveland administrations, made an extensive trip through the West, described as "swinging around the circle," a term frequently applied to presidential trips, notably to that of Andrew Johnson. President Hayes crossed the country during his term, giving San Francisco its first sight of a real president. Mr. Arthur went out to the Yellowstone National Park on a vacation trip. But improvements in the comfort with which traveling may be made have had much to do with the increasing number of trips which our presidents make. Of course they go to Philadelphia and New York, because so easily reached, on lesser occasions than they could be induced to go to more distant cities. The junction towns naturally see a good many presidents.

It would be interesting to know what is the largest city in the United States that has never had a visit from a president. It was related at the time of Mr. Roosevelt's visit to Manchester, N. H., that he was the fifth president who had been there; Jackson, Grant, Hayes and Harrison having been there, too. Providence is one of the few cities of the country that boasts of a presidential visit from George Washington. Aside from the presidents who died so soon after going into office that they hardly left the White House, notably William Henry Harrison, it is probable that they have all visited as presidents Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York. President Roosevelt will have seen, before his term expires, most of the cities of the country.

THE WORLD'S MONEY.

If the word should ever adopt a universal coin, one about the value of 19 cents could be taken without much trouble. This conclusion is reached by a study of the recent bulletin by the secretary of the treasury giving the estimated value of foreign coins, which shows how many units have a value of about 19 cents. The American dollar could be scaled down enough to make five of these. The franc of France, Belgium and Switzerland; the mark of Finland; the drachma of Greece; the lira of Italy; the peseta of Spain and the bolivar of Venezuela, are all rated at exactly 19 cents and 3 mills; the crown of Norway, Sweden and Denmark at $0.268, the German mark at $0.238. The British shilling is now worth $0.24335.

The Chinese tael is one of the most troublesome coins, because it varies in value according to localities, from 66 cents to 75 cents. The Haikwan tael, the one most commonly alluded to in statistical tables, is worth $0.732. At Fuchau the tael is worth $0.665; at Shanghai, $0.657, and at Tsin-Tsin, $0.697. Secretary Shaw notes that the coin of silver standard countries is valued according to its pure silver content, at the average market price of silver for the preceding three months. The Mexican dollar, now valued at $0.477, will, by a new arrangement, be worth $0.498 after May 1. The British dollar in Hongkong and Labuan has the same legal value as the recent Mexican dollar. The Japanese yen is rated at $0.498, the same as these new Mexican dollars.

Several countries have a coin worth just a trifle more than our dollar; that unit is exceeded in value by the peso or Uruguay to the extent of 3 cents, by the milreis of Portugal by 8 cents, the dollar of Newfoundland by 1 cent and 4 mills. The universal coin project, of which Jefferson wrote so enthusiastically a century ago, is not making much progress now. Charles W. Stone of Pennsylvania, who was some years ago chairman of the house committee on coinage, weights and measures, prepared an exhaustive report upon the subject. Sentiment moves slowly, but so far as it moves at all in such affairs, it seems to be in the direction of uniformity. And some day in the distant future there may be a universal coin.

It is related by an Eastern paper that a Long Island farmer got the laugh on his neighbors whose horses were afraid of the omnipresent automobile, by going to New York and purchasing a blase city steed who had outlived his usefulness on a delivery wagon. He was the wondrous wise man of his town till his new possession met a cow, and promptly went over a fence, taking the wagon with him. As cows are still more plentiful than "red devils" on Long Island, the fable seems to teach that, after all, the country mouse is about as well fitted for rural life as his urban contemporary.

The Springfield Republican thinks the report from Washington in the New York Tribune that the Newfoundland reciprocity treaty may be revived in the senate at the next session, and even passed in its original form, is altogether too good to be true. The report probably was designed for consumption in Newfoundland, in order that the Bond government may be induced to go slow with retaliatory measures. The state department does not relish the acrimonious situation now rapidly developing, and no one can blame it for that. Responsibility for the present state of affairs must be loaded upon shoulders other than the state department's.

Hotel Gossip.

"It is most unreasonable for the miners on the range to go in a strike at this time," said James Lamson, superintendent of stripping operations at the Leonard properties, near Hibbing, for the Drake & Stratton people, at the St. Louis. "Their wages, it appears to me, should have been wholly satisfactory, and doubtless would have been had it not been for the fact that outside agitators came in and created discontent among the men.

"So far as I can learn the wages of the miners all through that district this year ranged from $2 a day to $4 a day. I call that pretty fair pay. It is bound to prove a losing proposition to the men in the long run, and they are making a big mistake in walking out. As a matter of fact, I believe I am perfectly safe in saying that fully two-thirds of the strikers, probably even more than that, do not want to strike at all, but they are afraid to remain at work when told to quit by the men already out.

"It is really too bad the trouble should spring up now, just as all indications pointed to the brightest and best season for all lines of business the range towns and Duluth have had for years. The action of the men in walking out comes as a great surprise, for only two or three weeks ago nothing seemed farther away than trouble of this nature. The wages were good, work plentiful and to all appearances the men were content with their lot. The strike will play havoc with general business conditions. Already the merchants are standing to lose thousands of dollars as a result of it. And I can see no sign of a very near ending of the trouble. On the contrary, all indications point to a spread of the strike, and it would not surprise me much to hear that it has reached Eveleth and some of the other districts. If the men had reason for striking it would be a different proposition, but they haven't and consequently they have not the general sympathy of the people."

"Seattle is destined to become one of the greatest cities on the American continent," said S. D. Prindle of St. Paul, who recently returned from a Western trip, at the Spalding. "It is so situated that, like Duluth, it is bound to grow. Already its business interests have reached vast proportions, and they are steadily increasing.

"Seattle is the natural gateway to the Orient, and likewise to Alaska, and this fact alone would prove the making of any city. Business appears to be always rushing there, particularly at this season of the year, when the Alaska trade is beginning to open up. There is a very extensive freight and passenger traffic between this Western port and Alaska points, and every year, as soon as ice conditions will permit, business starts with a jump in the Alaska trade.

"Big improvements are all the time going on in the town. A modern 14-story building has just been erected there, and this is only one of many skyscrapers which will be in evidence within the next few years. Wanamaker is establishing a big department store in the city, which is generally considered a pretty good indication of a good future. The Northern Pacific is erecting a large and very handsome depot, and the Great Northern is conducting extensive improvements. Property values are high. A very few years ago tide land lots along the sound could be purchased for $999. I understand that some of them this spring brought as high as $150,000."

"A book might be written about the queer ways in which intoxicating liquors are sold in prohibition towns," said L. A. Reed of Milwaukee at the McKay. "The people are bound to get the stuff in one way, if they cannot get it in another, even if it is necessary to take it in the form of medicine. I remember of being in Brooklyn, Wis., several years ago when the town was very strong on the prohibition question. It was rather difficult to get beer anywhere, so close a watch was kept.

"There was one old fellow who kept a confectionery store that was particularly strong in his opposition to the sale of intoxicants. No one would for a moment suspect that he would become implicated in a scheme to get around the law and boom trade by the sale of such liquors, so honest and upright was he considered. He really was a good old fellow and a pillar of the church, and I believe would have closed shop before he would knowingly have sold beer.

"But even the best of us are fooled sometimes. One day a smooth young commercial traveler from Milwaukee dropped into town. He looked around awhile and soon learned that the candy store man in question not only had the best reputation of any dealer in town, but also had the best trade. The Milwaukee man approached the owner and dwelt in glowing terms on the hospital tonic he was selling. It was just the thing to sell from the soda fountain counter, he declared, for, in addition to its medicinal qualities, it was soothing and very pleasing as a drink. There was a good profit in disposing of it at 5 cents a glass or 25 cents a bottle. After quite a lot of talk along this line he volunteered to put a hogshead of the bottled tonic into the place on trial. If it didn't sell no pay would be expected. The offer was accepted.

"Of course the tonic sold, and sold well, for it was the best quality of Milwaukee beer, and nothing else. Two or three young fellows tried the tonic the first day. With sly winks at each other they bought a bunch of bottles, placed them in their buggy and drove away. The next day the demand for the tonic was brisk indeed. The ice cream parlors were filled all the afternoon and evening by men drinking it, and numerous bottles were carried away. The supply lasted only two or three days at this rapid rate of consumption, and the store man sent in an order for four more hogsheads. These went just as rapidly, and before the last bottle was sold our friend began to suspect that all was not right. Accordingly he had the liquor analyzed by a chemist. When he found what it was he discontinued the sale right away, but already he had cleaned up quite a little chunck of money."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Lake City Graphic-Sentinel: If the legislature of the state of Minnesota would pass a bill that would do away with about two-thirds of the elections in this state, they would have done a service to the people that would be appreciated. One of the worst features of the present government of this great country, is the election system. There is a spring election and a fall election—with an occasional judicial election between times. Election days should come at long periods, and if they all came in a bunch it would be a blessing to both mankind and business. Who will be the lucky representative and senator to champion the innovation?

Mankato Free Press: The difference between good and bad roads is often equivalent to the difference between profit and loss. Good roads have a money value to farmers as well as a political and social value, and leaving out convenience, comfort, social and refined influences which good roads always enhance, and looking at them only from the "almighty dollar" side, they are found to pay handsome dividends each year.

Minneapolis Tribune: Duluth Herald tells of the champion whittler of Missouri, Judge Pepper, who makes the court room look like a planing mill. We are glad to hear about him for we thought that the gentle art of whittling had fallen into disuse. It isn't half appreciated these days anyway. Who ever heard of a man's having nervous prostration in the days when he could get a soft pine stick and a jack-knife? If things went wrong at the farm or at the store in the pioneer days all a man had to do was to work out his feelings in shavings, while now he beats his wife or shoots a man who isn't to blame. No question but that a man can think better if he is whittling—it keeps his mind from wandering and he can see the whole proposition focussed on the end of the stick, so that all he has to do is to whittle it out. Think of the comfort that a man can give his right arm while he is moving it back and forth and there are few whittlers who do not work their faces with just that same movement. Keeps a man from swearing, too, or if he does swear he has got to make it rhythmic to conform to the strokes of his knife and the moral effect on him isn't so bad. There is no question about it—sometime all these new fads are going to die out and whittling will be appreciated as it used to be.

Mower County Transcript: The bill introduced in the legislature to provide a bee inspector for the state with fees of $4 a day and $1,000 public money for expenses is no more foolish than a good deal of the other proposed legislation. We wonder if the bill provides for the method of inspection, whether the bees are to be inspected singly or in swarms, and whether the drones will be taxed.

St. Cloud Times: It is not wise or judicious for a legislator to be overly captious in objecting to measures. Such a course is certain to react upon himself, and he is pretty sure to find that his own bills are marked for slaughter. A very excellent gentleman is Hon. Elmer E. Adams of Fergus Falls, the editor of the Daily Journal. He is serving his first term in the house, has been active in his duties, has introduced a number of bills and is very free in his opposition to those of his fellow members. We understand, for instance, that he is opposed to the bill admitting the wives and widows of veterans to the soldiers' home, a measure which is almost unanimously approved by press and public; and, as he is a member of the house subcommittee on appropriations his opposition is dangerous.

Investment Fakes.

Portland Oregonian: The people who attempt to get rich quickly by putting their money in wildcat schemes have been getting some hard lessons lately. Strange that people do not gain wisdom by experience. If investors would stop to consider that if the deceivers who concoct these schemes and foist them upon the public had one-tenth part of the paying investments they advertise so liberally they would under no conditions part with the stock, fewer lambs would be shorn. A really good and profitable business does not need to advertise the sale of the stock to any great extent, as it will sell itself, and there are always plenty of shrewd investors willing and ready to purchase. It is a case of investors seeking the investment, not of investment seeking the investors.

Think What He is Missing.

Chicago Inter Ocean: Rojestvensky suffers, of course, from the disadvantage of not being able to secure a prompt daily delivery of the American newspapers to which the journalistic naval experts are contributing paragraphs.

The Fly in the Cocktail.

Washington Post: Director of the Mint Roberts says there will be a greater production of gold this year than ever before in the history of the country. It would be fine if the output could be mutualized instead of going into the old channels.

Alaska's Advantage.

Philadelphia Record: The supreme court holds Alacka to be a part of the United States and not a colonial possession. Alaska is a part of the continent. Were it separated from the United States by a great stretch of water things would be different, and a jury made up of six men would do as well as a jury of twelve.

Messrs. Sawyer, Munger, Ensign and T. B. Casey have been appointed delegates of the Duluth board of trade to attend the dedication of the new Chicago board of trade building next week.

The ice is out of Superior bay, from the Wisconsin entry almost to the Northern Pacific dock, and is out of St. Louis bay as far as the new bridge.

Ruben Reynolds, the newly-appointed assistant judge of this district, will make his official debut next Monday. He was appointed last winter, and this will be his first appearance in Duluth. Judge Stearns has enough business in chambers to keep him busy for some months.

L. G. Morey is now city editor of the Tribune in place of D. L. Stitchfield, who will start a paper of his own at Waupaca, Wis.

*Mrs. H. G. Nelson died on Sunday at Rice's Point of lung fever, after two weeks' illness. She leaves a husband and children.

Hiram Stewart of this city died at Garden Grove, Iowa, on Thursday, aged 77 years. Mr. Stewart as born in New York, but when a boy moved to Cleveland, where he was located for several years. For the past ten years or more he has been interested in Duluth property, and two sons and a daughter-in-law reside here. He was buried in Sandusky, Ohio.

J. D. Batch of Toledo, Ohio, and Henry Evans of Duluth have arranged to start a printing office here at an early date.

Indians are having a successful season in the sugar bush. There are two camps on the Swan river road, about three and a half miles out, where some 200 trees are tapped, and a large amount of reasonably good sugar is produced. J. A. Booker has a grove of 500 trees on the Hermantown road.

POINTED PLEASANTRIES.

Somerville Journal: It is easy enough to get plenty of good advice, but it is mighty hard, oftentimes, to follow it.

Philadelphia Ledger: Milkman—I've called to see why you haven't paid the bill you owe for milk.

Customer—Turn about's fair play. Chalk that up a while.

Chicago Tribune: Goodman Gonrong gazed at the billious looking pumpkin pie that had been placed before him by the sweet-faced young wife.

Then he turned and fled.

"Yeller peril!" he gasped.

Record-Herald: "I suppose, senator, that you are glad to get home, after the long, tiresome session of congress?"

"Yes, the railroad people have come to feel so sure of us that it is necessary for me to look after my law practice pretty closely these days."

Brooklyn Life: "I see that Russia is putting another large sum into a new navy."

"Yes—that's her sinking fund."

Washington Star: "How do you like that speaker?"

"He is neither one thing nor the other," answered the man who is never pleased. "His remarks are just stupid enough to make you sleepy, and just loud enough to keep you awake."

Somerville Journal: Wiggles—Let's see, you went to that faith-healing doctor, didn't you?

Waggles—Yes.

Wiggles—Did he cure you?

Waggles—Well, he cured me of my faith in faith-healers.

THE ROSE-COLORED GLASS.

Once, when a child, I found somewhere
A piece of clear red glass,
And when I looked through it, it brought
A miracle to pass:

The dull old earth and clouded sky
Became most wondrous bright,
And tree and flower and everything
Rejoiced in rosy light.

And through the years of later life
Some happy folk I've known
Who'd found the magic of the glass
And made it all their own.

Some happy folk for whom the sun
Still shone on cloudy days,
For whom the flowers would always spring
Along the stony ways.

Brave-hearted folk who yet could smile
When troubles closely crept,
Who ever had a word of cheer
For those who sighed and wept.

Dear folk whom it was good to know,
Who made the dull grow bright,
And shed about their way on earth
A rosy heavenly light.

And oft I think how good a time
'Twould surely bring to pass,
If all of us could look on life
Through their rose-colored glass!

—C. S. PRATT in Housekeeper.

An Idle Wish.

O, give me back the good old days;
I want the simple life,
The care free times before we knew
Bacteria were rife.

We never boiled the crystal stream
The oaken bucket drew,
And if our mud pies reeked with germs,
At least we never knew.

But now we boil, and bake, and steam,
And disinfect and burn;
We wash and spray and shake and stir
And fume and scrape and churn.

We think it will prolong our days,
No nook or cranny shirk,
And just as every microbe flees,
We die of overwork.

—Puck.

Tight Lacng.

Brooklyn Eagle: We all know that there is no tight lacing any more. Any woman will say so. The death of a woman in St. Louis from alleged tight lacing is one of these stories invented by mere men to c st up to their wives when the men want an excuse for being ill-natured on the morning after the club dinner. The alleged victim in St. Louis died from the effect of St. Louis atmosphere, diet and politics. At the same time, we take this occasion to reprehend the pictures that certain corset makers are applying to our house fronts, our subways, our fences, our public libraries, our roof tops and other points of advertising vantage, because they tend to create the impression that lacing is still permissible. These pictures represent a woman of heavenly grace, of the usual width except at the waist, which she has compressed until it becomes a mere handle, like that of a goblet. Now, a person who is two feet across the shoulders ought not to have a midst that is only three inches through.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When a man gets over paying winter coal bills the summer resort expenses are a head of him.

When a man doesn't drink it is a sign he has had very bad habits and is going to have them again.

A girl can be a good deal more dignified about being kissed against her will than she can about explaining to her mother that she wasn't.

Go Afield.

Philadelphia Ledger: Buried in the dry details of the British budget read in the house of commons the other day was the encouraging comment of the chancellor of the exchequer that the excise taxes had fallen off because Britons are giving greater attention to outings and are forsaking the seductive inns. Here is a forcible argument for the pursuit of innocent sport afield which the temperance reformers will duly ponder and inwardly digest. We cannot all enter the exciting pastime of wolf chasing, like President Roosevelt, who requires something out of the common to stir his blood, but we can pursue something worth while in the open—the wild flower or the elusive fish—or take it out in plain, everyday, aimless walking, regarded by many sedate, old-fashioned folk as the most fascinating of all out-of-door sport.

Unexpected to the Last.

C. Oliver Iselin, the yachtsman, was talking about a cross-grained skipper.

"He was always unexpected." Mr. Iselin began. "He was always saying the unexpected thing. In fact, as he lay dying, he blurted out the most surprising sentence.

"He died in his old home, in the Scottish village of Peebles, where he had been born and raised. His wife and children sat at his bedside to comfort his departure. There were sighs and sobs in the air. Suddenly the sick man started up, gave a loud groan, and fell back on the pillow white and stiff.

"'He's gone at last,' said his wife, 'and I'll never be happy till I follow him?' Then she went on in a calmer tone: 'We'll better hae the funeral on Wednesday, an' we'll just get Wully Barrie to mak the coffin. Tho Wully has never been a friend o' oors—'

"She was interrupted by a faint voice from the bed.

"'If ye get that crater, Wully Barrie, to mak the coffin, I'll not put a foot in it.'"

Knocking the Open Door.

San Francisco Chronicle: The open door in the Orient is more thought of now by Western manufacturing people than it will be a dozen years hence. From present indications long before 1929 the principal reason for keeping the trade doors of China and Japan wide open will be to let in raw materials and permit egress to manufactured goods, which will be shipped to countries whose peoples now fondly fancy that the Chinese and Japanese were created to be exploited by them.

COPPER IS FIRMER

Revival of Demand Causes Steadiness In the Price.

Export Movement Shows a Decline—The Market For Shares.

George L. Walker reports the copper market as showing firmness and a good demand at the level of prices. Exports are not heavy, but he finds the condition in this respect not particularly bearish. He says:

"Copper is firmer. There has been a marked revival of demand this week, and considerable sales have been made. Lake is 15⅝ cents, and electrolytic is 15¼ cents per pound. On distant future delivery contracts these prices can be shaded only the smallest fraction. Astonishment is expressed in the trade that so large and steady a volume of business can be done at the ruling high level of quotations. Prices have advanced 4s in London, and best selected is now selling on the basis of 15.58 cents per pound.

"The falling off in the export movement has been the only basis for bearish forebodings, and it is not improbable that a balance may be reached in this respect before the first of May. Exports so far this month aggregate over 10,000 tons. Should the total for April reach 24,672 tons it would make the movement for the first four months of 1905 exactly the same as in the corresponding period of last year. Exports at present unquestionably represent the amount of copper actually required for immediate consumption, while a year ago foreign consumers were encouraged to buy considerably in excess of their current needs by the very attractive level of prices, the metal then being two to three cents per pound lower than now. The situation is, therefore, one that warrants the fullest confidence. It seems certain that prices will at least hold up to their present average for many months to come.

COPPER SHARES.

"The great strength of Amalgamated has as yet exerted comparatively little influence on the Boston copper share list. A few stocks that had been previously over-bought were disposed to sag this week, while two or three new favorites scored moderate gains. As a whole the local market has simply remained dull. The explanation is largely to be found in the Lawson advertising. Though his bearish manifestos do not cause any selling of coppers, they are not conducive to bullish activity. The considerable short interest in coppers, in view of the very small floating supply, exerts a sustaining influence, and it should a little later assist materially in bringing about a substantial advance in prices.

"There are two or three encouraging factors to be watched. Something is developing in the Bingham district, and there is an excellent prospect that Bingham, Utah and Boston Consolidated may lead a general advance in the coppers. If it proves true, as rumored, that the Smelting trust has been buying U. S. Mining, it will start the whole Utah group going. There is also the prospect of a further advance in metal prices; and Amalgamated, Anaconda, Utah and some other copper dividends will almost surely be increased. Under the circumstances there seems only one way for the coppers to go."

SOLIDLY ON GOLD BASIS

The Mexican Mints Now Closed to Free Coinage.

City of Mexico, April 18.—Yesterday the mints of Mexico were closed to the free coinage of gold and silver and the nation is now officially on the gold basis. To all intents and purposes this basis has been maintained since the first of the present year, through the steps taken by the government towards a stable currency. Instead of the dire results predicted by adherents of the old standard, an era of progress and development has been inaugurated.

While the date for the adoption of the gold standard was still months in the future, so persistent and unswerving was the action of the government that the business public regarded it as a foregone conclusion and Mexican exchange ceased to fluctuate. Merchants accustomed to figuring big margins of uncertain trend took the Mexican silver dollar for what the government said it was worth and transacted business accordingly. Foreign companies arranged future business on the same basis.

The Mexican government has given the currency question a final touch creating an exchange and currency commission, composed of the president, the secretary of finance, the treasurer general, the mint director, three bank representatives and four representatives of government interests. Daily sessions of the executive board of this commission will be held to watch the passing of the historic Mexican dollar and the operation of the gold standard.

Those Americans called into consultation by the Mexican government on the monetary question urged from the beginning the advisability of a gold exchange fund, the adoption of which has strengthened business relations between the two republics.

WANTS MONEY BACK.

Young Woman Claims Q. J. Bunting Misrepresented.

Suit has been instituted against Q. J. Bunting, in district court, by Miss Nellie Karvarnes, a working girl, to recover judgment for $125.

Miss Karvarnes alleges in her complaint that Bunting obtained the money from her under false representation in a real estate deal. She says that in the fall of 1903, Bunting told her he had an opportunity to sell at an advance lot 27½ Minnesota avenue, Lower Duluth, telling her that if she would advance $125 to handle the deal he could make for her a speedy profit of $5 on her money, besides getting his own commission.

Miss Karvarnes further alleges that she put up the money but that nothing came of the transaction, although she made frequent inquiry of Bunting. She says he promised repeatedly to pay back her money, but has never done so.

FOR CZAR'S USE

Religious Society In Russia Offers 1,000,000,000 Roubles For War.

Not Yet Ready to Grant Demands of Old Faith.

London, April 18.—A striking example of the vast secret resources of Russia is given by the offer of the directing body of the Old Faith to provide the government 1,000,000,000 roubles for war purposes without interest in exchange for greater liberty of worship. The believers in the Old Faith include the wealthiest portion of the population of the Volga provinces and east of Moscow. They seek the regular Greek orthodox church and the offer of this immense sum, which is equivalent to a full year's war expenses, is a revelation of the vast wealth of Russia's religious societies.

It should be borne in mind that if this body is able to offer such great treasure to the government in its financial embarrassments, the state church itself might easily provide twice as much without drawing a penny from the over-taxed population. Russian poverty, in a word, is due more to generations of hoarding of the churches than to the burdens of taxation. There is no sign, however, that the state church is willing to part with a single rouble for the war policy which it steadily urges upon the czar.

It is not probable that the directorate of the Old Faith has in its possession such an enormous sum as it now offers, but its membership includes many millionaires in Central Russia, who doubtless, are prepared to execute the present proposal. The concession asked is simply the approval of the recommendation recently made by a committee of the imperial ministers which is now before the czar.

There is some indication that the prayer will be granted, for the czar made the folowing indorsement upon the petition of the Holy Synod at convocation of a council to elect a patriarch and effect a reform of the ecclesiastical administration:

"I find it impossible in the present disturbed times to undertake a task of such magniture requiring calm consideration. Following the old example of the orthodox emperors, I intend, however, that soon as the moment is favorable to set on foot this great work and summon a council of the old Russian church for a canonical discussion of questions of faith and ecclesiastical reform."

Signs multiply that the internal situation in Russia is rapidly approaching a fresh crisis. It is natural that the war party should be building increased hopes on the issue of the impending naval engagement. The boldness of Rojestvensky's programme appeals to all classes. Whatever fate awaits the Russian arms in the desperate fight now at hand, the Russian cause will win the admiration which has been lacking in all previous phases of the war. After all, however, Rojestvensky's venture is regarded as a forlorn hope by naval men and his destruction or defeat will have the direst effects in Russia. This is fully recognized by the authorities, who are making all preparations possible to prevent uprisings.

The outer circle of the capital is crowded with the hungry unemployed and great depression is extending from Moscow eastward. There has been a stoppage of the delivery of merchandise from the Siberian railway since the increased transportation of war material. There has also been a stoppage of river traffic at the wharves and intermediate stations and left there. This threatens seriously to affect the annual fair at Nijni Novgorod.

A typical picture of the condition of affairs in Poland is contained in a Warsaw dispatch. It says eight workingmen who were prisoners were brought in a dying condition to the Warsaw hospital from the citadel, which is a dreaded prison for political offenders. The men were in a terribly emaciated state and bore the marks of intense suffering. Their condition is reported to be hopeless. They were arrested in the riots of Jan. 28 and 30.

The governor of the citadel has asked for the immediate supply of 600 beds for prisoners. At least 600 suspects are in cells without beds. How many more Polish patriots are there nobody outside of the walls really knows, while many reports of barbarous treatment and the murder of prisoners are persistently circulated. It is certain that many persons pass into the citadel and are never heard of again. They are either deported to Siberia or are condemned to end their days in this prison.

The Sun's St. Petersburg correspondent says, with the czar's consent, his brother-in-law, the Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch last week assumed definitely the guidance of the internal policy. The establishment of the place of premier creates a connecting link between the czar and the bureaucracy. The Grand Duke Alexander has made it known that it will be his supreme aim to encourage a spirit of patriotic nationalism. His measures in this direction are twofold. He drafted and obtained the czar's consent to the appointment of the commission headed by M. Goremykin, to adjust the Russian system of land tenure, especially the relations of private landowners and peasants.

The other and greater measure of the duke is a memorial in favor of the redemption by the peasantry of government lands and estates of the imperial appanage. These lands are so evenly distributed in the provinces of the empire that the Grand Duke Alexander contends that the occupation of them by the peasantry will relieve for the time the pressure of an increasing number of peasantry upon the cultivable lands and will thereby help to relieve the industrial cities from an influx of men for whom there is not subsistence enough in their native villages and who often become political dangers.

But the most immediate attraction of the Grand Duke Alexander's land-distribution proposal is that it opens a new credit for the Russian government. With the land-redemption payments he advocates the strengthening of the military forces of the empire first and the rebuilding of the navy. It is contemplated, moreover, that the Goremykin commission shall prepare a system which will enable private owners to sell their estates to the government, who in turn will resell them to the peasants.

Grand Duke Alexander's practical appointment of himself as chancellor is not regarded with optimism by those competent to judge. The consensus of opinion is that among the grand dukes he is a man of capacity, but from the accepted standards of statesmanship he is a very ordinary individual.

MURDER LAID TO A FEUD

Claimed It Was For Purpose of Preventing Heir.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 18.—Stolid silence which prevailed among the Tama Indians until Sunday gave way to excited discussion of the murder of the beautiful Princess Mas-Che-Qua as a result of the arrest of George Soldier, her ex-husband and devoted admirer. Deputy United States Marshal Healy has thereby been enabled to develop a chain of evidence that seems to point conclusively to the commission of the murder for the purpose of preventing her from becoming the mother of an heir to the chieftainship as the descendant of Pusht Onoqua, who might displace the present dynasty. An old feud between the Sac and Fox tribes, who jointly occupy the reservation, as to which is entitled to the chieftainship is back of a series of crimes that have occurred within the past year, and have each time gone unavenged, despite the utmost endeavors of the government authorities. The Indians are absolutely non-communicative, saying they preferred to settle their differences in their own way. John Sepo, an active partisan, related to the prisoner, George Soldier, was murdered six months ago, presumably by a rival in love. Since then two pretty squaws have been slain.

Mas-Che-Qua disappeared two months ago, having last been seen with her divorced husband, George Soldier. The discovery of her dead body Friday was followed by Soldier's arrest and the consequent discovery that he was probably innocent and that the cold-blooded crime was committed for the mere purpose of exterminating a rival dynasty.

The coroner's injury investigating the death of the girl, returned a verdict of murder with a blunt instrument in the hands of George Soldier, who was the last person seen with her. Soldier was taken to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, by federal officers. Another young Indian, named Poweshiek, is suspected of complicity.

One Way to Stop War.

Following the fall of Port Arthur, comes the news that the credit of Russia is impaired, and it was with considerable difficulty and a large rate of interest that they finally secured their latest loan. This indicates the beginning of the end, for the war can only be carried on while the bankers of the world are willing. The beginning of the end of your sufferings from stomach, liver, bowel or kidney troubles commences with the first dose of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. For over 50 years it has been waging war successfully against diseases that can have but one ending, if neglected. Get a bottle today from your druggist. FIGHT OVER RELIC.

Trinket Presented to Girl Subject of Litigation.

Atlanta, Ga., April 18.—A silver brooch presented to a little girl by President Lincoln is being fought for in the courts here. The brooch had been presented to Mrs. McKenna, daughter of Capt. Cobb, of the United States army, while Capt. Cobb was stationed in Baltimore during the riots.

Cobb's course had not pleased Lincoln, who ordered the officer to Washington. Cobb, accompanied by his little daughter, called on the president and was rebuked by Mr. Lincoln. This angered little Miss Cobb, who said:

"I wish I had been a man and with the soldiers in Baltimore, for I would have done what my father did."

President Lincoln was so struck by the girl's brave defense of her father that he gave her a silver maltese cross with a $20 gold piece in the center bearing words, "Presented to Miss S. C. C. Cobb, by Abraham Lincoln, Washington, 1861." The brooch is now the subject of a trover suit brought by the McKenna family to recover the object, which had been lost from the finder.

Stop Belching.

First Bottle Free.

The annoying habit of belching and those humiliating rumblings in the stomach are not the most serious things accompanying constipation. Kidney complaints, lung affections, heart troubles or any other functional weakness which results from constipation is worse. Don't take pills or castor oil, they will make you worse.

Mull's Grape Tonic cures constipation, not by physicing you, because it won't do that, but by strengthening the digestive organs, enabling them to get all the nutrition out of the food and to carry the refuse from the bowels in the proper manner, instead of into the blood, which causes disease. It's the no cure, no pay treatment. The kind that is pleasant to take and a sure cure.

We want to give a bottle of Mull's Grape Tonic to you if you have never used it.

Send your name and druggist's name to Mull's Grape Tonic Co., 207 3rd Ave., Rock Island, Ill., and receive an order on your druggist for a free bottle. It is given you without any promise on your part to buy. Send today.

The $1.00 bottle contains nearly three times the 50c size. Sold at drug stores.

CAUTION—Do not accept Mull's Grape Tonic from your druggist unless it has a date and number stamped with indelible ink on the label.

DEATH AT NIAGARA

Voyages Through Whirlpool and Rapids In Boats and Barrels.

Graham and Glover Are to Race Through the Rapids.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., April 18.—It is announced that Carlisle D. Graham has made an agreement with William J. Glover, Jr. of Baltimore to race through the Whirlpool rapids of Niagara some time during the coming summer. Glover is said to be Maryland's champion swimmer, but he has never yet had any experience in the waters of the Niagara gorge. Graham has in the last twenty years performed remarkable feats there.

In 1886 he announced at Philadelphia that he would go through the Whirlpool rapids in a barrel of his own construction. The time was three years after Capt. Webb the English champion had gone down to death in the terrible currents. Graham's statement caused people familiar with the Niagara river to laugh.

The steamer Maid of the Mist had previous to this been the only craft to carry human freight through the gorge in safety, and to think that a man in a barrel would excel the feat of Joel Robinson and his boat on June 6, 1861, seemed ridiculous. The conclusion was that the body of a dead Philadelphia cooper would have to be searched for between the rapids and the mouth of the river should Graham attempt the feat.

When Graham and his barrel reached Niagara he was told this. Everybody said he was foolish; that he had no idea of the terrific force of the waves that tumble between the mighty cliffs of the narrowest part of the famous gorge, just below the great railway bridges.

Graham looked the rapids and the gorge over carefully. He selected the afternoon of Sunday, July 11, 1886, for his performance. A great crowd gathered, many of them remembering how Webb went down to death and expected to witness another and similar tragedy.

Graham was on time to the minute, and, protected only by his barrel, a bbat towed him out into the main current and set him adrift. It was 4:50 p. m., and eight minutes later he was in the whirlpool. Within two minutes the barrel had passed out of the pool and was en route to Lewiston, where it was picked up and Graham was found to be alive and uninjured.

This performance amazed everybody. It seemed also to belittle the power of the gerat rapids and the whirlpool. Elevator owners, hackmen, and those who made a living through the coming of visitors to see the "nastiest bit of water in the world" began to call for a stoppage of such performances in the rapids, realizing that they could no longer tell people that the waters were unconquered. Webb's death had brought money to their coffers, for many people longed to look upon the waves that had beaten the life out of England's champion swimmer.

Undaunted, Graham showed that he still had his nerve by announcing a second trip through the rapids for Thursday, August 10, 1886. He said he would keep his head out of the barrel, so that all who came to witness the performance might see him. There was a bigger crowd than at his first exhibition.

It was a remarkable sight to see the barrel boat, with a human head above it bob up and down through the waves. One moment it would be high in the air, the next out of sight under the foamy wash of the rapids.

This time Graham landed in the whirlpool on the Canadian side, the stream failing to shoot his barrel into the currents of the outlet. In the passage through the rapids the wave that killed Captain Webb struck Graham a terrible blow on one side of his head and from that day to this he has never heard a sound in that ear. Thus did the rapids give Graham something to remember.

On June 15, 1887, Graham made a third trip through the rapids, and on August 25, 1889, he used a much smaller barrel in making a fourth trip, passing entirely through the gorge to Lewiston.

Graham's performances attracted others to Niagara in search of fame. Among them were George Hazlett, William Potts and Sadie Allen, all barrel navigators.

From Boston came William J. Kendall, a policeman, who made the swim through the rapids, wearing a life preserver. James Scott of Lewiston went down to death in trying to swim from the whirlpool to Lewiston. Charles Alexander Percy made several boat trips, on one of which from the pool to Lewiston he was accompanied by William A. Dittrick.

Robert William Flack journeyed from Syracuse to Niagara, bringing with him a boat, about which he threw much mystery. Strapped to the seat, he made the trip through the rapids on July 4, 1888.

The craft was clinker shaped, and just as Flack was mounting the last wave of the rapids and was being shot into the whirlpool, his boat was upset. Suspended from the seat, held fast by the "life-saving harness," he was drowned, while hundreds stood on the cliff unable to lend a hand.

For one hour and ten minutes his body drifted about the tossing waters of the great river pocket, until finally his boat was caught on the Canadian side and towed to shore.

On Sunday, Sept. 15, 1889, Walter G. Campbell of Youngstown went through the rapids in a small boat. He was thrown out and forced to battle for life with the waves, but he landed in the whirlpool. His dog companion was lost.

Next came John Lincoln Soules, who was unable to get into the main current and landed on the rocks on the Canadian side with an injured leg.

For ten years the waters of the rapids knew no seekers after fame, until on June 9, 1900, Peter Nissen of Chicago made the trip seated in the open cockpit of a boat he had made. This again turned attention to the rapids, and on Sept. 7, 1901, Graham swam from the whirlpool to Lewiston.

This was to have been a double stunt, for Maud Willard voyaged through the whirlpool rapids to the pool in a barrel. It was Graham's intention, had the barrel gone out of the pool, to have accompanied it to Lewiston, but the currents of the whirlpool did not give up the barrel and its human freight until late that night, and poor Maud Willard was found lifeless in the barrel. A dog that accompanied her was alive.

After waiting for the currents to release the barrel, Graham made the swim, returning to the pool to assist in the rescue of Miss Willard. Her mother died of a broken heart about a month later.

Graham has swam from the pool to Lewiston since then, but not since Maud Willard died has he been through the whirlpool rapids. Nissen made his second trip, and Martha Wagenfuhrer made the barrel voyage, while Mrs. Annie Edson Taylor mado the plunge over the Horsehoe in a barrel of Kentucky oak, taking the laurels away from all other Niagara performers.

Since Graham's first performance at Niagara he has been growing old. His hair is streaked with gray, and his strength is not what it was twenty years ago. Niagara Falls folk who know him best are wondering if his remaining strength will be equal to the task of a race through the waters that killed Webb, that killed Flack, and that killed pretty Maud Willard.

WOMAN ARRESTED

For Setting Fire to Former Husband's Residence.

Bemidji, Minn., April 18.—Mrs. J. A. Wonzor, the ex-wife of J. A. Wonzor, whose residence at 1007 Beltrami avenue was partially destroyed by fire of an incendiary nature Friday night, was yesterday arrested on a charge of arson preferred against her by her former husband. She was taken before Judge Skinvik yesterday morning and the preliminary examination was adjourned for a week, and pending the examination Mrs. Wonzor will be in the custody of Sheriff Bailey, the judge not being empowered to grant bail. Wonzor claims that his wife several times threatened to burn the house, and that he has ample proof to show a motive for the crime and fasten it upon his former wife.

INSANE OR MURDERED?

Still No Trace of Magnus Wold Discovered.

Bemidji, Minn., April 18.—Edward Wold returned yesterday from the town of Buzzle, where he has been to investigate the disappearance of his brother, Magnus Wold, who has a homestead in the township. No trace of the missing man can be found. It is said that for a month or two prior to his departure from Buzzle Wold had been acting queerly and it is thought possible that he has been committed to some hospital for the insane. Inquiry has been made to the judge of probate at Grand Forks and also to the insane asylum at Jamestown.

Meanwhile the possibility that the man has been murdered for money will not be overlooked and close watch will be kept of the Red river.

CONFEDERATE MONEY

Passed on Saloonkeeper In Stock Yards District.

Chicago, April 18.—Anton Swadlinke, a saloonkeeper in the stock yards district, did a rushing business yesterday, when Dominick Dadridis made up his mind to quench the thirst of the major part of the population southwest of the stock yards. While the saloonkeeper rapidly exhausted his physical strength by drawing beer and other beverages which lined up seven deep before the bar. Dadridis stood in the open door and called more thirsty ones. Dadridis had a roll of paper money about as large as a pillow in his hand, and the saloonkeeper was figuring out that if the rush of business continued for a few hours he would soon be able to make a trip to Europe with his family. Dadridis put a $50 bill on the bar, and paid for refreshments received. He was given a crisp $20 bill in change.

As Dadridis and the over-thirsty army behind him disappeared in a saloon a block away, Swandlinke took an affectionate look at the $50 bill. It was a Confederate note.

Dadridis was soon under arrest, and in his cell he amused himself by tearing up about $50,000 of the same kind as that with which he paid for the refreshments. The $50 bill was "exhibit No. 1," today in police court. A number of the consumers of Swandlinke's beer, also were brought up as evidence.

EMINENT DOCTORS CURE
Catarrh

The heads of great hospitals, where scores of catarrhal patients are treated each year, are perhaps in the best position to appreciate the value of a remedy, which working along scientific, intelligent lines, brings permanent cure to even the chronic sufferer.

The staff of physicians of the Suffolk Hospital and Dispensary in Boston, where in less than two years, 83,271 patients have been registered, do not hesitate to pronounce Rexall Mucu-Tone the best cure for catarrh they have ever used.

Albert C. Smith is the president and treasurer and the Hon. Chas. J. Noyes and the Hon. James Stevens are vice-presidents. The secretary is F. H. Wallace, M. D., and the superintendent is W. C. Clarke, M. D.

President Smith's letter should be read by every catarrh sufferer. We print it in full:

"It gives me great satisfaction to report to you that after a most careful trial of Rexall Mucu-Tone, the corps of physicians of our institution agree that this compound is the best cure for catarrh which we have ever used.

"In all catarrhal diseases of the bronchial and nasal passages; catarrh of the stomach, intestines, kidneys and bladder; catarrhal troubles of the generative organs of women, etc., Mucu-Tone has effected remarkable permanent cures.

"Mucu-Tone seems to act immediately upon the blood and mucous membranes, strengthening their cells and healing the inflammation.

"We shall continue to use this valuable preparation, for nothing can compare with it in the treatment of catarrh and its kindred troubles.

"Yours very truly,
A. C. SMITH, President."

Certainly such testimony as this must convince even the most skeptical—certainly it will justify us in requesting catarrhal sufferers to give Rexall Mucu-Tone a trial; to give it a chance to speak for itself. If you will do this we know you will continue taking it until cured.

Rexall Mucu-tone

Is unlike all other catarrh remedies. It works through the blood vessels, going direct to the affected part whether in head, throat, stomach, kidneys or bladder; driving out the poisons and healing all inflammations of the mucous membranes. From the very first dose its strengthening influence will be felt and from four to six bottles will effect a complete cure of the worst cases. Your money back if not more than satisfied. We have a trial bottle for fifty cents, which we would like you to try on our recommendation.

MONEY FOR ROADS

About $103,459 Available In St. Louis County This Year.

County Board to Apportion Road Levy of $55,318.

Aside from any action that may be taken regarding the proposed courthouse, the meeting to be held by the board of county commissioners May 5 next is of more than passing interest to the taxpayers, particularly of the districts outside the city, for the reason that the division of the annual levy for county roads will be made. Commissioner Patterson introduced a resolution at the April meeting of the board with a view of fixing the amounts each road district should receive, but as one of the commissioners was absent it was decided to let the matter go over until the May meeting.

The amount of money that will be available for road building in St. Louis county this year is approximately $103,459. The county board, however, does not have control of the expenditure of more than half the amount, the amount of the county road levy for 1905 being $55,318.92, practically the same amount that was levied for the purpose last year.

Of the remaining amount to be expended, the various town boards in the county have levied a total of $38,740.65, which amount will be spent under the direction of the town supervisors.

Remaining over from the county road levy of last year is nearly $8,000 that was unexpended Jan. 1, 1905, although some few road bills have been paid since that date.

The state legislature has made an appropriation from the state road fund of $1,400 to be spent on the Vermilion road, these amounts bringing the total up to the foregoing sum mentioned.

Just what proportion of the annual road levy each road district will secure this year cannot be told definitely until the commissioners have threshed that matter out among themselves, but the division is likely to be somewhat along the lines of the apportionment made in 1904, which was as follows:

Second district, Kugler	$8,500
Fourth district, Morcom	8,500
Fifth district, Kauppi	11,000
Sixth district, McInnis	8,500
Seventh district, Connors	8,500
Miscellaneous	3,000
City of Duluth	3,000
Miller trunk road, south of St. Louis river	2,900
Miller trunk road, north of Tower	900
Bridge across Whiteface river	500

Commissioner P. J. Ryan will this year have charge of the road district formerly under supervision of J. D. Connors. Of the apportionment of $2,900 for the Miller trunk road south of the St. Louis river $1,150 was spent in Commissioner Kauppi's district, $1,000 in Commissioner Connor's district and $750 in Commissioner McInnis' district.

The levies made by the various towns in the county for road purposes this year are as follows:

Alborn	$152.41
Biwabik	5,123.23
Breitung	2,275.50
Canosia	530.10
Clinton	295.62
Cotton	756.12
Culver	266.30
Duluth	3,347.37
Fayal	1,580.16
Floodwood	260.17
Fredenberg	729.06
Gnesen	718.55
Grand Lake	720.28
Great Scott	3,510.91
Halden	176.66
Hermann	1,407.21
Industrial	642.33
Kelsey	462.25
Lakewood	784.19
Lavell	801.57
Meadowlands	516.86
Mesaba	299.36
Missabe Mountain	9,637.56
Morse	3,867.08
Total	$38,740.65

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Governor Johnson has offered a reward of $500 for the capture of the murderers of Annie Kintop, who was outraged and killed near Little Falls, last Monday. The proclamation of the governor says suspicion points to two negroes, one very dark and full blooded, and a mulatto, each about 26 years old.

The Des Moines county, Iowa, commissioners of the insane, adjudged insane Mrs. Nettie Craven, who once sued the estate of Senator Fair, alleging that she had been a common law wife of the senator's.

The Yosemite club of San Francisco, Monday, refused a permit to hold a fight during April. This means that the Jimmy Britt-Jabez White fight scheduled for this month will not take place on the date previously fixed.

Fifteen hundred pupils in the public and parochial schools were taken from their studies at Council Bluffs, Monday, and will be required to remain away until they are vaccinated, as the result of a recent decision of the board of health. The members of the board of education appealed to the courts which sustained the health board.

Harold McGrath, author and playwright, and his bride, who was Mrs. Alma Kenyon of Sioux Falls, S. D., gave a wedding supper at New York Monday night to several friends to whom the news of the marriage was first broken. McGrath and his fiancee went to Bridgeport, Conn., where they were married by a justice of the peace.

Chief of Police Gowland of Fargo, Monday afternoon arrested two negroes, suspected of complicity in the murder of Annie Kintop at Little Falls, Minn. The men answer the description sent out from Little Falls of the suspected men. The negroes were held in the county jail until the arrival of the Minnesota officers.

Several of the ten pension examiners against whom Commissioner Warner has preferred charges, handed in their resignations Monday. Commissioner Warner will report to the secretary of the interior on the case shortly. In the meantime it is expected all ten of the examiners will resign. If they are exonerated in the report, reinstatement will be sought. The resignations have not yet been accepted.

LITTLE BUSINESS TALKS.

What would you think of a man who, with a street car line at his door, walked ten miles a day to his place of business—not because he could not afford to ride, but simply because he had "never tried it?" And what of the man who tries to solve all of the little problems of life without using the Herald want ads., simply because he has "never tried them?"

A "Business Opportunity" ad. may secure for you the capital needed to pull one of pour "air castles" down to earth—if it can be done without shattering the structure.

AMERICANS GET LARGE CONTRACTS IN FAR EAST

New York, April 18.—Important contracts have been closed for the American equipment of the first steel mill to be built in China, and for Japanese steel wire drawing, rolling mill and blast furnace plants. A Cleveland (Ohio) company secured the contracts through its New York offices. The work entails an expenditure of upward of $3,000,000.

The company which is to build a plant in the vicinity of Shanghai, has ordered a lot of machinery, including an electrically operated furnace charging equipment. The contract for the Japanese steel wire drawing mill is the first of its description ever let in the Far East. Another Japanese contract calls for all the machinery necessary to go in a large rolling mill and blast furnace plant to be built in connection with the government arsenal at Kure.

Secures More Land.

The Lake Superior & Southeastern Railway company has taken up its option and secured title to six lots on Railroad street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth avenues west, for $9,000. The warranty deed, which was filed yesterday, runs from C. H. Lloyd and the property is described as lots 273, 275, 277, 279, 281, 283, block 18, Duluth Proper, Second division. None of the lots bear any improvements, the price being regarded as very good for that class of property.

LICENSE GRANTED; THEN WITHDRAWN

Aldermen Think Better of Action on Parlor Theater.

Woodland Residents Protest Against Stub Line Car Service.

The council last evening:
Granted and then withheld Parlor theater license.
Bought tar macadam mixing plant.
Heard protest against car service from Woodland Park residents.
Confirmed sprinkling districts and ordered board to advertise for bids.
Received recommendation of city attorney for public meeting to discuss changes in building ordinances.

* * *

After being once granted by the council on a vote of 10 to 6, the Parlor theater license was taken away again on a motion to reconsider by Alderman McEwen, and the matter was laid over for one week for a report from the city attorney on a legal point.

The report of the committee on police and license, composed of Aldermen Tessmen, Chesney and Lyle, recommended the license for passage.

"I don't feel rabid at all in this matter," said Alderman Wilson, "but it seems to me this place is conducted in a manner that the council cannot afford to sanction. The charter expressly provides that the council has power to license and regulate these places, and we cannot escape by the argument that it is not within our province. The good name of the city demands that we should turn down this license."

Alderman Moore called attention to the report of the chief of police, which had been called for. The chief reported that the theater had been in the city for twenty years, and had lately been remodelled and enlarged. He stated that there was a hole in the wall through which drinks are passed from the saloon to the theater, and served by waiters the same as in other variety theaters. He also stated that the "actresses" frequented the boxes and solicited the men to buy drinks.

"Is the report as bad as you expected?" asked Alderman Moore.

"It's about along the line," said Alderman Tessmen.

"We made the owners of the Metropolitan theater close the door connecting with the saloon," said Alderman Moore. "It is certainly not in the line of good morals to grant this license. Beer is served all over the house."

"There is no door," said Alderman Tessman.

"Well, a hole in the wall, then," responded Alderman Moore.

On the vote which followed, the following division was made:

Ayes—Aldermen Chesney, Lyle, McEwen, Olson, Schaffer, Ribenack, Harker, Trevillion, Tessman and Mueller—10.

Nays—Aldermen Barnes, Getchell, Haven, Moore, Waugh and Wilson—6.

Alderman McEwen, apparently, regretted his vote as soon as he had cast it, and as soon as the other business had been disposed of, he arose.

"Since moving into this council," he said, "I have always tried to vote in accordance with my convictions on the questions which have come up. I regret the manner in which I voted on the Parlor theater question, and I wish to move for a reconsideration. I do not wish to be known as supporting such an institution."

"This is a very important matter," said Alderman Moore. "In view of the stand taken by Mayor Cullum in handling saloons, it is not wise for this council to be put in the guise of being careless of the morals of the city. Every citizen knows the character of this place. It is the vilest possible. Refreshments are served through women who are paid a commission on their sales. It has nothing to recommend it and everything to condemn."

"All cities have these necessary evils," said Alderman Tessman. "They have variety theaters conducted along the lines of this one, and the class of men who are attracted to this theater would feel out of place in a respectable house.

"We will go before the people as granting this license in the face of the fact that we have a report which says that women solicit the sales of liquor there," said Alderman Wilson. "I don't believe there is a man here who, if brought face to face with that question, would countenance such a state of affairs. I don't believe I am narrow in this matter, but this place is a festering sore on our city's morals. We say to the police, allow that to run, in the face of the report that women are, in the phrase of the street, 'hustling' sales of beer there."

"I wish to be understood," said Alderman Chesney. "I claim that if we grant the license and the place is not conducted properly, it is the duty of the police to attend to it."

The motion to reconsider carried on the following vote:

Ayes—Aldermen Barnes, Harker, Lyle, Moore, Olson, Waugh, Wilson, Haven and Getchell, 9.

Nays—Aldermen Chesney, Mueller, Tessman, Trevillion, Ribenack and Schaffer, 6.

The question then came up as to whether the council had a legal right to license a theater where liquor is sold, and on a motion by Alderman Lyle it was referred to the city attorney for a report.

* * *

Without any discussion on the question, the council passed a resolution ordering the purchase of the tar macadam mixer, and directing that the money be paid from the general fund. This was in accordancewith the recommendation of the city comptroller, who reported that this was the proper fund from which to pay the purchase price, and that the money would be available for the purchase. The price paid was $9,665.97.

* * *

Protesting against the car service at [illegible] a petition signed by [illegible] seven property owners in that district was presented to the council.

"We have paid high prices for our lots," the petitioners said, "and we have been induced to pay those prices and live in that locality by people who were and are interested in the street railway.

"True the line from Hunter's Park to Woodland Park does not pay. Neither does the one from Twenty-third avenue east to Lakeside, or any other suburban line pay alone, but when a company gets for nothing franchises worth hundreds of thousands of dollars, it takes the least profitable with the most.

"Suppose the company has allowed the line beyond Hunter's Park to deteriorate. Suppose it has not the power to run double truck cars. Whose fault is that?

"The next step will probably be to discontinue the stub line."

The petition was referred to the council committee on railroads.

* * *

All of the sprinkling districts with the exception of the Fourth which includes a part of the West End, were confirmed. This was held up in order that some alterations may be made in it by the board. The board was ordered to advertise for bids for contracts to sprinkle the streets in the other districts of the city, and within ten days the work will be commenced.

* * *

City Attorney Bert Fesler called attention to the fact that both the building inspector and the builders and architects in the city, are anxious that certain changes should be made in the building ordinances.

"There is considerable difference of opinion as to the changes that should be made," he said in a written communication to the council. "The building inspector naturally thinks first of the safety and the builder of the cost. Some concessions have heretofore been made to the builder which may not have endangered the safety of construction, but which have violated certain portions of the ordinance. The new compilation of ordinances will soon be ready for submission, and I would recommend that the proper committee of the council hold a public meeting at an early date and invite all interested to attend."

* * *

In a written opinion requested by the council, Mr. Fesler stated that the city has no right to use Brewery creek for a trunk sewer without securing an easement from the owners of the property through which it runs.

* * *

In another opinion, which the council also requested, Mr. Fesler stated that the present ordinances gave the council full power over the placing of telephone wires and poles, and the power to prohibit the companies placing them where they would injure the trees. He stated, however, that it might be well for an ordinance to be drafted which would make it plain that the council wishes to exercise this power.

* * *

Permission was granted the board of public works to remove the loose stones which threaten to fall from the point of rocks at Fourteenth avenue west, and to charge the same to the permanent improvement fund.

* * *

A petition for the repaving of Second street from Seventh avenue east to Sixth avenue west, was submitted, and referred to the committee on streets, alleys, and sidewalks.

* * *

A petition for the construction of the proposed city dock at the foot of Ramsey street, was presented and referred to the proper committee. It was signed by seventy-five West Duluth business men.

* * *

In spite of a petition signed by most of the tenants in the Manhattan building asking that no license be granted for a saloon in that building, the council gave permission to remove a saloon from the Bowery to the ground floor of the building. It was the opinion of the committee that the question was one for the owner of the building and the tenants to settle. Alderman Barnes, Getchell, McEwen, Trevillion and Moore voted against the removal.

* * *

The committee on police and license reported progress in the hearing of the Robert's case.

* * *

The revised plat of the block between Twelfth and Thirteenth avenues east and Fifth and Sixth street, was confirmed after the situation had been explained by J. D. Howard of the Howard Investment company.

"The place has been a cow pasture for year," said Mr. Howard. "We have gone in and improved it, and other investors are following. The confirmation of this plat is merely a matter of convenience to us. We can sell the property by metes and bounds if the new plat is not confirmed, but it will mean a lot of extra description in the deeds."

"I am not just celar in my own mind as to the policy of cutting up property in this way," said Alderman Moore. "I shall vote to confirm this, but I do not wish to have it considered a precedent."

* * *

Mayor Cullum was empowered to appoint twelve park policemen to be paid out of the park fund.

* * *

According to the report of the committee on light and water it will be impossible to increase the number of lights this year.

Duluth Will Have No Amateur Ball League This Summer.

"Al" Cummings Pitches For Wisconsin—Boston Club Sold.

Duluth will not have a Commercial league of amateur baseball clubs this year.

This was practically decided on at a meeting of representatives from the different teams composing last year's league, which was held last evening for the purpose of discussing plans for the coming year.

The decision was reached largely as a result of the expense of renting grounds for the semi-weekly games which would be played.

At least six of the wholesale houses wil have teams in the field this year. The Marshall-Wells team is already organized and the first game will be played next Sunday. The team is stronger than last year, and it should make a good showing among the amateurs at the Head of the Lakes.

Teams will also be organized by the employes of Kelley-How-Thomson company, F. A. Patrick, Stone-Ordean-Wells company, Gowan-Peyton-Twohy company and the Lieithhead Drug company. The First National bank team and the Northern Pacific nine will also be in the field again this summer.

While all these teams will be reorganized and the plan to form a league would appear to be the natural outcome, the proposition was received coldly by the representatives last evening. The players much prefer not to be tied down to any schedule and to be free to arrange games with outside teams as the fancy strikes them.

Here the matter rests, and unless some further action is taken there will be no league of amateur teams in the city this summer.

Calumet, Mich., April 18.—At the meeting of the magnates of the Copper Country-Soo Baseball league, in Marquette, last week, a schedule providing for eighty-three games was adopted, the season opening May 17.

According to the schedule adopted, Calumet gets 43 games at home, Sault Ste. Marie 48, Hancock 47 and Lake Linden 33. Lake Linden and Sault Ste. Marie travel more than the other clubs. The former plays 50 games away from home, Sault Ste. Marie makes 8 trips to the copper country, while Hancock and Lake Linden make 3 trips each to Sault Ste. Marie and Calumet 2 trips. Hancock is away from home but five Sundays in the entire season.

INDIAN WOUNDED.

La Crosse Officer Fired to Frighten Him.

La Crosse, Wis., April 18.—Red Eagle, an Indian from Tomah, Wis., lies in a hospital in this city with a bullet wound in his leg, inflicted by Patrolman Michels Britton.

The police had had notice of runaway boys from the Indian schools at Tomah and Flandreau, S. D., and an officer saw three Indians on the head end of a train early this morning. Red Eagle started to run and the officers fired to frighten him, but accidentally struck him and shattered the leg bone. He is in a serious condition.

He was accompanied by Sanborn, White Eagle and Mike White Eagle, all coming here to visit the Indian camp across the river. They were not runaways.

ST. PAUL MAN

Helped Japs By His Ball-Bearing Rifle.

City of Mexico, April 18.—Capt. Orlan Clyde Cullen, formerly of St. Paul, Minn., and a son of the late Charles W. Cullen, claims to be indirectly responsible for the fall of Port Arthur. He says that a new ball-bearing rifle gun, which he invented some time ago, was used by the Japanese before Port Arthur, and caused the frightful havoc that resulted in the Russian surrender. He says that a number of the guns have been used by the Japanese since early in the present war, and that he has entered into an agreement with the Japanese government for the manufacture of many more.

Capt. Cullen says there is no recoil with his gun, that it remains perfectly cool while 2,400 shots are fired, and that it has 40 per cent more velocity, penetration and range than any other artillery piece now in use.

Capt. Cullen is now connected with the Imperial Marine association of Tokio, which is seeking to establish a direct line of steamers between Japan and Mexico. He is in this country in connection with that project.

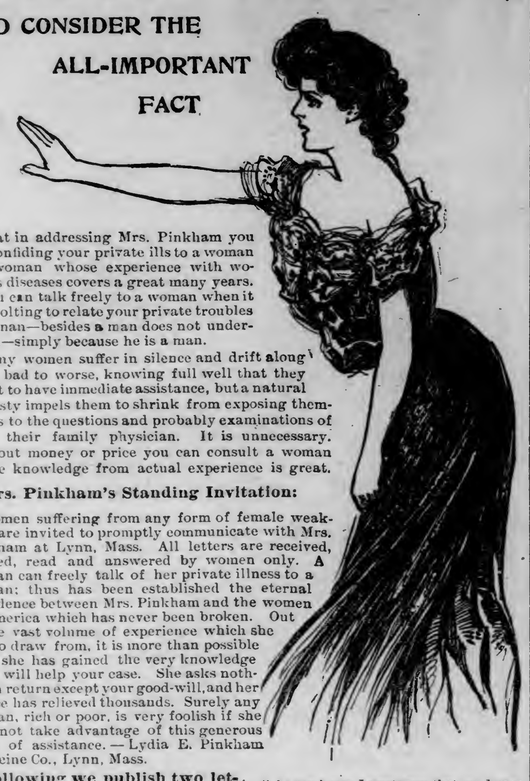
STOP! WOMEN,

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT



That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with woman's diseases covers a great many years.

You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result.

First letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For eight years I have suffered something terrible every month with my periods. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have ovarian and womb trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 59th and E. Capitol Sts., Benning P. O., Washington, D. C.

Second letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their valueand what you have done for me.

"As you know, I wrote you that my doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I then wrote you, telling you my ailments. I followed your advice and am entirely well. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I owe my life to you and to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I wish every suffering woman would read this testimonial and realize the value of writing to you and your remedy."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 59th and E. Capitol Streets, Benning P. O., Washington, D. C.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women whose testimony is so unquestionable, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free and always helpful.

NO MONEY, NO STATUE

Sculptor Removes McKinley Memorial For Lack of Pay.

Logansport, Ind., April 18.—In broad daylight C. D. Billman, a sculptor, yesterday removed from its pedestal in City park an heroic statue of William McKinley, which had been erected by citizens as a memorial to the martyred president. Billman alleges that the statue had not been paid for. In the absence of all city officials at a municipal league meeting yesterday afternoon, Billman backed a wagon against the base of the monument and, with block and tackle, transferred the monument to the backyard of his home.

The monument was arranged for by a committee of citizens shortly after McKinley's assassination. Subscription papers were circulated to raise funds, but through some mistake, Billman alleges, he was never compensated. The statue represented a draped female figure holding a laurel wreath. The monument had been the subject of adverse criticism because it was situated opposite a livery stable and a saloon. Many persons peacefully watched Billman cart away the sculpture.

A. T. LINDHOLM DIES.

Largely Known Among Scandinavians of Northwest.

Stillwater, April 18.—Axel T. Lindholm, for many years actively engaged in state Democratic politics and widely known throughout the Northwest, died at his home in this city Sunday afternoon, 72 years old. Pulmonary weakness was the immediate cause of death.

Mr. Lindholm was born in Stockholm, Sweden, and came to the United States fifty years ago. He was appointed to the office of deputy surveyor of logs during the administration of Governor Lind. He was twice candidate for secretary of state and later occupied the position of assistant postmaster at Stillwater.

Associated with Col. Hans Mattson, ex-secretary of state, Mr. Lindholm conducted a banking and insurance business in St. Paul for many years, withdrawing three years ago. He was at different times a resident of Mankato and Red Wing.

Mr. Lindholm was largely known among the Scandinavians of the Northwest and took an active part in many of their projects in this and other states.

He is survived by a widow and three daughters, one of them being Mrs. R. M. Anderson of Stillwater.

PURE FOOD LAWS

Paul Pierce Tells of the Poisonous Foods Manufactured.

Blames Whisky Interests For Defeating Pure Food Bill.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Paul Pierce of Chicago, editor of "Wha. to Eat," the official organ of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments, is in Washington in the interest of national food legislation, and for the purpose of making further investigation into the connection between certain whisky interests and leading advocates of the late pure food bill.

"America is the only civilized nation in the world that has no national law to protect its people from food adulterations," said Mr. Pierce at the New Willard, "and food manufacturers take advantage of this omission. We have heard much of the oil kings, the steel and railroad magnates, the coal barons, the bloated bondholders and lords of real estate, but little has been said about the moneyed kings in the ranks of fraudulent and deleterious food manufacturers, who, as a class, and possibly as individuals, control more capital than representatives of many other classes of industry combined. Chemists tell us that many of the chemicals used in foods are poisonous. Experiments have shown them to be detrimental to health. One leading chemist says: 'We eat thirty-five doses of poisonous chemicals a day.' As to the children, experiments have shown that where families on one street were supplied with pure milk, the children grew strong and healthy, whereas, the families that were supplied with the usual city milk in the same locality suffered. When you take the total deaths in this country, how many, especially of the young, are poisoned by bad feeding, unsanitary conditions, ignorance, drunkenness and poisoned food and milk? And it does not make any difference whether formaldehyde in milk kills 10,000 or 1,000,000, if it kills a single baby it is an awful wrong to put it in the milk; but look at the figures.

"Henry Irving Dodge has recently published, in a leading magazine, an article on food adulteration. It is his second chapter of the article on this subject and is run under the caption 'How the Baby Pays the Tax.' In this article it appears from the editor's note that it was prepared with the co-operation of the chief of the division of foods of the United States Bureau of Chemistry. Mr. Dodge says: 'During the year 1904 seventy-seven thousand nine hundred and eighty-five (77,985) persons died in the metropolis. Of these twenty-one thousand and nine hundred and fifty-two (21,952) were under 2 years old.' Health Commissioner Darlington says that one-half of the infant mortality is due to stomach or bowel diseases. Babies under 2 years old feed almost absolutely on milk. A high official of the New York health department says: 'No doubt if we could get pure milk, mortality of infants would decrease 50 per cent.' These figures are based on babies under 2 years old in one city only. Take children under 5, and what an alarming mortality from bad feeding and poisoned food. Here is the field for some of our millionaire philanthropists. Let them give the babies pure milk—the children pure food—and let them help us in this fight for food legislation against the great odds we are contending.

"Putresence of conditions on which Americans are dependent for protection from the life-destroying adulterated foods that now flood our markets,' continued Mr. Pierce, 'are revealed more clearly than ever in the efforts of Secretary Allen of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments to justify his conduct in working so arduously for one of the factions in a whisky war at a time when the duties of a food officer calls for the highest honor and the most conscientious labor. Mr. Allen admits practically all the charges made against him, but attempts to justify himself by laying the blame on the executive committee of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Deparments. From Mr. Allen's statements it would appear that the object of the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments is more to promote the cause of certain whisky interests than to fight food adulterations. Surely the pure food cause of America has sunk to a low and impotent stage if food officers must advertise whisky interests in order to finance their crusade against poisonous foods. It is to work for the cause of pure food for our wives and little children that we regard as our principal task and not to advance the sale of certain brands of whisky as is seemingly Mr. Allen's interpretation of his duty, which view appears to be held by others interested."

Continuing, Mr. Pierce said both whisky factions must show their hands; they have been claiming they were for national food legislation, but one faction opposed the bill recently before teh senate because it claimed the whisky clause contained in the bill was a virtual endorsement of one kind of whisky and that the whisky it thus endorsed might contain an excessive amount of poisonous and adulteduous matter. "We propose to give these whisky factions an opportunity to prove their interest in honest and fair good legislation," continued Mr. Pierce. "If they are acting in good faith, they can agree on a clause for the bill that will protect the consumer. The whisky interests that opposed the bill are on record as being in favor of a label that will guarantee the consumer pure whisky and advocate that the analysis of the whisky be put upon the label, but they properly insist that all whisky shall be so labeled and not a part only. Some of the officers of our independent food organizations seem to be giving most of their efforts to the promoting of what they see fit to call pure whisky; the whisky industry wields a powerful influence on food legislation. It was the whisky clause in the pure food bill that caused its defeat."

"While I have supported, in every way possible, the National Association of State Dairy and Food Departments and the splendid work that is being done by our state food commissioners," Mr. Pierce concluded, "at the same time I have attacked food officials whom I considered were not devoting their attention in the manner they should towards stopping food frauds. When terrible conditions are existing in this country, due to poisonous adulterations and impure foods, when deadly concoctions are being placed on the market by fraudulent food manufacturers, and when baby-killing food adulterators are permitted to stalk forth among us, blighting our homes, feeding on the lives of our children to fatten their purses, it is time that pure food workers regard some other subject of greater import than whisky. My criticism against food officials for devoting so much of their time to whisky interests has resulted in their agreeing to allow no whisky trade interest to be represented on the floor of their national convention to be held in Portland, Oregon, in July."

UNDER TWO FIRES

Premier Laurier Now Being Censured By the Church.

Charged By Tories With Being Tool of Hierarchy.

Ottawa, Ont., April 18.—Fresh complications are introduced into the Northwest schools tangle by the denunciation by Mgr. Clouthier, bishop of Three Rivers, of Laurier, who is held up to public execration by the Tories as the pliant tool of the hierarchy. He now is charged on the other hand with having stopped far short of what the hierarchy required.

The compromise Laurier is carrying through parliament is characterized by the bishop as "a decoy." The hierarchy significantly objects that the clauses in effect recognize the supremacy of the state. Another objection is that such control as is at present exercised by the Northwest territorial authorities over the schools is to be continued by the new provinces. For these and other reasons the hierachy does not accept Laurier's clauses as a settlement or as more than a step gap. It regards the amended provisions as in reality perpetuating an intolerable situation.

It demands eventually, instead of the existing territorial system that Laurier is willing to concede and for doing which he has aroused such a storm of hostility, the full right to choose its own school system as regards the teaching of the Roman Catholic religion and the French language.

"Our duty for the moment," says the monsignore, "is to live alongside our English fellow citizens, respecting their rights, but forcing them as the occasion may require to respect ours."

The faithful are called on to preserve in the cause until they have obtained full and ample justice. Thus, Laurier is charged by his foes with paying his political debts to the hierarchy by giving away national rights and, in practice, establishing a state church; and by his friends with holding back what they are plainly entitled to and are resolved to have.

Laurier having accepted the challenge of the opposition to open a Northwest constitutency, and test public opinion by giving Frank Oliver the vacant portfolio of the interior, the Tories have suddenly quieted down. They supposed Walter Scott, member for Western Assiniboia, had the promise of the portfolio, and every one felt sure if Scott was sent to his constituency for re-election on taking an office of profit in the government he stood a mighty good chance of being defeated. Laurier knew better than to take such a chance.

Instead of Scott going to almost certain defeat in Western Assiniboia, Oliver goes to Edmonton, where he was given a majority of 2,000 at the last general election, and will be returned in triumph. Scott's merits will be rewarded with the premiership of one of the new provinces or a lieutenant governorship, or a dominion senatorship, or, after the bills creating the provinces have been safely passed, and excitement has quieted down the new federal portfolio to be created by the cutting in two of the department of the interior, now too cumbrous and unwieldy to be administered with efficiency by any one man.

The debates of the last week in parliament have been in some respects more noteworthy than any in the history of Canada since the exciting days of the Pacific railway scandal. In one of these Mr. Foster charged Laurier with consulting a foreigner, the apostolic delegate, in relation to the Northwest bills, whilst giving the go-by to his own minister representing the Northwest in the cabinet and representatives in parliament of Northwest interests. Sir Wilfrid sat silent, listening, undemonstrative, and Foster shouted: "He sits there in abject silence and allows me to state here in this house by that silence that he did take care to consult the papal delegate." Mr. Foster went a great deal further bombarding the prime minister with taunting defiances, challenges, and inuendoes, Laurier answering never a word to the end. If anything could have occurred to intensify the ties of devotion to their leader of the great mass of the Laurier men this sort of thing would have done it.

Clifford Sifton, late minister of the interior, was credited with having had the refusal of the position of Canada's high commissioner in Great Britain at first, but now is supposed later to have had something more congenial and profitable in view. The Northwest schools question is not going to be finally settled by the education clauses of the bills establishing the two new Northwest provinces. An appeal to the last court of resort in the British empire, the judicial committee of the imperial privy council is almost a dead certainty, and when it is made Clifford Sifton may not be found far off.

Anglers from all parts of America within a few hundred miles of Lake Nepigon will be glad to learn that the new provincial government of Ontario has decided to exercise its right to cancel the commercial fishing monopoly in the lake given by the late Ross administration to what is styled the Canada Fish company. The concession was prejudicial to the interests of gentlemen anglers and calculated to ruin what had become known as the finest speckled trout waters on this continent, or anywhere else. Luckily for sport, the concern was discovered on the arrival of the Whitney administration on the scene to have gone behind $10,000 in its rental payments, and the present ruling combination at Toronto took advantage of the opportunity to re-enter on the possession of the lake as part of the crown domain. The commissioner of provincial fisheries now is preparing to take hold of the speckled beauties that revel therein henceforth for true sport.

LAND RESERVED

In Connection With Upper Mississippi Reservoirs.

Washington, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The register and receiver at Cass Lake, Minn., have been instructed by the general land office to withdraw temporarily from sale or other disposition and reserve for flowage purposes in connection with the construction of the reservoirs at the headwaters of the Mississippi river, the southwest quarter of section 2, township 145, range 32.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer imitations of the manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., and in order to buy the genuine article and to get its beneficial effects, one has only to note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package. BEELS WINS ON FOUL.

St. Paul, April 18.—After winning one fall from Jim Parr of England in 1 min. 24 sec., Fred Beels of Wisconsin was last night given the match on a foul. Parr repeatedly attempted to use the strangle hold, which had been barred, and after warning him several times, the referee gave the bout to Beels, after fourteen minutes of wrestling for the second fall.

FOUR BOYS KILLED

As Result of Panic Following False Alarm of Fire.

Crushed In Jam For Free Tickets at Indianapolis Theater.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 18.—Frenzied by a false alarm of fire several hundred eager newsboys, struggling to obtain their share of free tickets to a local theater, stampeded in a narrow stairway in the Masonic temple last night, crushing out the life of four boys, and it is believed fatally injuring several others.

The tickets were being distributed by a representative of a patent medicine company. Long before the time appointed for the distribution the stairs of the Masonic temple at the southwest corner of Washington street and Capitol avenue, were crowded with a pushing, yelling crowd of newsboys, each anxious to be first to receive his pass. When the distribution began the excitement became more intense and the efforts of several policemen who had been detailed to prevent trouble were unavailing. It is stated by a witness that some of the boys, anxious to get ahead of those who were ahead, shouted "fire." Instantly those at the top, facing about, with almost superhuman strength, began to force their way to the bottom of the stairs. Shrieks and personal encounters followed for a few seconds, when those at the head of the stairs fell headlong on the struggling mass at the bottom of the stairs. Instantly policemen from the central station, who responded to a riot call, began the work of rescue. Four boys were dead when extricated from their position at the bottom of the stairs. Others believed to have been fatally crushed were taken out as fast as they could be disentangled from their frenzied companions, who fought and clung to each other in desperation. The immense crowd of people from the business district attracted by wild rumors, jostled about the bottom of the stairs and hampered the work of the police and ambulance corps.

The dead were hurriedly placed in ambulances and sent to the morgue for identification. The fatally injured were sent to the city hospital and the city dispensary while many who received only slight injuries were made comfortable in carriages and sent to their homes.

GRAVE DIGGER AS COACHMAN

His Employment For Secretary Shaw Defended By Commission.

Washington, April 18.—The employment by the government of an alleged grave digger as coachman to Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, under certification from the civil service commission, resulted in the issuance of a statement by Commissioner Cooley. The statement defends the three names certified from which Secretary Shaw could choose. It was shown that the alleged grave digger was for many years coachman to the superintendent of the government hospital for the insane, and Mr. Cooley states that there could be no criticism of his ability to perform the duties of coachman.

Mr. Cooley then proceeds to show that the fourth name on the eligible list was the one Secretary Shaw apparently wanted to reach. He comes to this conclusion because, on March 1, the secretary of the treasury requested the certification of this man, who is a distinguished driver, and understood horses thoroughly. The name in question was Robert B. Shepherd.

"Under the regulations," continues Mr. Cooley, "the commission was without power to grant the request of the secretary, but on its face it appeared so reasonable, that a form of executive order was prepared, to be submitted to the president, making a special exception in the case. At this point in the proceedings Mr. Shepherd made the mistake of calling at the office of the commission and exhibiting a letter from the Republican leader of the Twenty-third assembly district of the county of New York, eulogizing Mr. Shepherd's able work in the late election, and assuring all whom it might concern that he was entitled to some recognition. The attention of the commission being called to the case, an investigation of the case was made before submitting it to the president, which showed, on Mr. Shepherd's sworn statement, that there was nothing to indicate that he had driven a horse for four years. In his younger and regenerate days he was valet to John Whelan, a prominent Democratic leader in New York city and counsel to the corporation under the administration of Mayor Van Wyck. It showed that Shepherd afterwards entered the employ of Alfred Henry Lewis, in the same capacity, the latter having rendered no inconsiderable service to the Republican ticket during the last campaign. The efforts he put forth were of such a distinguished character as to call forth praise of the Republican district leader aforesaid."

Mr. Cooley concludes as follows:

"The commission was guided solely by the desire to guard the secretary of the treasury from possible physical injury from the apparently inexperienced driver, who was being forced upon him by political leaders, and to assure his retention in the high office for which he is so admirably qualified."

SHRECK WINS FIGHT

With George Gardner By Superior Staying Qualities.

Salt Lake City, Utah, April 18.—Mike Shreck of Cincinnati, knocked out George Garnder of Lowell, in the latter part of the twentieth round of a ferocious twenty round contest last night. The knockout blow was an overhand right swing to the neck Gardner rose before the tenth count, but was so weak that the referee stopped the fight to save him further punishment. Neither man used any science, and the battle became merely a test of endurance. Blood flowed freely from both fighters, and it was give and take in about equal distribution until the final round when Shreck's superior staying qualities won him the fight.

The house refused to enlarge the opportunities for getting divorces in this state, and by a vote of 20 for and 62 against killed the Gjertsen bill making it a ground for divorce that a married person is an habitual user of drugs, or that he or she is sentenced to a reformatory.

The Wilson bill, prohibiting corporations organized under the laws of the state from holding stockholders' meetings outside the state for the election of directors, was indefinitely postponed by the house on motion.

The senate amended Lennon's hotel inspector bill to provide for inspection fees of 50 cents to $3, and to provide that it shall not apply to hotels in cities under 10,000. Both houses then passed it.

After once refusing to do so, the house yesterday afternoon returned to the senate the Wohlhuter game and fish code which both houses had passed. After the senate had passed the bill and it had gone back to the house, Senator Morgan discovered that he did not approve of it, and got it reconsidered. Then the senate asked the house to return it for amendment. Fearing that it meant the death of the bill, the house refused.

When the engrossed bill came up to Lieutenant-Governor Jones for signature, he refused to sign, on the ground that the senate had reconsidered the vote by which the bill passed.

While this would appear to give the speaker or lieutenant-governor the right of veto if this refusal would stick, there seems to be no way by which a presiding officer could be compelled to act, short of impeachment.

B. S. Bennett of Fosston led in the valiant fight made in the house yesterday against the revoking of the resolution asking congress to open for settlement the forest reserves in the Chippewa reservations. He said he was not opposed to forestry, but he was opposed to a policy which attempts to segregate over 600,000 acres of land and take for forestry purposes 145,000 acres of land that belongs to the state.

A member from the northern part of the state—not from Duluth—said regarding the vote on this matter yesterday afternoon: "There are fellows in that house that would gleefully vote to put a mile-high fence around Northern Minnesota, and put a time lock on it so nobody could get in or make improvements for a hundred years. The trouble is we are growing too fast and getting too many votes, and they are afraid we will get strong enough to demand and force our rights. Which is rather saucy, but unfortunately more or less true.

CAME NEAR DYING

From an Awful Skin Humour. Scratched Till Blood Ran. Wasted to Skeleton.

CURED BY CUTICURA

One Application Soothed Him to Sleep. Cure Speedy and Permanent.

"When my little boy was three months old his head broke out with a rash, which was very itchy and ran considerable watery fluid. We tried everything we could, but he got worse all the time till it spread to his arms, legs, and then to his entire body, and he came near dying. It itched so he would scratch till the blood ran, and a thin yellowish stuff would be all over his pillow in the morning. I had to put mittens on his hands to keep him from tearing his skin. He got so weak he took fainting spells and we would think him dying. He was almost a skeleton and his little hands were thin like claws.

"He was bad about eight months when we tried Cuticura. I had not laid him down in his cradle in the daytime for a long time. He had got so that he just slept in our arms all the time.

INSTANT RELIEF

"I washed him with Cuticura Soap and put on one application of Cuticura Ointment and he was so soothed that I put him in the cradle. You don't know how glad I felt when he felt better. It took one box of Cuticura Ointment, pretty near one cake of Cuticura Soap, and about half a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, to cure. I think he would have died only for the Cuticura."

FIRST AID IN COAL MINES

Expected to Save Many Lives In Anthracite Region.

Pottsville, Pa., April 18.—Hundreds of lives will be saved, it is expected, in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania through the action of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company in adopting plans to extend the benefits of the first aid to the injured system in the mines.

The mortality list of the anthracite region each year is largely added to by deaths from wounds and injuries which are not necessarily fatal, but which result in death because of the loss of blood and the lapse of time ensuing before skilled medical aid can be secured. The method of handling injured men at the bottom of shafts and slopes has also been clumsy and helped to decrease the chances of recovery for an injured miner.

The whole system of handling the injured has been revolutionized by the Reading company, and steps have been taken to organize first-aid corps at all the collieries. About 200 young men will be enlisted in this work and it is the intention of the company to reward them with appointments as assistant foremen.

Dr. George H. Halberstadt of Pottsville has been delivering lectures on this subject to the employes of the Reading company this winter, and his organization of a model first-aid corps at the Wadesville colliery and the gratifying results achieved led the company to decide to extend the system to all its mines.

Surgeons at hospitals where patients have been received who were treated by the first-aid corps organized by Dr. Halberstadt, are unanimous in testifying to the value of the system, and several men already probably owe their lives to the aid thus rendered.*It is considered certain that the plans outlined by Dr. Halberstadt will soon be adopted by every coal company in the country.

When a man is injured, the members of the first-aid corps are instructed to respond to a call in double quick time, carrying a litter or stretcher and the box containing the bandages, splints, etc. Fractures of the foot, leg, thigh, rib, collarbone, arm and forearm, or injuries to the head are promptly dressed. For burns of the body a dressing of picric acid gauze is applied.

The corps is also instructed in the means to be adopted to rescue a man from electrical contact, and how to establish artificial respiration in case of suffocation from gases, of drowning and of suspended respiration from electrical contact.

The corps has also been taught how one man can pick up an unconscious man, throw him on his shoulders and carry him away without any trouble; how two men can pick up and carry away an injured person, and how three men can do the same thing; how four men can take an injured person down a steep grade, and how to cross a fence or other obstruction with a litter; also how to put an injured man on a stretcher or a mule.

How to stop hemorrhages in different parts of the body by the application of successive dressings, and, as a last resort, how to use either the tourniquet or an improvised tourniquet is fully understood by the corps, as is also the method of removing foreign bodies by Dr. Halberstadt.

The special dressing box was devised from the eyes, nose, ears and throat.

T. McGOVERN RUNS AWAY

Escapes From Keeper at Stamford Hall Sanitarium.

Stamford, Conn., April 18.—Terry McGovern, the pugilist, who was brought to the Stamford Hall sanitarium Sunday night, escaped from a keeper yesterday afternoon while taking a walk on the grounds of the institution. The keeper followed McGovern but was unable to overtake him. Word was sent immediately to the sanitarium and a hunt was made for McGovern, but without success. Aside from notifying the police, a watch was kept at the railroad station, in the belief that McGovern would board a train for New York.

The fact that McGovern escaped from the sanitarium was not made public until an hour and a half after he disappeared.

It was said at the sanitarium that McGovern had had a good night last night, and that he seemed himself yesterday. In the morning he expressed a desire to go to New York, but it was believed that in the afternoon he became reconciled to staying here, as he said no more about it. After playing tennis he suggested a walk, and was put in charge of one of the regular keepers. The keeper and McGovern had been gone but a few minutes when the former ran back to the sanitarium and told of Terry's escape.

McGovern, according to the sanitarium physicians, is suffering from nervous mental and physical exhaustion, and it was expected that he would stay here several months.

New York, April 18.—Terry McGovern, who escaped from a sanitarium at Stamford, Conn., yesterday, is at his home in Brooklyn, where he is being cared for by his wife. He will be kept there about a week, when he will return to the sanitarium. Immediately after his escape he boarded a freight train and came directly to this city.

At his home last night he said that after emerging from the woods and finding that he had eluded his pursuers, he walked along the railroad tracks until a freight train approached. Then he said he put a large stone on the track, compelling the engine driver to stop. When he did so, McGovern climbed aboard and explained his situation. He said he was recognized by some of the train hands, and they permitted him to ride.

Reaching this city, the pugilist went to a hotel on Broadway, where he greeted a few friends. Then he proceeded to his home. As he boarded a train at the bridge a newsboy was selling papers containing accounts of McGovern's escape, and the latter bought fifty copies of one of these and distributed them among the passengers, announcing at the same time that nothing was the matter with him. Later he visited several friends.

LIVING TOO FAST.

Is the Cause of So Many Sudden Deaths.

New York, April 18.—In the last three months the number of suden deaths in the borough of Manhattan have been much larger than in any similar period in the history of the city.

In the last eighteen months a corresponding increase has been noted. A large proportion of this increase may be traced directly to heart affections and other diseases growing out of the tense life we are leading.

Dr. Henry P. Loomis says of the heart and allied diseases:

"Increase, increase, nothing but increase in the percentage of mortality year by year. In 1860 the death rate was only 13½ per cent, and in 1901 27 per cent. I believe the figures this year maintain this ratio of increase.

"There can be no question," continued Dr. Loomis, "that the hurry-skurry of modern life in this city is responsible for this unfortunate state of affairs. Life is lived too fast. Men eat too fast, work too hard, play too hard. All this involves heart or other organic trouble. Then the victim falls dead."

While the increase in the rate of sudden deaths began some eighteen months ago, it was not until within the last month that special attention was directed to it.

The authorities regarded it as merely a passing wave that would pass in good time, and that the figures would regain the normal; instead they increased month by month.

"In the last few months," said Coroner's Physician Albert T. Weston, "the matter was brought more closely to our attention through the fact that we were working morning and night on cases of sudden death."

BELASCO IS CORROBORATED

In Charges Against Theatrical Trust By Mrs. Leslie Carter.

New York, April 18.—Corroboration of David Belasco's testimony regarding his meeting in Philadelphia with Nixon and Zimmerman was furnished in the supreme court yesterday by Mrs. Leslie Carter, in the trial of the suit of Belasco against Klaw & Erlanger.

Both Belasco and Mrs. Carter allege that Klaw & Erlanger were Belasco's partners in the production of "The Auctioneer," with David Warfield in the title part.

Mrs. Carter testified that Mr. Belasco told Mr. Nixon that he had turned over 50 per cent of Warfield's profit to Mr. Erlanger and that Nixon said he would some time bring Erlanger to terms for alleged double dealing.

Mrs. Carter said that she had been turned out of the theaters controled by Klaw & Erlanger.

Mr. Klaw testified that his firm made $20,000 in "The Auctioneer," and also sharred in the profits of the theaters, but that they were not partners, except through Joseph Brooks, who paid the $20,000.

Mr. Belasco said that in 1900-01 he could not get a theatrical route without the assistance of Klaw & Erlanger, and then only by giving up 50 per cent of the profits.

Bookkeeper Aaron of the Klaw & Erlanger company said that all the expenses of "The Auctioneer" were charged to his company.

AFRAID OF DIETZ.

Lumbermen Refuse to Close Cameron Dam Gates.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., April 18.—Great fear of John Dietz prevails among the lumbermen at the Cameron dam. It was said here yesterday that the foreman of the driving crew ordered his men to close the gates of the dam and that they refused, telling him to close the gates himself, as they would not expose themselves to Dietz's Winchester. T. J. Conner, attorney for the logging company, went to Madison yesterday to confer with the federal officers on the best method of settling the Dietz trouble.

WHEN A HORSE FALLS.

What Happens In London and New York.

"I suppose that the word 'helpfulness' has as many different meanings in different parts of the world as a slip's cat has varieties of foreign fleas," observed a travelled man to the New York Sun. "Did you ever see a horse, hitched to a vehicle, fall down in London? I have, many, many times, and the proceedings following the little calamity are always and inevitably the same.

"The horse hitched, say, to a London hansom cab slips on the greasy pavement and goes down. All of the other drivers of cabs and 'buses and carts and all sorts of conveyances immediately begin to buzz with all their might at the driver of the fallen horse, those behind execrating him for getting his trap in their way, those in front twisting around in their seats to yell derision at him for being such a duffer of a driver as to permit his horse to go down.

"Then a bobby jumps out of the mass of vehicles and shouts a stream of cockney vilification at the hard-luck hansom driver, telling him that it's pretty nigh time for him to be in the work'us if he can't hold his beast up. The bobby stands around and bulldozes the cabby until the thing is all over, threatening to lock him up if he doesn't make haste to clear the thoroughfare.

"Not a solitary driver or foot passenger makes the slightest effort to help the fallen horse or the driver of the hansom cab. If there is a passenger in the cab, he jumps out as soon as the horse goes down, and begins to shake his fist at the cabby and to call him names and to threaten to have him locked up for incompetent or reckless driving and have his license taken away from him.

"Under this stream of abuse the cabby climbs down from his perch, only making reply to the vilification when it becomes particularly bitter and personal. He has to pull and tug and struggle with the horse.

"If it is impossible for the horse to get up without being unhitched, the cabby has to do it all himself. If there's a broken shaft, the thing is complicated. The cabby unhitches the animal, yanks him to his feet, and, followed by the hobby, he takes him to a stall in the nearest livery stable.

"Then the cabby has to walk back to where the stranded cab rests, and haul it out of the way to a side street or the livery stable where the horse is quartered, all the time enduring the derisive yells of the other drivers and the remarks of the hooligans on the sidewalk.

"As he pulls the cab through the streets the crowd of drivers of other vehicles even lash out at him with their whips if he is slow to move out of the way, and it not uncommonly happens that the unfortunate cabby, roused to fury by such treatment, tackles a driver who goes this length, pulls him off his seat, and then there is an out and out fight in the street, blocking traffic, and generally winding up in the arrest of the fighters.

"That's the sort of performance I have seen scores of times when horses have gone down on the slippery streets of the English capital. And it perfectly represents the English idea of the thing known as 'helpfulness.' It's every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost over there, sure enough, and I am bound to say that that sort of thing leaves a grisly sort of impression on the mind.

"Well, yesterday afternoon I saw a hansom cab horse slip and fall at a busy corner in New York's Tenderloin. Nothing in the way of gear was broken, but the horse fell in such a position, with his legs partly mixed up with the harness, that there was no possibility of his getting up himself.

"Well, sir, the horse was hardly down before at least a dozen men from the sidewalks had rushed into the street to do what they could to right the situation. Several of them were very well dressed men, men of business, by their appearance, and, on that presumption, busy; but they were willing to let anything they had in mind to do just slide so as to give that horse and the driver of the horse a bit of a lift.

"The hansom cab's passenger, a fine-looking man of middle age, evidently bound for a railroad station, hopped out promptly and proceeded to sit on the horses' head, so as to hold him down and keep him from struggling while he was being unhitched. About seven men attended to the unhitching—the cabman himself could hardly wedge his way in to take hold of a strap or buckle; the whole thing was being done for him.

"The big cop from the corner was on hand with shrewd little remarks of suggestion and cheer, and when the animal was unhitched it was that big cop who pulled the horse to his feet, while the rest of the volunteers, including the cab's passenger, pulled the vehicle to the rear to give the horse a chance to find his legs and cool out of his excitement a bit.

"Even when examination showed that everything was unbroken and all right and trig, the helpers didn't disperse. They stayed right there and hitched the horse up again. When everything was O. K. again, the passenger, perfectly good-natured, climbed back into the cab, the driver, saying 'Much obliged, you fellers,' got up to his perch, clucked to the horse, and, amid the cheery words of the crowd and an 'Away you go, Jack!' the cab resumed its journey and the crowd of volunteers broke up.

"There's a whole lot of meaning in this little comparison of the different understandings of the word 'helpfulness,' when you view the thing from the right angle."

WONDERFUL MINERAL FINDS.

Much of the asphalt that is being removed from the mines near Ardmore is so pure from foreign substance that it is as soft as putty, says the Kansas City Journal. The pure liquid asphaltum is very probable at a depth of from forty to fifty feet. A prospector who spent several days making minute examinations of the different beds states that these mines are the richest in the Chickasaw nation and that in his opinion 100,000 tons can be stripped above the water level. In addition to the asphalt beds on this tract of land there are deposits of mineral pigment such as is used in the two colors, red and yellow, and the experts present pronounced it entirely free from sand and of a splendid merchantable value.

But by far the most interesting mineral find in the Chickasaw nation is a ridge several hundred yards long that has every appearance of being a mountain of solid iron. A miner who has been mining iron for a number of years made a close inspection of the deposit and pronounced the surface rock to contain 35 per cent iron. The portion examined has been exposed to the elements and with the usual increase of purity with depth the ore would essay 45 per cent, which is considered a paying mine venture.

CLOTHING FOR BOYS.

A head master of one of the oldest schools in Surrey, the Kingston grammar school, upon assuming charge recently, addressed a letter to the parents of his pupils urging the adoption of a more rational dress for boys, writes United States Consul Marshal Halstead from Birmingham, England.

This schoolmaster asserts that the vest or waist coat is no protection to the most vulnerable part of the body, the back, while the tightly buttoned vest prevents the fullest increase of chest growth. He advises parents to dispense with the waistcoat and to clothe their boys in sweaters and flannels; in his opinion a blue flannel shirt and flannel collar with a red tie would be smart and pleasing.

While acting as master at Loretto school, at which the boys dressed as suggested and were enabled to take active exercise at any time without running the risk of taking a chill, he observed that the average boy became larger limbed, broader chested and on the whole more physically fit than the average boy at any other public school.

Bicycle rides to school and the various physical exercises and outdoor sports result in much perspiration, and if a linen or cotton shirt is worn there is constant

MAY DIVIDE FLEET

Togo Not Likely to Give Battle With Whole Force.

Nothing More Has Been Heard From Either Fleet.

London, April 18—Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister to Great Britain, expressed the opinion to the Associated Press that Admiral Togo would not give battle to Rojestvensky with his entire fleet, but would continue the cautious tactics which characterized his attacks on the Port Arthur fleet, not because he feared defeat, but owing to his desire to inflict the greatest amount of damage on the Russians with the least loss to himself.

St. Petersburg, April 18, 6:25 p. m.—No news from Admiral Rojestvensky was received by the admiralty today.

Paris, April 18.—The semi-official Temps this evening publishes a statement which bears evidence of authoritative inspiration, saying:

"While international practice upon land is well defined, that upon the water is not so exact, differing with different nations. Great Britain and some other countries limit the duration of a belligerents stay in their ports to twenty-four hours, but France has never fixed a limit for the stay of belligerents in French ports and contents herself with interdicting the use of her ports in preparations for acts of war. The ministry of marines' instructions issued Feb. 1, 1904, reads:

"The duration of the stay of belligerents in French ports when not accompanied by prizes has not been limited by any special provision."

Consequently a strict construction of the regulations would permit Admiral Rojestvensky's ships to remain in our ports even beyond twenty-four hours, so long as they do not engage in preparations for an act of war.

St. Petersburg, April 18.—The American submarine boats have proved so satisfactory that the admiralty has just signed a large order for additional boats, which will be built at Libau under the direction of the inventor. Extensive trials have demonstrated the ease and reliability with which the boats can be handled and especially their large radius of action.

Some of the first lot of submarine boats received here are already at Vladivostok.

Tokio, Aprjil 18.—The Russian force concentrated along the Changchun-Kirin line and southward is estimated to number 200,000 men. A final revision of the numbers of prisoners captured at Port Arthur show the total to be 41,600.

Jessica De Wolf's Singing.

The New York Press says of the first performance of C. Whitney Coombs's "The First Christmas" and excerpts from "Ancient of Days," under the leadership of the composer: "Jessica De Wolf's beautiful and highly cultivated soprano voice has not only received great praise, but by its sweetness and sympathetic quality awakens intense enthusiasm in the large audiences which proves that her singing reaches the universal heart. Special mention is due Mrs. De Wolf for her singing of the beautiful air "The Stars Shine Bright," in which she evinced an interpretation so chaste and a tone of such delicate purity that criticism was disarmed."

Jessica De Wolf will appear with the Beethoven club at its last concert on Wednesday, April 26, at the Congregational church.

BACK DIVIDENDS

On Railroad Stocks Will Be Paid at Once.

New York, April 18.—In a circular issued late today, the Northern Securities company requests stockholders to deposit their shares without delay, and announces that immediately upon transfer to the books of the respective railway companies, namely, Northern Pacific and Great Northern, back dividends, amounting to 7 per cent on each company, will be paid. It is also stated in the circular that no dividends had been declared by the Northern Securities company since that of Feb. 1, 1904.

PREVENTION OF TUBERCULOSIS

Discussed Before League By Dr. Clarke of Cambridge, Mass.

Atlanta, Ga., April 18.—The second day's session of the American Anti-Tuberculosis league was marked by an increased attendance of physicians from many sections and by the presence of a large number of women practitioners. The papers followed the general subject of treatment of tuberculosis in its various forms.

Dr. Augustus P. Clarke of Cambridge, Mass., delivered an address on "Some Clinical Experiences in the Treatment and Prevention of Tuberculosis." He said in part:

"The suppression of the greater restriction against the carrying on of noxious trades or methods of manufacture has often been attended with benefit. The withholding of licenses of stables, unless such buildings or premises were made to conform to the requirements of the public statutes, and the location to be used was sufficiently remote from surrounding dwellings, has been instrumental for great good. Indeed, the boards of health have, in our state, almost unlimited power for the suppression of practices that would affect injuriously the public health. Notwithstanding all this, matters now and then have been allowed to go on to such extent that they have been far from being innocuous. It may be said that the boards of health possess almost unrestricted power for the abatement of unsanitary conditions, the same does not hold true for allowing such conditions to continue. Such members are amenable to the appointing power, and may be subject to the action of the grand jury."

IN THE POSSESSIONS.

Some Civil Service Jobs That Are Available.

In addition to the examination in civil service already announced, others for Panama, Philippine, Porto Rican and departmental service are announced by the commission for May 1, 10 and 17. The examination May 1 is for steam-shovel engineers, crane men, firemen and pitmen at the Panama canal. No educational tests are required in this but only age, physical condition and experience will count. The first two positions pay, respectively, $190 a month and $165 a month with additional bonus for extra quality of work performed; the job of fireman pays $83.33 and the pitman $75 per month.

The position of nurseryman, paying $1,200 per annum in the Philippine service comes up on May 10 and the age limits are 18 to 40 years. On May 17 positions to be tried for are stenographer, typewriter and translator in the light house service, office of the engineer of the Third district, San Juan, Porto Rico, and in various local stations.

TRANSPORTATION IN MANCHURIA.

The transportation in Manchuria has been developed rapidly, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Russia has already expended for railroad transportation there $129,050,000 and was planning to make still greater outlars. In addition to this vast sum the government has expended in fortifications and in the construction of the cities of Port Arthur, Harbin and Dalny and other parts of Manchuria enough more to make the total investment $257,500,000. The building of the railroad was, of course, the most important of the many enterprises centering in Harbin. West from Harbin the road runs from the crossing of the headwaters of the Amur to Stretensk. The main line runs to Lake Baikal, Siberia and Russia. To the east the sea is reached at Vladivostok, and to the south the Chinese Eastern railway meets seagoing ships at Niuchwang, Dalny and Port Arthur. One year ago thirty through traffic trains and eighteen local trains were being dispatched a day from Harbin. For public conveyances about the city 400 Russion carriages were used, and plans were being made for operating an automobile line between the old and the new towns.

During the navigable season between April and November a good line of steamers was run on the Sungari river from Harbin to Amur river. These steamers carried first, second and third-class passengers and had comfortable cabins and good service. They were constructed so as to carry large cargoes of freight, and in addition towed barges loaded with merchandise. For the most part the steamers resembled those in use on the Western rivers of America, being stern-wheelers and burning wood. It is probable that Russia intended to soon put on a much better line of steamers, and was only deterred from doing so on account of the war.

A DOG HITCHING-POST.

Every one has seen the dog that rides behind his master on horseback, and the dog that leads the old blind man, and the one that carries his master's cane or paper, and the dog that can do tricks, but it has been left to an uptown expressman to utilize his little spaniel as a hitching-post, says the Philadelphia Press. Almost every day he may be seen seated by his master's side, with a strap attached to the collar he wears. When the team stops and the expressman has to go into the house the dog jumps down and his master fastens the strap to the horse's bridle. The dog will then sit down and look up into the horse's face and remain in that position till the expressman releases him. At this he leaps into the wagon and they drive away.

THE PAPAL FLAG.

The Papal flag is comparatively unfamiliar outside of the Eternal City, says the Chicago Journal. The war flag of the defunct temporal power of the Pope was white, and in its center stood figures of St. Peter and St. Paul, with the cross-keys and tiara above them. The flag of the merchant ships owned by the subjects of the states of the church is a curious combination, half yellow and half white, with the design of the cross-keys on the white. In the banner used by the Crusader King of Jerusalem, Godfrey, the only tinctures introduced were the two metals, gold and silver, five golden crosses being placed upon a silver field. This was done with the intention of making the device unique, as in all other cases it is deemed false heraldry to place metal on metal.

One attractive thing about a Herald want ad. is that it may be read and considered in one minute.

WHEAT IS HIGHER

Market Opens Higher, Advances and Closes With Small Gain.

Some Armour Wheat Is Loading Out—Bulge In Flax.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 18.—The wheat market started out firm this morning and made a good advance. Practically all of this was lost ,but the close for the day was at an advance in all markets. The May option in Duluth advanced ¾c, in Chicago, 1c, in Minneapolis ⅝c and in New York ⅞c. The July option advanced ⅛c in Duluth and Chicago, ⅛-¼c in New York and ½-⅝c in Minneapolis. Northwestern receipts were lighter. There was considerable interest over the reported loading at Duluth of a boat with wheat sold some time ago to Armour. It is not known just whether the boat will go to Chicago or Buffalo, but it is believed that it is destined for the latter port. There is much concern over the shipments of wheat from Minneapolis to Chicago, and it is reported that the amount will be in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 bus. The Liverpool market closed unchanged to ⅛d higher Paris unchanged to ¼c lower. Berlin ⅛c higher and Budapest 1¼c higher.

Car receipts of wheat at Duluth were 10, against 25 last year, and at Minneapolis 81 against 87 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 91 against 112 last year. Chicago received 157 against 49 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 329,000 bus, last year 274,000 bus. Shipments 256,000 bus, last year 280,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 108,000 bus.

Bradstreet reported a decrease of 2,171,000 bus. in the world's visible supply of wheat. East of the Rockies there was a decrease of 1,371,000 bus., and in Europe and afloat a decrease of 800,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged. In the Chicago market July corn closed ⅛c higher, oats closed ¼-⅜c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 433,000 bus., last year 316,000 bus. Shipments 907,000 bus., last year 214,000 bus. Clearances were 147,000 bus. The world's visible supply of corn increased 1,030,000 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was fairly active. The July option opened ⅛c higher at $1.01¾, advanced to $1.02⅝ at 10:48, and receded to $1.02¼ at noon. Following that it fell off and sold at $1.01⅞ at 12:55, and closed at $1.01¾, an advance for the day of ¼c. The May option opened ⅛c higher at $1.04, sold up to $1.05⅝ and closed at $1.05, an advance of ¾c.

Cash wheat trading was nothing today, but the price of No. 1 northern was advanced 1c to May price. The No. 2 northern continued at 3½ to 7c under.

Flax was dull but the prices were strong. The May option advanced 1½c to $1.42½, and closed at $1.42. September closed 1½c higher at $1.38, its high point, and October 1c higher at $1.27, which was also its high point.

Oats declined ¾c, and rye unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 northern, $1.05; on track, No. 1 northern, $1.05; No. 2 northern, 98c@$1.01½; durum No. 1, 91c; No. 2, 90; May, $1.05; July, $1.01¾; September, $1.02. Flax—To arrive, $1.42; on track, $1.42; May, $1.42; September, $1.23; October, $1.27. Oats—To arrive, 29c; on track, 29c. Rye—To arrive, 77c; on track, 77c. Barley—Feed, 30@34c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 10, last year, 25; oats, 11; rye, 2; barley, 22; flax, 6, last year 46.

Receipts—Wheat, 16,090; oats, 10,536; barley, 14,553; rye, 1,035; flax, 6,891.

Shipments—Wheat, 8,266; flax, 3,489.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Notwithstanding Bearish Influences Wheat Is Firm.

Chicago, April 18.—Notwithstanding numerous bearish influences a firm tone prevailed today in wheat. Local receipts were liberal, cables easier and weather generally favorable to the advancement of the crop. Commission houses were fairly active bidders, but offerings were light. July opened a shade to ⅜c higher at 87@87⅜c to 87⅝c, and advanced to 88⅜c. May opened unchanged at $1.14¼ and sold up to $1.15. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 240 cars, against 151 cars last week and 161 cars a year ago.

The close was firm, with July up ¾c at 88c. May was up an even cent at $1.15¼.

Influenced by the strength of wheat, the corn market showed considerable firmness. Shorts and commission houses were moderate buyers. July opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 47⅛c to 47⅝c, and sold up to 47¾c. Local receipts were 295 cars with 12 of contract grade.

At the close July was off a shade at 47⅝@½c.

Oats were steady in sympathy with the firmness of other grains. Trading was very quiet. July opened unchanged to a shade lower at 29@29⅛c, and advanced to 29¾c. Local receipts were 122 cars.

Provisions were firm on a sharp falling off in the receipts of hogs. Shorts were the principal buyers. July pork was up 2½c at $12.87½. Lard and ribs were each unchanged at $7.40 and $7.35@7.37½ respectively.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.15¼; July, 88c; Sept., 82⅝@83c. Corn—April, 46¾c; May, 47¼@47½c; July, 47⅝@47⅞c; Sept., 47½@47⅝c. Oats—May, 29½@29⅝c; July, 29¾@29¾c; Sept., 29¼c. Pork—May, $12.50@12.52½; July, $12.80. Lard—April, $7.15; May, $7.22½; July, $7.40; Sept., $7.55. Ribs—May, $6.95; July, $7.22½@7.25; Sept., $7.42½. Oct., $7.47½. Rye—April, 78c; May, 77½@78c; Sept., 66c. Flax—cash, northwestern, $1.40; southwestern, $1.27; April, $1.27, May, $1.27. Timothy—April, $2.85; Sept., $2.35. Clover—April, $14.00. Barley—Cash, 41@48c. Cash wheat—2 red, $1.15¼@1.17; 3 red, $1.13@1.17½; 2 hard, $1.13½@1.19½; 3 hard, 98c@$1.14½; 1 northern, $1.15½@1.17; 2 northern, $1.08@1.15½, 3 spring, $1.03@1.15½. Corn—2, 48@48½c; 3, 47½@48c. Oats—2, 29¾c; 3, 29½@29¾c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The all absorbing factor at the moment is the weather, and it shows no sign of improving. In the early dealing the market advanced a cent over yesterday's closing figures, subsequently easing off largely on profit taking, but the market on the whole seems to show fairly good form. A continuation of present conditions would naturally cause much concern to the trade and would bring much trouble to the short interest and sharply higher prices. The market still looks like a scalping affair but seems to have an upward tendency.

Corn—Early strength in this market seemed to come largely through sympathy with wheat. Trade at no time assumed large proportions. Liquidation in evidence in recent session was not so prominent today, but there continues to be some changing from May over into July. We still feel this market will take care of itself and believe purchases or setbacks will bring moderate profits for the time being.

Oats—We see no change in the speculative position of this market and feel the cash situation must show greater inroads into the large stocks to permanently maintain present or higher prices.

H. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat—The wheat market showed the need of a more general trade today. The market was well bought early, the July advancing 1c a bus, but when realizing started there was no trade to sustain the market. The May advanced 1¼c per bus., and was taken by the bull interests. The weather is still considered detrimental to plant progress, and the advices calling attention to this situation are apparently having some effect on local sentiment. Gradually rising temperatures, with some precipitation in the West, are predicted for tomorrow. The Illinois crop bulletin took a favorable view of the situation, but stated rain was needed in the central sections. Estimated for tomorrow, 40 cars.

Corn was extremely dull. The early firmness was influenced by the shortness abroad, the strength in wheat and smaller estimated receipts for tomorrow. The market worked off towards the close, which was practically unchanged from yesterday's close. Aside from the 1,000,000 bus increase in Bradstreets, which compares with a decrease of approximately the same quantity a year ago, the statistical news was rather bullish. Estimated for tomorrow, 107 cars.

• • •

Edwards, Wood & Co.: Wheat averaged higher with a noticeable increase in bullish sentiment. The position longs in Chicago May have taken, that of buying openly and handling their own trades, is a strong indication that the time is not far distant for some fancy operations in the near future. Northwest weather still dry and reports on winter wheat conditions less promising. Many fields said to be turning yellow. There is to be a shortage of wheat during the summer months and the price is yet to receive the benefit of such conditions. We look for the market news to run favorable to holders and with shorts uneasy and inclined to cover think there is little risk in making purchases on dips.

Following is the weekly foreign crop conditions by Broomhall:

United Kingdom and France—The weather and crop prospects are excellent, but supplies of native wheat extremely small.

Germany—The weather has continued cold. Wheat supplies are decreasing.

Hungary and Roumania—The weather has improved from a week ago, crops are now making satisfactory progress.

Italy—There has been local damage by frosts in some sections and rain is needed, but generally the crops have a favorable appearance.

Spain—Recent reports of general rains over the drouth districts has put the crop in fair condition, generally.

CONDITION OF CROPS

As Shown By Weather Bureau's Weekly Summary.

Washington, April 18.—Crop reports from all sections of the country are summarized in the weekly bulletin of the weahetr bureau as follows:

Over nearly the whole of the country the week ending April 17 was abnormally cold and unfavorable for germination and growth. In Western North Dakota the temperature fell nearly to zero on the 16th, and on this and following dates exceptionally low temperatures for the season occurred throughout the country east of the Rockies, freezing temperatures occurring as far south as the northern portions of Alabama and Georgia and Central South Carolina, with light to heavy frosts in the central portion of the East Gulf states, and light frost at Jacksonville.

The damaging effects of this cold period, which came at the close of the week, are not fully covered in the reports collected at the climate and crop centers on the 17th and used in the preparation of this bulletin. While corn planting has continued in Kansas, Missouri and Southern Illinois, none has been planted farther north, nor in the Upper Ohio valley and Middle states. Preparations for planting have been active in the central valleys, where planting will be vigorously pushed as soon as temperature conditions are favorable. In the South Atlantic and East Gulf states planting is almost finished and early corn is being cultivated.

Winter wheat continued in promising condition generally throughout the country, but is beginning to need rain in portions of Kansas and Michigan.

Very slow progress was made with spring wheat seeding over the northern portion of the spring wheat region, as this work could be prosecuted only in the afternoons, on account of low temperatures. The early sown spring wheat does not appear to have sustained injury from recent cold except in Nebraska, where some fields were slightly damaged.

Oat seeding was also delayed in the Dakotas, Minnesota, lake region and portions of the Middle Atlantic states. While growth of the early sown has been checked and some injury sustained in Nebraska, the general situation respecting this crop continues promising.

A VIOLENT BREAK

In Northern Securities In the Curb Stock Market.

Strength of Industrials Feature of the Regular Exchange.

New York, April 18.—A violent break in the price of Northern Securities in the curb stock market today awakened fears of a forthcoming disappointment of the many speculative hopes built on the plans for the dissolution of the company. The stocks sold at 181 at the opening, compared with 180⅛ as the closing price last night. It then appeared that there was no support for the stock and sellers offered it down to 165 before meeting effective buying. A rally of over ten points followed. St. Paul broke 2⅝ and Union Pacific 2⅜ on the exchange in sympathy. It then rallied 2 and 1⅛ respectively.

New York, April 18.—Gains were more numerous than losses on the opening transactions, but some prominent speculative stocks were amongst those which declined. Union Pacific, Illinois Central and Smelting each fell 1¼. Chicago Terminal preferred lost a point. Atlantic Coast Line made an upward move of 2 points. United States Steel preferred opened wide, selling at 104⅝ and 104⅞, the latter a record price.

Holders of stock became uneasy over the acute weakness of Northern Securities, which slumped to 165 on the curb, and threw over their belongings. St. Paul and Union Pacific broke in a precipitate manner, the former 2⅝ and the latter 2⅜. The effect on the general railroad list was moderate, but recent buoyant specialties entered keenly. Smelting and Hocking Valley declined 2, Illinois Central and Delaware & Hudson 1¾ and the United States Steel stocks, Tennessee Coal, Copper, Locomotive, Consolidated Gas, Twin City Rapid Transit, Atchison and New York Central 1. Atlantic Coast Line lost its opening rise of 2 and ½ additional. Rallies followed, extending to 1 and 2 points respectively in Union Pacific and St. Paul, but the market was back to near the lowest at 11 o'clock. People's Gas was marked up 2⅛ despite the prevailing weakness, and Virginia-Caroline Chemical gained 1½.

There was some improvement in the tone of the market, but the demand died out and left the market soft. Colorado Fuel, Virginia-Carolina Chemical and Vulcan Detinning preferred rose 2, United States Reduction 1½ and North American 1. Atlantic Coast Line got above 160. Losses included American Express 3, Consolidated Gas 3½, Illinois Central 2¼, Pacific Mail 2, Pipe preferred 1¾ and Missouri Pacific, Erie, Wisconsin Central preferred, Federal Mining preferred, Distillers Securities, United States Rubber preferred, Brooklyn Union Gas, Westinghouse Electric and Knickerbocker Ice 1 to 1½. Union Pacific and United States Steel preferred fell lower than before, and the market was weak at noon. Bonds were steady at noon.

But few stocks escaped losses of a point or more during the selling of the forenoon and in some cases that range was largely exceeded. Sentiment was unfavorably affected by the steady unloading of St. Paul, Union Pacific, the United States Steel and other metal stocks. In the early afternoon the market picked up sharply. Quite a number of stocks recovered a point, but the demand slackened on the upturn. Copper rose a good fraction over last night.

Much of the morning's irregularity and feverishness existed during the afternoon. After a pretty substantial rally the market was forced down and some of the lowest prices of the day were noted. Northwestern broke 3 and St. Paul and Union Pacific were again prominent in the late selling. A good demand for Lead carried it to near 49 and there was a better tone to the general list about 2 o'clock.

There was another selling movement in the final hour. Outside the weak leaders of the decline there was some resistance about the previous low levels, but the weight of offerings broke through to the lowest of the day. St. Paul fell 3⅝, Union Pacific 4¾; Sloss-Sheffield steel 4, Delaware & Hudson 3¾, Illinois Central 3¼, Locomotive 3, and Canadian Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Cleveland, C. C. & St. Louis, New York Central, Pullman and Tennessee Coal 2 or more. The close was very active and weak.

STOCK GOSSIP.

F. P. Frazier, Chicago: I don't like the looks of this market and I strongly advise you to reduce your lines, or sell out entirely. Don't forget the market is here every day, and if you wish to change your mind, you can come back in again. The market has been bulled for a long time and many things have gotten to be very high. The decline of $15 a share in Northern Securities this morning with only a few shares traded in, has given the market quite a jar.

• • •

Grier to B. E. Baker: We would not get enthusiastic buying some of those stocks even on the breaks. The market looks a little dangerous, Northern Securities books close today and as a good many of the bulls did not care to take the new stocks, they tried to take profits instead and found no market. The railroad situation is not as harmonious as generally thought and erratic jumps both either way may be expected in a number of the prominent railroad stocks.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market closed sharply lower and weak. The erratic weakness in Northern Securities caused much surprise and did much to unsettle confidence in the market. What seemed like persistent liquidation in Union Pacific also had marked effect on the general list. A peculiar fact in todays session was the pronounced strength of the industrials which were under pressure in recent sessions. The action of the market today showed nervousness and that confidence has been shaken. As we pointed out stocks have been advanced purely on rumors and advanced in many cases to new high records. The buying power at the recent level seemed to be limited. In view of these facts we have been pointing out it might be wise to be conservative on the bull side and still feel inclined to this idea.

• • •

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was very irregular and the break in Northern Securities seemed to have the bad effect on the whole market. There was a great deal of liquidation all day and prices sold off sharply. In the afternoon there was quite a rush to sell and the declines extended all through the list. The high priced stocks sold off sharply. Traders seemed to have things all their own way and the close was weak and unsettled.

Dow-Jones to B. E. Baker: It seems probable that the break in Northern Securities was due to the closing of the books. It would therefore appear that there were special advantages in holding the stock before the distribution of assets was taken in hand. The selling was apparently from the speculative following of one of the larger interests. It looked to a certain extent as if Atlantic Coast and Louisville were being advanced to facilitate realizing in Illinois Central. The best guess on the Amalgamated Copper dividend is that it will be the same as last time, which would mean ½per cent and ½ per cent extra. People likely to be well informed on it encourage the idea of a declaration of a 4 per cent basis.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today in Boston was depressed by heavy selling in Copper Range, Isle Royale and Allouez. A prominent bear trader was responsible for most of the sales. Bingham and United States Mining were also depressed every time there was an opportunity. An attempt was made to break Osceola, but the demand was good and the stock held firm all day.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 18.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 3 points, a better response to the firm cables being prevented by a renewal of bear operations in the new positions. But Liverpool continued relatively firm after the local opening, and with shorts covering here prior to the publication of the weekly weather report, prices gradually worked up to a net advance of about 5@8 points.

Cotton spot closed quiet, middling uplands, 7.35; do gulf, 8.10. Sales none. Futures closed steady: April, 7.34; May, 7.43; June, 7.47; July, 7.38; Aug., 7.42; Sept., 7.46; Oct., 7.52; Nov., 7.56; Dec., 7.58; Jan., 7.62.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul—Barrett & Zimmerman report a scarcity of horses in the country, owing to seeding being in progress. Farmers do not want to dispose of their horses, which makes it difficult to procure supplies for the trade. Prices, however, remained stationary, although advancement is looked for. Values:

BREAKING ICE

Ice Crushing Steamer Algoma Goes to Relief of Vessels.

Believed That She Will Be Able to Release Them.

Sault Ste. Marie, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ice crushing steamer Algoma arrived here today from St. Ignace and left this afternoon ta break up the ice in Whitefish bay so that the ice-bound fleet could get through. There are now twenty-two steamers imprisoned in the ice, some of which have been ice-bound for over ten days. Yesterday four men came ashore at Whitefish Point by walking over the ice for provisions. They reported that the boats were short of both provisions and fuel and that some had been damaged while trying to force their way through the ice fields. The bay is full of ice extending six miles above Whitefish Point and forms a solid mass in the lower bay. There is little doubt but the Algoma, which was built to run through ice in the Straits of Mackinaw forming a connection for the railroads will be able to reach the boats and bring them through to the locks.

ICE BREAKER

Will Go to Assistance of Imprisoned Steamers.

Cleveland, April 18.—With reports from Sault Ste. Marie that some of the ice-bound steamer at the foot of Lake Superior were getting short of provisions and fuel, Cleveland vessel owners at a meeting yesterday decided to pool together and engage the ice crusher Algoma to open up the passage between Lake Huron and Lake Superior. President H. Coulby of the Pittsburg Steamship company was selected to represent the owners and go to the Soo for Sault Ste. Marie. Before leaving he wired Capt. Boynton of the Algomah at St. Ignace to hold himself in readiness to have the Algomah at the Soo Tuesday ready to attack the ice field unless conditions change so as to alow the fleet to get through without assistance Tuesday. The expense of opening the passage will be shared by all owners whose vessels are now fast in the ice.

Two of the steamers which are fast on the Lake Superior side of the ice pack, the Sultana and Hutchinson, are out ten days from Duluth and it is feared the

THE STRIKE AT LIMOGES

Is Rapidly Developing Some International Features.

Paris, April 18.—The strike riots at Limoges are developing international features as the Havliand factory employing 6,000 persons, of which Theodore and Charles Havliand, Americans, are the proprietors, is the center of the disorder. Ambassador Porter is taking active steps to ensure protection of American interests aginst violence and to secure an adjustment between the proprietors of the factory and the workmen. He conferred with Foreign Minister Delcasse today concerning the precautionary measures which the government is taking. The situation is complicated by the strong Socllast opposition to the government sending troops to Limoges. At M. Delcasse's request Gen. Porter used his good offices with the Messrs. Havliand. The latter, however, maintained that the workmen were not justified in demanding the discharge of the foreman of the factory and therefore his effort to secure a reconciliation were unsuccessful.

Three strikers were killed when the troops fired on the mob last night, and many were wounded.

The American consul, Mr. Griffin, has forwarded to the embassy here a detailed report upo nthe damage done during the various violent stages of the outbreak.

CROSBY CASE REACHES JURY

Suit Against Scott-Graff Lumber Company Near Close.

The suit of George H. Crosby against the Scott-Graff Lumber company, which has been on trial in district court for the past three weeks, went to the jury late this afternoon. This morning C. O. Baldwin, counsel for the lumber company, presented his argument. This afternoon Oscar Mitchell of the firm of Washburn, Bailey & Mitchell, presented the arguments in Mr. Crosby's behalf, and the court charged the jury. In view of the great mass of evidence presented by both sides during the several days' trial the general sentiment about the courthouse late this afternoon was that a decision would not be reached by the jurors today.

Mr. Crosby brought the suit for damages in the amount of $6,000 for alleged defective or insufficiently kiln dried lumber that was put in his East End residence. The Scott Graff company claims the lumber was up to specifications, and puts in a counter claim of $700 for extras.

Race For Supremacy.

It is interesting to watch the race for supremacy among Minneapolis-St. Paul-Chicago trains. First place is securely held by the Pioneer Limited and the second place by the Fast Mail. Both trains are entirely owned by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. There are three other fast trains via this line from the Twin Cities to Chicago every day, and there is no extra fare to ride on them. Address W. B. Dixon, northwestern passenger agent, St. Paul, for further particulars, lowest rates, etc.

THE BOLL WEEVIL

Marching on and He May Cross the Mississippi River.

Many Good Turns For People Done By Government.

Washington, April 18.—"I predict that the boll weevil will cross the Mississippi before the season is over, beginning his ravages on the east side of the stream," said Dr. L. O. Howard, the entomologist of the department of agriculture, in recounting the various stages in a conflict between the cotton growers and their great enemy, hardly less dramatic than a war between contending armies. Louisiana decided that she would maintain a quarantine along her border to prevent the insect from crossing the Sabine river. The legislature authorized most drastic measures; even the hair of colored laborers was searched to see if any lodgment had been provided there, and thousands of dollars were expended in the patrol. But it was of no avail. Seven parishes already have been invaded.

The life habits of no other insect have been so carefully studied in the whole history of science. Texas offered a reward of $50,000 to anybody who would discover a way of elliminating the pests. Government appropriations had grown from $10,000 in 1901 to an emergency appropriation of $250,000 in 1903, exclusively to prosecute the war against the enemy of an agricultural crop, whose annual value reaches $500,000,000 and in whose welfare the prosperity of a score of industries are involved, and almost the life itself of a large section of the country. Towns suffering the worst from this pest have been thransformed from flourishing communities to deserted villages. Even tradesmen, selling out, have advertised on the fence rails at "Boll weevil prices," so completely has this affliction worked its way into the thought of the people over whose acres it has spread. The Guatemalan ant, Dr. Howard says, is still the most promising natural enemy which has been discovered, although the winter just ended has been one of discouragement. Every outdoor colony of this tribe has perished. This has been an exceptionallly cold winter in Texas, and the spring was unduly wet.

It is possible that with better understanding of the life history of the ant, and more seasonable weather, next year's experiments will be more favorable. Dr. Howard declares that the most which can be hoped from this ant is that it will help keep down the boll weevil, since it will never exterminate him. Of all the insect enemies which have been tried, and the suggestions offered are almost countless, this one possesses the rare merit of eating the weevil voraciously, and sticking to his job, without requiring a personally conducted expedition to get him to the cotton plant.

Paris green is the best insecticide for the boll weevil and thousands of dollars have been spent experimenting with it; but the insect spreads too rapidly to make this a practicable measure of relief. Mechanical devices without number have been set in motion for eliminating the infected boll, which drops easily from the plant. Some of these are useful. Dr. Howard, however, places most reliance as a practical remedy on the compulsory cutting down of the common stalks in the middle of October, or thereabouts, and burning them up. This destroys the weevil already in the unopened cotton, and in a field thus burned over, thousands of the pests will go into winter quarters where otherwise there would be millions. This plan was proposed several years ago, but the Texas planters would not take kindly to it. Now many of the brightest men in the state are favoring legislation which shall bring this remedy into systematic use over large areas. Cotton had never suffered badly from insect pests until this specimen made its appearance. There was a leaf-eating caterpillar which occasionally appeared. The ravages in 1863 and 1876 cost the planters from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000 each year, but better methods of agriculture soon reduced this danger to a minimum. There was also a boll worm, which attacked corn in some places and tomatoes in others, as well as cotton, and known locally according to its favorite article of diet, but this did comparatively little hurt. Where did the boll weevil come from? A German scientist, in 1853, reported the receipt of the present-day giant of destruction in a consignment of insects from Vera Cruz. Nothing more was heard of the pest till 1871, when another European entomologist reported its arrival from Cuba.

The third appearance of the boll weevil was in 1890, when Dr. Howard received from Dr. Edward Palmer, an exploring botanist, a specimen of an insect which was said to be damaging cotton bolls in Mexico. Dr. Howard recognized it as the same fellow that had been twice before reported in the scientific journals. The insect did not formally cross into this country till 1894, when at Brownsville, Tex., he bridged the Rio Grande and began his northern journey, which is still in its early stages. The department of agriculture did not at first succeed in arousing the Texans to the full gravity of the evil; it advised drastic measures which for an expenditure of $25,000 would have stamped the pest out then an dthere. But these were not adopted. Texas has since awakened to her danger. Local sentiment has at many stages obstructed the work of the scientists. An injunsction was even taken out to restrain them from bringing in the Guatemalan ant, because of the local acquaintance with another destructive ant, and the fear that the proposed remedy would prove worse than the disease.

When the "bumper" cotton crop was announced last November the suggestion was made that the excess should be burned in the public squares to keep the price up. This, according to a cartoon which Dr. Howard has in his possession, is not necessary. The boll weevil will do all thinning out of the crop that will be desirable from any point of view. He is a troublesome little fellow, and he has a future before him.

* * *

The Indiana farmer who last year worte to his congressman, saying: "Please send me a mule and a double shovel plough," asked for something the government did not have at its disposal, but there are innumerable things this man could have had from his government for the asking. Year by year it is doing more and more for the people, besides governing them. Many persons wonder where this trend towards paternallsm will lead. The farmers have received the larger share of the helpfulness of the government, but henceforth the industries of the cities are to receive attention. The government will soon spend $30,000 in sending out six young men to hunt up markets for goods of American manufacture. It is generally understood that if these agents of Uncle Sam succeed in finding markets, the federal government will make foreign market-hunting a permanent feature. The days when a John Jacob Astor pushed out into the wilderness to establish fur-trading posts are over. Now, a series of government bulletins on every phase of such an experiment would be expected to precede the investment of private capital.

The proposal to send government agents abroad in quest of markets for American made goods would have been met by Jefferson with the declaration that it was the manufacturers' business to do their own market-hunting, and that it was a government's business to govern. The manufacturers' bureau of the department of commerce and labor, which is now organizing, does not assume to be anything except an arm of the government for the promotion of the interests of private capital invested in manufacturing. A forerunner of this bureau was the daily reports of the consul, giving information concerning trade prospects abroad. Every manufacturer in the country may receive this bulletin daily.

While each of the departments exhibits a growing tendency to "do things for the people," it is the agricultural that is farthest advanced along lines of paternalism. Through the weather bureau it is now distributing forecasts and special storm warnings to practically everybody in the United States. Recently it has been perfecting arrangements with the telephone trunk lines by which the daily morning forecasts are made available for the use of thousands of persons who heretofore were compelled to depend on the bulletins posted at post offices and in railway stations. With the growth of the rural telephone it is expected that, eventually, almost every American farmer will receive the daily weather bulletin in his own home before noon of the day it is issued. In some localities in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania the sytem of distribution has already been perfected to the point where every subscriber of a telephone company receives the days' forecast as early as noon.

The postoffice department is getting nearer to the people of the country districts. Uncle Sam's rural mail carriers number thirty thousand, and with the uncovered sections of the country demanding recognition no one proposes calling a halt until every American farmer receives his mail at his door daily. Postal officials are confident, too, that the day is not far distant when the rural telephone will become an important factor in the delivery of "hurry-up" letters. Congress has thus far declined to recognize the telephone system as a part of the postal machinery, but notwithstanding its refusal, the 'phone is being brought into use daily in many rural communities by farmers who cannot even wait for the rural carrier. Senator Fairbanks planned to have congress authorize the use of the telephone in the delivery of special letters addressed to country districts. He proposed that a special stamp should be printed, sold for ten cents, and that when a postmaster received a letter bearing one of these stamps he should open it, reading its contents over the telephone to the farmer to whom the communication was addressed.

Some of the senators objected to this plan because they feared it might commit the government to a policy that would compel it to pay large annual rentals to telephone companies. But many men in the postal establishment say the new step is coming. Indeed, it is already being unofficially. By securing permission from the department a rural postmaster may now arrange with his patrons out in the country to open their letters and read the contents to them over the 'phone, and farmers who have city interests that demand careful watching are making use of the permission. Possibly congress at the next session will put the official stamp on it.

The agricultural department is doing its best to develop the sugar beet industry, to examine the live stock exported, and all the animals slaughtered in the principal cities of the country, as well as the meat before it goes to the market. Within the last year its men have been going into the fields to test corn planters and windmills for farmers, and it is instructing farmers how they can drain their lands to the best advantage. Several years ago the department ventured on the project of educating farmers on road building.

The geological survey, attached to the interior, is another branch of the public service that is devoted largely to this kind of work. It is doing a multitude of things. Its recent test of various kinds of coal, and demonstration that a ton of bituminous coal will produce two-and-a-half times as much power when put through a gas producer as when burned under a steam boiler, is regarded as of great value to the commercial world.

A census with that end in view would probably show that more than half the employes of the federal government here at the national capital are performing duties that have nothing to do with the governing of the people; they are working at something that promises some material good for some group of citizens of the republic. It is remarked by men who have been in the federal service a long time that the country is coming more and more to look to things from the federal government point of view.

DEMAND RESTORATION.

Asphalt Company Again Appeals to Government.

Washington, April 18.—The American Asphalt company has given notice that it does not propose to submit without protest to the continuance of the present state of affairs in Venezuela so far as it affects the company's properties, held under the New York and Burmedese company title. Counsel for the asphalt company, Prof. John B. Moore and Mr. Lindsay, appeared at the state department today to urge action on the part of this government to secure a restoration of the company's property to the hands of its agents, pending the final decision of the question of title now before the Venezuelan courts. The asphalt lake is now in the possession of a receiver, appointed by the Venezuelan court, which is mining asphalt and selling it, and the company asks that this be stopped, until the case is legally determined.

NO MORE DEATHS FROM INDIANAPOLIS DISASTER.

Indianapolis, April 18.—No deaths have been added to the list of four boys that lost their lives in the crush of newsboys in the stairway of the Masonic building last night, eager to obtain free seat checks for a performance at a local theater. But the revised list of injured shows that no fewer than fifty were more or less injured. Of this number fully twenty-five were seriously crushed and the death list may be increased. Many of the boys were unconscious when taken from the mass of humanity jammed and heaped in the stairway soon revived and they were able to go to their homes without assistance. A number of them sold the newspaper extras on the disaster, and others went to the theater.

We, the undersigned, have associated ourselves together to form a corporation for the purposes hereinafter mentioned, pursuant to the provisions of Title 2 of Chapter 34 of the General Statutes of Minnesota for the year 1894, and acts amendatory thereof, and for that purpose have organized by adopting the following articles of incorporation:

ARTICLE ONE.

The name of this corporation shall be "C. H. Graves and Company." The principal place of business shall be the city of Duluth, in the county of St. Louis, Minnesota. The general nature of the business of said corporation shall be to loan money upon real estate, personal or other security; to negotiate and effect loans of money for other persons and corporations for a compensation; to buy, own, hold, hypothecate, transfer, sell and deal in bonds, notes, mortgages and other property and security, and to collect, foreclose, realize and compound mortgages and other obligations; to buy, own, mortgage, lease, let, sell, deal in and improve lands, tenements and hereditaments, real, mixed and personal property, in the State of Minnesota and elsewhere, both for itself and as agents for other persons and corporations; to act as agents for other persons and corporations in the management, improvement, purchase and sale of property, and in the collection of rents and revenues therefrom, for a compensation; to act as agent for fire, life, casualty, plate glass, accident and other insurance companies; to act as agent for surety company or companies, and in general to perform, execute, do all and singular acts and instruments necessary to be done, executed and performed in carrying on a general insurance, investment and brokerage business.

ARTICLE TWO.

The time of the commencement of said corporation shall be the 1st day of April, A. D. 1905, and the period of continuance of said corporation shall be thirty (30) years.

ARTICLE THREE.

The amount of the capital stock of said corporation shall be Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00), which shall be paid in at such times and in such amounts and in such manner as the board of directors shall determine.

ARTICLE FOUR.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which said corporation shall at any time be subject shall be Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00).

ARTICLE FIVE.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming said corporation are:

Charles H. Graves, Duluth, St. Louis county, Minnesota.

W. S. Telford, Duluth, St. Louis county, Minnesota.

DeC. F. Niles, Duluth, St. Louis county, Minnesota.

ARTICLE SIX.

The names of the first board of directors are Charles H. Graves, W. S. Telford and DeC. F. Niles, and they shall hold their offices until the first annual meeting of the stockholders.

The government of this corporation and the conduct and management of its affairs shall be vested in a board of three directors, all of whom shall be stockholders, and who shall be elected each year by the stockholders at their annual meeting, which annual meeting shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in February of each year, beginning with the year 1906, and each director shall serve until his successor has been elected and qualified. The annual meeting of the stockholders shall be held at the office of the company in the city of Duluth, Minnesota.

The board of directors shall have power to fill all vacancies occurring in said board or in the officers of the company, and the persons so selected shall hold their office for the unexpired term and until their successors are elected and qualified.

The board of directors shall also have power to make and adopt such by-laws for the management of this corporation as it may deem best, and it may amend, alter or repeal the same, but any such by-law or by-laws so adopted may be repealed or amended by a majority vote of the stockholders of the corporation at any annual meeting or at any special meeting called for that purpose.

Until the election and organization of the new board of directors, Charles H. Graves shall be president, W. S. Telford vice president and DeC. F. Niles secretary and treasurer of this corporation.

ARTICLE SEVEN.

The capital stock of said corporation shall be divided into one hundred shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) each.

In testimony whereof, we have hereunto set our hands and seals this 1st day of April, 1905.

CHARLES H. GRAVES. (Seal)
DEC. F. NILES. (Seal)
W. S. TELFORD. (Seal)

Signed and sealed in presence of:
